—Bruderthal—Hillsboro, Kansas. Mrs. H. R. Nickel, correspondent of the Mennonite, reports that the congregation enjoyed a very inspirational program on "Stewardship," which was given, in April, by the Bethel College Church Brotherhood. On Sunday, May 14-th, eight infants were consecrated to the Lord during the morning service. In the afternoon the Juniors rendered a Mother's Day program, combined with a little social.—"Baptism and communion, which had been planned fo Pentecost Sunday, have been postponed indefinitely due to the sudden attack and apendix operation of our pastor, Rev. Arnold Funk. At present he is improving satisfactorily," we read at the close of the message.—We trust that the Lord will have Brother Funk well, again, before many more days pass on.

—If others would follow suit! "Do you read the Mennonite, if not, you missed four good articles in the issue of April 18. They are: "Meditation" from the "Vine Press"; "Faith: The Confidence of the Hope that Is in Us"; "What Happens When We Pray?". and "Rumors of War." Read them, borrow the Mennonite from some one if you must, then subscribe for it, and you'll enjoy many other articles."

—"A Penny A Day" Reporting for the Penny a Day Campaign as a Bluffton College Trustee, Mr. W. H. Mohr said "seventeen boosters were appointed, eleven churches responded by the end of December, reporting an amount of $364.43 having been sent to Bluffton. Seven churches responded so far this year with a total of over $230.00."—This little note in the Allentown, Penna., First Mennonite Church Bulletin might cause us to ponder over what could be done if every one of us would save a penny each day for our schools; and how much more could be done if we would feel a little ashamed of having only a lowly penny to spare, and make it a nickel!

—From Bluffton, Ohio, we received the message that "Rev. and Mrs. J. J. Esau, who travelled in evangelistic work for the past year, are at present located at Bluffton. Mrs. Esau underwent a major operation at the Bluffton Hospital. She is recovernig nicely. They hope to continue their work in the near future."

—We copied this brief item from Brother Dan. J. Unruh's Pandora, Ohio, St. John's Mennonite Church Bulletin. Thanks. And further: if every reader of the Mennonite would follow suite and solicit additional readers—what a blessing that would be, and how much easier would it be for the Board of Publications to improve, and to expand its work in the Lord's vineyard! Won't YOU think, and pray a little over this suggestion?

—Bethel College, North Newton, Kansas. Commencement exercises at the First Mennonite Church, Newton, brought to a close the 1938-39 year. 46 students graduated. Dr. Wilbur K. Thomas, former executive director of the Friends Service Committee delivered the commencemnt address.

The college also conferred a special honorary degree upon Prof. P. J. Wedel who has been faithfully serving the institution for thirty-seven years as a teacher, and as registrar.

The impressive exercises at the Newton Church had drawn a record attendance. Those who came late had to be satisfied with standing room in the entrance hall of the church.

—According to information received at the closing hour Rev. J. M. Regier, North Newton, Kansas, President of the Western District Conference, has accepted a call of the Johannestal Mennonite Church, near Hillsboro, Kansas.

—Answering inquiries we wish to remind all our friends and contributors that manuscripts intended for a definite issue must reach us not later than Wednesday evening. Short notes and jottings, if urgent, can be printed if received before Friday noon.

SISTER ELIZABETH SCHMIDT came to Arizona, to the Hopi Mission Field, as a housekeeper for the Rev. J. B. Epps in 1909. However, it was soon found necessary for the mission to have some one to take care of the little motherless Hopi babies. She has for the last years lived right in the village in order to be near her married daughter. Her life has been a constant testimony and quiet witness of Jesus Christ. Besides teaching her Hopi children to pray and memorize Bible verses and having them attend church services she also taught children's Sunday school classes as long as her health permitted it. We miss her. Often after the services she would linger to share her burdens and joys with us, or to encourage and comfort us.—John P. and Mabel Suderman.

Harvest Thoughts.—A ripe wheat field, the slender haulm with its millions of heads bowing under the weight of their precious contents, and in a silent testimony of praise to a magnificient Creator of life and prosperity—has such a blessed field ever promoted queer thoughts in your mind? Well, it did in ours, and because it is harvest time we will share these thoughts with the reader and suggest that he meditate over them on coming Sunday.

Here's that wheatfield, and who will reap the benefits it is giving so freely? There's first the farmer, as a matter of course. Then come the business and professional men who get their accounts receivable paid, the banker who receives the money which he advanced on the crop, or the insurance agent who glances up, thankfully, because neither hail nor storm have ruined the crop of the field. The merchant, the automobile dealer, and so on; they all benefit. Another year of their efforts has not been in vain, and another year-to-come inspires courage, instead of disappointment and despair.

We thought of all these beneficiaries going to church on Sunday, then of their coming home and getting additional inspiration and joy out of their church paper. Next they would look at their children and think: "God has been so good to us, again, this year, and we will thank Him by giving our children a Christ-centered education in one of our colleges which God, too, has given to us." Or he might think of the relief organizations of his denomination, and thank God for having inspired the churches to organize and to maintain them.

But what a pity! Whatever benefit there'll be from this year's harvest, every bit of it has been definitely allotted beforehand for some purpose. Of course, there will be the usual amount for collections, dues, some extra gifts and contributions, and so on. But Christ expects us to be good stewards, and to take good care of our material needs. So, surely, there's not much to be done this year in the way of excelling, materially, in the Lord's service.

Realizing this, our thoughts ran off with us into the following Sunday morning service, when all these beneficiaries will sit and pray to the Lord for more blessings, a long and healthy life, and, most of all, for an everlasting life of bliss after the sixty, eighty, or even ninety years of earthly happiness and hardships are over. What a wonderful trust we have in the Lord! Not for a second's time do we doubt that He will not keep His word, or that heavenly happiness will not greatly excel our expectations. And we wondered how many there would be among God's trusting beneficiaries who would trust Him with a small, really small investment, and give Him the profits, all of them, from it in the coming year.

There's that business man who knows from experience that certain days of the week or the month are not much good, as far as profits are concerned. He wouldn't feel it much if he would give to the Lord whatever profit eventually might come his way on such a flop-day. Or the banker who thinks about writing off some claims as total losses. Why not open an account for the Lord and turn the collection of hopeless debts over to Him?

And the farmer, he always has a corner or two in his fields in which he doesn't fully trust. Or, if he feeds cattle, he has a few calves, a sheep or two, which don't look so good to him. They are as good as dead in his eyes. Why not give them to the Lord, and tell Him so. Let Him look after His own property.

If the many beneficiaries who are so certain that God's love and grace guarantee them everlasting prosperity and happiness after death, if they all would trust their Savior with a little investment of the above sort, we could visualize the following picture:

Item so and so on such and such a day to Relief work. This and that doubtful account to the Board of Publications. One or two acres of wheat along the ridge of that gully to our colleges. This acre of late corn belongs to Foreign Missions. This calf, if it grows up, and whatever price it will bring, belongs to the church treasury, and that sickly looking pig, or those two or three acres of oats with bind weed choking them all over, let Bethel Hospital have them.

We are living in an age in which "planned economy" is to save us from economical suicide. Would it be altogether absurd to put the theory to a test in behalf of God's work? It seems to us that in a time which is thought to be so barren of divine wonders we might witness some truly good ones if we added a definitely outlined economic plan for 1940 to our religious service schedule.

Of course, we would have to stick to such a bargain with our Lord. Years ago a man was so delighted over two newly born calves that he gave one of them to the Lord in the presence of a missionary. Both calves looked exactly alike. "What a pity," said the man about a month later, "the calf which I gave to the Lord died."

So in order to avoid embarassing situations, those who might wish to put some such plan to a test must clearly earmark the items and acres which belong to the Lord. Who knows? After all, if we are willing to let the Lord take care of us after we die, why not let Him take care of a little investment from which He alone, and His work, will reap the profits?—J.J.K.

REMEMBER JESUS CHRIST !

Baptismal Sermon by Rev. John Lichti, Medford, Oklahoma

Dearly Beloved: Ascension day of 1939 was your day of decision. On this eighteenth of May you confessed before God and this congregation that Jesus Christ is your Savior, and today you are ready to do the same, and to be baptized in the name of God, the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit. My text for you we find, firstly, in 2 Tim. 1:13, "Hold the form of sound words, which thou hast heard of me in faith, and in the love which is in Christ Jesus" and, secondly, in chapter 2 verse 8, "Remember that the Lord Jesus Christ is risen again from the dead." In other words:

"Remember Jesus Christ" shall be the motto of our service this morning. "Remember Jesus Christ", that is the message for the nations. "Remember Jesus Christ", that is the message for our United States. "Remember Jesus Christ", that is the message for the church, for the home, for the individual, and that is also the message to you this morning. "Remember Jesus Christ!" I would like to impress these three words into your hearts and minds, so you would remember them every day of your life.

Last Sunday I told you that you should consecrate your hearts, minds, souls, and bodies to Christ, and follow Him, and be baptized. One's education we must get from the schools and colleges which we attend. One's church membership is evident from the books of the church to which we belong. But as children of God we rejoice that our names are written down in heaven, and written with the precious Blood of Jesus Christ. Therefore, friends, rejoice!

I am closing my eyes. I am seeing my name written in the Book of Life; your names, and new names from our church. The Blood of the new Covenant is the precious blood of Christ, shed on Calvary. It has secured to the believer an immediate, full, Divine, and everlasting remission of all their sins.

The Blood of Christ on the Cross is the ground on which all contrite hearts will be reconciled. In accepting Christ Jesus you become children of God, and if you will be true to Him you can walk through life in the grace of God and glorify His Holy Name. sent your bodies as a living sacrifice. It must be present your bodies as living sacrifice. It must be preserved holy and acceptable unto God, which is a reasonable service. Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be white as snow, because Jesus paid it all.

You all have prayed to Jesus to forgive you your sins and to save you. Yes, may Jesus come and live His life in you, and may you be true followers of Him. To be saved, however, you must repent and believe in Jesus who died on the cross and shed His precious blood as a Redeemer and Savior of the world. And you must be baptized in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit; besides, you must be baptized with the Holy Spirit and fire from above.

The commission which Jesus gave to the disciples is to go, to teach them, and to baptize them. This commission came through all the centuries and stands, down into our own days, for it is His command. You have confessed that without Christ you are lost in the eyes of God, but now, repenting, you shall not perish. Jesus, when talking to Nicodemus, said: "Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the Kingdom of God." You, too, must be born again and become a new creature through Christ Jesus, if you want to be a child of God that glorifies His Name for what He has done for us. And as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of man be lifted up: that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have eternal life. For God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish but have everlasting life. John 3:14-16.

"Keep your hearts with all diligence; for out of it are the issues of life." Prov. 4:23. Yes, if your hearts keep right, there is a song of gladness in the darkest night; every cloud will have a rainbow, if your heart keeps right. Then there is no separation from God. Rom. 8:35-38.

And now, beloved parents, we rejoice with you over the decision your children (they are also our children) made when they decided to serve God, and to be baptized. Yes, we praise God; even the angels rejoice over one sinner that repenteth. What a blessing for the family, when father, the mother, and all the children serve God. It is a blessing in this life, and in the life to come, an everlasting blessing. May God bless us all in this service as we continue, is my prayer. Amen.

After the sermon Rev. Lichti, Pastor Emeritus of the Medford Church, assisted by Rev. A. G. Schmidt, baptized nine young people.

ACHIEVEMENTS OF MENNONITE MISSIONS IN JAVA AND SUMATRA

By C. Nijdam

In the year 1847 an association for the spread of the Gospel in the Hollandish possessions was organized in Amsterdam, Holland, and in 1854 the first missionary, P. Janss, went to Java. In 1863 the second missionary, N. D. Schuurmans, went there. Both were teachers by profession, which could not but influence their way of organizing the work. Janss took up literary work. He spent special efforts on translating helpful literature for the preacher and teacher into the Javanese language. Schuurmans concentrated on building schools for the youth of the island. He also prepared native teachers for their tasks.

In the year 1876 the first stone school was built. Two years later he went back to Holland. But in the same year P. A. Janss, a son of P. Janss, was ordained as missionary and sent to Java. He has been active there up to 1937. In the year 1903 he organized a teacher's Seminary, which existed until 1933. At present in the Mennonite mission field of Java there exist 18 public schools and three advanced schools with 42 teachers and 2000 pupils.

P. A. Janss has done very much for the translation of the Bible into Javanese. At the same time he opened new opportunities for the Mennonite Mission by cultivating and settling new land regions. This work was directly part of his evangelization. He had observed that religious and social concepts were closely interwoven in the mind of the natives. In the year 1881 he bought approximately 400 acres of land on which he settled his congregation. The principal conditions under which settlers were admitted were: People must be of good behavior. Any one guilty of a crime cannot remain in the colony. Settlers are not allowed to use, produce, or trade in opium and alcoholic beverages. They must give up superstitious and pagan rituals and performances. No one can have more than one wife. Gambling, as well as money lending in a professional way and at high interest, is forbidden. They obligate themselves to visit church and to send their children to school. Roads, bridges, their land parcels, and irrigation channels must be kept in good order, and the low taxes, which, formerly, had to be paid to the local authorities, must be paid to the administration of the settlement.

This method met with great success. The first settlement was named Margaredja, which means "Road to Prosperity". In 1901 another settlement was started and named Margakerta, "Road to Security". In 1910 a new settlement was named Bumiardja, "Land of Prosperity", and in 1925 another tract of land was acquired, the name of which is Pakkies.

Besides preaching and educational work the missionaries have, from the very beginning, brought medical help to the field of their activity. Already in 1894 a hospital was built at Margaredja. In 1902 a clinic was opened in Kedung Pendjalin. Great progress was made especially after Dr. H. Bervoets became connected with the Mennonites. He was a missionary physician in East India and had been in service since 1894. In 1908 he joined the Mennonite Mission in Java. Halfway between the settlements Margaredja and Pendjalin he found a tract of land which the Hollandish Government transferred to him for exclusively missionary purposes in the medical field. He named the beautifully located place Kelet. It lies 1800 feet above sea level and has a fine climate. In 1915 a hospital was dedicated. This has been steadily increased and modernized. It possesses its own electric light plant, running water, and other improvements.

The medical organization has steadily grown until, today, it consists of several hospitals and a number of clinics. The hospitals have 456 beds and employ one European and two native physicians. In 1937 the hospitals took care of 2558 sick, and the clinics treated 58,740 people.

Connected with the hospitals is the leper settlement Donorodjo, which means "Royal Gift". This settlement was started with money which had been collected in Holland when Princess Juliana was born, and which was offered as a gift of honor to the Queen. The latter turned the amount over to the missions and Dr. Bervoets organized the leper colony in the Mennonite mission field. Donorodjo is a leper village. Each inhabitant has his piece of land and can build his home as he wishes it to be. The village has its own store and its own money, also a school and a church. The management is in the hands of Europeans who are willing to share the life of these unfortunate people. In 1933 another settlement was started nearby, in which the people were settled who are not hopelessly infected, and those who are still able and willing to work. In 1937 a second medical clinic was established in the leper colonies. Dr. Gramberg is, today, heading the work of the mission's medical organization.

On Sumatra the Mennonites organized the Mission Tapanuli, near the Equator. The first missionary was Heinrich Dirks from Gnadenfeld, Russia, who went there in 1870 and opened his work in tents. Several other missionaries from Russia have been active in Java and Sumatra. Today in Java are one German and two Swiss missionaries. The last worker in Sumatra was Peter Nachtigal, who died in 1928. Lately this field has been taken care of by the Rheinische Mission of Barmen, Germany.—(Condensed translation from the "Mennonitische Blaetter".)

"The difference between the Holy Spirit, and the spirit of man, is this: the Holy Spirit never uses force. The spirit of man always seeks to dominate and to control.—Chr. Blumhardt.

OUR GROWING WORK—NEEDS A GROWING INCOME

In 1936 there were a number of months when the monthly payroll was $978.00. Toward the end of the year it increased slightly.

During 1937 the work increased and the average monthly payroll was $1129.00.

The Lord gave grace and joy and the money came in as needed.

In 1938, the Board through some District Conference Home Mission Committee work, enlarged the work and the average monthly payroll rose to $1239.

Still the gifts kept up. The Board was further able to make several loans to churches that needed to enlarge, or renovate their churches or needed to build new churches.

Calls and opportunities for good work presented themselves to the Board and in faith, we enlarged the work still further in 1939. The monthly payroll so far this year has been $1363.00.

The Treasurer reports a declining income, these last five months. Can we increase our gifts and prayers, to meet the needs of the work we have in hand? We will be guided by your response.

DEACONESS ORDINATION

Sunday, June 11, in the afternoon, the First Mennonite Church of Newton opened its doors for the ordination of the sisters Sara Dirks, Helen Ruth Epp, Marianna (Marie) Enns, Newta Newfield, Lois (Helena) Schmidt, and Marie Elizabeth Becker, all of the Bethel Hospital, Newton, Kansas. Besides the members of the congregation, friends from the community and from neighboring churches had come to witness the solemn and impressive act by which these sisters stepped into a new phase of their lives; one which places them for the rest of their years on earth into full-time service of their sick and ailing fellowmen.

Rev. J. E. Entz, Elder of the First Mennonite Church, performed the act of ordination. Dr. A. Warkentin, pastor of the church, and Dr. H. W. Lohrenz, of Tabor College, Hillsboro, preached in the German and English languages. Dr. Warkentin's German sermon was based on 2 Chron. 29:11. He emphasized that by entering deaconess work the sisters had placed themselves into the service of the greatest King, our God, and that they had taken up work in a field that has been very much neglected in the past by the church. Material relief and help in many other ways has been, and is, well organized. But the bitterly needed help to our sick fellow-men, even today, suffers from general neglect. Any deaconess, therefore, who enters this field of work in a true spirit and faith assumes a two-fold mission: to heal and to comfort the body, and to contribute to the healing of the soul of man. Dr. Lohrenz had Hebrew 11:8 for his text. He spoke about the faith which a sister must have to lead the life of obedience, which she choses for herself when she enters the deaconess profession in a truly Christian spirit.

After the ordination service relatives and friends of the sisters were invited for a short visit and inspection of the newly completed (partly) Sarepta, the combined nurses training school and home for the students. Sister Frieda Kaufman told the guests that thirty one years ago, on June 11th, she herself, and the sisters Catherine Voth, and Ida Epp had been ordained in the forenoon services, and that in the afternoon Bethel Hospital had been dedicated. Rev. D. Goertz, one of the founders of Bethel, had officiated at both, the ordination and dedication. The work has grown enormously in these thirty years, and Bethel Hospital, with its new clinic and hospital addition completed, will rank among the leading institutions of the state.

A tasty supper, served in the church basement, was beautified by the music of the string orchestra of the church, and a short program, given by friends and relatives of the six sisters, two of whom, the sisters Newta Newfield and Lois (Helena) Schmidt, were also commemorating the tenth anniversary of their entrance into hospital work.

Church Music Institute

The Church Music Institute, which is being sponsored by the Mennonite Song Festival Society, will meet for a week, July 17th to 23rd, at Bethel College, for the study of sacred music and its uses in the service of the church. The Institute has been fortunate in again securing Dr. H. Augustine Smith, Head of the Department of Church Music at Boston University as the leader, and every church and community of the region will profit by having its representatives enroll.

Song and music is the universal language of the soul, and a very essential factor in church work. Why not try to improve and to enrich our sacred music? The cost is not prohibitive, and the blessings which come from such an Institute far surpass any money, time, and energy which are being spent on it. Will YOU attend, and try to interest several others in your community to come with you?

Advance registration will aid the committee greatly to make the Institute a success. Will you, therefore, kindly send your enrollment (and urge others to do likewise), or inquiry for detailed information, to Paul Baumgartner, Bethel College, North Newton, Kansas?—Esther Ratzlaff.

MEN FORGET GOD

By H. C. Brewer

With menacing war clouds hanging low over all the world, it is not difficult to see the predicament that men get into when they forget God and ignore His warnings. War is the inevitable outcome of the multiplied sins of men and nations. Sin is the cause of war. War will curse society so long as the Prince of Peace is rejected by men. The harvest of sin is terrible.

It is reported that Napoleon once asked a certain Count who Jesus Christ was. And upon his failure to answer he said: "Well, then, I will tell you. Alexander, Caesar, Charlemagne and I have founded great empires; but upon what did these creations depend? Upon force. Jesus has founded His empire upon love, and to this very day millions would die for Him." Yes, and to our own day as well. Note that Napoleon clearly recognized the vast difference in value between force and love as a foundation for an empire. Force, which is a stranger to God's vocabulary, is as changeable as the wind or the fancies of men, while love is as steadfast as the course of the sun. Love knows no conqueror. Force may meet its Waterloo tomorrow. "God is love." Pure force has no element of love or justice in it. Hence its failure to bring peace.

Why do we have wars? At least, in part, because the churches have failed to heed the Master's command to "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature" (Mark 16:15). The only really effective weapon that can ever be used against war is the gospel of Jesus Christ. For, since sin is so manifestly at the root of all wars, it seems clear that sin must be banished from the earth before we can hope to escape war's scourge. Man's sinful nature lends direct support to war. Greed, hate, selfishness, and nefarious propaganda are the fuels with which the war engines are fed.

I venture to say that one honest pious soul kneeling at the throne of grace in honest supplication to God for the prevention of war will accomplish more than all our peace societies and anti-war legislation ever will, apart from God. War is a super-disease of the great human family that requires the services of the Great Physician. Only as we submit ourselves to the will of Almighty God, and bring up our children in His admonition, fear and favor, can we hope to escape the horrors of war. What are we who call ourselves Christians going to do about it? We can spare our knees and have war if we want to. Or we can, with one accord, go on our knees and take the problem to God, who will answer it according to His wisdom and judgment. "Prayer changes things." Prayer is the power line that links God with His own. The use of the line is free to all.

When men forget God, Satan takes the driver's seat. He has brought the world, today, to the verge of ruin. "Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap" (Gal. 6:7). We are known by our fruit, and God always puts it in the right "basket." Jesus, the only begotten Son of God, is the way, the hope of peace. Are we ready to walk that way?—(The Presbyterian.)

Bethel College Summer School

The majority of people think that summer is a time in which a college professor's hardest task consists in finding something to do with his precious own self. Vacation months, so we think, are months of undisturbed bliss and leisure for him. But it is a different picture that strikes us when we come to the college campus in these days and see the many cars rested against the curb. Life in and around college seems to be as busy as it is during the regular school term.

The Bethel College Summer Session is in full swing, and one hundred seven students have enrolled for the purpose of completing their studies, taking special courses, or that of meeting special requirements. The session began June 5th, and

We read in the Summer Session Catalog:

"Regular college work, allowing full college credit and satisfying certificate requirements, are offered during this period."

"A student may earn as much as eight hours credit during the session. The courses, however, are so arranged, that the student, who finds it impossible to remain during the entire session, may be attending two, three, or five weeks to complete the work for two, three, or five hours of credit respectively . . . According to this one-course study plan the student takes only one course at a time. A course will run two, three, or five weeks depending upon whether it is a two, three, or five weeks study course. Thus during the eight weeks of summer school a student may enrol for a three-hour course the first three weeks, a two-hour course during the next two weeks, and finish with another three-hour course, or any other combination of two-, three-, and five-hour courses.

"Special provisions have been made to enable teachers to meet present-day certificate requirements. The courses offered in summer school satisfy the conditions for the renewal of the following certificates: Sixty Hour Elementary Certificate; Normal Training Certificate; First Grade County Certificate; Second Grade County Certificate. These courses also meet the requirements for the following certificates issued by the Kansas State Department of Education: Three year One Hundred Twenty Hour Certificate; Two year Sixty Hour Elementary Certificate, and Two year Thirty Hour Elementary Certificate."

"High school seniors who are ready to begin their college course will find an excellent selection of courses from which to choose their first year's work . . . College students who are desirous to hasten the completion of their college work or who need to make up some deficiency will find courses that meet this need . . . Individuals interested in some special line of work will find courses to meet their interest."

Special lectures for rural teachers will be given beginning July 10th. Miss Maude B. Snyder, Superintendent of Public Instruction, Shawnee County, Topeka, Kansas, will be special lecturer for social studies in the primary grades, July 10 to 14. Miss Alta M. Hendrickson, Superintendent of Public Instruction, Hodgeman County, Jetmore, Kansas, will speak on social studies in the intermediate grades, July 17 to 21, and Miss Mae Lewis, an outstanding rural school teacher in Sedgwick County, will give special lectures for junior high school grades, July 24 to 28.

Considerably more details will be found in the 15-page catalog which Dr. A. J. Regier, Director of the Summer Session, will be glad to send to those who feel that they might profit from a few week's stay at Bethel College, North Newton, Kansas.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

A. S. BECHTEL

July 2, 1939

SOLOMON: A RULER WHO BEGAN WELL

1 Kings 3:5-15

Introduction

The aim of the lesson of this quarter, "Lessons from Israel's Leaders", is "to discover how we may be more effective Christians through considering certain characteristics of some of Israel's kings and prophets. The chief aim is not merely to discover the facts pertaining to these men, but to become more effective Christians. Our study of these men should furnish us with inspiration and guidance in our service of God.

The forty-year reign of Solomon was the period of the greatest national development of the Hebrew kingdom. It was a period of peace with other nations, a great expansion in commerce and building, a tremendous increase in wealth. However, in it were sown the seeds which led to Solomon's later religious decline.

Solomon's Prayer vs 5-9

Solomon went to Gibeon (v 4) to sacrifice because the Tabernacle was there. The Temple had not yet been built. Here he expressed his religious devotion in offering up a thousand burnt offerings. God appeared to him in a dream in the night, satisfying Solomon's desire to meet Him. God used the dream to convey a real revelation. He really spoke to Solomon. The invitation to ask was real and his response was real and represented the desires of his waking hours. God set all the resources of His power at the disposal of Solomon. He lays the same to each one of us.

Before asking for anything, Solomon acknowledged God's wonderful goodness shown to his father, David, and to himself (v 6). He realized that he owed his present high position entirely to God. He also felt altogether insufficient for the great responsibility of the position God gave to him (v 7). He felt so lacking in experience. To him high office was a sacred trust, not a position, or personal gain and honor. His people were God's people, chosen by Him (v 8), and he, God's selected servant. Oh, that all present-day dictators and other rulers and leaders would feel a similar responsibility to God in the conduct of their office.

Solomon asked for practical wisdom, keenness to perceive the right, more valuable to him than all honor and riches (v 9). That which he asked for, we may all ask for and receive. The chief aim of his prayer was God's glory.

Jehovah's Answer vs 10-15

Solomon's prayer pleased Jehovah (v 10) for it revealed that the temper of his soul was right, and that he could be trusted to judge the people justly. God is pleased with our humble, intelligent and unselfish prayers. God promised him that which he asked for (v 12) and in addition far more than he had asked (v 13). Solomon's choice of the higher, the better and greater things, showed he could be entrusted with the lower and lesser. When we seek the highest and best things, God will give to us, with them, the minor things. God gave him another promise, (v 14) conditional upon his future conduct. Promise, long life; condition, obedience. All God's richest blessings hinge upon our obedience (A. 5:32). Many fall short of His blessings because of disobedience. God delights to give when we ask according to His will. He loves to bestow the good which we do not seek. Choosing with God automatically brings the best which life can hold for us.

"Christ said: 'Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you.' John 14:27.

"In all things keep an eye on yourself, on what you do, on what you say, and let all your efforts be concentrated on pleasing the Lord . . . Do not judge carelessly the words and deeds of others, and do not embroil yourself in matters which have not been entrusted to you. If you heed this advice your peace will not often be disturbed . . . Do not think that you have true peace if you are without any burden, or that everything is right if you have no opposition to suffer. Neither are things perfect when all your wishes are being fulfilled. Do not think that you are great, or especially beloved to people when you yourself feel most satisfied and content inwardly. These are not signs of true virtue. True virtue consists in an unconditional submission to the will of God . . . When you come to the point where you can completely disregard your own self, then only will you enjoy the fullness of peace."—Thomas a Kempis.

AS A TEACHER IN HIS STEPS

By Anna Margret Reimer

"Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." 2 Timothy 2:15.

In the Academy of Fine Arts in Florence there stands one of the most famous statues in the world. It is the heroic statue of a young man, some eight or nine feet in height. He has the physical features of a perfect youth and a face that is pure and not contaminated with sin. It is one of the most attractive and most beautiful pieces of sculpture the world possesses. It is Michael Angelo's David—the artist's conception of the shepherd lad as he stood sling in hand, the moment before his victory over Goliath.

There is a legend connected with this statue with which you are familiar. The marble block from which this figure was carved was brought from the quarry and offered to Bandinelli, Michael Angelo's great rival. He looked at it for a moment and then turned aside with a sneer, saying that no sculptor could produce anything out of such an ugly-shaped block of stone as that. It lay then for sometime under the accumulating dust of the marble yard. One day Michael Angelo was passing through the yard and his eye chanced to fall upon this rejected stone. He paused beside it and in a moment the eye of the great artist saw in that ugly stone the face and form of David. He bought the stone for a trifle and moved it to his studio. There in the seclusion of his rooms he moulded his statue. With hammer and chisel he chipped off the corners here and the edges there, until David stood forth in his beauty.

The fame of Michael Angelo was forever established. He had proved himself a great artist, for he had the eye to see in that ugly block of stone the pure and perfect David.

Not all the world's great artists have left their work in stone or canvas. In fact the greatest artist the world has ever seen never, so far as we know, painted a picture nor carved a statue. Nevertheless, he was the world's greatest artist—he had the artist's eye.

The Bible has many illustrations. One day Jesus was sitting at meat in the house of Simon, a pharisee, when a woman, who was a noted sinner, came in and, kneeling at his couch, bathed his feet with her tears and wiped them with the hair of her head. Those who sat at meat with him expected him to drive the sinful creature from their midst. They were amazed and scandalized when he turned to her and spoke in tenderness, "Thy sins are forgiven thee; thy faith hath saved thee."

On another occasion a woman was brought into his presence who had been taken in sin. They wanted him to cast at her the first stone. He stooped down and wrote in the sand and her accursers began to slink away. When they had disappeared, he arose and said, "Neither do I condemn thee; go thou and sin no more."

Other instances might be quoted. How are we to explain this difference in attitudes? Jesus was an artist and the others were lacking in the artist's spirit. Like Bandinelli. they saw only the ugly, uncouth block of marble; he saw the beautiful statue. They saw only the degraded, unmoral men and women. He saw in these creatures the sons and daughters of God. He saw under the rough exteriors the image of his Father. He saw not merely the sin and degradation of men, though he saw that as did no other, but he saw underneath all this the glorious possibilities of a redeemed manhood. That was the secret of his mission; he was an artist.

You can see the image of God if you have the artist's eye. But granted the eye to see the figure in the marble, how is the artist to get his figure out? It is not so simple as it might seem. Even the marvelous Angelo had given years of patient toil before he could bring David from the rough block of marble. We do not learn the art of bringing the image of Christ to Christless faces at a bound. One must sit at the master's feet and learn his skill.

Teaching is an art. Some few who enter upon the profession are born teachers. Jesus was among the chief of these. If day-school teachers and especially S. S. teachers would study the four gospels with the view of sitting at Jesus' feet in order to learn the magic of his art of teaching, their efficiency would be multiplied and their influence for good increased.

The teacher must be that which he would teach. It must be ingrained into the very fibre of his being. Often living Christ is of more value than teaching him. To teach a Bible class in S. S. the truths taught in the Book must become a part of the instructor. It was this personal integrity that helped to make Jesus' teaching so effective.

The teacher must know his pupil. He must be living in and with them as it were, as Jesus did with his disciples. A personal touch is very important.

By starting with what people knew and understood, with what was close at hand, Jesus taught them the eternal truths of the Kingdom. His parables are marvels of this type.

The spirit of Christian teachers, then, is the spirit of the artist. That spirit involves a vision to see in men and women the possibilities of sons of God once they are transformed by his spirit; a skill which is the result of patience and often long experience, to mould men in the likeness of Christ, a passion that will not let us rest until all men everywhere have been recreated in his image.

A good teacher should constantly enrich his life by studying the Bible, by communing with God often in prayer, and by taking part in church services.

SERMON SKETCH

THEME: CHRIST, MY ALL IN ALL

Text: 1 Cor. 1:30

L. H. Linscheid, Pastor, Bethany Mennonite Church, Freeman, South Dakota

I. Introduction

It is not infrequently that we meet well-meaning Christians who seem to experience Christ in a piecemeal way, much as we would sit down to eat chicken dinners: once eat a wing, next time a leg, or the neck, as it may be. Can we partake of Christ in this way? It is true He is our daily Manna, but that is a different theme. But when we experience Christ in our lives as our Savior from sin, is He then not ours altogether, and in all fullness? Why must we wait for the second work of grace, or a special infilling, or the second blessing? When we accept Christ is He not ours all in all? That is, I believe, what our text signifies: "Ye are of Christ Jesus (if so be that ye have accepted Him as your personal Savior) who of God is made unto us wisdom, and righteousness, and sanctification and redemption." This speaks very plainly. Yet one school of thought holds that by one definite act, which we must pray for and experience, we come to receive the fullness of the wisdom of Christ, by another act we are made altogether righteous so that we cannot sin anymore, by a third act we are completely sanctified, etc. In other words, the act or process becomes the highest prize. Then, the other school of thought holds that in one act of accepting Christ as our Savior, we have in Him what we need: wisdom, righteousness, sanctification and redemption, but only as we live in Him and walk in the Light as He is in the Light and exercise ourselves in Him that we can daily partake of His heavenly wisdom, righteousness, sanctification and redemption. In other words, in the act of receiving Christ we have Christ complete, not in part as illustrated above, but only as we yield ourselves to Him more and more can we experience Him more and more fully.

II. Christ our Wisdom

He is made wisdom for us. If we have Him we understand God and the world, we understand life and death, and understand time and eternity. The unbeliever asks, "How can we know?" The answer is: Christ is our wisdom. In Him we know. He is the solution and explanation of everything.

III. Christ our Righteousness

To be righteous is to be set free from the guilt of sin. Christ took man's sin upon Himself and suffered our punishment. Therefore we are free in Him. He is our righteousness. God is pleased in His Son who was obedient unto death. God can see and recognize us only as we are in Christ, for He alone is accepted of God. He is righteous and we are made righteous in Him. Our own righteousness is nothing. Isaiah says it is as filthy rags. Without Christ there is no righteousness, therefore He was made that for us that we might appear righteous before God.

IV. Christ our Sanctification

God does not only want to see us in Christ, but He wants to see Christ in us, as Paul says (Gal. 2:20) "I am crucified with Christ: nevertheless I live; yet not I, but Christ liveth in me." In Christ we are justified and made righteous through His righteousness, but through Christ in us we are sanctified as clean vessels unto God. "Abide in me, and I in you" speaks of Christ our righteousness and at the same time of our sanctification. As Christ was sanctified without sin unto God, so we are sanctified by Him in our lives.

V. Christ our Redemption

Christ does not only redeem us from the guilt of sin, but He is able to save to the uttermost, which implies from the power and dominion of sin—a much greater and fuller redemption. Christ is our daily deliverance from evil, our escape from ruin, our victor over temptation, our companion in the valley of the shadow of death. In Him our redemption is complete for the past, present and future.

Is it not wonderful to know that we have such a precious Savior! By Him we know as we are known of Him, our wisdom. In Him God sees us made righteous. In us Christ sanctifies, cleanses and purifies us. And through Him our redemption is consummated. Therefore, Christ is my all in all.

CORRESPONDENCE

LORAINE AVE. MENNONITE CHURCH,

Loraine and Gilbert, Wichita, Kansas

Spring and summer with all its glory and beauty is again upon us and, as we look back over the activity and events that have transpired since our last report, we cannot help but feel grateful to the Lord and all of our mission friends for the many blessings and help received through the winter and spring months.

On Dec. 4 the Alexanderwohl Men's Chorus of Goessel had charge of the evening program.—Dec. 18 at 2:30 p. m. the Tabor Mennonite Church, near Goessel, gave a Christmas program and distributed gifts to needy in the southwest area, our new mission enterprise. Much clothing and other gifts such as Bibles, etc., have been sent in by the various churches and have been distributed in that area from time to time by the mission committee and friends of our church. Services and Sunday School classes are conducted there every Sunday afternoon and the group there is steadily growing.

On March 16 the Friendship Circle had a very interesting guest speaker in Mrs. Mariam Penner Schmidt from Newton.—On Palm Sunday the choir and young people rendered a program and a drama, "Triumph of Love." The week after Easter Rev. P. P. Wedel of Moundridge conducted services every evening and also on Sunday, May 16. That same evening the male chorus of the Eden Church, Moundridge, rendered a program.

On April 23 the young people and choir rendered a program and presented the drama "Triumph of Love" in the Tabor Church, near Goessel.—On April 30 the Student Volunteers of Bethel College gave a program, and on May 21 the Male Chorus of the Mennonite Church, Hillsboro, rendered a program.—To all these folks who have so graciously given of their time and talent to bring showers of blessing to our Mennonite group here in Wichita we express our heartfelt gratitude.

On May 28 we had Baptismal services and reception of members. Eight were added, bringing our total membership to 107. However, there are many more of the Mennonite faith and families here in Wichita that should come in.

Rev. and Mrs. Schmidt and also some of our lay members deserve much credit for the efforts that are being exerted in behalf of the work here. May the Lord bless the work further.—Mrs. Ben C. Frey, Corr.

BUTTERFIELD, MINN., JUNE 6, 1939

Dear Readers of the Mennonite:—The past six months have been full of activities for our congregation. I shall mention only those of recent date. Rev. Schultz has been a very busy man since he came to us just one year ago. His ministry has meant very much to us and has been a real blessing. We feel that we have every reason to thank God when we see interest in His work growing and the attendance at church steadily increasing. We are glad for the church work we are able to do. Our pastor is active, trying to keep every department at work. Church services, Sunday School, prayer meeting, senior and junior choir practices are regularly held every week.

Since the first of the year, our church has sponsored a Week Day Church School. Our congregation has felt the need of this instruction for some time and so arrangements were made to take the children out of the public school for two hours a week for this religious instruction. This is proving most profitable and is to continue through the summer.

Our pastor is deeply interested in our young people and spares no effort to meet with them every week and to encourage them. A number of social gatherings have been enjoyed by them at the parsonage during the year.

For the first time, a 7 o'clock Sunrise Service was held in our church Easter morning. Many people availed themselves of the opportunity to come out to worship at this early hour.

On April 16 we observed our annual spring communion service.—The C. E. Society presented a fitting Mother's Day program, May 14th.

The Sunday School is at present busy preparing a Children's Day program to be held June 18th.—Corr.

REOPENING SERVICES AT DEEP RUN

After a lapse of four weeks without services during which time the Deep Run Church was receiving a renewal of inside decorations and recarpeting and outside painting of woodwork, the congregation had reopening services on May 28. The pastor, A. M. Fretz, spoke on Isa. 56:7 with special emphasis on "house of prayer for all people", as applied to verses 4-6.

In the afternoon of the same day the pastor and a goodly number of the members conducted services at the Home at Frederick. Rev. Burkholder is conducting the services at Perkasie Church. Again on June 4 he conducted the services at the Springfield Church.—A. M. Fretz, Corr.

THE RESULTS OF WORLD MIXING

When Jacob went down to Schechem he placed himself in the midst of worldly associations. Genesis 34 is a dark story, and we are not taking it up in detail. There is one verse, however, that needs to be considered. It reads thus: "Dinah the daughter of Leah . . . went out to see the daughters of the land." Had Jacob not dwelt near to the city, his daughter had not gone to mingle and to mix with worldly associates. We often feel that parents are to blame for a great deal of the children's folly. It is their own carnality and wandering from a vital relationship with their Savior which causes their children to drift from God. "Like parent, like child" carries a great deal of truth. How can a man expect a stream to run higher than its source? The father or the mother who tells a child what to do, but does not do what he tells, will make a failure in child training. Parents must set examples as well as give commands.

A result of world mixing is the breaking up of connections with God. The years spent in the world are spent without any vital relationship whatsoever with the covenant Lord. We may be God's children, but we will lose fellowship with the Father if we walk with the world. When we lose our connection with God, we lose our testimony with men. Lot, dwelling in Sodom, lost all his power over his own children. To some of them he seemed as one who mocked. Lot, dwelling in Sodom, lost all his power over its citizens. Not one of them could he take with him out of the city as he fled from its coming destruction. It was David who said, "Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me . . . Then will I teach transgressors thy ways; and sinners shall be converted unto Thee."—From the GOSPEL HERALD Pulpit by R. E. Neighbor, D. D.

Faith

Lord, give me faith! to live from day to day,
With tranquil heart to do my simple part,
And, with my hand in thine, just go Thy way.

Lord, give me faith! to trust, if not to know;
With quiet mind in all things Thee to find
And, child-like, go where Thou wouldst have me go.

Lord, give me faith! to leave it all to Thee,
The future is Thy gift, I would not lift
The veil Thy love has hung 'twixt it and me.

Advance Information

Western District Y. P. Retreat of 1939

Purpose of Retreat

To give an opportunity for serious minded young people to receive spiritual inspiration, in a program of meditation, fellowship, and recreation.

Time

From the afternoon of July 25 to noon July 30.

Place

Camp Wood, a state Hi-Y camp near Elmsdale, Kansas, about 50 miles northeast of Newton on U. S. 50S.

Retreat Leaders

Rev. Ernest J. Bohn, Souderton, Pa., Rev. A. Warkentin, Rev. P. K. Regier, Rev. P. H. Richert, Sister Lena Mae Smith, Dr. P. E. Schellenberg, Mr. Erwin Goering, and others not yet definitely engaged.

Cost

Same as last year, $7.00. Includes all expenses. If you register on or before July 10 the 50c pre-registration fee will be counted as $1.00, thus making the total cost in advance $6.50.

Advance Registration

To be sure that you will have room when you come, fill out the advance registration card and send it with your 50c to Rev. David Wedel, Halstead, Kansas, on or before July 10. These registration cards are being sent to your pastor. The 50c you are asked to include will be credited to you as $1.00 when you arrive at camp. In the event that you cannot come after having registered in advance, you may have your registration transferred to another person, or we will refund your money if you notify us a week before the retreat opens. Get your registration card from your pastor at once.

Camp Rules

It is understood that all retreaters will cooperate whole heartedly with the camp staff and conduct themselves in a truly Christian manner. All cars are to remain parked on the camp grounds for the duration of the retreat.

Further Information

Write to Rev. David Wedel, Halstead, Kansas, or Walter Dyck, Burrton, Kansas.

Special Request to Pastors

Please have some adult person from your church accompany the retreaters.

Retreat Committee, Edwin R. Stucky

List of District Representatives

The various districts have appointed or elected their representatives. They are:

Eastern—Mr. John E. Fretz, 3722 N. 16th St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Middle—Miss Esther Amstutz, 416 W. High, Bryan, Ohio.

Western—Rev. Walter Dyck, Burrton, Kansas.

Pacific—Miss Alice Lehman, Aberdeen, Idaho.

Northern—Rev. Victor Sawatzky, Butterfield, Minn.

Canadian—Mr. Jacob C. Schmidt, Waldheim, Sask., Canada.

At present these are getting acquainted with each other by mail. Young people, especially leaders, should become acquainted with their district representatives. These representatives can be of great help in Young People's Work. Make use of them.

This and That

The date for the Western District Young People's Retreat is July 25-30. The faculty has not been fully selected. Fees will be "no higher than last year" writes Rev. Arnold Funk. This was $7.00 and included registration, meals, lodging and all camp privileges. It will be at Camp Wood again. This is located near Elmsdale, Kansas, on U. S. Highway 50S, about 50 miles northeast of Newton.

A request has come to the Young People's Committee to assist in the erection of a Bible School Dormitory at Swift Current, Saskatchewan. Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander, Quakertown, Pa., (sec. of home mission board) writes:

"The students were in the main housed in the church basement. The floor of the basement is below ground level and naturally the Provincial Health regulation does not permit this to continue any longer than for this current year."

". . . This summer as soon as the spring seeding is over the laymen of Swift Current and vicinity will donate labor to dig the basement and put up the building, thus reducing the cost greatly."

The request is that the various district Y. P. groups support the project that the dormitory can be erected. The Eastern District young people have already offered to take it up by pledging $100.00. The Middle District Y. P. leaders will decide in June. The Western District Convention will also act on the matter.

Questionnaire Results

Question No. 10 read, "How large a paper have you in mind? (No. of pages to each issue)." The average number of pages suggested was 11. The suggestions ranged from 4 to 20. The latter figure was suggested for a monthly edition. Some comments were:

"Depends on size of page. Should have attractive cover design."

"Would one dare start with more than 8 pages. I have seen a number of good papers fail because they started too large."

"Should have small, attractive size."

Recreation for Results

Senior C. E. Topic for July 9, 1939

If of thy mortal goods thou art bereft,
And from thy slender store two loaves alone to thee are left,
Sell one, and with the dole
Buy hyacinths to feed thy soul.

I. Song service. Suggested songs:
  1. "Let the Sunshine In"
  2. "Brighten the Corner Where You Are"
  3. "In My Heart There Rings a Melody"

II. Scripture reading for the topic: Col. 1:9-18; 3:17

III. Introduction of the subject for discussion by the leader. He should make the unifying connection between recreation and Paul's words in Colossians, explain the meaning of the term, and make clear why it is sufficiently important for young people to spend time thinking and talking about it.

IV. Prayer hymn: "May Jesus Christ Be Praised"

V. Prayer

VI. Poem

"Who Walks with Beauty"

Who walks with beauty has no need of fear;
The sun and moon and stars keep pace with him;
Invisible hands restore the ruined year,
And time itself grows beautifully dim.
One hill will keep the footprints of the moon
That came and went a hushed and secret hour;
One star at dusk will yield the lasting boon;
Remembered beauty's white immortal flower.

Who takes of Beauty wine and daily bread
Will know no lack when bitter years are lean;
The brimming cup is by, the feast is spread;
The sun and moon and stars his eyes have seen
Are for his hunger and the thirst he slakes:
The wine of Beauty and the bread he breaks.
David Morton

VII. Suggestions for short talks:
  1. Recreation as a means of fostering desirable character traits.
  2. Recreation as a means of enriching personality.
  3. Recreation as a means of developing skills and abilities.

VIII. Questions for discussion:

1. What is the literal meaning of the word "recreation"? How does this shed light on the true purpose of recreation?

2. How do we know that Paul was interested in some of the common forms of recreation in his day? (1 Timothy 6:12; Hebrews 12:1; 1 Cor. 9:24-27; etc.)

3. Which is more helpful, group recreation or individual, and why?

4. What effects may having an absorbing hobby exert on the personality?

5. Are all forms of pleasure recreation? Is recreation always pleasurable?

IX. Closing song, "He Keeps Me Singing"

X. Prayer and Mizpah benediction.

Food for thought: "The man who permits himself to become bored is even more contemptible than the bore."

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

WHAT SHALL WE DO WHEN WE HAVE NOTHING TO DO?

Intermediate C. E. Topic for July 9, 1939

For Daily Reading:

July 3. Consider the flowers. Matt. 6:28-30.
July 4. Look at mountains. Isa. 54:7-10.
July 5. Observe the birds. Matt. 6:25-27.

July 6. Study a mine. Job 28:1-11.
July 7. Practice music. Ps. 150.1-6.
July 8. View the heavens. Job 38:31-38.
July 9. Topic—What shall we do when we have nothing to do? Prov. 19:23-29.

Opening Song, "Serve the Lord in Youthful Days"
Scripture Reading, Prov. 19:23-29.
Prayer by leader
Poem:

"The Gospel According To You"

There's a sweet old story translated for man,
But writ in the long, long ago—
The Gospel according to Mark, Luke and John—
Of Christ and his mission below.

Men read and admire the Gospel of Christ,
With its love so unfailing and true;
But what do they say and what do they think,
Of the Gospel "according to you?"

'Tis a wonderful story, that Gospel of love,
As it shines in the Christ life divine;
And, oh, that its truth might be told again
In the story of your life and mine!

Unselfishness mirrors in every scene;
Love blossoms on every sod;
And back from its vision the heart comes to tell
The wonderful goodness of God.

You are writing each day a letter to men,
Take care that the writing is true;
'Tis the only gospel that some men will read—
That gospel according to you.

Anonymous, F. H. Revell Co., 1933.

Introduction by leader.—It is with the thought of the above poem that we want to approach this topic as to what we should do when we have nothing to do. As Christian Endeavorers we want to live our lives so that we may be a good witness to men even in our leisure time.

Many of our days do not mean what they should because we do not start them right. It is very helpful to spend some time in quietness and prayer immediately after rising. A day begun in that way leads us to a quiet time at the close of day. Do we always think over the events of the day in a prayerful spirit at the close of day?

Song, "Father, in the Morning"

Questions for discussion:

1. Let each one quietly meditate on the way he spends his free hours.

2. How many hours of the day do our studies take?

3. After allowing sufficient time for sleep, how much time is left?

4. How much time in each day is given over to pleasure?

5. How much time is spent in just aimlessly doing nothing at all?

6. How much time is spent in helping others?

7. How much time do we spend in helping our families?

Vocal Solo, "My Task"

Practical suggestions for leisure hours:

1. Plan a regular time in which to read really good books. Determine to read at least one a week. Do not always read the same type of book. We need books which will challenge our thinking and we also need those which provide lighter reading.

The book which we want to read above all others is the Bible. In it we can find material to fit our every mood and liking.

2. Cultivate worthwhile friendships. Do we just let friendships happen? Strive to find people who need friendship and whose companionship would be especially rewarding to you.

3. Today we have a wonderful opportunity to hear worthwhile things by means of radio. Let us try and select those programs of good music, drama, and addresses which will inspire us.

4. Select outside activities which will be good exercise for our bodies and our souls.

5. Be sure to give all possible time to activities of the church. These supply our spiritual food.

6. Study nature as several of the daily readings suggested. It is God's handiwork and through it we come closer to him. Become well informed on something out of doors, birds or flowers or some phase which especially appeals.

7. Attend summer conferences, conventions, and retreats.

Offering

Announcements

Concluding thought by leader.—As young people do we realize that we shall never have as much free time as we have now? Perhaps we sometimes think we have scarcely any time for our own. After the discussion of this topic some of us are most likely willing to admit that the fault lies within ourselves. Do we always plan our time as wisely as we should? Do we stop to think that others are just as busy as we are? Do we realize that the way we plan our time now has very great effect upon our future lives?

In conclusion, let us endeavor to spend our free time in such a way that we may learn to know Christ better and enlarge our sphere of usefulness to mankind.

"They that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars forever and ever!" Dan. 12:3.

Closing song, "Just For Today"
Close with the praying of the Lord's Prayer.

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

GOD'S GIFT IN NATURE

Outline for July, 1939

July 9. Trees. Psalm 104:16.
July 16. Wind. John 3:8.
July 23. Rain. Leviticus 26:4.
July 30. Night. Revelation 22:5.

Verse for the month: Psalm 104:24. "O Lord, how manifold are Thy works! in wisdom hast thou made them all: the earth is full of Thy riches."

Song for the month: "O Worship the King, All Glorious Above," vs. 1, 2, 3.

TREES, Ps. 104:16

Program for July 9, 1939

I. Worship Service

1. Instrumental Prelude
2. Song, "O Worship the King," vs. 1, 2, 3.
3. Scripture reading by a junior boy, Psalm 1.
4. Prayer by leader
5. Two junior girls recite the following:

(a) Psalm 92:12-14. "The Righteous shall flourish like the palm tree; he shall grow like a cedar in Lebanon. Those that be planted in the house of the Lord shall flourish in the courts of our God. They shall still bring forth fruit in old age; they shall be fat and flourishing."

(b) Luke 6:43, 44. "For a good tree bringeth not forth corrupt fruit; neither doth a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit. For every tree is known by his own fruit. For of thorns men do not gather figs, nor of a bramble bush gather they grapes."

(a) Matthew 7:17. "Even so every good tree bringeth forth good fruit; but a corrupt tree bringeth forth evil fruit."

(b) Matthew 3:10. "And now also the axe is laid unto the root of the tree; therefore every tree which bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down and cast into the fire."

Together: Proverbs 11:30. "The fruit of the righteous is a tree of life; and he that winneth souls is wise."

6. Duet: "Fairest Lord Jesus"

II. Mission Minutes

1. The Missionary Alphabet (Continued)

I—"I will instruct thee and teach thee in the way which thou shalt go: I will guide thee with mine eye." Psalm 32:8.

Jesus said: "I am the Light of the world." John 8:12.

2. Gleanings from the "Missionary News and Notes" by two juniors.

III. Study Period:

Aim: To help the juniors to appreciate the gift of trees and to find the spiritual lesson found in them.

1. A short talk on the trees of Palestine (using pictures to illustrate).
2. Verse of month in concert, "O Lord, how manifold are Thy works, in wisdom hast Thou made them all: the earth is full of Thy riches."
3. Talk by the leader: The Bible is full of trees, from the time when Adam and Eve sat under their shadow in Eden, on to the splendid vision of the New Jerusalem in Revelations, where the tree of life bears twelve manner of fruit and its leaves are for the healing of the nations, we read of trees. Trees not only gladden the eye with their beauty but they teach us many spiritual lessons. We read that trees sing (1 Chr. 16:33) and clap their hands (Isa. 55:12b)
4. The Old Testament gives us some laws concerning trees. A junior should read these and make comments. Deut. 20:19, 20; Lev. 19:23-25.
5. In Judges we find a parable of the tree. A junior should study this parable and then tell it in his own words. Judges 9:7-15.
6. Story of Zacchaus in the Sycamore tree. Luke 10:1-10. Told by a junior.
7. Poem:

Loving the Trees

I think that I shall never see
A poem lovely as a tree.
A tree whose hungry mouth is pressed
Against the earth's sweet flowing breast,
A tree that looks to God all day,
And lifts her leafy arms to pray;

A tree that may in summer wear
A nest of robins in her hair;
Upon whose bosom snow has lain,
Who intimately lives with rain.
Poems are made by fools like me,
But only God can make a tree.

Joyce Kilmer.

8. Bible Findings: Ps. 1:3; Prov. 11:30; Is. 55:12b; Ps. 104:16, 17; Jer. 17:8; Ez. 47:7; Gen. 2:9; Rev. 2:7; Ps. 92:12; 1 Chr. 16:33; Rev. 22:2; Rev. 22:14; Ez. 17:24; Song of Sol. 2:3; Is. 44:14.
9. Leader's heart talk: "The Tree of Life"
10. Song: "Jerusalem, the Golden"
11. Leader's closing prayer.

Mennonitische Lexikon

Subscribers Attention!

It is generally known that the authors and publishers of the Mennonitische Lexikon, Chr. Hege and Dr. Chr. Neff, have completed Vol. I and Vol. II of this extensive work, and that the preparation of Volume III is progressing rapidly.

When at first the work was begun, the authors thought two good sized volumes would suffice for holding all the historical matter. But the search for material yielded such a wealth of historical matter, far exceeding expectation, that the work is now expanding into three large volumes.

For the Mennonite people, as also for the Christian world in general, this monumental work will prove to be of special historical importance. For that reason it should receive a wide distribution, especially among Mennonites. Many families should own a set of the three volumes and every Mennonite church or Sunday School Library should possess a set of the Mennonitische Lexikon.

In America the numerous early subscribers (now 25 years ago), ordered only the first two volumes. Very likely most of those who ordered and paid for thirty pamphlet-issues, constituting the matter for Vol. I and Vol. II and who accordingly were supplied with the material for Vol. I and Vol. II, will now desire to obtain also Vol. III, so as to have the work complete. Those who do want also Vol. III should so inform the undersigned by mail. Kindly give your full name and the exact present address. (If necessary give the name and address to whom the thirty pamphlet issue were sent). Please send your notice at once. Of course every one will want the whole work complete in three volumes.

If there are any among those who read this who have not heretofore subscribed to this work but desire to possess it, send your name and address with application to the undersigned.

A number of persons subscribed for the whole work (Three Volumes) in 1929 through Prof. H. H. Ewert. To all of those, so far as possible, Vol. I and Vol. II have already been supplied. It is desired that all who have paid for the three volumes also report to the undersigned by letter their correct present address. For in the course of years many changes in address have been made. Also some of the subscribers are no longer among the living. Kindly let some one of the family report by mail the name and address at which the deceased received his mail; and also give the name and address of the person to whom Volume III is to be sent when completed.

This matter of supplying changes of name and adaddress, to whom future correspondence, pertaining to the Mennonitische Lexikon is to be addressed, applies to all who desire to renew connection for obtaining part or all of the entire work—the Mennonitische Lexikon.

All such pertinent information will then be sent by the undersigned, hitherto the representative of the Mennonitische Lexikon in America, to the Publishers of this great work.

WANTED—10,000 STUDENTS

This is a call to the several thousand Christian young people now attending the universities, colleges, and high schools of America to enlist voluntarily in an intensive summer training course in preparation for definite, aggressive, evangelistic service for Christ on the campus during the school year 1939-1940.

Within the past few years many interesting articles have been published in Christian journals graphically depicting the plight of the student in the modern classroom and on the modern campus. Some very splendid attempts are being made by certain evangelical organizations to meet the appalling situation revealed in such articles through the establishment of a positive Christian testimony in our schools. However, for the most part, these organizations center their efforts on the development of Bible classes or student meetings where adult teachers and speakers endeavor to teach or preach to the students. Undoubtedly results are being obtained by this method, but it leaves much to be desired since it is very difficult to secure adults who have the talents needful for effective Christian student work. Furthermore, most of these plans do not give the students much to do except to promote and advertise these adult-led classes and meetings.

In contrast the call now being issued for volunteers is something decidedly different, constituting a new departure in Christian student work. It is the result of twelve years of painstaking experimental activity on the campus and more than twenty years of research on the student problem. It is a call to students to enlist in a special course of intensive training for active Christian service wherein there will be a maximum of student activity and a minimum of dependence upon adult leadership. The center of attention and emphasis is upon the training of individual student volunteers in personal Bible study and student campus work so that they will not be dependent upon local adult leadership for their Christian existence and activity.

This introductory invitation is extended to students everywhere to write immediately for further information in order that they may prepare during the summer months for active service on the campus next fall. Information will be sent to all interested students who address inquiries to Milo F. Jamison, Box 711, Hollywood, Calif.—Condensed from The Sunday School Times.

BEYOND THE HILLS

I wonder what is behind the hills—
Is there silence and mystery?
Is there darkness of night,
And the rovings of memory?
The evening star and after glow
Seem to brighten the far away,
In the land of Eternal Day—
Beyond the hills.

I wonder what is beyond the hills—
Is there trouble, and sin, and pain?
Are the hearts still sore and weary with care,
Is there loss over there, or gain?
A sweet hope whispers to me within,
"The hungers of the human soul
Are prayers to Him who satisfies."
Press on, ever on, to the goal
Beyond the hills.

I wonder what is behind the hills,
Is there music and gladness and song;
And dear sweet children, friends of the past,
Who lingered awhile, then were gone?
A "Place Prepared" for them and you,
A "Mansion" in realms of light,
Sweet homeland of our loved and true,
No sickness, no sorrow, no night,
Beyond the hills.

IN MEMORIAM

DR. W. F. SCHROEDER, son of Frank D. and Katharina (Rempel) Schroeder of Mountain Lake, Minn., suddenly lost his life Sunday night, June 11, 1939, in an automobile tragedy that deeply shocked Newton, Kansas, and vicinity, where he has been a beloved and signally successful physician and surgeon for the last 16 years. On this Sunday night, on his return from a duty call as county health physician, his car collided with a stalled truck. He was struck with a terrific force on his left temple that caused almost instant death.

On Saturday evening he had a telephone conversation with his relatives in Mountain Lake in which he was fervently importuned to join them in a family reunion there, but as he told a patient later he just couldn't make up his mind to do so, as he felt constrained to remain with his patients. On Sunday night, as he stopped with the same patient, at the Bethel Hospital, a picture of health and a will to do things, it was remarked that even Sunday had probably kept him duty bound, and his vigorous reply was, "Yes, but I enjoy the work very much!" With that he left, and in about an hour and a half later he had gone to meet his Creator.

Dr. Schroeder will be greatly missed in the community, by the medical staff and nurses of the Bethel Hospital. He leaves behind to mourn his untimely passing his wife, Mrs. Irene Widlick Schroeder, two sons of grade school age, William Widlick and Frederick Arthur, his mother, three brothers, Peter Schroeder, Waterville, Washington; Frank Schroeder, Mountain Lake, Minnesota; Bernard Schroeder, Oak Park, Illinois, one sister, Mrs. Martha Balog, Chicago, Illinois, and many people who knew him. Funeral services were held at the large First Mennonite Church, his pastor, Rev. J. D. Schmidt of the Congregational Church, officiating. J. R. T.

SARAH M. LANDIS, nee High, wife of Ezra K. Landis, died at the Home for the Aged, Frederick, Pa., on May 9, 1939, aged 74 years, 2 months, and 20 days. She was a member of the Deep Run Mennonite Church, where interment was made on May 14. Services were held in the Perkasie Church by Pastor A. M. Fretz; text John 14:2. In 1872 the deceased was a pupil in the school of which her pastor was then teacher.

MARY WEIKEL, nee Geisinger, wife of John Fretz Weikel, died at her home in Quakertown, Pa. on May 30, 1939, aged 65 years, 9 months and 25 days. She was an active member of the Springfield Mennonite Church, where services and interment were held on June 3. Pastor A. M. Fretz was assisted by Rev. Burkholder of the East Swamp Church. The pastor spoke on the text selected by the family, 2 Tim. 4:7. She leaves to mourn her departure her husband, one son, three daughters, seven grandchildren, five brothers and one sister.

MRS. ALBERT E. LUGIBILL died at the Bluffton Community Hospital at Bluffton, Ohio, Wednesday morning, May 24, 1939 at 3:30 o'clock in the morning, following an extended illness from heart trouble and complications. She was aged sixty-nine years, two months and three days.

Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon, May 27, 1939 at 2 o'clock at the First Mennonite Church of Bluffton, Ohio, with her pastor, Rev. H. T. Unruh, officiating. Interment was made in Maple Grove cemetery.

Mrs. Lugibill, formerly Anna Leichty, was born in Berne, Ind., the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Leichty. She was married to Albert E. Lugibill on October 19, 1891 and had resided at Bluffton since that time.

She was a member of the First Mennonite Church and took an active part in church work.

Surviving are her husband; two sons, Waldo Lugibill of Hope, North Dakota and Homer of Lima, Ohio; and three daughters, Mrs. M. J. Wollmann of Freeman, South Dakota, Miss Nelle Lugibill of Cleveland, Ohio and Mrs. Don Patterson at home.

Also surviving are three brothers, Amos and William Leichty of Berne, Ind., and Emil Leichty of Linn Grove, Ind., and two sisters, Cathryn Leichty of Berne, Ind., and Mrs. John L. Riggenbach of Pandora, Ohio.—Copied from Bluffton News.

» « JOTTINGS « «

—Berne, Indiana.—The First Mennonite Church of Berne has been made sole legatee under the will of Mrs. Barbara Lehman, who died November 30, 1938, at the age of 80. The court found the net value of the estate to be $10,677.22, all of which goes to the church.

—Rev. and Mrs. William H. Stauffer, Pastor of the Sugar Creek, Ohio, Mennonite Church will sail for Europe July 3. Rev. Stauffer is official delegate, and Mrs. Stauffer will be a visiting delegate for the Ohio Council of Religious Education to the World Conference on Christian Youth, to be held at Amsterdam, Holland, July 24 to August 2. During the absence of Rev. and Mrs. Stauffer the pulpit of the church will be occupied by the brethren Russel Mast, Whitmer, and Wilbur Miller. Rev. and Mrs. Stauffer will take this opportunity to make an extensive tour through Europe. They expect to visit England, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Germany, Holland, Switzerland, Italy, France, and Belgium. August 31st they expect to be back in New York.—The Mennonite Messenger.

—Eden Mennonite Church, Schwenksville, Pa.: The Eastern District Conference Union (C.E.) held its annual convention at our Meetinghouse on Memorial Day, May 30. There were three sessions. Business in the morning. In the afternoon three conferences on God's Will—In the Home, Mrs. P. J. Boehr; In the Church, Rev. Harold Burkholder; In the Community, Rev. Ernest J. Bohn. The principal speaker was Rev. Eddie Faye, Norristown. In the evening, Rev. Erland Waltner, Second Church, Philadelphia, gave us an illustrated lecture on his trip to the Holy Land.—Church Messenger.

—West Swamp Church, Quakertown, Pa.: Congratulations are again in order for the third couple who in recent months were married at the East Swamp Mennonite Chuch near Quakertown, Pa. This time it was John Awckland, Jr., who chose as his life companion, Miss Evelyn Kramer of Richlandtown, Pa.

The marriage vows were received by the Rev. H. D. Burkholder, pastor at East Swamp, in the presence of friends and relatives. Miss Lillian Landis rendered two beautiful vocal selections, "Because," and "I Love You Truly." The bride and groom left immediately following the ceremony, for a trip to Virginia. Friends and relatives wish them much joy and happiness, and God's richest blessing a they establish their home."—Three weeks of Daily Vacation Bible School have come to a fine conclusion with an interesting program given by the pupils on Friday evening, June 9. The enrollment was 109, with an average attendance of 97.—About thirty of our Young People are attending either the Senior or the High School retreat near Green Lane. Corr.

—From Monroe, Washington, we received a short notice that Rev. P. A. Wedel, Aberdeen, has been reelected President of the Pacific District Conference, which closd its session here, June 11.

—Pulaski, Iowa.—Rev. and Mrs. P. W. Unruh arrived in Pulaski on May 30th, and the next day took possession of the parsonage, their future home. On Friday evening a very helpful shower was given them by the church, consisting of many useful articles, such as will be needed in the making of their new home. On the following Sunday Rev. Unruh gave his first message in the Pulaski Mennonite Church, of which he is, now, the pastor, leader, and shepherd. He spoke on the greatest of all subjects, love. Our prayer is that that greatest of all powers in heaven and on earth may be the controlling element in the hearts of pastor and people during their sojourn together here.—W.W.M.

Could there not be a wholesome rivalry in the matter of holy living? Oh, perhaps, in the strictest sense were one to endeavor to live a holy life just to outdo or excel another because of some personal or selfish motive it would be impossible; but if we seek to excel in holy living for the edifying of the church that is surely godlike. How may we excel in this matter of holy living? We may be so consistent in our daily practices of devotion—the reading of God's Word and prayer, so faithful in our attendance upon the means of grace and in the support of God's cause, so careful in the small matters of obedience, so tender in conscience that we can feel the slightest check of God's Spirit on our hearts or detect His smallest leading in our lives, so conscious of His presence and fellowship that we constantly draw from Him all power and grace needed for radiant, victorious living—by so doing we will provoke others unto love and good works. Is this not just as it should be in the Christian life?—Herald of Holiness.

Needed Concern for Our Young People

by Harleigh M. Rosenberger

President Bluffton College Men's Gospel Team

Concerned Christians are asking, "How can the Church hold its young people? They have established baseball teams, basketball teams, bowling teams—everything but Gospel teams. They have feasted their young people but have forgotten to fast for them. They have lowered the bars of church membership until it is easier to join church than a common lodge or service club. All this and the problem still remains, why cannot we hold our young people?

The answer is plain. The Church has diluted the true message of Christianity until it no more carries the power of conviction nor does it heal the broken heart. Thousands of church-going young people have never felt the need of a Saviour. They have been patted on the back, told to live a good life and attend church regularly. Such is their Christianity. The fault, therefore, lies largely in the doctrine dispensed by the Church. Pastors have not necessarily preached "salvation by works alone" but they have neglected to preach the fundamental of all Christian doctrine, that Christ died to save sinners. Young people must realize that they are lost and that unless they accept Christ as their Saviour they can have no hope of redemption. Let any young person accept Christ, withholding nothing, and the problem of church attendance is solved; he will have a longing and a desire for things of the Spirit.

Young people today yearn for the joy and peace that should characterize the life of every Christian. They realize the joys of this world are short-lived but too often the Church has offered them nothing better. My appeal then, as a Christian young man, is for pastors to lay aside their "social betterment" and "integrated personality" sermons and to preach the message that young hearts have been wanting to hear, that "the wages of sin is death but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ, our Lord." We need the social sermon, to be sure, but we need the undiluted message of salvation far more.

MODERN PHARISAISM. — Though Jewish Pharisees, such as those with whom Christ contended, may not exist any more, it is nevertheless a fact that pharisaism or -isms are still extant. The history of the Christian Church has ample proof of this. And everywhere may be found people or groups of people who are so self-sufficient, morally so proud and wrapped up in their own goodness that they hold themselves aloof from their fellowmen. What divisions have not been caused in the Church of Christ by the show of pharisaical domination and unbrotherly dealings, and often cruel treatment. There is the Inquisition in which the Catholic Church in its belief that its interpretation of the Bible gave it a monopoly on heaven, and that all those who swerved from that view were heretics and had to be exterminated. There is the struggle between Catholicism and Reformation, where the Old church in its self-righteousness haughtily tried to stamp out the new upstart, with resort to persecution and much blood-shed. There is the sad struggle between the protestant and reformed camps, caused by stubborn, pharisaic adherence to different views on certain passages of the Bible. And even within our Mennonite fold we have instances where self-will and lack of tolerance refused to understand the other side. And is our General Conference free from pharasaic leanings? Are there not those of us who make a hobby of the study of a certain passage or doctrine of the Bible, formulate very definite conclusions about it, and then look askance at those who differ from us, although their interpretation may also have good Biblical ground. Thus an article on the "End of the World" recently published in THE MENNONITE is eliciting dissension. The good brother who wrote it has expressed his own views on the subject, as he sees it, from a study of the Bible and his meditation, and graciously leaves others to cherish their views. As Mennonites we all believe in Christ's Coming Again, to receive his own and judge the living and the dead. We believe that this coming will be or may now be foreshadowed by many sure signs; that because of the uncertainty of the time of His coming, it behooves us to be in a waiting attitude at all times, to live closely to Him, and exert every effort to help save the unsaved. Thus we teach our children in their catechetical classes. But the Bible surely tells us only God knows when the eventful day will come. And on this basis we ought to be able to journey on without controversy.

—JESUS THE VINE, WE THE BRANCHES.— Of the many endearing passages left us by Jesus none is more meaningful than the one about the "Vine" and the "Branches." Here Jesus shows so clearly that our Christian life depends on the degree that our life has grown into His life and, vice versa, His into ours; and that upon this degree of connection depends our fruit bearing. If the connection has become nil, our life will bear no fruit for eternity, but the more deep-rooted it is the more fruit we will bear. As the vine, in order to bear much fruit has to be pruned, our Master, too, finds it necessary to apply pruning processes on us. "Every branch that beareth fruit he cleanses, that it may bear more fruit." And this he finds necessary in some of us more than in others. Here is a Christian wandering away from Him, in serious danger of losing his vital connection with the Master, the only true source of Christian life. Him he prunes by letting loss and depression ruin his business, thus to draw the wandering child back to Himself out of pure love, and to see if he might not be made to bear some fruit. There is a sister of the faith who is slowly being enmeshed in the rather gay social life with which she is surrounded. A very dear friend taken from her side by death, is the pruning that the Master may employ to link this child again closer to Him.—Yonder is a brother in the church who is so engrossed in his profession and other tasks that he hardly finds time to eat, drink and sleep, and forgets to pray and to meditate on spiritual things. Him he lays on a lingering bed of affliction, to teach him patience, the lasting values of life, and to train his heart and mind how to bear more fruit. Thus our Master is constantly busy reclaiming His own, in pruning them for more abundant fruitage.—T.

Retired

Rev. M. Horsch, pastor of the Second Mennonite church at Beatrice, Nebr., has asked his congregation to relieve him of his pastoral duties by November 1st. He feels that the impaired condition of his and his wife's health makes it advisable for them to return to their former home in Upland, Calif., where their son and two daughters, one of them in poor health, now reside.

Rev. Horsch came to Beatrice a little more than 12 years ago, shortly after the new church was organized. He has faithfully served his congregation and it is partly, if not largely, due to his efforts that a fine spirit of fellowship has continued to prevail between the new organization and the mother church. During their stay in Beatrice, Rev. and Mrs. Horsch have been a blessing to many; they have made many intimate friends who deeply regret their leaving. The congregation hopes and prays that God may give them renewed strength to continue in His service.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

During the time that the editor was in the hospital THE MENNONITE brought the life history of Sister Elizabeth Schmidt in much abbreviated form. For the reason that the Sister was one of our truly devoted servants in mission work, we feel she ought to be given more recognition, hence we shall here amplify the brief account already published.—T.

Sister Schmidt came to the Hopi mission fields as housekeeper of Rev. J. B. Epps in 1909. But it soon became necessary to use her in the service of caring for motherless Hopi babies, for the Indians found it almost impossible to bring up their children. Miss Schmidt took care of nine such children, of which five have passed away, while four are still alive. Floyd, the youngest, was 21 years old in January, Cecelia, the daughter, has been married to a Hopi widower. She is a Christian by name. The three boys, Carl, Samuel and Floyd are now all at home at Oraibi. Miss Schmidt found ways to send all three to mission schools. Carl and Floyd have been graduated from the Presbyterian mission high school at Granado. At this school Floyd accepted Jesus Christ as his personal Savior and was baptized. Carl was converted earlier and was baptized here at home in 1933. After he had been graduated from the Granado school, he attended the Los Angeles Bible Institute and finished his studies in 1937. The care and devotion with which Miss Schmidt mothered these children, with the hope of making them useful in the Master's service have, in some respect, not been rewarded. But with the living Word planted in their hearts in early youth, moistened with the tears of their foster mother, she rested in the confidence that some day Jesus Christ may yet be glorified in their lives. Even since her death there are found proofs of this in Carl's life.

Sister Schmidt has lived in the village during her last years to be near her married duaghter. Her life has been a continual witness for Jesus Christ. Aside from the tasks of teaching her Hopi children to pray, to memorize Bible verses and to attend church she has, as long as her healh permitted, taught children's Sunday School classes. She seldom missed church service and always accompanied the children to and from church for the evening services. Children from non-Christian homes often came to her and queried: "Miss Schmidt, may we go to church with you?"

When the orphans were small, she received some financial support from the Mission Board. Later, when they were away from home, she earned her own living and partly that of the children, working as cook and housekeeper for government employees. Her income was usually small. But when asked: "Do you lack anything," she would say, "The Lord has always cared for me. I am not wanting for anything." Then she would relate incidents, how the Lord often had used Hopis, traders, government people and missionaries to satisfy her wants. She fervently believed in prayer, and the Lord blessed her. Even this last year, with so many disappointments, which she called a "year of tears," she said that God's Word had never been so precious to her than at this time.

When in February she went to the Presbyterian hospital at Granado for medical treatment, she said, "I shall return to Oraibi in my coffin." This came true. She suffered severe pains from cancer, which had already reached an advanced stage. But throughout her last days she was calm, to the surprise of the doctor and others, who are used to see heathen die in fear and agony. Her sister, Mrs. Helena Richert from Kansas came to be with her the last few days.

She passed away April 15. A box was made, lined with white musline and covered with black rayon, in which her body was laid. The little mission chapel was crowded to the door for the simple funeral service, which was in English, the sermon translated into Hopi. Her remains were laid to rest in the little mission cemetery. A missionary remarked, "Now there is one less to pray for the Hopis," and a prominent Hopi lady, "She must have been lonesome among us, I should have done more for her." Her boy Samuel has made her a fine grave stone out of native rock, polished and painted with aluminum paint, on which are inscribed her name, date of birth and death, and the words, "She has done what she could."

GOING A LITTLE FURTHER—A PRAYER PETITION

In Matt. 26:39 we have these words: And he went forward a little, and fell on his face and prayed.

Jesus was in the Garden of Gethsemane. All the disciples except Judas, were with him as he entered. Soon he left the eight and took with him three, Peter, James and John. In his soul anguish, he was driven a little farther, and so he left even these three behind. There, alone in prayer with God the Victory was won.

The accomplishments of the Home Mission Board and the many workers are won, when we go a little further than we had gone before. When we engage in prayer a little more earnestly. When we divest ourselves a little more from the physical and worldly, then we put ourselves a little more completely in God's hand, victory comes.

The Board has a particular problem to deal with at present. We will call this problem X, unknown to you, but known to the Lord. Will you go with us a little further in prayer and intercession that the Holy Spirit might have His way, and that those concerned migh be guided aright.

What They Say About Education

Chief Justice Carl V. Weygandt, of the Supreme Court of Ohio: "Apparently in this machine age we are beginning to realize that education is one of our processes than cannot successfully be mechanized. It cannot be made an impersonal experience. This is one of the reasons that the so-called small church college is coming into its own. In education the development of intellect cannot readily be considered as more than one-half of the task. Of at least equal importance is the concurrent development in the minds of our young people of the emotion of conforming their daily lives to the standards they intellectually justify. What is to be said for education that permits an individual to indulge freely in conduct for which he can offer no rational explanation?"

Judge W. M. Cox, of the Supreme Court of Mississippi: "Education is being taken over by the state. A great system of tax-supported free schools, from the primary grades to college and university, teaching every conceivable branch of learning but religion, is being established. They have charge of the child for from twelve to sixteen yars. Here he gets the secular learning he is thought to need to fit him for the secular life; but he also absorbs the regulative ideas which are to mold his character and determine his conduct.

"The spirit of these schools is necessarily secular. They could not, if they would, teach religion, certainly not the Christian religion. Either their attitude is out-and-out hostility to Christianity, cold neutrality, or, as with some, friendly and sympathetic neutrality. But clear, definite and positive instruction about God and His righteousness, and about His Son, our Savior, and His remedy for sin, is excluded from the curriculum; and the pupil is left without knowledge of them, or with the idea that they are of secondary importance.

"It is, therefore, incumbent upon the church, if we would not have American paganized: To establish and maintain schools of her own, where in addition to secular learning, they may without restraint or reserve, teach the great system of truth revealed in the Scriptures, and especially in the words and character of Jesus."

That Land is great which knows the Lord,
Whose songs are guided by His Word;
Where justice rules 'twixt man and man,
Where love controls in art and plan;
Where, breathing in his native air,
Each soul finds joy in praise and prayer
Thus may our country, good and great,
Be God's delight—man's best estate.

Swiss Mennonites Two-and-a-half Centuries Ago

by John Horsch, translated by P. H. Richert

An important description of the life and character of the Swiss Mennonite people of over two centuries ago is found in a book written by George Thormann, a minister of the Reformed state church, and published in 1693 by the magistracy of the canton Bern in Switzerland. It is a book of over 700 pages, entitled Probierstein des Täufferthums (Touchstone of Mennonitism). The name of the Mennonites of Switzerland in that period, in fact since Reformation times, was Täufer (literally Baptizers), and they have retained this name down to the present day. The author was a minister of higher rank in the Reformed state church.

The book was written at the request of both the ecclesiastical and civil authorities of the canton Bern. It was issued from the government printing office at Bern. The author in the preface refers to the great numerical increase of the Täufer people. He makes the statement that their meetings, though held in out-of-the-way places, were attended by great numbers of the people of the state church, and expresses the hope that his book may prove serviceable to those who had been influenced by them. He makes the significant remark that he does not dare to entertain the hope to win some of the Täufer for the state church. The author defends an attitude of intolerance and persecution toward them. In passing it may be worth noticing that in his opinion the Romanists were guilty of religious tyranny in persecuting the Reformed Church, because, he says, it is impossible to be saved in the Roman Catholic Church. On the other hand, there was in his opinion no valid excuse for any one refusing to unite with the Reformed national church.

Earlier Swiss Protestant writers had been untruthful and unreasonable in their accusations and denunciations of the Täufer people. The books of these writers, in consequence, proved offensive not only to the Täufer themselves but also to many of those who were personally acquainted with them and their doctrine. The author of this book decided to guard against making the same mistake. He says repeatedly that his readers are informed as concerned the doctrine of these people, and their daily life and conduct. He freely admits that they lead commendable lives.

It must be borne in mind that the book was written by a fierce opponent of the Täufer people. Therefore whatever he says about them that is in any way favorable or creditable to them, can be accepted as unquestionably reliable. The purpose of the author is to persuade his readers that as members of the state church they may live as commendably as the Täufer people. In fact, he holds up their lives as exemplary and admonishes his readers to follow their good example. Remarkable indeed is the witness of this author to the godliness of the life of the Swiss Mennonite people of that period. He bears strong testimony to the fact that the membership of the national church were deeply impressed by their earnestness and piety. He says in particular that the country people of the canton Bern had a favorable opinion of the Täufer. Obviously this is to be ascribed to the fact that the Täufer were a country folk, hence the country people were thoroughly acquainted with them. The author writes:

"Among our country people the opinion prevails in general that whoever sees a Täufer, sees a saint, a person who is dead to the world, having experienced true conversion, and that there are no more earnest and consecrated people than they. Is it not so, dear brethren?" And again: "If among all Christian communions there is one which seems to be upright and giving assurance of personal salvation to the soul, it is certainly that of the Täufer. And this is true to such an extent that their religion appears to very many of our country people as by far the surest way of salvation." "I have observed," the author says further, "that the people of our country districts indicate a very high esteem for the Täufer people. Their regard for them is such that many look upon them as saints, as the salt of the earth and the very kernel of Christendom. Their opinion concerning them is so favorable that many believe a good Christian and a Täufer to be one and the same thing. And thus many of our people are altogether confused in their consciences and are troubled by the question whether they should not join themselves to these people, without regard to the consequences."

These statements by this author are the more noteworthy, since he says in the same book that the Täufer themselves do not believe that they alone are the ones that are saved. He emphasizes that even according to their own teaching it is not necessary to unite with their church to be saved.

People in general, according to this author, said: "Observe how they are continually mistreated, insulted, sought, and persecuted, and how cheerfully and steadfastly they endure it all. Is not God showing His almighty power and the sustaining grace of His Spirit in these people? . . . How is it that, notwithstanding all that has been attempted against them, it was found impossible to suppress their church, and their religion is, on the contrary, increasing more and more?"

Again, the author quotes people in general as saying: "The professions of other religions protect themselves with arms and weapons and depend for their defences upon the arm of the mighty of this world. But the Täufers in our land are a poor and small company, and have not any great worldly patron. They are deprived of all temporal aid, and yet they continue to exist among us."

"Täufer Hunters" Converted

And again, according to our author, the people said with reference to the so-called "Täufer Hunters" (a special police force commissioned to spy out and arrest them): "As God converted Saul of Tarsus to the Christian faith, who had raged so terribly against it, so also He has changed the hearts of a number of men who formerly were willing to be used by the magistrates in the persecution of the Täufer, so that now, instead of doing them evil, they themselves have become Täufer, and have steadfastly held to that doctrine to the end of their lives. Is not God through such occurrences giving witness to all the world that this doctrine is of God?"

At the time when this book was written the death sentence was no longer pronounced upon Mennonites in the canton Bern. Measures of persecution were confined to imprisonment and being sold as galley slaves. The latter form of punishment was of such nature that, from a merely human viewpoint, death was preferable to it. Strange as it may seem, Thormann asserts that the Protestant government of Bern had never condemned any Anabaptist to death. He makes the remark that, if one of them were put to death, "all the people would doubtlessly cry out, 'A martyr, a true martyr.' "

Loyalty to the Principle of Nonresistance

While earlier writers of the state church had asserted that the Mennonites' profession of nonresistance was only a clever cloak to hide their sinister, rebellious intentions, George Thormann does not make any such charge against them. He says on the contrary: "They are conscientiously opposed, not only to taking part in war, but even to bearing arms; they forbid this to their people as a great sin." He did not believe, he says further, that the Täufer of Switzerland had any evil intentions, nor "such un-Christian, mutinous, evil designs" as the Anabaptists of Münster. And yet, he adds that neither he nor they themselves but only God knows what they might do if they had opportunities for such madness as had the Anabaptists of Münster.

The preachers of the Täufer, the author observes, "cry out continually only concerning repentance and holiness of life." He admits that in the state church "there are many godless people." The greatest complaint of the Täufer against the national church, he says, is "that we do not practice expulsion of transgressors from the church." The fact that the Täufer so earnestly urge the need of church discipline, he states, indicates that their preaching of the Word is not so powerful as is commonly supposed, otherwise there would be no occasion for such discipline.

Many people, the author states further, say: "Their preachers are poor, uneducated men who often have not two books beside the Bible and must daily attend to their secular work, and nevertheless they are able to preach, and indeed preach with earnestness, yea with more life, power and impressiveness than is generally in evidence in the preaching of our ministers."

Admonitions to Follow Their Good Example

The latter part of the book contains earnest challenges to the readers of the book to follow the good example of the Täufer people. The author says: "Is it commendable in the Täufer people that they show earnestness and zeal in their way of serving God? Do the same among us, dear brethren.

"Is it a fine thing that the Täufer abstain from glib talking and do not talk much of worldly things? Do the same in the strength of your Christian calling.

"Do they give a good example by not being easily provoked to anger? Do even the same, dear brethren; avoid anger more and more.

"Is it good and praiseworthy that they do not indulge much in worldly enjoyments and in vain pleasures of the flesh? Do likewise, dear brethren.

"Is it good and commendable that they shun the public inns and drinkhouses, except in cases of emergency, and that they strictly guard themselves against taking much wine? Well, do the same; shun all disorderly, intemperate, ungodly conduct.

"Is it praiseworthy in them that one does not hear them use profane language or swear? Do again the same, for this is the will of God toward you, as well as toward them."

George Thormann's book gives a valuable description of the life and walk of the Swiss Mennonite people of that period. Contrary to his intentions, he has done the Mennonite Church a distinct service by writing this book. The book throws welcome light on the question how it is to be explained that the state and the national church of the canton Berne found it impossible to exterminate the Mennonite Church. Over two centuries of strenuous effort on their part toward this end proved a failure, because many of the general population sympathized with those who endured persecution for their faith and conscience, and gave them assistance and help in every possible way, as may be further indicated elsewhere.

— Has America forgotten? If more members of the Christian churches had the zeal that some radicals show in pushing their impossible "isms," the hoped for revival would soon come. Rose A. Huston in an address, after spending seven years in Europe, had this to say: "It seems to me America has largely forgotten, or is forgetting, and neglecting, and disdaining the priceless heritage she has in the Bible, and the freedom to read and believe it. Men are not preaching the full Gospel, children are not being taught the Word of God, either in church or home. —The Presbyterian.

REHOBOAM: A MAN WHO MADE A FOOLISH CHOICE

1 Kings 12:1-5, 12-17, 20

Topic: Vital Decisions We Must Make

Introduction

The kingdom of Israel attained its highest glory under Solomon, yet elements of internal decay were at work. Increased wealth and power had, as always, been accompanied by luxury, oppression of the poor, lust, a disregard for true religion and God. Solomon had made entangling foreign marriage alliances which brought in heathen influences. Rehoboam, his son, inherited these negative influences when he ascended the thron. His career illustrates the fact that wisdom is not hereditary. His father prayed to God for wisdom (1 K. 3:6-9) when he became king, while he relied upon his own egotistical self-will. He was of bad stock on his mother's side (14:21).

Rehoboam's Folly vs. 1-5, 12-15

Rehoboam met with his people in Shechem to be made king (v 1). Jeroboam (11:26-28) had been selected by the people as their leader and probably spokesman before the king (v 3). Seemingly the ten tribes had no intention to revolt against the king and would not have done so had he used discretion in answering their grievances (v 4). The people wished relief from the burdens of heavy taxation and excessive labors imposed upon them by Solomon's extensive building projects. The tax burden is not a modern one at all. They were willing to serve him faithfully without any part in the government.

Rehoboam took counsel with the older men—his father's advisers—who, guided by the wisdom of experience, advised a friendly attitude toward the people (v 7). His selfish heart rejected this good counsel and he consulted with some younger men (vs 8-11) who advised increasing the burdens for his people. It is not wise to seek counsel only of those who hold like prejudices with ours.

Rehoboam had no thought of God's plan and purpose. He thought purely selfishly and answered in this spirit (v 14). Wisdom would have dictated consideration of the people's complaints and a kindly attitude. He was carrying to fulfillment (v 15) the Word of God spoken by Elijah (cf 11:11, 31, 37, 38). By one short speech, he undid the work of David and Solomon toward welding the tribes of Israel into a united kingdom. He failed in meeting the crisis brought about by his father's death.

Israel Divided vs. 16, 17, 20

On hearing the king's answer, the ten tribes felt convinced he had no sympathy toward them and they declared their independence (v 16) and returned to their tents (homes) and made Jeroboam king over Israel, the northern kingdom (v 20). Rehoboam, by his unwise and foolish choice, divided the nation and paved the way for much trouble later on. His was a vital decision, both for himself and for Israel.

One of the vital decisions we must make is concerning the place we will give to God in our lives and choices. Rehoboam did not take God into his life. He felt very self-sufficient, and he failed. We need to give God the first place. Another vital decision is concerning our advisers. Rehoboam took the advice of those who flattered his vanity. The truly worthwhile advisers will tell the truth. A third vital decision concerns our life purpose. Shall it be service or self-assertion? Rehoboam chose the latter. Christ choose to be a servant. The more Christlike a person is, the greater will be the desire to live a life of service, helpful to others.

SERMON SKETCH

THE CHRISTIAN AND HIS GIVING

by Albert Schultz, Pastor Mennonite Church, Butterfield, Minnesota

Scripture Lesson: 2 Cor. 2:1-15; 9:6-15; Text: 1 Cor. 16:1, 2.

Introduction

One verse in every four of the first three Gospels, and one verse in every six of the New Testament deals with money or covetousness. Oscar Lowry says, "A minister is a criminal in his preaching who permits people to feel safe and secure for heaven by being covetous." We need to teach our people the eternal blessings that come by a Scriptural giving to the Lord.

1 The Scriptural Statement Concerning Giving

1. Scripture condemns covetousness. Covetousness means to be greedy for wealth with a view to hoarding it. In 1 Cor. 6:9, 10; Eph. 5:5; Col. 3:5. God places covetousness in the same list of sins as great as adultery or drunkenness. He ays, "shall NOT inherit the kingdom of God."

2. Scripture rebukes Israel for robbery. Mal. 3:7-10. Israel had robbed God and God asks them to return. They ask in what they are to return and God says that they have robbed the tithes and offerings (vs. 7, 8, 9).

Why was Irsael in the Babylonian captivity? The answer is found in Jer. 25:11; Chr. 36:21; Lev. 26:-33-35. They had not given the land the rest prescribed by God, so He took them out the number of years that the land was entitled to rest.

3. Scripture exhorts to give 1 Cor. 16:1, 2; 2 Cor, 8:7, 8; 9:6-15. The exhortation is that "ye abound in this grace also." We prove the sincerity of our love by giving.

II. The Scriptural Statement Concerning Systematic Giving

We have a system in all of our work, but when it comes to giving we have a hap-hazzard method. Some say, "Let the Spirit of God do it," but the Spirit of God believes and teaches a systematic way. How long would our land exist if we passed the hat and abolished our tax system? If we appealed to patriotism and state pride rather than a percentage of a man's possessions? How long would we exist as a nation?

There must be a systematic method in our giving. The tenth belongs to the Lord. That is His just share. A farmer must give a share to the owner of the farm. He does not give the owner one bushel as long as he gives the owner his right share. We do not give to the Lord as long as we give Him the tenth—that belongs to God. Whatever we give over the tenth is Giving.

1. The teaching of the law. Lev. 27:30-32.

2. The practise before the law. Gen. 14:20 with Heb. 7:4, Gen. 28:22. The teaching of the tenth and its practise does not have its origin in the law and therefore is not only for Israel. Tithing was practised 500 years before the law.

3. The teaching of the New Testament. "According to his ability," Acts 11:29; "As God hath prospered him," 1 Cor. 16:2, Systematic. This is not a hap-hazzard, hit-or-miss, give-when-you-feel-like-it, lawless, loveless method of supporting the work of the Lord.

III. The Scriptural Statement Concerning Purpose of Giving

Why should we give? What is the purpose?

1. To prove our love. 2 Cor. 8:8b.
   a. To prove our love for brethren, Acts 11:27-30
   b. To prove our love for God, Ex. 25:2, 36:5, 6.

The people brought more than needed because of the love for God. God had redeemed them by blood and power.

2. To prove our interest. We invest in the work we are interested.

3. To worship God, Prov. 3:9.

4. To promote the cause of God. (a) To bring the Gospel to the unsaved. There are one billion people who have not heard of the Gospel nor seen a copy of th Bible. If we were to pass Bibles to this group at the rate of 600 every hour it would take 188 years to do so. If Protestant people would tithe it would put a Bible in the hands of every heathen in 10 years.

We spend $600.00 for luxury to every dollar for missions; we spend more for tobacco in a single year ($3,000,000,000) in America than both the United States and Canada have spent for missions since white man discovered America. The World war cost us $25,000 for every man killed, but our missionary work in the homeland is carried on at seven dollars per convert and in the heathen lands we spend only seven cents per convert.

(b) To support the ministry. Num. 18:21, 23; Luke 10:7; 1 Cor. 9:13, 14; Gal. 6:6; 1 Tim. 5:17, 18.

IV. The Scriptural Statement Concerning the Promise of Blessing

1. The natural and temporal blessings. Prov. 3:9, 11:24, 25; 19:17; Ps. 41:1; Luke 6:38; 2 Cor. 9:6, 7.

This has been proved by Wm. Colgate who started out as a very poor boy, but always gave the tenth to the Lord. The Lord blessed him, so that he eventually gave all of his profits to the Lord.

We have a striking example in LeTourneau. He says, "I am reversing the order of God, instead of giving the tenth and keeping ninety per cent I am giving God ninety per cent and keeping a tenth for myself."

2. The spiritual and eternal blessings. The spiritual degree of a church is read in its treasurer's book.

A church with a membership of 350 was ready to close its doors beacuse of finances. A last resort was that 70 signed a pledge to tithe. The end of the year showed a large increase in church members, S. S. attendance, and they gave more to mission than 10 of the large churches of that town.

An Indian asked a bishop one day to give him two one dollar bills for a two dollar note. The bishop asked, "Why?" The Indian said, "One dollar for me to give to Jesus, and one dollar for my wife to give." The Bishop asked him if it was all the money he had. He said, "Yes." The Bishop was about to tell him, "It is too much," when an Indian clergyman whispered, "It might be too much for a white man to give, but not too much for an Indian who has this year for the first time heard of the love of Jesus."

Prayer of a Jewish Refugee

This is a prayer written by a Jewish refugee rabbi which conveys a picture of the feelings of a despondent Jewish wanderer.

Oh, Master of the World, all roads are closed against us. All strength has been taken away from us upon this earth. Our life has been ruined and our security has been undermined. We no longer dare to contemplate the future of our people. In this hour of need, of persecution, of unrest and despondency, in this hour of humiliation and hopelessness we turn to Thee, O Lord, with our prayer.

Nowhere do we see a guiding light; nowhere a ray of hope. With the last of our strength we cling to every straw to keep our heads above the water. Shall we defend ourselves? Shall we justify ourselves? Shall we raise our voices? Loudly we call upon Thee, O Lord. Father of all mankind, of all creation, strengthen us in our prayer. Take us into Thine arms. Press us to Thy breast. Bless us with the consolation of Thy voice. Let our tears speak for us. Place healing fingers upon our beating heart.

Open up our eyes so that we may know, for we can find no hope, no consolation among men. Let us be holy unto Thee. For thus we have once heard. The echo of these words rings in our ears as we wander through the centuries firmly clinging to Thy words that Thou hast given us.

Our fate has washed us clean. With naked soul we approach Thee, O Master of the World. The faith that Thou hast given us will purify us. It is not within our power to separate ourselves from our fate. Where is our home? Where can we rest? In the security of the bosom of eternity, in the immortal body of mankind, in men whom Thou, O Lord hast created in Thine image?

Thou hast led us through centuries and through centuries. We have been active in all fields of the human spirit and human labor. We have viewed all things that are earthly as far as man can see such things. Everywhere the traces remain of our creative spirit and labor.

Wake up, O soul of our people. Cast thy glance into the distance and be proud, for you alone among all nations stand naked and helpless before your God. You stand near unto Him and He has raised you above others through your poverty. It is not the boast of strength that makes one worthy to stand before Him. The beggar and the poor man are far nearer to Him. Therefore, bear with pride the cruelty of your fate.

Others humiliate you with torture. Pray for them for they have been struck with blindness. Raise the voice of truth courageously before all peoples. Show them the light that burns in your heart. Let them feel the spirit that carries you forward. Think of yourself as pure. Rise above the mere dust of the earth for you stand upon the firm foundation of your faith, of your unity with God.—Anonymous.

The High Cost of Hate

WHAT IS BEHIND THE CAMPAIGNS OF ORGANIZED HATE IN AMERICA NOW?

No nation is attacking the United States.

No nation is menacing a single inch of territory over which the American flag flies.

Every one of the important nations seems eager for friendly relations with us.

Every nation in the world wants to trade with us.

Why, then, are our papers so full of hate toward others?

We are particularly fortunate in having no strong nation as a near neighbor.

We have no unsettled boundary issues.

We have no minority clamoring for separation or annexation.

No other nation is so favored in having within itself most of what it needs, with immense surpluses of minerals, timber and land to relieve its population of the poverty which often breeds international trouble.

Of all the countries of the world America is the most blessed in these natural assets of peace.

Why, then, are our papers so full of hate toward others?

Hatred of others is not natural among average Americans.

The campaign to promote American hatred of other nations now is strictly a minority movement.

There are among us people who have never become fully American. They cling to Old World allegiances.

Instead of looking upon the hospitality and opportunities of America as the means of a new life, these people continue here their partisan ties with Old World issues of friction and strife.

They are now trying to get America involved in their foreign quarrels.

To gather support for this minority aim, they are conducting a tremendous publicity campaign to stir American hatred of nations they want us to fight.

Many of these alien-minded people are important advertisers. Newspapers and magazines depend on advertising revenue. Thus many editors seek to please them by running hate campaigns against any and all nations which the alien-minded advertisers don't like. They have deceived many sincere, loyal Americans.

That is one of the influences—the main influence—behind campaigns of hate and war talk in America now.

Controlled Press

At the outset of any study of foreign affairs, it is necessary to recognize that the press of every nation is controlled.

Press control in different countries is by different forces and for different motives. But there is always control. America is no exception.

Does any intelligent person think that the uniformly tuned and co-ordinated newspaper campaigns which stirred America to war in 1898 and 1917 were mere accidents?

Press control may be openly governmental. It may be secretly governmental. It may be by finance or by the pressure of dominant advertisers. But there is always control—at least of a sufficient number of papers to dominate sentiment.

In America there is wide latitude of free expression—legally. But there are persuasive forces, operating in ways average readers do not suspect, to achieve here about as much suppression of unwanted news and as much invention of wanted news as in lands of official censorship.

NOTICE

Mr. William Juhnke, Sec. of the Young People's Committee, is pursuing graduate work at the University of Kansas this summer. All contributions intended for Mr. Juhnke should be sent to him at his new address of 1106 Ohio, Lawrence, Kansas. He will remain there until August 9th.

Pasific District Y. P. Committee Formed

By official action of the Conference a Young People's Committee of four members, representing the four states of the Conference, was created for the Pacific District. Nominations for the committee were made by the Young People's organizations of the respective states. Miss Louise Richert of Los Angeles was elected as chairman of the committee and Y. P. Representative for the district. The other members of the committee are, Alice Lehman, Aberdeen, Idaho; Harry Albrecht, Monroe, Washington; and Roy Rutschman, Pratum, Oregon. Each state will be responsible for the attendance of its member at the annual session of the District Conference, thus making it possible for the committee to grow in interest and participation in the work.—E. Here and There

The C. E. of the Butterfield, Minn. Mennonite Church had an inspirational musical program on June 4, led by the pastor, Rev. V. Sawatzky. Eleven neighboring churches were represented and brought musical numbers. Members of seven Mennonite, three Lutheran, and one Congregational churches were present to render special music. The church was filled.

On the evening of May 18, a group of seventy young people from the Butterfield Mennonite church community enjoyed a fellowship picnic in a picturesque place near a winding, tree-lined creek.

The evenings entertainment began with the playing of games with the Misses Esther Flemming and Katherine Stoesz in charge. After even the more long-winded became tired, the young people kindled a bonfire and roasted wieners to appease their hearty appetites. Marshmellows, buns, and oranges were also served. After the refreshments, Rev. Victor Sawatzky began the inspirational period with devotions. Following prayer, choruses and hymns were sung. Worship in song was beautiful and each felt the nearness of God. A message was given by Rev. C. Wall of Mt. Lake. Prayer closed the wholesome hour of fellowship. — E. M. S.

The theme of the Western District C. E. Convention, which will be held at the West Zion church, Moundridge, Kansas, on July 16, is "The Doing Christ," Matt. 6:47. This convention will also include a Junior Program and a Junior Leader's Meeting. Plan to attend and to benefit from the inspiration and information which this convention will afford.

This year's oratorical contest has again proved very worthwhile. The winning orations will be given at the above convention. The missions oration will be given by Miss Lillie Krehbiel of McPherson, Kansas. The peace oration will be given by Paul Becker of Newton, Kansas.

Eastern District Conference Young People's Union Annal Connvention

MAY 30, 1939

The convention theme, "Thy Will Be Done," was impressively presented throughout the program for the day. From the chorus, "To Do Thy Will," taught to the group by Sam Reiff, to the reference to Christ's prayer in the Garden of Gethsemane, made by Rev. Erland Waltner toward the close of the illustrated lecture on the Holy Land in the evening session, it held our attention.

Miss Mary Kerr of the Eden Mennonite Church at Schwenksville, the entertaining church, read selection from Romans 8 and 12 and offered prayer. Sam Reiff closed the devotional period with the solo, "God Understands." This is one of the selections in the song book chosen for use at our Eastern District Conference Retreat.

Groups from several societies contributed special numbers as follows:

West Swamp—Vocal Duet—"Lost in His Love" Huldah Myers and Anna Weiss.

First of Philadelphia—"Awakening Chorus"—sung by delegation.

Bowmansville—Vocal Solo—Miss Tina Klassen.

Schwenksville—Organ Selections—Miss May Markley.

Allentown—Violin and Cello Duet—LeRoy Weidner and Miss Pearl Geissinger

Souderton—Reading—"A Decoration Day Prayer"—Miss Clara Bishop

Lansdale—Reading—Miss Mildred Fretz

The mission project set for the past year has been met by the contributions from the various groups. The final total was $20 above the goal set. The new project for the coming year is: $100 toward a Bible School Dormitory at Swift Current, Sask., Canada; $100 for the Foreign Mission Board to be used for sending out new or returning missionaries to the field in either India or China; $200 for the development of the Retreat Grounds in our district.

Our entire group now numbers 912. Of this 545 are members of senior societies, 95 belong to the intermediate groups, and 272 are Juniors. The Juniors reported having held a Christmas Gift Rally. The gifts brought by the Juniors were shared with the Hopi Indian children in Arizona and with children in the Altoona Mission.

Correspondence was mentioned and also a possible joint meeting of our young people with groups of the Friends and Schwenkfelders. The latter may take the form of a Peace Rally.

"Thy Will Be Done" in the Home, in the Church, in the Community, were the topics discussed at the afternoon session by Mrs. P. J. Boehr, Rev. E. Burkholder, and Rev. E. J. Bohn. The subject was further driven home in the very practical points brought out by Rev. E. N. Faye in the main address of the day, as he stressed the Upward Reach to God and the Outward Reach to Man, the Upward Reach in Worship and the Outward Reach in Service. In closing he quoted from Paul Laurence Dunbar a bit of verse leaving with us the message that "There's no one else can do the job the Lord has laid out for you."

The devotional periods in the afternoon and evenings were led by Paul Shelly and James Gerhart. The latter will serve as Vice-President for the coming year and DeWitt Temple will serve as president.

Worship, inspiration, Christian fellowship, and beautiful weather made it a splendid convention. Eleanor A. Temple, Germantown.

BUILDING A CHURCH PROGRAM OF RECREATION

1 Cor. 12:1-14

I. Worship Service

1. "Singspiration"
2. Reading of the topic and Scripture lesson
3. Call to worship:

> "Drop Thy still dews of quietness,
> Till all our strivings cease:
> Take from our souls the strain and stress;
> The beauty of Thy peace.
> "Breathe through the pulses of desire
> Thy coolness and Thy balm;
> Let sense be dumb, its beats expire:
> Speak through the earthquake, wind and fire,
> O still small voice of calm!"

4. Prayer hymn, sung or played softly
5. Sentence prayers, closed by leader
6. Sepecial music

II. Development of Topic:

1. Leader's introduction: An important part of the church's ministry to its young people is to provide inspiring and practical leadership in the field of recreation. Social fellowship and recreation normally occupy a large place in the lives of children and youth. If they cannot participate in directed, wholesome, and satisfying recreation with suitable companions, they will "take their fun where they find it." Why not let them find it in the Church?

2. Discussion questions:

   a. Why should the Church be concerned with the recreational opportunities and faciltiies and needs of its young people?

   b. Is it all right to seek to win young people over to a Christ-like life by means of the recreational program of the Church?

   c. What things need to be taken into consideration in building a program of recreation for the young people of the Church?

   d. What is necessary in the way of leadership equipment, and finances in building a church recreational program?

3. For a group discussion problem, analyze the weak and strong points of the program of social recreation of your own individual church. On the basis of this analysis, reconstruct the program as far as is necessary so that it will be comprehensive, provide for variety, be truly recreating, and always Christian, and yet be suited to the need and possibilities of the local situation.

III. Closing song and benediction.

Call To Worship:

FRIENDS

The joy of being friends is just
A simple code of faith and trust,
A homey comradeship that stays
The threatened fear of darkest days;
The kind of faith that brings to light
The good, the beautiful, and bright;
The best and blest, and true and rare
Is having friends who love and care!

Song, "Since Jesus Is My Friend"

Scripture Reading, John 1:43-49.

Sentence prayers by the Endeavorers asking God to help us to be better friends and committing our friends to his tender care.

Vocal Solo: "Temper My Spirit, O Lord"

Song, "What A Friend We Have in Jesus"

Introduction of Topic by Leader

Is it not our desire as Christian Endeavorers to first of all be a friend of God? Oh, that we, like Abraham might be called friends of God. In striving toward this we must have a personal relationship with God. This relationship and knowledge of God is a growth. So is also friendship. In the following discussions we want to strive to know the true elements in forming friendships.

I. We must know our friends.

a. Is it easy to know our friends?

b. How can we learn to know our friends? It calls for sympathy, time, and sustained effort. We must enter into friendships ready to give the best that we have, yes, to give ourselves. If we make friends in that spirit we shall soon find them ready to reveal their innermost secrets to us and we shall feel ready to confide in them at all times.

2. After we know our friends we must be ready to do for them. We will ever be ready to perform some helpful act. Sometimes these two points need to be reversed. Sometimes by doing a friendship is begun and the knowledge of each other follows.

3. We need to cultivate the art of listening. Words are the means of transmitting thought and it is only as we listen to our friends that we can learn of their likes dislikes and interests.

4. We can learn a great deal by watching the actions of our friends. Is there ever misunderstanding because of the uncertainty of our interpretations?

5. Finally to really know a friend we must love him. Not one of the above points could be carried out without love, could they?

III. Questions for Informal Discussion.

1. Whom are we to call our friends?

2. What is the first quality we see in others that creates within us the desire to become friends?

3. Are we only to be friends with those who are friendly toward us?

4. Is it wise for us to form friendships with those of other races?

5. Does age make any difference in our friendships? Is it wise to have some friends who are older than we are?

6. Where is the best place to meet friends? What help does Christian Endeavor give us in meeting and making friends?

"A man that hath friends must show himself friendly; and there is a friend that sticketh closer than a brother." Prov. 18:24.

"The only way to have a friend is to be one" — Emerson.

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

GOD'S GIFT IN NATURE

Program for July 16, 1939

WIND, John 3:8

I. Worship Service

1. Call to worship by quiet music

2. Song, "This Is My Father's World"

3. Leader: All things have been prepared for us by God. He created this world for us and has filled it with things good for our use. One of his precious gifts in nature to us, is the wind. We should never fret about it, but thank God for it. We learn a spiritual lesson from it too. It is an emblem of the Holy Spirit. In our study hour we will learn more of the work of the wind and find how it helps us to know the Holy Spirit. Our scripture verses tell us that God created the wind, that it starts at His summons, is under His control and performs His pleasure.

4. Scripture Reading. (Have these references printed on the blackboard and let the children find and follow the reading as one Junior reads them)

a. Amos 4:13a; Psalm 135:7; Psalm 147:18.

b. Psalm 78:26; Psalm 107:25; Matthew 8:26; Jeremiah 51:16.

5. Prayer. Thanking God for this gift.

6. In unison. Verse for month: Ps. 104:24 "O Lord, how manifold are Thy works! in wisdom hast thou made them all: the earth is full of Thy riches."

7. One verse of song, "O Worship the King, All Glorious Above."

II. Mission Minutes.

1. The Missionary Alphabet (continued)

K—Know that my words shall surely stand.—Jer. 44:29.

L—Lo, I am with you alway.—Matthew 28:20

M—Make me to go in the path of thy commandments.—Psalm 119:35.

N—Nevertheless, if thou warn the wicked of his way to turn from it . . . . thou hast delivered thy soul. Ezekiel 35:9.

O—Open thou my lips: and my mouth shall show forth thy praise. Psalm 51:15.

2. Name our Missionary doctors and tell where they are active.

III. Study Period.

Aim: To help our Juniors realize that God is the Creator of all things. We should thank Him and glorify Him by our lives.

1. Talk by a Junior: "Wind, a means of blessing." Num. 11:31; Exodus 10:19.

2. Story by a Junior:—"One day a truck driver, who was a very wicked man was driving along a road. He had some trouble and had to stop. This made him very angry. There was a high wind at the time and suddenly the high wind blew a tract to his feet, where that tract came from he never knew. He took it up and read it. A word there changed the man. He saw his own wicked heart, asked Jesus to forgive him and became a good man.

3. Solo, "From Every Stormy Wind That Blows," M. H. B. 196.

4. In God's word wind is usually associated with storms. There are storms of temptation in our lives, with this thought in mind we may discuss: "The Wind Obeys Jesus' Word," Matt. 8:24-27; Mark 4:37-41; Matt. 14:32.

5. Poem:

"For us the winds do blow,
The earth doth rest, heaven move and fountains flow,
Nothing we see but means our good,
As our delight, or as our treasure
The whole is either our cupboard of food
Or a cabinet of pleasure.
—Selected.

6. Bible Findings: Prov. 25:23a; Ecc. 1:6; Songs of Solomon 4:16; Ex. 10:19; Ecc. 11:4; Isa. 64:6; Hosea 8:7a; Matt. 7:25-27; Ps. 107:29; Matt. 14:32; Dan. 7:2; James 3:4; Ps. 147:18; John 3:8.

7. Leader's Hearttalk based on John 3:8. The Holy Spirit works in our hearts. We do not see it, but we feel it and we see what it does.

8. Leader's closing prayer

9. Song, verse 1, "Jesus Lover of My Soul"

Quarterly Session, Eastern District Conference

Our First Quarterly Conference was very well attended in the Upper Milford Mennonite Church, Zionsville, of which I am pastor.

The two papers read, "The Rural Church—A Layman's View Point" by Norman S. Schantz and "The Rural Church—the Minister's View Point" by the Rev. Sylvan Lehman were well prepared and aroused a great interest and a long and helpful discussion.

Dr. Arnold C. Schultz, head of the Bible department of Bluffton College, delivered a very helpful and inspirational address on II Kings 6:1-6. Referring to the man who lost his axe-head he said in part: "When he lost his axe-head, he lost his power for service. He still had the handle, he had a technical knowledge of how to use the axe but his power was gone, because the axe-head was gone."

He emphasized the fact that he lost his power while working. He said, "It is good to be willing to work but it is better to pray that we might be connected in fellowship with God."

"He lost that which was not his own, and was painfully conscious of his loss. So we, too, must realize that what we have is not our own, it is borrowed as was the axe. After he lost his power for service, he appealed to his master, he appealed to Elisha."

He pointed out that "he had the axe-head and power miraculously restored. He got his power back where he lost it." "Every endument of power is a miracle of grace."—Howard G. Nyce, Sec.

Chips from a Lecture

Given during the I.O.I.R. at Bethel College

"If the 534,000,000 Christians in the modern world would refuse the act of war, it would be impossible for any civilized government to make war," Rev. Albert David Belden of London, England, proclaimed, fired with the hope of a "universal ban on war."

"Christians total more members than any other two world religions counted together," the English Congregationalist told a large audience representing fifty towns and cities in Kansas attending the evening lecture, "and war will stay in the world now just so long as the Christians keep it there." The pert, though sincere, minister from London came to the United States this summer to bring to President Roosevelt and the American people a national petition of over a million British signatures asking for a world peace conference. Mr. Belden had a personal hearing with the President early this month and said of it that he had been favorably impressed.

Assigned the topic of his evening lecture, "If Religion Had Been Tried at Munich," he introduced his statements by saying that the question really turns upon the kind of religion that would be of any use in such a situation.

"Mr. Chamberlain of unbrella fame," he said, "is Unitarian, Adolph Hitler seems to have a religion which is quite unique and personal. Nominally Great Britain and Germany are protestant but in any attempt at a religious solution the official church, namely Angelican for Great Britain and Lutheran for Germany would be given first place."

"The tendency of the state church is to back up the government that happens to be in power," he continued, "hence Hitler and Chamberlain might as well represent them as anyone else."

IN MEMORIAM

MRS. PAUL G. KREHBIEL, NEE ANDERSON, was born in South California, March 1, 1900. On December 11, 1922 she married P. G. Krehbiel and their union was blessed with a daughter.

She seemed to be in perfect health, but on the evening of June the 14th she had a cerebral hemorrhage and died that night in her home at Woodlake, California. Funeral services were conducted in the Woodlake Presbyterian Church. Drs. Gellespi and Langenwalter officiating. Interment was made in the Woodland cemetery. She was held in high esteem in the community in which she lived, as evidenced by the large attendance at the service and the multitude of floral pieces. She will be greatly missed by her family and her many friends, but they sorrow not as such who have no hope.—H.J.K.

HOSPITALS—Hospitals are the gift of the Christian Church to suffering humanity. They help in every way possible to heal or mend our sick or broken bodies. Equipped with all modern accessories, they offer conveniences and comforts that homes cannot furnish. Strictest cleanliness and orderliness, coupled with trained care and aided by food carefully chosen to suit the needs and conditions of the patient, these institutions are all that the sick could ask for. When, added to this, they also have concern for the spiritual needs of man, like our Mennonite hospitals, what more could any one ask for?—The editor has just returned home from a four-weeks stay at the Bethel Hospital, Newton, Kansas and has shared its blessings. His operation proved more serious than anticipated. Recovery is progressing satisfactorily but will take time. In conclusion: however gladly one makes use of the hospital, the thing one likes best and has the sweetest sound is the doctor's final word, "You may go home."—Editor.

CORRESPONDENCE

SECOND MENN. CHURCH, BEATRICE, NEBR.

A special Children's Day program was rendered by the children of our Sunday School on Sunday the 11th inst., followed by a consecration service conducted by our pastor, Rev. M. Horsch, for four little ones. After the services all gathered at the Chautauqua Park for the annual Sunday School and Church picnic. Rev. John Thiessen and family, who recently returned on furlough from India, were with us on this occasion. They spoke very interestingly of their work, at afternoon and evening meetings, in the park tabernacle.—Another returned Missionary family, Rev. August Ewerts, stopped off here for a short visit on the preceding Thursday while enroute to South Dakota. Our Women's Missionary Society took advantage of this occasion by arranging a meeting in the park, inviting the Ewerts to talk to them about their missionary work in China and to join them in a picnic lunch.

Beatrice is said to have one of the nicest natural parks in this territory. Years ago thousands of people would come here by railroad excursions from many distant points, like Topeka and DeMoines, to hear renowned speakers like Talmadge, Mark Twain, and Sam Jones on the Chautauqua programs. Today this park is being extensively used for picnic parties, band concerts and union church services. Our church participates in these union services, which are held on Sunday evenings during the summer months. Our local Mennonites are fully enjoying the privileges that this park has to offer and are having many family reunions there throughout the picnic season.

The wheat harvest is about to begin in this locality and while no actual yield reports are as yet available we are anticipating a fairly good crop.—W.C.A., Corr.

MENNONITE CHURCH, LEHIGH, KANSAS

"On April 16, Sunday morning, 35 married folks were taken into the Lehigh Mennonite Church through baptism and by letters.—Pentecost Sunday morning four young boys were received into our church through the rights of baptism.—The Sundays following each baptism, the Lord's Supper was given, April 23rd in the afternoon and June 4th in the morning.—On Pentecost Sunday afternoon Mr. Reynold Weinbrenner was ordained for the ministry by our pastor, Rev. B. H. Janzen. The Reverends P. P. Buller, J. H. Epp and P. H. Unruh were visiting speakers.—A two week's Bible School opened in our High School Building, June 5th, with Miss Dyck from Bethel College and Miss Anna Enns from Lehigh as teachers."—Mrs. F. G. Unruh, Corr.

THE BLESSINGS OF HARD WORK

Charles Huston, the Vice-President of the Lukens Steel Company at Coatesville, Pa., once told a friend that it was his conviction, after long experience, that it is the normal thing for every man to work at least eight hours a day in order to make a living. Mr. Huston has made a thorough study of economics and industrial problems, and is also a keen student of the Bible, believing it to be the verbally inspired and infallible Word of God. He was not ignoring the fact that some men do not have to work eight hours a day, but he pointed out that in such cases they are living on the fruits of some one else's toil, either through inheritance or in some other way.

Most of us have no opportunity to question whether or not we shall work eight hours a day, for the struggle for existence is so stern, and the duties of home, church, and office or shop or farm are so pressing that we are thankful if we can set apart eight hours out of the twenty-four for sleep. Is this prospect of continuous work nothing but a barren expanse of rock, or can the Christian find springs of water even in the rock? Or, as Samson did, can he take meat and sweetness out of this lion in the way?

Regular work settles the problem of what to do next. This is something to be thankful for. "Satan finds some mischief still for idle hands to do." Look for a moment at the picture of a busy Christian household. The alarm clock goes off, there is breakfast to get, the children must get to school on time, father must get to the office, mother must either do or oversee the washing of the dishes, the buying, the mending, the cleaning, perhaps give medicine at regular hours and change little or big bandages. Then there is that church or Sunday school meeting at night, or some studying to do, or accounts to go over, or repairs to be made, or letters to write, or a visit. Is this all a dull grind? It need not be. It was just after recording that glorious message which he himself had received, "My grace is sufficient for thee," that Paul wrote, "Therefore I take pleasure in . . . . necessities." Has that word "necessities" a familiar, and perhaps a hard sound for us? In the Book of all comfort it is not far from that other phrase of Paul's "Most gladly therefore will I rather glory in my infirmities, that the power of Christ may rest upon me." And Brother Lawrence, in a later day, "practiced the presence of God," and rejoiced in communion with Him as he worked in the monastery kitchen.

Hard work occupies our mind. Where would our thoughts wander if left to themselves? Every one knows, to his own sorrow. They are as bad as a puppy on a leash; drawn aside from the straight path by every sound and sight and smell, and nosing into strange places where trouble lies in wait. Who has not at times found a terrible commentary in his own heart on the awful indictment of antediluvian man, "Every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually"?

Gladness wells up in the heart of every Christian father when he realizes that his daily work brings health and strength to the one who would say to him, "I will gladly spend and be spent for you"; and to those dear younger ones around his table who rest in his providing care. What a joy it is to give that mother all he can to make her life easier and sweeter in the home! What a happiness it is to know that through his toil little blue and brown eyes are kept bright and clear, and little limbs made strong and firm! But suppose those eyes are made heavy and the limbs listless through disease? Then, when he can do no more at home, he finds relief in the necessities of work, and a new zest in it as he strives to earn the means of bringing back life and health.

Recreation and rest are sweeter after hard work. What conscientious man or woman can thoroughly enjoy an outing, or a vacation, or even a long night's rest, if he or she knows that at that very time there is a duty left undone which could and should have been done? It is true that we must leave some things for the next day, or the next week, or the next month. But when duty is done so far as possible, then bed is more welcome at night; and on the vacation or outing the songs of the hermit thrush and the white-throated sparrow are sweeter, the tug of the fish at the line more thrilling, the swim in the lake or the surf is more exhilarating, and the views over mountains are more entrancing.

But hard work is at its best and brightest when we obey Paul's exhortation, "Whether therefore ye eat, or drink, or whatever ye do, do it all to the glory of God." We are promised not only strength to do God's work, but glory in doing it. "For the Lord God is sun and shield: the Lord will give grace and glory: no good thing will he withhold from them that walk uprightly." No one is so continually happy as he who knows that every stroke of work he does counts for God's glory and for eternity. Working for God solves a great many problems. Ambition and pride and personal advancement have no place in such work. One need not be concerned about his name or his reputation or the consequences so long as he trusts and obeys, for he is not working for himself but for God. Such a man or woman has unlimited possibilities for bringing comfort and cheer to others from an inspired Book whose Author knows all their needs and has outlined the future, and for spreading abroad the Glad Tidings of pardon and eternal life through Christ.

The one who works for God and in the power of His Spirit looks forward to that time of which Peter wrote, "For so an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ." So, whether we are prominent or unnoticed, whether our task is spectacular or obscure, whether our lot is easy or hard, let us be continually "looking unto Jesus, the author and finisher of our faith; who for the joy that was set before him endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God."—The Sunday School Times, May 6, 1939.

—Dr. H. A. Fast, Field Secretary, to visit our brethren in South America.—In 1933 a request came to us from Paraguay to send an "Aeltester," elder, down to serve them, and the conference agreed to do so. However, as the brethren Orrie Miller, P. C. Hiebert and Harold Bender were sent there by the Mennonite Central Committee at different times we felt their service would do for the time being. Now our Home Mission and Emergency Relief Boards have jointly asked the Conference Executive Committee for permission to send our Field Secretary there provided they would furnish the funds for his trip. Dr. Fast is willing to go and has arranged to sail the night of July 14 on the "S. S. Uruguay" of the American Republic line from New York. Our Home Mission Board has also appropriated $600.00 for a church building in Philadelphia which Brother Fast is to deliver in person. Also German books have been gathered and should arrive during his stay in Paraguay. Mainly his mission is to serve in Paraguay and Brazil with spiritual meetings and counsel.

—From Monthly News Letter, Salem Church, Freeman, South Dakota.—The District Conference of 1939, now a thing of the past, was probably the best attended in recent years. It was a great gathering. The spirit of missions and the consecration of youth seemed to predominate. The next session will be held in the Bethesda Church, Henderson, Nebr., in 1940. Special provision will be made for young people's meetings. Two such meetings were arranged in a somewhat impromptu way at the recent session. Prof. Gerhard Toews led in singing, the different missionaries and others spoke, and all in all, there was quite a bit of spiritual enthusiasm aroused among those taking part. The Conference Book Table was in charge of Bro. G. B. Friesen of Mountain Lake, Minn. Mr. Friesen reports that he sold several times as much as he had anticipated. Many bought a book or a plaque as a remembrance of the Conference.

—Bethany Church, Freeman, So. Dak.—The Church Council has given a call to Rev. A. H. Leaman of Chicago to bring us a series of Bible lectures, beginning the 3rd of September. He is to serve us about two weeks, then goes to Butterfield, Minn. Rev. Leaman has served in our Mission in Chicago five years.

—WANTED:—At the Bethel College Dining Hall, North Newton, Kansas, a Cook. The person must be of mature age and have experience. Aspirants kindly address Mrs. Mamie K. Phillips, North Newton, Kansas, who is manager of the hall.

—Rev. Reynold Weinbrenner, who was recently ordained to the Gospel Ministry in his home church at Lehigh, Kan., and is now at Reedley, Calif., with Mrs. Weinbrenner, where he will assist and substitute for the pastor, Dr. J. H. Langenwalter during the summer, writes in part: "We enjoyed our trip to California. We stopped at Boulder Dam and marvelled at the immensity of it. The thermometer in our car did not much exceed 104 degrees as we drove through the desert regions. The vineyards and orchards here look very promising. It is a prettier community than I expected it to be. Wednesday there was a miniature cloud burst at Fresno, 25 miles from here. This was the first rain of its kind in this time of the year in 50 years. The storm, rain, and hail did thousands of dollars of damage.—For the first two Sundays that we were here, I had to preach. We were met with a very fine reception in the form of a basket dinner and a program the first Sunday. The people are very congenial. We have met very many who were formerly of Kansas. I'm teaching the sixth grade boys in daily vacation Bible school. We have an enrollment of approximately 80. Miss Lelia Galle is the director. I have met Rev. H. J. Krehbiel; he certainly is an energetic person for his age and health; it's a pleasure to listen to him.—Dr. Langenwalter was at the Pacific conference. He also assisted in the ordination of Mr. Edmund Miller. I consider it a great privilege to be able to work under Dr. Langenwalter. He just simply radiates helpfulness to all whom he meets."

—At the Ministers' League of Allentown and vicinity, held at the Western Salisbury Union Church, Rev. Howard G. Nyce of Allentown, Pa. was elected President of the League for 1939-40. There are 114 ministers affiliated with the League and it plays a prominent part in the civic affairs of the city.

—Grace Church, Albany, Oregon.—"We enjoyed a pre-conference visit from our field secretary, Miss Emma Ruth, which proved very beneficial. The Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention was held in our Albany Church this year and was fairly well attended. Dr. Meyers, state C. E. speaker from Eugene, Oregon, brought the climaxing address.—Our pastor, Rev. W. R. Augsburger, is bringing us a series on the Book of Esther on Sunay evenings, which are most interesting—Corr.

—Mennonite Church, Inman, Kansas.—"Mr. and Mrs. John Thiessen and family, missionaries to India, returned home recently and we welcome them to our church and homes.—The Community Vacation Bible School is again in session. We have a fine number enrolled and some 7 teachers and helpers in charge."—Church Visitor.

ATTENTION!

Next week, being the week of the Fourth of July, "THE MENNONITE" will not be issued.

—The Grace Mennonite Church of Dallas, Oregon, whose pulpit was recently vacated, has given a call to Brother Homer Leisy who has been doing considerable evangelistic work in the Pacific Conference. He has accepted and has already taken charge of the work. The correspondent says: The church surprised the new pastor and family with a hearty "Welcome" service. After a fine church dinner a splendid program was given by various representatives of the congregation. Rev. J. M. Franz spoke on "The Church's Obligation to the Pastor," and Brother Leisy made a fitting response. The church services are all being well attended. Such hearty cooperation and enthusiasm cannot help but further the Lord's work in Dallas.

—The Institute of International Relations, in its fourth annual session at Bethel College from June 12 to 22, reports that the enrollment reached approximately 163, from 48 different towns and cities in Kansas. Nine internationally known speakers gave one or more lectures. They were Dr. Eduard Benes, ex-president of Czecho-Slovakia; R. Samuel Guy Inman, authority on Latin America; H. Markham, Central European correspondent for the Christian Science Monitor; Mrs. Laurn Puffer Morgan, American delegate at Geneva, Switzerland; Fred J. Libby, Secretary of the National Council for Prevention of War; Dr. T. Z. Koo, prominent Chinese Christian and lecturer; Dr. Albert Belden, English congregationalist minister; Dr. Albert Martin, refugee worker with the American Friends Service Committee, and Dr. Karl Sholz, economist from the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce, Philadelphia.

—Brother O. K. Galle of Wichita, Kansas, an active member of our Mission Church at Lorraine Avenue, has gone through an unusual experience. After having worn eye glasses for a good many years, "he made an adjustment in his food intake and is exercising his eyes. As a result he discarded his glasses and feels no handicap. In fact he says that his eyes are much stronger."

—First Church, Philadelphia, Pa.—Evening services are discontinued for the summer months. Time of their resumption will be announced in September.—Twelve young people attended the Junior Retreat.—The Bible School starts June 26. Bible stories, stories, singing and handwork make up the program.

—Week-day Bible Schools for New York.—"On the advice of Owen D. Young and two other committeemen the New York State Board of Regents adopted a resolution permitting local school boards to dismiss school children from classes one hour a day for religious instruction by their own denominations —From Pulaski, Iowa, Rev. W. W. Miller writes on June 8: "Rev. W. F. Unruh with family arrived in Pulaski, Tuesday evening, May 30, and next day took possession of the parsonage, as their future home. On Friday evening a very helpful "shower" was given them by the church, consisting of many useful articles, such as will be needed in the making of their new home. On the following Sunday he gave his first message in the Pulaski Mennonite Church as its future pastor, leader and spiritual shepherd. He spoke on the greatest of all subjects, LOVE. Our prayer is that that greatest of all powers in heaven and on earth may be the controlling element in the hearts of pastor and people during their sojourn together here." This comes from Rev. W. W. Miller, who for many years has served this church as its beloved pastor with blessed results. He now retires due to old age.—Editor.

—First Church, Bluffton, Ohio.—"Andrew Shelly, a senior in Bluffton College, presented the message Sunday evening, June 4. The Church appreciated the cooperation of the church school in the choir, the young people's organizations and Sunday School."—Correspondent.

—Bethany Church, Kingman, Kansas.—At the request of the Congregational Church at Canterbury, Conn., which he has served nine months, Bro. Erwin Albrecht has been ordained for the Gospel Ministry in his home church, the Bethany Mennonite Church, at Kingman, Kansas, Sunday, June 11.

—The Baptists More Numerous Than the Methodists.—While the united Methodist Church is now the largest Protestant denomination, if the five Baptist bodies in the United States could get together, they would take first rank at 10,000.

—Germany.—Last week the Confessional Synod (some 8000 anti-Nazi Evangelical ministers, half of all the German Protestant clergy) repudiated Dr. Werner (head of the Evangelical church's council). In letters daringly read from their pulpits, the rebels declared that he had placed himself "beyond the pale of the church" and that his orders were no longer legally binding on them.

—Nicolai Lenin once said, "The purer a religion is, and the more devoted its followers, the more dangerous it is to Bolshevism." The Russians are taking his statement literally, for the Protestants have been the greatest sufferers under the Soviet regime. To climax their persecution, the last Protestant church, St. Peter and St. Paul, was recently closed which leaves no Protestant churches in any of the principal cities. There are still thousands of faithful Protestants, but their pastors have been suppressed or killed.

"Not what has happened to myself today, but what has happened to others through me — that should be my first thought." — Blake.

NO REAL CAUSE FOR WAR OVER THE "CORRIDOR"—Since Poland, a country of considerable size in Central Europe, had no seaport, the Treaty of Versailles awarded it a strip of land across East Prussia, on both sides of the Vistula River, thus giving it splendid shipping facilities on the river and with it an outlet to the Baltic Sea. This has cut off East Prussia from Germany proper for the last twenty years, making intercourse with it difficult. Much has been said and written about this dividing strip of land, called Corridor or Promorze Province, as a possible source of trouble. But Chancellor Hitler, in his speech in reply to President Roosevelt's peace proposals to Germany, plainly stated that he recognizes the fact that Poland should have harbors and free access to them, and therefore does not demand the return of the Corridor. The Poles can keep it! But he asked that Germany be given the right of way across to her territory on the other side, by granting her special privileges for roads and railways. Danzig, a free German city, would also like to rejoin the Reich. Now, since the Poles have built themselves a great new seaport on the shores of the Baltic, so that they are not dependent on Danzig, it looks as though they ought to be willing to accede to Germany's wishes. Surely, under the conditions just stated, there appears to be no real cause for a war over Danzig or the Corridor.

WHAT GAIN TO COLLEGE GRADUATES?—Tens of thousands of young people were recently graduated from our colleges and universities and have gone out into the world to find a place for themselves. What profit has college been to them. May we venture to name a few things that they should have acquired. 1. Transformation into personalities that are honest, have noble, uplifting ideals, and can properly evalute and enhance the worthwhile things of life. —2. Such training as will enable them to live helpfully, peaceaby and sociably uplifting with their fellowmen, and recognize even in the lowliest of them the image of God and treat them accordingly. 3. A high regard for the dignity of labor, whether with hand or head. There is evidence that a good many young people shun hard work and go to college, in order to find a way to go through life with as little work as possible. 4. Ability and determination through one's efforts to make some contribution to the betterment and uplift of the world. May it be through a useful invention, the writing of a good book, increasing farm yields, so to live that others may profit by the example, to save a soul from destruction, or what not. We inherit thousands of things left us by others, we owe the world something in return. 5. A due regard for religion, the Christian Bible and its life-giving teaching, as well as all things that ought to be held sacred. Unfortunately, too many brain-educated young people develop a tendency to make light of and to scoff at these things. May God pity them! In selecting a higher institution of learning, parents and students will do well to investigate carefully whether they offer such fundamentals of education as mentioned, and others. If they are indifferent about them, a better and safer choice would be one of the many good Christian colleges in the land.

GOD'S GRACE SUFFICIENT.—2 Cor. 12:7-9.—The apostle Paul had "a thorn in his flesh," which he felt was greater than he could endure. This thorn must have been some physical ailment. He calls it "a messenger from Satan to buffet me." Just what it may have been can only be conjectured. Anyway it so troubled him that he "besought the Lord thrice" to take it away from him. However, it was not in the Lord's will to do so, possibly because, as Paul himself says, "that I should not be overexalted." But God gave him the positive assurance, "My grace is sufficient for thee." This shows that unanswered prayer is prayer out of the will of God. It is asking Him for something that is not best in His judgment. But how comforting! Though God in His love has to deny some requests, He will give needed grace to get along. So that we, too, like Paul may learn to say, "Most gladly, therefore, will I rather glory in mine infirmities, that the power of Christ may rest upon me." He came to realize that the troublesome thorn was necessary, in order that the grace and power of Christ might rest upon him. The lesson that we should learn from these verses of scripture is, that as faithful, earnestly striving Christians we should always say, "Yet not as I will, but as thou wilt." If we pray with insistence for deliverance from some thorn in our flesh, we may do this at the cost of a loss of power in our spiritual life. It is better to draw on the inexhaustible store of His grace, and gladly accept our thorn.

Fourth Quarter Report, 1938—Yü Jen School of Nursing

To the School Board:—

It has been a year since a report was sent in from the School of Nursing. With this quarter's report we appear on the "stage" again.

Our school was temporarily discontinued during the fourth quarter of 1937. The students who were in the school at that time were allowed to go home or to some other place of refuge. Our three junior students went south to continue their work elsewhere.

In the spring of this year (1938) hospital work was resumed in its former capacity. Patients were coming in larger numbers than formerly. Of our graduate nurses, four men left the hospital service to go into local 'field' work. That left only four graduate nurses on the staff. In July Miss Goertz returned from furlough, to take charge of the direction and supervision of the work in the nursing department. The patients were many, so prospective students were asked to come in to help with the bedside nursing.

It was found advisable to reopen the school of nursing in order that the students might be trained to give the proper care to the patients. The school board met on November 15th, 1938, and approved re-opening the school.

On December 1st, fourteen students took the entrance examinations and twelve were accepted for the course. Besides these, five students who had been probationers in 1937, were re-entered. Also a student, who had gone to the Presbyterian Hospital in Paotingfu, found it impossible to go back there, so was accepted here. Now we have eighteen students, all in their first year of training. This requires much supervision on the part of the staff. We have had one month of class-work this quarter.

The whole student body helped with enthusiasm with the preparations and rendition of the Christmas programs, in the wards, for the patients. On New Year's day we enjoyed a social evening together with the hospital staff.

We have received word from the Union Hospital in Hankow that one of our junior students has finished her course and taken the final examinations in their school. The director of that school asked us to send this student the diploma of our school, saying that she is still considered our student. We are forwarding it to her.

Respectfully submitted,

Wang Jin T'ing, Director, School of Nursing
James C. Liu, Chairman, School Board.

PRAISE AND PRAYER PARAGRAPHS

The following are facts taken from reports and letters from the field:

"The Lord sent His blessing in wonderful measure in our meetings. We had the joy of assisting a goodly number of souls (about 24), so that they might find peace with God through Jesus Christ our Lord. Others were revived. It was amazing how the people came to the meetings.

"February 26th. We had a visit from Roy Greenberg who has just been paroled from ______ penetentiary. I am to be sponsor for him." (Is not this fulfilling Matt. 25:36, where it says: I was in prison and ye visited me.)

"April 2. Palm Sunday. Had baptism service in the morning. Five were baptized, three boys and two girls. Three adults were taken into the church in the evening."

"Offerings are from fifteen to twenty dollars per Sunday." (This in a church of an average attendance of 110 in the morning worship).

On February 3rd, I could start with my Catechetical instruction. We are holding our class in the Saskatoon Church basement. Texts used are Catechism, the Bible and Hymn book. Seventeen answered my call, twelve young women and 5 young men. This group is made up of working girls, several High School students and three University students. In spite of different background, preparation and calling, all must come under the same cross of Calvary."

"Our evening service is fairly well attended, but not as well as it should be since there are many disinterested persons. During the quarter there was one sister who always claimed that she was as good as the ones that came to church, but she never would come. She went to Ohio on a visit, got converted and now she is a regular attendant. She has not joined church as yet, but thinks this is a good place to come for worship."

"The 15th and 16th I was in St. Anne (Manitoba). We have no minister here from our Conference. The Bruedergemeinde has two ministers here, and we all worshipped together. Attendance was very good and one felt a real hunger for the Word. There is much moving back and forth. It would be desirable for one of our Conference ministers to visit this group at regular times."

—Zion Mennonite Church, Souderton, Pa.—In our Vacation Bible School, which includes all grades from kindergarten to high school, the pupils in their hand work will work one week on projects for the use of Missionaries Moyer; the following weeks they may work on projects for their own use.

Publication

AN APPEAL TO THE CHURCHES FOR FUNDS

Soon the revised Mennonite Hymn Book will be ready for the engraver, then for the printer and binder, all of which, with a first edition of 2500-3000 copies, will entail a cost of $4000-5000. The Board of Publication wants to bring this before the churches to see if they would not be willing to make up this sum, rather than to have us borrow the money or at least a good share of it. The General Conference now has a membership of nearly 26,000 in the United States. If each member would give 16 cents apiece for a song book fund, the project could be handled.

Our churches contribute on the average about $8,000.00 a month for foreign missions and about $2.000,00 for home missions. Our publication work is also a piece of missionary enterprise. Would it look unreasonable if they should contribute a few thousand dollars at this time for a songbook which is to serve their spiritual uplift for a long time to come?

The Board of Publication herewith appeals to our churches and its members to make special efforts in giving us a good collection within this and the next two months toward this cause. The Conference has a standing resolution asking the churches to take at least one collection per year for the cause of publication. Of the 141 churches in the United States just 24 have sent in contributions to our general treasury since the Conference session at Saskatoon. Of the 25 churches of the Eastern District 4 have sent in their gifts, one of them two, another three. Of the 19 churches in the Middle District four have given, one twice. Of the 57 churches of the Western District, twelve gave, three of them twice. Of the 25 churches of the Northern District 2 gave, one of them 4 times. Of 15 churches of the Pacific District, 4 gave, one of them 3 times, one twice. These contributions reached a total of $500. From this it can be seen that if all the 141 churches had contributed proportionately as well during the past 11 months, close to $3000.00 would have come in, which is not far from the sum suggested above for the songbook. We hope and pray that the churches will take this matter upon their hearts and come to the aid of the Board of Publication.

It will interest our people in the States that the brethren in Canada are also making rapid headway with their German Song Book. The Manuscript or "dummy" for the book reached the undersignd a few days ago, in good form and the task of getting this book printed is now also before our Board. The Canadian brethren are ready, as the resolution provides, to back up the financial end of their project. Hence it seems only fair that we on this side of the boundary do the same for our English songbook.

The Committee for the revision of our English Hymn Book have spared no effort to assemble a collection of about 550 hymns of such variety and worth that should meet the demand and taste of anybody who is not prejudiced. With prayer and consecration they have endeavored to follow the leading of the Spirit, realizing that their task is one that is to bear fruit for eternity. Recently an experienced hymn book maker for one of the large denominations looked over the selection our committee has made, and he said that it was one of the best that he had ever seen. The brethren W. H. Hohmann and L. Hostetler, with their wives and daughters, are very busy during these summer weeks, at Upland, Calif., making up the "dummy." May we earnestly pray for them, that God may give them further light and strength to finish their task to his glory.

In behalf of the cause of publication and for the Board of Publication,

J. R. Thierstein, Chm.

N. B. Send contributions to Bro. E. W. Baumgartner, Berne, Ind., marked "Hymn Book Fund."

Choosing a Minister by Lot

In Montgomery County, Pa., 20 miles north of Philadelphia, are hundreds of farmers, Pennsylvania Dutch by heritage and Mennonite by faith. They worship in Towamencin Meeting House, a plain stone building near Kulpsville. Last week 600 of them, conservative enough to wear their broad-brimmed Mennonite hats but modern enough to ride in gleaming cars, crowded into the meeting house for an ancient ceremonial—"casting the lot," by which these Mennonites choose their ministers and bishops.

This lot casting was to select a new assistant to Towamencin's pastor, Isaac Kulp. Men on one side of the church and women on the other, the congregation prayed for two hours. Then Bishops John Lapp and Arthur Ruth (both farmers) called to the pulpit the four men nominated by the church elders. The bishops placed four hymnals on the edge of the pulpit and told each candidate to take one and open it.

Howard Hackman, Abram Metz, and Isaac Alderfer opened their books and found blank slips of paper. The Bishops announced: "Thou art free." When William Anders opened his, he found a slip inscribed: "The lot is cast into the lap; but the whole disposing thereof is of the Lord" (Proverbs 16:33). The Bishops said: "Thou art chosen."

Then Anders, a 23-year-old farmer untrained for the clergy, was ordained to the unsalaried, lifetime post of Towamencin's assistant pastor.—Newsweek.

—First Church, Upland, Calif.—At a recent C. E. Society meeting Prof. W. H. Hohman gave an address on "Church Hymns and Hymn Tunes", and his eleven year old son Rupert played a violin solo.—Missionaries J. J. Thiessen are expected for a visit.

SERMON SKETCH

THE MEANING OF THE CROSS

P. E. Frantz, First Mennonite Church, Geary, Okla.

The Christian message is essentially a message of the cross. The cross typifies the most cruel and shameful death, yet it has become the most glorious and significant Christian symbol. It has a dark and a light side. It is symbolic of something ugly and abhorent on the one hand, and on the other of something beautiful and glorious.

In its higher meaning it represents two things: Redemption and the Redeemed Life. The two are inseparable. Redemption is inevitably followed by a life portraying the cross. It portrays the life as well as the death of Jesus. He lived it before he died on it.

I. The Cross a Symbol of Redemption

There is no salvation, individually or socially, except in and through the cross. On the redemptive side it again portrays two things: the sin of man and the love of God. It was sin that necessitated it, not an angry God who needed to be appeased.

First, the cross shows the meanness, ugliness and terribleness of sin. There once was a man, named Jesus, who lived so good a life that people felt he was the very embodiment of God. He was the kindest. most sympathetic, most loving and selfgiving man the world had ever seen. But the world could not endure to have him around. So they took him and made him die the most cruel and shameful death. That is the meanness of sin. It always nails the best people to the cross. It nails kindness, sympathy, love and goodness to the cross. It is the very nature of sin to do that.

Secondly, the cross pictures the love of God. It is the highest possible expression of that love. There God bared his heart to the world. It says God is like that. There love is dramatically portrayed, visualized and acted out. It shows to what length love is willing to go, giving and suffering to the utmost. Thus it has become the greatest redeeming force in all the world; yes, the very source of life and healing for individuals and nations. The principle of the cross runs through all nature and life. The sprouting seed, the birth of a child, a kind deed, all express the cross. This brings us to the second great meaning of the cross.

II. The Cross a Symbol of the Redeemed Life

It signifies not only something that happened back there, but also something that is to happen here and now, in your life. We think of it too much in terms of the first, and not enough of the latter. Jesus lived the cross and then died on it to save us. We are saved through that death on the cross in order to live it. Salvation is always from something to something, never merely from something. It is from the lowest to the highest, typified by the cross. From sin to a life of love. It means a life of selfgiving love expressed in service, sacrifice and suffering. Herein lies the supreme message of the cross. We call a certain organization the Red Cross. Why? Because it stands for the giving of life in behalf of others, through service, sacrifice and suffering, if need be.

The trouble with present day Christianity is, that it has so little of the cross in it, and thus it is unable to cope with and to meet the problems of this world. The missionaries as a group express more of the spirit of the cross than any other group of Christians. The depth, richness, and power of the Christian life depends on to what extent it expresses the cross. It is always a sad day when it is separated from the practical life, and is honored and revered merely as a symbol of something that happened long ago. Separated from life, it is meaningless. Related to life, it is meaningful.

The cross then is a twofold symbol, that of salvation and that of a saved life.

Fifth Joint Conference

Mennonites, Schwenkfelders, Brethren and Friends, Upper Milford Mennonite Church, Old Zionsville, Pa.
July 10, 1939

GENERAL THEME: "Our Common Fellowship"

With thanksgiving for the universal love of God, we rejoice to find ourselves knit together in our personal allegiance to our Lord Jesus Christ as the only Savior of men. And with a simple faith depending upon the regenerative power of God rather than upon humanistic efforts or mechanical means of Grace for the constant expression of an humble, equitable and peaceful life, we wish to gather together to meditate and to exhort ourselves "as the Spirit gives us utterance"; also to pray that we may share with every creature the Gospel, even as our Lord commanded.

ASA: A LIFE OF TRUST

Introduction

Asa, the third king of Judah, following the division of the kingdom in Rehoboam's reign, was a reformer, changing the religious policy of both his father, Abijah, and Rehoboam. He reigned for forty-one years and was one of the best of the kings of Judah. There was war with Israel, the northern kingdom, following the division. Abijah inflicted a decisive defeat upon Israel, so when Asa came to the throne there was peace for a long time.

Asa Reforms vs. 2-7

Asa's task, to direct the course of the kingdom of Judah, was not an easy one. He had his faults. His heart was perfect with the Lord and he did that which was good and right (v2). He was the first of Judah's kings who sincerely tried to please God, who approved of him, his life, and blessed him. Solomon had introduced idolatry and it had flourished and increased under Rehoboam. Asa showed himself zealous for the Lord and undertook a vigorous religious reform to reestablish the worship of the true God. Seven things he did are stated in verse 3-6. Solomon had erected altars to the strange gods. Asa took them away, also the high places and broke down the images—a drastic reformation. He further commanded Judah to seek the Lord and obey the law of God. A similar reformation is much needed today, for many are worshipping strange gods—that is, giving their heart and soul allegiance to other than God himself. All that was against pure religion he removed. His chief concern was for the worship of God, the matter of foremost importance in the life of any nation and people. God blessed Judah with quiet peace (v5) and Asa built fortified cities (v6). In these quiet days the nation was built up thoroughly (v7). Spiritual regeneration and material prosperity and upbuilding went hand in hand. Their peace and prosperity was built on a spiritual foundation—the only true basis on which ours can be founded today.

How Asa Won the Victory vs. 8-12

Asa had a large army subject to call for service (v8), well equipped, but inferior to the much larger host coming against him (v9). He recognized this fact. His was not wholly centered in his army. He knew what God can do for his people. He trusted in Him, called upon Him in sincere confidence—"help us, O Lord our God; for we rest on thee and in thy name go against this multitude"—and God helped them (vs 11, 12). He is constantly giving power to the weak who fully trust in Him. When we rest on Him we may be certain of his help. They were on the Lord's side. He fought for them and gained a great victory. We need to learn how to trust God.

There must be first of all a firm confidence in Him. We must believe that He rewards those who diligently seek Him and that He is interested in us. His Word tells us clearly that he does care, so much that He sent His Son to redeem us. We must also commit ourselves completely to Him, not holding anything in reserve. God wants us entirely—all of our will—a living sacrifice. We must confidently believe that He will do only the best by and for us. When we sincerely make His will our will, then we can truly trust Him, can say, "I rest upon thee." Christ so rested upon God and received strength from Him. Fellowship with God was the outstanding fact of his life. God was intensely real to him. The more real He becomes to us, the easier trust in Him becomes. Obedience is a necessary condition for trusting God.

Retreat at Mountain Lake, Minnesota

"Let your manner of life be worthy of the Gospel of Christ", Phil. 1:27, was chosen as the motto for the Young People's Retreat held at Mountain Lake, Minnesota, on June 21, 22, 23. It was sponsored by the three General Conference churches of this community. Ninety-three young people registered for the retreat, which was an increase over the first one held two years ago.

The morning sessions were held at the Bergfelder Church, an excellent location with its peaceful and quiet surroundings. For the evening sessions we met at the First Mennonite Church and the Bethel Church. Rev. Victor Sawatzky from Butterfield, Minnesota; Rev. August Ewert, missionary from China; and Rev. Philip Wedel from Aberdeen, Idaho, were the principal instructors. On June 21 Rev. and Mrs. Orlando Waltner of Marion, South Dakota, were also present. The Christian Life, Personal Evangelism, and Missions were the courses offered for study.

We are grateful and happy for the opportunities of study and fellowship offered at this retreat. We hope to make this an annual event, and for that purpose have elected officers to serve for the coming year. We thank our Lord and Master for the rich blessings received and pray that He may use us more definitely in His service.—Erna Fast.

Peace - Today's Great Topic

By J. B. Epp, Beatrice, Nebraska

Peace certainly is one of the things uppermost in the hearts of most people today. And who would not wish to have peace in the heart, at home, in the church, in the community, in the land, and in the world! Everyone with a sound mind and a good will is, no doubt, willing to do his part in promoting peace in every way possible. Peace is one of the greatest gifts of God. Real peace, individual as well as collective peace, comes from God through Christ. Through Him, and Him alone, we have peace with God, and real peace among men. And if all true believers continue to look at Christ and work for Him, not for self, or for a man-made organization, then there will be peace in the church and elsewhere. And only as all members of a family, or a community, do the same, will there be real and lasting peace. The same holds true regarding a nation, or the world.

I am speaking of real and lasting peace. Temporary "quietness" may exist without Christ. Peace and tranquility are expedient for the welfare of a family. But all man-made peace and tranquility will not last. This has been proved in countless instances. Periods of peace and rest are absolutely necessary for the very existence and growth of a body, individually, as well as of a group or nation.

But often great quietness comes just before a most violent outburst of strife or war. Are we not in our days especially concerned about world-peace? A real, lasting peace? Christians know, or ought to know at least, that such is not possible without real peace in the individual heart of everyone! Then only will there be peace in every family and church. We are impatient about this world's peace. Unrest, strife, wars and revolutions are getting worse and worse. They are becoming absolutely unendurable. So we feel that we must do our utmost to counteract all this, by our best efforts in time of peace. This is very natural. And is it all in vain? Oh no! There is, seemingly at least, enough success in our efforts, to keep up the courage of those who work especially in that line. But, to be brief, let us remind ourselves of the very clear statement in the Bible, that "They will say, peace, peace, when there is no peace." And, again, "When they will say, peace and safety; just then sudden destruction cometh upon them . . . . and they shall not escape." The people in general will say this. And does it not seem just now, more than ever, everything is tending towards peace? Churches are uniting, instead of separating. Believers and unbelievers are getting together to prevent war! During the last ten years there have been an hundred or more occasions, such as brought about the World War, but no war. These land-grabbings are not real wars. And it surely seems as if God's time has come to permit the nations to find a great peace! But, this being man-made, clear and simple, with all sin not only present but increasing furiously, can it be any other but that false peace spoken of in the above named Scriptures?

Let us not be deceived! But let us have our eyes open! The present cry, "Peace, peace" certainly has not the right ring to it! Let us rather cry louder and louder: "Even so come, Lord Jesus! Prince of Peace! without whom there can be no real lasting peace.

Meeting of Women's Mission Societies of the Middle District, held at Bluffton, June 19

The afternoon session was a business meeting, and was presided over by the President, Mrs. D. E. Welty. During the devotional period Mrs. P. E. Whitmer read the Scripture, and there was a brief period of sentence prayers. The Roll Call showed that all the societies were represented, with the exception of the Chicago Society.

The usual reports were read and accepted. Mrs. Schultz reported on literature. She also had a literature table display, with various pieces of literature along missionary lines. Mrs. Mary Burkhard and Mrs. S. T. Moyer, both from India, also recommended some missionary literature and study books.

The new Constitution was adopted for one year. It was also decided to ask each Society to contribute 2 cents per member toward the purchase of literature and other purposes that may arise. This is to be sent to the Secretary of the Women's Work. As the terms of office of the President and Vice-president had expired, new officers were chosen as follows: President, Mrs. Noah Soldner; and Vice President, Mrs. A. S. Rosenberger.

A public program was arranged for the evening meeting, which was held in the Bluffton Church. The program was carried out as follows:

Devotions, Mrs. D. E. Welty
Violin Solo by Bluffton Society
News Flashes, Martha Gilliom
Congregational hymn.— Offering
Talk, by Mrs. S. T. Moyer, India
Music by Grace, St. John and Ebenezer Churches
Talk, Mrs. Alfred Habegger, Montana.
Closing prayer, Mrs. Mary Burkhard, India

The offering amounted to $56.30, which was sent to Mrs. Frieda Regier Entz to be divided half and half for Home and Foreign Missions.

At the afternoon session it was also suggested that the detailed report concerning the various Societies as given by the Secretary be published. This is also enclosed herewith.—Martha Gilliom, Secretary.

FIRST THURCH, ABERDEEN, IDAHO, 5-11-39

It has been some time since a report has been sent in from the only General Conference Mennonite Church in Idaho.

Due to unfavorable weather, the farmers are still planting potatoes. More potatoes have been planted in this vicinity this year than ever before, and if the crop matures favorably there will be shipped from here a total of about 1,600 carloads to all parts of the United States. Idaho potatoes have a wider distribution than any other potato grown in the country. The thinning of Sugar Beets is about finished and they are ready now for the first hoeing. Alfalfa hay is being cut, red clover is being clipped and then the farmers will try for a seed crop. Clover and alfalfa seeds are very valuable crops in Idaho and much of the irrigated land around Aberdeen is devoted to seed raising.

We are glad to report that the debt of $1,200 on the furnace for the new church has all been paid and the church is now clear of all debt. The next major improvement we are looking forward to at present is new pews. A fund has already been started and we hope the new seating will soon be forthcoming.

The following are some of the interesting items which have happened here since January 1, 1939: The marriage of Miss Margaret Dirks to Mr. Howard Stevens at the home of Mrs. Isabelle Fugate on January 6, and of Miss Elva Enns and Ronald Funk in the First Mennonite church on April 2.

The Golden Wedding Anniversary Celebration of Mr. and Mrs John J. Schroeder was held in our church on May 2. About 200 relatives and friends were invited who presented the couple with many useful gifts. Prof. William Schroeder, youngest son of the celebrants, gave the history of the family and other reminiscences. Dr. M. C. Mackinnon and G. A. Bartel followed with interesting talks. The program was in charge of Rev. Phil. A. Wedel who presented the blessings of a 50 year sojourn in life together.

Mrs. Herman A. Klempel died very suddenly in the American Falls Hospital May 13 following an appendectomy. Funeral services were held here on May 15, with Rev. Phil. A. Wedel in charge. The body was then taken to Odessa, Washington, her former home, and the funeral service there was conducted by Rev. M. J. Galle, a former pastor of our church. Mrs. Klempel leaves to mourn, her husband and two sons 4 and 6 years old.

Baptismal services were held in our church on Pentecostal Sunday, when 10 girls and 10 boys gave their lives to the Lord. Each one was presented with a Bible and a Baptism Certificate in memory of this very important day. Holy Communion Services were held on June 4 with 256 members and friends taking part.

Our pastor, Rev. Phil. A. Wedel, is in Monroe, Washington, where he is presiding over the sessions of the Pacific District conference. G. A. Bartel and Junior Dirks are also attending the conference as delegates.—A group of our young people took part in the Eastern Idaho District Christian Endeavor Convention held at St. Anthony, Idaho. Marvin D. Linscheid of Aberdeen was the presiding officer. Henry D. Becker of Aberdeen is th newly elected president.

The church service on June 11 was in charge of Jim Brown, a young man from Ireland, and graduate of the Bible Institute at Los Angeles who has spent the past three summers in Aberdeen. His topic for the morning service was "Satan and the Bible" and in his discourse he brought out the point very forcibly that Satan was doing two things, namely, keeping the Bible away from the people and keeping the people away from the Bible.—John E. Toevs, Corr.

—Rev. A. W. Friesen, Henderson, Nebr., writes: We are home from the Conference at Freeman, S. D. The program could be rendered with a few changes. The messages by Missionary W. F. Unruh were well received. Rev Dirksen, Alsen, N. D.; C. B. Friesen, Mt. Lake, and Milton Preheim, S. D., stopped here on their way to Kansas. Mr. Preheim will work in the Kansas harvest. Have had some drenching rains recently, too late for small grain to make a fair crop. Hoppers are beginning to do damage. May it please the Lord in this matter according to Mal. 3:11. C. B. Friesen's Book Stand at the conference was quite a success. Why not have a representative at other District Conferences?

Thus Saith the Lord

(A 1939 Prophecy)

By Karl Baehr

And the Lord came unto me and said:
"Go prophecy unto the United States of America;
Go and declare unto her the truth concerning the order of things.
For she doth labor under awsome illusions
And doth put her trust in that which is not."

Thus saith the Lord:
"Woe unto thee, America—
Dost thou think that the democracy thou now hast is good;
That it is the attained fruit of brotherhood;
That it is the quintescence of the soul's search for truth;
And that all other governments are fashioned after the evil one—
Wanting in all that's good and noble and utterly devoid of My blessing?"

Thus saith the Lord;
Woe unto thee, America—
For thy false pride that acclaims perfection
And shouts scurrilous epithets of condemnation at thy neighbors;
For thy conceit that lauds thy achievements even unto the skies
And magnifies the evil that is thy neighbor's;
For thy purposive blindness to the fetid injustice of thy social system,
And thy noxious glossing over of the good that is thy neighbor's."

Thus saith the Lord:
"Woe unto thee, America—
For is it thy business to cast the evil from thy brother's eye
When thine own eye is cataracted with sloth and mire?
Canst thou rightfully despise and reject that which thou hast helped to create—
First by war, then by a nefarious treaty, not of peace, but of oppression and death,
And by thy abject refusal to help build a just world;
A world trusting in peaceful change and not in an impossible status quo?"

Thus saith the Lord:
"Woe unto thee, America—
Canst thou begrudge thy neighbors the right of a livelihood,
Monopolizing the markets and the raw materials of the world,
And by tariffs and embargoes refusing to give them the little thou wast wont to give?
Canst thou boast of My bounteous blessings to thee and use them for naught
But the oppression of the people beyond the seas,
And for the improvement of those within thy gates?"

Thus saith the Lord:
"Woe unto thee, America—
For within thy jurisdiction there is misery, want, and oppression!
Have I not given thee enough for all—grain, cotton, land, and gold—
Or why must the heavens be filled with lamentations:
Wailings from the starving, from the naked and cold, from those dispossessed of land and jobs;
Cries from the lynched, the hanged, and those whose spirits and mental health have been crushed?
Can this be America, the 'land of the free and the home of liberty and justice'?"

Thus saith the Lord:
"Woe unto thee, America—
For thou trustest not in Me but in armaments and war;
Thou hast no faith in thine own democracy, for thou preparest to overthrow it in order to preserve it;
Thou despisest truth and love and reliest on hate and violence!
Dost thou believe that that which is written into the order of things needs defense of arms
Or that which I have named good and true is not its own defense?
Oh, America, did I sent Christ in vain?"

Thus saith the Lord:
"Woe unto thee, America—
For thou dost make the pulpits of My prophets seats of mockery and sham
By compelling them to limit My truth to pious aphorisms and soporific compliments,
Stopping their mouths with gold, and driving the poor from My gates.

Knowest thou not that all the world is Mine—
That business and politics and all are subject to My truth,
And that My prophets are charged with the task of guiding all life into the channels of My will?"

Thus saith the Lord:
"Woe unto thee, America—
Destruction will befall thee and desolation will beset thy path
Unless thou returnest to My ways.
Thy pride and thy gold will be as chaff before Me;
Thy cities shall stand idle and the land shall refuse to produce
Unless thou returnest to My truth and to My justice and to My love!"
Hear, oh hear, America, the word of the Lord!

Questionnaire Results

Question No. 11 read: "Would you favor paying the editors and other staff members for their work on the paper?" Ten persons answered, "Yes". A qualified "Yes" was given by three, and one person answered, "No". Some comments were:

"If possible the editor should be paid. However, I would object to an overpaid staff."

"Yes, at least something."

"Editor-in-chief might deserve it. Others should volunteer to do their part gratis."

The date of the Western District C. E. Convention is not July 16th as given in the last issue. It is July 30th. The Retreat closes at noon on the 30th. This gives out-of-state visitors a good chance to attend the convention. Watch for the full program in the next issue.

Purpose of Meeting

This Sunday's topic brings to an end a series of three discussions centered around the theme of recreation. The first dealt with recreation as a means of enriching the personality and character, and the second with building up a social program in our church. This last discussion aims to show what riches are in store for the family who enjoy playing together, and how we might build a recreational program for our own homes.

As a recreational program in the home must necessarily be a give-and-take proposition, involving the cooperation of all the individuals of the family, it might add to the worth of the meeting to invite the parents of the group members to be guests and to give freely any suggestions they have.

Worship Service

1. Soft instrumental music to put the group into a listening, devotional spirit.
2. Hymns: "Take Time to be Holy", "Take My Life and Let It Be"
3. Reading of Scripture for the discussion topic
4. Let each person present give a short testimony on "How I might use my own leisure time to further the interests of the Kingdom of God."
5. Prayer
6. "Hymn: "A Charge to Keep I Have"

Leader's Introduction

It might be an error to say that twentieth century life has brought an entirely new problem as to how to spend leisure time. At least the problem is different from the one our grandparents had to solve. More leisure time plus less confining conventions plus an increase in ways and speed of getting about from place to place have enlarged the problem tremendously. Youth finds most of its fun outside the home. Already both time and money have been spent by improvement groups to determine whether this fun is wholesome and conducive to the healthy growth of body and soul. Thinking people have found cause for worry in the results of research into the problem.

Each individual family might well take time to study its own leisure time problem and to build up a system of playing together in the home. The results in genuine enjoyment, in mutual love and understanding, and in happy memories would be more than worth the thought, patience, and efforts involved. Edgar Guest expressed in his poem "Home" how much living and loving and playing together it takes to make a home:

It takes a heap o' livin' in a house t' make it home,
A heap o' sun an' shadder, an' ye sometimes have t' roam
Afore ye really 'preciate the things ye lef' behind,
An' hunger fer 'em somehow, with 'em allus on yer mind.
It don't make any differunce how rich ye get t' be,
It ain't home t' ye, though it be the palace of a king,
Until somehow yer soul is sort o' wrapped round everything.

Ye've got to sing an' dance fer years, ye've got t' romp an' play,
An' learn t' love the things ye have by usin' 'em each day;
Even the roses round the porch must blossom year by year
Afore they 'come a part o' ye, suggestin' someone dear
Who used t' love 'em long ago, and trained 'em just t' run
The way they do, so's they would get the early mornin' sun;

Ye've got to love each brick an' stone from cellar up
t' dome:
It takes a heap o' livin' in a house t' make it home.

What we enjoy doing at home

Let the leader write this on the blackboard and then let everyone present tell what he actually does for enjoyment in his own home, both individual and group activities. Quite a long list of activities should be put on the board.

Types of Home Activities—Suggested topics for talks:

1. Making the home attractive
2. Importance of hobbies
3. Making a central interest of music (family orchestra, "sings", going to concerts, etc.)
4. Taking family vacation trips
5. Handcrafts in the home
6. Making a collection (flowers, rocks, bottles, pencils, etc.)

Questions for Discussion

1. What does the Bible say concerning man's right to have a certain amount of leisure time for his own improvement and realxation?
2. When can the play spirit become a liability rather than an asset to an individual or a group?
3. What is the connection between the stewardship of our time and the development of a wholesome avocation or pastime?
5. Is our church doing what it should to help young people occupy their spare hours in a constructive way?

The Best of All

Blessed Bible, sacred treasure,
Precious book, of all the best,
There is comfort never failing,
And a calm abiding rest.
Read with reverence and commit it,
Verse by verse, and day by day;
'Tis the word that God has spoken,
And it cannot pass away.

Reading of Daily references

It will be very helpful to have the references for this topic read at this time so that all will have the benefit of hearing them. The Bible offers a wealth of all good types of literature and we want to strive to know it first of all. After the reading all should join wholeheartedlly in the singing of "Wonderful Words of Life"

Discussions of the best of these types. Well in advance of the meeting ask various members to discuss briefly the book which they have most enjoyed reading quite recently. Classify them on the board. We believe the following are the types which will most likely be mentioned: Biography, Hostory, Poetry, Hero stories, Fictional, Romantic tales, Travel, Adventure.

To be sure that all types will be discussed ask various members to report on one of the types. You may want to add others.

Informal discussion as to how we should select our books. Add suggestions from the group to the following:

1. Become familiar with the really good authors and be rather hesitant to accept new ones. However, be sure your criticism of an author is not too hasty and be willing to devote time to form your opinions.
2. Choose the type of book to which you will want to come again and again. Perhaps the members would like to mention some books which they have read more than once.
3. Choose those books which will supply our peculiar wants. Our interests are not always the same, therefore, the type of book we read should also vary.
4. Choose those books which awaken interest and thought. "The books that help you most, are those which make you think the most."
5. Choose those books which will help you think systematically along certain lines of interest.
6. Sometimes we need to choose books which furnish light and enjoyable reading. This is a fine means of recreation.
7. Choose books that will provide inspiration and devotion.
8. Choose books which will give us information that we need as Christian citizens.

"Choose an author as you would a friend."

GOD'S GIFT IN NATURE

Program for July 23, 1939

RAIN—Leviticus 26:4

I. Worship Service

1. Call to worship by quiet music.
2. "There Shall Be Showers of Blessing."
3. Prayer by Leader.
4. Scripture (responsively).

Leader: Jer. 10:10a—"But the Lord is the true God, He is the living God and our everlasting King."

Juniors: Jer. 10:12—"He hath made the earth by His power, He hath established the world by His wisdom, and hath stretched out the heavens by His discretion."

Leader: Jer. 10:13—"When he uttereth his voice, there is a multitude of waters in the heavens, and he causeth the vapours to ascend from the ends of the earth; He maketh lightnings with rain, and bringeth forth the wind out of his treasures."

Juniors: Joel 2:23—"Be glad then, ye children of Zion, and rejoice in the Lord your God: for he hath given you the former rain moderately, and he will cause to come down for you the rain, the former rain and the latter rain."

Leader: "And the floors shall be full of wheat, and the vats shall overflow with wine and oil."

Juniors: "And ye shall eat in plenty and be satisfied, and praise the name of the Lord your God, that hath dealt wondrously with you: and my people shall never be ashamed."

Leader: Isaiah 44:3—"For I will pour water upon him that is thirsty, and floods upon the dry ground. I will pour my spirit upon thy seed, and my blessing upon thy children.

In unison (verse of month): Ps. 104:24, "O Lord how manifold are thy works! in wisdom hast thou made them all; the earth is full of thy riches."

5. Song. We Plow the Fields and Scatter.

II. Mission Minutes:

1. The Missionary Alphabet (continued).

P—Proclaim liberty to the captives, and the opening of the prison to them that are bound. Isaiah 61:1.

Q—Quietly wait for the salvation of the Lord. Lamentations 3:26.

R—Return unto the Lord, and He will have mercy. Isaiah 55:7.

S—Speak . . . all the words I command thee, . . . diminish not a word. Jeremiah 26:2.

T—The King's business required haste. 1 Samuel 21:8.

2. Tell something about the hospitals on our Mission fields. What can we do for them?

III. Study Period: Aim: To help the Juniors realize the importance of the gift of rain and to encourage a spirit of thankfulness and gratitude. (Cut umbrellas from paper. Write upon each a Bible verse about rain. Hand these Bible verses to each child to be read aloud. They may be pinned on to take home).

1. Duet: "Summer Suns are Glowing"—M. H. B., p. 394.
2. A Junior tell the story found in 1 Kings 17:1-16; 1 Kings 18:1, 2, 41-45; Acts 14:17; James 5:17, 18.
3. "The Gift of Rain." Leviticus 26:4, a three minute talk by an older person.
4. Reading of Bible verses. Suggested verses are: Gen. 2:5; Gen. 7:12; 8:2; Lev. 26:4; Deut. 11:14; Deut. 28:12; 1 Sam. 12:18; Job. 5:10; Job 37:6; Job 38:26; Job 38:28; Ps. 68:9; Ps. 135:7; Ps. 147:7, 8; Ecc. 11:3a; Songs of Solomon 2:11; Isaiah 30:23a; Jer. 10:13; Jer. 5:24; Zech. 10:1; Matt. 5:45; Heb. 6:7.
5. Song 202, M. H. B.
6. Heart talk by leader: As God sends us rain to refresh us, to feed and clothe us, so He sends spiritual blessings that we may be strong. We must thank Him for these blessings too.
7. Closing prayer by leader.
8. Sing song for the month: "O Worship the King, All Glorious Above." v. 1, 2, 3.

THE CRYSTAL CHRIST

How peerless Christ appears with the passing of time! It has been said that He was the world's most perfect man. But as we view the world leaders produced by our own and recent ages, we are inclined to bring the declaration into the present tense, and say that He is the world's best and hence its greatest man.

When He was here He won universal approval as to His character. "I find no fault in him," was the word of one who was perfectly willing to expose a fault, had there been one to uncover. "Innocent blood" was the justifying word for Christ by a man who would rather justify his own evil deed.

"Holy, harmless, undefiled, separate from sinners"—the ages have repeated, and century after century through nearly two millenniums have joined the refrain, He is the pure, strong Son of God.

Four centuries ago, a brilliant French bishop was asked to write a history of France. His reply was, "I love my sovereigns too well to write their lives." Not so with Christ. Critic, skeptic, and cynic eventually must admit not only His blamelessness but His faultlessness. How glorious that even after all the prying eyes of the unsympathetic centuries He should still be the crystal Christ!—Moody Monthly.

CORRESPONDENCE

FIRST MENN. CHURCH, BERNE, IND., 6-26-39

Tramp, tramp, tramp, to the Summer Bible School, has been the order of the day for the almost 400 children of Berne the last five weeks, as they have been wending their way to the old school house for a course in Bible study and memory work. This is the closing week, with the public program and commencement exercises on Thursday evening in the First Mennonite Church. At this time 37 diplomas will be awarded to those completing the course, as prepared and outlined by Dr. Latham.

The final activity, however, and not the least important to the children, takes place on Friday in the form of a picnic in Lehman Park, and already the children are smacking their lips in anticipation of the two or more ice cream cones apiece which they are promised on that occasion. Ah, we were once children, too!

Perhaps a word about the school would be of interest, to such especially who have not yet conducted a similar school. This school is composed of children 5 to 14 years of age inclusive, from the different churches in Berne, with ten grades including Kindergarten. The managing personnel is composed of a Superintendent, who is Dr. C. H. Suckau, twelve teachers including the pastors from the various churches, an office girl, and the drivers who transport the country children two and from the school. As to the expense, the average cost per child is estimated and apportioned to each church according to the number of children sent. Each church thus meets the assigned quota and in this manner the expenses are easily taken care of. This method has proved efficient and satisfactory.

We have at present in our midst Rev. and Mrs. Alfred Habegger from Montana and Rev. and Mrs. S. T. Moyer from India. The Habeggers will speak and show pictures of their Montana work in the church on Wednesday, and on Sunday, July 2, there will be a farewell service for the Moyers. At their request the choir will sing the chorus, "The Heavens are Telling" from "Creation," and the number will thus be dedicated to them. We are especially happy to have these friends with us, as Mrs. Moyer and Mrs. Habegger are both former Berns girls and members of our church.—Corr.

MENN. MEMORIAL CHURCH, ALTOONA, PA.

Sunday, May 28, we had baptismal services. Six boys and girls were baptized and five of them received into the church.—Rev. H. A. Fast from North Newton, Kansas, had charge of the services on Sunday night, June 5, and also Tuesday night, June 7. His messages on the work of the Mennonite churches were much enjoyed and were uplifting.

Some of our men and boys have again been quite busy improving the appearance of the church property by putting up a new fence. A fine spirit and willingness was shown in doing the work and the boys seemed to enjoy their opportunity to help.

A group from our church attended the joint meeting of the Ladies' Aid Societies of the four western churches which was held at Roaring Springs, Pa., on June 8. An interesting program was carried out and a great blessing received.

We were very happy to have with us both a Home and Foreign missionary. On Sunday night June 11, Mr. Fred McGinnis talked about their work in the Kentucky mountains and on Monday night, June 12, Mrs. S. T. Moyer spoke on the work in India. Both messages were inspiring. Mrs. Moyer also spoke to the boys and girls in our Bible School on Tuesday morning.

A two weeks Bible School came to a close June 23, with an interesting program. Our enrollment was fifty-three and our lowest attendance was forty-six.

FIRST MENN. CHURCH, NEWTON, KANS.

Dear Editor and Readers of the Mennonite: We thank God, that our Editor was able to leave the Hospital, God bless him in his work.—On Sunday, June 4, Dr. Warkentin preached the preparatory sermon for the Lord's Supper. In the afternoon and evening, our people attended the Mennonite Song Festival at Bethel College Kidron Park. Between 3000 and 4000 listeners and about 600 singers were there. Sunday, June 11, we had Communion Service, while the children had worship in the basement in three classes with competent leaders. The Communion service lead by our pastor, Rev. J. E. Entz, was very solemn and well attended, many partook of the sacred emblems. In the afternoon six Sisters of the Bethel Deaconess Hospital were ordained in our church. It was a beautiful, solemn service, led by Rev. J. E. Entz. Dr. Warkentin spoke in German and Dr. Lohrentz in English.—The Vacation Bible school commenced with two teachers and about 50 pupils.

Thursday evening, June 15, Rev. and Mrs. Entz had invited all the young people to their home for the annual Young Peoples Social. Dr. John Warkentin of Chicago gave an excellent short address, so fitting for the occasion. Almost two hundred young people were present. Sunday, June 18, in the evening, the annual Sunday School Picnic was held at the Kidron Park on the Bethel College campus. Wednesday evening, June 21, Rev. Beldon from London, England, spoke in our church. Sunday, following, one of our young men, Willard K. Claassen, who has finished his theological course, preached well for us. The congregation granted the request of the young brother to ordain him for the ministry; he having accepted a call from the Roaring Spring congregation, Pennsylvania.

On Friday evening, June 30, the Vacation Bible School had its closing program in the basement. The children gave a very good program, English and German, singing and reciting of Bible passages. The program was pretty well attended. It was an honor for the teachers and for the pupils.

God bless you all! Fraternally, Your old Correspondent.

IN MEMORIAM

MRS. ANNA KAUFMANN STUCKY was born in Russia on September 6, 1859. The family came to the United States when Anna was 8 years of age. They lived at Bluffton, Ohio, for a short time and then moved to Moundridge after which they settled at Pretty Prairie, Kansas. She was baptized at Pretty Prairie and remained a member of the First Mennonite Church there until her death. She was married to Joseph P. Stucky, who preceded her in death. After the death of her husband, she made her home with her children in Kansas until three years ago when she went to Monroe, Washington, where she lived witn her daughter, Mrs. Rudolph Stucky and family. Soon after the latter moved to Reedley last fall the mother followed them here and made her home with them until her death on June 21, 1939, having attained the age of 79 years, 9½ months.

Mother Stucky leaves six children, fifteen grandchildren, and fourteen great grandchildren. Of her children, two, Benjamin B. and Mrs. John Schwartz live in the State of Washington, three, Rudolph, Edward, and Mrs. Ida Albrecht live at Pretty Prairie, and Mrs. Rudolph Stucky at Reedley.

Peace I leave with you, My peace I give unto you; not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid. John 14:27.

PETER RATZLAFF was born in South Russia, in the village of Kleefeld, on November 2, 1862. In 1878 he came to America with his parents, Benjamin and Helena Regier Ratzlaff, 3 brothers, Bernhard, Johann and Abraham, and one sister Justina. One sister died in Russia a short while prior to their immigration to America. All now have passed away except Bernhard who is 86 years old.

Brother Ratzlaff was a member of the Bethesda Church. He was baptized on June 29, 1884, by Wm. Ewert of Kansas. On June 27, 1887, he was united in marriage to Katharina Mierau, who died in 1922, at the age of 54 years. This union was blessed with 14 children, 8 of whom died in infancy and early childhood.

When the town of Henderson was laid out, he was the first one to start a business, and served the town in that capacity for 52 years. His sons and daughters are still running the business. He himself was active until 3 years ago.

His last illness was less than of a week's duration. One day he seemed somewhat better, but the next day things took a decided turn. He passed away Tuesday, June 13, 1939, at 2:50 o'clock in the morning, to be with the Lord.

He is survived by 3 daughters, Helen, Elizabeth (Mrs. P. B. Buller) and Marie, three sonse, Abraham P., Jacob P., and Dietrich P.; one son-in-law, P. B. Buller, two daughters-in-law, and four grandchildren, Maxine, RaGene, and Patricia, children of Abr. P., and Anna Janzen, and Neal Stanley, son of Dietrich P. and Marie Friesen.—He attained an age of 76 years, 7 months, and 14 days.

CORNELIUS P. FROESE was born June 23, 1871, in South Russia. In 1875 he came to America with his parents and the rest of the family, and settled near Buhler. He received his elementary education in Reno County, and later attended college at Salina, Kansas.

Upon his confession of faith, he received holy baptism, Sept. 13, 1891, by Rev. Bernhard Buhler and joined the Hebron Church. He taught school for a few years and then was in the creamery business in Pretty Prairie. On Nov. 23, 1897, he was joined in holy matrimony with Anna Stucky. Their home was blessed with two children, Arthur and Harry. They moved to Buhler where the mother died Feb. 19, 1907. Harry preceded her in death, in childhood.—In 1908 he was married to Hulda Voth and this marriage was blessed with two children, Eldon and Florence. For 10 years he was postmaster at Buhler, then an automobile dealer, and lastly he was employed by the State of Kansas for 8 years.

Soon after he retired, his health began to fail. Asthma took such a strong hold on him and continued the rest of his life. In 1937 he underwent a major operation which proved to be successful but left him in a very weak condition. When we were in hopes of his recovery, hardening of the Arteries set in and again there was a struggle for life. He often expressed his wish that some day he would be well again. This wish was expressed one week before his death. Even though he desired to live, his mind was taken up with thoughts of heavenly things, and he often wondered whom he would meet there. Always being concerned about his family, his greatest desire was that we would some day meet.

In lieu of the fact that his illness was of a serious nature, he was more or less contented and patient, and always a loving father and although he was confined to his bed the last year, he was never in pain.

On June 15, he became critically ill and soon was in a coma. Three days before his 68th birthday, on Tuesday, June 20, 1939, at 4:26 p.m., he was called to his heavenly home.

Although his earthly home was dear to him, he left it for a better home which was prepared for him. He leaves to mourn his departure, his wife, 2 sons, Arthur of Reedley, Cal., and Eldon of Buhler; 1 daughter, Mrs. Dave Ediger and three grandchildren; five brothers, Abraham, David, Bernhard, Peter and Jacob; two sisters, Mrs. P. H. Adrian and Mrs. Adolf Janzen of Orland, Cal., and other relatives and friends.

Funeral services were conducted by the Rev. T. A. van der Smissen of the Hebron church.

General Conference Publications

Christian Sunday School Quarterly

This quarterly is written for Senior Young People's and Adult classes. Each lesson contains (1) Light on the Lesson, Past and Present, (2) Thoughts from the Text, (3) Questions and Problems for Discussion, (4) Practical Notes and Illustrations. The quarterly is meeting with favor everywhere and many new orders are received with every new quarter.

Intermediate Christian Sunday School Quarterly

For a long time many Sunday Schools of the General Conference have felt the need of Our Own lesson quarterly for the classes in the Intermediate Department. Such a quarterly is now available. It is the new Intermediate Christian Quarterly. The first issue of this quarterly was printed for the second quarter of this year, and many of those who have used it speak very highly of its contents. Close to 3000 copies were sold and, no doubt, many more S. S. will want to order it for the remaining quarters of the year.

Suntagschul-Lektionen

This quarterly is published in German, except that the text is printed in both, English and German for easy comparison.

Reasons Why These Quarterlies Should Find Their Way Into The Sunday Schools of Our General Conference Churches

1. They are General Conference publications, prepared under the auspices of the Board of Education and published by the Board of Publication of the General Conference.
2. They are prepared by an efficient editorial staff which is able to produce a quarterly that can compare favorably with any other quarterly on the Market.
3. The International Lessons are used, and the exposition is in harmony with Mennonite views and principles.
4. The price is not higher than most other Intermediate and Adult quarterlies of equal rank and quality.

If your S. S. is not using these quarterlies we Invite You To Give Them A Trial.

SPIRITUAL AMNESIA.—Amnesia is a strange disease. It is the loss of memory, more prevalent in this day of a confused world than ever before. A person seized by this malady suddenly forgets all his past, familiar faces, scenes, surroundings. And, having no mental anchor, he is apt to wander away, often hard to find. Also in some cases it is difficult to nurse him back to a healthful condition. Physical amnesia is a tragic disease, but far more terrible is spiritual amnesia, a disease to which worshippers of the true God are fatefully subject. It was so with the people of Israel. God's constant complaint against this chosen people was, that they had forgotten Him. "Thou hast forgotten the God that gave thee birth—the God of thy salvation." "My people have forgotten me days without number." Is that not also true with our beloved America? To the religious persecuted of Europe God opened this fair land of ours, that flowed not only with milk and honey but with almost every other product of nature. Here they started a new nation, founded on the Bible and on a life of worship of the true God. Where are we today? Are we wrong when we say that the great majority of our people have forgotten this true God and are worshipping scores of other gods. Our boast is that we are the greatest and most powerful nation in the world. Are we? Is a nation that is not living up to God's will and purpose truly great? God taught Israel that it was not, and severe punishment was its fate. Can we expect better treatment, once his patience with us is exhausted? Sin, crime, shame, wickedness go rampant before our eyes. Has God changed? No! He has drawn a line that cannot be erased. On this side lovingkindness, peace, prosperity, on that, death and destruction. And this beloved country of ours cannot escape the fate of Israel, unless we quit our evil ways and take the road back to God. May He in His mercy succeed in wooing us to do this ere it is too late!—T.

ALWAYS OBEY THE GOVERNMENT? The Bible enjoins us, "Let every soul be in subjection to the higher powers (the government); for there is no power but of God," Rom. 13:1. Also, "we must obey God rather than men," Acts 5:29. Faithful Christians always had more or less of a struggle to find their way through life between these two commands. In true democracies, where the people have representative self-government, it should not be difficult for Christians to obey the powers that be, unless they show unchristian leanings. Yet, even under a government with good intentions obedience may become exceedingly difficult. How tragic it was in 1917, when the government led us into the European war to save democracy, when most of our people, had they been left unpropagandized, would have voted to stay out, which would have been the part of wisdom, as experience has since shown. The founders of our country have wisely divided the government into three departments, each a check on the other, to prevent undue overstepping of powers, with Congress as the law-making or initiative power. During the past few years more than ever attempts have been made by the executive branch to reach beyond its prerogatives, the one of particularly vital effect on us being the recent effort to annull the neutrality law, with its embargo on the sale of arms to nations at war. In view of such attempts one wonders whether such assumed power is of God, and whether God will judge us Christians adversely, if we use our influence to counteract any attempt that is not for the best of our welfare as viewed from the Christian point of view. Should we not at this time array ourselves with the 34 senators against the repeal of the neutrality law and write the senators generally that we stand back of them?—T.

AN HONEST EPITAPH

There was once a man who insisted that he have an honest epitaph on his tombstone, and he suggested just what he wanted.

It was: "Born—a human being; died—a wholesale grocer."

When he was informed that such inscription needed exegesis, he replied:

"I was so busy selling groceries that I did not have time to get married and have a family. There was a whole area of life crowded out by the grocery business. I was so busy selling groceries I did not have time to travel, even though I had the money. I was so busy selling groceries I did not have time for the drama, for lectures, for concerts, for reading.

"I was so busy selling groceries I did not have time for community service—religious, social, political. All these areas of life were pushed out by the grocery business. I was successful. I became a wholesaler. But I was so busy making a living, I never had time to live."—Clyde E. Wildmer in The Living Church.

Building A United Conference

Conference Address of Fifty-first Middle District Conference, held at Bluffton, Ohio, June 19, 1939

Prof. E. J. Hirschler

At the opening of this conference session it might be appropriate for us as conference workers to think together upon the general theme: Building a United Conference, for the need of a greater unity of the spirit cannot fail to be evident to all of us.

The scriptural basis for our meditation shall be the letter of Paul to the Ephesians, in particular Eph. 4:1-4: "I, therefore, the prisoner in the Lord, beseech you to walk worthily of the calling, wherewith ye were called, with all lowliness and meekness, with long suffering, forbearing one another in love; giving diligence to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace." These words were written as an exhortation to the Ephesian church, but for our present purpose they may be interpreted as a four-fold admonition for our conference brotherhood to become loyal and active followers of the Lord Jesus Christ, characterized by meekness and humility toward God, and by forbearance and genuine love toward the brethren and finally by an earnest endeavor to build a conference united as one body in a spiritual unity with Christ, the Head of the church. For the sake of comparison we shall also quote the cognate passage from the related epistle to the Colossians: Col. 3:12-15: "Put on therefore as God's elect, holy and beloved, a heart of compassion, kindness, lowliness, meekness, long suffering; forbearing one another, and forgiving each other, if any man have a complaint against any; even as the Lord forgave you, so also do ye; and above all these things put on love which is the bond of perfectness. And let the peace of God rule in your hearts to which also ye were called in one body; and be ye thankful."

In applying this most excellent advice of the apostle we are taking it for granted that our Conference desires to build upon the only sure foundation, as is so well expressed in Eph. 2:19-22: "So then ye are no more strangers and sojourners, but ye are fellow citizens with the saints and of the household of God, being built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Christ himself being the chief corner-stone, in whom each several building, fitly framed together, groweth into a holy temple in the Lord in whom ye also are builded together, for a habitation of God in the Spirit." In this connection it might be worthy of recall that the early Anabaptists or Swiss Brethren desired to establish a holy church, built upon the Apostolic model and upon the only sure foundation as is so well expressed in Menno Simon's motto taken from 1 Cor. 3:11. "For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Jesus Christ."

However, we desire to build upon this secure foundation a structure not of hay or stubble, but of costly stones and silver and gold which will stand the test of tribulation and persecution. This is possible only if we are strengthened by the power of God to do his will.

I. The first one of the fourfold admonitions of our text reads: "I therefore the prisoner of the Lord beseech you to walk worthily of the calling wherewith ye are called."

What is the calling which comes to us as a conference? Let Paul answer in Eph. 1:4-7. "Even as he chose us in him before the foundation of the world that we should be holy and without blemish before him in love, having foreordained us into adoption as sons through Jesus Christ unto himself, according to the good pleasure of his will, to the praise of the glory of his grace, which he freely bestowed on us in the Beloved, in whom we have our redemption through his blood, the forgiveness of our trespasses, according to the riches of his grace." In Col. 3:12, the apostle tells us we are God's elect, holy and beloved, called in one body.

It thus appears, that even as the apostles we are called to be followers of the Lord Jesus Christ and sons of God, born into the kingdom and acceptable unto the Lord, as becometh those who are redeemed by his precious blood and have received the forgiveness of our sins.

This is the calling of which our christian walk is to be worthy. The christian life is not a reserved seat in an overstuffed chair, nor a ride in a luxury sedan but a strenuous walk in the footsteps of the Master with our loins girt about with truth. In Eph. 2:10 we read: "For we are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus for good works, which God afore prepared that we should walk in them and again in Col. 3:6-7: "As therefore ye received the Lord Jesus Christ, so walk in him, rooted and builded up in him, and established in your faith even as ye were taught, abounding in thanksgiving." In Col. 1:9-14 we read: "For this cause we also since the day we heard it, do not cease to pray and make request for you, that ye may be filled with the knowledge of his will in all spiritual wisdom and understanding, to walk worthily of the Lord unto all pleasing, bearing fruit in every good work and increasing in the knowledge of God, strengthened with all power according to the might of his glory unto all patience and long-suffering with joy, giving thanks unto the Father who made us meet to be partakers of the inheritance of the saints in the light, who delivered us out of the power of darkness and translated us into the kingdom of the Son of his love, in whom we have our redemption, the forgiveness of our sins." We are to bring forth the fruits of the Spirit. According to Gal. 5:23-25 the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, meekness, self control." It is only as we walk in close fellowship with Christ that our lives may bear fruit in every good work and thus give proof of the genuineness of our faith.

All this is in complete harmony with the conceptions of our early Mennonite forefathers who believed that we should be perfect as our heavenly Father is perfect and that we should live a holy life as God's elect. They took the sermon on the mount as the guide of their living in this present generation and did not apply it merely to some remote future time as some Bible students have done.

The constitution of our Middle District Conference tells us that we are to be united into one working body in order to strengthen and establish each other by mutual instructions and admonitions from the word of God, to fellowship together as becometh members of the body of Christ and to establish the kingdom of God, both in the home land and the foreign field. As means to this end we enter jointly in promoting home missions, foreign missions, christian education, publication of christian literature, hospitals and homes for the sick and needy relief to those in distress and to promote peace and good will among ourselves and our fellowmen as taught by our Lord and Savior. First of all our loyalty should be to Christ himself, but we should also be loyal to our own missions, publications, educational institutions and relief projects. Only after we have done this to the best of our ability should we support other projects not taken over by our own churches or conference. Strange to say the work of others has often appeared more inviting than our own, so that we have not supported our own institutions as we should have done.

II. Paul's second admonition in our basic passage is that we walk with all lowliness and meekness. Even the prophet Micah, in the old Testament tells us in ch. 6:8: "He hath showed thee, O man, what is good and what doth Jehovah require of thee but to do justly and to walk humbly with thy God."

The basis of the humility of the Christian is always a clear perception of the holiness and the majesty of God. In the light of this perception man finds his own place at the feet of the Master even as Isaiah perceived his own unclean lips and unworthiness, when he saw the thrice holy God sitting on a throne surrounded by the seraphim and as Peter saw his own sinfulness in the presence of the matchless love and the challenging call of Christ at the lake. Viewing the Christ in the beauty of his holiness we humbly find our own place as followers of him who counted not the being on an equality with God as a thing to be grasped, but emptied himself taking the form of a servant, being made in the likeness of man, he humbled himself becoming obedient unto death, yea, the death on the cross (Phil. 2:6-8). Christ himself said: "The meek shall inherit the earth." In like manner, it is only as we walk humbly with our God that we can cherish and maintain our distinctive Mennonite heritage of a vital Christian faith and life.

III. The third admonition of Paul concerns the attitude of the church worker toward his fellow laborers in the Lord. This should be one of forbearance and longsuffering in love as we read in Eph. 4:2. May we also quote Col. 3:13: "forbearing one another and forgiving each other, if any man have a complaint against any, even as the Lord forgave you, so also do ye and above all these things, put on love, which is the bond of perfection."

Probably it is inevitable that one conference worker may at times have a complaint against another, for we are all human and fail manifoldly, but let each one be sure that before he attempts to pull the mote out of his brother's eye, he first pulls the beam out of his own eye and above all let us love our brother as ourselves. We are too often prone to point an accusing finger at our brother and to place labels upon him which imply his adherence to some "ism." Would it not be more in accord with the spirit of Christ first to try to understand his viewpoint, even when it does not quite agree with our own, and then to speak to him in love. Perhaps we may find that he has caught some emphasis that we have failed to see so clearly. Even if our fellowworker be at fault, let us exercise patience and forbearance and forgive each other as Christ forgave us, remembering that even God can not forgive our trespasses, unless we forgive those who trespass against us. The acid test for a conference worker is that he love his brother, for love is the bond of perfectness. "Blest be the tie that binds our hearts in christian love, the fellowship of kindred minds is like to that above."

IV. The fourth exhortation to our conference worker is that we strive diligently toward unity of spirit. If we desire to build a united conference it must be a spiritual unity for which we are working and not a unity of the letter, for the letter killeth but the spirit giveth life (2 Cor. 3:6).

The time may never come when all of us will think exactly alike on all details of doctrine or all adhere to exactly the same forms and ritual, indeed that would not be desirable. Would it not be a monotonous conference, if there were no opportunity for exchange of varied opinions and all merely reiterated the views of some bishop or ecclesiastical dictator. However, it is essential that all differences of opinion be expressed in love and humility.

But neverthless we are to become one in mind and spirit as the apostle Paul expresses it so well in the classic passage from Phil. 2:2-8: "Make full my joy that ye be of the same mind, having the same love being of one accord, of one mind, doing nothing through faction or vainglory, but in lowliness of mind each counting the other better than himself, not looking each of you to his own things but each of you also to the things of others. Have this mind in you which was also in Christ Jesus, who existing in the form of God counted not the being on an equality with God a thing to be grasped, but emptled himself taking the form of a servant, made in the likeness of men and being found in fashion as a man he humbled himself becoming obedient even unto death, yea, the death on the cross."

It is clear that if we are ever to become of one mind, it will not be my mind or your mind but the mind of Christ; and what is the mind of Christ? It is one of lowliness, unselfishness and obedience to God, prompted by love, and a willingness to serve and follow the Master in carrying our cross. Such unity can not be attained in a day nor can it be maintained without constant watching and prayer.

HOME MISSIONS

A. J. NEUENSCHWANDER, Secretary

ROSEMARY, ALBERTA.

Members of the Home Mission Board and All Mission Friends:

With gratefulness to the Lord, I am able to report that He has kept me in good health and that He has given me joy and courage to look after my Mission work in the New Year.

Both months, January and February are filled up with Bible Study Conferences in various places. It is a joy to be able to say that these meetings are well attended by young and old. Especially our young people manifest a real interest and take an active part in the discussion. Almost without exception, the meeting place is always filled.

In my visitation work, I do not overlook those that live in isolated places. This gives time and opportunity for "seelsorge."

During the month of March the plan is that I should be mostly in my own church, and work definitely with our young people. In addition the Lord's Supper is to be administered in several places.

May the Lord bless you, dear Members of the Board, in your work. It is a joy to have been able to learn to know you personally, and I often think of you with deep gratitude.

With cordial greetings from your co-laborer in Christ's vineyard.

C. D. Harder.

Good luck has been found in trying to make good in every possible way, while never taking advantage of others.

An Important Letter

655 S. Lorraine Ave., Wichita, Kans., July 2.

Dear Mission Friends:

For some time and repeatedly, I have been asked by ministers as well as laymen to present a matter that is so close to my heart, to the readers of our church papers. To save time I shall do so in outline form.

How the Work Started

1. Through the police force we found the neediest area.

2. One evening at our prayer meeting in Nov. 1937, I threw out the challenge: "Are you seeking for a thrill, a supreme joy in life, then go out and find someone in need and minister to that need. Do not wait until they call upon you." A number accepted the challenge and we went with them.

3. We contacted several families in need and helped them. Through these families we were thrown into contact with the principal of the Stanley School, Miss Gregory. She told us of the needy families in her school.

4. I was asked to speak to the P. T. A. regarding my experience with the underprivileged people in Chicago. Through this the chairman of the Relief Committee of one of the churches of this area asked us to help them with their relief program in the church and community.

5. The findings were reported to our church papers and as a result much clothing was sent in, food and money also was sent in for this work. With the aid of the deacons we carried on. We worked in and through that church in the needy area and helped take care of its members. We constantly urged them to attend some church, but if they had no church home we urged them to make that their church home, since help came from there. Very few persons knew that the Mennonite Church was back of all this work.

6. As soon as enough clothing was sent in we took care of our people of our Mennonite church and the rest was taken to the church in that area and with the aid of four school principals the needs were supplied. At one time we supplied 185 individuals with clothing in one day.

7. Since they did not want us to work in their church, this church through which we were working developed internal strife. They told me that the people with whom we are working are too dirty for their church and they could not support the church with finances as they should. We then left the church a year ago and now we meet in a double garage (18'x24') at the Warfield home.

8. They continued calling for a Sunday School for their families and so we started with an enrollment of over 80. The attendance dropped during the summer months.

9. Through Dr. Warkentin and Mrs. Phillips of Bethel College, students were sent out to help carry on the work Saturdays. (Our community meeting now is Monday nights and our S. S. on Sunday at 2:30 at the Warfield home at 1116 Merton St.). Some visitation was done, singing conducted, sewing class, educational and entertaining programs were rendered. This was a splendid help.

10. So much food comes in now. The other day we got 12 bushels of beans. Too much for immediate use. The problem of a canning project was raised and we are at present working on that. The problem of cooperative buying also came up.

11. At present I am a sort of a pastor, lawyer, judge, doctor and counselor to those people in this vast area.

What is Needed on This Field

1. A building to carry on the work, to serve as a community building and a church.

2. A man and a woman to devote their full time to this work which is so challenging and so promising. We must let up or a break in our health will come. In three months' time I have had only one evening with my family. I am at present averaging less than 6 hours of sleep daily.

3. An old truck with which to haul our foods and carry on the relief work. The Graber brothers of the Graber Auto Salvage Co., have offered to furnish us with repairs for the truck. They also gave us a gristmill with which we grind flour for these people.

Our Problem

We never dreamed that the work would grow into what it did or we might not have had enough nerve to undertake it. It was a gradual and natural growth.

Now what shall we do? It is too much we can not handle it?

1. Shall we drop the work leaving those people stranded, the people who have learned to love and trust us?

2. Shall we turn the work over to another denomination?

3. We presented it to the Home Mission Committee of the Western District Conference and found that they are interested in the work. They are, however, limited by a provision in the District Conference constitution. The constitution states that they shall work with the scattered Mennonites in this district. They referred this matter to the Home Mission Board of the General Conference. The members of the board are scattered and are not intimately enough acquainted with the work here. What now can be done? Brother P. H. Richert and other has suggested that I frankly state my problem in our church papers and see what can be done. They suggested a possible solution to this problem: The General Conference undertake this work and ask the Home Mission Committee of the Western District to supervise it. A number of ministers of larger churches have told me not to let this work die, but that they would help finance the work through their congregations. It is however, more than finances that we need.

4. What shall we do? Here are hundreds upon hundreds that are unchurched, underprivileged and apparently a downtrodden people who are looking to us for their salvation. One of the geatest laboratories for our students to work in while they are preparing for Christian service, giving them an opportunity to be actively engaged in bringing in the Kingdom of God.

5. Here is a people who have followed a shepherd, the shepherd found the flock too large, shall he turn them out and leave them to their own fate, or shall we seek additional help to shepherd the flock? What shall we do? We earnestly pray that God may direct every action in regard to this work. It is His and for His cause.—Yours in His service, Edward D. Schmidt.

Ordination Service

The Lord willing, the ordination to the holy office of the Gospel ministry of brother Willard K. Claassen will take place in his home church, the First Mennonite Church of Newton, Kansas, on Sunday, July 23. The services are to begin at 10:30 A. M.

Brother Claassen has accepted a call to the Roaring Spring Mennonite Church of Central Pennsylvania.

We solicit your prayers for the brother who assumes so great a responsibility and invite all who can to come and share in the blessings of the service.

J. E. Entz, Pastor.

A Heavy Blow

Most of the readers will have read of the hard blow which the Friends University in Wichita recently received by being stricken from the recognized list of the North Central Association. And why was this done? Not because the school does not do as good work as heretofore, or because the teachers are not good enough, but simply because the income of the school was not up to the standard set by the association.

By great effort Bethel College succeeded last year to get on the accredited list. This was, next to the good administration, largely due to the "Fellowship" gifts of the last three years, which ran from $25,000 to $47,000 a year. This year not much over $4,000 has come in so far, largely because the Fellowship committees in the churches decided to postpone their work till after harvest. Since the school year closes August 1, only about three more weeks are left for this work. But the harvest will be over in a few days, and threshing also soon, if the weather cntinues as now. So it is to be hoped that the last two weeks of this month will be used for this work.

While we cannot justify the hard blow mentioned, we must figure with it also for Bethel, unless our efforts continue especially by the fellowship help. One of our churches years ago passed a resolution to give 50 cents to $2.00 per member every year for Bethel. While this may not be possible every year, in years like this it is possible, except perhaps where hail did much damage.

Our Western District Conference has now over 11,000 members. If all would pay the average of one half to two dollars a year it would amount to about $14,000 a year. This together with the increased industrial efforts for self help and some larger gifts from the well-to-do, should soon make our standing on the list secure.

In our county (Marion) the Council for Religious Education has asked me to push the matter of more Bible in the public schools. This will require, first of all, more teachers who have had a course in Bible. State schools do not give this. Our school will have to do that. We must have more teachers who love to pray and to tell Bible stories to the pupils, or read the Bible with them and sing the gospel songs every morning. For such teachers 50 cents to 2.00 per member is not too much. In Russia our brethren had to support 300 young men entirely in the forest service year in and year out. That was still more expensive, and was not worth as much as a Christian college education.

Out of love for our school children, who must have Christian teachers.

P. H. Richert.

JEHOSHAPHAT: A LIFE OF OBEDIENCE

2 Chron. 17:1-6, 9-12

TOPIC: Reasons For Obedience

Introduction.

Jehoshaphat, son of Asa and fourth king of Judah, was one of her great kings. His reign of twenty-five years was a time of much religious activity. A religious spirit pervaded the whole of his life. His name means "Jehovah judges" and he recognized Him as judging. The key thought of our lesson is obedience to God. Because He is our Creator, Preserver and Ruler of the universe, we are under obligations to obey Him. He has instituted both a moral and a physical order in the world. He has a right to issue commands which we are bound to obey. Jehoshaphat, the king, recognized his obligation to God and also sought to secure his people's obedience to God. How different in the dictator nations today. In Russia, Germany and Italy, the state assumes the place of God as supreme authority over every department of the lives of its people.

The Lord was with Jehoshaphat vs. 1-6.

Jehoshaphat recognized Israel, the northern kingdom, as a probable threat to the peace and safety of Judah. He strengthened the border defenses. He garrisoned the "fenced" (walled) cities of Judah, and the cities which his father had taken from Israel (15:8). The Lord was with him (v3). Five reasons for this are given in verses three and four. He sought the Lord God, "walked in his commandments" and worshipped Him. Baal worship was uprooted. His religion was undefiled and God blessed him, established the kingdom firmly in his hand (v5). If we do as Jehoshaphat did, we shall see our work established in our hands. His integrity and uprightness won for him the favor of the people, honor and riches. His heart was filled with an intense enthusiasm for the worship and service of the Lord (v6).

Jehoshaphat's Reformation Permanent vs 9-12

He inaugurated a program of religious instruction for the people, the wisest possible means to make his reformation premanent (v9). He appointed princes and Levites (vs 7, 8) to be teachers and these he sent out to teach the people the laws of God (v9). The results of this great biblical revival are stated in verses 10 and 11. Judah enjoyed peace and quiet for the nations recognized the Lord as a God of power who was blessing Judah and her king. Nations usually have a wholesome respect for a righteous and God-loving people. He became one of the greatest of Judah's kings and his greatness had a spiritual foundation. He recognized obedience to God as a primary obligation.

Jehoshaphat enjoyed the temporal rewards of his obedience (v5). These rewards are as real today. Christ says so in the Golden Text (Matt. 6:23). Obeying the laws of God promotes our temporal welfare, physically, mentally and fniancially.

The spiritual rewards are more important still. There is an exaltation of soul (v6) experienced by the one who walks in the paths of God. There is peace with God and joy in the heart and effectiveness in prayer.

The eternal rewards are the most important of all. The use we make of the present determines our destiny, our eternal reward and happiness. Jesus greatly stressed obedience to God, to Himself. He taught that we can well afford to make sacrifices in life rather than lose our souls. A life of obedience is required by God and is conducive to our highest welfare.

RESOLUTIONS OF THE MENNONITE S. S. AND C. E. CONVENTION held at the Menno Church near Lind, Washington

June 16, 17, 18, 1939

1. That we thank our Heavenly Father for His guidance, the spiritual and material blessings, and the favor of beautiful nature and fair weather bestowed upon this convention.

2. Resolved that we thank the officers and the program committee of the convention, also the speakers for their services which helped make this convention a success.

3. That we thank all the friends of our convention for their gifts of flowers for beautifying this place of worship.

4. That we thank the members of the Menno Church for their hospitality and Christian fellowship.

5. That we as a representative group, from the Mennonite Churches of Monroe, Colfax, Newport, Deer Park, and Lind, pray and work for "Peace on Earth" that is founded in the Love of God.

6. That we give ten dollars for the Bible School project of Swift Current, Saskatchewan, and confirm the resolution of the Pacific District Conference, recommending the project to the various churches of our convention.

7. That we recommend the payment to our conference treasurer, John C. Jantz, the following: $15.00 for Miss Emma Ruth, field secretary of our District Conference; $10.00 for Rev. and Mrs. Miller of Portland; $10.00 for Rev. F. F. Jantzen of Paso Robles, Calif.

8. That these resolutions be offered for publication in the local, as well as in our church papers.

SERMON SKETCH

GOURDS OR SOULS

by Rev. Walter Gering, Pastor, Eden Church, Moundridge, Kansas

Jonah 4:10-11. "Then said the Lord; Thou hast pity on the gourd, for the which thou hast not labored, neither madest it grow; which came up in a night and perished in a night: And should not I spare Nineveh, that great city, wherein are more than sixscore thousand persons that cannot discern between their right hand and their left hand, and also much cattle?"

Introduction

Jonah was more interested in the preservation of a gourd, for his comfort, than in the salvation of souls, to the glory of God. Like Jonah, we are too often guilty of showing a deep concern about material comforts, our own and those of others, and little or nothing about the salvation of souls. We are interested in good times more than in good people, more interested in luxuries than in character. As a result God gives us our requests, but sends leanness in our souls. See Psalm 106:15.

I. The Purpose of the Gourd

The gourd grew by the will of God to gladden the heart of the prophet Jonah. The fruit of the field, the temporal benefits that God provides for His children are intended to gladden and cheer them in their pilgrimage, and thus to stir us to gratitude.

The gourd was to serve as an object lesson to Jonah. The Lord Jesus repeatedly drew object lessons from nature. The spreading of His Word was compared to the sowing of seed. The clothing of the lily served as an object lesson of the provident care of God. The death of the corn of wheat that falls into the ground was made to teach the power of the resurrection life, as well as to teach the Divine principle of self-denial and even death to produce life.

Ingratitude caused God's withdrawal of the gift. Selfish contentment is not gratitude. Jonah was glad but not gratuitous toward others. True gratitude cannot be selfish.

II. The Temporality of the Gourd

The material blessings of life often perish from unforeseen and inconsiderable causes. Here it was a small hidden cause, unforeseen by Jonah, but purposed by God, "but God prepared a worm." Some one has well said "Where God is, a spider's web is like a wall; where God is not, a wall is like a spider's web."

The things of earth are not worth that we should become attached to them. "If riches increase, set not your heart upon them." Ps. 62:10.

Changes and decay is the law of the material things. The Lord challenges us to lay up treasure in heaven. What profiteth it a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul, or the soul of a son or a daughter that God has entrusted to a parent.

III. The Eternity of a Soul

Gourds, and material comforts have a temporal value, but souls of men and women, boys and girls have an eternal value, and yet how confused we are in our sense of values. Contrast the mercy and love of God, with the selfishness of the human family and even Christians.

In the life of your child, "Seek ye first"—Education? Wealth? Luxury? Social prestige? . . . or "the kingdom of God."

In the world, do you see an opportunity to make money, to promote social and political ambitions, or do you see opportunities of service for God'? Does the cause of Christ, does the Mission field call forth expenditure of your talents, gifts, prayers and the gift of your sons and daughters? Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus. "God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son." What hast thou given for me?

Invitation To Dedicatory Service

OF ADDITION TO BETHEL HOSPITAL

The Lord willing, the dedication of the New Addition to the Bethel Hospital at Newton, Kansas, is to take place at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon, July 23, in the first Mennonite Church. With joy in their hearts, praise and thanksgiving to God, the Giver of all gifts, the directors, medical and nursing staffs herewith heartily invite all friends of the Institution and, through them, their friends and ecquaintances to be present at this service, at which this Hospital Addition is to be set apart for service to suffering humanity in the name of the Great Physician. For sometime the hospital management and service staffs have felt the need of a clinic where more cumulative consultation might be had and more expert service be rendered the patients. With the help of God and friends of the Institution the wish has now become a reality, the building has been erected without mishap and is ready for occupancy.

It is a brick structure like the main building, 65 by 120 feet at the base, with basement and three stories. In the basement are laboratories, physiotherapy and pharmacy apartments, also a medical library. The first floor is given over to doctor's offices by the recently organized Bethel Clinic, of which Dr. V. L. Pauley of Wichita will be director. On the second floor are cheerful patients' rooms for 16 beds. The third floor is not yet finished, but when ready will have accomodations similar to the second.

Will friends and churches kindly remember this service, and all that it implies, with prayer that much good may result from these added facilities to Bethel Hospital to the glory of God and the saving of lives.

THE HYMN CORNER

by Walter H. Hohmann

I THINK WHEN I READ THE SWEET STORY OF OLD

This children's hymn in its concern and interest for the children of all the world is truly Christian, as Jesus teaches us in St. John 10:16, where he says: "And other sheep I have, which are not of this fold; them also I must bring, and they shall hear my voice; and there shall be one fold, and one shepherd."

Miss Jemima Thompson wrote this hymn on a lovely spring morning in 1841, while riding in an old stage coach in England. She was thinking of the children at Normal Infant School, Gray's Inn Road, while writing it. She had recently visited this school. Later it was her privilege to teach this hymn to some children in a village school which her stepmother supported. The inspiration of stanzas four and five which make the hymn so effectively missionary in its scope may have come from Miss Thompson's contact with Miss Mary Moffatt, who later became the wife of David Livingstone, teacher at the Normal Infant School. Miss Thmpson was married to Reverend Samuel Lake in 1843. For several years she edited the Missionary Repository, the first missionary magazine to be published for children.

This hymn is one of the best known and most widely used of children's hymns. The children should be taught the very best hymns. Hymn singing is one of the best means at the disposal of the church to teach the children the tenets and doctrines of the Christian Religion.

The hymn tune, Sweet Story, to which this song is sung was re-edited and brought to its present form in 1859 by William B. Bradbury. The tune was originally a Greek melody or folk-song, called Athens or Salamis. The soprano melody is very singable and easily learned. The modulation to the key of C major adds interest and variety to the melody. The other voice parts are also interesting and not difficult to sing. The harmony is primarily diatonic, thus making the song easy to play.

The new Mennonite Hymn Book will have a large section of children's hymns. Among them will be found some translations of familiar German hymns. Some of the finest and best hymns for children from various sources have also been selected to make this section of the book worth while and helpful for children.

QUESTIONNAIRE RESULTS

Question 12 asked whether the managing board should decide whether the editors and staff members should be paid for their work on the paper. Ten persons answered, "Yes," and three answered with a qualified "Yes." No one was opposed to this.

Question No. 13 read: "Would you favor merging the Junior-Messenger and Our Youth Says in one separate publication and one general editorial staff? Five persons were in favor of this; two gave qualified affirmative statements, and five individuals opposed this.

The Beauty of the Commonplace

Matt. 6:26-30; Ps. 147:7-9

Senior C. E. Program for July 30, 1939

Hymns

"This Is My Father's World", "Dear Lord and Father of Mankind", "My Faith Looks Up to Thee", "Open My Eyes That I May See" (Use this for the prayer hymn)

Leader's Introduction

When we consciously try to "think on whatsoever is beautiful", beauty seems to require grand proportions. We skip over the beautiful in the commonplace life about us, perhaps because our eyes have never learned to recognize that kind of beauty.

A number of children were once asked to make lists of the loveliest things they knew, persons not included. One little girl's list included the scrunch of dry leaves, the feel of clean clothing, a cool wind on a hot day, climbing up a hill and looking down. A boy's list included the feel of running, looking into deep water, a swallow flying, water being cut by the prow of a boat, a policeman's horse, the feel of a dive, the thrush singing. There is beauty all about us—because God has put it there!

To put everything into the spirit of seeing the beautiful in the commonplace, have each one in the group name two or three lovely things which have given him pleasure in the past. Children are more alive in some respects than grown people. Children feel and hear and see things to which adults have grown blind and deaf and calloused because of too long familiarity. Are we the kind who have eyes but do not see and ears but do not hear? It is our privilege to break through the shell of blindness and deafness and to live the more abundant life.

Suggestions for Talks

I. Hindrances to Seeing Beauty:
  1. Untrained eyes. A stranger opened a certain farmer's eyes to the beauty of a maple tree on his own land.
  2. Minds geared to the bizarre and the sensational.
  3. Minds crowded with unworthy and impure thoughts. Upon being asked his impression of the Jungfrau after he had climbed the peak, a traveler remarked that he had never seen so many tin cans as were in the bottom of the deep canyon into which he looked down from the magnificent height.

II. How to Find Beauty:
  1. Finding beauty through the sense of sight.
  2. Finding beauty through the sense of hearing.
  3. Finding beauty through the sense of touch.
  4. Finding beauty through a love for people. (Does it ever occur to us that the old, wrinkled, work-scarred hands of someone we love are beautiful?)
  5. Finding beauty through an appreciation of bravery, courage, service, and sacrifice.

Discussion Questions

1. If you were entering a camera contest for beautiful photographs of people or things, what would you chose for your subject?

2. What do you think could be done to add beauty to the Christian Endeavor room? to the exterior or interior of the church building? to the church service?

3. How could you add beauty to your home or to you family life?

4. What can we do to add beauty to our inner lives?

Poem:

"God, the Artist"

God, when you thought of a pine tree,
  How did you think of a star?
How did you dream of a damson West
  Crossed by an inky bar?
How did you think of a clear brown pool
  Where flocks of shadows are?

God, when you thought of a cobweb,
  How did you think of dew?
How did you know a spider's house
  Had shingles, bright and new?
How did you know we human folk
  Would love them as we do?

God, when you patterned a bird's song
  Flung on a silver string,
How did you know the ecstasy
  That crystal call would bring?
How did you think of a bubbling throat
  And a darling speckled wing?

God, when you chiseled a raindrop,
  How did you think of a stem
Bearing a lovely satin leaf
  To hold the tiny gem?
How did you know a million drops
  Would deck the morning's hem?

Why did you mate the moonlit night
  With honeysuckle vines?
How did you know Madeira bloom
  Distilled ecstatic wines?
How did you weave the velvet dusk
  Where tangled perfumes are?
God, when you thought of a pine tree,
  How did you think of a star?

For Daily Reading

July 24. Be perfect. Matt. 5:46-48.
July 25. Friendship with the world, enmity with God. James 4:4-8.
July 26. Lights in the world. Phil. 2:12-16.
July 27. An example to outdiders. I Pet. 2:11, 12.
July 28. Humility. 1 Pet. 5:5-11.
July 29. Put on the new man. Eph. 4:17-24.
July 30. Topic—Standards for Christian Conduct. Rom. 14:7-13.

Opening Song: "All the Way My Saviour Leads Me"

Scripture Reading, Rom. 14:7-13

Sentence Prayers asking God to guide our feet, our hands, our voices in his way.

Thought on topic by leader

"Love is the standard for Christian living: lived out perfectly in Christ's life."

"Love is the supply of power for Christian living."

"Love is the secret of faith for Christian living."

Song, "Gently, Lord, O Gently Lead Us"

Introduction to discussion:

We know Christ's standards of living not merely from his words but also from his acts. Thinking of his life upon earth, let us ask ourselves these questions: How did he treat his parents? How did he act toward his teachers? What was his conduct in the House of God? What were his habits of prayer?

Quiet Meditation

Song (softly) "Jesus, Saviour, Pilot Me"

Standards of Christian conduct for general discussion:

1. Make Christ Lord of our lives. This means that we are always to be submissive to his will and forgetful of self.

2. Forget self and think of the needs and desires of others.

3. To accomplish the above two points we must learn of Christ, study his life, talk to him, take him as our intimate friend. LIVE CHRIST!

4. "If the words we speak are to be effective, they must be backed by a life that inspires confidence."

5. Have someone read Col. 3:12-15 and make special mention of the following points:

a. Compassion—Sympathetic with others
b. Kindness—Kindly in our feeling toward others
c. Humility—Appreciate the good qualities of others
d. Forbearance and forgiveness—(1) Why is the Christian urged to forgive others as Christ forgives him? (2) How completely does God forgive? Psalm 103.

6. How does Christ make hard things easier?

7. Why is thanksgiving an essential element in the life of a Christian?

8. What impression do we make upon strangers when we are away from home? II Cor. 6:14-18.

9. How are we to solve the problem of mingling with those who are just a little careless about doing what is right?

If Christ is the Lord of our life, we shall see people in a better manner than we would without spiritual preparation in prayer to our Lord.

Let us start with a small act of kindness and gradually our liking for those people will develop and loving deeds will become easier. Who knows but you may be the very one needed to lead that one into the right paths.

10. A Christian needs to be careful in speech. Talk of things happy and good. Shun unkindly gossip.

Poem:

God's Will

I asked the Master for a motto sweet,
Some rule of life by which to guide my feet
I asked and paused
He answered soft and low,
"God's will to know,
God's will to know."

"Will knowledge then suffice?" I cried,
But ere the question into silence died,
The answer came—
"This remember too—
God's will to do,
God's will to do."

Once more I asked, "Is there nothing more to tell?"
And once again the answer softly fell,
"Yea, this one thing,
"All other things above—
God's will to love,
God's will to love."

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

GOD'S GIFT IN NATURE

"NIGHT"—Revelation 22:5a

Program for July 30, 1939

I. Worship Service

1. Prelude. Pianist plays "Day Is Dying in the West"
2. Sing in unison the first verse of the above song
3. A solo voice sings the next three verses with all Juniors joining in on the chorus.
4. Scripture (responsively). Use Bibles.
   Leader, Gen. 1:1-5
   Juniors, Gen. 8:22
   Leader, Rev. 21:21-25
   Juniors, Ps. 136:1, 5, 7, 8, 9
   Leader, "O Lord, how manifold are Thy works! in wisdom hast thou made them all; the earth is full of Thy riches."
5. Prayer by three Juniors
6. Poem:

> "God that madest earth and heaven,
> Darkness and light;
> Who the day for toil has given,
> For rest the night:
> May Thine Angel-guards defend us,
> Slumber sweet Thy mercy send us,
> Holy dreams and hopes attend us
> This live-long night.
> And when morn again shall call us
> To run life's way,
> May we then, whate'er befall us,
> Thy will obey.
> From the power of evil hide us,
> In the narrow pathway guide us,
> Nor Thy smile be ever denied us,
> The live-long day.
> —Selected.

II. Mission Minutes

1. The Missionary Alphabet (concluded)
   U—Understanding what the will of the Lord is. Eph. 5:17
   V—Verily, verily, I say unto you, Whatsoever ye shall ask the Father in my name, he will give it you. John 16:23
   W—Woe is me, if I preach not the gospel! I Cor. 9:16
   X—Xceeding abundantly above all that we ask or thing according to the power that worketh in us. Eph. 3:20.
   Y—Ye are the light of the world. Matt. 5:14
   Z—Zeal for the Lord. 2 Kings 10:16
2. An older person tell about the leper work at Champa India.

III. Study Period. Aim: The night is a precious gift from God. Let us help our Juniors realize this and so dispel all fears that any may have of the dark and the night.

1. Leader's meditation:

   "There are people who are afraid of the darkness of the night. It is as though they forgot that God never sleeps, but keeps watch over us all by night as well as by day. The night is beautiful, not only the stars and the moon, but the soft, cool breezes, the night bloming flowers, the sweet scents from the garden, the feeling of quiet and rest make the night lovely and draws us closer to God.

   The sweetest songster among the birds sings at night (The Nightingale). There is a verse in the Bible that speaks of "songs in the night," Job 35:10 or Ps. 77:6.

   When we can not sleep at night we can think about God and His loving care of us and pray to Him as David of old did so often. These prayers can be our "songs in the night."
2. Song by Juniors: "Now the Day is Over"
   a. Sing first three verses in unison. Then, while the pianist continues to play the melody softly, three good readers each read one of the remaining verses, prayerfully.
3. Stories told by several Juniors
   a. "The most wonderful night"—Luke 2
   b. "Night in Gethsemane"—Matt. 26:36-56
   c. "Song in the night"—Acts 16:16-34
   d. A Sermon that Lasted All Night — Acts 20:6-12
   e. God's Voice at Night.—1 Sam. 3:1-10
4. Read Bible Verses. Revelations 21:21-25 and Revelations 22:5
5. Solo, "No Night There"
6. Prayer Poem:

> "When the sun is fast asleep,
> Jesus, all Thy children keep;
> Through the darkness of the night
> Be our guard and be our light;
> If we wake with sudden fear,
> Give us courage, Jesus dear;
> Bless our dreams until the sun
> Tells us that the night is gone;
> Then refreshed by sleep we'll rise,
> See new glories in the skies,
> Find new strength and feel new love,
> As in Thee we live and move."
> —Selected

7. Stand and sing Doxology
8. Leader's closing prayer

To Our Churches

As already quite generally known, Brother H. A. Fast, our field secretary, leaves for South America July 14, to visit the colonies of our brethren in Brazil and Paraguay. May we all invoke God's protection and guidance for him on the trip and his work there. As our representative we will expect information from him concerning the conditions calling for relief among our people there. And our Board will promptly publish such information in our church papers.

Wishing Brother Fast God's protection,

In brotherly love, John Lichti, Chm. Relief Board

Tuesday, July 18, Dr. Smith's Art Gallery
Wednesday, July 19, Community Sing
Friday, July 21, Grand Pageant—"The Religions of the World and Upward to Christ."

CORRESPONDENCE

SALEM CHURCH, MARION, S. D., 6-24-39

Since my last report the Northern District Conference was held at our church and is now history. Good road and weather conditions coupled with fine interest accounted for the record attendance. The outstanding event in connection with the conference was the ordination of Orlando Waltner and Vernelle Schroeder Waltner as missionaries. Present plans are that they will sail for India on September 30th.

A recent and welcome visitor to his old home and church was Rev. Erland Waltner of Philadelphia. Rev. Waltner was married June 5th to Miss Mary Schlosser at Greenville, Illinois, and this trip was a part of their honeymoon. While here Rev. Waltner gave an illustrated lecture on the Holy Land. The pictures shown were from photographs he took himself while touring Palestine last summer.

An event of rare interest was the Waltner reunion, held June 20th. This was the 100th anniversary of the birth of Pioneer Joseph Waltner and the celebration was participated in by his descendants. Mr. Waltner died in 1923.

The weather has turned hot and dry and showers would be so welcome. Crop conditions are not very favorable. Only a miracle can produce half a crop from present indications. Rain came too late. Grasshoppers are very numerous.

A communication from the University of Texas brings the good news that on June 5th, Prof. J. D. Unruh, President of Freeman Junior College, was awarded the degree of Doctor of Philosophy.—Rev. P. P Schroeder and family attended a reunion of the Nickel family at Worthington, Minnesota, on June 22nd. Nickel is the maiden name of Mrs. Schroeder.

Our church and community has been very active in recent months in behalf of keeping our country out of war. Many petitions and communications have been sent to our representatives in congress to work and vote for this worthy cause. Our present foreign policy is an extremely dangerous one. President Roosevelt and his spokesmen are not neutral. Scarcely an opportunity is overlooked to lambast and criticise Germany and Italy and their leaders. Great Britain and France are held up as examples. Our only chance of staying out is thru congress. We have experienced in the past that a President' peace program and utterances cannot be relied on. Let the Christian people make their influence felt.—John J. Gering, Corr.

NOTE: The editor is extremely sorry that for reasons hard to explain, this correspondence did not appear a week earlier as was definitely intended. We humbly beg pardon for the postponement.

MENNONITE CHURCH, MADRID, NEBR., 7-3-39

Dear Mennonite Readers: We feel that a report from our church is due. The work has been carried on without a break. Every Sunday this year we have had Sunday School and services. And every second Sunday evening an endeavor program and a short service. Besides these meetings we have given Bible Instruction to a class of twelve, from Jan. 1, till May 14, once every Sunday. All the members of this class have decided for Christ and were baptized, May 28.

In June we had Daily Vacation Bible School for fifteen half days. The enrollment was 49 with four teachers. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sawatzky from Bloomfield, Mont., led in this work. The Lord has been very good to us and has given us a full measure of grace and love.

Weather and crop conditions have been good. Twice we have had a day with a hot wind blowing and once also a damaging hailstorm. But as a whole the crop outlook is good. Harvest will be general in abut a week.

Wishing you all the Lord's richest blessing, we remain yours in the Lord's service.—J. F. and Helen Sawatzky.

—The First Mennonite Church of Berne, Indiana, which is ever ready to find ways to serve and to help further the interests of the Conference cause, has extended an invitation, through its pastor Dr. Suckau, that the next World Conference of Mennonites be held in their church and town in 1940. Inasmuch as it is the plan to hold this conference in 1941 in connection with our triennial conference session, that time will also be satisfactory to the good Berne people.

—A Fine Example Worth Following.—With an eye for needs wherever they appear, Mrs. Marie Lohrentz, wife of Dr. A. M. Lohrentz of McPherson, Kans., heard of a missionary society in town that made it a habit to get the families in their church to subscribe for their church paper. Immediately Mrs. Lohrentz got busy, interested the ladies of her society of the Hebron Mennonite Church, at Buhler, Kansas, and in a short time they sent in 30 new subscriptions to our papers. Isn't that setting a fine example for the ladies' aid or sewing societies of our churches to follow? The objective of such societies is to do missionary work. Won't other societies in our Conference fall in line with Mrs. Lohrentz and her society, in efforts of putting our church papers in more homes, as one of the aims of their mission endeavors?

—Rev. Elmer Basinger, Summerfield, Ill., writes, On Sunday, June 25, in the Zion Church, Donnellson, Iowa, occured the wedding of La Verne E. Basinger, son of Rev. and Mrs. Elmer Basinger, and Ellen Irene Handrich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Handrich of Donnellson, Iowa. The ceremony was performed by the father of the groom in the presence of the immediate members of the families. The couple will make their home at Rock Island, Ill., where the young husband has a position with the Social Security Board.

—Rev. and Mrs. Moyer and son Teddy will sail from New York for India on July 19, on the S. S. President Roosevelt from Pier 59. They will be stationed at Janjgir, C. P. India, instead of Basna, where they worked the last term.

—In the "Church Messenger" Rev. Freeman Swartz reports: Rev. and Mrs. J. J. Plenert of Philadelphia are planning to make a visit in Kansas in August. Their son James has already gone there to spend the summer with his grandmother. The Bohn family expects to spend some time with grandparents in Indiana.

—A Reception for Rev. and Mrs. Erland Waltner.—Brother H. G. Nyce reports that on July 6 the ministers of the Eastern Conference and their wives had a reception and dinner for their youngst associates, Rev. and Mrs. Erland Waltner of the Second Church, Philadelphia. Present were: Rev. and Mrs. J. J. Plenert of First Church, Philadelphia, where the gathering was held; Rev. and Mrs. Waltner, Rev. and Mrs. Olin Krehbiel, Miss Catherine Niswander, Rev. and Mrs. A. J. Neuenschwander, Rev. Freeman H. Swartz, Dr. E. E. S. Johnson, Rev. and Mrs. Elwood Shelly, Paul R. Shelly, reecntly graduated from Hartford Seminary, who will continue his studies in Scotland for the next two years; Rev. and Mrs. Nyce and Jane. Rev. and Mrs. Waltner were presented with a beautiful guest book. The brethren present gave words of welcom and Mrs. Krehbiel spoke in behalf of the Ladies' Mission Societies.

—Hillsboro Mennonite Church.—From their Year Book recently sent us we note the following; J. H. Epp is elder and leading pastor, J. D. Janzen, assistant pastor. Deacons: Lewis J. Thomas, P. A. Pankratz, A. K. Ratzlaff. Trustees: P. H. Schroder, Jacob Funk, P. H. Penner. Business Comm.: J. H. Franzen, J. D. Jantzen, Jacob Funk. S. S. Superintendent: Herbert Wiebe.—The church has a mixed choir, a men's choir, a junior choir. Its total membership on Jan. 1, 1939, was 354, S. S. enrollment 334; number of teachers, two to each class, 46. The total receipts of the church and its auxiliaries was $3669.01. The church has a "Frauenverein" of 34 members, a Ladies' Aid Society of 27 members and a Young Mother's Sewing Society of 30 members.

—From the Bulletin of the Reedley, Calif., Mennonite Church, we cull: Missionary and Mrs. J. J. Thiessen and their four children are making the round in our Conference. Rev. Thiessen received his A. B. degree from Bethel College, in 1919, his B. D. from Witmarsum Seminary in 1930. He has also attended McCormick Theol. Seminary and Garrett Bible Institute. After this thorough preparation he became very useful in the educational work of our Mission in India.—After nearly forty years of work in India our General Conference has a heavy investment there. Thus many of our friends have become deeply rooted in the work and welcome this opportunity of becoming better acquainted with it.

—In "The Cheyenne and Arapaho Messenger we read that on Sunday, June 25, at the Canton Menn. Church thirteen people were baptised. At the Fonda Menn. Church, fourteen receivd baptism, a total of 27 at th two stations. The following also accepted Jesus as their Savior, were baptized and received as members: At Clinton, June 11: Cedric Allrunner, Leslie Hawk, Lenora and Beulah Hack, Lulu Bearshield, Anola Blackwolf, Opal Fletcher, Gladys Romannose, Edna Starr, Anna and Lulu Twins. At Hamon: June 18: Woodrow Standingwater, Mrs. Lillie Hays, Ruby Mann, Mrs. Anna and Elizabeth Scabby, Ennis Standingwater, Clara Whiteshild. At Clinton, June 11: Mrs. Gladis Barton, Mrs. Anna Hawk and Viola Bearshield joined the church by reaffirmation. These with the above 27 make a grand total of 50 recently received into Christian fellowship by our Oklahoma Mission churches. Praise the Lord for this wonderful harvest!

— A Pastoral Message.—Suffering makes some people bitter toward life. It makes the faithful Christian sweeter. In the tropics there grows a rose out of which the famous perfume Attar of Roses is made. The fragrance of the rose is sweetest, not during daylight hours, but at night—at two o'clock in the morning when the heaviest darkness covers them. So some Christian saints seem to give their most fragrant testimony for Christ in the darkest hours of their lives. —E. W.

—Rev. Howard G. Nyce of Allentown, Pa., a member of our Foreign Mission Board, recently attended the Foreign Missions Conference of N. A. at Swarthmore College, Swarthmore, Pa., which was in session there for three days. He reports that he stopped in to see Rev. W. S. Gottshall at the Mennonite Home. He talks with a great deal of difficulty but is glad to see people.

—Our early Mennonite settlers in the west and pioneers elsewhere are rapidly passing away, and with their passing much valuable historical material is lost. In view of this fact, the Executive Committee at its recent session appointed the following brethren, J. R. Thierstein, H. P. Krehbiel, A. Warkentin and H. A. Fast as a committee to preserve Mennonite historical material already collected and to gather more. The committee is to cooperate with the Mennonite Historical Society, an organization in existence for a good many years. Dr. Warkentin will function as secretary-treasurer and custodian of the committee, and will be heard from occasionally.

—Bethany Church, Freeman, S. D.—"Favorable comments are being heard from everywhere about the recent improvements made in the church: walls have been painted, the floors have been cleaned and treated, and new rubber runners laid in the aisles. It looks so clean and worshipful now. Let us come into the Lord's Sanctuary with hearts that may worship God in Spirit and in Truth."—Bethany Messenger.

—Rev. A. S. Bechtel of Hanston, Kans., made a visit in Newton recently. He is again editing the Mennonite Year Book, and came here to consult with Rev. C. E. Krehbiel, editor of the "Bundesbote Kalender." By cooperating, the two editors can save work and expense. He also interviewed the members of the Board of Publication, J. M. Suderman and J. R. Thierstein. He reports that it is still dry out their way and the prospects for crops are very small.

—Rev. Erland Waltner asks that his address be changed as follows: From 2956 North 12th St., to 818 West Lehigh Ave., Philadelphia, Pa. He says, "My dear wife and I are very happy in returning to Philadelphia to resume our service here. The work gives much encouragement —Rev. D. J. Unruh, Pandora, writes in a personal letter: "I am glad for your returning health and strength. I pray that that Lord may yet spare you for further ministry on the Mennonite. Realizing how difficult it is to remain impartial as editor and also conscious that you personally are zealous that the true values of the Christian faith be set forth, I pray for you the enlightening and sustaining presence of the Spirit of God in your important task."—Thank you sincerely, Bro. Unruh, for these reassuring and encouraging words.—Editor.

—Immanuel Mennonite Church, Los Angeles, Calif. —The church had an afternoon farewell service for P. W. Penner, Sunday, July 2.—The missionary Thiessen family came through here July 7. Owing to their limited time, they could make only a few calls. — The Daily Vacation Bible School closed its three-week session July 14. The enrollment began at 133 and increased steadily.—MARRIED: Miss Vera Klassen and Mr. Oliver Habegger of Upland were married April 28 by Rev. W. A. Regier, pastor of the local church.—June 18th, Rev. D. D. Eitzen officiated at the wedding of Miss Kathryn Klassen and Francis Beatty.

—Rev. and Mrs. P. A. Kliewer of the Ebenezer Church, Bluffton, Ohio, are spending their vacation in Montana, visiting their children and their former field work among the Cheyennes. While Rev. and Mrs. P. E. Whitmer of the Pandora, Ohio, Church are enjoying their vacation with friends in Eastern Ohio.

—As President E. G. Kaufmann of Bethel College, unceasing in his efforts to build up the school, was pretty well worn out at the close of the school year, the Board of Directors told him to hike to the mountains with his family. They have been in Colorado and the last time they were heard from while gone they were visiting relations at Logan, Utah. They returned July 12th much invigorated, for which we praise God.

—Marriage.—June 19th, 6 p.m., at the Mennonite Church near Colfax, Wash., by the Pastor Rev. W. Harley King: Earl Schluneger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Schluneger, and Elda L. Buckley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas Buckley of Freewater, Oregon.

General Conference Publications

Christian Sunday School Quarterly

This quarterly is written for Senior Young People's and Adult classes. Each lesson contains (1) Light on the Lesson, Past and Present, (2) Thoughts from the Text, (3) Questions and Problems for Discussion, (4) Practical Notes and Illustrations. The quarterly is meeting with favor everywhere and many new orders are received with every new quarter.

Intermediate Christian Sunday School Quarterly

For a long time many Sunday Schools of the General Conference have felt the need of Our Own lesson quarterly for the classes in the Intermediate Department. Such a quarterly is now available. It is the new Intermediate Christian Quarterly. The first issue of this quarterly was printed for the second quarter of this year, and many of those who have used it speak very highly of its contents. Close to 3000 copies were sold and, no doubt, many more S. S. will want to order it for the remaining quarters of the year.

Suntagschul-Lektionen

This quarterly is published in German, except that the text is printed in both, English and German for easy comparison.

Reasons Why These Quarterlies Should Find Their Way Into The Sunday Schools of Our General Conference Churches

1. They are General Conference publications, prepared under the auspices of the Board of Education and published by the Board of Publication of the General Conference.
2. They are prepared by an efficient editorial staff which is able to produce a quarterly that can compare favorably with any other quarterly on the Market.
3. The International Lessons are used, and the exposition is in harmony with Mennonite views and principles.
4. The price is not higher than most other Intermediate and Adult quarterlies of equal rank and quality.

If your S. S. is not using these quarterlies we Invite You To Give Them A Trial.

The Junior Messenger

This is also a General Conference publication. It is an eight page illustrated children's paper, published biweekly. It is deeply spiritual in tone and at the same time entertaining and instructive. The children enjoy it, and even the older folks like to read it.

A Few Comments By Readers

"The Junior Messenger is a welcome visitor in our home, and the children enjoy very much to read it." —A Father.

"I certainly like the Junior Messenger. I work out the puzzles and read the stories."—Margaret Stucky, McPherson, Kansas.

"My smaller sister and I enjoy the Junior Messenger very much. My mother and father do too."—Imogene Helen Schroeder, Mt. Lake, Minn.

"Our little girl likes the Junior Messenger so much, and we want to order it for one of her little cousins as a birthday present." A Mother.

We receive many orders for this interesting and helpful children's paper. Parents are ordering it for their children, boys and girls who have it order it for their friends or urge them to get it; S. S. teachers supply it for the members of their class; and many Sunday Schools are providing it for all the families whose children attend their S. S.

Single copies 45c per year; 10 or more copies to one address 35c per year.

Sample copies will gladly be sent to any individual or Sunday School. Please ask us for them.

Another Publication That We Can Recommend Highly Is The Christian Service Quarterly

A Quarterly with Topics and Helps for Young People's Weekly Meetings

Original Biblical Practical

The aim is to give young and old spiritual lessons for their weekly meetings.

For the Seniors, there are given suggestions for the main "leader" and for a number of sub-leaders who take up the theme in keeping with the Scripture bearing on the lesson appointed for the meeting. The Intermediates are supplied with helpful suggestions on themes corresponding with those of the Senior section. The Junior section of the meeting are also given "Thoughts for the Captain" and helpful comments and illustrations for several "Speakers."

—The following is tne system of offerings used at the Bethel College Church that may interest some: First Sunday of each moth, foreign missions; second Sunday of month, church maintenance; third Sunday of month, Home missions, either General Conference or Western District Conference; fourth Sunday of month, miscellaneous: publication of General Conference, education of General Conference and Western District, Bethel College, needy of local church; 5th Sun., relief.

—A Fellow Sufferer.—Mrs. John Bartel, an interested member of the Mennonites' correspondents staff, writes that she has been laid up and in bed for two months, with athrities and other ailments that so weakened her nerves that she could not read nor write for several months. Although ambitious to be busy, she cannot do much. "But God is good and great and will give what is good for me," she says. That is good philosophy, to which the editor subscribes.

ABOUT RELIGION.—Religion is variously defined. In fact it has about as many meanings as there are kinds of worships or faiths the world over. Webster's dictionary has several definitions, of which we quote the following because of its brevity: "Religion is a system of faith and worship." There is probably no human being that does not recognize some higher power over it and the manifestation of this is religion. Strange as it may seem, the word religion is found only five times in the Bible, the source-book of Christian religion, and then not in definition form. But God's Word contains many passages which expound one or phase another of true religion. Thus Micah 6:8 does fairly well for a simple definition: "What does the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and walk humbly with God." Deuteronomy 6:5 gives us the heart of true religion: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all they soul, and with all thy might." Jesus endorses this by declaring it to be the first and greatest conception of religion and adds: "The second like unto it is this, . . . Love thy neighbor as thyself," Matt. 22:39. And in explanation of what he means he says in Matt. 25:35-36: "(I) my brethren (even the least) were hungry, and you gave them to eat; they were thirsty, and you gave them to drink; they were strangers, and you took them in; they were naked, and you clothed them; they were sick and you visited them; they were in prison and you came unto them." But 1 Tim. 1:15 puts the emphasis on another thought: "For it is ever avowedly true and a word of inestimable value that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners of whom I am the chief." When a soul has come to realize and to believe that in Christ alone there is salvation, then He has these comforting words, spoken to the Samaritan woman: "He that believeth on me though he die, yet shall he live," John 11:25. Thus we might go on citing scriptural passages showing the immeasurable many-sidedness and wealth of the only true religion, the religion of God through Jesus Christ.—T.

HAPPINESS IN KNOWING AND DOING.—"If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them," John 13:17. There are a good many people in this world that know a lot but make little practical use of their knowledge. They are a pitiable group, for they not only lose the real joy of life, but knowing without doing creates unhappiness. However, "if we know we will be happy when we do." A preacher imparts knowledge with the hope and expectation that his listeners will go out to do better and become increasingly happy. Teachers have an old maxim, "There is no impression without expression." Knowledge must be put in action to become a part of one's self. In the story from which the above verse is taken, Jn. 13:14-17, Jesus had just taught his disciples that great lesson of ervice in humility, by washing their feet. It is ever true that real happiness comes from loving service, from giving one's self. As Christ's followers we may be daily happy, doing each day the best we know. And in so doing, we learn how to do better the next day. In many families and churches, too, the members lack happiness and hope in their lives, because they are doing so little for the Lord's cause. They are spiritual drones, as some one has fitly said, "Multitudes are in misery and despair, because they have never learned to do His will."—T.

CHRISTIANS TO BE LIKE A TREE.—"He shall be like a tree planted by the rivers of water," Psalm 1:3. A healthy tree in its beauty and grandeur has ever elicited the admiration of artists, poets and lovers of nature. Really, is there anything more wonderfully beautiful, anything more useful on the face of this earth than a soundly growing tree? He who has ever gazed at the giant redwoods of our Pacific west or the "Koenigstannen" (king's pines) of Switzerland with a worshipful mind, can never quite forget the images of these monarchs of the forest. And then, think of the uses to which trees are put! They are almost without number, and more are constantly discovered. Now if I, if you, a God-fearing man or woman are to be like a healthy tree, we must first of all be growing, developing, striving toward a full measure of Christian manhood or womanhood. There can be no standstill in our spiritual life. Then, too, like the tree, you and I must constantly strive to make or find new uses, new purposes for our lives, new outlets to express our help to a needy world. To be like a good tree, our life must be one of beauty and attractiveness. It must spread refreshing coolness and shade in which tired, weary souls may find refreshing rest and comfortable repose.—T.

Conference Address of 55th Middle District Conference held at Bluffton, Ohio, June 19, 1939

by Prof. E. J. Hirschler

(Concluded from last week)

It is not uniformity but a spiritual unity we need, hence in our conference there is room for a diversity of gifts as we read in Eph. 4:11-13: "And he gave some to be apostles, and some prophets and some evangelists and some pastors and teachers for the perfecting of the saints unto the work of ministering unto the building up of the body of Christ until we all attain unto unity of faith and of the knowledge of the son of God unto a full grown man, unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ." The faith which Paul speaks of here is not a mere verbal statement of belief but a positive commitment of the whole life to the Jesus' way of life, and the knowledge of the Son of God is not a theory of his Divine nature, but a personal walk in fellowship with Him until we know him intimately by personal experience as Savior, Christ and Lord. Some day we shall grow into his likeness, so that we shall know him fully even as we are known. All of this is a life long process which is never completed, but what a glorious prospect is ours, for some day we all with unveiled face, beholding as in a mirror the glory of the Lord, are transformed into the same image from glory to glory even as from the Lord of Spirit. 2 Cor. 3:18.

Though such a complete unity of the spirit may be still far ahead of us as conference workers, yet we must continually strive to attain it. Perhaps it was easier to do this in the early days of our conference, when the first enthusiasm for the work of the conference ran high and our Mennonite people lived largely to themselves and maintained very little contact with Christians of other denominations. But in these days when we make varied contacts it becomes more difficult to become united in the same faith. To be sure we have profited by some of our contacts with other denominations, but we have also been subjected to harmful propaganda from every possible "ism" and have become a favorite fishing ground for others. We must pray God to establish us in our most holy faith. We are all too easily influenced to forget the unique and precious heritage for which our forefathers lived and died in favor of other influences. Therefore it becomes us all the more to remain in living fellowship with the same Christ, in order to attain and maintain our unity in the spirit.

The General Conference and Middle District Conference were born in an effort to unite all Mennonites of America, whether Amish or non-Amish into one body dedicated to the furthering of God's kingdom among our own people. A few years ago when looking through the earlier numbers of the Bundesbote to find some additional light on the history of the Swiss Mennonites of Allen and Putnam Counties, Ohio, I noticed several references stating that some of the early workers of the Middle District made visits to the Amish Mennonites of Iowa, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio to interest them in the work of our Conference, inviting them to affiliate with the conference but allowing them to maintain their own peculiar customs relating to dress or the observance of footwashing and church discipline. The dream of the founders of the General Conference has not been completely realized, but instead two General Conferences have been formed which comprise within their membership a large majority of the American Mennonites. It is to be hoped that with much striving and prayer that finally the original purpose of the General Conference may be realized. No doubt the fact that we have been able to cooperate with the old Mennonites and other smaller Mennonite groups in the relief of our persecuted brethren in Russia, Canada and Paraguay has been a first step in that direction, for it was precisely the ability to cooperate in the work of the Lord in spite of diversities that made the organization of the General Conference possible.

In the meantime while we are awaiting the day of a larger unity of all Mennonites, let us as a Middle District Conference wisely cultivate an increasingly closer unity of the spirit in our own ranks.

To the admonition to strive for unity of the spirit the apostle Paul adds the significant words "in the bond of peace." This phrase emphasizes the fact that peace among ourselves results from a spiritual unity in Christ. It is to be regretted that the Mennonites, though declaring themselves in favor of non-resistance have not always been very peaceful among themselves, as becomes those who have one Lord, one faith and one baptism. In Col. 3:14 Paul tells us that we shall put on love which is the bond of perfectness. If we do that the peace of God shall rule in our hearts to the glory of God.

I have tried to let the great epistle of the preeminent Christ and his body, the church, speak to us in its own language as much as possible, because I believe it has a challenging message for us just at this time, when a new emphasis on a spiritual unity is so much needed. We must continue to strive for agreement on the essentials of Christian faith and life, but must not allow differences on minor matters to hinder us from cooperating with enthusiasm in our common tasks. All of us have something to contribute toward the work of our conference. Let each of us value the contribution of others as much as we do our own and be truly thankful to God who has given us a diversity of gifts to be used on the edification of the church. Following the leading of his divine Providence, our forefathers have bequeathed to us a splendid heritage of a consistent Christian faith and life. It is our task to preserve this for ourselves and make it known with fervent word and consistent deed to the whole Christian world of today. In these days of much strife we must be able to give a united testimony which rings true to the faith of our fathers and is based on an accurate knowledge of the word of God. Is it too much to expect that this session shall help us onward in reaching our goal of a united conference? May the spirit of God possess our minds and hearts and become the dominant factor in our deliberations at this conference session.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

Champa, C. P., India, June 10th, 1939

Mennonite Readers:

Below I am sending you a copy of a letter from a Mr. P. Ghose. This needs no comment except that there are hundreds like Mr. Ghose, but who do not necessarily "proclaim this from the housetops." We had a Brahmin leper patient in our Home and he, like Mr. Ghose, left a different man. Another, a village owner, said to me when leaving: "Mr. Penner, I am not a Christian, but I think differently of Christianity now, than when I first came here." One of our missionaries working in the section where his village is located, told me that whenever he came into this particular village, there wasn't the least opposition to the preaching of the gospel. Indeed, whenever a meeting was called, this very man, once in our Leper Home, asks that all meetings be opened and closed with prayer. This is not always possible, as all village workers know. Here is the article by Mr. Ghose:—

P. A. Penner.

THE MISSION TO LEPERS

The Editor of The Indian Social Reformer.

Sir,

Together with many another College young man, I have for long been influenced by what you write about, and imply to be the correct attitude to the Britisher, Christian Missions, Rajahs, etc.

Several years ago, something however happened that began to change my mind with regard to the correctness of your seasoning and information in some instances.

This is what happened. While practising at the court house one evening, a doctor friend began looking me over rather closely and said that I looked as though I had leprosy and should be examined. This I did, and his diagnosis was found to be correct. For a long time no one seemed to realize that anything was wrong, or at least said nothing about it. Then my patches rather suddenly began to grow, and the first thing I knew I was looked at askance by my friends and practically put out of the house by my relatives.

Upon inquiry I was told that the best Leper Asylums were in the hands of Christian Missions. To go to one of these proselytizing factories, however, did not appeal to me at all after all that you had written about Missions. Not having any other place to go to, I was almost forced to take refuge there however.

Entering this leper settlement out in the district was a feeling that I will never be able to forget. I was given a neat little house with two rooms. There was running water, septic tank, a garden, and everything else that was necessary. The very day I arrived, the doctor came to see me. Quite contrary to my expectation he did not say anything about being a Christian, nor did he ever after during the whole time I was there. The effect of his visit will ever remain. He was a young European that reminded me of an incarnation. His English was faultless. For an hour he took time to talk to me about everything under the sun. His kindliness, his sympathy, his understanding, his humility, his joy, and his clear cut answers to all my anxious questions, left no doubt in my mind but that this was a man that knew what he was talking about. And he was. During my stay there I was to see that Governments from different parts of the world were sending their experts to this young man in order to learn from him. He received enough offers for big jobs during the course of the year to make any plain human being envious, and yet in spite of it all, he remained here with us lepers where he was getting a mere pittance, even feeding us at times from his own kitchen.

I had heard that there was also a European nurse in the settlement, but some days passed before I had my first interview with her. And the way that happened was funny. One morning quite early a young lady came in, talked to me for a short time, and then put her hand on my shoulder saying, "Don't worry, you will be alright in two years." Then wen I complained about a sore she opened the bandage with her own hands, and had a look. I realized that she was no ordinary nurse, but it was not until that evening that I found out that it was the European nurse that had been to see me that morning. When I realized that this young lady had done what none of my relatives would do, tears came unbidden to my eyes.

There was a beautiful church within the settlement, but I had decided to keep my distance. Many a Sunday morning I had stood at the door listening to the singing and other music, but had vowed never to be caught in this proselyting net. Yet one beautiful morning I assured myself that there would be nothing wrong in going in and having a look. I went and in some ways was conquered. Everyone was so reverent, the church so beautiful, and the service positively touching. The speaker spoke about finding your life by loosing it. If any one ever had a right to speak about this aspect of life I was sure that they had. I wandered off in mind and thought of what had happened to that little laughing nurse. When I first knew her she was a plump little thing, but before the hot season was over, she looked like a faded rose. Looking at all these maggot infected leprous sores, had turned her stomach. For weeks she could not eat. At times she sank down while at work for sheer faintness. We asked her what was wrong and she smiled and said "Nothing." Many a time her leper friends united to pray to God for her. She stuck to her post, and finally conquered, but only after a terrible struggle.

And now I am back home again well and hearty. Just by looking at me no one would suspect what happened to me, but the experiences at this Christian Leper Asylum will ever remain a blessed memory. At heart of course I am a Christian. I do not suppose it would be possible to be anything else after the experience I have had.

You will now understand why it is that I can no more so joyfully assent when you go to such pains to throw mud at Christian movements, in fact it pains me, and I cannot help but offer a silent prayer for you whenever I find these bitter remarks so often made in ignorance. Purity and sacrifice and kindness just cannot be eradicated by covering them with impurity, unkindness and unlovliness.

I realize that this is quite contrary to the kind of thing you are in the habit of printing in your paper, and for that reason I have waited for a long time before sending it in. I trust that you will, however, publish it, if for no other season than to give the experiences of one of your fellow men who has come to different conclusions than you have.

Yours etc.,
P. Ghose, Calcutta, May 8, 1939

"BRIEFE AN MEIN VOLK"

(Letters to my People)

"Jehovah hath done great things for us, whereof we are glad!" Thus I am praising the Lord today, as I was in great need with my "Letters to my People". The deficit in connection with them grew bigger and bigger, while support came in sparingly and finally ceased altogether. But then the Lord moved the hearts of English speaking Christians, the Eastern District Sunday School Union, to support this branch of our Home Missions, although it is being carried on in German. Now my deficit is covered and the issuance of a goodly number of further "Letters" is guaranteed. I hereby wish to thank the good Lord and His cheerful givers from the bottom of my heart for their kindness.

If the work is to be continued it must, of course, further be supported, and every gift toward its support will be gratefully accepted by the undersigned. The old agreement still stands, according to which the cost of printing, mailing, etc., must be provided for by freewill offerings.

The "Letters" are still being accepted by many grateful readers and listeners, and I am in receipt of many letters which prove that my "Letters" still answer a very keenly felt need.

The Lord has also made it possible to have the "Briefe" printed now instead of mimeographed. That saves me a whole lot of troublesome work and makes the reading easier and more pleasant for the subscribers. In this connection I wish to thank Bro. Herman Neufeld of the Rundshau Publishing House in Winnepeg for the very reasonable conditions under which he has agreed to print the "Letters".

I still have some of those already issued "Letters" on hand and have made them up in packages of 10 sermons each. I am offering these for sale at the price of 25 cents a package, postpaid. In the first packages all 10 sermons will be different ones. Later, as the supply will be more and more exhausted, there might be found several copies of the same sermon in one package. I believe they will be fit to be distributed as tracts among such who read the German.

Please pray for the work and for me, the worker.

Fraternally yours,
Jacob H. Janzen, Waterloo, Ontario, Canada.

AN APOLOGY AND EXPLANATION

To the sermon sketch in last weeks Mennonite, entitled "Gourds or Souls", which came to us without the writer's name, we erroneously attached the name of Rev. Walter Gering. This article reached us about the time that Bro. Gering's sermon was also due. When we came to arrange the material for the paper, we got hold of the anonymous article, not just then remembering the desired one, and suspecting that Bro. Gering had been too modest to give his name, we substituted it. We are sincerely sorry for making this foolish error and humbly ask Bro. Gering's pardon. In his brotherly attitude he says, "Mistakes will happen, but since the sermon is not mine, I would hardly feel that credit should come to me for such a fine outline." His article will appear in due time, and it is a good one. BUT WHO IS THE AUTHOR OF THE ARTICLE, "GOURDS OR SOULS"? Will he not kindly reveal himself to the editor?

Across the Desk

By Pres. Lloyd Ramseyer, Bluffton College

One of the finest things about this year of school has been the excellent spirit shown by all of those connected with the institution. Cooperation of both faculty and students in the joint task of making Bluffton a bigger and better school has been of a high order. The spirit of friendliness pervading the campus has been a source of pleasure and inspiration to all of us.

A school is known by the product which it produces. There are few better ways of gaining support from the public than by having students and alumni who are enthusiastic supporters of their alma mater. It is necessary, too, that those who go out from this campus represent the ideals for which the college stands. Instances could be pointed out where the support of a whole community was secured because some student who came here went back with higher ideals, evidence of a more noble character, and a greater willingness to do his part in the church and community. On the other hand, cases could be cited where the support of an entire community was lost because some individual returned from here who did not represent the ideals for which the college stands.

At the close of the school year is a good time to evaluate the things which we have done. There is always danger that an institution may become encumbered with outworn traditions and practices which have long since lost their usefulness. The Chinese are not the only ancestor worshipers. Because a thing has been done before is never sufficient reason for repeating it. We have many customs and traditions that contribute toward the realization of our objectives. Perhaps we also have some that should be discarded. It is a safe assumption that the best interests of the school would be served if some of them were changed and brought down to present day needs. For those who are to be here next year, now is a good time to re-evaluate our practices, and to tentatively decide on changes which should be made in them. Those of us who are alumni certainly should never insist that future students continue practices merely because we have been instrumental in starting or continuing them while we were in school. Let us put our practices on a practical and functional basis.

This college is essentially a cooperative enterprise. It will prosper only so long as a cooperative spirit exists. For this reason, if for no other, the spirit shown this year has been appreciated. Let us continue it throughout the years to come. When alumni and other visitors come on the campus during the commencement week, I am sure that they will be impressed with the fact that the old Bluffton spirit is still very much in evidence.

Trust in the Lord and in His mercy, and He will bring it to pass.

Evangelizing Our Neighborhood

J. B. Epp, Beatrice, Nebraska, R. 1

A BRIEF QUESTIONNAIRE

A request: Will someone from each church or community where this is being read, who is interested, please answer the following questions and forward the answers to the undersigned at the earliest convenience. Even if two or more reports from one community should be sent in, that will not hurt.

I. What work of this kind is being done in your neighborhood? Outside the church? Suggestions: Visiting the sick, the old, the poor, etc.; singing, devotions, gifts, tracts, Bible portions; mission Sunday Schools; vacation Bible schools; etc. Say if in your own church or outside of any church. Personal interviews regarding the soul's salvation; Gospel signs along highways, etc.

II. Who are doing the work?

III. What instruction or what leadership have the workers?

IV. What encouragements or discouragements do they experience?

V. Is the work organized in any way? How?

VI. Are your workers making use of Rev. J. M. Janzen's, Hesston, Kans., "Helps for Christian Workers?"

Yours in His glad service, J. B. E.

What It Is, And What It Is Not

It is a form of "Home Mission" work. It is work beginning in our own hearts and homes, extending into our nearest neighborhoods. It may include work in the churches. If so, this must be done in full accord with the work done by the church. Principally, however, this work is to be done outside of the churches, "For Christ and His Church"!

There are so many sick, old, weak, poor, dissatisfield, pleasure-seeking, negligent, backsliding, even fallen away, unconverted, in and around the churches, whom the regular services of the church may not reach. Here is much to do for Our Lord!

The line between the work by the church and this cannot, and need not be, drawn so closely. All is to be done for the Lord and for one and the same purpose. Yet often "independent" workers not directly sent by the church are more readily received by some, perhaps prejudiced people, especially by those outside of the church. Independent workers are not so easily looked upon as "proselyters," i.e., as such who perhaps want to win members of one church over to another.

The work is really to be non-denomniational—for Jesus—not for a particular church. People should be pointed to a church; but let them choose for themselves which church they wish to join later on. Workers should point or lead them to a church which has the true Gospel. This work is not for the purpose of organizing new churches, or to draw anyone away from a church, but solely to help spread the Gospel in our neighborhoods and bring comfort and encouragement to those who need it.

Here then is an opportunity for practical Christianity, a work of Love! This is also real "Christian Endeavor" work, a mission work nearest home, in which anyone can have a part who wishes to be useful in the Lord's service. This work fits in nicely with the general movement of "Evangelizing America." Not "americanizing," or "world betterment" only, or entertainment. It is also to help towards the great general revival, such as all spiritually-minded people long for.

More of "what" this work is, will be shown under the headings, 2. Why.—3. Who.—4. Where and When. —5. How.

The writer fully realizes, that this is nothing new, as stated, already, but much more, very much more, should be done in this line. There are "mountains" of such work all about us!

Next then, Why such work?

An Explanation Regarding the Young People's Retreat

The Western District Conference Young People's Retreat is now in session at Camp Wood from July 25-30. Your committee has again tried to arrange for a program that shall attempt to meet the needs of our young people. The retreat folders and advance registration cards have been mailed to the various churches. Many of the young people have already sent in their advance registrations of 50 cents, thus enabling them to attend the 5 day retreat for a total of $6.50. In some of our literature a mistake was made in the time limit when advance registrations should be in. Instead of July 10 it should have been July 20.

Since the camp is owned and operated by the Kansas Y. M. C. A. and is not our own, it is necessary in order to obtain the camp for retreat purposes that your committee sign an agreement with the camp administration. Among the various items agreed to, the following may be of interest to the parents and friends of retreaters:

"The conference agrees to do their best to encourage persons coming to any retreat sessions to take regular meals in the dining room and thus help cover the overhead on grounds, buildings, lake, etc. Picnicking is to be discouraged. Advance notice is to be given for meals where possible."

The price for meals is 50 cents a meal for those here only for one or two meals, or 40 cents a meal for three or more meals. The reason for these somewhat high prices is that the price of the meal also carries with it all of the camp privileges.

We are looking forward to a good retreat and solicit your prayers that the objective of the retreaters may be attained with the young people.

The Retreat Committee.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

A. S. BECHTEL

August 6, 1939

ELIJAH: A LIFE OF COURAGE

1 Kings 18:30-39

TOPIC: The Courage of Our Convictions

Introduction

In today's lesson we turn to the northern kingdom, Israel, whose first king, Jeroboam, led his people astray by setting up two golden calves as the gods of Israel. About 60 years later Ahab came to the throne. He was the most wicked king in the history of the northern kingdom. Religion was at a very low ebb. It was an evil day for Israel when he married Jezebel, the infamous daughter of the king of Phoenecia. Ahab, in his weakness, permitted her to bring her religion, Baal worship and her gods. She too inaugurated the first persecution of the Jewish Church. In this crisis, God used Elijah to save the nation from surrendering to Baal worship.

What Elijah Did vs. 30-35

Elijah stood forth in solitary, heroic grandeur. He had faith in God to risk all upon His word. He stood single-handed for God, one against 450 prophets of Baal. He proposed what seemed a daring test (vs. 23-25) so the people would know that Jehovah is God. He had Jehovah's word for this and risked all upon that. He knew that he was right and that Jehovah is the true God. The prophets of Baal failed in their part of the test (vs 26-29). Elijah called the people near to him to watch and see all. He gave himself wholly to God's plan, acted according to His word and dealt fairly with his enemies (vs. 33-35), precluding all possibility of trickery on his part. He repaired the broken-down altar, the necessary beginning of reformation in a backslidden nation. He built an altar "in the name of the Lord" with twelve stones (vs 31, 32), impressing upon the people the essential unity of all the tribes in their worship of God. Elijah proceeded quietly, fully trusting in God—in marked contrast with the prophets of Baal (vs 26, 28).

How Elijah prayed vs. 36-39

Elijah felt sure of the God whom he served and he wanted all the people to know that He is the true God (v 36). This was his supreme desire. The impotence of Baal was clearly demonstrated, now he prayed that God show to these people His power as the true God and that He is doing this to turn their hearts from idolatry to Himself (v37). Elijah prayed to the living God, as His obedient servant. He prayed earnestly, believingly and God answered his courageous faith. The evidence of this miraculous answer to Elijah's prayer (v38) was so prompt and so convincing that the people acknowledged Jehovah as their God. They recognized in the fire which "fell" the token of God's presence. God answered far beyond Elijah's expectation (v38). God answers His trusting and courageous children beyond their fondest hopes.

The Courage of Our Convictions

It is easy to follow the crowd. Our convictions may at times lead us to take our stand against popular sentiment. In matters of morals, of religious beliefs, of public policy, we should take our stand for what we sincerely believe to be right. Our convictions should not be for sale, regardless of any pressure brought upon us. The world, the Church needs more people with the convictions and courage of an Elijah. Every follower of God should be true to his convictions.

Must Bethel College Increase Its Debt?

In our Bethel College bulletins and other Mennonite publications of the last few weeks, we have been making appeals to our friends for contributions to help us balance our current budget. For the last six years we have been able to do this and besides also to reduce our indebtedness a little each year. This year, however, we are finding it harder to balance our budget than at any time since I have been president of this institution.

This is due not so much to an increase in the budget as to a decrease in gifts as was shown by a chart in a late bulletin. We realize that this decrease in gifts is due mainly to the general economic situation of our territory brought on by last year's wheat harvest and prices.

However, we are still hopeful. If everyone helps as much as he can now, it can still be done. As you may know there is much more at stake this year than ever before. It is our first year of membership in the North Central Association, and it would not be well to end the year with an added indebtedness.

Our fiscal year ends August 1, and our books for the year are closed on that day. So any contributions for this year's budget must be in before that time. Many of you have again manifested your belief in Christian education by sending in your contributions. Some have responded with one hundred dollar checks, but smaller gifts are also welcome. We are deeply grateful to those who have responded and hope many more will do so at once. We need your help to keep from increasing the debt. Do it now!

Gratefully yours,
Ed. G. Kaufman, President

—A Word of Appreciation.—We were very glad to read in the Mennonite of July 11, a 1939 Prophesy, "Thus Saith the Lord," by Karl Baehr. That is real Poetry and not shallow rhyme. I would call it a classic. The Bible as used in the poem gives it additional attraction. But, of course, the big thing is the deep thought so poetically expressed—C. C. Epp.

SERMON SKETCH

HOW DO I KNOW THAT I AM A CHRISTIAN?

by Rev. Herbert E. Miller, Deer Creek, Oklahoma

Today many people are troubled because they live in uncertainty as to whether or not they have really accepted God's plan of salvation, and having accepted it, whether they are living as true Christians should live. This lack of conviction prohibits them from experiencing that peace and joy which only those can have who know that they are true children of God. There is really no need for this uncertainty and confusion, because God gave a plan of salvation which is simple enough for all to understand. Every one can live with that assurance which the Apostle Paul possessed: "I know whom I have believed, and am persuaded that he is able to keep that which I have committed unto him against that day." (2 Tim. 1:12).

How then may we receive that assurance that we are redeemed and are true followers of Christ? God's plan of Salvation is contained in John 3:16: "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." That is what God did for us. Our response must consist of the following two steps: believe and obey.

I. Believe: We must believe in Jesus as our Savior from sin. "Neither is there salvation in any other, for there is none other name under heaven, given among men, whereby we must be saved." (Acts 4:12). We know we are saved on the authority of God's Word. In John 3:36 we read: "He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life . . . . " Also in I John 5:11, 12, we read: "This is the record, that God hath given to us eternal life, and this life is in his Son. He that hath the Son hath life: and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life."

If we have received Jesus, we know that we are a child of God. In John 1:12 it is written: "But as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God." If we really strive to be followers of Christ, we have a right to know that we are justified, that our sins are forgiven, and that God counts us righteous in Christ. This assurance is given us in His divine Word: "Be it known unto you therefore, men and brethren, that through this man is preached unto you the forgiveness of sins: And by him all that believe are justified from all things . . . . " (Acts 13:38, 39).

If we believe these portions of scripture, we have no right to doubt that we are saved of God.

II. Obey: Having the full assurance in our heart that we have accepted God's plan of salvation and that we have forgiveness of sins, how then do we know that we are living as true followers of Christ should live? The answer is to live in obedience to God's will as manifested through the Holy Spirit, and through His Word, which gives us the supreme example of obedience, Jesus Christ. Instinctive obedience marks every thought, word, and action in the life of our Lord here on earth. His foremost thought was "Not as I will, but as Thou wilt," (Matt. 26:39) and "My meat is to do the will of him that sent me, and to finish his work." (John 4:34). Rev. Charles Beam states: "We sing the song 'Jesus has set the example, dauntless was He, young and brave' and we might well add a new line: 'Obedient was He to the end.'" Jesus subordinated all of His immediate impulses to God's will, and by so doing found the life which delighted the Father.

Certainly no one can enter the fulness of blessing to be found in Christ without absolute obedience to Him. We must follow His commandments. We must obey His principles as revealed by His life here on earth. The way of obedience is the route of crucifixion, the route of self-denial, the route of complete surrender. The world considers this the unpopular way. It costs too much for the masses; they are not willing to pay the price. Men have invented "easy ways" to live a Christian life, but there is only "one true way" and that is living the life of complete submission to the heavenly Father's will.

No one can live a faultless life, but all can live up to their highest understanding of God's will as revealed in His Word. No Christian can do this in his own strength, but must constantly ask for help to obey God's leading. It might be well if we would keep the words of the following poem in mind:

"Oh! write thy wondrous law divine
Upon the tables of my heart,
That I may keep thy statutes, Lord,
And never from thy way depart."

If we believe and obey we KNOW by the authority of God's Word that we are redeemed and have eternal life in Him.

Oklahoma Convention

to be held August 27-28, 1939, in the City Auditorium, at Fairview, Okla.

PROPOSED RESOLUTIONS AND RECOMMENDATIONS FOR WESTERN DISTRICT C. E. CONVENTION

Missions: Whereas, the mission board needs funds for native helpers in China, mass evangelism in South India and worker's salaries at home, resolved, that we redouble our mission efforts both on the foreign and home mission fields.

Retreat: Whereas, the retreat of last August was a great inspiration to our young people, resolved that we endorse the third annual Elmdale retreat and urge the young people to attend it to relax and re-consecrate themselves.

Peace: 1. Resolved that our peace goal be the Peace of Christ in our hearts and lives; 2. Resolved, that we promote peace by: a) reading Christian peace literature, b) authorizing another oratory contest, c) supporting the Kansas Institute of International Relations, and d) cooperating with the Young People's Union of the General Conference of North America and urging them to present plans for cooperative peace action.

Standards: Resolved that we actively promote a youth look-out system within the district which endeavors to keep in active contact with all our young people between the ages of fifteen and thirty.

Recommendations: 1) We recommend that a Western District Y. P. Peace Rally be held on August 20, 1939.

2) We recommend the support of our district in securing a separate young people's paper for the General Conference.

Respectfully submitted,

Resolutions Committee, Roger V. Regier, Florence Krehbiel, and Harley Stucky, chairman.—Western District Tidings.

BEAUTY AS AN AID TO WORSHIP

Revelation 21:10-27

Senior C. E. Topic for August 6, 1939

Purpose of Meeting: Last week we tried opening our eyes to the beauty all about us, especially to the beauty which we cannot see because we are too familiar with it. Today our topic again is beauty, this time with the emphasis on how we may improve our worship of God with the aid of beauty.

The meeting should be conducted in a spirit of quietness, sincerity, and reverence. To that end, the room might be illuminated only by candle light, and while the members are gathering and taking their seats, soft instrumental music might be played.

Worship Service:

Hymns: "Come Thou Almighty King," "Now the Day Is Over," "Joyful, Joyful, We Adore Thee" ("Hymn to Joy"), "O God, Our Help in Ages Past," "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God," "Dear Lord and Father of Mankind."

Call to Worship: "Glory and honor are in his presence; strength and gladness are in his place. Give unto the Lord, ye kindreds of the people, give unto the Lord glory and strength. Give unto the Lord the glory due unto his name: bring an offering, and come before him; worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness." I Chron. 16:27-29.

Prayer: "We thank Thee, O God, for the church, for the Sabbath calm, for the beauty of quiet hours. Let us guard them well and use them for our soul's health and well-being. Amen."

Leader's Introduction:

Years and years ago, when our Mennonite ancestors worshipped God on Sunday mornings, they did so in bare white buildings devoid of any beautifying touch. The congregation sang the old familiar hymns in unison, without the aid of a piano or organ of any kind, for musical instruments were considered sinful. We are proud of those ancestors, of their devout faith and courage, and we are thankful for the heritage of belief and example they have given us.

Those people thought very little about beauty in architecture or of any accompaniments and adornements to the church worship service. Today we think they are almost a necessity. Are we right in working to make the outward appearance of our services beautiful? Do they truly help to bridge the space between our everyday lives and problems and the infinite beauty and unselfishness and magnitude of the Almighty? In what ways may we use beauty as an aid to worship?

Suggestions for Talks

1. Church architecture and design an aid to worship.

2. Music as an aid to worship.

3. Lovely literature, both sacred and secular, as an aid to worship.

4. Beautiful physical symbols, such as crosses, candles, candelabra, altar furniture, and the like, as aids to worship.

5. Pictures, especially the great masterpieces of Christian art, as aids to worship.

6. Beauty in the world of nature as an aid to worship.

Questions for Discussion

1. Do physical surroundings have anything to do with true communion between man and God?

2. Do you feel that in this day too much emphasis is already placed on the aids to worshipping, such as rolling organ tones, soft carpets, expertly trained choir voices, etc., instead of on the worship itself?

3. In a spirit of constructive criticism, what might be added or taken away from your own church service to increase the beauty of worship?

4. Do we worship any more effectively in our large beautiful churches than our great grandparents did in their small, white, bare churches?

5. What responsibility has each member of a church congregation in maintaining or adding to the beauty of church worship?

Daily Readings

M., July 31. "The beauty of holiness." I Chron. 16:27-30.

A CHRISTIAN CAN BE DEPENDED UPON

Intermediate C. E. Topic for Aug. 6, 1939

For Daily Reading:

July 31. Priscilla and Aquila. Rom. 16:3, 4.
Aug. 1. Timothy. Phil. 2:19-24.
Aug. 2. Epaphroditus. Phil. 2:25-30.
Aug. 3. Tychicus. Col. 4:7-9.
Aug. 4. One that became dependable. Acts 15:36-40; 2 Tim. 4:11.
Aug. 5. The Corinthian church. 2 Cor. 7:13-16.
Aug. 6. Topic. Luke 16:10-12.

Opening Song: "Trust and Obey"

Scripture Reading by Superintendent. We believe it would be very worthwhile to have the superintendent giv a brief talk on these verses.

Prayer by leader.

Song: "Love Divine, All Love Excelling"

Talk by your Pastor on the passage in Acts 15:36-40.

Thought on topic by leader: "Depend on no man, on no friend but him who can depend upon himself. He only who acts conscientiously toward himself will act so toward others." Lavater.

The dictionary definition of the word depend is "to be sustained by being fastened or attached to something above." Surely we realize that those on whom we feel we can depend are Christians. They are those who do not depend upon their own abilities but upon the help of God.

The thought of being depended upon links itself with the thought of steadfastness. We are displeased when we find someone who can only be depended upon occasionally. Steadfastness lies close to the root of all virtues. In our discussion we want to determine how this virtue makes itself felt and how it can be developed.

Song: "Purer yet and Purer"

Topics for discussion:

1. What is a friend worth who is not steadfast in his friendship?

2. What may happen to an organiaztion if there are members who cannot be depended upon?

3. What happens between nations which cannot depend upon each other to stay faithful to treaties or agreements?

4. How do we find out which people can be depended upon?

5. What qualities do the people upon whom we can depend, have?

6. Have you ever had the experience of having misplaced your confidence in someone upon whom you thought you could depend?

Song: "I Know in Whom I Put My Trust"
Offering
Announcements

Unison reading of Luke 16:10-12. This should have a greater meaning after your discussion. Let this be used as the challenge.

Closing Prayer: "Let the words of my mouth, and the meditation of my heart, be acceptable in Thy sight, O Lord, my strength, and my Redeemer." Psa. 19:14.

Song for month: "One Sweetly Solemn Thought."

OTHER GIFTS GOD GIVES US

Suggested Program for August 6, 1939

"Precious Time"—Psalm 90:12.

Leader should prepare a large cardboard clock face, with movable hands. Instead of the numerals on the clock, however, the following twelve words should be printed in their place: Seek ye the Lord while He may be found, Call Upon Him." Smaller duplicates may be made for the Junior to pin on and take home.

Introduction.—School is over, has been for a long time, even Vacation Bible School is long past and now so many, many Juniors do not know what to do, are not as happy as they might be because they waste their time.

A Persian fable tells of a man, who, while he was walking along the sea shore one day, found a very beautiful little box or chest. He opened it and found a great quantity of white, red, yellow, green, and blue stones, all small but beautiful. He took them out of the box and began to play with them, enjoying their sparkle and glitter as the sun fell upon them. But by and by he got tired of this and began to throw them at the sea gulls as they dipped and rose and flew over the water. At last he had only one small stone left. He took this home with him. It happened that a jeweler saw this and became greatly excited, saying that it was a precious jewel of untold value. Then the man began to weep bitterly. He had had a whole handful of priceless jewels and he had thrown them one by one into the sea.

And what does this fable teach? The sea is the sea of time, upon whose shore we now stand. You and I are the man who had the jewels. The jewels are the precious minutes, days and hours that are past. The only one that still belongs to us is the "now." The time we have. And Time is of far greater value than the most precious jewels. It cannot be bought with money. It is a gift that God gives, to some more to others less, but He gives enough to everyone so that each may do his work and prepare for that time when there is not time, eternity.

So, dear Juniors, let us think of this precious gift tonight that we may not waste it but (leader use large clock face and move hands to words as all read in unison) "Seek ye the Lord while He may be found, call upon Him."

I. Worship Service:

1. Prelude—Pianist plays—"Take Time To Be Holy."
2. Song—"I Need Thee Every Hour."
3. Scripture—By a Juniors—Psalm 90:1, 2, 4, 10, 12, and 14.
4. Leader's Prayer.
5. Solo—"One Sweetly Solemn Thought"

II. Mission Minutes.

Let several Juniors tell something of interest that they have read or heard about missions.

III. Study Period.

Aim: To help our Juniors to make the best use of the time they now have.

1. Two minute talks by four Juniors.
    a. We should use our time to gain useful knowledge
    b. We should use our time to memorize songs, poems and chapters from the Bible.
    c. We should use our time to read God's Word and to pray.
    d. We should use our time to work for Jesus.
2. Song—"Work for the Night Is Coming."
3. Poem: Ecclesiastes 3:1-12.
4. Song—"One More Day's Work for Jesus."
5. Bible Drill: Ps. 32:6; Ps. 41:1; Ps. 56:3 Ps. 69:13; Ps. 89:47a; Ps. 90:12; Hosea 10:12b; Rom. 13:11; 1 Cor. 7:29a; Isa. 49:8a; Heb. 4:16; John 9:4; Isa. 55:6; 2 Cor. 6:2; Col. 4:5; Rev. 1:3; Rev. 10:6b.
6. Solo—"Take Time to be Holy."
7. Leader's Closing prayer.

An Ardent Church Worker Becomes Pastor

"Dallas (Oregon) Itemizer," June 15 — Homer Leisy, well known decorator and business man of Salem, has disposed of his drapery business and accepted the pastorate of the Dallas Grace Mennonite church.

Mr. Leisy has always been very active in religious circles, using his spare time to preach the gospel. Being artistically inclined, he often presents his messages through the medium of charts, cartoons and sketches. He has also been used extensively as an evangelist and is well known throughout the United States, especially in Mennonite circles. He is secretary of the Pacific District Conference, which just convened at Monroe, Washington.

For the past 12 years he has been superintendent of the Sunday school at Pratum, where on June 4 the entire congregation surprised the Leisys in a celebration of appreciation and fellowship in their honor. After a banquet dinner served cafeteria style, a farewell program was given in the church auditorium. Representatives of the various departments of the church spoke in appreciation of the faithful services rendered and extended good wishes for the new work. The pastor, Rev. J. M. Franz, gave a short message and also presented a gift of a set of Dr. Gabelein's Annotated Bible reference books from the Sunday school, to which Mr. Leisy responded with a short talk.

The people of Grace Mennonite church, as well as the city of Dallas, are happy to welcome these new workers and assure them of their hearty cooperation.

The church building is nearing completion, and it is hoped to have the auditorium completed in time for Mr. Leisy's ordination, which was recommended by the conference and which is to take place in the local church in thé near future.

The lower floor is completed and is being used for church services at present. The church, when completed, will be a credit to the city. Services are all in the English language. An object lesson usually precedes the preaching service.

This friendly church extends a cordial welcome to all.

—"The religion of our fathers is one of the great elements of stability of our lives. It couldn't be run on yesterday's push. If it's going to be important to-morrow, its promotion is youth's charge."

A Respect and Love for College

By Robert Kreider, Bethel College

A decade or two ago a familiar illustration of graduation was that of a ship of seniors sailing forth into the sea of life, leaving behind them the safe and secure pier of their alma mater. Undergraduates today scoff at such lush sentimentalism.

But is it not true that we seniors should recapture something of that sense of awe as we leave Bethel? It was something of the feeling our parents had toward their alma maters a generation ago. We view college as simply a four-year segment in our life. Unique, but no more significant than four years of high school or the four years after graduation.

This may be our attitude but it is certainly rather shallow. College for most of us is the most revolutionary period in our lives. It is here where we form our most lasting friendships, some of which become companionships for life. It is here where our prejudices are battered by new ideas. We come forth from college with a firmer, deeper philosophy of life. It is here where we plot our occupational future. It is here where we reaffirm the Christian, democratic way of life.

If we would but sense the real importance of the role which college has played in our lives, we might recapture again that wholesome feeling of awe as we take our leave of the undergraduate world.

IN MEMORIAM

FRIEDERICKA A. ENGLER NAUERT was born Dec. 26, 1859, at Rosenfeldt, Germany, and came to Pulaski, Iowa, with her parents, at the age of eleven years. She was baptized upon her confession of faith in Christ and received into the Pulaski Mennonite church in 1885. On Sept. 21, 1887, she was united in marriage to Frederick Nauert and came with him to Washington Territory to make their home, for a time at Almota. She bravely accustomed herself to the trials and hardships of pioneer life.

The religious devotion which characterized her long life was manifested in her young womanhood, as she became a charter member of the Mennonite church near Colfax, Wash. at its organization in 1893, and continued a faithful and willing supporter of the church until her husband passed away in 1921. After that she made her home in Pullman for ten years, then at Colfax until her decease.

In January she sustained a hip fracture in a fall and suffered much since then. She passed away quietly on Mother's Day, May 14, 1939, attaining the age of 79 years, 4 months, 18 days. Among the bereaved ones are the following: an adopted son, Justin, at Colfax; one sister, Pauline Reschke of Pratt, Kansas; four nephews and one niece, as well as other more distant relatives and friends.

Funeral services were held May 17, conducted by her pastor, W. H. King, assisted by Rev. E. C. Newham of the Colfax Methodist church. Interment at the Colfax cemetery.

BENJAMIN A. UNRUH, son of Andrew and Anna Becker Unruh, was born at Carlswalde, Russia, and passed out of this life on June 29, 1939, at Hillsboro, Kansas, thus attaining the age of 67 years, 8 months, 15 days.

In the year 1874 his parents came to America to make their home at Dundee, Kansas. While still a child of 6 to 8 years, both of his parents passed away. His grandmother and Aunt Nettie took care of him, his two brothers and sister. Not long after his grandmother and aunt also passed on and these children were left alone to make their livelihood.

In the year 1895 he was baptized by Rev. Peter H. Dirks and became a member of the Bergthal Mennonite church at Pawnee Rock, Kansas, continuing as such until his end. On October 15, 1895, he entered the bonds of holy matrimony with Mary Dirks. This union was blessed with twelve children, five of whom preceded their father in death. The couple have shared their joys and sorrows for more than 44 years. Father Unruh tilled a farm north of Hillsboro, Kansas, until about two years ago, when he retired and made their home in Hillsboro, Kansas.

He was always well and strong, until about eight years ago, when he became troubled with asthma and later with complications that caused his death. During his illness he was very patient and took his problems to the Lord, looking forward to the time when he should be with Him. The departed leaves to mourn his death his sorrowing wife, seven children, four sons-in-law, two daughters-in-law, twelve grandchildren; one sister, Mrs. Ben. B. Unruh of Larned, Kansas, and many relatives and friends.—The Family.

RALPH J. SCHRAG, son of Andrew C. and Mary Schrag, was born in the Menno District, Washington, October 2, 1902. When but a boy of three years, his father passed away very suddenly, following an acciient, so that he never had the vital touch of the life and heart of his father. Nevertheless it was his privilege to grow to manhood under the tender care and touch of his loving mother. On May 5, 1920, he was baptized upon his confession of faith in the Lord Jesus Christ and united with the Menno Mennonite church, remaining a faithful member thereof until his end. For many years Ralph with his brother have been taking care of the home ranch and providing for their mother. Wednesday, June 21, on his way home from a neighbor, he very suddenly met with an auto accident. In an unconscious state he was rushed to the Sacred Heart Hospital at Spokane and there passed away the same evening, quietly, attaining an age of 36 years, 8 months, 19 days. Leaves to mourn his passing, his mother, 2 brothers, 2 sisters, and many other relatives and friends. Funeral services were conducted at the Menno Mennonite church and interment was made in the Mennonite cemetery near th church, Saturday, June 24, Rev. M. J. Galle of Odessa officiating.

MRS. DAVID KRAEMER, daughter of Samuel and Katherine Haury, was born near Trenton, Clinton County, Ill. on December 28, 1868. For more than a year, she was suffering with neuritis until death relieved her on Saturday, July 8, 1939. She attained the age of 70 years, 6 months, and 10 days.

On May 3, 1883, she was baptized by Rev. J. E. Krehbiel and received into the fellowship of the Summerfield Mennonite Church of which she remained a member until her death.

On August 30, 1915, she was united in marriage with David Kraemer. They made their home on a farm near Trenton where they resided until about one year ago when they moved to Trenton where she passed away.

She leaves to mourn her husband, one sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Kraemer, besides many nieces and nephews and other relatives and friends. Funeral services were held on Tuesday afternoon, July 11 in the Mennonite Church at Summerfield and were in charge of the pastor of the church. Interment was made in the Summerfield cemetery.

—First Church, Upland, Calif.—Dr. Abraham Warkentin of Bethel College is expected to be with us August 6, 7, 8 and possibly the 9th for special services. He is scheduled to be at Lake Sequoia for the Young People's Retreat, August 21 to 26.

—Rev. Elmer Basinger of Summerfield, Ill. writes: "For about two months I was laid up as the result of an auto accident. I am glad to be able to report that I have recovered so that I can again do my church work."

MISSIONARIES CELEBRATING ANNIVERSARY OF SERVICE

Lame Deer, Montana, 7-15-39.

Dear Brother Editor:

It may interest you to know that the date for the celebration of the 35th anniversary since the beginning of our mission work here in Montana has been set for July 28 to 30. Just had word that Bro. M. Horsch can be with us then, of which we are very glad. Then we feel fortunate that Bro. and Sister P. A. Kliewer can be with us at that time also. The latter are visiting some of their children in this vicinity at this time. Bro. and Sister Habegger expect to return from their short vacation some time next week. Bro. and Sister R. Petter are, as you know, away on an extended trip in Switzerland and so will not be present at this celebration. Mrs. Laura Petter, Miss Gibbs and Miss Buller are on the field and Mrs. Linscheid and myself. We have been here now for 6 weeks to help out during the present time and especially at the celebration. It is 35 years now since Mrs. Linscheid and I came to what is now Busby to begin mission work here. A new generation has grown up since and a different spirit prevails, but we are glad that the Lord finds His own in spite of all changes.—

G. A. Linscheid.

— Wedding.—Miss Mildred Landis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Landis of Quakertown, Pa., was given in marriage to Mr. Wilmer George, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel George of Trumbaursville, Pa., at the East Swamp Mennonite Church near Quakertown, on Saturday, July 1st at 2:00 P. M. The wedding vows were received by the Rev. Harold D. Burkholder, pastor at the East Swamp Church.

— From Hanston, Kansas, out of the Dust Bowl, where they have had practically no rain, Rev. A. S. Bechtel writes: This continued hot, windy, dusty weather makes one feel much depressed physically and the mental faculties do not seem to function as they should. But last evening and during the night we had an inch of lovely, gentle rain.

— Mountain Lake, Minnesota. — Heavy yields of grain are reported. Shocks are thick and bundles heavy. First binders were used and later, in places, combines. Most corn is now so tall that it can no longer be cultivated. The tradition "knee-high by the 4th of July" is far surpassed this year. Stalks of corn 9 and 10 feet high are on exhibit.—Mt. Lake Observer.

— First Church, Reedley, Calif.—Rev. R. Weinbrenner will have charge of the services the next four Sundays and will be ready to serve in the capacity of minister and pastor in other ways. Dr. Langenwalter plans to find some real rest during the month set aside for his vacation, June 17 to August 17, to bring recuperation for the service to be rendered in the future.

— Rev. W. C. Voth and Family arrived in Vancouver, from China, June 28th, where they were met by Rev. J. B. Wiens and taken to their home. On their way to California they stopped at the Washington and Oregon churches. After spending a few days in San Francisco they are now at Mrs. Voth's sister in Glendale. They will remain there a few weeks resting and also visiting the California churches before coming to Kansas. The family is well and have enjoyed the trip and hospitality of friends along the way.—Mrs. Oscar Schmidt.

— The Young People Conference, held at Grace Church, Pandora, Ohio, recently, was well attended and the program was instructive and interesting. Instead of Dr. A. C. Schultz speaking he asked his father, the Rev. George Schultz, pastor of the Brighton Menn. Church, Chicago, to substitute for him. The conference accepted the invitation of the Young People of Berne, Ind. to hold next year's session there.—D. J. U.

— Married.—At the Salem Mennonite Church, near Freeman, S. D., Miss Celeste Schroeder, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. P. R. Schroeder, to George Dehnert of Lodi, Wis., by the father of the bride. After a two-weeks honey-moon trip to Yellowstone Park, the couple will be at home in Lodi, Wis. where Mr. Dehnert is vocational agriculture instructor in the public schools, and where Mrs. Schroeder Dehnert has also taught.

— Freeman, South Dak.—The drop in land prices during the years of depression has been quite common the country over. But scarcely anywhere has it been as tragic, one might almost say, as in South Dakota, including the settlements of our Mennonite brethren. For about fifty years, they knew practically nothing of crop failures. Then the proverbial seven lean years set in, drouth, hoppers and other insect pests did their damage. Now land that once sold for $150.00 an acre has been bought for $20.00. But with undaunted courage these good Christian people hold out, trusting God for better days, and continuing their support of churches, their college and conference activities, as well as more prosperous sections. This year conditions are somewhat improved.

— Berne, Indiana is quite an industrial town. 1897 the start was made by Peter Longacker with an overall factory. In 1903 a large stone block building was erected to house the plant, and Bro. Jacob P. Habegger was made manager of the enterprise, "The Berne Manufacturing Co." The firm is now 39 years old, employs 100 or more people, and its 35 stockholders make it essentially a community enterprise. The town also has furniture factories and a cedar chest factory. Its bank, "The First Bank of Berne," has assets amounting to nearly $1,800,000. The people are mostly Swiss or of Swiss parentage.

Reading maketh a full man; conference, a ready man; and writing, an exact man.

EDITORIALS

A WORD TO OUR CONTRIBUTORS.—To clear up possible misunderstandings the editor would like to have contributors to THE MENNONITE note the following: Kindly remember that the paper is a WEEKLY, printed at a certain time in the week, namely either Saturday afternoon or the following Monday morning, according to the availability of help in the Bethel College printshop, and goes into the mail Monday afternoon. The editor turns the bulk of the material for the coming week's issue, editorials, mission reports, special articles, S. S. lesson help, sermon sketches, conference and convention programs, the matter for Y. P. pages, correspondences, etc. over to the printers on each Thursday morning; jottings, and belated matter if not too long on Friday. Short announcements and matter that requires haste may be handled even Saturday morning, but always at the risk of having to replace other material. If contributors will kindly clip this information, preserve it and be guided by it, disappointment could be avoided. Contributors and readers will also do well to remember that some material must have the right of way over other, about in this order: General conference, district conferences, organizations, individual contributions; also that historical matter such as reports of past meetings, addresses already given, obituaries, etc. may have to be deferred to give room for current matter. Particular attention should be given to the fact that programs of meetings should be sent in early, say from 3-4 weeks (or even earlier by choice), previous to the time of their occurence, so that they may reach the readers in good time.—T.

A PERTINENT WORD TO OUR READERS.—Are you reading and making use of the four pages in THE MENNONITE under the caption, "OUR YOUTH SAYS", or are you one of such that the editor has met who pass over this section? If you belong to this latter group you are missing some interesting and valuable food for meditation. You older people, you middle aged, you young people may I not prevail on you to go through the Senior, Intermediate and Junior C. E. lessons, thoughtfully, for a few weeks. You will be apt to agree with me that they are immensely worth while, and you will then be likely to continue availing yourself of their spiritual uplift regularly. Particularly parents who are interested in the spiritual welfare of their children will find much help in them. Referring to some recent Junior lessons, we have one, "Beneath the Stars," where in song, memory work, talk and discussion the vastness and wonders of God's universe is studied. How interesting, how helpful for growth in reverence for God! Another lesson is on "Being a Good Citizen." To ponder the many simple characteristics of a good citizen brought out in the lesson will help any one more greatly to appreciate his privileges and duties as a citizen or one in the making. Read and ponder especially the one on "God's Precious Time" and you will be charmed. Then take the Intermediate lessons. You will have to agree that just the titles are interesting. But you will find a perusal of the outlines much more so, and of definite value to you. Note these lesson topics, "Why Young Men and Young Women Become Missionaries," "How To Be Patriotic in a Christian Way," "What Shall We Do When We Have Nothing TO DO?" "Standards for Christian Conduct," etc. Note also some of the topics for Senior C. E.: "Serving the Master"; "Good Times in the Home"; "The Beauty of the Commonplace"; "Beauty as an Aid to Worship"; etc. Last but not least the timely introductory articles from the editor-in-chief have much that is of value and deserves careful reading. DEAR READER: If you make thoughtful use of what "OUR YOUTH SAYS," week after week, your MENNONITE will double in value to you.—T.

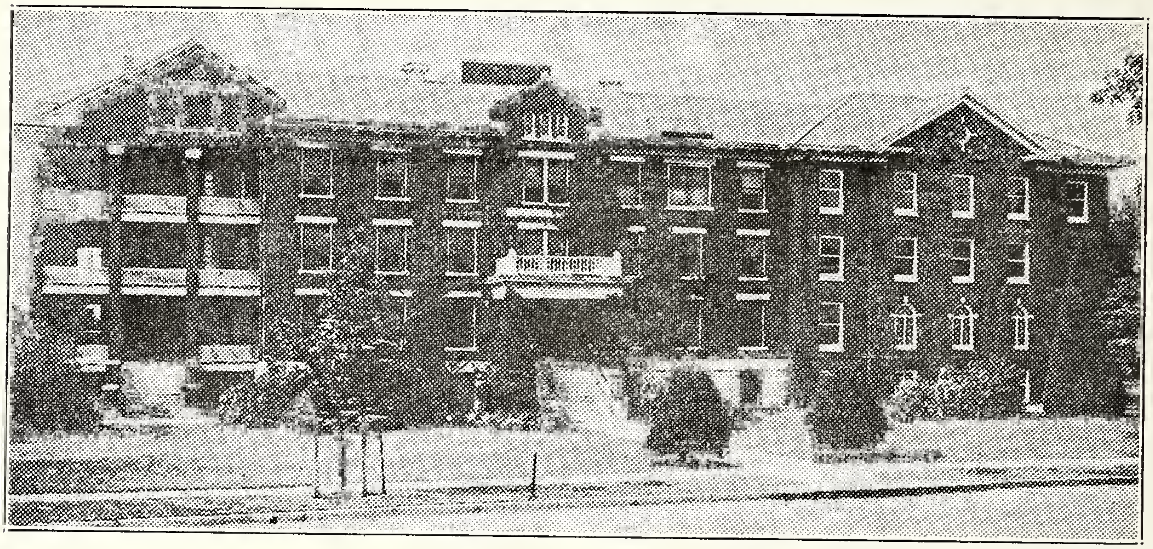
STEADY SOWING.—Read Eccl. 11:1-8. — A farmer's work is at haphazard. He can never be sure of a good crop. Rains may fail or floods may come. It may be too hot or it may be too cold. There are grasshoppers and locusts to eat up his harvests, and innumerable insect pests to destroy his handiwork.

So the farmer's only course is to diversify his crops and put an abundance of seed in the ground at different times for sowing. Then one or the other planting will be quite certain to prove successful.

Nor is it otherwise with our spiritual seed-sowing. Our life-conditions vary and our tempers vary. Sometimes a single Bible verse or a sentence of prayer will bring us greater blessing than many chapters or long petitions. But the steady sowing counts in the end.

Bethel Deaconess Hospital with New Addition, Housing the Clinic at the Right



Dedication of the New Addition to the Bethel Hospital at Newton, Kansas

The constantly growing Bethel Deaconess Hospital, a Mennonite Institution at Newton, Kans., has just completed its New Hospital Addition, to provide room for a clinic and more patient's quarters. The Addition was dedicated at First Mennonite Church, Sunday July 23, at three o'clock.

After an inspiring instrumental prelude, Rev. J. E. Entz, president of the Hospital Board of Directors, offered the invocation and presided over the meeting. Rev. C. E. Krehbiel, president of the General Conference, read the 27th Psalm and offered a very fitting prayer. Then followed greetings and words of appreciation of the progress of the Hospital by J. M. Regier, chairman of the W. D. Conference; Hon. Edgar Bennett, mayor of Newton; Rev. J. E. Lander, president of the State Hospital Association, and members of the medical staff, introduced by its president, Dr. Edwin Harms, namely, Dr. R. S. Haury and Dr. V. L. Pauley, director of the Clinic.

Dr. Haury, the only one of the original doctors left, speaking a little more at length, said in part: The New Addition to the Hospital serves a twofold purpose: relieving the cramped situation due to the increase in the number of patients and providing adequate quarters for carrying on the work of the newly organized Bethel Clinic. The physicians will have on the first floor consultation and treatment rooms, business offices for the Clinic, dentist offices, and ample room for a reception hall. In the basement there are suitable rooms for a clinic library, for a laboratory, for the department of physio-therapy and pharmacy. The business manager, Mr. Paul Kliewer, the dentist, Dr. Karl Kurz and the entire group of physicians are happy to begin their work in this magnificent structure where we can serve our clients better, grouped in one organization.

Patients of mine have asked two essential questions: 1. "What are the advantages of a clinic?" The reply is, A group of doctors can render better and more efficient service to the patients." Medical science is undergoing changes by leaps and bounds. One individual cannot keep abreast of the times in all phases of medicine on this account. In a group, cooperation and team work makes it possible to adopt newer methods more readily and to apply them to the care of patients, to have more consultations and liberal discussions.—2. "Will I in the clinic be deprived of the opportunity of using my family physician?" The answer is: You may select the doctor of your choice. But this physician will ask you to have one or more of the group see you, if he thinks consultation in your case is to your interest. This should in no way disturb the happy relationship between the family doctor and the patients. In closing, Dr. Haury expressed the clinic staff's sincere appreciation of the splendid work of the Board of Directors, the cooperation of the nurses, and above all their gratitude to God for bringing the erection of the building to pass.

At this point of the program, Rev. H. J. Dyck, secretary of the Board of Directors made his response to the felicitations offered. He said in part:

I am very happy to speak a few words of response to the greetings of representatives of various organizations.

We appreciate the words of the chairman of our W. D. Conference, for men of this conference conceived the idea and need of building this hospital. We appreciate the words of the city mayor, because in Newton a place was found for this institution. We appreciate the words of the President of the Kansas Hospital Association because of the cooperation this association affords. And not least do we appreciate the greetings of members of the medical staff, who are to be living under one roof since the formation of the clinic. The good will of these organizations make us feel anew that our institution has a place to fill and we hope of greater usefulness in the future.

But more than all, we are glad for God's good will and blessing, which has been signally manifested since the beginning of the work in 1908.

In His wonderful providence God always provided ways and means and in the last instance the greater part was donated as a fund for this purpose.

We can now speak with the Psalmist: "This is the Lords doing and it is marvelous in our eyes."

The principal address of the afternoon, given by President Ed. G. Kaufman of Bethel College, was so good that we shall bring it in full in the next MENNONITE, to make it available to its many readers.

After another beautiful selection by the Men's Chorus of the Eden Church and benediction by the chairman, the audience passed in recessional to the entrance of the New Addition. There, with H. J. Andres, Hospital Administrator in charge, a passage of scripture was read, and John Wiens, the contractor, with some fitting remarks, handed the key to John Harder, Jr. member of the building committee and he in turn to H. E. Suderman, vice president of the Directors, who opened the doors. At this point Rev. J. E. Entz offered a very appropriate dedicatory prayer in which he paid a fitting tribute to the late Doctors R. H. Hertzler and W. F. Schroeder, both members of the clinic, whose untimely passing is still deeply regretted. Following this, the people were free to inspect the building.

The need for deaconess work among Mennonites was first proposed by Rev. David Goerz of Newton, Kans., who also was the principal moving spirit in the founding of Bethel College. A suggestion by a young Mennonite sister, Miss Frieda Kaufman, of her desire to engage in such work aroused interest, and in due time the Bethel College Board of Directors organzied the Bethel Deaconess Home and Hospital Society. Plans for a deaconess hospital to be connected with the college were being formulated, but later abandoned. In 1904, Sister Frieda who had meanwhile taken her training in the Deaconess Hospital at Cincinnati began serving as a nurse among our people in Kansas. In 1905 the Hospital Society bought a whole city block of land in Newton. In 1907 the contract for a Hospital Building was let and on June 11, 1908, the structure could be dedicated, amidst general rejoicing of our Mennonite folk and many others. Three young women, the Misses Frieda Kaufman, Catherine Voth and Ida Epp were at the same time ordanied and installed as full sisters of the institution.

Two years later, Mrs. B. Warkentin (wife of the man who introduced Turkey wheat into Kansas) whose fondness for the Hospital has manifested itself in many ways, presented to the Society the Bernhard Warkentin Memorial Home as a home for Bethel sisters. This was later enlarged, with added comforts, by her children. In 1910 the Women's Auxiliary was organized, with Mrs. Warkentin as president. Largely through the efforts of this group an Annex to the Hospital was erected on the east, completed and dedicated on Nov. 30, 1913.

Soon after the Hospital came into being, a Training School for deaconesses and Christian workers was started and kept up. To date one hundred and six students have graduated from its three-year course, while a number of mission candidates have attended it for shorter periods. Graduates from this school are at work all over the U. S. and in a number of foreign lands. To house this training school a One-Story Building was erected in 1926. In 1938, two more stories were added to it, and the completed three story structure dedicated on Feb. 4th, 1939, as Student Nurses Home and Training School.

Because so many old persons applied for care in the Hospital who really had no need of its service, the necessity of a separate home for such people became pressing. So an imposing building, known as the Home for the Aged was erected and opened to them in 1926. Thus somewhow as the Institution grew, God and kind Christian friends helped provide room, without serious financial risks, so that up to date eight buildings and additions have been erected on the premises, in 30 years, not counting minor service buildings.

At this point grateful mention is made of the service of the late John G. Regier who sometime before his death, with some help of a few friends founded an annuity in favor of the hospital, by the use of which the present New Addition could be erected, with only a moderate debt left.

Twenty physicians have served the Hospital for longer or shorter periods. The present staff which needs an increase is composed of Doctors: J. E. Enns, E. M. Harms, R. S. Haury, V. L. Pauley, H. R. Schmidt, and J. B. Nanniga, a recent addition. The sisterhood at present comprises 32 deaconesses, with 19 student nurses besides. The officers are Sister Frieda, deaconess mother; Sister Theodosia, superintendent of nurses; Sister Lena Mae, principal of Training School, and Sister Helena, matron of Home for the Aged.

It grieves His heart when we run away from Him. Let us stay close to Him always.—Selected.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

Canton, Okla., June 30, 1939.

Dear Friends:

When Paul and Barnabas returned from their first mission journey, we are told that "they declared all things that God had done with them." They had been helpless to accomplish anything by themselves in this great work of saving souls; only as God worked with them could anything be accomplished. This is just as true today. We are helpless, and must have the Holy Spirit to work with us and through us before success can be achieved. There is no one that has such a fervent desire to extend His kingdom, as God himself. He showed this when He sent His only Son to die for the sins of the world. Knowledge of this fact should inspire us with confidence to ask the Lord for such faith in His son as will cause "rivers of living water" to flow from us.

Since November we have been working in the field where Rev. and Mrs. Linscheid had laboured for many years. Our somewhat over 800 Indians live on either side of the North Canadian river between the towns of Seiling and Eagle City. Your highway map should show these places and their distance apart. To visit all Indians in our territory would, of course, take many more than the 33 miles between the towns mentioned. Here they live interspersed among the whites, many of whom have bought or leased Indian land. In travelling it is not difficult to find the Indian dwellings, for almost invariably these lovers of nature have erected a summer shelter of tree boughs, branches and leaves, where they live in the summer. Then too you might find a number of tents on one yard near the house, where friends enjoy free lease on the owner's yard.

Although most of the Indians have farms, only a relatively small number on our field actually do the work of farming. Instead of this, they have leased out their land to whites, and try to live on the often very meagre rent. Sometimes, of course, there is enough to enjoy reasonable living; but whether enough or not, it often happens that poor management leaves our Indians penniless. In this case government relief work or outright relief somewhat relieve the distress.

A German proverb says: Muessigkeit ist aller Laster Anfang." Idleness degenerates not only the Indians but also our own race. If we could utilize all this available energy for Christian work, what a great difference it would make. Let us pray that more idle hours might be used in the Master's service, that more and more of our Indian brethren might present their bodies to God as a living sacrifice.

The mission here owns three places of worship. situated at Fonda, Longdale, and near Canton respectively. At the latter place an old dwelling house is used as a church. The fourth meeting place is a government building, an old fort at Cantonment. Each of these places has services every Sunday as well as a Bible study, song and prayer service during the week. The latter service lasts about an hour, and the time is divided among the three important elements mentioned. An average of about 20, 20, 30, and 20 attend each service respectively. The fact that over 200 have already accepted Jesus as their personal Savior since the inception of the work about 50 years ago, shows that the work is very worthwhile.

The majority, however, are still in heathen darkness. You are not surprised then, are you, if we earnestly beseech you to daily remember the work before the throne of grace.

Sincerely yours,
Catherine and Benno Toews.

Evangelizing Our Neighborhood

J. B. Epp

II. WHY

A. Objectively

The Need is very great all around us. There is a great lack of preaching and teaching of the whole Gospel. The masses are either ignorant, or negligent, or are being deceived by false teachings. Much literature is being distributed by these false teachrs. How much of good scriptural literature are we distributing? What do we think is the greatest need today in our land? It is not the physical, nor the mental, nor the social. All enlightened and thoughtful people, up to our President, agree that it is the spiritual! We are fast becoming a ruined race, in every way, but especially spiritually! Something must be done!

And here then is the greatest need: Giving out the Word to the masses. The multitudes also in the U. S. A. are hungry for the true Gospel. Many are hungry, not really knowing for what. We know it is the Word: God has made it so. Do all readers know, that there are millions in this our Christian land who have never seen a Bible? There are 40 millions of boys and girls under 18 years of age in the U. S. A., of whom 30 million are practically without any religious instruction, and of the remaining 10 million many receive an inadequate or wrong instruction. The state does much for education; but leaves all spiritual instruction to be supplied by the Churches, whether Biblical or otherwise. What a challenge!! The 225,000 young people in state colleges and universities present a special need. Let the educated Y. P. in the churches go after these, beginning in the high schools. The 275,000 inmates in the penitentiaries are waiting for more of the Bread of Life. There are 10,000 closed churches in this our Christian land! And the great majority of the open churches are poorly attended. In the cities only about 10 per cent of the people attend church; and what kind of preaching do they get in many of these places? In Africa, we are told, 15 per cent of the people attend church. Most of the parents around us are quite ignorant in spiritual matters. Many are grateful for assistance in this line.

And remember, that the time may be short! We have spoken here only of our own land. Are there then reasons Why we should "evangelize our neighborhoods?"

B. Subjectively

Motives: We should do this work out of gratitude for what God has done for us—for me! Not for reward; yet "great is your reward in heaven." The privilege to serve, this is our reward. It is an honor to have a share in this work. "When Jesus saw the multitude, He had compassion on them . . . . " Have we any? Of Paul we read that "his spirit was stirred within him." The better we know our Savior, the more we want to make Him known to others. Remember also the "Golden Rule." Then there is the commandment, "Go ye," and the program in Acts 1:8, "beginning in Jerusalem" (at home). All this is for you and me! To believe means to obey: Paul speaks of the "obedience of faith," and he also says, "The Love of Christ constraineth us." Read I Cor. 13. Only volunteers should go out; they are the only good "soldiers."

The church at home needs the inspiration that comes back to her when a number of her members engage in this work—some more, some less, according to their several ability. It is God's will that all should be saved and come to the knowledge of the Truth. But He has chosen only my hands and yours, my feet and yours, to do it with. It is our responsibility! See Hezek. chapter 3 and 33. Surely we would not let a man drown, if we could save him, just because we do not belong to the rescue crew? In other words: just because we are not ordained mission workers!

All believers are "the salt of the earth" and "the light of the world." And all are also stewards, of life, talents, time, not only of our money. We must not give only "of our best," but give all that we are and all that we have. We are debtors, Rom. 1:14. This is based upon the appalling need. Even for self-preservation we should evangelize our neighborhoods—and the masses of our country; for if we will not do this, they will turn upon us! Learn from Russia!

And the time for this may be very short. Jesus says, "Behold I come quickly" ("soon"), and "the Gospel is to be preached in all the world," just before that. And the best place to be found, when He comes, is working for Him!

So there are also enough motives, Why we should "Evangelize our neighborhoods"! More of the "Why" will be found in the parts that are to follow, on: III. Who; IV. When and Where; and V. How.

SERMON SKETCH

CONFLICTING LOYALTIES

Rev. Walter Gering, Pastor of Eden Church, Moundridge, Kansas

Text: "He kneeled upon his knees three times a day and prayed." Daniel 16:10.

The story is simple. The issue at stake is one of the most fundamental issues which every generation is called upon to face in some form or other: the issue of conflicting loyalties. Daniel stood between two conflicting authorities. On the one hand stood the authority of the state which commanded that no prayer be made to any god for a period of thirty days. On the other hand stood the Lord encouraging constantly that intimate communion and fellowship with His child. Between these two diametrically opposed authorities stood Daniel, compelled to make his choice.

All his life he had been upholding the authority of both. We might search through the Scriptures in vain to find a more law-abiding patriot than Daniel. Even his own enemies recognized that for, when they sought opportunity to bring condemnation upon him, they readily admitted that "we shall not find any occasion against this Daniel, except we find it against him concerning the law of his God." With all their searching they could find no occasion nor fault, forasmuch as he was faithful, neither was there any error or fault found in him. Yet in that faithfulness unto the law of the land Daniel had remained faithful unto a higher authority, that of the Lord. Surely no one can read the account of his life without being impressed with the spirit of faithfulness unto God. Daniel had found no conflict in his loyalty to both the law of man and that of his God.

Then came the crisis. Because of the fiendish plot of jealousy, Daniel found himself in this conflict of loyalty unto state or unto God. Shall he continue to be law abiding and in accordance with the decree cease from prayer for a season of thirty days? Must he deliberately turn against the hand which has been favoring him with honor and position, defy the decree and thereby become a law-breaker? Has any man ever a moral right to set aside the laws of his land when that land has been his home of blessing? Does not the Word say, "Let every soul be subject unto the higher powers—whosoever therefore resisteth the power, resisteth the ordinance of God"?

The issue which Daniel faced in his day is the same fundamental issue which men throughout the world are facing today in an increasing degree. Loyalty unto God and unto the law of man need not be conflicting. They may rightly support each other. Yet, recent experiences reveal that earnest Christians are being confronted with this same issue. Since May, 1929, the Scriptures have been banned in the land of Russia. It is a criminal offence according to the International Secretary of the Russian Missionary Society to print, publish, circulate or distribute the Word of God or any portion of it in Soviet Russia. The July issue of the Christian Herald states that in Germany the ban has been placed upon the sale of Bibles and church tracts, this order coming through the Reich's "Literary" chamber. From our own land comes the report of a Wisconsin minister whose name was taken off the roll of those eligible to offer the opening prayers of the legislature because of the contents of a prayer offered on such an occasion. In an increasing manner Christians throughout the world find themselves challenged with this issue: wherein lies the final authority?

That is the issue. What is the answer? Conscientious Christians everywhere are asking themselves: What is the Christian thing to do? The answer which those of the past have given is evident. The early disciples answered with those memorable words: "We ought to obey God rather than men." Those words have been the answer of every age. Christians in Russia have heard the decree banning the Word of God. Their response has been courageous. "If we shall not have the Book in our hands, then we will put it into our heads and enthrone it in our hearts." So they studied and committed to memory the Sacred Word. Now, when they gather together in caves and secret places they repeat passages of Scripture and instruct one another. The response in Wisconsin was that 30 ministers refused to participate in the prayers of the legislature, unless given freedom of prayer content. Repeatedly in the past those who have faced this issue, this conflict of loyalties, have dared to put loyalty to God first.

But the question still remains in the mind of many. Is that the Christian thing to do? Have we any moral right to defy the authority of our government, when the "powers that be are ordained of God"? Can we expect the blessing of the Lord, when we manifest a Spirit of defiance to organized law?

Daniel faced the issue, there was no way out; a decision must be made. His answer is recorded in these words: "Now when Daniel knew that the writing was signed, he went into his house and his windows being open in his chamber toward Jerusalem, he kneeled upon his knees three times a day and prayed, and gave thanks before his God, as he did afore time." The decision had been made, God must be first.

That is the Christian answer in every age. Let no one say that this breeds contempt for law. The Christian life is a constant challenge to observance of law and order. He who truly follows his Lord will render unto Caesar the things which are Caesars. He shall submit himself to every ordinance of man for the Lord's sake whether it be to the king, as supreme; or unto governors, knowing that such is the will of God, that with well doing he may put to silence the ignorance of foolish men. Never shall he use his liberty for a cloak of maliciousness.

But the law of man must be subject unto the law which is higher than any man-made ordinance: the law of God. In their natural course these two need bring about no conflict of loyalty. When they do, the Christian must take his stand for the truth of the Lord. Even the authority of organized government must yield.

That means but one thing: trouble. It meant trouble for the early disciples, as they faced the religious leaders of their day. It meant trouble for the first century martyrs. Choosing for God in the face of an issue, such as Daniel faced, has meant hardships in every age; it has meant that for those of our own age who have met that conflict and according to present indications even greater hardships for those who face it in the future. Yet "what doth it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul"? It is better to take an unflinching stand for the truth even to die in that stand than to compromise for a momentary gain. God must be supreme.

Today the nations of the world, recognizing the threat of war, are preparing themselves lest they be found unprepared in its event. Are the children of God doing likewise? Will they be found ill prepared? Every sincere follower of the Lord ought in these days, among other preparations, to be conscientiously clarifying his own mind upon several fundamental, basic principles of the Christian faith, rooting and grounding himself in these. One of those fundamental principles is that illustrated in the life of Daniel. Lawabiding and faithful as every Christian citizen must be, when that conflict which Daniel faced appears, loyalty to God must be supreme whatever the price.

—Rev. H. E. Miller, Deer Crek, Okla., says in a note to a letter: "This summer I helped one of my church members harvest and did most of the plowing. Being born and raised on the farm, I enjoy such help as well as the exercise. — Good! In helping like this and showing respect and love for work, many a rural pastor has worked his way into the hearts of a congregation and made his work more successful.—Editor.

ELISHA: A LIFE OF HELPLESSNESS

2 Kings 5:1-10, 14

Introduction

Elisha was a disciple of and the successor to Elijah. These two prophets were similar in some respects and distinctly in contrast in others. Elijah spent much of his time in desert places while Elisha's home was in Samaria. He seems to have been gentler and more sympathetic than Elijah. Elisha's prophetic career of around sixty years—much longer than Elijah's—was rich in deeds of mercy and helpfulness. He was welcomed in the kingly palaces as well as in the homes of the people. He was a spiritual "father" to the sons of the prophets.

The Testimony of a Slave Girl vs 1-4

Naaman held a high position—first in command of the Syrian army. He was highly esteemed, honorable, a capable leader and victorious. However he was a leper (v1). He is a distinct type of the prosperous sinner. Disease and sin are not respecters of persons. In the home of the great Naamn there was an obscure serving maid who waited on his wife (v2). She had been brought away from Israel, as a captive, by one of the Syrian marauding bands and sold as a household slave. She knew her Lord. She nursed no ill-will nor hatred in her heart. She was much concerned about her master (v3). She had a forgiving and loving heart. She could tell her mistress of the one who could heal her master. She testified for God while at her work. This is another striking example of the fact that God finds a large place for humble persons in accomplishing important results. The little maid was the medium to bring the Syrian leader into contact with God's prophet. Her wish expressed to her mistress, proved of far-reaching ultimate results.

Naaman Comes to the King of Israel vs 5-7

The Syrian king thought healing for his general could be purchased, or at least should be repaid with a handsome present (v5). He urged Naaman to go for healing. He sent a letter to Jehoram, King of Israel (v6), not mentioning the prophet of God mentioned by the maid. The king was deeply alarmed (v7), as well he might be, for the impossible to him was asked of him by one who was ready to pick a quarrel with him. Elisha comes to his rescue.

Elisha Ready to Help vs 8-14

Elisha quickly heard of the coming of Naaman and of the King's dismay. He helped him by taking the case off his hands, "Let him come now to me" (v8). He saw too that Naaman needed more than the healing of his leprosy. He came with much pomp and pride and must be humbled before he could be healed. Elisha was dealing with him as a needy and afflicted man and not as a general representing the Syrian king. He directed him—through a servant—to go and wash in the Jordan seven times and be healed (v10). This was a needed test of his faith and obedience. This rather humiliating treatment greatly angered Naaman (vs 11-13), but at the entreaties of his wise servants, he was persuaded to do the prophet's bidding and he was healed (v14). He returned to Elisha to express his gratitude and to acknowledge the God of Israel as the only God (v15). He became a proselyte. "He was a leper," (v1), "he was clean" (v14), in between he came to God's prophet, washed and was cleansed.

Elisha was helpful to many in his lifetime. Christians are expected to be helpful when and where they have opportunity. Elisha's reputation for helpfulness impressed itself upon the little maid. Today there are usually opportunities for helpfulness open to us. A little thoughtful consideration may reveal some overlooked privileges. The world greatly needs more of practical Christian helpfulness.

CORRESPONDENCE

FIRST MENN. CHURCH, HILLSBORO, KANS.

Baptismal Services were held on Sunday, May 28. Nine young people were baptized. Several people joined the church by letters. In the evening we were glad to have Sister Frieda of Bethel Hospital with us. She spoke about the work of Deaconesses.—On Monday, May 29, the Sunday School Convention was held in our church. Very good papers were read and discussed.—June 4 communion services were observed and were well attended. June 11 the annual S. S. Picnic was held in God's great nature. It was a very fine afternoon.

The first Sunday in July we again began our Open Air Union Services. Dr. A. E. Kreider gave a very inspiring message. Last Sunday night the Rev. Butcher from Marion brought the message. The Music committee sees to it that we have fine music, and the volunteer orchestra helps along in the singing. We always look forward to these meetings as a special privilege of sharing these blessings with our neighbors and friends.—Mrs. Jno. Bartel, Corr.

GRACE MENNONITE CHURCH, ENID, OKLA.

We, the Grace Mennonite Church of Enid, Okla., are indeed happy to say to all, that we now have dedicated our new place of worship. First of all we wish to thank each and every one of you who contributed to our new church building in prayer or material gifts and labor. Although the day of our dedication was dusty and windy, a large group of people came to rejoice with us. The loud speaker was used that those in the basement might be able to hear.

The thought which all the different speakers brought out forcefully is, that not only the building was to be dedicated, but that our lives should be rededicated in order that we may let our light shine, that others may see Jesus in us.

We now have a greater desire to go on striving for the right. Rev. Harder's first sermon in the new building was based on Matt. 16:18; and we fully realize that, if we go out in the Name of Our Lord Jesus Christ, the gates of Hell cannot prevail against us.

Since we have ample room we are dividing one of the Sunday School classes and adding another teacher. We hope to give our children a better advantage to learn about their Master and Shepherd in this way.—God willing we shall have baptismal services Sunday, August 13. May God bless us in our work in Enid is our prayer.—Elda Ewert, Corr.

EAST SWAMP MENNONITE CHURCH, PA.

The first Daily Vacation Bible School in the history of the church was conducted at the East Swamp Mennonite Church from June 26th to July 7th. The total enrollment was 103 and the average attendance for the two weeks was 90. The teachers assisting were Mrs. John Awkland, Mrs. Peter Boehr, Mrs. Wallace Markby, Miss Ida Carbaugh and the pastor, Rev. Harold Burkholder. The drivers bringing the children to the school made a total of 1000 miles. On further inquiry, it was found that 75 percent of the pupils had never attended any Bible School before.

On Friday of the last week, a picnic dinner was enjoyed by all. In the evening the closing exercises were held in the church, in the presence of a large audience. We praise the Lord for the success of the school.

Rev. Harold Burkholder has been granted a vacation to visit his relatives and friends in the middle west, leaving July 30 and returning Aug. 30. Mr. John Boehr, a student of Bluffton College, and Mr. Abraham Unruh will fill the pulpit Aug. 6 and 13. Mrs. Wm. Cope is home again after a 9 weeks' stay in the hospital due to an operation. We thank God that she is back with her family and friends and thank those that prayed for her.—The brotherhood of East Swamp will hold its next meeting Sept. 12. No meeting in August due to work in the fields.—W. W. Cope, Corr.

GRACE MENN. CHURCH, DALLAS, OREGON

We have had a very busy time here the last few months. June 18 was the first Sunday our new pastor Homer Leisy was here and what a glorious time we had! He had a wonderful sermon in the morning and we gave him a wonderful surprise at noon. In the afternoon we had a short program consisting of welcome speeches, music and a short message by Rev. Franz of Pratum.—July the Fourth the Dallas and Pratum Sunday Schools had a joint picnic at the Rickreall Park. Various games and a tug-of-war were played before noon, and a bountiful dinner was served at noon. In the afternoon the young folks and men played ball, and a short program was given. The work on the church is progressing fast now. Bro. Leisy comes over from Salem nearly every day and with local helpers who can spare the time, we are making good headway. It is the busy season of the year. What with hay to haul, berries and cherries to pick, most of the farmers are busy in the harvest. We are greatly thankful for the gifts we have received for our church building. May God bless the givers. And our prayer is that when the church is completed it may be a place where many souls may be won for Christ. We need your prayers. — Mrs. Leonard Schmidt, Corr.

—OUR MENNONITE YEAR-BOOK. — Since a good many people seem to know so little of this book, an explanation is in place. This publication, an English companion book to the German "Bundesbote Kalender," and of the same size, 48 page, is a valuable Annual, brimful of interesting matter and statistics about the General and District Conferences, their work, organizations and institutions. It is published each fall for the benefit of our churches and its members. It is sent gratis to those who pay full price for the Mennonite a year in advance, and sold to others for 25 cents. It should be in every English reading Mennonite home in our conference. The editors of the Mennonite and Bundesbote, respectively, usually edit these annuals. But the Year Book is again being compiled by Rev. A. S. Bechtel at the editor's request to relieve him of this part of his work, who truly appreciates the help. WILL EVERBODY WHOM REV. BECHTEL ASKS FOR CONTRIBUTIONS FOR THE BOOK SERVE HIM AS PROMPTLY AS POSSIBLE FOR HIS TASK IS NOT AN EASY ONE.—The Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kans., can still supply copies of the book.

—Rev. A. S. Bechtel, Hanston, Kansas, writes: "I was interested in reading the questionnaire for applicants for the ministry contributed by the N. D. Conference, recently published in the Mennonite. Does that mean that the N. D. C. has officially adopted that and is making it binding for all who would enter the ministry in that conference? Or, is it merely a suggestion for the General Conference to consider.—Note by the editor: We were merely asked to publish this Questionnaire by the committee that had prepared it. We too felt that some explanation should have gone with it. May we not have some clearance on this?

THE HYMN CORNER

by Walter H. Hohmann

BEFIEHL DU DEINE WEGE

This hymn is from the classical chorale period and is an acrostic poem writen by Paul Gerhardt in 1653. It is based on Psalm 37:5, which reads as follows, "Commit thy ways unto the Lord; and trust in Him; and He shall bring it to pass." Paul Gerhardt is usually considered the greatest hymnist of Germany. This hymn is known as his hymn of courage and faith. John Wesley, who was very much interested in German hymnody, translated this hymn and others by Mr. Gerhardt into the English language.

Catherine Winkworth gives the following estimate of the contribution of Paul Gerhardt to the hymnody of the Christian church: "As a poet he undoubtedly holds the highest place among the hymnwriters of Germany. His hymns seem to be the spontaneous outpouring of a heart that overflows with love, trust, and praise. His language is simple and pure. If it has sometimes a touch of homeliness, it has no vulgarism; and at times it rises to a beauty and grace which always give the impression of being unstudied, yet could hardly have been improved by art. His tenderness and fervor never degenerate into sentimentality nor his penitence and sorrow into morbid despondency."

This hymn has been set to various and interesting tunes. In the Gesangbuch Mit Noten it is set to the tune, Befiehl Du Deine Wege. Perhaps most of our people who know this hymn, know it to this tune. In the Hymnal of the United Lutheran Hymnal to the tune, Hassler or Passion Chorale. The hymn also appears in the Oxford American Hymnal to the tune, Passion Chorale. In the Canadian Hymnary we find the tunes, St. George and Old 134th, the latter a tune from the Genevan Psalter 1551. In Songs of Praise, the hymnal of the Anglican Church of England, it appears to the tunes, Dinbyck and Ich Halte Treulich Still; the latter by J. S. Bach. In the Church Hymnary, the hymnal for the Presbyterian Church of England, it is set to the tunes, Ich Halte Treulich Still, Song 20 by Orlando Gibbons 1583-1625 and Narenza from Kirchen Gesäng, Cologne 1619. The hymn is also set to the tune, St. Theodolph by Melchor Teschner in the Glaubensharfe of the German Baptist Church.

What may this multiplicity of tunes mean? It is quite evident that this hymn has been and still is a grat favorite with many churches and individuals. Composers, arrangers, and compilers must have rated the hymn very good or there would not have been so many different tunes used and tried with this hymn. Or, it is even possible that the hymn has not found the proper and ultimate tune to which the church will sing it.

This hymn will appear in the new hymn book, but to what tune shall it be sung?

What Can We Do About Intemperence?

Proverbs 23:29-35

Senior C. E. Topic for August 13, 1939

Worship Program

Instrumental Prelude

Hymns: "May Jesus Christ Be Praised," "Stand Up Stand Up for Jesus," "O Jesus I Have Promised," "Jesus Calls Us," "I Would Be True."

Scripture: Proverbs 23:29-35.

Prayer: For intelligence in ruling our own lives and in working toward the solution of a social problem.

Leader's Introduction: The wording of the topic implies that something ought to be done about intemperance. Probably no one needs convincing that the liquor problem is a real social problem. The loss of life and the destruction of happiness resulting from drinking and drunkenness are only too evident. The effects of alcohol in cutting down efficiency are indisputable. Industry cannot repeal the Eighteenth Amendment wherever a steady hand and clear brain are needed. Why can't the engineer drink on his job? What's the matter with the bank clerk's having a bottle under the counter? Henry Ford tells us, "We cannot use drinking men anywhere in the world," he says publicly. "The Ford Motor Company is sober and non-alcoholic wherever you find it located."

What Young People Can Do in Promoting Temperance

1. Become informed concerning the physiological, economic and moral consequences of the use of beverage alcohol. Many good study guides are available which present this infrmation.

2. Arrive at strong personal convictions concerning the use of beverage alcohol. It ought to be clear that

Christian young people should not use it or associate with those who habitually use it.

3. Analyze political issues and give support to candidates and causes which strengthen the cause of temperance. More and more, the issue is being brought into local politics.

4. Make surveys of the local community, listing the laws which govern the sale of liquor, noting the extent to which these laws are observed, counting and reporting violations.

5. Design, make, and display posters which spread the message of temperance; invite high school groups to discussions and debates in which the cause of temperance is presented; and in other ways propagate temperance.

6. Cooperate with local agencies, such as the W. C. T. U., which combat intemperance.

An Expensive Habit

Dr. Arthur Hunter, actuary of the New York Life Insurance Company, claims that every drink a man takes reduces his life expectancy by twenty-five minutes. His statement is based on a survey of the records of sixty life insurance companies, and it involves more than two million persons.

From the insurance company's standpoint, says Dr. Hunter, a merely moderate drinker is not a good risk; his expectancy is reduced four to six years. As for the heavy drinker, he is refused insurance at any rate at all. He isn't even a poor risk.

Suggestions for Talks

1. What I can do about intemperance in my own life.
2. What I can do about intemperance in my home.
3. What I can do about intemperance as an intelligent citizen of my community and nation.

For Discussion

1. How does the use of alcohol limit the power of the Holy Spirit in an individual's life?
2. What can parents do to counteract the effect of newspaper, magazine, and radio advertising?
3. Should the manufacture of beverage alcohol be regarded as a legitimate enterprise?
4. Which should be our goal—moderation or total abstinence?
5. Is it wise to attempt to restore prohibition?
6. What can the Christian do to promote temperance?

WHAT CAN WE DO ABOUT GAMBLING?

Amos 8:4-10

Senior C. E. Topic for August 20, 1939

Worship Service

Instrumental Prelude

Hymns: "Lead Kindly Light," "Jesus Calls Us O'er the Tumult," "O Jesus, I Have Promised," "My Soul, Be on Thy Guard."

Scripture: Amos 8:4-10.

Prayer: "Fill our minds with wisdom, our hearts with tenderness, and our hands with usefulness. Keep us honest in our dealings and take from us the desire to get something for nothing. Let thy laws become songs in the house of our pilgrimage. Unite us with all lovers of goodness, and give us courage and faithfulness to follow the ways of Thy Spirit. To Thy loving kindness we offer our prayer, in the name of Him who walked the way of the loving heart. Amen."

Poem:

"God, keep a clean wind blowing through my heart,
Night and day,
Cleanse it with sunlight, let the silver rain
Wash away
Cobwebs and the smouldering dust that years
Leave, I pray.
Bitterness can have no place in me,
Nor grief stay,
When the winds of God sweep through and wash
Them away.
God, keep a clean wind blowing through my heart,
Night and day."

—Grace Noll Crowell.

Leader's Introduction: Young people, even Christian young people, sometimes ask, "What's wrong with gambling? If we want to waste our money, is it not our own business?" It's not quite "our own business" when we think of gambling in the light of a few facts like the following: Gambling supports a group of racketeers and an enterprise that has a close connection with law-defying interests. Gambling mans wasting money, throwing money away instead of using it usefully. Gambling sets an example to other people who may be less able than we are to throw money away.

Probably the most tragic effect of gambling, however, is the frame of mind which is begotten in the gambler—the desire to get something for nothing. Living involves continually taking risks, to be sure. Achievements are never won without first taking chances. That is a fact which gives a tang to life. But gambling is insidious because it is a travesty on that fact. It is a cheap and shabby caricature of the risks that all must take if they are to make something of themselves.

Young people can do something about gambling by having strong, intelligent convictions about it, by being familiar with the local laws that concern gambling, by resisting every effort to spread the menace of gambling.

Suggestions for Talks

We gamble with other possession besides money. Let several people be prepared to talk on the following subjects:

1. Gambling with health
2. Gambling with friendship
3. How to invest your life rather than speculate with it.

Food for Thought

One doctor says, "The thing that makes gambling rank low on the list of vices is that the passion to win something from nothing becomes no less gripping than that of morphine." Another doctor says that along with drugs and alcohol, gambling is the most popular means of fooling ourselves into believing that we have got something valuable without the trouble of working for it. It is a means of getting relief from the full consciousness of the responsibilities of life.

Questions for Discussion

1. How true is the statement that the gambler in the long run always loses?
2. Discuss this assertion: The idea of getting something for nothing is an immoral idea. Or is it merely erroneous?
3. Does easy winning take inevitable toll in a man's moral stamina?
4. Is gambling wrong when it is for a "good" cause, such as a church or a hospital?
5. Is speculating on the stock exchange gambling?
6. Shouldn't the element of chance in all life make us condone gambling?
7. Is there anything inherently dishonest about gambling?
8. Do all things actually work together for good for those that love the Lord?

Thought by leader

"An honest man is the noblest work of God."—Pope. We believe the topics for this month should be built around the thoughts of intermediates themselves. It is for this reason that we are using quite a few questions to which the members give their own answers.

Questions for discussion:

1. Did you ever try for just one day, to tell the absolute truth? Perhaps you think you do always speak the truth but it would be very interesting to check oneself most carefully for one day.
2. Are we always honest with God? (a) Did you give God as much time as possible last week? (b) Did you give as much money to the church as you spent upon yourself?
3. What harm does cheating do?
4. How does cheating affect our self-respect?
5. Is it honest to guess an answer in an examination?
6. Does one act of dishonesty sometimes lead to another?
7. Is there any harm in bluffing? Why is bluffing dishonest?
8. Do we do any harm to our characters by making excuses?
9. Does being honest ever make one unpopular?
10. What is your attitude toward the person who is always honest?
11. Is it better to ask God for help or to ask our neighbor?
12. Is it honest to ask God for help in an examination when you haven't prepared yourself?
13. When you have studied, is it well to ask God to help you think?

14. Is it dishonest to try and get something for nothing? Is it honest to try for prizes offered on the radio?

15. Is it honest to buy very cheap dresses when we know someone is being cheated of just wages?

16. Is it honest to purchase things which we know we cannot afford?

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

OTHER GIFTS GOD GIVES US

A Special Day — Ex. 20:8

It is very difficult to say which is God's best gift to men next to the gift of His Son, Jesus Christ, the gift of His Spirit and the gift of His Word. But I wonder if this special day that He has given us might not be one of His very best gifts to us? In reading about this gift I found expressions like these: "The Pearl of Days", "It is like a jewelled clasp that holds the days together", "A Day of Delight", "It is a foretaste of heaven." If this "Special Day" means all that to us, dear Junior leaders, we can make this lesson one of great blessing to our Juniors. Oh, that we valued this gift at its worth and used it right!

If possible have a copy of the picture, "Jesus In the Synagogue" by Tissot, where the Juniors can see it.

I. Worship Program

1. Prelude, "Holy, Holy, Holy" played very softly
2. Hymn, "Holy, Holy, Holy", vs. 1, 2, 3
3. Scripture, Genesis 2:2, 3; Ezek. 20:12
4. Hymn, "O Day of Rest and Gladness", M.H.B. No. 48
5. Poem:

"Again returns the day of holy rest,
Which when He made the world, Jehovah blest,
When, like His own, He bade our labors cease,
And all be piety, and all be peace.

Let us devote this consecrated day
To learn His will, and all we learn obey;
So shall He hear, when fervently we raise
Our supplications and our songs of praise.

6. Leader's prayer of thanksgiving for this special day and supplication that we might keep it and use it to God's glory.
7. Sing very softly one verse of song for the month: "One Sweetly Solemn Thought"

II. Mission Minutes

1. Review what is meant by the phrase "Foreign Missions." Find out who our foreign mission secretary is.
2. Three Juniors may bring three different issues of "The Mennonite" and turn to the section "Foreign Missions," reading from that an item of missionary interest found in the letters there.

III. Study Period:

Aim: To help our Juniors to keep Sunday in such a way that they may be blessed and that God may be honored.

1. Bible Reading, Exodus 20:8-11, by a Junior
2. Two minute talks by two Juniors:
    a. Why should we keep Sunday holy?
    Because God commands it.
    Because God himself kept the day holy.
    Because we show honor and love to God, if we give one day to His service. Ex. 31:17.
    b. How should we keep Sunday?
    Rest from the work of the other six days.
    Rest from the play of the other six days.
    (No week-day books on Sunday)
    Spend the day in worship, both at Sunday School and in the church service.
3. Solo, "My Jesus I Love Thee"
4. How Jesus spent Sundays. Talk by two Juniors:
    a. Jesus went to the Synagogue. Luke 4:16-20.
    b. Jesus helped others. John 5:5, 8, 9; Luke 6:6-11.
5. Leader's heart talk:
    Stress fellowship with God and God's people which is made possible by the one day set aside or better given to us. Explain what it means to keep a day "holy." Bring out in your talk how we can help each other to keep this day in a God-pleasing manner. Sunday is not only a day of rest, of worship, and a day of memorial (Resurrection of our Lord) it is also a day for giving, 1 Cor. 16:1, 2, and service.
6. Leader's closing prayer
7. All sing Doxology

—Salem Church, Freeman, S. D. — Summer Bible School closed June 28, with an excellent program. The worthwhileness of memorizing Scripture has been declared by Dr. Ironside as follows: "Reading the Bible is good, Studying the Bible is better, but Memorizing the Bible is best of all. This should encourage the pupils who voluntarily memorized a total of 3000 to 5000 verses May 29 to June 27. Robert Boese, Verda Graber and Elaine Waltner were awarded diplomas of graduation from the nine-year course.—The pastor has again prepared his part of the material for the Christian S. S. quarterly, fourth quarter, which is due—two and a half months before the quarter begins.

9:00-12:00—Devotionals by Homer Leisy

The minutes of the last conference were read and adopted. Next was the certification of delegates. It was moved and seconded that we adopt Dr. Langenwalter's explanation to article No. 4 of our constitution, and that they be added to our constitution as such. Report of field secretary was given by Emma Ruth and adopted as read. An expression of thanks was given to Miss Ruth. The following motions were adopted: "That the conference adopt the plan presented by the field secretary to have one representative of the Y. P. societies of each state in the district make up a Y. P. committee for one year," "that we adopt this recommendation for our young people to participate in the support of the Bible school at Swift Current, Sask., Canada."

The First Mennonite Church of Deer Park, Washington consisting of 26 members was unanimously received into the Pacific District Conference. The Bethel College report was read and accepted. It was moved, seconded and accepted that we pay L. J. Horsch the $50.00 voted in the budget for his trip to attend the board meeting as our representative at Bethel College in 1938.

Report on Committee of Complimentary votes suggested the following: Rev. N. W. Bahnmann, Sardis, B. C.; Peter P.Thiessen, Sardis, B. C.; John H. Gaeddert, Bellingham, Wash; Alvan Gaeddert, Bellingham, Washington.

The auditing committee reported that the treasurers' books were found correct and expressed appreciation for the commendable way in which they had been kept.

The treasurer's report was read and accepted with a rising vote of thanks. Next was the election of officers with the following results: President, Rev. Phillip A. Wedel; Vice President, Rev. W. R. Augsburger; Secretary, Homer Leisy; Treasurer, John C. Jantz; Evangelization Committee, Dr. Langenwalter reelected; Business Committee, Rev. W. A. Regier; Trustees, Ed Leisy and Elmer Widmer; Field Secretary, Emma Ruth; Young People's Committee chairman, Louise Richert; assisted by Harry Albrecht, Washington, Alice Lehmann, Idaho, Roy Rutschman, Oregon.

Officers for the Women's Missionary Society are as follows: President, Mrs. Edgar Toevs; Vice President, Mrs. J. H. Langenwalter; Secretary, Mrs. Elmer Widmer; Junior-Intermediate Superintendent, Mrs. Wiebe.

Afternoon Devotionals were led by Rev. N. W. Bahnmann. Bible lectures by Dr. J. H. Langenwalter concluded both morning and afternoon services.

Friday Evening, Women's Missionary Society Program

Chairman, Mrs. M. M. Lehmann

Program consisted of Musical numbers by the Colfax and Monroe societies, a talk by Miss Schirmer of Arizona, and a missionary message by Rev. Edmund Miller.

Saturday, June 10

8:30 A. M.—Prayer Service led by Rev. Harley King

9:00-12:00—Devotionals, Rev. Philip Wedel

Evangelization Committee report was read by Rev. S. S. Baumgartner and accepted It was very encouraging and instructive.

At Deer Park, addition of six new members, brought total to 26. Sunday School enrollment is 41. Brother and Sister Wiens' services are appreciated and we hope that Brother Wiens can soon be ordained. Rev. P. D. Unruh's service as assistant is very beneficial.

At Dallas, spiritual progress and church building have marked the past year. Sunday School attendance is about 75, church membership, 52. The basement is completed and the completion of the auditorium is recommended. Homer Leisy will take charge of the Grace church immediately after this Conference.

At Newport the work under the leadership of Rev. P. D. Unruh is proving to be a real blessing and encouragement.

At Winton, Brother D. B. Hess has taken up the work They have a Sunday School enrollment of 73 and an average attendance of 50. Regular preaching services are conducted in the Presbyterian church building.

At Portland the church building has been remodeled with a noticeable increase in attendance. The church property was purchased for $673.39 total. The remodeling cost $1125.00 in money besides the labor donated. A parsonage was also purchased and furnished at a total cost of $3600.00. Taxes on the parsonage are $60.00 per year.

Itinerary Work—The Home Mission Board has arranged to remunerate Mennonite workers who hold revival meetings in connection with the Evangelization committee in that particular district. The churches receiving such services are expected to respond with a liberal offering for the travel expenses and Home Mission Board.

An address on Home Mission Work was given by Rev. S. S. Baumgartner, and a Bible Lecture by Dr. J. H. Langenwalter concluded the morning session.

Saturday Afternoon

It was moved and seconded that we appoint Brother J. J. Eymann advisor to the board of trustees for the purpose of incorporating the Pacific District Conference, if that has not been done, and of making the necessary certification to hold property in the State of Oregon.

The Budget for 1939-1940 was adopted. It is as follows: Newport, $240.00; Deer Park, $60.00; Dallas, $420.00; Workers Exchange, $90.00; Field Secretary, $100.00; Miscellaneous, $40.00; Winton, $120.00; Portland, $480.00; Bethel College Rep., $50.00. Total $1600.00.

Report of temporary Educational Committee to the conference to amend the constitution to provide for such a committee was given and proper provision made and its duties specified. It was moved and seconded that we retain the old method of voting—1 vote to every 10 members. Election of members for the Educational Committee resulted as follows: Rev. Edmund Miller for 3 years, Rev. M. M. Lehman for 2 years, P. C. Jantz for 1 year. It was moved and seconded that we instruct the secretary to have 1000 constitutions printed in booklet form and distributed.

An invitation from the Immanuel Mennonite Church at Los Angeles was unanimously accepted. The report of the Resolutions' Committee was read by Miss Emma Ruth and accepted. A rising vote of thanks and appreciation were given to Rev. F. F. Jantzen and Rev. S. S. Baumgartner for their many years of faithful service to the conference. Dr. Langenwalter gave his closing Bible lecture.

For recreation, groups made trips to the Boys Training School and to the Carnation Milk Farm.

Saturday Evening

Messages were given by Rev. Wilbert Regier and Rev. J. M. Franz. Miss Emma Ruth showed her travel film.

Sunday, June 11

The morning services were conducted in the various churches.

Sunday afternoon, Sunday School and C. E. Program

Miss Emma Ruth, Chairman

Four topics were discussed:

1. Training for Service for Christ and the Church through C. E. by Rev. W. A. Regier
2. The Four-Department Plan by Alma Stauffer
3. The Worship Program of Juniors by Mrs. Harley King
4. Reaching the Unsaved through the Sunday School by Homer Leisy

Miss Dorothy Leisy sang a solo during the program

Sunday Evening

Rev. J. M. Franz was chairman. An interesting Young People's meeting was conducted with talks and instrumental numbers, followed by a short illustrated message by Homer Leisy. President Phillip Wedel gave the closing conference message.

The following recommendations and resolutions were adopted during the conference:

(Presented by the Evangelization Board)

1. That the allowance for our workers be as follows for the year: Newport, $20.00; Dallas, $35.00; Winton, $10.00; Deer Park, $5.00 per month.
2. We recommend to the churches of this conference to take up a liberal offering for the completion of the auditorium at Dallas and send the amount to the treasurer of the Conference specified "for Dallas."
3. We wish God's rich blessings to Homer Leisy in his decision to dedicate his full-time service to the Lord and pledge our fraternal support to his new charge. We also recommend his ordination.
4. We recommend that the work at Winton, California, be continued for another year; that is, until Sept. 1, 1940.
5. We recommend that the taxes on the parsonage be paid out of the conference treasury until the Portland congregation sees her way clear to assume that obligation.

(Presented by the Resolutions Committee)

1. That we express our appreciation by a rising vote of thanks to the following: The First Mennonite Church of Monroe. Washington, its pastor, members who have kindly entertained us in their homes, the committees who have made such splendid arrangements for our physical comforts and the women who gave of their time and labor to provide the meals.
2. That the secretary of the conference be instructed to send a note of appreciation to the pastor and congregation of the Methodist Church of Monroe for the use of their building.
3. That the secretary to the conference be instructed to respond to the greetings sent to the conference.
4. That peace teaching be encouraged in our churches and the distribution of the peace leaflets, "The Invincible Leader," and "Principles of Christian Peace and Patriotism."
5. That individual Bible Study, Bible study classes, and the daily vacation Bible school be promoted in our churches and that every effort be made to extend this work to those who are without a knowledge of the gospel.
6. That we sing a hymn of gratitude to our heavenly Father for the progress made during the past year, and for the harmonious fellowship, and spiritual blessings of the conference.

—A farewell service for the outgoing missionaries, Orlando and Vernelle Schroeder Waltner by the churches near Freeman and Marion is being arranged for.

IN MEMORIAM

MRS. LIZZIE L. SWEINHART, daughter of Henry R. and Mary Laux Rosenberger, was born February 20, 1866, at Milford Square. She declared her faith in Jesus Christ as her Lord and Savior, and was baptized, April 7, 1882, received into the membership of the West Swamp Mennonite Church where she has remained a devout member ever since.

On January 10, 1891, she was united in marriage with Aaron W. Sweinhart. Nine children were born into this union. Six of these as well as her husband, preceded her in death. Those surviving are: Mrs. George Shirmer, East Riverton, N. J.; Mrs. Howard Weller, Spinnerstown and Calvin, Emmaus. Fourteen grandchildren also survice. Sisters and brothers to mourn their departed sister are: Mrs. Oliver Keiser, and Menno S. Rosenberger, Milford Square; Mrs. John Roth, Mrs. Samuel Bauman and Mrs. David Boyer, Quakertown.

Mrs. Sweinhart had been sick for some weeks, but had improved, so that she could attend worship service again, therefore her sudden death was a shock to everyone. She was found asleep in Jesus in her bedroom on the morning of July 11th, thus bringing her age to 73 years, 4 months and 21 days.

Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander, pastor, conducted the service in the West Swamp Church, using 2 Cor. 4:17, 18 as text. Rev. Kistler, of the Lutheran Church assisting. Interment was made in the West Swamp cemetery.

HERMAN KREHBIEL, son of Peter and Susanna Krehbiel, was born near Donnellson, Iowa, September 24, 1871, and passed away on July 14, 1939, in the same house where he was born and where he resided all his life. He attained the age of 67 years, 9 months and 20 days.

On September 28, 1884, he was baptized by Rev. Christian Schowalter and received as a member of the Zion Mennonite Church of Donnellson, where he took an active part, especially in the song service, for many years.

His illness was of several months duration, nevertheless the end came suddenly on Friday evening at 7 o'clock.—Surviving is one sister, Mary, at home, a number of cousins and a host of friends. His acquaintances were also his friends, for he was of a pleasant disposition and had a word of greeting for all whom he met.—He was preceded in death by his parents, one brother, Valentine, who died in infancy and one sister, Katherine.

Funeral services were held July 16, in his home church at Donnellson, Iowa, with Rev. A. Friesen in charge. His text was from John 14:14. "If a man die, shall he live again?"

MOTHER MARIA PLENERT KOPPER was born Feb. 6, 1863, at Burches, Poland, where she received the greater part of her education. She joined the Mennonite Church of which she remained a faithful member until her death. When she was 16 years old the family migrated to the United States and settled on a farm north of Hillsboro, Kans., where she spent her girlhood days.

On Nov. 24, 1884 she entered into holy wedlock with David Kopper. In 1934 the couple were granted the privilege of celebrating their Golden Wedding. Her husband preceded her in death by less than two months.

The last few years the couple made their home at Bethel Home for the Aged, Newton, Kans., where they received the best of care. She was a constant comforter to her ailing husband, a kind and loving mother, interested in the spiritual welfare of her children and grandchildren. Her deeds of love and devoted Christian life shall always be an inspiration to the bereaved.

She passed away July 7, 1939, at the age of 16 years, 5 months and one day. She leaves to mourn her children, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Kopper of South Haven, Kans., Mr. and Mrs. Otto Schroeder of Hillsboro, seven grandchildren, one sister, Mrs. Andrew Schroeder, and many relatives and friends. Funeral services were held at the First Mennonite Church of Hillsboro, July 10th, Rev. J. H. Epp officiating.

MRS. MARY ELIZABETH ESSER, nee Wismer, wife of William Henry Esser, died at the home of their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Strouse in Lumberville, Pa. on July 7, 1939, aged 74 years, 5 months and 7 days. The Esser family are members of the Deep Run Church. Funeral services and interment here by Pastor A. M. Fretz on July 11.

MRS. LOVENA BLEAM, nee Kramer, widow of Oscar Bleam, died on July 9 at the home of her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sowers, in Perkasie, Pa., aged 62 years, 5 months. Services and interment at Kellers' Church on July 13. Rev. Furman, the pastor, was assisted by Rev. A. M. Fretz.

PETER SCHNECK, the oldest son of Abraham and Barbara Zuercher Schneck, was born on December 23, 1856. He died on July 14, 1939 at the age of 82 years, 6 months and 21 days. He was married to Elizabeth Sprunger, oldest daughter of David Sprunger of Berne, Indiana, on April 8, 1880. Four children were born to this union of whom only the youngest son, John Wesley, is left to mourn his father's departure from the scenes of earth. On June 20, 1912 Mr. Schneck's faithful companion was taken from him, leaving sorrow and loneliness. To his dying day he scarcely ever mentioned his good wife without tears in his eyes.

He is survived by three brothers and two sisters: David of Dalton; Maria, widow of the late Rev. Jacob Nussbaum; John of Pandora, Ohio; Barbara, Mrs. Peter J. Amstutz of Dalton, and Daniel of Canton, Ohio. He is also survived by his son John Wesley of Milwaukee, Wisconsin and three grandchildren, John Wesley, Jr., George Robert, and Margaret Elizabeth, and a large number of other relatives.

Peter Schneck was one of the earliest members of the Salem Mennonite Church, to which church he gave a life-time of service. His record of fifty-three years as a Sunday School teacher is one seldom exceeded. During the course of his long membership he served the church in nearly every important office. He loved the church he served. In on of his last audible prayers of the past Monday he was heard to say, "God bless this church and all its undertakings."

The deceased was an inveterate reader of the Bible. He read the Bible from cover to cover in the neighborhood of fifty times. Since he was blessed with an exceptional memory he acquired a Bible knowledge seldom equalled by the laity or clergy. His life and character were a testimony to the Bible. The respect in which the community held him is attested to by the fact that he had nearly 400 visitors in the course of his three months of illness.

In the departure of Peter Schneck, the community loses a stable citizen, the church a loyal servant, and his family a loving father and grandfather. Truly he was "as a tree planted by the waters", his influence for good will live for years to come.—Funeral services, held on Sunday, July 16, were conducted by his pastor, Rev. A. S. Rosenberger, assisted by his former pastor, Rev. A. R. Keiser, and by Rev. Allen Bixler of Kidron.

—Salem Church, Dalton, O.: Summertime is the most difficult time for church going in the country as well as the city. The days are often hot and people are working hard. Sunday is needed for rest and recreation. Yet to God's people the day should be all the the more satisfactory for having worshipped in the house of God. God has a blessing for those who allow nothing to interfere with regular worship if at all possible to attend. Six of our young people are attending the international C. E. Convention in Cleveland. We hope to hear a report of this great gathering of young people.—The passing of Brother Peter Schneck leaves a challenge to our younger church members, for some one to say, "I'll try to take his place." If several make such a resolve, the church will be so much stronger. Here is a challenge to service, to prayer, to giving.—
In "Bulletin" by Rev. Rosenberger.

—Rev. Walter Gering whose Sermon Sketch on Conflicting Loyalties appears in this paper writes: "Personally I believe the idea of running sermon sketches in the Mennonite is a good one, only I would like to see them given with a bit more detail. It would be helpful to find how the various ministers develop the outlines which they have presented. I realize that your space is limited and that you are doing the best you can under the circumstances. I hope that the day may come when space will be available for more detailed reports of sermons given by our ministers.—"Thank you, Brother Gering for this well-meant suggestion. May we hear briefly from other ministers on this subject?—Editor.

—Ordained to the Ministry.—On the same Sunday, July 23, 1939, the following two young Mennonites were inducted into the holy service of gospel ministers in their home churches: Harold Ratzlaff, graduate of Bethel College and at present a student at the Hartford, Conn., Theol. Seminary, was ordained in his home church, the Hopedale church of Meno, Okla. Rev. A. J. Dyck, of Inman, Kansas, chairman of the Home Mission Board of the W. D. C., officiated, Rev. J. J. Ratzlaff, uncle of the candidate, preached a sermon, and Rev. H. U. Schmidt, local pastor, gave a helpful charge.—Willard K. Claassen, member of the First Church, Newton, Kans., a graduate of the Baptist Theol. Seminary at Louisville, Ky., was ordained by Elder J. E. Entz, assisted by Rev. C. E. Krehbiel and Rev. A. Warkentin. With his bride of a couple of weeks, Rev. Claassen left for Roaring Springs, Pa., to take charge of the General Conference church there.

—Correction.—A slip in the cogs of the editors memory made Jesus say to the Samaritan woman: "He that believeth on me though he die, yet shall he live," when he should have said, "to Mary," in a recent editorial "About Religion."

—ATTENTION!!—Will the brethren in Oklahoma and others kindly remember the Oklahoma Convention which is to be held August 27-28, in the City Auditorium, at Fairview, Okla. You will find the interesting program in the Mennonite of August 25. Rev. (Prof.) A. E. Kreider of Bethel College is the convention speaker and will serve this gathering well as he always does. Missionary Benno Toews of Canton, Okla., will also speak.—At the request of Rev. August Schmidt, Secr. who adds: "We wish you God's continued blessing in your work. We appreciate the Mennonite and the fine way in which it is made up."

—From the Bulletin of St. John Church, Pandora, O.—"A visit to the sick and the shut-ins is a Christian service that every Christian should render as often as he needs encouragement and strength in his Christian life."—"A committee of the S. S. consisting of the pastor, the superintendent and the librarian are considering the purchase of books for the S. S. library. They will be glad to consider recommendations of worthwhile books. Have you some books that you would be willing to give or lend to the library that others may read them." This is a splendid way to get the right kind of books for S. S. and church folks to read.—Editor.

—Rev. A. S. Rosenberger of the Salem Church, Dalton, O., and Rev. Herald Burkholder, of the East Swamp Church, Quakertown, Pa., have joined that goodly number of ministers who are wisely and gratuitously sending us copies of their Sunday church bulletins. We appreciate these sources of information from the different churches for our Jottings page.

—Mennonite Church, Bloomfield, Mont.—We have just finished our Daily Vacation Bible School. An average of 64 children attended every day. At the close, a program was given to a house full of people by the children of the school.—"Have you a regular correspondent from here at the Bloomfield church? No, we don't seem to have one listed. Would be happy to see one appointed.—Editor.

—Bethany Church, Freeman, S. D.—While the pastor, L. H. Linscheid is taking his vacation, Rev. Harold Gross, a native son of the place and home from his studies at Hartford Seminary will substitute for him.

—MARRIED.—At the home of their pastor, Rev. D. J. Unruh, Harold Geiger and Alice Nusbaum of Pandora, Ohio, Friday, July 21. The couple left for a short wedding trip to New York.

—East Swamp Church, Pa.—The ministers of the E. C. D. will meet Friday, (July 21?) in what they call a Seminar, to discuss the early leaders of the church.—The pastor is giving a series of messages on the Levitical Offerings, on present Sunday, The Burnt-Offering.—During the coming weeks, some Y. P. of the church hope to conduct a few street meetings in Quakertown and vicinity.

INEXPENSIVE ENJOYMENTS.—Generally speaking the people of today hold to the assumption that our enjoyments, our pleasures must cost money or they are hardly worth having. So, coupled with the increased cost of living, there is the added cost of pleasures, and there seems to be a growing conception that the greater the cost and display of our enjoyments, the greater is the pleasure derived from them. But God holds so many pleasures in store for us right where we are that may be had for the taking. The difficulty with so many of us is that neither our physical nor spiritual senses have been exercised sufficiently to perceive them. Some people visiting the Grand Canyon have been heard to say that they see nothing but a great big hole there while others view it with mingled awe and ecstacy. Rich folks think they have to go to the end of the world to see nature's sights, while some of them are right where we are, as the German poet says, "Willst du immer weiter schweifen, sich das gute liegt so nah." Why do you always try to roam farther away when the good lies so near? O what pleasure is there in the view of a sunrise or a sunset, in the myriads of sparkling dewdrops, in the song of birds, in the majesty of mountains, forests and streams. What joy, what ecstacy in meditating a starlit sky, from which God speaks to us so mightily! What joys may be found in a simple Christian home, where love abounds! What joy in reading a good, wholesome book on a winter evening around the fireplace, or in song and music in a home circle of friends! Our Mennonite forefathers found genuine satisfaction around a repast of the simplest form, with little cost in money and effort. Now it seems as though the more costly and elaborate our social gatherings are as to eats, style and display, the more pleasure a good many people at least pretend to get out of them. Do they really, honestly? To people born with a sound body, good health is a thing greatly to be enjoyed, and costs little, provided they take care of themselves. If not it may cost a good deal to buy it back at the hands of doctors and hospitals. Last but not least, there is greatest joy in doing the will of God and in the company of those who truly love Him.

CHRISTIANS THE LIGHT OF THE WORLD.—"Ye are the light of the world," Matt. 5:44.—Light has two uses: To show us how to find our way and to bring out the reality and beauty of the world round about us. If our religion does not do that for the people we come in contact with, there is something wrong with it. As with some lamps which are so covered with shades or drapings that their light is greatly diminished. It is possible that business cares, family cares, ambitions to acquire wealth or fame, fears of what the world is coming to, and what not, so dim the light that we as Christians should give out that it is quite ineffective. All about us there are people who are groping and longing for the LIGHT, looking to Christians for help and comfort and guidance, for some one to show them the way to a better life, and the road to the heavenly Home.—T.

A THRILLING EXPERIENCE.—Hudson Taylor tells of a terrible experience he had as the sailing ship, "Dumfries" took him to China.

A severe hurricane was whipping the sea and covering it with a white foam. The waves mounted up like hills on both sides and the deep threatened to swallow the small ship with its occupants. The wind threw them mercilessly from side to side and progress was impossible.

Suddenly one side of the ship was thrown up, while the other was deeply depressed, causing the waves to plunge madly upon the unfortunates. Taylor thought: "If God doesn't miraculously save us, all that will be left of the ship in the morning will be a few scattered planks." It seemed impossible to avoid a dangerous rock toward which they were being madly driven. Closer and closer came the ship, until just two ship-lengths away.

The captain tried to steer it away, but in vain. Then he made a strenuous effort to turn it the opposite way. This proved to be successful. It would not have helped them any, however, had not the wind suddenly changed direction and taken them out of the danger. Hudson's own words show that it was God himself that had saved them from this terrible impending disaster. He says: "Had the Lord not helped us, all our efforts would have been in vain. Truly His mercy is very great. Oh, that the people would praise Him for His kindness and glorious deeds."

Address by Pres. E. G. Kaufman of Bethel College at Dedication of New Addition to Bethel Hospital, Newton, Kansas

We are gathered here in a church building as Christians for the purpose of dedicating an addition to a hospital and the organization of a clinic. It was not always thus. There was a time when the church and the medical profession found themselves in opposite camps; when an attempt to relieve sickness and suffering was interpreted as working against God and his will, whereas today we consider such attempt as working with God and He with us.

The history of medicine is most interesting. Five hundred years before Christ, the wonderful age of Socrates, Plato, and Aristotle, also gave to the world Hippocrates, the father of medicine. He insisted upon a study of cause and effect in dealing with disease, rather than the old superstitious approach.

The coming of Jesus into the world and the development of Christianity greatly affected medical science, more especially in two ways. First, the personal example of healing the sick, as well as the teachings of Jesus regarding sympathy with the afflicted, in fact, the whole spirit of Christ, not only gave a great impetus to the modern attitude towards disease, but in very fact was the saving element in the total problem throughout history, in spite of many difficulties. Second, however, the position of the church, and especially that of some theologians, has often been one of opposition to the scientific approach in sickness and medicine. One becomes especially conscious of this upon reading such books as the two volumes by Andrew D. White entitled, The Warfare of Science With Theology, published in 1917, or other volumes of similar nature of more recent date.

Many church fathers, among them St. Augustine himself, insisted that disease and sickness was due to demons or to the wrath of God. The cure could only be obtained by resorting to sacred relics, words of incantation, and other modes of driving out or appeasing said demons. Physicians, of course, who insisted on treating sickness in more scientific ways were condemned as dangerous and there was a long and bitter fight between the church and medicine. Theologians opposed dissection and an anatomical study of the human body because of their materialistic conception of the resurrection. The church blessed the shedding of blood in war, but for a surgeon to shed blood in performing an operation was considered a most heinous sin and condemned by the church for a period of over a thousand years. Physicians were persecuted; had to do their study in secrecy and dark cellars. If discovered, many of them were dealt with as heretics.

Outside of the church there were, however, two groups who were free to advance the cause of scientific study of disease without any interference by the church. These two groups were the Jews and the Mohammedans. They were considered hopeless anyway, so far as the church was concerned, and so made a great contribution along the medical line. Physicians, and other scientific men classed with them, were talked of as sorcerers and magicians. It is no wonder that physicians were unbelievers. A proverb in the middle ages had it that "Where three physicians are gathered you will have four atheists," (the fourth one of course being the devil himself). It was not until 1391 that a university was given permission by the governing authorities to dissect for study the human body, and that with the restriction that it must not be more than the body of one dead criminal every three years. After Harvey discovered the circulation of the blood the church denied this fact for over one hundred years, and condemned as heretics those who taught and believed it.

Epidemics and plagues broke out annually in many countries because of the unsanitary conditions, but scientific sanitation was opposed by the church as pride of the flesh. Even cities of our own land passed laws against the installation of bath tubs. When the medical profession came out with inoculation and vaccination the church condemned such practices as interferring with God's will. In 1772 a physician by the name of Boylston was tried for murder in Boston because of this practice and preachers delivered sermons on the "Sin of Inoculation." In 1798 the Anti-Vaccination Society was formed in America. Also when ether and chloroform were being used as anaesthetics, many preachers insisted that it was an ungodly thing to do and not in line with His expressed will.

Taking the total picture into consideration, it must, however, also be stated that there always were those in the church who carried on the spirit and attitude of Christ towards the unfortunate and suffering. The best elements in the church as the body of Christ steadily carried on and finally permeated the entire social outlook on this problem, until today it is considered a Christian duty and opportunity to do everything possible, by the help of God, in a scientific way to relieve the sufferings of men and conquer sickness and disease.

In the Journal of the American Medical Association for March, 1939, we are given some interesting statistics for the year 1938. There were that year in America 6,166 registered hospitals, of which 981 were church hospitals. All these registered hospitals together had a capacity of 1,161,000 beds and that year had 9,421,000 bed patients. Besides, registration was refused, because of not meeting required standards, to 636 hospitals with a capacity of 18,000 beds. The increase in 1938 was the equivalent of the erection of one new hospital of 101 beds per day for the year.

One person in every fourteen in America was a hospital bed patient in that year. One person was admitted to the hospital every 3.3 seconds. Over one million live births took place in hospitals in 1938, while only ten years previous that figure was around 600,000 and in 1937 the total live births registered in the United States was 2,200,000, which means that in 1938 very nearly one-half of all live births took place in hospitals, which says a good deal as to our changed attitude towards hospitals.

Yes, we have made progress. Science has become an international language which closes and bridges the gap between classes, nations, and races. May God grant that this will so continue. There are, however, signs in our present day which cause us to wonder with some misgivings as to the future of this process. Just one example: Professor Lenard of Berlin University (physics Nobel prize winner of former days, along with our own Milliken and Compton) has recently come out with a four-volume work on the Science of Physics, in the introduction of which he says, "I might rather have said 'Aryan Physics' or the 'Physics of the Nordic Species of Man . . . . But it will be replied to me that science is and remains international. That, I say, is false. Science, like every other human product, is racial and is conditioned by blood." Of course, he says this because of the totalitarianism under which he lives and we know it is the substitution of superstitious nonsense for science.

II.

Man has long been regarded as spirit, mind, and body. The church's primary concern is spiritual welfare. Nevertheless, it must not ignore mental and physical welfare. The primary concern of the mind has been delegated to the school, nevertheless, it must not ignore the welfare of the spirit and the body; while medicine and hospitals have been charged with the welfare of the body as their primary concern, but they too must not ignore the welfare of the spirit and the mind.

Bethel Hospital and Deaconess Home is in a sense a child of the church and the school. The founders of this institution were members of the church and they were also members of the Board of Directors of Bethel College. They were religious men, believers in education, as well as in the welfare and the scientific care of the physical body. The first interest manifested along the lines of deaconess and hospital work by the present Mother Superior, Sister Frieda, in 1900, was picked up and nurtured along by the Bethel College Board of Directors. In 1903 the college board secured a charter for the founding of a deaconess home and hospital, and it was not until 1905, when the hospital and college organization separated, and the building proper was started in 1907.

So, if there is a parent-child relationship between Bethel College and Bethel Hospital, I as a representative of the college am this day reminded of Ecclesiastes 12:5, where the preacher describes old age when he says: "They shall be afraid of that which is high." During recent years Bethel Hospital as the child has made remarkable progress, while it seems to some of us that the parent institution, or the college has lagged behind. Traveling in mountains there are good roads that lead to the top of them and over them which to older people seem very high and dangerous, but which to children and young people are a great attraction and challenge and which they travel with much satisfaction and joy. They are not afraid of that which is high. During these hard economic years Bethel Hospital with daring and courage has developed its nurses home, hospital addition and clinic without fear of that which is high, but rather attracted and challenged thereby. It took real leadership and cooperation. God has blessed the institution in its undertaking and has seen it through. Of course, many have helped. Some have helped in special ways.

Jesus tells us in Matthew 6:20, lay up for yourselves treasures in Heaven, where rust, moths, and thieves cannot get at them. This hospital addition and clinic is an indication that there have been those who have believed and acted on this advice of Jesus. The economic condition of recent years with its many failures along financial lines should help to remind Christians of the truth of these words of Jesus.

Daniel Drew was a great financier, although he did not always make his money according to the highest principles and has been classified with the "Robber Barons." Nevertheless, there is credited to him a worthwhile sentence which he made after one of his financial failures when a friend said to him, "Mr. Drew, you gave too much money away." Drew answered, "No, I did not—what I gave I have, what I kept is gone." This hospital addition and clinic would not be possible without people who agreed with that sentiment.

In ancient history monuments were chiefly built for their beauty and the glorification of some emperor or other person. More recently man has added to the idea of a monument the thought of benefit to humanity. The hospital and clinic commemorates self denial, glorifies community spirit, and heightens the quality of Christian medical service.

Medical practice is undergoing rapid changes. Some of the old diseases are gradually gotten more under control, but due to the high tension and speed of modern civilization other diseases are coming to the fore. Medical science is harnessing chemistry and electricity to help it. They are increasingly perfecting their instruments and improving their methods. It may still be true that 80 per cent of sick people would get well without doctors. It is also true that the other 20 per cent needs the best of medical attention. Medical science has lengthened the span of life. It has reduced the rate of infant mortality. Modern medicine is becoming increasingly complex. No one physician can master all branches of medicine. No one office can hold all the latest medical equipment. So in the clinic, physicians who are experts in different branches of medicine cooperate with each other and the hospital by pooling their skill and facilities for the sake of the patients.

Every institution has a spirit and personality of its own. This is also true of a hospital and a clinic. A Christian institution will have a Christian spirit. A spirit is not static but growing. The formation of this clinic is one step in the right direction of the growth of the Christian spirit of this institution. It is a social step based on a social need in an attempt to meet it in a social way. The growth of the Christian spirit of this institution will require that other steps follow. What they will be, or when they will take place time will tell, but follow they must sooner or later, lest the Christian spirit will depart. Whatever we may think of socialized medicine, and no doubt we all would admit that it is not altogether good nor altogether bad, the fact however remains that in this country under our present arrangement the very wealthy can secure the best of medical attention, because they can pay for it; the very poor can secure the best of medical attention because the state will pay for it; but it is yet a great unsolved problem how to meet the needs of the great middle class in America.

May God bless Bethel Hospital and Clinic and use it for the expression of His spirit and the furtherance of His kingdom in this entire area and give it wisdom and courage to take whatever next steps are needed when the time for these comes.

KAI CHOW HOSPITAL GROWS

By Dr. C. L. Pannabecker

Busy is the word that characterizes our hospital work this year—613 inpatients in the 9 months the hospital was open—400 was the most in a year before, and over 10,000 clinic visits.

I wish this parade of patients could pass before you so you could see those we have served. Last spring banditry was the worst I have seen. War also brought a large number of civilian casualties, so most of our work was gunshot and other wounds. Gunshot wounds of legs and arms, with fractures; gunshot wounds of shoulders, hands, feet, and even head and face wounds; one could only marvel at how close the patient came to fatal injury,—and all these bone injuries treated without an X-ray. During the summer Malaria was bad and quinine difficult to get. Later Cholera raged, every village had deaths daily. The patients who were brought to us were fortunate as cure was almost certain, but intravenous injections kept us busy.

During summer and fall normal conditions returned and our patients were more the regular run of medical and surgical cases. In December at one time we had three patients in for removal of abdominal tumors, all ovarian cysts, each one larger than the one before. Our fame is being spread by these patients who had never before seen such treatment. Then there was also a woman with a urinary fistula from a tear at childbirth which made life miserable. She went home cured. Her total bill at the hospital was less than $10.00 U. S. currency including about two months stay in the hospital and two operations. She sold what she had to get money to come to the hospital and she didn't have half enough. Some of your gifts for poor patients made it possible for her to stay and be cured.

We have now a bright little girl 10 years old in the hospital; her leg in a plaster cast. She and her mother are beggars since her father, who was a water carrier, died. They were crushed when a wall fell in, the mother injured badly and the girl's leg broken. They both get free treatment, thanks to some more of you, and now a class of children from Oregon want to help a child go to school and she is just the one.

Another patient, a boy, was in the hospital with Kala Azar for several months, he had developed one of those terrible ulcers on his face which heal up nicely under treatment but leave a bad defect where the tissue sloughs out—in his case nearly half his lower lip is lost and his chief concern has been how to get a new lip. He begged me to graft on a dog's lip. Poor boy, I'm not sure I'm a good enough plastic surgeon to make him a lip. He also was helped by friends in America.

We have many grateful patients and let me just take this occasion to express their Thanks To You for help. When they go home they carry the message of love and friendship and Christ's gospel to their home and villages. Evangelistic workers tell us of this help to our gospel work. You will rejoice with us to hear this.

CORRESPONDANCE

FIRST MENN. CHURCH, WADSWORTH, O.

We have had numerous events of interest occuring at our church since we last wrote to you. On June 11th Childrens' day was observed by a program during the Sunday School hour, and by a special sermon and infant consecration service during the worship hour. On July 2nd Holy Communion was observed in connection with a Home Coming of former members of the church. On July 16th, Rev. Carl Landis brought the message at the morning service, and also at a special young people's service in the evening, speaking on Peace. On Wednesday evening, July 19th, the S. S. held its annual picnic at Orr Park in Orville, Ohio. The picnic was well attended and enjoyed by all present. On Tuesday, July 25th, Rev. Shelly and family left for Pennsylvania to visit relatives and friends there during his two weeks' vacation. The pulpit was filled on July 30th by Rev. Fisher of Medina, who brought us an inspiring message.

HOME MISSIONS

A. J. NEUENSCHWANDER, Secretary

THE BEGINNINGS AND EARLY HISTORY OF THE HOME MISSION WORK OF THE GENERAL CONFERENCE MENNONITES

The earliest settlements of Mennonites in America were made in southwestern Pennsylvania. Germantown was settled in 1683, Skippack, 1702, and the Hereford settlement was made in 1732. From then on Mennonites moved toward the west and south, going into Virginia and the central part of Pennsylvania and on toward Canada. Of course, this first section where Mennonites settled, had remained to this time a Mennonite stronghold. By 1850 settlements were made in northern Ohio, southwestern Iowa, southern Illinois, in northern Indiana, and in Canada above Lake Erie.

Three general characteristics might be attached to Mennonites. They are individualistic, devout, and good farmers. The fact that in the main they are good farmers has induced them to become scattered; and, being individualistic, they went where good farming land could be bought at low prices. Rev. John H. Oberholtzer, Milford Square, Pa., knowing that they were devout, started a paper, "Religioeser Botshafter" in 1852, and appealed to their devotion to hold together in spite of being widely scattered. His main objective was to form a United Mennonite Church. This was a mission in itself.

As soon as individuals here and there gave expression to this appeal, we catch the first real note of home mission work. In a letter, dated April 20, 1859, Jacob Krehbiel, Iowa, says, in part, "that united they (the Mennonites) may care for the spiritual wants of all isolated and scattered brethren of the faith."

General Conference Formed

Finally, after much correspondence and prayer, the first meeting for a Conference of Mennonites was held at West Point, Iowa, in Lee County, May 28-29, 1860. At this meeting steps were taken to form a union of all Mennonites in America. In addition, a resolution was passed directing, "hereafter Home and Foreign Mission shall be carried on according to the ability of our denomination". Two treasuries were established, one in Iowa and one in Pennsylvania. Time was needed to get this new organization into working order. There was no special committee or Board formed for any special task, but the whole conference acted as a body. The first definite work was done in 1862, when Daniel Hege visited a number of churches in Ontario and sought to acquaint them with the aims and plans of a General Conference.

Organized Efforts

In 1872, just ten years later, the General Conference could take some more steps for home mission work. Three men were appointed to the task of unifying the scattered churches, L. O. Schimmel's field was to be in the East, E. Hunsberger was to work the central section, Chr. Krehbiel was chosen for the West. These men were to receive their traveling expenses and two dollars per day for their work. Each man did some visitation in his assigned field, but not much. In 1873 many Mennonite immigrants came to this country from Europe, especially from Russia. Krehbiel did good work among these and succeeded in interesting them in the General Conference movement.

In the 1878 Conference, efforts were made to systematize this work and a committee of three was appointed for this task. They were L. O. Schimmel, Pennsylvania, D. Goerz, Kansas, and J. S. Hirschler, Iowa. Since the report of this committee is of more than ordinary significance, we shall quote it fully: "As the duty of the Home Missionary we consider not only incessant travel and visitation among our churches, but rather a sufficiently prolonged stay at a place where work may have been begun, that his going away shall not be injurious to the work; that is, until a church is fully organized and can care for itself, or provision has been made that their spiritual wants are looked after from elsewhere. Not that the Home Missionary shall be stationed for years at one place, or that he is to care for one church only, but the plan is that he shall give most attention to places needing it most, while at the same time he may go elsewhere in the neighborhood, so far as he is able and circumstances will permit."

The home mission committee recommended Rev. S. F. Sprunger, Berne, Ind., for this work. The call could not be accepted fully, since the home congregation permitted him to be away only for short intervals. During the 1878-1881 interim, some work was done by three brethren, but no systematic effort was maintained. In 1881, the Conference took new courage and a committee of five was appointed for this work. The difficulty was to find a man who was suited for this work. Finally the Lord was preparing a man, J. B. Baer, student in the Union Theological Seminary, New York, and he was called. He desired to complete his studies first. In the meantime the energetic committee engaged M. S. Moyer and D. B. Hirschler to do part-time work. Finally in the spring of 1887 Baer was ready to start. His first field was Manitoba, Canada, where a large number of Russian immigrants had just recently settled. A revival was started here. Later he worked in Minnesota and the Dakota territory with good results.

New Phases of Work

Great satisfaction was expressed at the 1887 Conference, with Rev. Baer's work. Some special needs could be presented. For instance, Stevensville, Ontario was in need of a new church building. Immediately the Conference directed the home churches to assist this struggling congregation. The spiritual need of the people in Manitoba was also presented and in response the Conference directed H. Richert to visit and labor in this field. Permanent blessings followed Bro. Richert's work.

During the following three years, Rev. Baer succeeded in visiting all the churches connected with the General Conference. Of course, he was always ready to visit Mennonite groups and settlements that were unattached. In addition to preaching every Sunday two or three times and conducting meetings almost every evening, he visited in hundreds of homes. In the Pulaski, Iowa Church, the Lord granted a gracious revival. Thirty converts resulted.

From the above it is clearly evident that home mission work was not starting new churches in new places among non-Mennonites, but it was church-extension in Mennonite settlements and in bringing existing churches into a more closely knit bond of union.

Work in the Northwest

During 1889 Baer toured Europe, consequently not much home mission work was done, with the exception that M. S. Moyer visited some churches in Iowa. In March, 1890, Rev. Baer was again ready to resume his duties. He directed his work through Minnesota, the Dakotas and on toward the Pacific Coast. The pioneer settlements in Washington and Oregon were visited and aid was given in the forming of new churches. Rev. Baer was also very helpful in laying the plans for the forming of the Pacific District Conference.

The Needs

1. Instead of a regular westward movement today, we have our people moving toward industrial centers. Keep the Board informed about such individuals and families, so that they might be followed and cared for with the Gospel.

2. There is a movement of members from one church community into another because of intermarriage, or employment, or other reasons. Pastors, Sunday School leaders or leading laymen should notify the pastor or the proper individual in the neighborhood church of the new prospects.

3. Some work still needs to be done in our churches to give our people intelligent and inspiring information concerning all the work that the General Conference is doing. The field secretary is doing this type of work. Hear him when he comes. Talk to him about the work.

Besides these types of work, the Home Mission Board is carrying on other lines of endeavor. These are covered in an article on Church Extension Through Home Missions.

May the Lord richly bless every supporter of the work.

BEVERAGE ALCOHOL AND THE COMMUNITY

Joel 1:5-7; Daniel 5:1-5, 17, 25-28

TOPIC: What Alcohol Costs Our Community

Introduction

It is plainly evident to any thinking person that what individuals do about beverage alcohol does much affect the community. Were alcohol a healthful food or drink, its use would cause no more concern than the use of any soft drink or ice cream. Alcohol has a poisonous drug effect.

Joel's Picture of Distress vs. 5-7

A serious calamity suffered by the country, drought and locusts, led to the writing of this book. A very vivid description is given in chapter 2:4-11. The country was waste and desolate—a judgment of God upon the nation. The vineyards were gone. There was no more wine for the drunkards. God cut off the supply at its source—the only effective way to stop the beverage alcohol evil in our country. The "nation" of verse 2 consists of devastating swarms of locusts which have eaten the vines and fig tree leaves and bark. So alcohol has eaten up all the resources of many persons and homes.

Belshazzar's Blasphemous Folly 5:1-5

Daniel presents a revolting picture of Belshazzar's feast which ended in a drunken carousal. He sinned against definite light. He knew how God had dealt with Nebuchadnezzar before him, yet he had not humbled his heart. Great pride and perhaps greater love of wine and sinful gaiety filled his heart. The extent of our guilt is determined by the amount of light we sin against. He even used the sacred vessels which had been brought from the temple in Jerusalem, as wine bowls in his drunken orgy. Alcohol leads to loss of reverence for all things sacred and holy.

God called a halt to the king's wickedness in a terrifying manner. The hand which wrote upon the wall, was sent from God to tell the king of the judgment about to come upon him and the nation (v5). Consternation seized him and he sought his wise men to read the interpretation of the writing.

The Handwriting Upon the Wall 5:17, 25-28

Daniel was not influenced by the King's offer of honor and authority. His only concern was to interpret God's message to him. It was a message of doom. His days as king, God had numbered and they have come to an end. His actions have been weighed in God's balances and they have not been acceptable to Him. His kingdom shall be broken up and divided. God will call people to account in time. The handwriting will appear on the wall for such who go on forgetful of Him or in defiance of Him. He is weighing us each day.

Our lesson topic is, "What Alcohol Costs Our Community." This differs greatly. The money cost is great, more so probably than most people think. There is first, the direct cost of the drink bill, the money paid out for alcoholic drinks. So far as the drinker is concerned, this money is worse than wasted. It serves no possible useful service and means that much less can be used for useful, needful things. It costs money, generally much of it, to take care of the product of the saloon. The community has the relief problem resulting from drink, on its hands. Added to this is the cost of the diseased and insane which result from drink.

The cost in manhood is inestimable. The use of alcohol tends to rob people of their manhood and womanhood. Its natural effect is to lessen self-control and modesty. The cost in public safety is a great concern of the community. Drink decreases such safety. The greatest menace to safety is the drinking automobile driver, a menace to himself and still more to the innocent victims of his indulgence in drink.

Every citizen is a debtor to his community to do his part in making it a good place to live in. This he can do by using all his influence against all that endangers and is harmful. A Christian can not conscientiously uphold the beverage use of any alcohol containing drinks.

Congregational Singing is Aim in Compiled Hymnal

Clipping from the Upland, Calif., News

A hymnal that is designed primarily for congregational singing is being prepared for the Mennonite church by the Rev. Lester Hostetler, pastor of the Upland Mennonite church, and by Prof. W. Hohmann, professor of music at Bethel College, Kansas, who is spending the summer in Upland. The hymnal, to be published in the fall, will be the first one to be issued by the denomination since 1927.

"Every generation, as a rule, feels the need of publishing a new hymnal," says Mr. Hostetler. "There are definite trends in the type of hymns that people prefer. Today, I think we are realizing that congregational singing occupies an important part in church services, and cannot be supplanted by choirs of professional singers," he continued.

550 Songs in Book

The new book will contain 550 hymns—100 more than contained in the previous book. A change in the new book, now being compiled, will be that hymns will be classified. One section, not included in the previous book, will contain a collection of German chorales. Music for these chorales is recognized as being some of the finest work ever composed. Another section will be devoted to metrical Psalms — compositions which are rich in harmony. The metrical Psalms come from Scotland and England.

Another classification will be the old gospel hymns. Here the more dignified of the old-time favorites are being selected. Another section is reserved for songs for children. Other hymns come under a general classification.

German Text Included

German text for some of the hymns is being printed in 20 or 25 hymns. Some original hymns, including a number composed by Prof. Hohmann, are to be included, and in some instances, new accompaniments are being written by him. They have gone to many sources for their material. One source is the Canadian Hymnery of the United Church of Canada, including Methodists, Presbyterians and Congregationalists.

Rev. Hostetler and Prof. Hohmann and others have been working five years on the book. Prof. Hohmann, a graduate of the Music Conservatory of Chicago, passes on the musical aspect of the hymns, while Rev. Hostetler considers the selections from the standpoint of their adaptability to the church service. Rev. Hostetler is also a trained musician, having taught public school music in Ohio before he entered the ministry.

The book will have an original circulation of probably 10,000 among Mennonite churches in the United States and Canada.

Prof. Hohmann and his family plan to remain in Upland for about two more weeks.

Remarks by L. J. Horsch Who Sent in the Article

It seems to me that Rev. Hostetler and Prof. Hohmann who are editing the revised Mennonite Hymn Book, after a committee of 4 (5) had made the selection, deserve more than a word of commendation for their labor in connection with the publication of the new hymnal. I have seen the men at their work, I have examined the tremendous mass of material they must examine, I have a concept of the huge volume of correspondence required to gain the consent of publishers and copyright owners to include hymns in this new hymnal. An entire room, and by no means a small one, has been put at the disposal of the two men and it is filled with the material they are using in preparation of the forthcoming hymn-book. This room is located in the basement of the Upland Church, in a portion of the building where there isn't so much likelihood of disturbance. No one who has not seen this work can appreciate the tremendous amount of detailed labor involved, the two men work almost daily from early morning, often before breakfast, until late into the night. And they have done this from June 12th, a month and a half already. The finished product will not only be the finest hymnal our denomination has ever had, but it will also be a tribute to the untiring and excellent work of Prof. Hohmann and Rev. Hostetler.

Pension System for Our Ministers

At the conference session of 1923 a plan for pensioning our missionaries and ministers was submitted; but by a referendum vote the churches decided to provide pensions only for missionaries, not for ministers. This, however, did not dispose of the problem, and the Brotherhood of the Eastern District in 1936 studied the matter and in 1938 referred it to the Executive Committee of the General Conference as beyond the power of a district to handle.

In consequence the session at Saskatoon in 1938 took up the matter and "Resolved (10), That this session create a special committee to study further the question of providing pensions for deserving, needy or super-annuated ministers, and that the matter be put into motion as soon as possible with the approval of the Executive Committee, and to report to the next session of Conference. Further: (11), Resolved, That the President appoint a committee of five to consider a pension plan, and add more to the committee as needed."

The outgoing and incoming presidents agreed on the following five brethren: O. F. Gilliom, Berne, Ind., chairman; Rev. D. J. Unruh, Pandora, Ohio, secretary; and members: H. E. Suderman, Newton, Kans.; Dr. I. P. Friesen, Marion, S. Dak.; and Clarence S. Shelly, Emmaus, Penna.

Material that has been accumulated in the hands of the undersigned has been transmitted to the secretary of this committee and it will proceed in accordance with conference instructions to seek the best solution of this problem.

May the Lord point the way to the solution that is in harmony with His will!

C. E. Krehbiel, Conference President,

Farewell Services For Missionaries Moyer

The first service was held in Brother Moyer's home church, the Zion Mennonite Church, Souderton, Pa., on Sunday afternoon, July 16th. The Rev. E. J. Bohn, local pastor was in charge of the service. The Scripture lesson, Romans 12, was read by the Rev. J. J. Plenert, Conference President, and the prayer was offered by the Conference Secretary and member of the Foreign Mission Board.

Words of Farewell were fittingly given with Scripture passages by all ministers' present, Swartz, Burkholder, Neuenschwander, Krehbiel, Fretz, Waltner, Boehr, Bohn, Plenert and Nyce. Brother and Sister Moyer were called on for a word of farewell to the Eastern Conference. It was quite evident that these dear servants of God wree very anxious to return to their work in India. However, they were not going to Basna, but to Jangjir. Mrs. Moyer said, "Many people have asked me, Are you anxious to go back? I always had the same answer, Yes!" Then she continued, "Friends, do not feel sorry for us, for we do want so much to go back to our people."

The Church was well filled for the occasion.

About seventy people from Eastern Pennsylvania journeyed to Pier 59 in New York for a last word of farewell to our friends. At eleven o'clock a brief service was held in the Dining Room of the boat. After the singing of one verse of "He Leadeth Me" a number of prayers were offered unto God. We noticed that the Steward who came in took off his cap and bowed his head. Mrs. Moyer prayed for the co-workers in the home-land as we prayed for our co-workers on the field. Rev. Moyer was asked to pronounce the benediction. We all joined hands, the Steward included, and sang, "Blest be the Tie that Binds." We noted the tears in the eyes of the Steward and felt confident that he would do all in his power to keep our friends comfortable on their voyage. Then came the last handshake and 'Fare-thee-well.' Surely those present will not forget this solemn but brief service for many days, we hope, never.—Howard G. Nyce.

CORRESPONDENCE

SARON MENN. CHURCH, ORIENTA, OKLA.

The five pastors in charge of the special Bible course given at the O. B. A. at Meno, Okla., early in the year, delivered messages to this congregation on Friday night of each week. Rev. J. C. Kaufman, Rev. J. H. Epp, Rev. P. P. Tschetter, Rev. P. H. Unruh, and Rev. John Bergen were the brethren to whom we are grateful. The Men's Chorus from the Mennonite Brethren Church at Hillsboro, Kansas, rendered a program here that was certainly enjoyed by us all. On Good Friday morning the Bethel College A Capella Choir was with us. And the Men's Choir from the New Hopedale Congregation at Meno, Okla., rendered a program on May 14.

In March the Rev. P. P. Wedel, Moundridge, Kans., was in our midst for a ten-day series of meetings. The evening meditations dealt mostly with the suffering of our Lord and were in keeping with the pre-Easter season. In the morning II Thessalonians was chosen for study in the German language. Holy Communion was observed on the last night. June 4 was a blessed occasion when three boys and two girls were baptized during morning services and received into this congregation. Communion was observed in the afternoon. Elder H. U. Schmidt, Meno, Okla., and Rev. P. P. Kroeker, local pastor, exchanged pulpits during the day.

Harvest was better than it has been for a number of years. It rained so much during cutting season that it really took plenty long to get it done. At the time being, however, we are much in need of rain.—Corr.

Youth's Challenge

Place—Janjgir G. C. Mennonite Mission Church

Date—June 11, 1939

Time—From 7 to 8:30 A. M.

It was 98 degrees in the shade outdoors and even though the janitor opened the church early this morning, it seemed warmer inside. Last night was one of the most sultry nights of the past hot season; perspiration flowed freely because a heavy shower Saturday morning had saturated the air. The church bell summoned the people to worship at 6:30 this morning. Not more than five per cent were late; hardly more than three per cent were absent; at least twenty-five babies, (two years or younger) graced the services with their charming presence, and never once during the hour and a half did more than four cry at once. Also considering the weather, I am not ashamed to report that I saw only three four adults sound asleep.

The leader was forced to interrupt in the midst of the first hymn to ask us to sing a bit louder and in a more spirited way, because he added, "Is this not a song of thanksgiving and praise to a gracious Heavenly Father?" He is a young man and was substituting for the pastor, M. R. Asna, who went on a long pastoral errand to the Northern Home Mission field where there were candidates for baptism. So Philip had charge of the service and impressively read from God's Word the third chapter of 1 Samuel, a simple and exquisite account of God calling the boy Samuel to be judge over Israel. He told how in these very days English mothers are dedicating their sons for training for another war. Yet often God is calling in vain to the young people of India. They are not as responsive as He would wish, nor are parents as willing and eager to dedicate their children for God's service. One of his illustrations was fresh and shocked me back into careful attention—after moments of reverie.

On the threshing floors of India the grain is spread in the middle and a row of oxen yoked together and made to go round and round the central post. Now for the place nearest the post, where the ox has but a small circuit to make, the farmer selects his oldest and slowest ox, the one which has seen much toil and deserves a lighter burden. At the other end stands the young ox, not yet fully trained to the yoke, spirited and urging to go. So Philip argued, "Is it not time that the younger people, who have had advantages of education and training, take up eagerly the work of the church and evangelism, without too much thought about salary and position and reward?" To leave competition for positions of honor and pay to worldly ones, but to be willing, (and to signify that willingness as Samuel did,) to follow Jesus Christ, that is the great need among India's youth today.

There was only one missionary present, among the one hundred and fifty worshippers in the Janjgir church this morning. That missionary nodded assent. In between all that I heard with what I agreed, I still had time for wool gathering. Naturally today my thoughts flew across the ocean and were present at the Northern District Conference in session at the Salem church at Freeman. I know the people, and would have been most happy to be present this morning, as Orlando and Vernelle Waltner were ordained and ushered into missionary work. It would have encouraged me to hear the messages of the morning and to sit in the sessions of the day. The thought that there would be a message direct from the field and from the need, given by a coworker in the Mission was also helpful. Then I thought of the many and varied influences in my own life to bring me to a voluntary decision to serve Jesus Christ in India. And I could not help thinking that there must be nurses, doctors, married couples, and single ladies, with "calls" and training who need a little more urging, another challenging presentation of the need, an encouraging word about God's faithfulness. While we help fine, young Christian workers like Philip to urge and challenge our young people in the "Younger Churches" of the mission fields, we ask you to continue to do so at home. How we thank God that reenforcements are in view, that within the last two years five young people have been finding their place of service here; that as many have received the courage to go to China, that some are turning to the American Indians; that others are seeking difficult and needy city charges, or going to out-of-the-way or neglected rural churches. God continues to call. There is some response. What can we do to make the call clearer and the response wider?

What Can We Do About Misleading Advertising

Isa. 30:8-13; Prov. 12:22

Senior C. E. Topic for August 27, 1939

Worship Program

1. Instrumental Prelude: "O Worship the King"
2. Hymns: "Give of Your Best to the Master," "Living for Jesus"
3. Scripture: Isa. 30:8-13; Prov. 12:22
4. Prayer Hymn: "Just for Today" (should be sung softly and prayerfully by group or as solo).
5. Prayer. Points for purposeful prayers: Thank God (1) for the opportunity to learn; (2) for minds able to reason and think; (3) for the perfect norm of truth, the Bible. Ask God (1) to create in us a thirst for knowledge of the truth; (2) to help us make our minds alert so that they will detect the false from the true; (3) to lead us to the fountainhead of all wisdom and knowledge.
6. Discussion of topic, offering, announcements
7. Benediction (repeat in unison):

"Now unto him that is able to guard us from stumbling, and to set us before the presence of his glory without blemish in exceeding joy, to the only God our Saviour, through Jesus Christ, our Lord, be glory, majesty, dominion and power, before all time, and now, and for evermore. Amen."

Leader's Introduction

More than we commonly suppose, we are the victims of dishonest and vicious advertising. Advertisers frequently distort or misrepresent the truth, make use of unfair allurements to attract attention and win favor, belittle rival products, conceal unfavorable facts about their own products. Flagarant exaggeration is a common device of present-day advertising.

Not long ago a small dry-goods merchant in a certain city advertised a sale in his store. The advertisements stated in a frank and somewhat humorous manner that the sale prices were low because the goods themselves were cheap. Instead of the old line of "More for your money!", "Prices sensationally cut!", and "Stupendous sale starts Monday!", the customer was given credit for realizing that a low price means inferior materials and workmanship. Strange to say, this kind of advertising cleared the man's stock in a short time. The question is this: Was it merely the novelty of a new advertising scheme, or would the buying public respond to straight facts and no exaggeration in the advertisements it reads and sees and hears?

"Getting Stung"

There are probably very few persons in existence who have not felt indignation or at least chagrin at being duped by an attractive but deceitful advertisement into a foolish waste of money. But that is not the worst result of modern advertising, for advertisements of some products such as liquor and cigarettes, and of trashy books and motion pictures are actually harmful and vicious. When "getting stung" results only in the loss of a little money, we can chalk it up to experience and avoid it the more easily the next time we are lured by an attractive advertisement. The real tragedy comes when the advertisement takes away necessary inhibitions and insidiously undermines foundations of beliefs and principles which have been the bases of character itself.

What Can We Do About It?

Young people today need to build up a strong resistance against vicious liquor, cigarette and cinema advertising. The products represented are frequently harmful.

Young people can do something about dishonest and misleading advertising only when they get hold of real facts and cases. Consumers' organizations, such as Consummers' Union of United States, publish and distribute reports of laboratory tests of all kinds of consumers' goods. These tests are repeatedly disclosing flagarant cases of misbranding, grossly exaggerated claims, misleading statements, and the like.

After all, dishonesty in advertising is no different from any other kind of dishonesty. Here, as elsewhere, it is true that "lying lips are an abomination to Jehovah."

Discussion Problems

1. Is there anything essentially wrong in the system of advertising or only in its methods?

2. How has radio added to the problem?

3. What are the essential differences between these three terms: advertising, publicity, propaganda. Give illustrations.

4. Do you think exaggeration in advertisements is downright dishonest? Would a company which represented its products in an exact and true light, mentioning weak points along with good ones, and not belittling rival products, be able to get the public's attention and sell its products?

5. Is modern business based on the advertising system?

6. Does the church do any advertising? Should it be necessary? Is it perfectly ethical and in accordance with Christ's way of life and teachings to advertise religion?

For Daily Reading:

Aug. 14. Forgiveness on the cross. Luke 23:33-38.
Aug. 15. The first martyr. Acts 7:55-60.
Aug. 16. The condition of forgiveness. Matt. 18:-23-35.

Aug. 19. How God forgives. Mic. 7:18, 19.
Aug. 20. Topic. Matt. 6:12-15; Luke 17:3, 4.

Opening Song "Dear Lord and Father of Mankind"

Scripture Reading: Matt. 6:12-15; Luke 17:3, 4.

Prayer: "To forgive like Thee is the supreme desire of my life. Thou who hast given the command givest also the power. Thou who hadst love enough to forgive me, wilt Thou also fill me with love and teach me to forgive others. Thou who didst give me the first blessing, in the joy of having my sins forgiven, wilt surely give me the second blessing, the deeper joy of forgiving others as Thou hast forgiven me."

Song: "I Need Thee Every Hour"

Introduction of topic by leader: Forgiveness is one of the first blessings we receive from God. It is the means by which we are led from the old life into the new. Once we have received this great gift we can never cease to be grateful to God. Our gratitude will express itself in our desire to forgive others.

Vocal Solo: "Evening Prayer"

Have someone read Matt. 6:12-15, and Mark 11:25. Note how closely God's forgiveness of us and our forgiveness of others are connected. To receive forgiveness from God and to forgive others is inseparable.

Discussion:

1. Do the lives and experiences of Christians always show this?

2. Have you ever heard anyone say that it is too much to expect?

3. Do people ever offer excuses for not forgiving others?

4. What should be the rule of our conduct? Should we not remind ourselves of what Christ has done?

5. Why have not all Christians made this the ruling principle of their conduct?

a. Difference of opinion.

b. Because it is in opposition to a course that was considered right by themselves.

c. Because of a real or fancied slight.

d. Feelings of resentment . . . or contempt.

6. Why does the ability to forgive our fellowmen give so much joy?

a. It is one of the first things we can do for God.

b. It is Christ's own joy.

c. It is a mighty testimony of the presence of God in us.

d. It is an assurance that we have great confidence in God.

Personal Experiences:

Have members relate times when they have witnessed fine acts of forgiveness or times when they felt the joy of being forgiven themselves. Follow these with testimonies of the joy they have felt when they have been forgiven.

Song: "Sweet Hour of Prayer"

This power to forgive can only be received through prayer.

Mizpah Benediction.

Aug. 26. Won through Christ. Rom. 7:18-25.
Aug. 27. Topic. Ps. 39:1; James 1:19, 20.

Opening Song: "Stand Up For Jesus"

Scripture Reading: Ps. 39:1; James 1:19, 20.

Prayer by leader

Talk: "The Athlete's practice"—Have one of your members who is quite an athlete read I Cor. 9:19-27 and then show how an athlete needs to exercise self-control. Perhaps you could have various members speak about the sports in which they participate in school and have them show the self-control necessary in each.

Talk: "Christ's Example"—Have your superintendent speak about this, basing his remarks on I Pet. 2:21-24.

Song: "Open My Eyes, That I May See"

Talk: "The tongue a test" based on James 3:2-8; Ps. 39:1.

Discussion:

The first step in the exercise of self-control is to be willing to face our own faults. This is at times most difficult but is very essential.

When we think we have found our chief faults how can we go about correcting them?

1. We should find new interest and activities.
    a. These will require us to exercise new powers.
    b. They will disclose qualities of character which were not evident before.

2. We would do well to get all the spiritual influence we can. Each one of us undoubtedly realizes that we can do nothing of ourselves. We know that only God can help us overcome our weaknesses.

"Jesus with Thy church abide,
Be her Savior, Lord, and Guide,
While on earth her faith is tried:
We beseech Thee, hear us.

May she guide the poor and blind,
Seek the lost until she find
And the broken hearted bind;
We beseech Thee, hear us.

Save her love from growing cold,
Make her watchmen strong and bold,
May her lamp of truth be bright,
Bid her bear aloft its light,
Bring all nations clearer sight,
We beseech Thee, hear us."
—From Hymnal for American Youth.

8. Song (stand to sing): "Glorious Things of Thee are Spoken"—M. H. B. No. 290.

II. Mission Minutes

1. Bring pictures of the churches on our foreign fields. Find out who the missionary at that station is and how many belong to the church there.

2. Pray that many more may find Jesus Christ as Savior.

Study Period: Aim—May this lesson help our Juniors to find joy in being a part of the church, and to develop a deeper love and loyalty for the church.

1. Piano plays softly, "The Churches One Foundation" M. H. B., No. 296. While this is being played a Junior, who is a good reader should read the words of this hymn aloud—all others following it in their books. Then all sing the first stanza.

2. A Junior reads, Matt. 16:13-19.

3. Story. The Boy Jesus at Church—retold from Luke 2:42-52—by a Junior.

4. Two minute talks by Juniors:
   a. What the church means to me.
   b. What is my part in the church?
   c. How can we show our love for our church?

5. Song—"Faith of Our Fathers" M. H. B. 243.

6. Conversation or discussion led by Juniors:
   a. Why should I have a feeling of reverence for God's House?
   b. How can I show this feeling of reverence? I Kings 8:10-30; 54-61.
   c. What can I do if I get tired at church?

7. Leader's heart talk: "One of the sweetest things of an earthly friendship is the sense of pleasure one friend feels in the presence of another, and the joyful anticipation which one experiences in the thought of the next meeting. We like to be there where our loved ones are. If we love God our Father, and Jesus Christ, our Savior, we will be glad to be in the church on Sunday morning, we will delight in the worship of God's people in God's House. We will pray for the preacher and also that we might truly listen to what is said. We will be helpful to others in assisting them

3. There are various ways to obtain this spiritual help. Have these discussed.
   a. Through worship of God.
   b. Through prayer.
   c. Through fellowship with Christians.
   d. Through music.
   e. Through friendship.
   f. Through beauty and through nature.

4. All the above is based on FAITH.

Song: "Just For Today"

Song: "Take Time To Be Holy" This Divine help can only be received when we follow the thought of this song.

A Place to Worship—Psalm 122:1

To the Leader: Our hearts are often saddened when we see the exodus of children from Sunday School and realize that they are loosing some of the most worthwhile and precious influence of their lives by neglecting the preaching service of the church. Let us try in this lesson to help our Juniors realize the importance of God's House in our lives and so build a greater loyalty to it. Of course we can worship at any time and in any place but we need to gather with God's people in His House at regular times to worship. Have pictures of some of the noted Cathedrals and churches, of some little one room churches as well as pictures of your own church to show.

I. Worship Period.

1. Prelude—Handel's Largo.

2. Leader.—"I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go into the house of the Lord. Psalm 122:1.

3. Hymn—"Come We That Love the Lord," M. H. B., No. 27.

4. Responsive Scripture Reading:

Leader—Isaiah 2:3
Juniors—Psalm 84:1, 2
Leader—Psalm 84:4
Juniors—Psalm 84:10
Leader—Psalm 100:4
All—Habakkuk 2:20

5. Prayer by a Junior using Solomon's prayer in I Kings 8:28-30.

6. Solo—"There's a Church in the Valley by the Wildwood."

7. Poem: Jesus, With Thy Church Abide.

to find a place to sit, and in letting them share our song book. And we will sing (thinking of the words of the song) "from our hearts".

I remember many years ago when I first came to my church, that the older people when they came in would very quietly take their seats, fold their hands and bow their heads in silent worship. Could we Juniors have silent worship upon entering the church by repeating (in our minds) a verse of scripture, a stanza of a hymn or a prayer? I believe that would be a very helpful thing to do.

8. Song—"My Jesus I Love Thee."
9. Leader's closing prayer.

SERMON SKETCH

THE HOPE THAT PURIFIETH

by Rev. August Schmidt, Meno, Oklahoma

John 3:3, "And every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as he is pure."

Hope is essential for life. Without it there is no inincentive for living. It is one of the three greatest forces mentioned by St. Paul in 1 Cor. 13. With hope burning brightly in the human heart, the present may be ever so dark, yet we are not discouraged, for the future will make everything right.

I. What Is It?

The hope of which the Apostle John writes is a peculiar hope, one that the world does not know anything about, and one that even some of those who call themselves by His name deny. Yet it is a blessed hope for all those who love His appearing. It is that hope of which St. Paul and other writers of God's Holy Book testify to, that the Lord Jesus Christ will come again.

This present life is pictured throughout the Bible as only transitory, preparatory, and not an end in itself. Even nature, according to Rom. 8:22, groaneth and waiteth for a time when the present imperfections will become perfection and death will be swallowed up by life. When the Lord does come again, then our hope will be fulfilled. This mortal being will then become immortal and we will be with the Lord evermore.

II. The Place of this Hope in Scriptures

This blessed hope is a truth that is emphasized again and again in His Book. There is probably no other single truth, outside of salvation, mentioned and aluded to more frequently than this. Because it takes such a prominent place in His revealed Word we should not neglect, ignore, or even disbelieve it, otherwise we lay ourselves open to the same charge that Jesus put against the Emmaus disciples when He scolded them for being ". . . fools and slow of heart to believe all that the prophets have spoken." Luke 24:25. Jesus Himself spoke of His coming again frequently when on earth. His disciples believed it, expected it, spoke and wrote about it. The prophets of the Old Testament wrote about the Lord's coming glory and pictured it as the consummation of all their hopes and desires.

III. The Effect of This Hope on Believers

The promises of His coming again are explicit. ". . . I will come again and receive you unto Myself," John 14:3 and " . . . this same Jesus . . . shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven," Acts 1:11. There is no doubt left as to what will happen to us who believe. "We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed," 1 Cor. 15:51. We also know of the circumstances that will attend His return. " . . . in the last days perilous times shall come," 1 Tim. 3:1. "And ye shall hear of wars and rumors of war. . . . " Matt. 24:6, etc. The thing which has not been revealed unto us concerning this great event is the exact time. But we are told how we shall act. In Mark 13:37, the Lord says, "And what I say unto you I say unto all, Watch." The scriptural position to take, then, is to expect His return while we live. We can not have this as a living hope and at the same time imagine His return in the distant, nebulous future. Those who would put His return into the far distant future like to quote Ps. 90:4, "For a thousand years in thy sight are but as yesterday . . . " But they do not consider that the Holy Spirit also has said 2 Peter 3:8 " . . . one day is with the Lord as a thousand years."

The Lord has told us that He is coming again and that we are to watch for Him continually. If we now fully believe this we will get and keep ready. When the English king and queen recently visited America everybody concerned got ready. There was a delay in their coming, yet all confidently continued in a state of readiness. So shall we that love the Lord continue in a state of readiness to expect Him any moment. We ". . . . lay aside every weight and the sin which doth so easily beset us . . . " Heb. 12:1, for we want to be pure when He comes.

This hope that the Lord Jesus Christ will come again is a living hope abundantly testified to by the Holy Scriptures. Its effect on the individual believer is to keep him in close fellowship with his Savior and to cleanse himself from all impurities, in order to be ready when He comes.

IN MEMORIAM

JOHN B. GEISSINGER, the son of Abraham and Anna Bechtel Geissinger, was born near the present village of Zionsville, Pennsylvania, January 18, 1848. After a short course of catechetical instruction in the rudiments of the Christian religion by the Rev. Joseph Schantz, his pastor, he was upon the confession of his faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, baptized and confirmed as a member of the Upper Milford Mennonite Congregation in 1866, of which he remained a faithful member until his death. He received his elementary education in the public schools of his native township, and entered the Wadsworth Academy, Wadsworth, Ohio, in the fall of the year of 1869. And at the time of his death he was one of the few Wadsworth students still remaining in the Eastern District. On May 23, 1874 he was united in marriage with Miss Rebecca M. Gehman of Berks County, Pa. by Bishop Christian Clemmer. To this union were born seven sons and two daughters, of whom four sons and a daughter, together with his wife, preceded him in death. He is survived by his three sons, Abraham, John, and Clarence, by his daughter, Mrs. Anna G. Geissinger, and an only brother, Menno B. Geissinger, now 87 years old. He died Sunday evening, July 16, 1939. Short funeral services were conducted at the house of his eldest son, followed by regular services at the Upper Milford Mennonite Church, at which Rev. Howard G. Nyce, his pastor, preached to the gathered relatives and friends from Revelation 21:5-6. Brother Geissinger had been an extremely active member of both the Sunday School and the congregation, acting in the capacity of a teacher in the School and a trustee in the Church. He very seldom missed a regular church service, even during the last few months of his life. He was a retired farmer, lived near the church, and would lend a hand whenever an opportunity presented itself. He was quiet and unassuming in his manners, enthusiastic in the work of the Lord, and left the younger members of his church a splendid example for them to emulate.

MENNO H. BEUTLER, member of the First Mennonite Church of Upland, California, who came here 28 years ago from Moundridge, Kansas, died June 23, following a three weeks' illness from heart failure, at the age of 68 years. Surviving him are his widow, three sons, Willis W. Beutler, Colton; Harold E. Beutler, Woodlake; and Milford L. Beutler, Glendale; two daughters, Mrs. Harry Smith, Porterville, and Mrs. Vernon Ragle, Fullerton; a brother, Albert Beutler, in Oklahoma; two sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Fussler, San Diego, and Mrs. Katie Krehbiel, Moundridge, Kansas; eight grandchildren and a great-grandchild. Funeral services were held Monday, June 26, at the First Mennonite Church. The Rev. Lester Hostetler, pastor, officiated. Interment was made at Bellevue Cemetery.

TOBY BERG, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Berg, was born April 10, 1900, near Marion, S. Dak., and passed away July 11, 1939, at the age of 39 years, 3 months and 1 day.—During his youth his parents moved to Arena, North Dakota, where Toby grew to manhood. At the age of 26 he accepted Christ as his personal Savior, was baptized upon the confession of his faith and taken into the local Mennonite church. On June 12, 1927, he was united in holy matrimony with Lydia Schmidt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. P. Schmidt of Richey, Mont., and the couple made their home in the Richey community. One son, Elton, was born into this union June 18, 1930.

The departed was often troubled with rheumatism. On Saturday, July 8, he took sick, but got well enough to attend church on Sunday. On Monday he began to be troubled with increasing pains which home remedies did not seem to ease. Tuesday afternoon he was taken to the hospital at Glendive, where it was found that he had a severe attack of gall bladder trouble and also of appendicitis. So he was operated on at 5 p. m. But while the operation was going on, with five doctors and three nurses present, he passed on to his reward.

Toby Berg leaves to mourn his death, his beloved wife and son Elton, his father; two brothers, Isaac of Driscall and Fred of Arena; two sisters, Mrs. Rudolph Heid of Arena and Mrs. Martin Rauch of Volt, Mont.; his father-in-law, mother-in-law, brother and sister-in-law, and many other friends. But we mourn not as those who have no hope of meeting again, for he was willing and said he was prepared to go. He also admonished his wife and son to read more in the Bible, so that it might go well with them.

Funeral service on Sunday, July 16, with Rev. Widmer in charge and a short talk by Rev. Abe Unruh in German.

CONFORMING TO THE IMAGE OF CHRIST

Would you grow Christ-like, let your associates, and the books you read, be companions that present the pure, beautiful life of Christ. By such associations you will be brought into the place where you will constantly behold the Savior, and by beholding become changed into the same image from glory to glory, even as by the Spirit of God. The transforming influence of the Gospel will never fail to impress itself upon those who faithfully and prayerfully occupy themselves with its blessed pages. An unused Bible avails us nothing, but a constant and devout study of it will bear fruits a thousandfold. Blessed are they that hear the Word of God and keep it.

Thy word is a lamp unto my feet and a light unto my path. Psa. 119:105.

An Appeal to the Churches for Funds

Soon the revised Mennonite Hymn Book will be ready for the engraver, then for the printer and binder, all of which, with a first edition of 2500-3000 copies, will entail a cost of $4000-5000. The Board of Publication wants to bring this before the churches to see if they would not be willing to make up this sum, rather than to have us borrow the money or at least a good share of it. The General Conference now has a membership of nearly 26,000 in the United States. If each member would give 16 cents apiece for a song book fund, the project could be handled.

Our churches contribute on the average about $8,000.00 a month for foreign missions and about $2,000.00 for home missions. Our publication work is also a piece of missionary enterprise. Would it look unreasonable if they should contribute a few thousand dollars at this time for a song book which is to serve their spiritual uplift for a long time to come?

The Board of Publication herewith appeals to our churches and its members to make special efforts in giving us a good collection within this and the next two months toward this cause. The Conference has a standing resolution asking the churches to take at least one collection per year for the cause of publication. Of the 141 churches in the United States just 26 have sent in contributions to our general treasury since the Conference session at Saskatoon. Of the 25 churches of the Eastern District 4 have sent in their gifts, one of them two, another three. Of the 19 churches in the Middle District four have given, one twice. Of the 57 churches of the Western District, twelve gave, three of them twice. Of the 25 churches of the Northern District 2 gave, one of them 4 times. Of the 15 churches of the Pacific District, 4 gave, one of them 3 times, one twice. These contributions reached a total of $500. From this it can be seen that if all the 141 churches had contributed proportionately as well during the past 11 months, close to $3000.00 would have come in, which goes far toward the sum suggested above for the song book. We hope and pray that the churches will take this matter upon their hearts and come to the aid of the Board of Publication.

It will interest our people in the States that the brethren in Canada are also making rapid headway with a German Song Book. The Manuscript or "dummy" for the book reached the undersigned sometime ago in good form, and the task of getting this book printed is now also before our Board. The Canadian brethren are ready to solicit advance orders and payments for the book, in order to help finance the project. Hence it seems only fair that we in the United States do the same for the English song book.

The Committee for the revision of our English Hymn Book have spared no effort to assemble a collection of about 550 hymns of such variety and worth that should meet the demand and taste of anybody who is not prejudiced. With prayer and consecration they have endeavored to follow the leading of the Spirit, realizing that their task is one that is to bear fruit for eternity. Recently an experienced hymn book maker for one of the large denominations looked over the selection our committee has made, and he said that it is one of the best that he has ever seen. The brethren W. H. Hohmann and L. Hostetler, with their wives and daughters, are very busy during these summer weeks, at Upland, Calif., making up the "dummy." May we earnestly pray for them, that God may give them further light and strength to finish their task to his glory.

—Chips from the report of the Middle Dist. Conference: Upon application of the Mennonite Bible Mission of Chicago for membership in the Conference, the church was received and welcomed into the fellowship of the Conference. It was agreed that: 1. The work of Lima be continued for another year. 2. That Rev. and Mrs. Dick be retained for the work at same salary. 3. That the annual budget equal to 25c per member be continued.—It was voted: "That this conference commit itself to a plan of systematic giving for Bluffton College . . . which would yield the equivalent of $1.00 a member per year for the next five years, to help defray the operating expenses."—The invitation of the Zion Mennonite Church at Donnellson, Iowa, to hold the 1940 conference session there, was accepted.

— Rev. John C. Kaufman, formerly pastor of the Hoffnungsfeld Church near Moundridge, Kans., but now of the Emmaus Church near Whitewater, Kans., has moved with his family to a place right in the midst of the congregation, the old town of Brainard, with address: WHITEWATER, KANSAS.

— Rev. Gustav Frey who for a couple of years shepherded the Mennonite congregation at Shafter, Calif., has moved back to Kansas with his family, and the report has it that he is going to serve a group of Mennonites in the vicinity of Fredonia, Kansas, who have recently settled there.

— The Literature Committee of the Women's Missionary Societies met in person for the first time in its history. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. J. S. Schultz, Bluffton, Ohio, July 24, 25 and 26. A Handbook of Suggestive Programs, and a folder containing the birthdays of our missionaries was prepared for free distribution. The Committee stresses the use of "News and Notes," also our church papers, in the monthly meetings of our Missionary Socities. The committee members are: Mrs. J. S. Schultz, Bluffton, O., chairman; Mrs. A. J. Neuenschwander, Quakertown, Pa., Sec. - Treas.; Mrs. A. E. Kreider, North Newton, Kans., Librarian.

— Salem Mennonite Church, Dalton, O.—The Women's Miss. Society has chosen the following officers for the coming year: Pres., Mrs. A. S. Rosenberger; vice Pres., Mrs. Noah Nusbaum; Secr., Mrs. Earl Hofstetter; Treas., Mrs. Albert Badertscher. — The "Bulletin carries this splendid quotation from Henry Drummond: "Five minutes spent in the companionship of Christ every morning, if it is face-to-face and heart-to-heart, will change the whole day and make every thought and feeling different."

— The Thomas Mission Church, Okla., had a campmeeting, July 19-21, with three services on second and third days. The speakers were to be Rev. J. B. Ediger, Guy Heap-of-Birds, John Otterby, Homer Hart, Dan Allrunner, Harvey Whiteshield and Paul Littleman. Rev. and Mrs. Benno Toews, Canton, Okla., took a vacation in July, going to Rosthern, Sask., for it. The doctor prescribed rest for Mrs. Toews. Meanwhile Missionary Ediger acts as substitute, and is in charge of six churches. With the assistance of native helpers and other Christian Indians they hoped to have regular Sunday services each week.—"The Messenger."

— Dr. P. R. Schroeder, Freeman, S. D., writes: "Sunday, July 30, I used the article that appeared in the Mennonite, June 27, on the "Swiss Mennonites of 2½ Centuries ago," translation of John Horsch's article by P. H. Richert. It is an extraordinary testimony. These are worthy Anabaptist Faith Patterns. Last Sunday evening I preached on "date setting for the Lord's return and the danger of postponing His return by our reasoning." Both are dangers of the day.

— A Ministers' Seminar was conducted by Dr. E. E. S. Johnson in the Schwenksville Church, Pa. The Rev. Freeman Swartz presented a paper on "Erasmus." At the next meeting, Sept. 14, Rev. H. G. Nyce will present a paper on "Wessel Gansfort."

— Author of Sermon Sketch on "Gourds or Souls" Revealed.—Who was the writer of this fine contribution? None other than Rev. D. J. Unruh, of Pandora, Ohio. Modesty restrained him from attaching his name to the MSS. which he has now been kind enough to reveal. Thus credit and honor can be given to whom it is due.

— St. John Church, Pandora, Ohio.—A congregational meeting has voted in favor of purchasing a parsonage and the trustees have been authorized to purchase a property best suited and most economical to the need.—Paul, son of Rev. and Mrs. Unruh, had a narrow escape from a serious accident. Riding on his bicycle he collided with an auto. The shattered glass of the rear door of the car severely cut the boy's face and scalp, so that 16 stitches were required to close up the wounds.—But he seems to be making satisfactory progress toward recovery, for which the parents and friends are deeply grateful to God.

— Mennonite Church, Lehigh, Kans.—The Lehigh Mennonite Church, the K. M. B., the M. B. and the Lutheran churches of Lehigh are enjoying union Sunday evening services, out of door on the local high school lawn. Every third Sunday we have a C. E. program. All meetings have been well attended, except two, on account of rain.

– Grace Church, Lansdale, Pa.—A well attended three weeks Bible School was held this summer. The teachers were: Mable Ebert, Mrs. Elmer Seasholtz, Mrs. Olin Krehbiel, Mrs. John Unruh. Expenses were defrayed by a 25c fee for supplies and a weekly offering.

— Rev. Reynold Weinbrenner, assistant of and substitute to Dr. Langenwalter in the Reedley Church, Calif., reports that he is quite busy and that the thermometer has been hovering around 100 degrees nearly every day. He finds his work enjoyable.

— The Rev. H. T. Unruh family of Bluffton, Ohio, have been west visiting. In Missouri they were met by son Earl and his wife Martha. Together the party then visited in Kansas and went home by the way of Tulsa, Okla., where the son has a good position.

— Dr. Waldo Wedel, son of Prof. P. J. Wedel of Bethel College, is to be married August 12 to Miss Mildred Mott of Iowa City, the daughter of Dr. J. L. Mott, head of the journalism department at Iowa University. The young couple have our hearty congratulations.

RELIGION IN THE HOME

"And daily in the temple, and in every house, they ceased not to teach and preach Jesus Christ." Acts 5:42.

How decidedly Jesus related religion to the home. Hitherto its interest had been in the nation but Jesus knew that no people, nation or community could be Christian until the homes are Christian. Because of the universal reaches and implications of the home, Jesus centered His message here, and the family relations become to Him the best symbol of the Kingdom of God. God is the great loving Father of all. We are His children, and when the children are with the Father they are at home. Under such teaching how eternally sacred becomes every home! Motherhood, fatherhood, childhood are old words now endowed with a new spirit of One Who made home the symbol of heaven.

The church has always sensed that Christianity must begin and continue in the home before it can become a vital factor in the community or world life. We have not ceased to teach and preach in the temple, but we have ceased this opportunity in the home and teaching in the temple is always futile unless there is teaching in the home.

This is an urgent and timely word that comes from that creative company of the first Christians in Jerusalem, and the recovery of the secret power ought to transcend every other program of the church today, for nothing can be a substitute in the shaping of Christian character for the teaching of Christ in the home. Religion always comes to grips with life in a redeeming way when its message is taught withoute ceasing in both the temple and the home.

FORMING GOOD HABITS.—Most people, even the scantly educated, know something about how habits are formed. It is by doing a thing over and over again, first with strict attention, difficulty and errors, until the performance becomes automatic. Thus we learn to walk, to speak, to eat, to do a multitude of tasks. In learning to spell we must acquire as many separate habits or skills as we master words, about 2500 for the average person. In learning to play the piano or to form emotions, many habits must be learned to dovetail with one another. In all cases the child or person must be shown how to do the thing and led to do it until the habit is formed. In other words habits are largely formed through imitation, and practice. Here is where parents who excuse their children from church attendance, because they think they get nothing out of it, make a serious mistake. Do they get nothing out of it, if they learn to sit quietly and reverently through a short preaching service? Do they not as prospective Christians need to learn patience and self-control? Will they not come to appreciate the music and learn reverence for holy things by the prayers? If parents would only realize that the whole process of developing the child's religious habits and life depends primarily upon them, what a different world this would be! Habits are acquired largely by imitation and then by practice. If the Christian mother will pray for the child in his presence and then with it, until it can shape its own prayers, the prayer habit is formed. If the parents' conduct is becoming Christians, the child's will likely be. If the parents will take the lead in attending church, Sunday School, and other religious services, the child is very apt to acquire the habit from them.

JESUS LOVED HIM.—"And Jesus looking upon him loved him." Luke 10:21.—Compared with the model youths of whom the Bible gives us such splendid examples, what a pitiable creature was the rich young man to whom this verse refers. He was one of those young men, who being rich, had been pampered and petted continually and who, on top of all, had fallen heir to large possessions. Yet, he had that inward longing for something better, common to the human breast, which wealth cannot satisfy. He was one of those wavering, half individuals that do not know what they want, and do not want what they know. They resemble the boat-crew in Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress that are rowing toward one shore but steadfastly looking toward the other. Viewed thus, his case might have elicited a sharp reproof from Jesus. But the Master looked at him and loved him. Why? Because he perceived in his breast that homesick longing that every unsaved human soul must feel occasionally, for a return to a lost heavenly Father's heart and love. A saintly old lady once said something like this: Love can be found only where some one loves the other in the human brother. The other (one) is he who would like to be what he is not. It is he that should be what he cannot be. It is he for whom an eternal homesickness goes through his whole life.—Does not the fact that Jesus loved the young man in spite of his spiritual poverty, have a valuable lesson for us, namely that He loves us too, in spite of our sinful leanings, our pervertness, our disobedience. But we must not forget: Jesus' love does not leave us where we are. He recreates our natural self like fire changes raw gold into pure gold. What Jesus loves in us is nothing more nor less than the faded image of God in us which he craves to transform by his power. That is why the Master loved the young man, to remake him into a new creature.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

"This Kind Can Come Forth by Nothing but by Fasting and Prayer." Mark 9:29.

When Jesus said this to his disciples, their mission work had, so to say, come to a standstill, momentarily, by an unusually strong evil spirit in a boy. They evidently were puzzled. Jesus explains when they ask him, and gives two reasons, 1. This was an unusually difficult spirit. 2. They had not used all power available through the combination of fasting and prayer. Jesus does not explain what it is that makes this kind of evil spirit so difficult to drive out, but we find that the outstanding mark of this spirit was evident pleasure in cruelty, torture, and destruction of human life.

In Genesis 6 we find that the spirit of violence was also the outstanding mark of those that were ripe for the flood. God complained, "The earth is full of violence." Does that not describe also largely the spirit of our time? The spirit of war and murder is rampant, and seemingly no efforts and prayers can stop it. Jesus says that the last days will be like Noah's.

In Noah's time another characteristic of that spirit was, as God puts it, "They are flesh." Is that not also the case today? A combination of these two marks, violence and carnality, produces now as in the days of Noah a desparate condition. Not that it is impossible to drive out these spirits, but even Christians are not able to do much against them, it seems, in spite of much prayer. Are we not also puzzled sometimes like those disciples? Does Jesus' explanation to them not help us today to understand the situation?

James finds the root of wars in the various lusts in man, which are all a proof of a carnal mind. When one looks about today into the ways of the world, does not the flesh in literature, pictures, movies, etc., receive more prominence than ever, except perhaps in the time of Noah? Is it any wonder that violence is so rampant today? If James is right, and he is, then war is at the root, a war between the spirit and the flesh. In this battle some spirits are too powerful for prayer alone, fasting must come to the aid of prayer. The greatest missionary, Paul, tells of his "much fasting" and "always praying." He knew how powerful a prayer is that which is accompanied by selfdenial for others. Do we know it? Yes, many know it, but not enough. Many in these times give sacrificially for missions, relief, school, publication, etc., which is real fasting, as the prophet Isaiah explains it, because it is helping the needy, feeding the hungry, both physically hungry and spiritually hungry. What else is mission work than feeding the hungry with the bread of life? Fasting for this must please the Lord immensely. What would happen if the so-called 600 million Christians would fast and pray for missions as Isaiah explains fasting? Should we not see in the endless call for sacrifice an opportunity to fast, and so make our prayer more effectual against those evil spirits that prayer alone cannot drive out? Do not even hard times look like an opportunity to fast more, and so make our prayers effective?

Some will say, that nothing will drive out the spirit of war and hate, because Jesus foretells that it will remain till the end. Yes, but why does Jesus say this? Is it not because he knew beforehand that there would not be enough fasting and prayer to drive out the war spirit? That there will be special need for fasting after he would leave the earth, he says plainly in Matthew 9:15, speaking of himself as the bridegroom, who will be taken away. And in this time we still live. Jesus expects us now to fast, and the more evil spirits will be driven out, at least of individuals, if not of nations, including hate, pleasure-madness, murder and lust. Even a war like that in China could be shortened by more prayer and fasting, especially such fasting as the prophet describes in Isa. 58:5-6. For this there was perhaps never greater opportunity than today. Why not use it more? The calls for relief are stronger than ever. Our mission treasury had to borrow considerable money for this quarter, which is usually the hardest for our treasury. In fall, as a rule, the treasury is again replenished, for which we hope again, especially since at least two more couples are scheduled to go to the field, one to India and one to China, if war conditions permit.

We should, however, not forget to thank the Lord for the many brethren and sisters that are already combining fasting and prayer in the sense mentioned above. Praise the Lord! We could not have kept mission work going these times of depression without them. All we need is more of them.

Interesting Letters

From Rev. William H. Stauffer, Pastor of First Mennonite Church, Sugar Creek, Ohio, who writes from Amsterdam, Holland, where he is a delegate to the World Conference of Christian Youth.

Amsterdam, Holland, Wed. July 26, 1939

To the Mennonite:

The World Conference of Christian Youth is now in full session. It was formally opened on Monday evening by a message from Her Majesty, the Queen of Netherlands, delivered in person by the Prince.

"It is a great pleasure to me to know that you, who have come together from all parts of the world, are united in my country. My good wishes will follow you in all your discussions. May it be given to you, the youth of the whole world, through common thought and common work, to strive after a solution of the problems which in these difficult times occupy the minds not only of youth, but of all mankind. And in the coming days may the Spirit, through which Jesus Christ enters the life of man, and which helps to solve all controversies and problems, show you the way."

The Conference is represented by some 1500 delegates from 73 countries, representing some 220 separately organized religious groups and churches. There are fifty leaders especially invited, 150 other leaders are included among the delegates. No continent lacks representation. No other representative gathering has ever brought togther as great a number of delegates from as many countries, under any auspices, on any occasion, anywhere else in the world, not excepting the meetings of the League of Nations. Equally significant is the fact that never before have as many separately organized groups and organizations in the U. S. met either at home or abroad. This is indeed an Ecumenical Conference.

Never before on the Continent of Europe has a greater number of non-English speaking nationals come together for a conference. More than 500 of the delegates come from 20 nations on the Continent. North America and Great Britain have some 600, Asia sends 115, Australia, 45, Africa 25, 30 come from China and 25 from Japan. 25 represent eight countries in South America.

That Amsterdam is a YOUTH Conference is attested by the fact that 58 per cent of the delegates are under 26 years of age. The greatest number are aged 24. Most of the delegates are students. 35 per cent are engaged in Christian Youth work in their home countries. Three out of every five delegates are men.

The structure of the Conference is as follows: The delegates meet as a group in the Plenary Sessions. Twice daily they divide into 43 groups for Bible Study and Discussion, under 7 main sections. These are: World of Nations, Nation and State, Economic Order, Education, Race, Marriage and Family Life, Church and World Mission. Each morning and most evenings men of world wide reputation deliver addresses. The worship services preceding these addresses are conducted by representatives of different groups from India to America, in 6 widely varying ways. Many are present whose views on the Church differ widely. Yet, all unite in worship each day of the Conference.

Some of the outstanding personalities at the Conference are Dr. William Temple, Archbishop of York; Dr. W. A. Visser 't Hooft, general chairman of the Conference and secretary of the World Council of Churches; Dr. T. Z. Koo, secretary of the Chinese Y. M. C. A. and world traveler and lecturer; Archimandrite Cassian, dean of the Russian Orthdox Seminary at Paris, as well as lecturer on the New Testament; Dr. Benjamin Mays, dean of the Howard School of Religion, Washington, D. C., one of the foremost Negro universities in the world, and Prof. Reinhold Niebur, professor of Social Ethics at Union Theological Seminary in New York City. He is one of the foremost thinkers in America today.

To bring such a group of delegates, visitors and observers from nearly every nation in the world together, in the midst of the present international tension, makes a tremendous adventure of this Amsterdam Conference of Christian Youth. Except for the word Christian such a gathering of young people would never even be contemplated at such a time. The theme of the Conference is, Christ Victorious. And it is that unity in Christ which alone binds us all together, which the Conference is seeking. In a world torn apart, the only hope of any sort of real unity lies in the Man of Nazareth.

Amsterdam, Holland, August 2, 1939.

To the Mennonite:

The World Conference of Christian Youth has just held its final session. It has been an experience which will not soon be forgotten by the 1500 delegates from more than 70 countries.

No one taking part in this Conference will forget the sight of the delegates gradually filling the huge hall in the Concert Building. It was an impressive spectacle to see this vast building, lavishly beflagged with the colors of many nations, thronged with people from opposite ends of the earth, sitting side by side, while over them all hung a great blue banner bearing, in letters of gold, the words which were common to all, "Christus Victor."

When the organ sounded the first note, the whole assembly arose as one man, united in a vast hope in which all shared and which transcended all differences of race, country, confession, and even dress. Under the banner of Jesus Christ we gathered from all walks of life and from all parts of the world with the conviction that only He could claim our wholehearted allegiance in a time like this.

In so short a compass one cannot hope to give a full picture. A few of the highlights must suffice. One of these most certainly was the morning worship service. Each morning the service was conducted by a different person from different countries each in their own way. Many would suggest that this will be of the most abiding consequence. It realistically introduced us to the church traditions of many lands. It was a moving experience to witness the sincerity with which God was adorned and worshipped in such widely different ways.

Central in the whole Conference was the daily Bible Study. Many discovered the Bible afresh. In it we found the reality of a living God declaring a living message for our own lives and for our own time. It was a rare privilege and experience to sit with 25 young people from Bulgaria, Latvia, Esthonia, Scotland, Ireland, England, Holland, Denmark, Roumania, China, Japan, and America and discuss together the Word of God.

The prophetic messages to the whole conference each day by such leaders as were mentioned in my first letter, and our own beloved John R. Mott were wonderful. Dr. T. Z. Koo's moving words climaxed the Conference. It takes more genuine Christian faith than most of us have to be able to talk as kindly about Japan as did this prophet from China.

To many the greatest value of the Conference came in simply witnessing this great fellowship of Unity in Jesus Christ. These many countries are no longer merely places on a map. They have been made tremendously real. They now represent personalities, friendships, peoples with hopes like our own. In a world in which nations are constantly growing farther apart it is of the utmost significance to note the different peoples drawing together in a community of fellowship and mutual understanding. God is at work in the tensions of our time. And only through Jesus Christ can all men be brothers. This is the great message of Amsterdam.

III. WHO?—WHO SHALL DO THIS WORK?

III. Who

The general answer is: "Everybody." We mean, all true believers. If not all, where could we draw the line? There is no unemployment with true Christians. Young believers will be "little lambs" that need to be shepherded a while, but not forever. As soon as possible they must become "soldiers of the Cross." "Every member a worker" must be the aim of every church. Even children can and do, lead unbelieving parents and others to places where they can find Christ. God has some task for everyone! And now is the time for all to go!

All have received talents, time, and means. Most of the talents in the churches are not put to work. This accounts for so much deadness in the churches. Understand: Much running and many programs does not yet mean "life"! There are Bible School students and even graduates in the churches, whose trained talents are largely or altogether idle. If anyone should feel that he has not even one talent, and that he does not even know how to pray for the work of the Lord, perhaps such a one has a car with which to serve. Others will supply the talents. Most likely no one will find a real excuse.

We need obedience to the Holy Spirit more than anything else! Only be willing; and God will direct you as to the "where, how, etc." Do we realize that disobedience is perhaps the greatest sin of most Christians? Our excuses spring mostly from disobedience. There is such a variety of service, enough to fit everybody. Read. 1 Cor. 9:16. Many of us will have to say, "Silver and gold have I none"; but let us finish the verse: "but what I have . . . " In the case of Peter and John that gifts was far greater than gold or jewels; so it will be with us: Spiritual gifts, given to the Lord, and then to the people, are more than money.

In a restricted sense, not everybody should go; but only consecrated souls. Personal ambition or outward interest are not enough. For it is not that we can do anything. It is the Spirit of God. We are but the channels; should not all Christians be consecrated anyway! especially for service. Let us not forget that there are not only un-consecrated members in the churches, but even un-converted ones! Besides, special and definite consecration just for this work is necessary, as well as for any other service. We must feel a deep sense of love for the sick, the poor, the lost. Others would just be wasting time and means; and would hinder the work. Only spiritually minded Christians, sound in faith and doctrine as well as in speech and conduct, are wanted.

Be willing to do small things; the big things will come. God can bring great results out of our seemingly little deeds. Unexperienced at first, we grow in every way as we serve. One of the greatest evangelists that the world has ever seen was a man who gave up his favorite sport, in which he greatly excelled, and stepped into the service of an evangelist, at first helping to put up tents. His talents were discovered and he advanced rapidly to the top! Latent talents will be developed, just so we are willing and consecrated and fully yielded to the Lord.

As to leadership in this work, the writer would say: Lay the matter before the Lord in prayer, then choose a person, or several, who are known to have been loyal workers in the past. If all are "one heart and one soul," yielded to the Lord, then there will be no difficulty. In all my experience and observation, in hundreds of churches, I have not found a church yet, where the Lord did not have at least one or a few members with some talents, who were the so-called "stand-by's."

Let us all listen to the call, to do what we can for Him!!—when we can see opportunities all around us.

A Second Reminder

Last spring an appeal for money from me as treasurer of the General Conference Peace Committee was published. There has been some response, but not nearly as great a response as we of the Committee had hoped there would be. Only a very small number of churches in the General Conference have sent in contributions. With four exceptions, one of these from the Pacific District Conference, all contributions have come either from the Eastern or Middle District Conferences. The other three exceptions were churches in the Western District Conference, and strangely enough, from some of the smallest churches in that Conference. If every congregation in the General Conference will hold one offering for the Treasury of the Peace Committee I am confident that two things will happen, first: a greater interest in the cause of peace and in the work of the Peace Committee of the General Conference on the part of each church which sends in such an offering, and second: sufficient funds will flow into the treasury of the Peace Committee to permit it to carry on its work without being constantly hampered by a lack of money.—Sincerely, John L. Horsch, Upland, Calif.

A PASTORAL LETTER

It has been said of Jesus that He, of all men the world has ever seen, knew how to put heart into people. In other words Jesus had learned the art of encouraging. Could anything finer or more splendid be said of any man? It is easy to find fault, to point out the mistakes of others, to discourage, suspicion, distrust. But is it not the duty of every Christian to learn and practice the art of encouragement? Do we realize how much a word of cheer, a smile, a touch of courage or faith will do to help lift men out of their inhibitions, discouragements and falterings? The crowds that flocked about Jesus two thousand years ago show how much the gift of encouragement needed exercising then, but there are many things that reveal the fact that it needs exercising as much today. I do not mean flattering, saying sweet nothings, telling a host of things that are not true. I mean giving men a lift in our own way, helping them to live nobler and better by exercising this art of encouragement. The wise old owl says: "You will become less critical, less pessimistic and certainly more Happy in the atmosphere of the church."

The church needs people who know this wonderful art. May we all learn and pratice this method in furthering God's Kingdom.

For the Kingdom's sake, John E. Kaufman.

SERMON SKETCH

Rev. W. F. Unruh, Pastor Mennonite Church, Pulaski, Iowa

"THE CHURCH OF GOD"

I Cor. 1:2

We gather every Sunday as a church for united worship and common fellowship with our Lord. I wonder whether we realize how great a privilege we enjoy by belonging to the Church of God.

To be a member of the Church of God is not like belonging to a club or a reading circle. To belong to the Church means belonging to the "household of God," to the Family of God. It is a most exalted privilege which carries with it solemn responsibilities. The Church is the great Family of Children of God. We cannot join a family as we would join a club or circle. We are either born or adopted into a family. So also our entry into the Church. It is through the new birth and our adoption that we come into this great family of God. The word church means an assembly called out. We who belong to the Church are a select group, chosen by God before the foundation of the world. When we say that we are a select group, chosen by God, we must say this with deepest humility, since we are not chosen because of any merits in us. It is because of Christ who dwells in our hearts. In Eph. 1:4-5, we read, " . . . even as He chose us in Him before the foundation of the world, that we should be holy and without blemish before Him in love, having foreordained us unto adoption as sons through Jesus Christ unto Himself." Before the foundation of the world God chose those who would be in Christ. His choice of us is dependent upon us. If we have given our hearts to Christ and belong to Him, then we belong to the chosen ones of God. This is our adoption as sons through Jesus Christ. We can then say that the Church is the great Family of God, in which God is both Father and King and we are His children and brothers and sisters to each other. Can anyone think of a more exalted group. To belong to it is our privilege in Christ.

The Word of God calls the Church the Body of Christ. Christ is the head of the body and we are the members. This simile brings out God's purpose with and through the Church. It is the body of believers in whom Christ desires to reveal Himself and through whom He desires to express Himself. The Church is the Kingdom of God in practice, that is, the Church is to be the Kingdom of God on earth, the rule of God on earth. We must confess with deep regrets that it is a very imperfect rule of God because we are so disobedient and unfaithful. But the Church is to be the actualization of the Christian message. Christ and His will is to be the supreme rule for the life of church members. As we let Christ reign in our hearts and through our lives, just in so far has the Kingdom of God come into the midst of us. Think of Christ's exalted purpose with the Church! Can anyone imagine a more inspiring challenge to make the most of life than comes to members of the Church of God?

UZZIAH: A KING WHO FORGOT GOD

2 Chron. 26:3-5, 16-21

Uzziah's Trust in God, vs 3-5

Uzziah was a contemporary of Jeroboam II, of Israel and his long reign of fifty-two years was the high-water mark of national and political prosperity, a period of outward glory and splendor. His fame spread far and wide, even to the borders of Egypt (v8). He strongly fortified the land, equipped his large army in the best manner then known. He and the nation prospered. God was with him (v15).

"He did that which was right in the sight of the Lord" (v4) and "he sought God and He made him to prosper" (v5). God helped him as long as he was true to Him. Early in life he came under the influence of Zechariah, a godly man. Such influence is of inestimable value to every young person. Uzziah started out well and God rewarded him well for his faithfulness. He will not fail us in like faithfulness to Him.

Uzziah's glorious reign came to an inglorious end His remarkable prosperity is described in verses 6-15. The increase of outward strength and prosperity was attended with constantly growing inner weakness. His strength became his ruin. "When he was strong, his heart was lifted up to his destruction" (16). He became proud and self-sufficient in spirit. He thought he could trust in his own resources instead of relying upon God. He could not stand success and prosperity. Very few persons, even in Christian work, can stand unusual prosperity and success. Most of such workers become inflated with a feeling of their own importance. When prosperity and success turn one's head and conceit develops—especially so in Christian work—then spirituality recedes into the background. Success is always dangerous and sometimes fatal to character.

Uzziah presumed to usurp the function of the priest (v16b) in entering the temple to burn incense upon the altar. He violated the plain instruction of God's law. He felt that he was the chief one in all things —both in Church and State. We see the same spirit in the Nazi leaders of Germany today. Many people become careless regarding their obedience to God's commands when they become prosperous.

Azariah, a faithful and fearless priest, with a company of like-minded priests, boldly withstood the king (vs 17, 18) and dared to oppose him in his act of presumption. The head of the Church and head of the State stood face to face. There is much need today of servants of God with sufficient courage to rebuke those in high authority for their sin. Uzziah's pride was wounded, he became angry, showing the smallness of heart in not tolerating rebuke from a God-sent messenger (v19). His wrath was short-lived, for God took him in hand. The sudden appearance of the leprosy on his forehead plainly was the direct judgment of God who does at times, directly send sickness and affliction. Uzziah learned that his kingship could not shield him from swift punishment. Many have brought a blighted life upon themselves. Uzziah's leprosy was not of the body only, it was also of the soul. His chief sin was one of presumption. Self-importance and pride will lead people to invade the realm where God alone is sovereign. God could no longer use Uzziah because his pride utterly unfitted him for kingly leadership. God has to set aside promising and prominent Christian workers frequently because of too great self-esteem, too much "I am IT." We should vigilantly watch against perils connected with prosperity. Prosperity of the soul is of the first importance.

How I Found God

I caught a snowflake on my sleeve, beautiful, crystal, clear: and in its delicate form and tint, I thought I had seen God. It was not God, but just a token of His loveliness.

I watched the color of the eastern sky resplendent, glory-hued: and in its gold dawn I saw the face of God. No, no—not God, but a ray of His eternal brightness.

I gazed upon a mother eagle, catching her weary young upon her outstretched wings; and in her speedy rescue, I found God. And yet, not God, but an outreach of His love and care.

My boy climbed up upon my knee—smiling, trusting, loving. I felt his breath that warmed my cheek: I saw the light that shone into my eyes; I sensed God. But still not God—merely the image of Him, breathing, living.

I read the Book, concealing, revealing Book. I learned its message! I heard its voice; I caught its life; and I had God. Ah, no, not God—just the mystery of Him, and the secret of His mystery.

I climbed the Hill and stood before the Cross—rough, cold, hard Cross. I gazed into the Face—Face of the Crucified. At last, I had found God; yes, God; the very God; the all-living, the all-suffering, the all-redeeming, the all-embracing God. I had found God.—Paul J. Hoh in How to Find God.

Jesus said: "I am the way, and the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father, but by me." —John 14:6.

Must We Save The World For Democracy Again?

Everybody who has watched developments at our national capital during this period of war threat in Europe must have been confronted with the question: "Must we be forced to partake in a second war to preserve democratic government?" The President has done everything possible to get the congress to repeal the embargo clause of the Neutrality Law which prohibits the sale of arms to beligerents, so that he might be free to authorize the sale of arms and implements of war to the nations which he favors and keep them from the rest. That this would allign us on the side of the socalled democracies of Europe and against the other powers is evident, and in case of war we would likely be partakers, not only in furnishing war material but also our man power and material resources. Thoughtful people have been convinced that through our participation in the World War we committed a rank folly, as the ends sought were not attained. And that with such a lesson we should positively keep out of the embroilments across the seas.

Now after the Congress has adjourned the President has made public a conviction that a certain coalition of members of that body "has gambled with the welfare of 1,500,000,000 people—three-fourths of the world's population—in rejecting his neutrality program." That would be very sad indeed if it were proven true. But Senator La Follette has made a rather logical reply to the President's claim. He says,

"I don't see what move we could make for peace that would involve the sale of arms, ammunition and implements of war and that is the nub of the issue presented to congress.

"To take the position that the sale of arms would promote peace is to fly in the face of our whole experience leading up to our entry into the last war. The President seems to be proceeding on the theory that we can have our cake and eat it too.

"The way to stay out of Europe is to stay out. If we attempt to influence the course of events prior to hostilities by throwing the American productive capacity on arms, ammunition and implements of war into the balance we would be gambling with the fate of 130,000,000 people who live in the United States, plus those who live in the western hemisphere."

Under such conditions, what can we as peaceloving Mennonites do? Outwardly not much. Our number is too small. But we have one power, that of PRAYER. So may we not with all the fervency at our command pray that when Congress meets again it and the President may yet find a way to agree on a policy that will keep us out of war. And especially let us pray that the war in Europe may be entirely averted. —T.

Western District C. E. Covention Report

A goodly number of C. E. workers and friends attended the forty-seventh annual Christian Endeavor Convention, at West Zion Church, July 30. Weldon Rupp, assisted by Mrs. Rupp at the piano, led the opening and song and praise service. The theme, "The Doing Christ," was ably stressed throughout the entire program. William Juhnke, Marlo Dirks and Clinton Kaufman had charge of the introduction. During the Junior program, in charge of Hilda Schmidt Schroeder, a number of neighboring Junior C. E.'s were represented by songs and recitations.

Rev. Henry Harder explained in detail the nature and value of the C. E. Standards. They are not a definite goal, but a workable plan, whereby each C. E. may judge itself and strive to reach a higher level.

The orations given by Lillie Krehbiel and Paul Becker were ample proof that the oratory contest, a feature of the peace committee, is a definite step toward making the young people of our C. E.'s think concretely along the lines of missions and peace.

Miss Clara Reimer gave a vocal selection.

During the delegate luncheon music was rendered by a quartet from the Meno Church consisting of August Schmidt, Henry Unruh, Henry Harder, and Raymond Ratzlaff, and by another quartet from the second Mennonite Church of Beatrice composed of Hilda Beth Goertz, Ruth Penner, Ted Wiebe, and Paul Claassen.

At the business session these resolutions and recommendations were passed:

MISSIONS: Whereas, the mission board needs funds for native helpers in China, mass evangelism in South India, and worker's salaries at home, resolved, first, that we redouble our mission efforts both on the foreign and home mission fields. And, second, that the first one hundred dollars of our mission receipts go for the Swift Current, Saskatchewan, dormitory project.

RETREAT: Whereas the retreat of last July was a great inspiration to our young people, resolved that we endorse the third annual Elmdale retreat and urge the young people to attend it to relax and reconsecrate themselves.

PEACE: Resolved, (1) that our peace goal be the Peace of Christ in our hearts and lives; (2) that we promote peace by: a. reading Christian Peace literature; b. authorizing another oratory contest; c. supporting the Kansas Institute of International Relation; d. cooperating with the Young People's Union of the General Conference of North America and urging them to present plans for cooperative Peace action.

LOOKOUT: Resolved, that we actively promote a youth look-out system within the district which endeavors to keep in active contact with all our young people between the ages of fifteen and thirty. Amendment: Resolved, that we authorize the executive committee to carry out this plan.

STANDARDS: Resolved, that every society endeavor to score 100 per cent on the C. E. Standards.

RECOMMENDATIONS: We recommend that a Western District Young People's Peace Rally be held on August 20, 1939, at the First Mennonite Church, Newton, at 7:30 p.m.

CHURCH PAPERS: Resolved, that all C. E. societies become agents for our Church papers, MENNONITE AND BUNDESBOTE.

At the time of the business session the Junior leaders were meeting separately. Helen Penner presented Worthwhile Junior C. E. Projects while Mrs. J. E. Entz, discussed the topic, "How to Teach Religious Education to Children."

The evening session was in charge of Rev. Harold Ratzlaff. Rev. Walter Dyck gave the Retreater's Message. Music was furnished by a quartet of the First Mennonite Church, Beatrice.

In his address, Rev. John F. Schmidt stressed the fact that Christians should be useful. Christ heaps his greatest condemnation on those who are merely useless. Our work is limited by our concern. The urge of youth should express itself along Christian lines. We should walk the second mile. We are to be the salt, the light, and have strong concern for the welfare of others.

A resolution was passed thanking the West Zion Church for their building, the Moundridge community for the park, the ladies of the church for the luncheon, and all who were on the program or otherwise contributed toward the success of the convention.

Newly elected officers are: Vice-President, Hans Regier, Whitewater; Sec.-Treas. Florine Krehbiel, Hutchinson; Retreat Com., D. C. Wedel, Halstead.

Hilda Wiebe, Secretary.

CORRESPONDENCE

American Falls, Idaho, Aug. 1st, 1939.

Dear Editor:

Here on the more than 4,200 feet above the sea level plateau in and around Aberdeen, Idaho, we could enjoy for several weeks the wonderful summer atmosphere. The air has been so envigorating, the days never became hot. The nights always graced us with the most refreshing breezes. Last but not least the sisters, brother, aged aunt could be fellowshipped with besides the large host of old friends, to whom came other new ones. Then the uplifting church attendance. In places apparently the young people take a spiritual vacation, forgetting the religious gatherings. Here we have been encouraged and surprised to see young and old fill the pews splendidly. Lovers of music touched our hearts with their melodious voices. One night the young people's group broadcasted searching Christian songs from Pocatello, quite a goodly number of the selections being dedicated to different individuals, families, etc. Certainly a vast number of listeners will have been deeply touched and drawn to the Savior. Would the good Lord shower His blessings upon this locality which did so much for our physical and spiritual comfort. The happy remembrances shall linger within us when sojourning at other places. The loving minister, Brother P. A. Wedel, reaps much credit for his Godfearing services rendered untiringly.

Beginning with the Mennonite issue of August 8th will you kindly change our address to Reedley, Calif.

With many greetings and well-wishes, P. W. Penner.

MENN. CHURCH, ROARING SPRING, PA.

Rev. Willard K. Claassen of Newton, Kansas, arrived in Roaring Spring last Tuesday evening to assume the duties of the pastorate at the Roaring Spring Mennonite Church. The congregation worked hard to prepare for its new minister and his wife. The interior of the church parsonage was repainted, repapered, and new electrical fixtures were installed.

On Thursday evening the neighbors and the young people from the church held an informal gathering at which the couple were given many useful gifts. After a period of fellowship, the young people serenaded Rev. and Mrs. Claassen at the parsonage.

A warm welcome to the community was given by the other ministers of the town at a reception held on Friday evennig in the church. Representatives from each of the Western Pennsylvania churches in the Eastern District Conference also extended a hearty welcome to the new pastor. Various members of the congregation were called upon to express their sentiments, and all felt that Rev. Claassen's coming to Roaring Spring was directed by God, and that his ministry here should be fruitful. The new pastor told the group that he and Mrs. Claassen were very well pleased with the reception given them in Roaring Spring and that they would enjoy working with its people.

The Roaring Spring ministerium has invited Rev. Claassen to speak at a union service of all the Roaring Spring Churches on Sunday evening, August 6.

Retreat News

The eleventh annual Retreat of the California Mennonite Young People is to be held at Camp Gaines, Lake Sequoia, August 21-26, 1939.

The Theme will be, "Living for God's glory." I Corinthians 10:31.

The Retreat is for all young people of High School and College age who desire to know the Word and the Saviour better and who are willing to cooperate in making the Retreat a spiritual blessing to all. Such are most cordially invited.

The Purpose: "The aim of the Retreat is to make possible a vital experience of God's grace, to provide Christian fellowship, to foster spiritual growth, and challenge retreaters to consecrated Christian service."

(Adopted from Western Dist. Retreat Bulletin)

Cost: The cost will again be $6.00.

Speakers: Dr. A. Warkentin, Dr. John A. Hubbard, Rev. and Mrs. P. W. Penner. Ernest Lichti from Reedley will have charge of the choir and musical work.

Recreation: Boating, swimming, games, contests, hikes, etc.

To do between now and August 21st—

1. Pray for the Retreat. Plan to come. Prepare to come.

2. We need a permanent Retreat song and also a theme song for this year. Will you compose some verses to the tune of some familiar Christian hymn or song? Or perhaps you could write an original composition. If you follow this suggestion, make four copies of your work. Do not make it known, but bring the four copies to the Retreat. The choir or a quartette will be asked to sing the piece handed in and the retreaters will choose the one they like best. We hope many will respond to this challenge. Several prizes will be given.

3. We are planning a song-fest for one of the evenings. Will you prepare as many solos, duets, and quartettes as possible before you come?

4. We plan to have an exhibit of visual aids usable in Christian work. Will you please prepare object lessons, chalk talks, feltographs, posters, etc., etc., and bring them with you?

QUESTIONNAIRE RESULTS

Question No. 14 reads, "Do you favor a continuation of the present arrangement of 4 pages in the Mennonite, whether other arrangements are made or not? The answers to this somewhat ambiguous question were hard to tabulate, and the results may not be accurate. Eight persons answered "Yes"; six answered with a qualified "No." Some comments were:

"Yes, we want it and more. If separate paper is started—discontinue 'Our Youth Says' page."

"No, not without some improvement. All the features now included are acceptable to me, as a general rule, and none should be omitted, but additional material should be added to bring it up to meet the vital present needs of the Young People."

"No, unless we can thereby reach some young people who will not get the young people's paper."

"If we have a Y. P. paper, announcements concerning our activities should suffice."

Reedley, California—Sixteen young people have signified their intention to attend the Retreat. In order to promote the Retreat, a Retreat Committee was elected. They are, Aaron Remple, chairman, Miriam Muller, Ernest Lichti, and Ruth Dettweiler.

The Intermediate, Young People's, and Adult C. E. Societies are having union meetings in the basement during the summer.

The Young People's Choir under the direction of Ernest Lichti is becoming larger and is doing commendable work. It actively participates in the evening meditation services. The choir practices every Wednesday night. It has met steadily and in good numbers even during the summer. This is no little feat.

The following is posted on a bulletin board in the Reedley church. You may want to post it on yours.

A youth thoughtless! when the career of all his days depends on the opportunity of a moment! A youth thoughtless! when all the happiness of his home forever depends on the chances or the passions of an hour! A youth thoughtless! when his every act is a foundation stone of future conduct, and every imagination a foundation of life or death! Be thoughtless in any after years, rather than now—though indeed there is only one place where a man may be nobly thoughtless—his death-bed. No thinking should be ever left to be done there.—John Ruskin.

Our Attitude Toward Work and Workers

Eccl. 5:18-20; Jas. 5:1-4; Col. 4:1

Senior C. E. Topic for September 3, 1939

Purpose of Meeting

Labor and its problems are probably the chief domestic concern of the United States government and its citizens. The problems seem so tremendous that many earnest students of contemporary affairs believe they can never be solved under the present economic system. Certain leftists in modern thought advocate scrapping our democratic structure of beliefs and works as the principle step in solving our economic ills. One short hour of discussion cannot settle any of them, but we can perhaps adjust some of our ideas and attitudes toward work and workers in the light of truth from various sources.

Program of Worship

Hymns: "Work for the Night is Coming," "O Son of Man, Thou Madest Known," "O Master Let Me Walk with Thee," "To the Work."

Scripture: Eccl. 5:18-20; Jas. 5:1-4; Col. 4:1.

Poem:

"Make haste, O man, to do
Whatever must be done;
Thou hast no time to lose in sloth,
Thy day will soon be gone."
—Horatius Bonar

Prayer: O God, grant us the light of Thy love, that we may see clearly the duty of each day. Especially do we pray for just and holy relations with all men, with both our employers and with our employees, and with the Master Workman of us all, Thy Son Jesus Christ. In His name we pray. Amen.

Discussion, announcements, and benediction.

Leader's Introduction:

There is a tremendous challenge in Edwin Markham's poem "The Man with the Hoe." The leader should have someone who is an effective reader give either part or all of the poem. It will raise some earnest and searching questions to start the discussion if the right transition is made from the painting by Millet on which the poem is based to problems of American labor today.

Man and the Machine

The author of Wind, Sand and Stars, Antoine de Saint Exupery, discusses briefly the relation between the development of the machine and the economic mess in which the world is finding itself. Some men have denounced our mechanical civilization, he says, as the enemy of the spiritual civilization, and as the source of all the ills we have. If this were so, our civilization would be headed for certain chaos and destruction, for the advance of the machine is inevitable.

Exupery asserts, however, that the principal struggle of mankind is not to obtain bread and if possible cake, but to understand one another and to join with one another for the common good. The machines, as an annihilator of time and space, is the very thing that helps man to do this.

Is this an idealist's view of the role of our mechanical science and inventions? Are we confusing ends with means when we complain of man's progress? We must always keep in mind that the machine—the microscope as well as the ploughshare—is a tool. It is a wise man who can handle his tools wisely. It is a wise people who remain the masters of their tools.

Discussion Problems

1. Is it inevitable and unchangeable that the fruits of labor will not be distributed equally?
2. Is there any method short of changing human nature to make a more equitable distribution of wealth?
3. Do you believe that the blame for today's economic ills should be charged to modern industrial development? If that is responsible, is it therefore to be deplored that we have reached as high a degree of development as we have?
4. How have women added difficulties to general labor conditions? What solution do you propose?
5. What rights of labor should we as Christians recognize?
6. What was Christ's attitude toward work and workers?
7. What should be our personal attitude toward small tasks about us?
8. Is all work something to rejoice in and to be regarded as the gift of God? (Eccl. 5:18-20).
9. Would the perfect Christian community be communistic in its economic set-up?

Sept. 3. Topic. Ps. 78:1-8.

Instrumental Prelude: "God of Our Fathers"

Scripture Reading: Ps. 78:1-8.

Sentence prayers

Reading of references given for the daily readings. We believe it would be profitable to read these in the meeting.

Thought by leader:

The Jews have believed for thousands of years that God chose them to be His chosen people. He did. The Jews have kept this heritage alive for the benefit of the world through all ages since.

However, the life of Jesus as lived in the past and as recorded teaches us that He came" to save that which was lost," regardless of race. Jesus chose the folks who needed him most.

Discussion of topic:

We believe it would be well to ask the members to name blessings which they think we have received from the past. As they are named have your superintendent write them on the board. The following are some but you will probably think of additional ones.

1. The Bible. 2. Christian churches. 3. Public schools. 4. History. 5. Industries. 6. Government and laws. 7. Newspapers. 8. Sunday schools. 9. Thanksgiving Day. 10. Special schools—a. universities, b. vocation schools.

After all have been named that could be thought of let each one meditate on this question. How would I Like to do without these?

Song: "For the Beauty of the Earth."

Further thoughts for discussion:

1. What does the past teach us regarding the means of establishing peace? Is it possible to have a war to end war?

2. Can we profit by the errors of the past?

3. Does history repeat itself?

4. Can we profit by the study of wise men of the past?

5. Have you ever stopped to think why honesty is so important? Is it not because people have been trying to build an honest world for hundreds of years? Think of the Brooklyn Bridge and the Statute of Liberty which have stood for many years? Why? Is it not because the people who built them as well as millions of other buildings were honest workmen? Have you never heard of a structure which did not endure as was expected, because there was dishonesty practiced in its construction?

Let us determine within ourselves that we are going to do all within our power to continue this strong spirit of honesty.

Song as Prayer: "O Master Let Me Walk With Thee"

Offering

Announcements.

Concluding thought by leader: We, too, are makers of history. We are those who must build for others in the best possible way. Shall we build on hatred and suspicion or on love and understanding?

Mizpah Benediction.

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

OTHER GIFTS GOD GIVES US

Program for August 27, 1939

His Holy Word—Psalm 119:103

I. Worship Service

1. Prelude: "Break Thou the Bread of Life."

2. A sing-song—All Juniors gather around the piano for this.

   a. "Tell Me the Story of Jesus"
   b. "Wonderful Words of Life"
   c. "I Love to Tell the Story"
   d. "Is My Name Written There?"
   e. Sing Them Over Again to Me."

3. Responsive Reading:

Leader: Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path. Ps. 119:103.

Juniors: So then faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God." Rom. 10:17.

Leader: "All Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness." 2 Tim. 3:16.

Juniors: "Thy word have I hid in my heart, that I might not sin against Thee." Psa. 119:11.

Leader: "Be ye doers of the word, and not hearers only." James 1:22a.

Juniors: "Blessed are they that hear the word of God and keep it. Luke 11:28.

4. Leader's prayer.

5. Sing response: "Let the words of my mouth." 406 M. H. B.

6. Poem by three Juniors: "Thy Word is Like a Garden."

Thy Word is like a garden, Lord,
With flowers bright and fair;
And every one who seeks may pluck
A lovely cluster there.
Thy Word is like a deep, deep mine;
And jewels rich and rare
Are hidden in its mighty depths
For every searcher there.

Thy Word is like a starry host;
A thousand rays of light
Are seen to guide the traveler,
And make his pathway bright.
Thy word is like an armory,
Where soldiers may repair;
And find for life's long battle day,
All needful weapons there.

O, may I love thy precious Word,
May I explore the mine,
May I its fragrant flowers glean,
May light upon me shine!
O, may I find my armor there!
Thy Word my trusty sword,
I'll learn to fight with every foe
The battle of the Lord."
—From Hymnal for American Youth.

Mission Minutes

1. The Bible (or parts of it) has been translated into over a thousand languages and dialects. Which one of our Mennonite Missionaries has translated the Bible? Tell the story of this translation.

2. Have a display of Bibles of as many different languages as possible.

3. Solo—"We've A Story To Tell to the Nations." v. 3, 4.

Study Period:

Aim: To create in the Junior a growing interest in and a deepening love for the Bible as God's Word; and to help him discover his need of the Bible in his own life.

1. Introduction: The very best way to know a book is to read it. We want to know more of God's word so we will read portions of it. (Different Juniors read).
    a. Psalm 19:7-11; b. 2 Tim. 3:14-17; c. Deuteronomy 6:4-9; d. Romans 10:11-15.

2. Solo "There's a Dear and Precious Book."

3. There is a very interesting story that tells how a part of the Book of the Law was lost and found. Let a Junior read this in 2 Kings 22:1-13 and 2 Kings 23:1-3 and then tell it in his own words.

4. Song "Break Thou the Bread of Life."

5. Another story is found in Nehemiah 8:1-18. A Junior should tell this.

6. Six one minute talks by six Juniors using Psalm 119.
    a. God's word is something to think about. v. 16, 97.
    b. God's word is a guide. v. 105, 130.
    c. God's word keeps us from sin. v. 11, 101.
    d. God's Word is precious, v. 113, 127.
    e. God's word gives peace, v. 165
    f. God's word gives us strength, and wisdom v. 28, 34.

8. Song: "One Sweetly Solemn Thought" v. 1.

7. Leader's heart-talk and closing prayer.

Plans for September

For most children September is more nearly the beginning of a new year than is January, since school begins again and with it come new experiences, new joys, new sorrows, new strength. School to the boys and girls is just as real and just as important as is work to men and women. May we Junior leaders help our Juniors to have a right atttitude toward school.

September 3—I, In My School.
September 10—Jesus at School.
September 17—Jesus and His Friends.
September 24. Jesus and His Friends.
Verse for month 2 Tim. 2:15.

Song for month: "The Best of Friends I have in Heaven." M. H. B., No. 364.

Program for September 3, 1939

"I, IN MY SCHOOL"

I. Worship Program.

1. Prelude—"Fairest Lord Jesus," played very softly.

2. Sing the above song one voice singing the words, the others humming the melody.

3. Scripture—By an older Junior boy. Psalm 24.

4. Leader's Prayer.

5. Song—"The Best of Friends I Have in Heaven. M. H. B. No. 364.

II. Mission Minutes

1. A report on where the missionaries' children in India and China go to school.

2. Could our Juniors send a picture of their school with a message of love to the children of our missionaries who must be so far from home while at school.

III. Study Period.

Aim. To help our Juniors realize that school days are days of opportunity and days of joy.

1. Talks by three Juniors.
    a. One way to learn is by seeing. John 20:24-29.
    b. Another way to learn is by doing. Matthew 10:7, 8.
    c. We also learn by remembering. Eccl. 12:1.

2. Song: "I Think When I Read That Sweet Story of Old."

3. Talk by an older person—"School Days are Happy Days."

4. Discussion lead by Juniors.—How can we give real testimony for Christ by our lives at school.

5. Memorize: Rule which works at school. Heb. 13:17.

6. Leader's heart-talk. As we start again in our school life I would like to give you one rule — a very short one, it has only three words—to go by, for although it is short it is big enough to cover every situation that may arise. This is it: "Love One Another."

7. Leader's closing prayer.

8. Song—"My Jesus I Love Thee."

FIRST MENN. CHURCH, NEWTON, KANS.

Dear Eidtor and Readers of the Mennonite:

God bless you all! In the evening service on July 9, Brother Wuetherich, a student preparing for the foreign mission, made the introduction. Brother Willard Claassen and J. Regier brought the message. —Brother Willard Claassen of our congregation and sister Justina Harms of the Swiss congregation were married in our church on Friday, July 14. The wedding sermon was delivered by Rev. C. E. Krehbiel and the ceremony was performed by Dr. A. Warkentin. A reception was given in the basement to about 450 friends and relatives, and a program followed the refreshments.—July 16, in the evening, Rev. Theodore Roth of the Swiss congregation brought us the message.

On July 23, in the morning, occurred the ordination of Willard K. Claassen, who has been elected as pastor of the Roaring Spring Congregation, Pennsylvania. Rev. J. E. Entz preached the ordination sermon on John 21:15-17, then ordained the young brother. All elders present assisted in the ordination. It was a very solemn and interesting service. God bless the young brother. In the evening service Rev. J. M. Regier delivered an excellent sermon on "Stewardship of Life" to a small audience.—On July 25, Tuesday, took place the wedding of Frank W. Busenitz of the Emmaus church with sister Hester E. Claassen, member of our congregation in our church.

Wishing you all God's blessing,

Fraternally your correspondent.

IN MEMORIAM

HELEN HARDER THIESSEN, daughter of Bernhard and Helene Harder Wiebe Thiessen, was born Sept. 25, 1896, near Whitewater, Kansas. At the age of eight years she lost her beloved father through death. At the age of sixteen she was received into the Emmaus Mennonite Church through the rite of baptism. On June 26, 1917, she was united in marriage to John Thiessen. God blessed this union with three daughters and three sons, all living. In August 1930, her mother was taken to her eternal home, and in November of the same year symptoms of her fatal sickness appeared. In the following year she was operated on twelve times. On November 8, 1937, she took to bed, from which she did not arise to her end. She was grateful for all tokens of love and sympathy which were expressed to her during her long and painful illness. In spite of much agony she was fully yielded to her Savior's will and waited patienty for His summons. She departed to glory in the afternoon of July 14, 1939. Her age was 42 years, 9 months and 19 days. She leaves to mourn her early death, her husband, six children, Lydia Helen, Bernhard John, Susan Viola, Gilbert Henry, Dorothy Ruth and Herald Eugene; one sister, Mrs. John Epp, Jr., her mother-in-law, and many relatives and friends.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon, July 17, at the Emmaus Church, near Whitewater, Kans., with Rev. H. T. Reimer, Rev. J. W. Lorenz and Rev. J. C. Kaufman officiating. Rev. Henry Thiessen had previously held a brief service at the home. Burial was in the Emmaus cemetery.

STELLA nee KODER KRATZ, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Levi Koder, was born October 19, 1878. As a young woman she was confirmed as a member of St. Matthew's Lutheran Church, known as Keller's Church. She united with the First Mennonite Church of Allentown, Pennsylvania, October 25th, 1914 by confession of faith. She died in the Sacred Heart Hospital, Monday evening July 17th, aged 60 years, 9 months and 7 days. She is survived by her husband, Horace Kratz, and four children, Solomon of Quakertown, R. D., Mrs. Elsie Fritchman and Ralph Kratz of Allentown, and Warren at home, also by 14 grandchildren and 4 brothers and 4 sisters. The funeral was held in the First Mennonite Church, Allentown, Friday afternoon, July 21st, with her pastor, the Rev. Howard G. Nyce, officiating. Interment in the Grandview cemetery.

HENRY C. BEIDLER, son of the late Rev. John and Mary nee Clymer Beidler, was born in Rosedale, June 19, 1867. He was united in marriage to Catherine Moyer by the late Rev. Andrew Shelly, on March 24th, 1892. He united with the First Church, Allentown, by letter from the Quakertown Church in 1924. He was one of our Sunday School teachers for a number of years, until he resigned on account of ill health. He served as a member of the Church Council for some years and as church treasurer for three years. He suffered a slight stroke while attending the General Conference in Bluffton, Ohio, in 1933, from which he never fully recovered. He is survived by his widow and three daughters, Helen and Mary at home and Florence, wife of Dr. Weldon F. Diller of Rawson, Ohio, one grandchild, one brother, John Beidler of Quakertown, and a sister, Mrs. Mary Kreibel, of Hereford, Penna. The funeral was held in the First Mennonite Church, Allentown, Pa., Thursday, July 27th. He attained the age of 72 years, 1 month and 4 days. Interment in the Greenwood Cemetery. His pastor, the Rev. Howard G. Nyce, officiated.

JACOB H. GOOSEN, son of Henry and Marie Goosen, was born November 23, 1854, at Landskrone, South Russia, where he received his education. On May 25, 1876, he was baptized upon the confession of his faith by Elder August Lenzman and joined the local Mennonite church. He came to the United States June 28, 1879. On May 1884, he married Marie Goosen. This union was blessed with four children, one son and three daughters. After a little over 9 years this mother died. Two years later he married Miss Marie Goertz. To this union were born three sons and one daughter. After a long illness this mother entered her heavenly rest October 18, 1923. In all he lived in the state of matrimony a little over 37 years. Here in America he joined the Alexanderwohl Mennonite Church, of which he was a member of good standing at his death. His health began to fail in May of 1937, and at times his condition was serious. On the 2nd day of July, 1939, he had a stroke which left him almost helpless. He died on July 19, 1939, at the age of 84 years, 9 months and 26 days.

Father was unwavering in his faith in Christ, his Savior. All the adversities of life that came to him only settled more firmly his conviction of his salvation. The last deep experience came to him when in March last, his son Jacob died of cancer. Completed now is his earthly journey and we are confident that he has entered the heavenly rest into which all his brothers and sister preceded him. There live to mourn his departure, 3 sons, 4 daughters, 4 sons-in-law, 2 daughters-in-law, 26 grandchildren, 2 great grandchildren, and many relatives and friends.—The bereaved children.

California*, from Pier 45, New York, at 5 P. M. D. S. T. on Wednesday, September 6th, for Glasgow. He will enroll in the Graduate School of Divinity, New College, University of Edinburgh and plans to pursue graduate work in the Church History and Theology Departments for the next two years.

—A YOUNG PEOPLE'S RETREAT.—A Young People's Retreat will be held at Freeman College, Freeman, S. D., beginning Sunday evening, August 27, and continuing through Wednesday, August 30. Announcement of the speakers and program will appear later.—Violet Miller, Sec.

—Pres. J. D. Unruh of Freeman Junior College reports: "Prospects for students are quite good, even though our crop returns are very poor, especially west of Freeman. There is little hope for corn even east of Freeman."—He also reports that the College is operating a bookstore, with Albert Schwartz as manager who has done a very good job of it and, besides, has charge of their manual training work.

—Pastoral Message by Rev. Erland Waltner. — "In the time of world crises, our Lord sounds a reveille for the Christian Church. It is time to be up and doing. Too long we have slept. Too long needy souls and a confused world have waited for us to arise out of our slumber. We were stationed in the world as watchmen—and we have slept. Let us arise and be alert to every opportunity to serve our fellowmen and glorify our God."

—A Word of Comment on this Paper—Paul R. I have noted the improvement in the paper as a whole during the last few years and feel that it is becoming the source of information, interest, and inspiration which we need in our work."

—Death Takes away a Valuable Member of the Bethel College Faculty. For the third time in the history of the school a member of the college faculty passed away while in actual service. The first was Prof. C. H. Wedel, first head of the school; the second, Prof. G. A. Haury, secretary and instructor in Latin, and now DR. J. E. LINSCHEID, HEAD OF THE ENGLISH DEPARTMENT, who died on the morning of Saturday, August 5, as the result of a stroke. He had been ailing considerably for some time, yet his going came rather unexpected. In Doctor Linscheid the College loses an efficient, congenial, faithful Christian teacher whose beneficient influence will live on in his students and all those that had intimate contact with him. The bereaved family and relatives have our heartfelt sympathy.—Obituary next time.

—The All-Mennonite Young People's Retreat at Shipshewana, Ind., which began July 31, had as instructors: Rev. I. R. Detweiler, Rev. A. S. Rosenberger, Rev. A. E. Kreider of Bethel College, Rev. J. E. Amstutz, Dr. Samuel Flueckiger (Music) and Rev. G. S. Stoneback. Rev. Stoneback has sent us several church bulletins. On reading their Sunday service programs, morning and evening, one gets the impression that the Eighth Street Mennonite Church, Goshen, Ind., is pretty much alive.

—The Berne, Indiana, Community is again in the lime light. In a recent cattle show farmers in that neighborhood took the most prizes on champion milk cows and other cattle. One cow has seven yearly records with four over 500 pounds of butter. Her dame has ten records with three over 600 pounds.—At the same Fair, at Decatur, Ind., in a parade in which 36 twins of ages between 7 mo.—78 years took part, Dorothy Jean and Earline Jane, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Moser of Berne, won first prize as the most identical set of twins.—Farmers of the same community also won honors in a horse pulling contest and in a horse show.

—First Church, Philadelphia, Pa.—During the pastor's vacation in August, two young brethren of the Eastern Conference, Paul R. Shelly and Wilbur Lauer, Jr., will serve as pulpit substitutes.—After having greatly improved the looks of the church building by having the outside painted, the question is now being raised, "Would it not be lovely to have it decorated inside?"

—On Sunday, August 6, the temporary assistant pastor of the Reedley, Calif., Church, Rev. Reynold Weinbrenner, preached in German, at 9:00 a.m., on the theme, "Die Christen, die glücklichsten Leute," and in English, at 11:00 a.m. on "Living Adventerously."

—The St. John Church, Pandora, Ohio, is issuing a new type of bulletin, obtained from a concern in Iowa (front and back page) which is quite pleasing. In it the pastor, D. J. Unruh expresses this significant thought: "The Prayer Meeting is the pulse of the church. If the Prayer Meeting is well attended and fervent prayers by the children of God ascend to His throne there will be an enthusiasm for the Lord Jesus Christ, the church will be edified, and souls will be saved. When the Prayer Meeting is neglected the spiritual blood pressure will be low, enthusiasms fail, and discouragement and criticisms take their place. See Acts 4:23-31.

—Churches without Standing Ministers in the Western District.—Unless action has been taking recently, there are now four churches in Kansas and two in Oklahoma that are without ministers. In Kansas: Zion Church, Kingman, until recently served by Theodore Epp; Hoffnungsfeld Church, near Moundridge, recently served by John C. Kaufman; Emmanuel Church near Canton, supplied for some time by J. J. Ratzlaff but no longer, and Friedenstal Church, near Tampa, served for years by the late H. H. Schmidt.—In Oklahoma: Ebenezer Church, Gotebo, served until this summer by Henry Hege, who takes charge of the Corn, Oklahoma High School and Gruenfeld, Church, near Carnegie, which A. W. Froese has been serving.

—Rev. J. M. Regier, formerly pastor of First Church, Reedley, Calif., and for the last few years field representative of Bethel College with a good deal of success to his credit, was installed as regular pastor of the Johannestal Church, near Hillsboro, Kansas, Sunday, August 5. Three of the neighboring ministers, Rev. J. H. Epp, Hillsboro, Rev. Arnold Funk, Bruderthal, and Rev. B. H. Janzen, Lehigh, assisted in this service. Refreshments were served in the basement. The church feels very fortunate.

—MARRIED: FRIESEN-GRABER, Sunday evening, August 30, at Bethel College Chapel, in the presence of an audience that filled the hall, by Rev. J. N. Smucker, MISS MARTHA FRIESEN, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Gerhard Friesen of North Newton, Kansas and MR. ELDON W. GRABER, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Graber of Pretty Prairie, Kansas. A reception for all guests was given in the College Grove following the wedding. After a trip to the Rockies of Colorado, the couple will be at home in Whitewater, Kansas, where Mr. Graber holds a fine position on the high school faculty.

—Summer Activities of Bluffton College Faculty. President L. L. Ramseyer is teaching at Bowling Green State College.—Professors Babson (Business)

Klaassen (Art), and Coach Burkey are attending Ohio State university. Prof. A. C. Schultz (Bible) is continuing his work toward a Ph. D. at the University of Chicago; Miss M'della Moon (Biology) is taking work at Miami Uni., Miss Naomi Brenneman is working on her doctor's dissertation at her home in Goshen, Indiana, and Prof. Russel A. Lantz is doing choral work among the churches in central Illinois.

—From Hanston, Kansas, Dust Bowl territory—Rev. A. S. Bechtel writes: We had another rain Tuesday, August 7, afternoon, not heavy, but helping to moisten the parched soil. In the morning it was unusually warm and sultry. This morning (Aug. 8) the thermometer read 54 degrees and it surely did feel chilly for August.

—Rev. Lester Hostetler, Upland, Calif., attaches this note to a business letter of August 7: "It is now nearly 7 a.m. and we are about ready to begin our final week's stretch on this Hymn Book work. I plan to leave with my family August 14, and to return again by about September 17. We hope to get a lot of work done this week." The editor is under the impression that the good family are coming east, as far as Ohio, or farther.

—MARRIED—Ruth Doris Hiebert of the First Mennonite Church in Hillsboro, Kansas, and Henry D. Hiebert of the Mennonite Church near Newport, Washington, were married by the bride's pastor, Rev. J. H. Epp, Saturday, August 5. The young couple will make their home near Newport, Washington. Mrs. Hiebert will be greatly missed as she was very active in S. S., C. E., Ladies' Aid and other church activities.

RELIGION GAINING IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

A few weeks ago THE MENNONITE reported the Board of Education of the city of New York had authorized the holding of Week Day Bible Schools with permission for children to attend them on school time. Now Brother Walter H. Temple of Wilkes Barre, Pa., sends us a clipping in which the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York is urging action in the same direction. The clipping goes thus:

Chamber of Commerce Says Youth Needs Religion

The State's educational system needs to be readjusted to foster "a deep, true, religious understanding and viewpoint," according to a preliminary report issued yesterday by a special committee on economical and efficient education appointed last year by the Chamber of Commerce of New York State.

The committee is convinced, its report said, "that the great lack in our homes and in our national life is the lack of a true, simple religion. If this nation does not maintain its religious foundation its whole structure will fall."

The committee opposes the teachings of any particular sect.

The report was written by Frederick Lisman, Howard C. Smith, A Wellington Taylor, John R. Todd and Thomas F. Woodlock. It will be submitted to the chamber on Oct. 5.

ALCOHOL STUDY. — Temperance advocates should be interested in the announcement made last winter by the American Association for the Advancement of Science that the Association had set up a Research Council on the Problem of Alcohol. The Association said that it considered the alcohol problem as of the same importance as the problems of cancer, tuberculosis and leprosy. We hope that the research of these men of science will not halt before it takes them into the field of social, moral and spiritual effects. The influence of alcohol on the individual is serious enough, but its influence on society is far more devastating. There can be no question but that the liquor traffic in America is today our most serious moral handicap. What hurts most is the fact that our Government is now a partner in the liquor business. —D. D. B.

—WE MUST REPENT BEFORE WE PREACH REPENTANCE. — Preachers and churches cannot mediate a saving Gospel to the lost world except as they themselves walk in that Gospel. Salvation is conditioned upon repentance and faith in our Lord Jesus Christ . . . . If churches do not really believe that sinners are guilty and lost without Christ, they will have no real Gospel for them. No wonder the world is not touched and saved through such complacent witnessing to faith. These are plain words, but unless something of their meaning takes hold of us, we may build a great institutionalism and an imposing denomination, but inner decay will continue to sap us of divine power to call sinners to repentance. To five of the seven churches in Asia our Lord's word was repent, not save the lost. What will we save them to, since we are too complacent to repent of our own sins? The while we go out to bring to Christ those He says must repent their sins, we decline to pay the price of repenting and turning to Him ourselves. Such a course may get men to decide for Christ, but it will not show them in their sin-blinded hearts how to receive Him.

"SUNDAY EXPRESS" PRINTS THE BIBLE

One of the largest English Weeklies, the "Sunday Express," with a circulation of more than 2 million, has started to print sections of the Bible in place of the customary time novels. In an introductory paragraph the editor gives his reasons for the change thus: "True we have all read the Holy Scriptures and know them at least in part from memory. We also have ample opportunity to hear sections from the Bible read. But we lack a deepened knowledge of this mighty monument of literature with its deep dramatics, its high poetic art and incomparable language." The reprint will not be given in the usual arrangement, by chapters and verses, but as a coherent whole, on two pages. For its basis will be used a new translation which has recently made its appearance in England, in modern equipment and with astonishing success. This volume of 1274 pages on finest India paper, was intended for readers that do not know the Bible and to whom it shall be brought as a fascinating story. Large numbers of persons have been brought into the Church through this Bible.

A Nation Wide Back-to-Church Movement

The following is a part of a call by the "National Committee for Religion and Welfare Recovery."

"It is a distressing fact, that in many sections of the country, churches are suffering from a falling off in attendance, with resultant lack of the support that is essential in carrying out welfare and other services that are so vital to religion and benevolence. We are asking all pastors, priests and rabbis, church and allied groups, women's societies, fraternal bodies, the press, civic clubs, public schools, labor organizations, commercial enterprises and individuals to participate in this nationwide back-to-church movement.

"Loyalty Days provide an opportunity to get started on regular attendance at church. The invitation is 'Every citizen is cordially invited and every member is confidently expected in a house of Christian worship,' while the slogan is 'Every member present or accounted for.' We hope that going to church on a Loyalty Day, Sunday, Oct. 1, will lead to increased faithfulness in religious duties all through the year. Our objective is 'Every citizen in a house of worship every week' for meditation, prayer, worship and life adjustment."

The National Committee for Religion and Welfare Recovery includes more than 700 leaders of the country. The Loyalty Day program is a part of its endeavor for maintenance of higher standards, both of church attendance and service in the future, and to replenish the depleted treasuries of philanthropies which have been hard hit in the last few years through reduction of contributions.

Other objectives of the Religion and Welfare Movement are:

To call all citizens to recognition of God and the ministries of religion as basic, in any program of permanent national recovery;

To educate the American public in the underlying principles of stewardship through regional conferences, national magazines, the daily press, motion pictures, radio and other educational media;

To broaden the base of giving by enlisting as nearly as practicable, "Every citizen as a steward of life and property for the welfare of mankind;"

To develop more business-like methods of systematic giving, proportionate to incomes;

To seek the religious, social and moral welfare of the donor as more important than the material value of the dollar.

One of the methods of reaching these objectives is through enrollment in the Loyal Legion, composed of laymen, and clergy who believe that religion is basic in the life and welfare of mankind, who accept its obligations as well as its benefits, and who pledge renewed devotion to the services and ministries of the Church and related educational, welfare and character-building institutions."

Here Is Neither Jew Nor Greek

From December 12 to 19 there assembled in Tambaram, South India, the World Mission with its 470 delegates. Tambaram lies at the foot of Mount Thomas where, according to an unvarified but not impossible tradition, the Apostle Thomas is supposed to have suffered a martyr's death. Upon this mount and in other places there was found that mysterious cross whose inscription it has not been possible to decipher to this day.

Delegates to the number of 470 from about 200 churches and 70 nations were gathered here in brotherly love. What a panorama, with reference to the past as well as to the future, for the eye of the visitor! What tales of tears and suffering, of faith and victory of the Church of Christ among the nations! And in view of this gathering, the representatives of the many churches, what fruits has the death of the Son of God born for the sins of the world! What a scene, some day, when not only a few scattered representatives but the entire Church will be assembled before the throne of God?

In almost all of the more important languages there resounded, on the eve of December 25, the songs of praises for the Savior of the World. The assembly was a mighty witness to the fact that Jesus' name is above all other names, and in him alone is salvation for all believers, the Jews as well as other peoples.

"I will keep thee from the hour of trial which is to come upon the whole world." This thought became vividly real, throughout the Conference in view of present conditions: "Wars and rumors of War" everywhere! Chaos and conflicts everywhere! Birth pangs of a new dispensation, the Millenium! On that account revolutions among all the people, within and without, everywhere apostasy (a falling off) in the direction of the coming of Antichrist, to whom all nations will cling—signs that are designated by an unbelieving world with the word, crisis. The believer, however, makes no hit-and-miss diagnosis. He knows the cause as well as the disease itself, so also the only effective medicine that can cure the dying world.

Perhaps there was not one among the delegations that could not tell of racial struggle, impassionate nationalism—this new conception of the fulfillment of prophecy, according to Luke 21:29-30—All other trees, not only the Israelitish fig tree bud forth.

Anybody who attended this conference could behold the face of Jesus Christ among the nations. One had the impression that the body of Christ had actually began to receive unto itself the fulness of the heathen (Rom. 11:25). There were the Japanese, with that noble soldier Kagawa among them, beside Chinese brethren, in unbroken fellowship of faith and prayer despite war. There was the leading bishop of the Mavris of New Zealand, the first Papna Chris-

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

Beatrice, Nebr., August 10, 1939.

Dear Brethren of the Board and Mission Friends:

Tuesday, August 8, the Linscheids and myself arrived at our home in Beatrice. I was gone practically two weeks, somewhat longer than originally planned. But I wanted to go over the field and we could not go very fast on account of the heat and dust. The nights, however, were delightfully cool, which was a great help to me.

The special meetings began Thursday night, July 27. This was somewhat of an introductory meeting, with short addresses of Indian Christians and workers. The deepest impression made upon me was by the closing prayer, spoken by Mrs. Beaverheart, a very old and blind Indian Christian woman. The way she talked with the Lord and her sincerity was a revelation of the power of God in human life.

Friday, Saturday and Sunday three meetings were held daily. Every meeting was opened by a native helper, with scripture reading, exhortation and prayer. Brother Habegger led the singing, and how those Indians sang! They love their Cheyenne songs and sing them accordingly. The brethren Linscheid and Habegger preached without interpreter. Brother P. A. Kliewer and myself, of course, had to use a translator. Special mention should be made of the fellowship or love-feast with the native Christians. They paid a large part of the expense. A short program was rendered. Rev. Bentley, the Baptist missionary to the Crow Indians, gave a good address. Again for me the outstanding feature was an address by an Indian sister in Christ, Mrs. Milton Whiteman. It gripped my heart. I do wish all of us and a good many others of our people could have been present. Any skeptic soul would have been thoroughly convinced that it does pay. Money, labor and sacrifice in His name pay an hundredfold in precious souls.

Sunday morning, Holy Communion was celebrated. If I am correct 52 communed. At the beginning the congregation stood and sang in Cheyenne, "Hallelujah, schoener Morgen, schoener als man denken mag." It was an inspiration to listen. No doubt all of us were greatly strengthened and benefitted. Brother Linscheid conducted the service mostly in Cheyenne.

After the afternoon meeting, during which Brother P. A. Kliewer preached, with his old-time friend John Stands-in-Timber as interpreter, about 156 Indians and mission workers enjoyed a feast, furnished both by the Indians and mission workers. I had the impression that the heathen Cheyennes enjoyed this fellowship as well as the others. After the feast we gathered in the Church for the last meeting of the blessed three-days celebration. Charles Yellow Robe gave the introduction and I had the privilege to speak, Milton Whiteman interpreting.

During these three days we were repeatedly reminded of the small beginning of the Montana work, 35 years ago, and the pioneer labors of Brother and Sister Linscheid. The beginning was hard and discouraging, but persevering faith conquered every obstacle and hindrance. Brother and Sister Petter were repeatedly remembered. They are at present enjoying a well deserved vacation in far off Switzerland, the native home of Rev. Petter. Other workers who were on the field for longer or shorter periods were also mentioned.

Monday was spent in looking over the Lame Deer district. Lame Deer Station is the most strategic station on the field, the Government Agency is stationed at this place. Tuesday we visited the Upper Rosebud district and Wednesday the Birney station. Brother Frank Little Wolf, a native helper, faithfully visits this latter station and Sunday after Sunday conducts services in the chapel. Thursday we were at Ashland with Sister Valdo Petter and Sister Gibbs, her faithful helper. Those two faithful workers, rather isolated on the field, need our Christian sympathy and persevering prayers.

Friday was reserved for a visit to the Upper Muddy. We had our noon lunch with a native Christian family. The father of the family, William Red Cherry, is the keeper of a watchtower, situated on one of the highest mountains on the reservation. There are four of them, for the purpose of detecting and preventing devastating forest fires. After the meal, Brother Habegger conducted a little service, which was very much apperciated by the family and all of us.

Saturday, August 5, came the farewell at Lame Deer. It was not easy for the Linscheids to leave the people and the work so dear to their hearts. With the help of native Christians and the Habeggers, Sister Marie Buller has charge of this station until Petter's return from abroad. We once more made a short stop at Ashland and ten started on our homeward journey, on which the Lord kept his protecting hand above us. Tuesday toward evening we arrived at our home in Beatrice. Wednesday morning the Linscheids left us for their home in Newton, Kansas. Personally, I am very grateful for all that our dear people on the Montana field have done for me. May the dear Lord be their rewarder. —M. Horsch.

—Articles on Evangelism.—At the invitation of Rev. W. F. Unruh, new pastor of the Mennonite Church at Pulaski, Iowa, who as a returned missionary from India has a heart full of enthusiasm for Evangelism, has interested 7 other young ministers in praying for this cause, and also in supplying the church papers with short articles on the subject. It would be well if they could serve the "BUNDESBOTE" as well as THE MENNONITE which is glad to assist in the venture. But just at present three such articles are awaiting publication.

A General Conference Church Organized at Cuauhtemoc, Chihuahua, Mexico

H. P. Krehbiel, Newton, Kansas

When the very promising settlement of Mennonite refugees from Russia on the hacienda San Juan, adjacent to the city of Irapuato, in the state of Guanojuato, Mexico, was so unhappily dissolved in the year 1926-1927, most of those refugee families moved to Canada and the United States. Only a few elected to remain in Mexico. These however scattered and for some time lived somewhat isolated. It was about this same time, 1922-1926, that a large number of Mennonites, known as "Alt-Kolonier (Old Colonists) from Canada established a new colony about 100 miles somewhat northwest of the city of Chihuahua in the state of Chihuahua, Mexico.

David Redekop, Sr., one of the settlers on the now abandoned San Juan settlement, decided he would stay in Mexico and settle alongside this new colony of Mennonites. This he did in 1926 by locating with his wife, five sons and an adopted daughter, in the little village Cuauhtemoc, then composed of only a few small adobe houses, occupied by Mexicans. A freight railroad runs through this town. The family, with pioneer energy, set to work and soon gained a foothold by farming and also engaging in general merchandising. A sore affliction came upon them when one of the sons died. However, trusting in the Lord they went forward.

After having gained a temporal foothold, he invited others of those who had remained in Mexico to locate at Cuauhtemoc. Gradually enough had gathered that meetings could be held in the homes. Lay members read sermons from sermon books. But it was soon realized that in order to promote spiritual life effectively the group had to organize a church with a minister and other officers and workers. Several years ago the writer had received urgent invitations from David Redekop Sr., with whom he had become acquainted in 1926 at San Juan, to come there and organize a church, and otherwise serve the group spiritually. At that time I could not well spare sufficient time to serve in the way desired. Later the invitations were repeated, and became more urgent. As service of this nature really belongs to the field of Home Mission of the General Conference this matter was brought to the attention of that Board. In reply I was informed that the Home Mission Board could not undertake this service. The officers of the General Conference now requested me to accept the invitation from Cuauhtemoc, which was done.

The month of November, 1938, was chosen for this work. The brethren there were duly informed. A general program was outlined and sent them. Accompanied by Mrs. Krehbiel, the first lap of the journey from Newton brought us to El Paso, Texas, at 8:40 A. M., Nov. 10, 1938. Here a surprise awaited us. For according to prearrangement we were to be received here by Bro. David Rdekop. But instead, as we entered the very spacious R. R. Station waiting room, we were greeted by the smiles of Rev. John A. Koehn and wife of Kansas. They reported that D. Redekop was at the time not permitted to cross the border into the United States. Koehns who were on their way to their home in Kansas, had been delegated by Redekop to assist us in crossing the border, which they did with pleasure.—Many thanks dear Brother for your kindness.

After we had been brought to Brother D. Redekop in Juarez, the Mexican border city, he took charge of us for the remainder of the journey. The border customs offices were looked up and after the officers had been satisfied, which required several hours, the journey was continued by train for about 200 miles southward into Mexico, to the thriving city of Chihuahua, where the night was spent in a hotel. The following day the journey was continued by bus, because the trains into the interior run only on alternate days. However, this bus ride proved to be quite instructive. It led through the mountains on a very primitive road, on which streams were crossed by driving through the water. From the bus we got a far more intimate look at the natural scenery as also of the life along the way. Although the bus was filled to the last seat with passengers and besides it was packed with freight, the sights along the way were so interesting that the trip did not tire me. Much of western Mexico is still exceedingly primitive. Of the aboriginal inhabitants many have their houses or huts in or among the brush, near a brook or nestling in some gorge near the foot of some steep mountain cliff. Here these primitive people dwell close to nature and live the real simple life.

Attendants at the Sunday Morning Services November 20, 1938. Hoffnungsau Church, at Cuauhtemoc, Chih., Mexico

It was well along Friday afternoon that we arrived at our destination Cuauhtemoc. In accordance with the program sent earlier, a meeting was held on this Friday evening, which was well attended. So also was the Saturday evening meeting. These meetings were an encouraging evidence that a lively interest was present here for the founding of a church.

Sunday forenoon had been announced for general preaching service, to which all who wished to attend were invited. Besides grown up Mennonites and their children, there were in attendance 12 Lutherans and Evangelicals from the vicinity.

On Sunday evening the organization of the church was definitely taken up. Twenty persons had by this time declared their intention by signing their names to a statement that they were of one mind to take active steps under the blessings of God to join in the founding of a church.

Charter Members of the Hoffnungsau church (Cuauhtemoc). From left: Mrs. and Mr. Wilh. Redekop, Mrs. and Mr. Wilh. Janzen, Mrs. and Mr. Peter Redekop; Mrs. and Mr. Jacob Janzen, Mrs. and Mr. David Redekop, Jr., Mrs. and Mr. David Redekop, Sr., Mrs. and Mr. Aaron Redekop; (Lady with hat, visitor), Mrs. Katherine Renpening, Mrs. and Mr. John Baerg, Widow Margaret Jansen, Peter and Mrs. Fast.

The question now arose, how the group would secure a church constitution on the basis of which the church would be organized and conducted. Soon the wish was expressed that the leader might advise how to proceed. He had with him a number of copies of the Burrton Mennonite church constitution in the German language, which was submitted for consideration. After prolonged deliberation it was agreed to adopt the submitted constitution as a basis for the formulation of the constitution to be adopted. This was particularly acceptable, because this constitution had been approved as satisfactory by the Western District Conference of the General Conference.

The first subject taken under consideration was the adoption of a name for the church. Different names had been proposed and discussed. In view of the romantic natural surroundings the name Hoffnungsau was brought forth. This name was acceptable to all, so the name Hoffnungsau church of Cuauhtemoc, Chihuahua, Mexico, was unanimously adopted. The different points of the constitution were then considered, and with the necessary changes to meet the local needs, the 21 articles were adopted by ballot. Finally the motion to adopt the constitution as a whole with the adaptations was unanimously accepted.

The election of officers on November 13 resulted as follows: Secretary, Helen Janzen; Trustees, Aaron Redekop, David Redekop, Jr., Wilhelm Janzen; Treasurer, David Redekop, Sr.; Correspondent, John Baerg; Deacon Wilhelm Redekop.

A resolution was adopted to elect at this time a minister, not an elder. The brother is to be elected for a term of three years. The term begins with the date of his ordination to the ministry. The election of a minister took place on the evening of November 15. The choice fell on Brother Jacob Janzen.

A resolution was adopted to elect two or more brethren for occasional assistance to the minister. Those thus elected are Deacon Wilhelm Redekop and John Baerg.

On November 17 a resolution was adopted that the church will organize a Sunday school as soon as the church shall be ready for it. In the afternoon of the same day, the ordination of the minister elect took place in the presence of a full house.

tized. As many of these candidates as could attend daily received catechetical instruction in preparation for baptism. One of the five candidates was at this time in Mexico City attending a school and could not be at Cuauhtemoc for certain before November 27th. Accordingly Sunday, November 27th, was fixed as a special holiday; baptismal services in the forenoon and the Lord's Supper in the afternoon. On the occasion of the baptismal service the newly elected and inducted minister Jacob Janzen also preached a short sermon.

Partakers of the Lord's Supper were those persons who had signed their names as charter members for the founding of the church, as also the five persons added after baptism.

As the families participating in the church, in addition to the church members, have a youth of about 26 persons of various ages, there seems to be good prspect that under the blessings of God the church Hoffnungsau of Cuauhtemoc may look forward to an expansion in numbers, as well as a promising growth spiritually.

After the close of the Sunday afternoon meeting, the church had prepared a surprise for their visiting guests, in the form of a song service. A choir sang a beautiful and touching song, after which the congregation sang several leave-taking songs. Thereupon followed a general farewell handshaking and wishing us Godspeed.

Oklahoma Convention

CHANGE OF PLACE OF MEETING

THE OKLAHOMA CONVENTION WHICH BY PREVIOUS ANNOUNCEMENT WAS TO CONVENE IN THE AUDITORIUM AT FAIRVIEW, OKLA., WILL NOW BE HELD IN A LARGE TENT AT THE ORIENTA CHURCH BY ACTION OF THE CHURCH.

THE DATE REMAINS THE SAME, AUGUST 27 AND 28.

If any guests desire to come the evening before and would like to have accommodations for the night, please come to the Orienta Church, one mile south of Orienta, on highway 60.

In the name of the congregation—August Schmidt.

We Bow In Gratitude

When a Chinese feels deeply grateful and unable to find words to express himself, he kneels down before you, clasps his hands, bows himself to the earth repeatedly touching the ground with his forehead and uttering the words "Thanks, thanks, thanks." This is the way we feel toward our Heavenly Father and the many friends of Bethel College, who, in answer to our various appeals in the papers, during recent weeks made their contributions. The fellowships in the various congregations deserve special credit.

Because of economic conditions, of course, there were not many large gifts, but the number of individual donors for July is exceptionally large ,indicating a growing number of friends who are willing to put themselves down on the right side of the line by actively doing something for the cause, even though financial conditions are hard.

During the month of July, close to 600 different persons responded with contributions, totalling over $5,000, all of which helped very materially toward balancing the budget as the fiscal year closed, August 1, 1939.

In gratitude to God and the many friends of Bethel College, we repeat our "Thanks, thanks, thanks," with the prayer that Bethel College may increasingly become a worthy instrument in our Heavenly Father's hands, for the upbuilding of His cause in the hearts of the young people attending here and the various communities that the school touches in all parts of the earth.

Committing the cause to your continued prayers, I beg to remain,

In behalf of Bethel College,
Ed. G. Kaufman, President.

ISAIAH: A LIFE DEDICATED TO GOD

Isaiah 6:1-13

Introduction

Isaiah, the greatest of the prophets, was one of the mighty intellects which rise like snow-capped mountain peaks, above the surrounding mountains. He saw that the Hebrew spirit of nationalism had become a curse in that it had helped to bring about a religious decline. He had a vision of the God of Israel as being the God of mankind. Under his influential leadership, a great religious era began for Israel.

Isaiah's Vision of Jehovah and Cleansing vs 1-7

Our lesson passage records the beautiful account of Isaiah's call to the prophetic service. His ministry took on new form and power from now on. This vision, which changed the course of his life, came to him in the temple (vs 1-3). God's house is a good place to see visions. There indeed noble impressions should be made upon the mind and the soul. We need a vision of God himself. Uzziah the king, a good leader was gone, but God was upon his throne. Our God lives and this should calm our hearts when facing trouble and distress. Isaiah coming into the temple, saw a vision of God in his greatness and majesty, seated on the throne and filling the temple. He saw God only and the seraphim, all else sank out of sight. The lofty song of adoration, the shaking of the door posts, the presence of the smoke, made an indellible impression on his mind.

The seraphim declared the holiness of God—the central truth about the Lord whom Isaiah saw. God is holy—set apart from and lifted above all that is human and material. Isaiah continually spoke of God as, "The Holy One of Israel." We should deeply ponder the greatness of our God. As Isaiah thought of God's perfection and holiness, he painfully realized his own uncleanness and guilt (v5). He saw the Lord and then he saw himself. We need to see ourselves better than we usually do. He felt very humble, was conscience stricken. He saw especially the sin of his lips, which sin had its fountain head in an unclean heart.

Isaiah also had a vision of God's grace in granting him cleansing and purification of his lips (vs 6, 7). This cleansing implies a transformation of the whole inner nature and personality. God alone can cleanse and purify, making even the vilest clean. The glowing coal of God's spirit burned up the dross and uncleanness and made Isaiah a new man. It touched his lips, for it was the sin of his lips which he especially confessed and he was to use his lips for God's glory. We too need clean lips that they may be fit instruments for God's message.

Isaiah's Vision of Duty vs 8-13

Isaiah's vision of lip-cleansing was a preparation for receiving a definite call and commission. He heard a voice, the Lord speaking from the throne and to him personally (v8). The experience of forgiveness made his heart sensitive and he felt in his soul that this call from the Holy One was directed to him. His duty seemed plain and clear and his heart replied, "Here am I, send me." He knew God wanted him for a good work. He then and there dedicated his life and powers to God. God can do great things with a man who wholly yields himself to Him. Is our heart sensitive toward God so that we hear His call and answer promptly and with the whole heart?

God revealed his task to him (v9) and it was a difficult one. Convincing the indifferent and unresponsive ones, is always difficult. It was a discouraging task but not fruitless. The Lord also revealed to him that the outward results would be small (v10) but he was to continue to warn and preach as long as there were any to preach to (vs 11, 12). There will be the faithful "tenth" who will be born into new spiritual vitality.

The dedication of one's life to God is necessary before one can render effective service for Him.

SERMON SKETCH

THE CROSS AND THE CHRISTIAN

Gal. 6:14-17

by Rev. T. A. Van der Smissen, Pastor of the Hebron Church, Buhler, Kansas

"But God forbid that I should glory save in the Cross of our Lord Jesus Christ." Gal. 6:14.

Paul owes his life, his ambition, his salvation, his enthusiasm for service to the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ.

To men and women of his day and age, the cross meant shame, disgrace, an offense and rejection; and anyone who suffered death on the tree was held up to be scoffed at, derided, and looked down on. His friends and the members of his family received the same or similar treatment that we give those who die on the gallows today.

I. THE DOUBLE DEATH

Nevertheless Paul finds in the cross of Jesus Christ a cause for glorying, for rejoicing and thanksgiving; and well has he cause to rejoice and to glory, for it meant a double death to him (v14). It was a real factor to change his life, for by the cross the world was crucified to him and he to the world.

a. He was Dead to the World: Christ had paid the death penalty for his (Paul's) sins. The world no longer had a hold on him. He was dead to the world. "The wages of sin is death." Justice was satisfied.

Christ had paid the penalty for his sins and now he is free. He had no fear of death, the grave or of that which the world might do to him. The world had no claims on him.

b. So also was the world dead to Him. It had no more power over Paul because it was dead as far as he was concerned. Pleasure, habits, companionships, ambitions were no problem for him; no job or position could move him from Christ who had done so much for Paul.

II. A NEW CREATURE OR CREATION

"Neither circumcision availeth anything, nor uncircumcision, but a new creature." Gal. 6:15.

Circumcision here stands for formalism, for that which is merely external in the realm of "religion" . . . . "having the form of godliness "without" the power thereof" (2 Tim. 3:5). Not only does it avail nothing, but it is nothing. A "New creation" is the thing, and the only thing, which "availeth anything" or is anything. "We are His workmanship created in Christ Jesus." Eph. 2:10 "If any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold all things are become new." (2 Cor. 5:17) This new life is evident in the daily walk of every Christian. It is most evident in the life of those whom the grace of God has lifted from the greatest depths of sin, those who were bound by the chains of sin that even their fellowmen felt there was no hope. But, dear friends, what is not possible with man is possible with God.

There are thousands who can and do testify to the power of the cross in making out of lost, shipwrecked souls, new creatures that are a witness to the power and glory of God.

The cross gave Paul more than it took away. Paul was not complaining about his salvation . . . He was glorying, he was not complaining about lost pleasures or lost friendships; he was glorying in a new life which made him a new man and gave him all the attractions of the new world.

III. A NEW RULE

"As many as walk according to this rule, peace be on them, and mercy" v. 16.

The new rule was the rule of the cross (Jno. 3:16), the rule of LOVE. It was keeping in step with the spirit. Paul would measure everything by the cross. The cross would be his yardstick of Faith to test every religious scheme, of morality to test every worldly indulgence, of honesty to test every human practice.

A new creation in Christ Jesus is the believer's perfect rule of life. Not circumcision or lack of it; not law-keeping, not the works of the flesh, not religious forms, none of these but a new creation, a new rule. Jesus says "A new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another." The Faith that has saved the believer is a "living faith" a "faith that worketh by love." 'Love one another" is John's admonition. "By this shall all men know that ye are my discipes "that ye love one another." And thus through the centuries love has been the outstanding characteristic of the Christian; not only love one for another but also love for those who "persecute us and speak all manner of evil against us falsely." Only he who has the love of God in his heart can love his enemies and do good to them that hate him. And the result—peace. The peace which passeth all understanding, the peace which the world cannot give, the peace which Jesus has left with us. And in the words of Paul, no one can cause me trouble, wearinesses that come from toil, cares, vexations and kindred ills, for I rest in Christ, I am at peace, there is quiet in my soul.

IV. A NEW MARK

"I bear in my body the marks of the Lord Jesus." v. 17.

On Paul's body were the marks of the Roman rods laid on his body and the scars of stones cast upon him. But Paul meant more than that by saying "I bear IN my body." There were moral and spiritual marks upon Paul's character. They indicated divine ownership, submission to every divine requirement. Paul's life was a crossmarked life. It was marked by his love to his fellowmen, by his radiant life, by his faith in God and his salvation in Jesus Christ.

a. Note Christian Slavery, with its abject submission, with its utter yielding up of self to the control of Jesus, who died for us. Our servitude of Christ is based on His blood with which he has purchased our freedom from the bondage of sin and of death. Therefore we should joyfully surrender our will into His. Every morning we should awake with a consciousness that we belong to Him, that we will receive His commands throughout the day and retire, at night, only when we feel that He is satisfied with our service. We must be conscious of the fact that we have no personal rights, no closet that is hidden from Him, nothing that we can hide from Him.

b. Marks of Ownership—Every Christian, man or woman, ought to bear in his or her body, in a plain literal sense, the tokens that he or she belongs to Jesus Christ? We may not be privileged to wear physical marks of our service to Christ. But there are other marks: love, joy, peace (Gal. 5:22). The marks are also evident in the aversion of others, the losses which our scrupulous conduct demands, the cool indifference of our fellow human beings and the scornful looks of those who are not the slaves of Jesus Christ.

The Lord Jesus was crossmarked. The cross left its marks upon His head, upon His heart, upon His hands and upon His feet. And when the cross has truly marked our characters, it will leave its marks upon our head with a crucified intelligence; upon our hearts with a crucified affection, shown by our love; upon our hands with a crucified walk, keeping step with the Holy Spirit.

"For me to live is CHRIST and to die is gain."

Western District C. E. Convention News

The forty-seventh annual C. E. Convention, which convened in the West Zion church, Moundridge, Kansas, July 30th, was very well attended. The large church was packed for the afternoon session. The galleries were filled and people stood in the rear hall. Rev. John F. Schmidt from Buhler was the principal speaker of the evening. This meeting was held in the city park where loudspeakers broadcast it to a large audience.

An excellent meal was served by the West Zion ladies in the church basement at 4:30 P. M.

William Juhnke continues as president for the coming year. Hans Regier, Whitewater, is the new vice-president; Florene Krehbiel, First Mennonite Church, Hutchinson, is the new secretary-treasurer. The last two will hold office for the coming two years.

For the first time the Juniors had a part in the convention. Their program was in charge of Miss Hilda Schmidt.

Now, with an inspiring convention in the past, it is up to the C. E. groups to put its plans and ideals into vivid action.

What Jesus Said About Right Living

Matt. 5:13-26

Senior C. E. Topic for September 10, 1939

Worship Program

Hymns: "In My Heart There Rings a Melody," "My Faith Looks Up to Thee," "Purer Yet and Purer," "Living for Jesus."

Call to Worship:

"I will follow the upward road today,
I will keep my face to the light,
I will think high thoughts as I go my way,
I will do what I know is right.
I will look for the flowers by the side of the road,
I will laugh and love and be strong,
I will try to lighten another's load,
This day as I fare along." Mary S. Edger.

Prayer: O Thou great light of the world! Help us to walk in the light of Thy life. After the radiance of that light shines on us, help us to reflect its beauty and happiness to others. May we find in following Thee the opportunity of expressing the best, not the least, that we have. Save us from colorlessness and insipidity in Christian living. Give us to live our possibilities to the full. Grant us the willingness to lose ourselves like salt in food, that we may make life more wholesome about us. Separate us from all that separates us from Thee, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Leader's Introduction

The most powerful sermon ever preached was preached by our Master on a mountainside to a group of eager listeners. The teachings in that sermon have never lost their vitality and force through all the changes of the two thousand years following. A series of three Christian Endeavor meetings has been based on parts of the Sermon on the Mount. The two following topics are concerned with prayer and with the Kingdom of God.

The genius of Jesus' teaching about right living is that it gets at the heart of the matter, cutting clear through the secondary and relatively trivial teachings that tend to clutter up an ethical system.

It has been said that there are three kinds of people—those who do not live up to any laws, those who live up only to the laws that men enforce in our common life, and those who live according to inward laws that no man can enforce. We Christians are supposed to be in the last of these three categories. Our actions are governed by standards and ideals that are inwardly cherished but which can never be outwardly enforced.

Jesus makes it clear to us in the Sermon on the Mount that our conduct should be governed so. Men may enforce a law against murder, for example, but a law against anger can never be enforced. Yet Jesus declares than anger and murder are of the same evil spirit. So both angry hatred, the inner spirit, and murder, the outer act, are looked upon by Christ's followers as sinful.—International Society of C. E.

"Ye Are the Salt of the Earth"

This statement is one of Jesus' most important statements. It is clear that He expected us to represent Him as redemptive and preserving factors in the world.

Following this statement is one of Jesus' most embarrassing questions: "But if the salt have lost its savor, wherewith shall it be salted?" If salt is not salty, what good is it? If we who bear the name of Christ do not act as Christian, do not save and serve, what can He do with us? Not only is His name belittled and His cause held back when we are careless, but we get in the way of others and weaken their effectiveness. The glory of being a Christian is the chance of operating at "full strength." Today is a poor time for "saltless" salt. It is a great time for "full strength" Christianity.

Does the cause of Christ have to apologize for us?

—The Upper Room.

"Ye Are the Light of the World"

The trouble with the religion of the scribes and Pharisees was that the "man-made trimmings over the lamps of their lives—ceremonialism, intolerance, bigotry—obscured the light. That is our big trouble today. The light is more important than the lamp, but we magnify the lamp and discount the light.

"Light has two missions— to show us our way and to show up the beauty and reality of the world about us. If our religion does not do that for the folks we know, we may be fine lamps . . . but we are not the light he spoke of.

"After all, the acid test of life is its influence. Is it good or is it evil? Men care little about what we say, but much about how we act. Not what we profess, but what we possess is the evidence of a genuine Christian life." —The Upper Room.

Suggestions for Talks

1. Insipid Christianity. Matt. 5:13.
2. The light under the bushel. Matt. 5:14-16.
3. Anger and how to control it. Matt. 5:21-24.

Discussion Questions

1. Is a passion for God and righteousness sufficient to be able to do God's will? Or must we have some knowledge an instruction in what really is His will?

2. Can a Christian have enemies? If so, how and what kind?

3. Why would Jesus teach against anything so natural as hate?

4. What is the basis of most hate and enmity?

5. What is the best way to dispose of an enemy? Is it really possible to love our enemies, or does Jesus mean that only in a figurative sense?

6. Is passive Christianity of any worth either to the professing Christian or to the world in which he lives?

Thought by leader

School is one of the best ways of preparing for life and in order to derive the greatest profit from it we should enjoy it. In our discussion today we want to find out why an education is desirable and then we hope we shall find a new avenue of joy in it.

No girl or boy is ready at the completion of the eighth grade to determine a life career. Four years of high school will help, in a great measure in determining this most important issue of life. A college education will give vastly more help.

We should go to college because it will change life from a drab existence into a glorious living. It will open the doors and windows of the narrow life and present the far ranges of space. It is in college that we learn to put power back of our thinking and doing. It is the place where we learn that our understanding is most insignificant and that we need to trust in the wisdom and understanding of those who exceed us in mental and spiritual power.

Memory verses—Prov. 3:5, 6. (These should be assigned previous to the meeting).

Song: "Give of Your Best to the Master"

Questions for consideration and discussion:

1. What is Education?
2. What are the advantages of public education?
3. What happens when a person gets only one type of education and neglects Christian Education?

4. How can we determine what school will do to us?

5. How can we get the most instead of the least out of school?

6. Why is it important that we learn how to work while in school?

7. Are we ever justified in taking the attitude of just getting by?

8. What is the value of homework? Do you honestly think it is proper to assign homework?

9. In order to get the most out of education should we participate in the health program of the school?

10. What can we get from associating with students of different classes and races?

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

JESUS AT SCHOOL

Program for September 10, 1939

"To the Jew, child life was something peculiarly holy, and the duty of filling it with thought of God especially sacred." When I read the above quotation I was challenged. We as Junior Leaders have the special privilege and duty to fill the child's life with "thought of God." May we be true to this sacred trust.

I. Worship Program

1. Prelude—Instrumental Music

2. Song—"O Master Workman of the Race." The leader should read the words of the song and make necessary comments that the Juniors may sing it with understanding.

3. Leader's Prayer.

4. Scripture by a Junior. Luke 2:40-52.

5. Trio—"I Think When I Read That Sweet Story of Old."

6. Verse for month in unison—2 Tim. 3:15.

"And that from a child thou hast known the holy scriptures, which are able to make thee wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus."

7. Song for month: "The Best of Friends I Have in Heaven" M. H. B., No. 364.

II. Mission Minutes.

An older person should tell the Juniors the need of schools on the mission fields.

III. Study Period.

Aim: a) To arouse a sense of the reality of Jesus. b) To help the Junior to know that Jesus knows their problems at school and is ever ready to help them.

Place a large, good print of Hoffmann's "Christ and the Doctors" where all Juniors can see it.

1. Introduction: Sometimes we wonder about what Jesus did when he was a boy. What lessons he had to learn. We know that all Jewish fathers and mothers were very faithful in teaching their children God's Word. As soon as Jewish children could talk they were made to memorize the "Shema"—Deut. 6:4-9. So this was probably one of the first passages that Jesus learned long before He went to school.

When He was six years old He, no doubt, attended the village school at Nazareth with the other boys of the village.

The school would seem very strange to you. It met in the synagogue where the pupils and teacher sat together on the floor. (Sometimes there was a platform for the teacher to sit on.) It was in session early in the morning and late in the afternoon. During the heat of the day every one rested at home.

The part of the Bible that we call the Old Testament was the text book used by Jewish boys in Jesus' day. They memorized very much. The first book memorized was Leviticus. Then other passages were learned.

When the boys first went to school they were taught to read by the rabbi or scribe, who held a thin piece of wood covered with wax on which words were written. The rabbi pointed to each word as he repeated it over and over until the boys knew it by heart, or the rabbi would read aloud a verse from little strips of parchment and the boys would repeat it after him in a sing-song voice until they had learned it by heart. Later they read from scrolls. The scrolls were very difficult to read. There were no vowels and no divisions into words and sentences. Yet the boys were very anxious to read well, because the best readers were allowed to read the lesson from the law in the synagogue service. It is doubtful whether Jesus during His whole life ever read any other book than the Bible. But He knew that well, for He quotes from nearly every book of the Old Testament.

A little arithmetic was taught in these schools too. But not all boys learned to write. Those who did, wrote either on wax tablets with a pointed stick or on thin pieces of wood with a reed pen and colored inks. We know that Jesus had learned to write (John 8:6). The boys learned to read Hebrew and Greek. Most of them spoke Aramaic, which was much like the Hebrew and was the language of Palestine. Jesus too knew the Hebrew and Greek.

But Jesus did not learn from teachers only. He learned from God, from nature and from those about Him.

2. Two minute talk by an older Junior. "Jewish parents gave their children religious instruction." Gen. 18:19a; Deut. 6:6, 7; 2 Tim. 3:15; Deut. 11:19.

3. Song: "Wonderful Words of Life"

4. Short talk by a Junior girl. Luke 4:16 shows us that Jesus knew the scripture.

7. Bible Drill—Find passages which Jesus quotes from the Old Testament. Suggested are: Matt. 4:4; 4:7; 4:10; 5:38, 39; 11:10; 11:23, 24; 12:3, 5, 40; 15:7, 8; 21:13; 21:42; Mark 7:10; 12:29, 30; Luke 4:16, 17; 24:44.

8. Reading of Poem—

"O Jesus, once a Nazareth boy
Who toiled through happy days.
May we our daily tasks enjoy,
And work, with songs of praise.
At school, at home, we follow Thee,
With all our heart and soul,
Work hard, play fair, and try to be Like Thee in self-control"
—Ethel Wendell Trout.

9. A two minute talk by a Junior boy. "What we learn from the passages memorized by Jewish children when very young. Deut. 6:4-7; Ps. 122; Num. 6:24-26.

10. Numbers 6:24-26 was often used as a benediction by Jewish priests. All memorize this benediction.

11. Leader's closing prayer followed by

12. Song: "Into My Heart." Then all repeat

13. The Benediction, Num. 6:24-26.

THE TYPOGRAPHICAL ERROR

The typographical error is a slippery thing and sly,
You can hunt 'til you're dizzy, but somehow still it keeps;
'Till the forms are on the presses it is strange how still is keeps
It shrinks down in the corner and it never stirs or peeps,
The typograhical error, too small for human eyes,
'Til the ink is on the paper, when it grows to mountain size,
The boss he stares with horror, then he grabs his hair and groans;
The copy reader drops his head upon his hands and moans—
The remainder of the issue may be clean as clean can be,
But the typographical error is the only thing you see.

Old Mennonite Conference Convenes

at Allensville, Penna., August 21-24, 1939

From a clipping sent us by Mr. P. S. Snyder, Roaring Spring, Pa., we quote the following interesting facts:

About 8000 delegates and visitors are expected to attend the Mennonite Conference near Allensville, Pa. The local Mennonite congregation, under Rev. Elmer E. Yoder as general chairman, is very busy working out the details for feeding, housing and looking after the comfort and convenience of the many guests.

On a 12-acre field across the highway from the church, there is being erected a large auditorium tent 100 by 170 feet in size, a tent 40 by 60 feet to shelter the cafeteria, another 20 by 30 feet for conference headquarters, also 35 small tents for campers. The rest of the field is staked off as parking ground. State Motor Police will be on hand to handle the traffic on the highway adjacent to the conference grounds.

To make it easier for the housing committee to handle the gigantic task of providing lodging for the thousands of guests, signs are provided on all crossroads and lanes within several miles of the conference by which they can be definitely directed to the homes of their hosts. Electric lights will illuminate the grounds and tents, and telephone and amplification facilities are provided. Free transportation will be ready for those coming in by train.

There will be two first-aid tents with a registered nurse in charge.

Correspondence

BETHEL CHURCH, WOLF POINT, MONT.

"The harvest is truly great, yet the reapers are few," is true, not only in the spiritual but also in the physical world. We are now in the harvest season. God has remembered his people, by giving them bountiful crops and it is certainly a blessing to watch them reap what they have sown.

The Daily Vacation Bible School started its session June 19, and closed with a very interesting program, June 30. The school, which had an enrollment of 46 pupils, was conducted by Rev. Noah Unruh, with Elsie Toavs and Esther Unruh as helping teachers.

The church had its annual Children's Day and Mission Sale June 28. The speakers for the day were Rev. Albert Ewert of Bethel, Lustre, and the pastor, Rev. Unruh.

It certainly was a privilege for us to have Rev. Edwin Duerksen with us July 25. The entire day was spent in making house calls and renewing old acquaintances. In the evening Rev. Duerksen delivered a very inspirational message. He left for his home the next morning.—Rev. Noah Unruh.

A Timely Letter

THE FALSE LURE OF WAR PROFITS

The Hague, 281 Riouwstraat, 8-7-39

Before leaving America for this troubled continent, a prominent Mennonite minister told me that one of his members expressed a wish that a war might come to Europe so that American wheat prices would rise. What a statement from a member of a church claiming exemption from military service in time of war! But it is not with these obvious inconsistencies that I wish to deal. Our people should be reminded a war boom makes war for us nearly inevitable. Events prior to the first world war amply prove that fact.

Every peace loving citizen who sees the tempting lure of wartime profits should read the little book by Professor Charles A. Beard entitled "The Devil Theory of War." Don't blame the politician, the general or the banker, says Professor Beard. Blame the whole population, all people who like our Mennonite friend are anxious for the blood which brings false prosperity to neutral nations, but may eventually lead them into the abyss of war. Mr. Beard uses a government document to prove his point. He shows that when the war opened Secretary of State, William Jennings Bryan, announced our neutrality, and declared that loans or credits to warring nations violated that neutrality. But by the middle of 1915 the cash of the Allies was gone, and they needed credit if they were to continue their huge purchases in America. American bankers favored credit extension to preserve prosperity, so they ignored Mr. Bryan and approached President Wilson through Robert Lansing, asking permission to extend credits so the country would not "lose money." Wilson gave his verbal consent.

Soon the short time credit facilities were strained. Then the bankers began secret negotiations to secure governmental consent to the floating of loans. Prosperity would fade, they said, unless cash were made available to continue purchases of American goods. The Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. McAdoo, at the request of the bankers advised President Wilson: "To maintain our prosperity, we must finance it. Otherwise it might stop and that would be disastrous." Again, the popular demand, and authorized loans.

Loan after loan was floated, and American goods continued to flow across the Atlantic to be paid for by American money. Late in 1916 and early 1917 things looked bad for the Allies. Finances and armies were weakening. People grew war weary. But to have the war stopped in a stalemate or in German victory meant economic chaos in America. "The country faced an economic smash at home or intervention in war on the side of the debtors." The administration was afraid to risk its political life by thwarting popular war-time prosperity. Then came unrestricted submarine warfare—a convenient excuse—and into the war we went.

A similar story will be written in the event of another war if our people demand wartime profits and the present drift continues in Washington. The way of legal neutrality, favored by some officials, has always been the way to war. Aid to one side against "aggressors" is still more dangerous. Both involve our whole economic life in the success of the group to whom our goods go.

For these reasons and others, peace loving Mennonites should ponder well their words and deeds.

E. L. Harshbarger.

tians from New Guinea; representatives of all the islands of the South Seas: Philippinos, people from Minahassi, Java, Sumatra. So also representatives from Manchuria, Korea, Syria, Arabia and Palestine; and in addition also the large concourse of delegates from Africa, from South America and lastly the delegates of the old churches of Europe and America. What a variety of faces, races, and tribes! What visible sign of the last hours of this dispensation!

Brief Summary of Impressions of the Conference

1. It proceeded under the chastening and guidance of the Holy Spirit. The explosive political tensions among the nations did not in the least influence the fellowship and love. Once when a Japanese brother was in charge of devotions, which were followed by a prayer meeting, he immediately called upon a Chinaman for the first prayer. Such occurances indicated strongly the presence and efficacy of God and His Spirit.

2. The meeting was pervaded by a spirit of repentance. It bowed in deep humiliation for the inefficiency of the Church. There was "smiting of the breast."

3. The secret of the "Ecclesia," the true Church, hovered over all the sessions. A clear understanding of the task and function of the Church of Jesus Christ in this world was reached, in that the Lord builds his kingdom, which cannot even be overcome by all the assaults of hell. Tambaran will also be a milestone on the way to a realization of the prayer of Jesus: "Father keep them . . . that they may be one." In view of the rising anti-Christian flood it behoves the followers of Christ to join hands and flock around the Word and Cross of Christ. Diversities will continue, yes even controversies within the different churches, many a one does not yet understand the language of the other. But, the Spirit that binds together, the Lord that reveals himself even more clearly in His body, is at work and He will gloriously finish it some day.—A brief extract taken from "das Missionsmagazin," transl. by J. R. T.

IN MEMORIAM

DIEDRICH D. NEUFELD was born in South Russia, November 23, 1861. At the age of twelve he migrated to this country with his parents and settled in Harvey County, Kansas.

In 1884 he was united in marriage with Sarah Ratzlaff. Together they were baptized and united with the Hebron Church.

In 1908 he moved to California where he remained five years. After the mother died he moved back to Kansas. After spending a very lonely year he again sought companionship with Paulina Pjesky. This year they were permitted to celebrate their 25 wedding anniversary.

Mr. Neufeld had been in ill health for many years, failing noticably the last six months. Although he was sinking rapidly the last four days, he was not confined to his bed. He died peacefully, Friday morning at 7:30, having reached the age of 77 years, 7 months, and 20 days.

He leaves to mourn his departure his deeply bereaved wife, 4 daughters; Elizabeth (Mrs. Jacob L. Wall), Sarah (Mrs. C. L. Wall), Mary of the home, and Katherine Schmidt of Levy, New Mexico. Also 9 grandchildren, one brother and 2 sisters. Two daughters, one son and one grandchild preceded him in death.

The funeral services were held Monday morning, July 17 at 8:00 at the house and 9:00 at the church. Interment was made in the Hebron cemetary.

—Rev. Freeman Swartz, pastor of the Eden Church, Schwenksville, Pa., very considerately sends us, attached to the "Church Messenger," a snapshot photograph of the ship in which the Missionary Moyer family sailed for India.—Speaking of the coming harvest home festival on Aug. 27, Brother Swartz says, God has so unsparingly bestowed every bounty needed for our well being . . . . The fact that only a few in our congregation in their activities handle a sheaf of wheat, is no excuse for us not to be conscious of the blessings of God . . . Let us make our giving and thanksgiving the result of a spiritual discipline in which we meditate: 1. Meditate on the goodness of God individually.—2. Personally thank Him for these blessings.—3. Think of His boundless grace to us in our spiritual lives.—4. Think of the millions in the world today not enjoying this grace.—5. Pray that we may have strength to give the exact amount that God puts on our hearts to give.

—St. John Church, Pandora, O.—THE BENEVOLENCE OFFERING FOR SUNDAY, AUG. 27, IS TO BE USED TO HELP THE PUBLICATION BOARD TO PRINT THE NEW MENNONITE HYM BOOK.—May we hope that other churches will act as promptly as this one and that they will all give liberally. The Board would like to keep out of debt in the making of this book. Please help them stay out.—Editor.

—Grace Mennonite Church, Pandora, Ohio.—For four Sunday mornings the Grace Church pulpit at Pandora, Ohio was occupied by two senior students of Bluffton College. They are Harleigh Rosenberger and Andrew Shelly. Both young men will enter seminaries next year to prepare for the ministry. They rendered excellent and appreciated service in the absence of our pastor, Rev. Whitmer who was absent on a brief and well earned vacation. Our church choir has recently secured choir robes to be worn on all occasions when the choir sings. It seems to have greatly stimulated interest in the choir and its service to the church. On Sunday evening, Sept. 3rd., the Young Peoples' Choir will give a sacred concert at the church. On Sunday evening, Aug. 13th the Young Peoples' Choir gave a sacred concert at the First Mennonite Church at Berne, Indiana. These youth of high school and college age are a great asset to our church and all its activities, especially in music, C. E. and Sunday School.—P. E. W.

—Missionary John Thiessen writes from Aberdeen, Idaho: The time is near when we expect to settle down for the winter, which we plan to do at Bluffton, O., where our children will go to school. Please send our "Mennonite" there from now on. We have had a very pleasant and blessed visit through the Pacific Conference and Arizona, calling on all but one church. Now on to Montana, North Dakota, Minnesota, and Chicago. Then for some quietness and rest after an enjoyable long trip of over 6000 miles, for we are a bit weary too.

—First Church, Upland, Calif., is considering the erection of a parsonage on the church lot. The trustees are working on the project and their findings have likely been reported to the congregation by now.—The Hostetler family stopped over at Bethel College briefly Thursday, Aug. 17. They are going to Eastern Ohio to look after the apple crop on their property.

—Grace Mennonite Church, Albany, Oregon, 8-15-39 On the evening of the fourth of August, the entire church gathered together in one of our nearby parks and held a surprise pot-luck dinner for the Pastor and his wife, celebrating their fifth wedding anniversary. Many beautiful gifts were given. This token of love is very deeply appreciated.—We are enjoying fellowship visits from several different missionaries lately, which are both inspirational and refreshing. Our church and Sunday School attendance is keeping up quite nicely, in spite of the summer vacations and the heat. Corr.

— MARRIED: At the Bethel College Chapel, North Newton, Kans., Sunday evening, Aug. 13, by Rev. Sam. J. Goering, Miss Hilda Elizabeth Kliewer, daughter of Mr. P. G. Kliewer of Walton, Kans., to Mr. Moses Stucky of McPherson, Kans. A reception was given after the ceremony, on the College lawn, to the invited guests. Mr. Stucky holds a good position as coach, instructor in mathematics and history in the Kirwin, Kans., high school.

— Mennonite Collegiate Institute, Gretna, Manitoba runs a rather complete and interesting description of its aims and work in the "Mennonitische Rundschaü" of Winnipeg. We hope to have space in the next issue to place before our readers a short review of the worthwhile work that this school is doing for the Mennonites of Manitoba.

— God's Grace Clearly at Work in China.—All letters from China tell of open doors, as they have never been known in the history of China Missions. A stir of inquiry and longing for the eternal divine is passing through the masses of China. To meet this situation the soldiers of Christ tarry at their posts amidst serious dangers and frightful distress, yes, even at the cost of their own lives. One brother writes: To witness in the present unique opportunity, as given us, is to pay a high price. If our life perishes or our belongings are lost, we dare not become discouraged. Personal safety is something beautiful, if it can be attained without sacrifice of the service we were sent to China to render. Our own safety is secondary.

— Western District Conference.—Rev. J. M. Regier, chairman of this conference, informs us that it will convene October 18-20 at the Forum in Wichita, Kansas. Will people interested and organizations kindly take notice so that any conflicts in dates may be avoided.

— First Church Reedley, Calif.—Dr. Langenwalter expects to be back from the vacation for Sunday, Aug. 20. Dr. A. Warkentin was also expected to share in the services that Sunday. Missionary P. W. Penners were guests Sunday, Aug. 13, and Bro. Penner spoke morning and evening.

— William Bardell Curtis of New York who spent 32 days in a German prison while in Europe, says he was well pleased with what he saw in Germany. But somebody crossed out his name in the guest book of a hotel where he lodged. Stirred up somewhat, he wrote a bit of doggerel verse in the book to air his feelings a little, and for doing that he was jailed but received good treatment.

— Palestine now has three large cities. The newest city is Tel Aviv near Java, entirely Jewish, with 40,000 population; Jerusalem with 125,000 people, of whom 76,000 are Jews, and Haifa, with 107,000, among them 60,000 Jews. The total population is 1,316,000, with 809,000 Mohammedans, 386,000 Jews, and 109,000 Christians.

— Bethany Church, Freeman, So. Dak.—Rev. Edmund Miller, a native son of this neighborhood, but now pastor of the Portland, Oregon, Mission, spoke in this church Sunday and Thursday evenings, Aug. 6 and 10.

— Germans in America Returning to their Native Land in Increased Numbers. From reliable sources it is learned that in 1938 a total of Germans living in the U. S. returned to their homeland, an average of 2,250 per month. This year the average so far has been 3,800-4,000 a month. More than half of those returned are skilled workmen, some of them highly so.

Our New Songbooks Again

ANOTHER APPEAL FOR OFFERINGS BY THE CHURCHES

In THE MENNONITE of July 11, in the column headed PUBLICATION there appeared an APPEAL TO THE CHURCHES FOR FUNDS. The article was an attempt to implore the churches to lift substantial offerings at this time, to help finance the new Hymn Book. We did this in conformity with this General Conference resolution: "That the churches be asked to consider the work of publication as a missionary enterprise, and that they take at least ONE offering annually for the support of this cause." (Res. No. 39, 27th Sess. Gen. Conf., Upland, Calif.) No special fund was intended, the money, though asked to be labelled, "Hymn Book Fund", was to flow into the General Treasury of the Board of Publication, but let us change this label to, "For the New Hymn Books".

Two Hymn Books, a German One Also

Simultaneously with the production of the New Hymn Book, the Board of Publication also faces the duty of getting a German Hymn Book printed, which the General Conference has asked us to do, to meet the needs of German speaking churches and brethren, particularly in Canada. The Manuscript for this book is in the hands of the undersigned and is a monumental piece of work, the combined doings of the spirit of God and the labors of consecrated brethren. Visitors here who have examined the MSS and are competent to judge are very agreeably surprised at the goodness, the wealth and the wide variety of hymns. The "Gesangbuch Komission" that compiled this book is composed of Rev. Benj. Ewert, Winnipeg; Brother Johann G. Rempel and Prof. David Petkau, both of Rosthern, Sask, the latter being head of the music department of the Mennonite Academy at that place. In "Christlicher Bundesbote" of August 8, Rev. J. H. Janzen, member of our Board, a man competent to judge music and text, gives these brethren and their product high words of commendation.

The New Hymn Book

As for the new Hymn Book, it has been prepared with the same consecration and devotion to a cause that has eternal value as stated above in connection with the German book. The following have worked on the selection of hymns: Prof. W. H. Hohmann of Bethel College; Prof. R. A. Lantz of Bluffton, Rev. Lester Hostetler, Rev. C. E. Krehbiel and Mrs. Wilhelmina Bixel Fuller, now residing in Washington State. And during the months of June, July and August the brethren Hostetler and Hohmann, with the help of members of their families, have worked the selection over, prepared the "dummy" and otherwise perfected the work, as editors would. Brethren and visiting missionaries, who have seen and examined the Hymn Book in preparation at the Upland Mennonite Church, have all been very agreeably impressed with the product. One brother, a minister, musician, and well educated man writes, "This thorough piece of research in church hymns is a splendid presentation of our Mennonite heritage of spiritual songs . . . a selection of eternally redemptive, spiritual gems. Are we then not under holy obligation to offer this "trust" to a sin-sick, spiritually hungry world?" The Reverend Brethren C. E. Krehbiel, A. E. Kreider and J. N. Smucker have taken care of the section "Responsive Readings" of the new Hymn Book.

Cost of First Editions

The undersigned has for his task the correspondence with almost a score of makers of songbook plates and, to some extent, printers and binders. He has quotations on plates ranging from $8.00 to $11.50 per page, somewhat according to location and prestige of the firms quoting. Thus the firm asking $11.50 per plate says, "We believe we have made the plates of more high-grade hymn books than any one else in the business. Among fairly recent ones are the following:" Then they give the names of 24 standard hymn books of some of the leading denominations, among which are the following: Three books for the Congregational churches, four for the Methodists, three for the Unitarians, six for D. Appleton-Century Company, two for the Baptists, one for the Lutherans, etc.

The two hymn books will be similar in size, each will contain about 550 hymns and will require 440-460 plates. Thus, at an average of $9 a page, the cost of plate-making alone will come to about $4000, and with the added cost of printing and binding a first edition of 2500 copies, the total cost for each book will be approximately $6000.00, or $12,000.00 for both. This would bring the cost of each book up above $2.00, but we would probably have to sell them for about $1.50, the first edition. However, it is hoped that other editions will soon be necessary to supply these good books, with cost only for printing and binding which is comparatively small. But all this must be weighed in planning the financing of the projects.

The Churches Can Greatly Assist the Board of Publication in Making Generous Offerings NOW

In 1927 when the present or old Mennonite Hymn Book was published, the Board of Publication had no money to pay for the plates, printing and binding, and at once burdened itself with a debt of $6000.00, which in time grew to above $10,000.00, and only the God-sent Jubilee Year of our Church, 1935, relieved the Board of this burden. We have so much faith in our churches and its members that we do not believe they want us to go through a similar experience or even worse, because of the two books. One of the easiest ways by which every church member has a chance to give something, be it large or small, is through church offerings or collections, which are voluntary. And, as before, we again pray the churches kindly to give heed to the Conference resolution for this year's annual offering, with the hope that they will make it a very liberal one, and DO IT AS SOON AS POSSIBLE.

If every one would give something, "each according to his several ability" and as God has prospered him, we are sure the lift given our Board would be considerable. May we not ask especially those churches that have not heeded the call for these annual offerings so far, to make up for it this year? May we not pray that all churches be made willing to give something? With such proof of the cooperation of the churches for the financing of the hymn books, our Board would be very much encouraged to rush the making of the books and also to find other means to tide the project through.

HOME MISSIONS

A. J. NEUENSCHWANDER, Secretary

Gretna, Manitoba, R. R. 1, June, 1939

Dear Mission Friends:

One Congregation with Seven Places of Worship

Isaiah 55:10, 11. "So shall my word be that goeth forth out of my mouth: it shall not return unto me void, but it shall accomplish that which I please, and it shall prosper in the thing whereto I sent it." This is a precious promise for a field worker.

Years ago when the call came to preach the words from Jer. 1:7 "Thou shalt go to all that I send thee, and whatsoever I command thee thou shalt speak," came to me and since I could not get rid of the commission, I went. Ever since then I have been preaching and working, although I fear often in weakness. Constantly there is so much to be done, but God encourages us to pray the Lord of the harvest that he send laborers into his vineyard. In spite of all our efforts there is still much to be done.

Our Congregation has seven places of regular worship, the members are scattered in many villages, but we seek to visit them and shepherd them as often as possible. Some are so far away that they are not even within reach of any of these places of worship. These need to be looked after. During the winter I spent about six weeks, calling on the different groups, smaller and larger and visited with them several days, holding worship services wherever possible. When one looks for results, then the conviction arises: "One ought to be much more active still." One thing is very encouraging, that almost everywhere the people welcome strongly the special services that are held. Especially appreciated is it, when one comes into the widely scattered homes and there in a small circle speaks of the one thing needful—Jesus Christ.

A few examples will show how greatly these visits are appreciated: Some time ago I met a man who was a guest in such a home that I visited. He confessed that it was now five years that he had not heard a German worship service and that his family (they were not present) would no doubt have to wait still longer for such a visit. It was in part the Brother's fault that no one came, for if he had written us, we would have made special effort to visit them. Last summer I met widely scattered believers far up in the north, and since some live as much as 12 and 14 miles apart worship services are hard to hold in such cases. Many of these live in the woods, where they seek to clear a place for a home. There is not even a resident Mennonite minister in this locality. Others that were closer to a village, drove in and worshipped with Baptists every other Sunday, when the Minister came. On the intervening Sunday they would come together and hold Sunday School. In this way many of our isolated Mennonites seek to keep alive the spark of spiritual life.

I wish to express my appreciation for the support sent, and hope to be faithful in my work at home and on my journeys. Pray the Lord of the harvest, that His work might be blest.

Very sincerely, J. P. Bueckert.

—Evangelism.—The modern day is infested with "isms" of every variety—social, political, and religious. Most "isms" call on men to look at Truth through the pinhole of their special prejudice. Evangelism is an "ism" which casts aside human prejudices and insists upon the divine viewpoint. It calls on men to see truth as God sees it—the Truth about themselves and about Christ. Evangelism is the bringing of God's "good tidings" of grace to men.—Erland Waltner.

K'AI CHOW MISSION HOSPITAL NURSING DEPARTMENT

First Quarter Report, April 1st, 1939

Dear Members of the Mission Board:

Greetings! We started our work this new year with the desire to pattern after the program of our Lord and Master—to preach the Gospel to the poor, to heal the broken-hearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, to help in the recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised, and to preach the acceptable year of the Lord. Daily we teach in classes and nurse the sick in the wards.

On January 4th came a letter from Miss Fast at Taming, saying that Miss Wilhelmina Kuyf is very ill with pneumonia. It was cold at that time and travelling would need to be done on rickshaw 135 li across country roads. But we realized that pneumonia is hard on anyone and much depends on constant and careful nursing. So I went to her aid and took care of her for about a week on night duty. We praise the Lord for answers to prayer for her and for His care over her. She improved satisfactorily and I could return to my duties here at the school and hospital.

Our patients keep coming in greater numbers, so that during this first quarter we have already had 188 in-patients and up to April 18 we had seen 4070 patients in our daily clinics in the afternoon. We have done a lot of vaccinating for small-pox too. Of special interest to me is the obstetrical department. During twelve weeks we had twelve babies born in the hospital and besides those mothers we have examined other ten expectant mothers. I am making good use of my special training received in the Seattle Hospital, Maternity department.

On January 1st we put out our first issue of a "Sunday Messenger", a small printed paper for our patients. The subject material is selected from the Topic Book for Christian Endeavor for 1939. It is arranged in attractive form with a heading, a scripture verse, a short chorus, a Bible story and a prayer. The patients are anxious to receive their copies every Sunday morning. They learn the verse and song quite easily and we hope to lay a foundation of Scripture knowledge on which they will build after they leave the hospital.—On January 13th we had a Chinese graduate nurse come to us from our neighbor Mission (United Church of Canada). She is a great help, takes charge of the nursing duties in the operating room and the afternoon clinics.

We frequently have calls for more room for patients who beg to be taken in for treatment, often we have to send those home who are improved but not well as yet, to make room for the more sick ones. This is a new experience in the history of the hospital, we formerly were never so crowded for room. How wonderful to be able to build two new, large wards at this time. We hope that in this way many more will get the opportunity to become acquainted with the Great Physician of body and soul. Tell the churches the work here is increasing and the Lord's blessing is visibly resting upon our combined labors, theirs and ours.

Yours, glad to be here in our Master's service,

C. L. Pannabecker, M. D. Elisabeth D. Goertz

Happy in the Lord's Work

From a Private Letter by Missionary P. A. Penner

Mrs. Penner and I are happy in the work, and we hate to think of the day when we will have to say goodbye to all of our loved ones. This morning I was in the village of Champa. Really it is a city, having 10,000 inhabitants. Most of the people know me and I know them. While talking with some non-Christians, as I frequently do, they asked me whether we would ever return to India, after our retirement. I told them that this was not in our program, but that we intended to spend our last years with our children and grand-children. Then one of the men sitting near me said: "Will you forget us?" "No," I said, "I will never forget my Champa and all of its good people." "Then," he said: "Write us a letter here and there, to the entire city, and we will post this letter in a conspicuous place, so that all may read it." This, of course, I did not promise. But, we do like India and its people. When a person has spent the best part of his life in a certain place, it ought to be no wonder that he loves the place. No, we have no paved roads, no well laid out streets, no flowering parks, no stately buildings, no reading rooms, nothing of this sort, no college, NO MUSIC, nothing but a filthy, dirty city with filthy, dirty people and unsanitary surroundings, but it is home. This afternoon, when going to the station by car, I picked up a young, educated, well dressed Indian and took him to the Rest House. He said, "This is a most miserable place, Champa." I told him that I had been here 38 years. He turned to me abruptly: "Good God, for THIRTY EIGHT years in this filthy, jungly place where a person can't even get a conveyance? How could you stand it? All I said was: "I am a missionary."

Just now we are in our annual Bible Course work. Ephesians and the Psalms are now studied. Mrs. Penner teaches the illiterate women, I have the literates. After my work is finished here on the Mission premises, I go to the Leper Home and have about 50 literate young people. All classes are well attended and the interest is really good.—The Leper Home has still 600 people and hence the Home is crowded to overflowing. I am not supposed to have more than 500, but when these people come to us in such terrific need, I haven't the heart to drive them away.

The Christian Home

"(Jesus) went, (home) with them, and came to Nazareth; and was subject unto them." It is that Home into which Jesus came, and in which He lived the most part of His life, that we are thinking of, and would that not be a "model home" for us to use and build our homes according to its specifications? Let us not forget that Jesus grew up in a home, humble as it was, but a home that was genuine, that knew religion and lived it; whose atmosphere was fragrant with love, whose discipline was voluntary obedience and whose motive was to encourage and uplift souls that came under its influence. Such a home does not require a costly building, nor the most modern conveniences, the newest furniture, but it does require the richest spiritual qualities.

The Christian Home is built much as a carpenter builds a house. It is made of four component parts: foundation work, outside walls, the roof, and partitions. 1. The foundation and basement of the Christian Home is built up of individual bricks of Love that are tiered upon each other and cemented together with the mortar of goodwill and helpfulness. Incidentally, in this part of the home will be found the furnace of love which radiates comfort, warmth and cheerfulness into the hearts of all. 2. The outer walls are four. Where you enter there is the wall of Truth which includes Faithfulness and Loyalty. Because of this wall this home cannot be betrayed from within. All mistakes are open and corrected from within this wall. Error and deceit do not feel at home here, they just leave. The wall opposite you, faced first, is Obedience. This implies obedience of parents to the will of God, and upon that rests the obedience of children. To your right is the wall of Courage, having three windows: Hope, Faith and Trust. Because of this wall there never is despair or disappointment, but a firm look ahead, knowing the "Lord supplieth every need." And to your left is the wall of sacrificial Service, also having three windows: Sympathy, Kindness and Self-denial. It makes those within think of others first, without keeping record of it, and expecting nothing in return, heeding the injunction "let not thy right hand know what thy left hand doeth." 3. Over head, as you look up, is the rooftree—Godliness. This is God's armour and shield. No foe can get beneath God's protecting. The chimney through it is prayer's avenue to the mercy seat of God. The aerial overroof speaks of hearts within tuned to The Father's voice and fills the home beneath with heaven's music. 4. The partitions inside correspond to the souls that live within this home—each a bit different but having a definite place to make the home complete, bright and happy. Each room is joined to the other, and so are the hearts within this Home. This is a Christian Home and so is every home where Christ is the Head.—Rev. L. H. Linscheid in "The Bethany Messenger."

SERMON SKETCH

"THE MARCH OF TIME"

Rev. David C. Wedel, Pastor, Halstead Menn. Church

Text: Psalm 103:15-16. "As for man his days are as grass: as a flower of the field, so he flourisheth, For the wind passeth over it, and it is gone: and the place thereof shall know it no more."

No verse could better describe the march of time. No more graphic description of the brevity of the human life could be given. Perhaps the brevity of human life is not a pleasant subject for us. We would rather talk about all the things that still lie before us in life. And yet we must face the question —How shall we deal with the march of time?

1. We must accept the march of time. There is nothing else that we can do. While that may startle us we should also remember that one of the friendliest things of life is just this rapid march of time. The swift stream bears away many things which would pollute the whole stream. With grateful hearts we must realize that the goodness of God comes to us in just this way that time bears away many things that would make us tired. We must be momentarily bereft even of some of the good things rather than to be perpetually bored by them.

2. The experiences of life are good only in their particular time, and usually that time is short. That means also that each experience fits only into one moment of time. Only at one moment is that experience of greatest worth.

3. The march of time brings serious thinking. It means simply that one day there will come the end of the journey. It is well therefore to stop to consider what we would like to have included in life. What kind of life will we one day wish to have lived? The march of time demands that we build into life today what we would like to have in it tomorrow. A few things we could mention for such a life. I believe we would want life to include a time for prayer, reading of scripture, a better understanding of the universe, time for meditation, time to be polite, kind patient, to praise and encourage. But above all let us take time to learn to know Jesus Christ and God the Father in an intimate way. That is the most important experience of life.

4. The march of time has meaning only as it stands over against eternity. If we concern ourselves only with temporal things what is our eternity to be? How comforting to find words which speak of eternal things follow those which describe life as swift and passing. "But the mercy of the Lord is from everlasting to everlasting." If we trust that mercy of God and believe our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ we need not fear the march of time. We are but a part of it now moving to eternity, to the house of many mansions which has been prepared for us.

IV. WHERE AND WHEN?

Anywhere and everywhere in the neighborhood where opportunities present themselves: "The field is the world." Of those who were scattered through the persecution in Jerusalem we read, that they all "went everywhere preaching the word." Of Christ and the Apostles we read that they served, in the Temple, in the synagogues, in the homes, at the riverside, in the markets, in the courtroom, in prison, on the ship, etc. Jesus directs His servants to "go into the byways and the hedges"—anywhere and everywhere! They should begin in Jerusalem, not forgetting the Lazarus at the door. (Practical application of the foregoing will be made in the last article, on "How".)

A fisherman goes where the fish are. And since the people do not (or can not) come to church, we must bring the Good News and comfort and help to them, wherever they may be found. Remember: to the poor, to the sick, and to the neglected first. The large Moody Church in Chicago (seating 4000) has this sign out: "Ever welcome to this house are the poor and the strangers."

The opportunities for such work are "legion." City mission work continually expands. But smaller towns too need the Truth and encouragement, and also the countryside. "Love" will find these opportunities! One open door leads to another. The more we work the more opportunities we find. Such is the experience of many.

Menno Simons is a great example in this line. He was traveling a great deal; not only when persecuted.

All classes of people need the Gospel, also great leaders, such as judges, governors, kings, and presidents!

"WHEN"?

At all times: "In season and out of season." This is an "evergreen" service; there is a beginning, but no end!

843 times in the Scriptures the word "Go" is found; repeatedly it reads, "go and teach".

Be sure and do this work, as far as possible, outside of the regular time of worship in the churches.

(Next time, the closing article, on "How" to do this work.)

P. S. These articles are to appear in tract form. Before this is done, I wish that many more would answer the short questionnaire. And perhaps only on a post card, to save postage. I would be very grateful for suggestions, corrections, etc. on these articles, before printing them in tract form. Do this soon please.—E.

Civilian Relief in China

United Council for Civilian Relief in China
1250 Sixth Ave., New York, N. Y., Aug. 17, 1939

Dear Editor of "The Mennonite":

For the past two years China has been suffering an apalling conflict, during the course of which civilian populations have been despoiled to an extent unequalled in the modern history of mankind.

Of all the tragedies of mankind, those which are man-made are most terrible. Here a hand is sometimes stayed for lack of knowledge of the fundamental cause of strife; there a response is delayed because of political convictions. And in the meantime millions of innocent victims of man-made slaughter and devastation are torn helplessly in a welter of mediaeval ruthlessness and disregard for human life and human values.

In order to alleviate the widespread distress of men, women and children throughout China, a nation-wide Bowl of Rice Party appeal is being made by our organization. Prominent men and women in cities throughout the United States are volunteering to sponsor this second annual Bowl of Rice Party in their communities on behalf of China's ill and homeless millions.

The Bowl of Rice Parties will be held on an evening which will be most convenient to each Committee during the week of October 30th. In the manner of last year's Parties, the type of affair will be left to the discretion of each Committee. In some cities in the south, garden parties were found most desirable; in other places the Parties took the form of dinners, hiking parties, etc. We will, by means of periodic bulletins, furnish all Bowl of Rice Party Committees with advice and suggestions, and material for publicity as well as for their own information. We shall always be available to the Committee for any assistance they may need in carrying out their plans.

The governors of seventeen states and the mayors of three hundred cities publicly proclaimed the day on which the Bowl of Rice Parties were held last year as Humanity Day. The nation's newspapers and radio broadcasting stations were unstinting in their efforts and wholehearted support.

As we are desirous of enlisting the assistance of those public spirited citizens who might take an active interest in this humanitarian effort, we would appreciate it very much if you would be good enough to recommend to us four or five of the leading men and women in your community whom we would invite to form a local Bowl of Rice Party Committee. We would be honored if you will become one of its guiding members. There are no dues and no obligations.

Very sincerely yours,
Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., Nat'l. Chm.

HEZEKIAH: A KING WHO REMEMBERED GOD

2 Chron. 30:13-22

Introduction

Hezekiah was a good son of the wicked and idolatrous king, Ahaz. He probably had a good mother. He had two good friends, Isaiah and Micah, who greatly influenced his life from the time he ascended the throne. He possessed a strong religious zeal and earnestly sought to re-establish the worship of Jehovah and obedience to His Word.

Bringing the People Back to God vs. 13-20

Hezekiah began by re-opening the house of Jehovah (29:3-7); next he thoroughly cleansed it (15-19) and then dedicated it with offerings, sacrifices and praise to God (30-36). In our lesson he reinstituted Israel's great memorial feast, the Passover, as the very heart and center of the true worship of Jehovah. In every true reformation the doctrine of the atonement by blood, comes to the front.

His reformation was vigorous and he sought to give it a wide scope including all of Israel as well as Judah (vs 1-5). He had the true missionary spirit. Under his father, Ahaz, the temple worship had been neglected, altars had been made in Jerusalem to other gods, idolatrous high places had been established and the priests and Levites were scattered (29:34). Under his leadership the idols and idolatry were wiped out.

"Much people" assembled in Jerusalem to keep the Passover feast (v13). These came in response to his urgent invitation, sent to all the people (vs 1, 5, 6). Not all accepted it. Some mocked Hezekiah and laughed his messenger to scorn. A very great congrefation came together. In our religious life we need special occasions to bring the people together. These can well be times of large spiritual blessing.

Everything that was a hindrance to the worship of Jehovah was taken away and destroyed (v14). The conscience of the people was aroused and they no longer tolerated any idolatry. They demanded a clear-cut separation from all that was idolatrous. This is the only way that any evil can be eradicated. Such a definite reformation is needed today.

Many were present who had come from far and had not taken time to cleanse themselves ceremonially and by the strict letter of the law, were unfit to take part in the feast (vs 17, 18). Hezekiah offered a pardoning prayer to God for these (v19). The intentions of their hearts were good and God looks upon the heart. The Lord heard his prayer and "healed the people" (v20). God is always ready to hearken if we meet the conditions of prevailing prayer.

The Joy of Revival vs. 21, 22

This was a joyous occasion (v21). A real revival of religion always makes hearts happy. They had not kept the Passover for many years (v5). Everyone participated heartily. It was unanimous. The joy that comes to those who turn away from sin and unto the Lord, filled their hearts. They decided to keep the feast "other seven days" (v23). The hearts of the people were knit together in the fellowship of the feast days. Real religion, true Christianity is the most active promoter of fine fellowship and ennobling friendships. King Hezekiah and his princes were the leaders in this revival (v24). Happy is the nation whose rulers take the lead in worshipping God. Would that the present dictator nations had such rulers. A sweeping revival would bring the greatest possible joy to our own nation.

The people made peace offerings and confession to the Lord (v22). Their religious fervor did not evaporate into mere emotion but they went forth to break down the idols (31:1). Our religious joy should find an outlet in service. Many people today ignore God as much as the idolators of ancient days. Many acknowledge Him intellectually and ignore Him entirely in daily life. They neither worship Him nor obey His commands. They do not pray nor do they thank Him for anything. God will remember those who remember Him.

Announcement and Invitation

The Lord willing, two new workers for China are to be ordained on Sept. 3, at 2:30 P. M. in their home church Gnadenberg, namely Bro. and Sister Marvin Dirks.

In the name of the Gnadenberg Church and the Mission Board all mission friends are herewith heartily invited to participate prayerfully. It is not easy now to go to China, and it will be an encouragement to the new workers, if many will participate also with their personal presence. While the church is not very large, the open windows will permit hearing and participation.

Program

Besides the songs, it will be as follows:
Introduction—G. N. Harms, local pastor
Mission sermon—A. E. Kreider
Mission sermon and ordination—P. P. Wedel
Brief expressions—Brother and Sister Dirks
Remarks—P. H. Richert
Close—H. J. Dyck

Mennonite Collegiate Institute

Gretna, Manitoba

This school which is located at Gretna, in southern Manitoba, Canada, begins its fiftieth school year September 15 next. Its aim is to prepare students generally for useful lives and to train teachers who, on the one hand, are to satisfy the wishes of the Mennonite constituency and on the other the requirements of the government. In the one case they must be able to teach religion and the German language; in the other they must, after finishing a four-year secondary school course, be competent to teach in elementary schools. The work offered in the school covers grade IX to XII of the Canadian system and is equivalent to that given in our senior high schools, plus a good deal of the work of our junior college. Courses offered in English are: English, composition, literature, novel and drama; science, biology, chemistry and physics; mathematics, algebra, geometry, analytical geometry and trigonometry; singing and physical education. In German: Deutsche Sprache und Literatur, Biblische Geschichte, Katechismus, Kirchengeschichte, Mennonitische Geschichte, Glaubenslehre und Ethik.

The institution owns a large, stately looking building, 72 feet long, 54 feet wide, and three stories high. It has three class rooms, a large chapel, a laboratory, a library and 26 rooms for lodging. In the basement is, among other facilities, a large kitchen and a dining hall accommodating 60 people. There is room for 50 students to lodge in this building. Arrangements have also been perfected for a girls' residence or home. The charges for board and room, etc. in this building are $12.00 a month. Tuition, board and room in the main building are as follows: For grade IX, $127.00; for grade X, $137.00; for grade XI, $150.00 and for grade XII, $160.00. For day scholars they are: $32.00; $42.00; $52.00 and $62.00 for grades IX, X, XI and XII respectively. In addition there are some laboratory fees for students electing such subjects.

Some of the entrance requirements and rules are: A certificate of moral character and upright conduct, also evidence of satisfactory completion of grade VIII. To live a clean, well behaved life while in the school; to take no liberties not allowed in a Christian home, to shun saloons, dancing halls, gambling halls and membership in sports clubs. In order to avoid feelings of inequality in dress and apparel, girls are asked to wear simple dresses made of dark blue cloth and after the same pattern.

The school year comprises 9 months and is divided into two terms. The fall term of 14 weeks extends from Sept. 15 to Dec. 20, the winter term of 22 weeks to the middle of June. At Christmas there are two weeks and at Easter one week of vacation.

The instructors and the subjects they teach are: G. H. Peters, principal and instructor in mathematics, chemistry, some German and religion, and poetical literature in grade XII. D. P. Esau, instructor in German and religion. John Giesbrecht, instructor in English in the upper grades, physics, partly other sciences, and algebra in grade X. Jacob Siemens, instructor in English in the lower grades, and in mathematics in grade IX. Requests for fuller information should be addressed to: Principal G. H. Peters, Mennonite Collegiate Institute, Gretna, Manitoba, Canada.

IN MEMORIAM

JOHN E. LINSCHEID was born in Harvey county, Kansas on May 23, 1887. Two years later his parents John P. and Katherine Mueller Linscheid moved to a farm near Arlington, Kansas, where he spent his boyhood days. At the age of 14 he was baptized and received into the membership of the Mennonite church at Arlington. Upon completion of the common school course of study he helped with the work on the farm.

In the fall of 1905 he came to Bethel College campus, where he was privileged to spend a number of years as a student, in both the academy and the college. It was here that he met Anna E. Claassen who on July 14, 1921 became his life companion. In the fall of the same year they returned to the campus to establish their home.

The deceased had been a member of the Bethel college faculty since 1921. Prior to that time he had studied in Oberlin college and at the University of Kansas. He had taught for two years in a rural school, four years in the Mennonite Collegiate Institute of Gretna, Manitoba, and one year at Freeman College, S. Dak.

Mr. Linscheid was a man of principles and strong moral convictions, always frank and open. His cheerful hearty manner, and keen sense of humor will ever be a memory among his friends and acquaintances.

As a member of the Bethel College Mennonite church, he was deeply interested in its program. As a teacher he sought earnestly the highest welfare of his students; as a husband and father he gave the utmost devotion. Through the long period of ill health, which it was his to bear, he continued faithfully in quiet patience and hope until the hour of his release on the morning of August 5, 1939. He had reached the age of 52 years, 2 months, and 12 days.

Those of his immediate family who survive him are his wife, his son Willard, his daughters Katheryn Ann and Marjorie, and his sisters Elizabeth and Emma and his brothers Alfred and Peter R.

A short service was held at the home. Herbert Baehr sang "In My Father's House Are Many Mansions." Rev. J. N. Smucker was in charge of the service. Public services were held at the Bethel College chapel at 10:00 a. m., Tuesday, August 8. The Rev. J. N. Smucker and the Rev. J. F. Moyer officiated. Two songs, "I Will Lift Up Mine Eyes Unto the Hills" and "He Shall Feed His Flock" were sung by Mr. Baehr, accompanied by Mrs. Andrew Douglass. Interment was made in Greenwood cemetery.

OUR MOTHER, daughter of CORNELIUS and MARIA SCHROEDER EKKERT, was born March 1, 1855, in Deustch Schwingau, Poland. Early in life she came to know and to accept her crucified and risen Lord Jesus, and upon her confession of faith she was baptised on June 13, 1870, and received into the fellowship of the Wymischle Mennonite Church.

On November 2, 1876, she married widower Frank F. Goertz. This union was blessed with 9 children. In addition she also undertook to be a mother to 5 children, 3 to 15 years of age, by father's former marriage. This involved great responsibility, but by means of her kind and loving nature, she soon won their affection and loyalty.

In the year 1877 the family came to America and established their home three miles east of Hillsboro, Kans., where she willingly shared in all the adversities and privations as well as joys of pioneer life. After living in that home for 62 years, she closed her eyes in death on July 30, 1939, at the age of 84 years and 5 months.

When the Johannestal Church was founded she became one of the charter members and always contributed liberally to the work of the church, missions and benevolences. She loved the word of God and had memorized a large number of scripture passages and verses of hymns, which were a source of strength and comfort to her, especially during the last years of her life. Last spring her health began to fail noticeably. About two weeks before her death heart trouble set in which caused her death. Even in her last hours she gave utterance by short sentences and words, thus letting us know that she was at peace and looking forward with a glad hope for her Savior to take her home.

She precedes in death: 4 sons and 2 daughters; 3 stepchildren and 25 grandchildren, 33 step grandchildren, 24 great grandchildren, 70 step great grandchildren, 4 daughters-in-law, 2 sons-in-law, 2 sisters, Mrs. Peter Elrich and Mrs. Henry Bartel, and a host of relatives and friends. Interment took place in the Johannestal cemetery.—The children.

MRS. AMANDA ROSENBERGER, daughter of Abraham and Maria Zetty Smith, was born in Milford Township, June 28th, 1850. At the age of sixteen, she was baptized and received into the Zion Hill Lutheran Church.

The marriage to Alvin L. Rosenberger took place on January 20, 1872. For a little more than 60 years they lived together sharing joys and bearing sorrows in a Christian way, until March 14th, 1932, he answered the call from above. Four daughters were born into this union. One, Mrs. Frank Miller, preceeded the mother. The following survive: Mrs. Mamie Erdman, Milford Square; Mrs. Harry Stivel, Limeport, and Mrs. Howard Shelly, Steinsburg. Seven grandchildren and sixteen great-grandchildren also survive, besides one aged sister, Mrs. Christian Shelly.

With her husband she regularly worshipped in the West Swamp Church, and since 1880 was a member until her homegoing. For more than a year she had been in failing health, but was not confined to her bed until five days before the end came and she bid farewell to the things of this earth on the night of August 7th, 1939, thus bringing her age to 89 years, one month and 9 days.

Text used by Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander, her pastor, Isaiah 35:9, 10. Interment was made at the West Swamp Cemetery, Quakertown, Pa.

Oh that we may all be living in such a state of preparedness, that, when summoned to depart, we may ascend to the summit where faith looks forth on all that Jesus has suffered and done, and exclaiming: "We have waited for thy salvation, O Lord," lie down with Moses on Pisgah, to awake with Moses in paradise!—Henry Melvill.

A SECOND REMINDER

Last spring an appeal for money from me as treasurer of the General Conference Peace Committee was published. There has been some response, but not nearly as great a response as we of the Committee had hoped there would be. Only a very small number of churches in the General Conference have sent in contributions. With four exceptions, one of these from the Pacific District Conference, all contributions have come either from the Eastern or Middle District Conferences. The other three exceptions were churches in the Western District Conference, and strangely enough, from some of the smallest churches in that Conference. If every congregation in the General Conference will hold one offering for the Treasury of the Peace Committee I am confident that two things will happen, first: a greater interest in the cause of peace and in the work of the Peace Committee of the General Conference on the part of each church which sends in such an offering, and second: sufficient funds will flow into the treasury of the Peace Committee to permit it to carry on its work without being constantly hampered by lack of money.

Sincerely yours, L. J. Horsch,
San Antonio Heights, Upland, California.

Note: When this article appeared recently, the type-setter strangely changed the signature from L. J. Horsch to John L. Horsch. Hence we repeat it here with the correct name.—Editor.

Western District Retreat News

QUIET HOUR

In the hushed, cool, stillness of the dawning day we gathered under the large oak for a few quiet moments with our Lord. In this peaceful setting one could just feel the nearness of God in the beauty that surrounded us and the wisdom of His workings. The inspiring words by Rev. Gaeddert that thrilled our hearts to the very depths will never be forgotten by any of us. I am sure that all Retreaters will say that one of the most impressive services of the Retreat was the Quiet Hour. An hour such as that, spent close to the Lord seems to make the whole day happier.—A. Kroeker.

VESPER HOUR

With the sun in its setting on the mountain top, our vesper hour began on Wednesday evening. The hour was under the direction of Rev. E. J. Bohn, who gave many beautiful messages on the greatness of God. Many appropriate songs were sung by the group at intervals during the meetings. Special numbers by various quartets were also presented. The services closed with prayer and the group adjourned to attend the evening services in the Hutcherson Hall. —D. Ratzlaff.

EVENING MESSAGES

Our evening services were held at the chapel beginning at eight o'clock from Tuesday through Saturday night. The services were opened each night with Scripture and prayer, which was usually followed by a musical number, either by a quartette or by the chorus directed by Erwin Goering.

The addresses were given by Rev. P. K. Regier on the topic "Essentials of a Christian Living" including: Faith, Power, Seek Ye First the Kingdom of God, and Prayer. These addresses were very inspirational to the retreaters. The meetings closed with prayer and the singing of the first verse of the song "Have Thine Own Way Lord."—Elizabeth Penner.

PRINCIPLES OF NON-RESISTANCE

This class was held in the valley under the trees and conducted by the Reverend E. J. Bohn, pastor of the Zion Mennonite Church of Souderton, Pa. His talks had a great effect in helping the young people, especially the boys, decide as to what would be expected of them by Christ and their fellow church members in case the United States should become involved in another war. Other practical questions of non-resistance were also discussed.—A. Ratzlaff.

THE ACTS

Every year Dr. A. Warkentin has presented a Bible study at Camp. This year the entire books of Acts was studied, dwelling mainly on lives of the apostles, Peter and Paul, the change of the Jewish church to the Christian church, and comparison of the lives of Paul and Peter.

BOYS DISCUSSION GROUP

In the boys discussion group, "Questions Youth Faces," the discussions were of great interest. Dr. Schellenberg, the capable leader, divided the question into four different topics. They were: A boy's relationship to his parents, finding friends among girls, and dealings with brothers and sisters.—W. Linscheid.

GIRLS DISCUSSION GROUPS

In the girls discussion groups led by Sister Lena Mae we discussed the following subjects: Health, Guidance, Ethics, Etiquette, Conduct, and Marriage. The three things every girl wants is joy, beauty, and health.

We discussed the conduct and the essentials of a successful marriage. We should ask God for guidance in little matters as well as large problems. On the subject of health we pointed out the two main factors, namely, spiritual and physical health.

Our last discussion period was spent by answering questions which were asked by the girls.—Elma Enns.

What Jesus Said About Praying

Matt. 6:5-15

Senior C. E. Topic for September 17, 1939

Worship Service

Hymns: "Take Time To Be Holy", "Dear Lord and Father of Mankind", "We Praise Thee, O God, Our Redeemer", "Sweet Hour of Prayer", "Sanctuary"

Call to worship:

"Lord, what a change within us
One short hour,
Spent in Thy presence, will avail to make!

We kneel, how weak! We rise, how full of power!"

Scripture: Matt. 6:5-15. We find many passages in the Bible concerning prayer. Some are instructions as to how to pray; some are promises of answers to our prayers; some are expressions of the powerful results of prayer as actually experienced by Christ's followers. Let each one of the group come prepared to read one Bible verse about prayer and to give a testimony coroborating the statement.

Prayer Hymn: "Have Thine Own Way, Lord" (sung or played softly and reverently)

Prayer: "Our Heavenly Father, teach us this day that if we seek both to know and to do Thy Holy Will, that it will be done through us. Keep us from fretfulness if things do not happen as we expected them. And by faith may a calm certainty steady us through this fact, that Thou dost not fail them who keep a tryst with Thee. Amen."

Pray the Lord's Prayer in unison

Leader's Introduction

The essence of our Lord's teaching about prayer and praying is contained in the few verses of our Scripture lesson. Jesus tells us how not to pray and gives us a splendid pattern of private worship. He cautions against false, pretentious, wordy, and aimless praying. Above all he outlines a pattern of prayer for his disciples to use. The teachings that inhere in this prayer are manifold.

Requirements for Effective Prayers

1. Faith and belief (Mark 11:22-24; Matt. 21:22)
2. Sincerity and humility (Luke 18:9-14)
3. Persistence and patience (Luke 18:1-8)
4. Praying in Jesus' name (John 14:13-15)

"Use Not Vain Repetitions"

"Some saints are able to secure miraculous results through prayer. But let us not be discouraged if we are unable to do so. Perhaps our prayers are ineffective because we disobey Christ's commands and use 'vain repetitions'. Surely many of us are guilty of doing so!

"Here is a suggestion: Instead of praying that our boy, who is away from home, may be honest, pure and upright, let us pray that we set him the right example and that in our letters we say those things which will so win his heart that he will follow Jesus.

"Or, instead of asking God that He relieve us of pain, let us pray that He teach us to eat the right food, form the right habits, and live as He would like us to live. Then our prayers will be effective."—Roger W. Babson.

Prayer a Social Necessity

Rubenstein, the great musician, said once, "If I omit practice one day, I notice it; if two days, my friends notice it; if three days, the public notices it." It is the old doctrine, "Practice makes perfect." Living the Christian life perfectly takes tremendous skill and knowledge, which are supplied by perfect communion with God. When we cut off that supply simply by refusing to receive it through prayer, our Christian life deteriorates to a certain degree. One prayerless day makes a true child of God feel the lack of a vital food. Too many of them, and he no longer has hope of reaching perfection. If we would only use the same quality of common sense in our religion that we use in our everyday life, we should go on to perfection.

Muriel Lester says: "Consider yourself not ready to start the day, ill equipped, unprepared to mix with your fellows until you have spent at least fifteen minutes in prayer." Consider it as much a social necessity as bathing.

Problems for Discussion

1. Jesus said, "When thou prayest, enter into thy closet." Do you think He meant that all our praying should be in private? Could we do without public prayers if every professing Christian entered into earnest and secret daily communion with God?

2. Do prayers which are read before a congregation result in spiritual power?

3. Would it be possible for us to commit the sin of using "vain repetitions" with the Lord's Prayer?

4. How can we tell whether what we pray for is God's will or not? Why does God not execute His will without being petitioned to do so by frail man? Could "wrestling" with God in prayer ever make Him change His plans for us just because of our pertinacity and faith?

5. When we pray, "Forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors", is there not danger of limiting God's grace toward us?

6. Why can't we establish full communion with God when we hold resentment in our hearts against a fellow being?

Food for Thought

"If there should arise, it has been said—and the words are surely true to the thought of our Lord Jesus Christ in all His teaching on prayer—if there should arise ONE UTTERLY BELIEVING MAN, the history of the world might be changed."

"When faith goes to market it always takes a basket."

"We should be careful what we pray for; our real prayers are nearly always answered."

"Nothing lies beyond the reach of prayer except that which lies outside the will of God."

"More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of."

"The sincere Christian in his prayer closet is not seeking approval for his own way, but rather he is seeking to know God's will—God's will at all costs."

Introduction by Leader

"All grand thoughts come from the heart." How many minutes a day are we really alone? Must we not admit that we can think best when we are alone? Even Jesus found it necessary to withdraw from the crowds and from his friends to meditate and to pray. Surely it is also essential that we withdraw for the same purpose. Today we have withdrawn ourselves to some extent by coming to the meeting with the purpose of finding how we may learn to think more clearly. We do not want to rush our meeting through today, but we want to take time to think things through.

Song—"Take My Life and Let It Be"

Gems of Thought

1. Thinking is the talking of the soul with itself.—Plato. (a) Do you ever let your soul yearn for conversation? (b) What do you think might happen in our C. E. if we let our souls talk more?

2. The great thinker is seldom a disputant. He answers other men's arguments by stating the truth as he sees it.—D. March. (a) Do you know people who seem to be arguing almost all the time? (b) Is the ability to argue a sign of deep thinking?

3. Garner up pleasant thoughts in your mind, for pleasant thoughts make pleasant lives.—Wilkins. (a) Have you ever met anyone who always seems to be thinking pleasant things? (b) Why do you enjoy being in the presence of one who thinks of pleasant things?

4. Thinking, not growth, makes manhood. Accustom yourself, therefore, to thinking. Set yourself to understand whatever you see or read. To join thinking with reading is one of the first maxims, and one of the easiest operations.—Isaac Taylor.

5. Guard well thy thoughts; our thoughts are heard in heaven.—Young.

6. Learning without thought is labor lost; thought without learning is perilous.—Confucius. (a) Have you ever experienced the feeling of having learned a lesson in school without thought? (b) When did you receive the best grades, when you hurried for the sake of having a lesson finished or when you took time to really think it through?

7. A man would do well to carry a pencil in his pocket, and write down the thoughts of the moment. Those that come unsought for are commonly the most valuable, and should be secured, because they seldom return.—Bacon. (a) Have you ever had the experience referred to in the above quotation? (b) Have you ever written down ideas that come to you "out of the blue"?

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

JESUS AND HIS FRIENDS

Program for September 17, 1939

I. Setting. Place a large picture of DeVinci's "The Last Supper" where all Juniors can see it. If possible throw a light on it. If this can not be done place tall candles before the picture.

II. Worship Period

1. Prelude: "Faith of Our Fathers"
2. Songs, "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," M.H.B. No. 209; "The Best of Friends I Have in Heaven," 364.
3. Scripture Reading by an older Junior boy.—John 15:9, 11, 14, 15, 16, 17, 20.
4. Leader's Prayer
5. Poem (Read by two Junior girls)

"Jesus Christ — And We"
by Annie Johnson Flint

"Christ has no hands but our hands
To do His work today;
He has no feet but our feet
To lead men in his way;
He has no tongue but our tongues
To tell men how He died;
He has no help but our help
To bring them to His side.

What if our hands are busy
With other work than His?
What if our feet are walking
Where selfish pleasure is?
What if our tongues are speaking
Of things his lips would spurn?
How can we hope to help Him
Unless from him we learn?"

6. Duet, "I've Found a Friend, O Such a Friend," M.H.B. No. 210.

III. Mission Minutes

1. A Junior reads the following stanza from a blackboard or large chart and then discusses it:

"We've a message to give to the nations
That the Lord who reigneth above
Have sent us His Son to save us,
And show us that God is love."

IV. Study Period

Aim: To help the Juniors to learn something of the twelve apostles and to help them to see how they changed when they were with Jesus.

1. Introduction.—Jesus had been going about teaching the people about the Kingdom of Heaven. He healed many sick, too. Many there were who followed Him, but none to help Him. Jesus decided to choose twelve disciples or apostles who would always be with Him, who would learn of Him and be His helpers. Before He chose them, He spent the night in prayer up on a mountain, asking God to help Him choose good and true men. The next morning He chose the Twelve. Turn to Mark 3:13-19 and read in your Bibles the names of these twelve whom Jesus chose.
2. There are three other lists of the apostles. Let three Juniors each read one: (a) Matthew 10:1-5; (b) Luke 6:12-15; (c) Acts 1:12-14.
3. Jesus called His friends. Let a Junior look up the following references then make a story from them and tell it. John 1:35-42; Luke 5:4-11; Mark 1:19-20; Mark 2:13-14.
4. Poem by a Junior girl:

"Following"

"Follow me!" said Christ to Peter,
"Follow, while I lead the way."
"I will follow, Lord," said Peter,
"From you I will never stray."

So they went their way together
Peter and his Friend so dear.
Peter gladly worked for Jesus
Close beside Him year by year.

Jesus calls each child who loves Him
To be loyal, kind and true
As He once of old called Peter,
So today He's calling you!

—Grace H. Patton.

5. Twelve Junior boys each carrying a placard with the name of one of the apostles take their place before the group and tell something of the apostle whose name they have. (The leader will have to help in this preparation)
6. Girls chorus sings, "Follow Me, the Master Said," M.H.B. No. 248.
7. Leader's Heart Talk
8. Leader's Closing Prayer
9. In unison the Benediction memorized at the last Junior C. E. meeting, Num. 6:24-26.
10. Doxology

Letter

Robstown, Texas, Route No. 4

Dear Editor:

I am very thankful that I had the opportunity to read "Gourds or Souls." As I have to depend on receiving The Mennonite from some one else, I feel that had this mistake not occurred I might never have read it and I feel that it contained the lesson that I was needing. I found that I was a Jonah, only in another way, I was just beginning to overcome being one.

About seven years ago I began to realize that I was trying to serve God in my own way and was really trying to avoid being a "peculiar" person. I seemed to be taking the average church member as an example and, by doing this, I was very well satisfied with my own Christian life. Since then I have been learning the good and the right way and have been trying, like Samuel, to live this life, teach it to my family and also never to cease praying for myself and them. But, as you know, other things come first to our people, unless we are willing to put God first in our lives. So I began to feel that perhaps the best I could do was always to warn and never to be afraid to do this, that is to become the perfect watchman as spoken of in the scriptures. Then I rest assured that I had done my duty and be unconcerned over the outcome. But that sermon you published helped me see differently. It caused me to remember the right way as is so well expounded in Jude 21:22, 23.

I also appreciated your editorial on "Inexpensive Pleasures" and have already made good use of it. The little poem "God's Will" is also very much appreciated.

Respectfully, Mrs. H. W. Vickers.

— CHRISTIANS AS BIBLES.—"We are the only Bible the careless world will read. We are the sinner's gospel, we are the scoffer's creed. We are the Lord's last message, given in his deed. What if the type is crooked or if the print is blurred?"

IN MEMORIAM

Our Mother, HELENA RICHERT SCHMIDT, was born in Gnadenfeld, South Russia, June 7, 1866. In 1874 she migrated to this country with her parents, who settled on a farm near Goessel, Kansas. Besides attending district school she read many books which enriched her life along many lines. On August 19, 1883 she was baptized upon her confession of faith and joined the Alexanderwohl church. When the Goessel church was organized, in 1920, she became a faithful member there and remained as such until her death.

On June 28, 1887 she was united in marriage to Heinrich H. Richert who preceded her in death July 24, 1926. To this union three sons and four daughters were born. Of the ten grandchildren they had, two were adopted. She was a loving mother, very much concerned that her children should receive Christian training.

Three months before her death she went to Oraibi, Ariz. to be at the deathbed of her sister Elizabeth Schmidt. She felt it a privilege to spend those last days with her sister, besides getting more acquainted with the mission work among the Indians. Soon after her return she once more moved into her house in Goessel, where her health soon began to fail. The doctor diagnosed her ailment to be gallstone. She entered Bethesda Hospital on June 3rd. However, before an operation was performed, her case was finally diagnosed as cancer of the liver. She suffered but never complained of great pains. The doctor did his very best to help her and the nurses gave her tender and loving care, but is was the Lord's will to take her unto Himself.

She passed away July 17, 1939, having attained an age of 73 years, 1 month and 10 days, leaving to mourn her departure 3 sons, 4 daughters, 4 sons-in-law, 2 daughters-in-law, 10 grandchildren, 1 brother, 4 sisters, and many relatives and friends. A short service was held at her home July 21, 1939, with Rev. P. P. Buller in charge. Funeral services were held in the Goessel Mennonite church, the Reverends Peter Buller, P. P. Buller, and P. H. Richert officiating. Interment in the Goessel Mennonite church cemetery.

MRS. ELIZABETH (STEINER) BIXEL, the widow of the late Dr. Peter D. Bixel of Pandora, Ohio, passes away Friday morning, Aug. 18, 1939 after an illness of a number of months. Soon after the death of Dr. Bixel, Mrs. Bixel's health failed and after months of illness she was called to her reward. She is survived by three children, Mrs. Francis Marshall, Dr. Munson R. Bixel and Miss Madeline Bixel. The following brothers and sisters also survive: Samuel C., Elias S. and Peter C. Steiner and Barbara E. and Mary C. Steiner. Mrs. Bixel was a faithful member of the Grace Mennonite Church, Pandora, Ohio, for many years. Funeral services were held at the Grace Church on Sunday afternoon, August 20, 1939 by her pastor, Rev. Paul E. Whitmer, assisted by Rev. Armin C. Steiner. Miss Hilda Amstutz sang several hymn-solos at the services at the church. The funeral was attended by a large congregation of sympathizing relatives, friends and neighbors.

PETITION

War with its horrors, cold,
War with its grief, untold,
War with its heartaches, old;
Teach us to think and talk of peace.
War with its awful greed,
War with its want and need,
War with its gruesome deed;
God, from it we implore release.

War with its bitter hate,
War with its penance, late,
War and for youth his fate;
Send us thy grace, now, from above.
War with its mothers, sad,
War with its follies, mad,
War with hysteria—fad;
God, purge us, fill our hearts with love.

War that is fought for wealth,
War taking life and health,
War brought about by stealth;
Let us not be deceived by their ruse.
War that can right no wrong,
War with its crazed, mad throng,
War that is here so long;
God, give us courage to refuse.

Carrie Hunt Akins,
Bethel College, Class of 1941

OVERCOMING DISEASES

In 1900 the average expectancy of life at birth was 49. Today it is 60. 110,000 persons attended the needs of 120,000,000 people. 700,000 beds in hospitals are occupied every day of the year. Annually in the United States there are about 100,000,000 illnesses serious or slight. The care of these patients requires 145,000 doctors, 280,000 nurses and student nurses, 60,000 dentists, 150,000 pharmacists, 8,000 clinics, 7,000 hospitals, 60,000 pharmacies. The public spends annually $715,000,000 for medicines. Medical care under all forms cost us annually $3,500,000,000. Medicine is far from decreasing human sufferings as much as it endeavors to make us believe. The infectious diseases have greatly been diminished, but we die in much larger proportions from degenerative diseases. We have suppressed typhoid fever, small pox, etc., but we pay for it by the long suffering, lingering diseases such as cancer, diabetes, etc.—Health Guide Messenger.

—ARE YOU READING THE HOME MISSION ARTICLES FAITHFULLY? Do you rejoice at the fine work that is being done in Canada by the Itinerant Ministers? Do you know that the Dormitory of the Swift Current Bible School is up and soon ready for use, although not quite finished completely? Do you know that this Bible School is serving a group of approximately 9,000 Mennonites in Saskatchewan? Do you know that our expenses have been going up because of the many needs and requests for help? Do you know that for the last four months we had to take $2,500 out of our reserve funds to pay our obligations? Do you know whether your church has been giving its proportionate share for Home Mission work? Do you remember this work in prayer?

—Rev. Carl J. Landis' are moving from Bluffton, Ohio, to 720 West 26th Street, Chicago, Ill., where Brother Landes will take charge of the 26th Street Mission of the Central Conference. May God's blessings attend his efforts! He also expects to take some studies at the Chicago Theological Seminary.

—Retreat.—"What! Do you missionaries also need to retreat?" was the surprised question of one of our evangelists, when he was told that we were at Taming for a three-days' retreat. Yes, we wanted to retreat, so we took three days "time off" to meet quietly for meditation, prayer and study. Special music, solos, duets, quartets added color and inspiration. We had papers for discussion on topics such as: Do's and Don'ts for Missionaries, The True Meaning of the Missionary's Life, The Busy Missionary's Quiet Hour, The Program of the Rural Church in China, Methods of Evangelism, and The Christian Message. We invited Rev. Sutherland of the Nazerine Mission to lead in special Bible Study and we enjoyed very profitable sessions.—From "The Chinese Home Bond."

—The Western District Conference, comprising the states of Kansas, with parts of Oklahoma, Colorado, and Nebraska will hold its session this year, on October 18, 19 and 20, at the Forum in Wichita, Kansas, as announced by its chairman, Rev. J. M. Regier, North Newton, Kansas.

—St. John Church, Pandora, Ohio.—Our Juniors had their annual outing. The day was not only spent in fun but also in service. They motored to the Allen County Childrens' Home just outside Lima, where they were shown through the different cottages, after which they gave a short program for the boys and girls who call that their Home. Perhaps we can appreciate a bit more our homes and our Mothers and Fathers who guide and direct our footsteps.

—Alexanderwohl Church, Goessel, Kansas.—On our desk lies the interesting Year Book of this church, "sent for information" by Rev. P. H. Unruh. This is our second largest church in the United States, the First Church of Berne, Ind. being the largest. Alexanderwohl is a church from which, as from a bee hive, new swarms (branches) have gone out. But it doesn't take long, usually, until it has regained its former size. At first a group went out to join churches at Inman and Buhler. Then the Goessel Mennonite Church was started as a separate body and more recently the Tabor Church. Today these two churches have memberships of 290 and 340 resp., while the mother church, Alexanderwohl, has 894 members. Its ministers are: P. H. Unruh, pastor, C. C. Wedel and J. J. Banman, asst. pastors.—John Schmidt, H. J. Reimer and P. P. Quiring are the deacons.—Johann Schmidt, Albert Unruh, W. J. Reimer, J. H. Schroeder and David Ediger are the trustees, and Cornelius Voth, W. W. Unruh are the business chairman and secretary respectively. The church has a Senior C. E. Society, a Y. P. League and a Junior C. E. Society. Its Sunday School has 36 classes, with 72 teachers, there being two to each class. Rudolf A. Klassen and Cornelius Schmidt serve as S. S. superintendents. The total income of the church for 1938 was $3145.30, the expenditures the same.—Let us thank God that by his kind help and the efforts of consecrated Christian workers our rural churches are not dying out but experiencing healthy growths.

—Oklahoma Missions.—While Rev. and Mrs. Benno Toews were taking their needed vacation, the services at all six places of worship were splendidly carried on by the combined efforts of Indian workers and Rev. J. B. Ediger. Of this worthy work, Missionary Toews says in "The C. and A. Messenger," "For this worthy cooperation we owe sincere thanks, first of all to our heavenly Father, and then to those who allowed themselves to be used of Him. For the future we hope that such cooperation will continue, as it must if God's work is to go forward. Since the Bible clearly teaches that all Christians are members of the body of Christ, they each have a work to do." 1 Cor. 12:13.

—Sad News about Dr. P. R. Schroeder.—Reports have been circulating that Brother Schroeder had to undergo an operation at the Yankton, S. D. hospital. A note from Mrs. Schroeder explains that an ulcer had to be removed from the patient's intestines and that, while his condition is serious, the doctors say there is hope for his recovery. The family is grateful for expressions of sympathy and for prayers. "The fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much."

—The L. J. Horsch family of Upland, Calif. in an auto accident.—On Aug. 18 Bro. Horsch wrote: I am writing this note propped up in bed. Every member of the family was injured in an automobile accident last Saturday. Betty Ann suffered the least. I will be in bed perhaps another 10 days and Mrs. Horsch about another 3 weeks. She will have to keep her right limb in a cast for some weeks. We all suffered concussions of the brain.—Thus it appears that while the injuries are painful they are not fatal, God be thanked. The family have our heartfelt sympathy and sincere wishes for an early recovery.—Editor.

—First Menn. Church, Allentown, Pa.—The pastor (Rev. H. G. Nyce) and family left for the New England States for the first part of their vacation. Later they plan to 'rest up' at the Promised Land Lake, in the Poconos.—Henry C. Beidler 'fell asleep' last Sunday noon after an illness of about eight years. The funeral was held in the church. Interment took place in Greenwood cemetery.

—Fruits of Our Much Landed Advancing Education.—In a certain town a new, modern school building has just been erected. As the desk in the old building were still good they were thoroughly cleaned and then installed in th new building. The man who did this work reports that between $100 and $150 worth of chewing gum has been "unearthed" on the 200 desks in the high school. He has found an average of about 50 cents worth of gum was "wadded" inside under the desks, also under the seats and down inside the iron frames. In the lower grade room desks there was very little gum found, but it increased towards the upper grades and the desks in the assembly room were the worst? — Whither are our high schools going?

—Young Peoples' Retreat, Bethel Church, Fortuna, Mo.—Since this church, the only one we have in Missouri, cannot well join others in a retreat, because of distance, it bravely arranged for a retreat of its own. It was held at the Lake of the Ozarks, Aug. 16, 17, and 18, with Rev. George Dick and Mrs. Dick of Lima, Ohio, and Mr. Harleigh Rosenberger of Bluffton as speakers. Following are the themes of some of the messages given: What Foundation Are We Building? Luke 6:48-49; The Presence of God, John 4:19-24; Israel as a Witness for God; The Life of Christ; The Cross of Christ; Getting Acquainted with the World; Living Sacrifices, Rom. 12:1-2; Being Filled with the Spirit, Acts 19:2.

WHOLESOME, HELPFUL BOOKS

BLAZE STAR

Religious Novel by Paul Hutchens

Price $1.00

Again Paul Hutchens has proved himself as the most outstanding religious novelist of the day. In Blaze Star, his tenth novel in less than five years, Mr. Hutchens again gives a wonderful lesson in soul winning, and yet retains the excitement and interest which the young people of today demand.

It is the story of Dale Mars, a radio announcer, who with an indulgent smile threw a letter from Maria Louverne into the waste basket. Who was she? Probably another foolish woman who had fallen in love with his "perfect" radio voice. The second letter followed the first into the waste basket, but when the third came, it troubled him. Was she small and violet-eyed as he dreamed? Was she young or old? Why was she asking him to call on her? Should he go to see her? Adele Waring advised, "I hope you won't make a fool of yourself!" The events that followed that strange meeting form a story of tangled love, of the struggle of faith over doubt, and the final triumph. It is a story that should be read by all Christian youth.

ZONYA

Religious Novel by Agnes Scott Kent

Price $1.50

With a background she knows and loves—the life and trials of the Jewish people—Miss Kent's new novel, Zonya, will be judged the best story that she has written.

The vivid scenes, beginning in Russia at the time of a Jewish pogram, through to Zonya's escape to America, and her conversion after trials and tribulation, are so interesting in their reality that the story seems almost an account of an eye-witness. In this story we see Zonya in Russia, her escape to America, the quest of her restless heart for some certainty of faith, her excursions into the maze of various cults and isms before finally being ensnared in Atheism, and finally we see her struggling toward the light until she finds it at last in Him Who is the light that lighteth every man. Miss Kent's wide knowledge of Jewish life, her close contact with this people and her devotion to their cause enable her to make Zonya one of the finest Christian stories written in recent years.

—"A Guide Book for Mission Society Leaders."—Through the kindness of Mrs. J. S. Schultz of Bluffton, Ohio, we have received a little pamphlet with the above title. This is a most interesting and valuable piece of work. Following are the headings found in its pages: Guide to Christian Living, Mission Study Books for 1939-40, Stewardship (Thanksgiving), Christmas (Service), New Year (Prayer), Home Missions, Missionary Pioneers in Foreign Fields, China, American Indians, India, Book Review Program, Devotion. The sisters, Mrs. A. J. Neuenschwander, Quakertown, Pa.; Mrs. A. E. Kreider, North Newton, Kans., and Mrs. J. S. Schultz, Bluffton, Ohio, compiled the booklet.

—Swamp Mennonite Charge, Penna.—This group of churches, under the leadership of their pastor, A. J. Neuenschwander, have wisely arranged for a Series of Discussions with Young People at Union C. E. Meetings of all three charges: West Swamp, Flatland and Bethany. Here are some of the topics: Friendship, The Purpose and Problems of Courtship, Factors that Enter into the Choice of a Life Mate, Engagement, Entering Life's Greatest Partnership.

—Grace Church, Lansdale, Pa.—The flowers, which were placed in the stateroom of the Rev. Samuel Moyer family by our sick committee, when they were about to sail back to the mission field, were greatly appreciated. Among those of our men who enjoyed a deep sea fishing trip was Rev. Olin Krehbiel.—The Ladies' Aid Society and the Helping Hand Bible Class each contributed $10.00 toward the expenses of the Vacation Bible School, and the former group also gave $10.00 for whatever the Church Council needs it the most.

EDITORIAL

VIVIFYING A CONGREGATION.—Like a single Christian life, so may a whole church get into a condition of lack of vitality. These few lines are not intended to offer a cure-all for such a condition, but merely to make a few suggestions. When looking for the causes of inaction in a church we are prone to turn to the pastor, and well we may, for he is supposed to furnish much of the life element. He may spoil things by riding a hobby, filling the ears of his hearers with the hows, the whys, the wherefores of a certain truth of God's Word and negecting the hundreds of other truths found there and needed for the cultivation of a healthy spiritual life. A tree to grow properly needs certain chemical elements in the soil, also rain, wind and sunshine. If any of them are lacking, its normal growth will be impaired. So the human soul needs to be given a goodly variety of food. It will starve on too much of the same food. Maybe the minister speaks in a monotone that induces a condition favoring sleep. Maybe he speaks too fast, making it hard to follow him, or too slow, making his hearers tired by waiting for the next statement. Maybe his language and thoughts are above the mental level of his audience. Maybe his sermons are too long and tiring while shorter ones would appeal. If the pastor will preach a sermon not to exceed 18-20 minutes, made up of interesting thoughts, logically arranged, animated by the spirit of God, spoken with a well modulated voice, couched in simple, understandable language, so that the boy and the girl from the elementary school can follow it with some degree of interest, and so that Brother Z. can take it home with him and give his wife the gist of it, that would in many instances vivify the congregation. However, the sleepy condition of a church may be chargeable to some extent to its officers. It may be that they are lax in their duties, expecting the pastor both to pull and push the church cart and themselves doing the riding. Perhaps they are holding office largely because they have held it so long and are guided by the notion, "Leave good enough alone," not realizing that the world moves and that the church must move with it. The S. S. Superintendent may be lacking in vision to see the need of improvement in the teaching staff, in methods of teaching, and in the selection of live lesson material. The membership of the church certainly can do no less than try to be regular in attending the church services and pray for its welfare and for the pastor, in an honest effort to keep the body alive.

A PRAYER FOR APPRECIATION OF WORKERS

(In remembrance of Labor Day)

God, thou Father of us all, we praise thee that thou hast bound humanity in a great unity of life so that each must lean on the strength of all, and depend for his comfort and safety on the help and labor of his brothers.

We invoke thy blessing on all the men and women who have toiled to build and warm our homes, to fashion our raiment and to wrest from sea and land the food that nourishes us and our children.

Grant us wisdom to deal justly and fraternally with every man and woman whom we face in the business of life.

Since the comforts of our life are brought to us from afar, and made by those whom we do not know nor see, grant us organized intelligence and power that we may send the command of our righteous will along the channels of trade and industry, and help to cleanse them of hardness and unfairness.

May the time come when we need wear and use nothing that is wet in thy sight with human tears, or cheapened by wearing down the lives of the weak. Save us, we beseech thee, from unconscious guilt.

Speak thou to our souls and bid us strive for the coming of thy kingdom of justice when thy merciful and saving will shall be done on earth.—Prayer of Social Awakening, Walter Rauschenbush.

WORK is devout, and SERVICE is divine,
Who stoops to scrub the floor
May worship more
Than he who kneels before a holy shrine;
Who crushes stubborn ore
More worthily adore
Than he who crushes sacramental wine.

HOME MISSION WORK MOST IMPORTANT PHASE OF WORK

Rosemary, Alberta, July 11, 1939

Dear Mission Friends:

I shall attempt to give a brief report of my work of the last three months. To work for the Master is a joy and I have been glad to be able to help. Health and strength in body and soul have attended all my efforts.

During April and May my travels have been on shorter trips, such as arranging for Catechetical Instruction, conducting funerals, and also officiating at weddings.

Immediately after Pentecost, regular and longer trips were made. Baptismal Services were many as well as observances of Holy Communion. I have preached twice almost every day and in spite of rain and mud, I have made many house visits. On Sunday, July 9th, I celebrated the Lord's Supper with the Brethren at Namaka. Young and old came with eagerness to hear the message of Salvation. Some came 12 miles by horse and buggy and some even farther. No rain or mud kept them back.

The main places of my itinerant work were: Didsbury, Burn Ranch, Lacombe, Tofield, Lymbruck, Ryley, Irma, Castor and Namaka. After the 15th of July I expect to go far into the north.

On the average the folks are looking ahead with faith and courage, because the prospect for a harvest are fairly good in most places. Few places suffered from hail storms. I consider Home Mission work most important among these scattered people. The people desire more frequent pastoral visits, but often this is impossible, because the treasury is low.

I am very grateful for the monthly support sent me which makes it possible to serve these scattered believers. May the Lord richly bless all who support this work and the Board that directs it.

Most sincere greetings, C. D. Harder

SILENT CHRISTIANS.—How can we keep still about what God has done for us? His son has died for us and risen again. If we have received him as a Savior he has given us his own righteousness, given us himself to replace our sinful self. And, together with this unspeakable gift, God has "with him also" freely given us "all things" (Rom. 8:32). Shall we not then sing with David: I have not hid thy righteousness within my heart; I have declared thy faithfulness and thy salvation: I have not concealed thy loving kindness and thy truth from the great congregation" (Ps. 40:10). Let us not be silent Christians but singing Christians. — S. S. Times.

PROGRESS OF THE WORK IN ARIZONA

by J. P. Suderman

Oraibi, Arizona, 6-19-39

Greetings in the name of Christ the Lord!

During the past few months we have had many occasions to present the Word of God to the Hopis and the government people of Oraibi. Our prayer is that it shall accomplish His purpose.

Vacation Bible Schools

For the first time we endeavored to have Daily Vacation Bible Schools in Moencopi and Hotevilla. Here at Oraibi we have had these Bible Schools for a number of years. Mrs. Suderman and I went to Moencopi for one week and assisted Fred and Minnie Johnson in this work. The work was new to them there, but everybody thoroughly enjoyed it. At the close of the week Mrs. Johnson asked the children, whether they wanted to have a school like that the next year and, almost without exception, they all did. During the week we also had a general meeting, when we showed Stereoptican Bible pictures to a full church. The enrollment at Moencopi was 57.

The next two weeks we had a similar school here at Oraibi, where Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Kliewer assisted us. We had 115 enrolled from both villages.

Following this we went to Hotevilla where we enrolled 88 children. Since the two villages near that station are a mile apart, we had one school in each village. Mr. and Mrs. Kliewer and Daniel Schirmer took care of the children in Hotevilla, while Mrs. Suderman, Mrs. Daniel Schirmer and I took care of the children at Bacavi. We are glad that our native workers are seeing the value of teaching the Word of God to the hearts of young children.

Conferences

During the month of May we had a workers' conference with our workers. We met at Moencopi, had a picnic lunch under some trees, after which we had a time of fellowship in prayer and discussion of plans and of problems. The workers all agreed that we should have more such conferences. Also in May the missionaries on the Hopi reservation gathered for two days of fellowship. Messages on the Holy Spirit were given by various missionaries, and discussion periods on certain general problems were held. This conference is similar to the ministers conferences which our churches have in the various districts all over the United States. Further, we gather once a month for a day of prayer. It was also decided at the conference in May that we should have a choral society among the missionaries.

During the Month of August the Southwest Missionary and Bible Conference meets at Flagstaff and most of our workers plan to attend all or part of the conference. This Conference meets two weeks.

Native Workers

Fred Johnson, who has been stationed at Moencopi for the last nine years, is getting along very nicely. He has cooperated very well. It was a happy time for him and his family when we could stay there and work together in the Daily Vacation Bible School.

Daniel and Amy Schirmer at Hotevilla are also cooperating with the rest of us. They feel the need of more help at Hotevilla. As the Mission Board knows, Miss Mary Schirmer has left Hotevilla.

K. T. Johnson is our official interpreter at Oraibi. He, too, is an efficient worker. Besides interpreting for us at our regular services, he also teaches an adult Sunday School class. One young Brother, who a year ago fell into grievous sin, has made a confession and is again in fellowship. He is not a worker in the church, however. He feels called of the Lord to enter the Lord's work some day.

The Deluge of Propaganda

Olin A. Krehbiel

"Let no man deceive you with vain words." Eph. 5:6.

I wonder how many Christians realize the amount of propaganda that is being dumped out upon the world this day and age. America is not exempt, but comes in for its share, as is evidenced by the fact that during the war, we, who are supposed to be an enlightened people, swallowed the bait of propaganda handed us and went "out to make the world safe for democracy." The world knows that we were left holding the bag. Today we are reaping what we have sown. America wanted to convert the world to our form of government and now we have dictators sending over their own propagandists to convert us. People thought democracy would cure all and they worshipped an institution rather than the God who gave us that institution. It makes little difference how wonderful the system of government, if the people are not God fearing, it will fail. The history of Israel reveals that. So we should have spent our time and resources in bringing the Gospel of Christ to the world and something worthwhile would have been accomplished.

Today, mighty America, a terror to foes without, is fighting for its life's breath, wide open to the attacks from within of Communists, Nazis, Fascists, etc. Those who oppose Fascism are called Communists and those who oppose Communism are given the label of Fascists. The true Christians who, of course, oppose both, often pay with their lives as was the case in Russia and in Spain. Through the smoke screen of lies it becomes evident that Christians are faced with a day of testing.

One can observe the manifestation of propaganda even at the World's Fair. To me, the most striking example was the U.S.S.R. building, although it was not the only one. They would have the millions of visitors to the Fair believe that everybody in godless Russia has a smile upon the face. The whole fair grounds radiates with our material advancement, but it also shows forth our spiritual deficiency. One of the symbolisms of our moral decay again impressed itself upon me when I got a headache from all the cigarette smoke the women blew into my face. Vice barons have not failed to see the usefulness of propaganda in promoting their trade. Newsstands display a regular rogues gallery of magazines. Atheists, scoffers, drinkers, gamblers, sex degenerates and the like have increased all over the land.

Our nation's new crop of political leaders no longer seek the direction of the Lord as was the case in the days of the great Washington and Lincoln, but they have the situation well in hand without the help of God by the use of propaganda. The outlook is especially dark when it is noted that Christianity, the only stabilizing force in the world, is closing the doors of the tabernacle and the temple is badly in need of repair. Oh, how greatly we need a revival as in the days of Josiah, for that alone can put off the evil day toward which we are so rapidly being pushed. Let it begin with us by making Christ our Saviour and our indispensible Friend.

A CENTRALIZED OR DIVIDED CHURCH?

Never in the history of the Christian Church has there been so much stir to unite divided bodies. The arguments advanced for union are many and there is merit in union. The Watchman Examiner in its practical way of looking at things had this to say on the subject: "During the last hundred years our Lord has been showing what he can do with a divided church. The door of every nation under heaven has been opened during the last century. Had the church been outwardly one, possessing mechanical unity, had the evangelization of the world been entrusted to one great mechanically united body, we would have been unequal to the task of entering these open doors. Again, by means of various religious bodies being at work at the task, the Scriptures have been translated into more than one thousand tongues, and the end is not yet. Through the different sects and denominations more than 167 missionary organizations have been operating on foreign fields. Surely there is truth in the axiom, Divide and evangelize, centralize and fossilize. This is vastly more important than mechanical unity.

—Rev. P. H. Unruh of the Alexanderwohl Church, held a series of meetings in the Bergtal Mennonite Church at Corn, Okla. from August 14 to 20.

Jottings Enroute to India

The Royal Mail Steamer, "Ranchi", is steadily plowing through the waters of the Mediterranean Sea. In twelve days time, on August 12th, we are due in Bombay. Ahead of us is the Third Term of Service in India. Behind is a furlough filled with rich experiences and precious memories.

* * *

What rich experiences they were: Saskatoon, Camp Wood, Kansas, Berne, Indiana, Bluffton, Ohio, Lansdale, Pa., Souderton, Pa., and the final prayer service on the S. S. "Pres. Roosevelt," just before we sailed from New York on July 19, 1939. These were some of the high spots of the public life which took us to 66 speaking engagements west of the Mississippi, to most of the churches of the Middle District, and to practically all of the churches of the Eastern District.

* * *

No less rich and no less precious were the privileges we had in being with Father Penner, father of Dr. P. A. Penner of Champa, India, as we saw him in his home at Mt. Lake, Minn. He was still young enough at 91 years of age to climb an apple tree to saw off a limb. Or the days we had with our aging parents in Berne, Indiana. Or the days of quiet and strength with my aging mother at Lansdale. God's name be praised.

* * *

But all the above is not to exclude the happy visits we could have in the farm homes near Drake, Saskatchewan, nor the cordial welcome received in many homes at Wadsworth, Ohio, nor the insistent invitations to all sorts of gatherings in the Swiss Community round about Bluffton, nor Pulaski, Iowa, nor the contacts in four Young People Retreats, nor the hundreds of other homes and gatherings and friendships. God's glory was in all these. With all the above we rested, and rested indeed . . . at Blauvelt, N. Y.

Of special mention are the receptions and farewells in the home churches at Berne, Indiana and Souderton, Pa. These folks were royal. God's glory was there. Royal means of the King. God's glory means His holy presence. The occasions were just that!

And now we are going back for a Third Term. Never in all our days has the field been so needy for workers. Today there are only 16 workers on the field. A few years ago there were 26. Ten vacant places today! Who are the talented, ably trained Young Couples who will lay their talents at the feet of Jesus, and say, "Lord Jesus, take all we have and sanctify us for service in India." Where are the churches, which will then back up the Mission Board with funds over and above regular contributions to provide for their support? Perhaps this is the greater need. If one church provides the Young Couple, could not another church provide the funds?

St. Paul went through the well prepared seed bed of the Dispersion. He established one church after another through "all Asia", and Greece, and Rome. Our souls yearn within us that something similar may occur in the field where we shall work this term. Will you who read this make an item on your prayer lists for the next eight years: that the Spirit of God may completely dominate and empower us and our missionary coworkers; that thousands may come to Christ in baptism on each station during these next nine years of this term. Can it be God's will that the three quarter of a million souls in our field live Christless lives and go down to Christless graves? If not, cannot it be His will that at least one thousand on each station come to Him before we return to the homeland again? Will you pray? In faith? persistently? Very definitely and specifically? Will you also? And YOU?

Yours for Christ and India,

S. T. Moyer.

Words from Bethel College

YOUR MONEY OR YOUR CHILD

Children sometimes play a game called, "Your Money or Your Life." As Christian people we claim allegiance to our Lord and owe him both our money and our life as well as our children.

Many friends of the school are repeatedly making sacrificial contributions in money, for which Bethel is deeply grateful. Right now we are greatly concerned that the college shall also be considered worthy of the children of the friends of the school. Again and again we find members of our Mennonite constituency who have enough interest and faith in Bethel College to support the school in a financial way but not enough to entrust their child to the school for a few years. Nothing is so humiliating as to discover a willingness to give or even to solicit money for the college, but then turn right around and send the children to another institution. Some, of course, give neither, and the ideal situation is where the friends of the school give both their money and their child.

Bethel College needs both "your money and your child," but if it is a question of "your money or your child," we prefer the child every time. Jesus said, "Where your treasure is, there will your heart be also." The greatest treasure parents have is their child, and naturally the parents' hearts will go where their child goes, or perhaps we can even say, that where the child goes, indicates where the parents' hearts and treasures are.

Bethel College is unable to supply work for all students who ask for the privilege to earn part of their expenses and those who can pay their full bills especially should remember that if their child goes to another school, the $350 they give for board, room, and tuition means just that much less income here for Bethel College.

In short, Bethel College prays to become worthy so that the parents among our constituency would feel constrained to say, "Not my money or my child, but rather both my money and my child." Bethel College cannot be satisfied with itself until that is achieved. As we face a new school year, we therefore again commit the institution to the continued prayers of the friends of Christian Education everywhere.

Experiences in Personal Evangelism

Address by Ex-Missionary W. F. Unruh, given at the Western District Ministerial Conference

Evangelism has been defined as "the task of presenting Jesus Christ to people in such a way that they will repent from their sins and by faith in Him receive forgiveness of sins and thus enter into a new life through Jesus Christ their Lord." I think it is Dr. John R. Mott who has put it like this. It is a fine statement; but it would be better if a more definite recognition to the ministry of the Holy Spirit in this work were given. Saved souls are a gift of God. Jesus Himself in His high-priestly prayer refers to this fact, when He speaks of His disciples as "these men whom thou hast given me." It seems to me there is a certain amount of spiritual pride and arrogance, when people speak of "my converts". We are so prone to forget, how long and how patiently and persistently, and by what various approaches the Holy Spirit has been working with these souls, drawing them, leading them, convicting them, and striving with them to bring them to repentance and a saving faith. By far the greater work done to bring a person to Christ Jesus is done by the Holy Spirit and not by us. And yet we need to be conscious of the fact that we are indispensible to the Holy Spirit in this His ministry.

It is well, I think, that we should look into our experience to discover what approaches, methods, and strategy in evangelism the Lord has been honoring with fruit. I do not like to speak about personal experiences unless I can feel that they are a testimony to the grace of God. I hope that what I have to share will redound to the glory of our Redeemer. Permit me to speak quite freely about our evangelistic work in India, because my experience has been mostly there. I shall speak with the confidence that there is light from God which comes to us through our mission churches. We feel that God is leading that way. Dr. Henry van Dusen, dean of Union Theological Seminary of New York City, as he was returning from the Madras World Missionary Conference, made a statement something like this: The churches of mission lands lead the churches of the world in all trends and movements, especially in evangelism, in church unity, and in training for the ministry. When the World Missionary Conference has brought out this fact, I think, we may speak about our mission churches without apologies.

Since I shall speak as a missionary, it may be well for me to make a statement as to what we hold to be the position or status of a missionary in this task. We believe that he can do more good when he leads his church in evangelistic enterprises than he can when he tries to do it largely himself. This may hold for a pastor as well as for a missionary.

The Church of Jesus Christ will grow and posper most when evangelism is put central in church activity. All of the life and activity of the Christian people should be saturated with and controlled by a conscious evangelistic aim. The goal should always be to bring people to Jesus Christ and into the fellowship of the church.

In India the churches have received great inspiration and much guidance and help from the Counselor on Evangelism. This Counselor on Evangelism goes to the churches and helps the people recognize their opportunities in their respective neighborhoods and relationships. He shows them in what way others have brought many into the Kingdom of God, giving examples of fruitful evangelism. This Counselor on Evangelism keeps this God-given task constantly before the churches, by short articles in the papers, and by sending short 2-3 minute write-ups about some fruitful effort in evangelism to the pastors of the district, with the request that the pastors read these to the churches as a part of their Sunday morning worship service. When a pastor wants help to lead his church on in evangelistic enterprises, in directing bands of witnesses, he can call upon this Counselor. To me it appears that there is a need for just such a Counselor on Evangelism in our conferences.

There is a great power in the Witness of Lay People. Their testimony seems to touch hearts quicker than that of an ordained preacher who is set aside and paid for the things he says. We preachers can perhaps say it better than our lay brethren, but we cannot very often say it with as much telling power. When a lay brother tells his friends why he is a Christian, what he has received for his heart from Christ, his friends will want to have that also. They will feel that if he has received forgiveness and peace, it is also for them. If his life has been changed, they will want their lives changed also. It is just in this way that the Holy Spirit draws people and awakens in them a longing for the gifts of God in Christ.

But our lay brothers and sisters need to be taught how to witness to their experience. In India every year before we start our village evangelism, we have a period of training for these lay workers. They need to be taught what to speak about as well as what not to say, what to do as well as what not to do. They need to be led on to say, in the very best and most telling way, what they feel. And why not? We have glorious things to say, things for which the world is starving. Get the witnesses to say what they feel among ourselves first so as to be able to say it to others at favorable opportunities. I feel that the Holy Spirit needs our cooperation just here to help the church become a witnessing church. On this point the Madras World Missionary Conference has this to say, that in church evangelism the main responsibility rests with the pastor. In this task the enlistment and preparation of youth, of laymen, of women, of new converts and of those with special gifts and resources is of primary importance and rests with the pastor.

People are greatly influenced by the corporate witness of a group of Christians. It means more when a group of people comes out to say what one person might say. It makes people feel that the group has come out to "back up" what each individual says. In very many churches in India Bands of Witness have been organized which go out once or twice a week to witness and speak for their Lord. When these bands organize they promise each other to meet once a week for prayer and planning and then to go out together to some village to present the Good News.

Another plan is the Week of Evangelism, when every Christian is urged to go to his friends or whomever he can reach and say something for his Lord and Savior. Special sermons are preached to prepare the church for this week. Special prayer meetings are held to strengthen the people in this ministry of witness. During this week the Christian forces make a mighty impact upon the non-Christian world through the word of testimony and the sale of Christian literature.

Another united effort to bring the Gospel of Salvation to the people is the Week of Evangelism among Relatives when every Christian is urged to try to win his brothers and sisters and close relatives to Christ. During this week Christians often drop their work and make trips to visit relatives in different villages. They go to tell what the Christian religion means to them. It all helps and counts in this great work of fishing men. Through efforts like these the word of testimony and the Word of God is brought to people and the Holy Spirit can prepare their hearts for that great venture of faith when they give themselves to Christ.

We have found that we can do our best evangelistic work when we go into the homes. There is least distraction and disturbance there for one thing. Then also we can teach the entire family, father, mother, and children. Evangelistic work is most fruitful when it touches all members of the home; and the results are most satisfactory when people come into the church in families.

Our experience has taught us also that in evangelistic work we cannot rely on our own eloquence and wisdom. Speeches and lectures seem not to influence people much. We must rely on the Word of God and its Power. We are told that we are begotten again through the Word of God; and that we become partakers of the divine nature through the precious and exceeding great promises of God. To get people to trust these promises is the task in which we must help the Holy Spirit, so that He can give God's gifts in Christ to us. We have found that the best way to prepare the hearts of people for this is to tell and explain the stories of the Bible. Bible stories psychologically chosen according to the steps in the evangelistic program are of untold value in this work. By using them we need not feel that we preach at people, nor do the listeners feel that we preach at them. Both they and we stand by as it were and watch what is happening in the story. And thus the preaching is done by the Holy Spirit through His own Word.

I would like to refer to two other approaches which are used of God. One is the approach of the Oxford Group. They arrange House Parties or Tea Parties to provide opportunity for testimony of what God has done for them. How lovely, to invite people to a tea party with the express purpose of providing on opportunity to tell of the Savior's work of grace as they sip tea together. The other is that of the Burma Gospel Team, quite in vogue in Indian schools for some time. Here groups of people go before audiences and frankly open their hearts and lives in confessions of sins and in testimony of how Christ has made their lives new. The power here lies in the confessions and testimonies. Their frank confessions of sins will strike those hearts that are harboring hidden sin. Their testimonies of how they have come to a new life will point the way out to those who seek deliverance. This type of evangelism has been greatly used of God in India and seems to me to offer great possibilities in America.

Let me share with you how I have tried to help people into a vital experience before I administered baptism to them. I worked mostly with illiterate villagers and therefore what I did was done as simply as possible. One deep concern I had was to awaken in them a sense of guilt and to lead them to confess their sins before the Lord and ask His forgiveness. I would point out and explain as simply as I could the promise we find in I John 1:9. I tried to show them just how that promise related to each one personally. And then we would kneel down and each one for himself confess all known sins to the Lord and ask forgiveness, trusting in this promise. After this period of quiet prayer and confession, I tried to explain as simply as possible that our forgiveness is a gift of God, received by faith and trust in Christ, pointing out such promises as Acts 10:43. I tried to teach them how to trust and rely on Christ and these promises with all their hearts. And then we would kneel down again and each one for himself tell the Savior that we were now putting our whole trust in Him and His blood for our forgiveness and acceptance. After this I tried to make it clear that baptism

MICAH: A MESSENGER OF SOCIAL JUSTICE

Micah 3:1-12; 6:6-8

Introduction

Little is known about Micah who prophesied in the days of Jotham, Ahaz and Hezekiah, in Judah. He was a native of Moresheth-gath, about twenty miles south west of Jerusalem, and also a contemporary of Isaiah, who lived in Jerusalem. He was distinctly a prophet of the poor and oppressed. In his day the country dwellers especially suffered from oppression and he found his call to his holy office in the great human need as he saw it.

Sins of Princes, Prophets and Rulers vs. 1-12

A degenerate aristocracy of the rulers and the wealthy, mastered by greed and growing wealthy on tyranny, grievously oppressed the poor tillers of the soil. The rights of people were trampled under foot and justice was sold to the highest bidder. Micah addressed the rulers, especially the judges who sought to practice justice, in the opening verses of our lesson. He is giving a very graphic and dark description of the social injustice meted out to the common people (vs 2,3). His language portrays most vividly the cruel oppression. The rich and powerful were utterly unmerciful and ruthless. They hated good and loved evil. He likens their cruel oppression to plucking the flesh off the bones and breaking them. Micah lays the chief blame for the awful conditions upon the leaders who had failed to do their duty, being wicked in heart. The prophets had abused their trust.

Micah's righteous soul was aroused for he felt keenly the suffering of the helpless victims of the oppressors. The Church, Christians should always espouse the cause of those oppressed through injustice, dishonesty and corruption. He warns that in the day of retribution (v4) the Lord will not listen to the cry of these heartless rulers.

The false prophets led the people into error. They preached the message that pleased their hearers and the better they were fed and paid, the more pleasing their message (v5). Spiritual night, a lack of vision, a darkness they can not penetrate and shame shall be the lot of these false prophets (v6,7). God will completely withdraw His presence from them.

Micah, in contrast, spoke to his people as the true prophet of God (vs 8-12). By the power of the Spirit of the Lord, he fearlessly exposed sin in high places and called it by its right name. Cruelty attended building operations and the love of money corrupted judges, priests and prophets. The temple being in Jerusalem, was not a guarantee of immunity from the natural consequences of their sins. Destruction and devestation were sure to come because of the prevalent wickedness among the leaders (v12).

God's Requirements 6:6-8

The nation personified speaks, inquiring what God requires of them so they may win His favor (vs 6,7). They believed that sacrifices can atone for sin and many thought that these or other religious observances could take the place of goodness. Micah told them of God's controversy with them (6:1-5), calling on them to consider what He had done for them. God's answer is summed up in a few words (v8)—not elaborate ritual, costly sacrifices and gifts, but true repentance, "do justice, love mercy, walk humbly with God." Righteousness and kind conduct and humble devotion, God desires above all else. These are the essential elements of true religion in all times. Jesus showed us how man can fulfill these requirements.

The world is much concerned about human rights and social justice. Man's program to bring this about has proved faulty and lacks success. It would be wise to sincerely try God's plan. Religion, Christianity must relate itself to everything that concerns life and human welfare.

is a covenant with Christ and that they must give themselves fully to Him in obedience. Then we would again pray and each for himself promise our allegiance and obedience to the Redeemer. The Lord honored this simple way of leading people into the gifts of Christ. The joy and peace and love and the assurances that I have seen at many of these baptismal services gives me the assurance that God's gift of forgiveness and salvation was freely given through faith in Christ Jesus.

A word might be said about receiving those into the church who desire to follow Jesus. Experience seems to indicate that perhaps the best procedure is to baptise people when they have definitely declared their loyalty and allegience to Jesus as Lord and Savior and have given evidence that they have broken with the old life. Teaching must by no means stop with baptism, but rather be intensified. After their loyalties have been transferred to Jesus, Christian instruction will become more vital, meaningful and personal. That is why instruction after baptism is considered more effective than if it is given before baptism.

Let me close by referring to the fact that the Tambram World Missionary Conference has designated 1940 as a year for world-wide evangelism. I trust that what I have shared with you may help us to appreciate our God-given task and its possibilities more fully.

SERMON SKETCH

THE GREAT RESOURCES AND RESPONSIBILITY OF THE CHURCH

Rev. J. M. Franz, Pastor Emmanuel Church, Pratum, Oregon

Text: II Kings 4:1-7

In the story of our text we find a woman of the sons of the prophets coming to the prophet Elisha with a great burden. Her husband had been a righteous man but had been taken from her by death, and left her not only a widow with two sons, but also with the responsibility to pay off a debt. If she will not be able to meet this obligation, then the merciless creditor will take her two sons away from her and make slaves of them. There is no way out, the debt must be paid.

This story presents to us a picture of the church of Christ in the world with its responsibility and resources.

I. The Widow in This Instance is a Type of the Church

To be sure the church of Jesus Christ is no widow, for her head and bridegroom the Lord Jesus is alive, went as our forerunner into heaven, and is our high priest seated at the right hand of the Father. But the unbelieving world does not receive the things of the Spirit, and therefore considers Him dead, as to his body which was laid in Joseph's tomb, and therefore is treating the Church as a poor widow and has as far as possible its own way with the Church.

The true church of Jesus Christ has never been very popular in the world and is not popular today. This is clearly affirmed by our Lord in John 15:20-21. The true Church will never be treated differently by the world than Jesus Christ was treated.

II. The Responsibility of the Church Is Like the Widow's Debt

The widow's debt had to be paid, and so also the church's responsibility has to be met.

How hard this widow must have worked to meet this obligation, we may well imagine. We are not told what her debt was, only that it existed and that she could not pay it.

We are plainly told what the debt of the Church of Christ in this world is. Read Rom. 1:14-15, Acts 1:8, Mark 16:15. It is evangelism.

By this method God is today calling out a people for his name. There is no way out of this responsibility, and no substitute can be supplied, the work of evangelism has to be done and has to be done now, or else the world will come, just as this creditor had threatened to come, and take our sons and daughters and make slaves of them.

Unless the Church carries out a progressive program of evangelism, in our home communities, in home and foreign missions, the world, that merciless creditor, will come and take some of our fine young people and lure them away; the irreligious of our day will capture the others.

The church of Jesus Christ has no place in this world, unless it pays its responsibility.

III. The Resource of the Church Is Like the Resource This Widow Had

This widow had two resources. In her distress she cries to the prophet. He was the man of God and represented God. This is also our first resource. Where do we go in the hour of need? We may try every available means to meet our obligation, but let us not forget, that our best resource is God Himself.

Her second resource was a pot with oil, v. 2. This is all she had. How fortunate she was not to have other possessions, or else she might have overlooked this one most important need, when the man of God told her to take an invoice. This pot of oil represented the secret with which she would be able to meet her whole responsibility.

Oil is a type of the Holy Spirit. All Kings, Priests and Prophets of the Old Testament were anointed with oil, and without the anointing of the Holy Spirit there is also no Christian in the New Testament. Comp. 1 John 2:27 and Acts 1:8. This is the resource of the Church. By means of the Holy Spirit and in no other way can the Church meet the great responsibility of evangelism.

IV. How the Church Shall Meet This Responsibility

Here three things are mentioned for us to observe and do; 1st, as this widow obeyed the word of God by the prophet, so it is necessary for the Church to obey the word of God. Success will come only as God's word is obeyed.

2nd, as this widow made preparation to receive the oil, by bringing together empty vessels, v.3, so it is the duty of the Church to bring people, who have not heard the gospel under its sound, so they will hear, Rom. 10:17, and believe and thus be filled with the Holy Spirit.

3rd, there was also cooperation and harmony, v. 5. How this little group worked in cooperation until the work was done. So the true Church cannot succeed unless there is cooperation. It is the duty of the Church of Christ to face the world with a united front.

Western District Retreat News

CHRIST'S CALL TO SERVICE

The discussion of the four phases of Christ's Call to Service were held by four men—leaders in their field.

"Christ's Call to Service" is one of the most important problems of young people. Wednesday Rev. S. J. Goering led our discussion on "Missions." Thursday Dr. P. S. Goertz discussed "Education." Friday, Rev. Albert Gaeddert discussed "Social Service," and Saturday, Dr. P. H. Richert discussed "Layman's Work." Christ calls us just as we are to a need in His service.—L. Bartel.

RETREAT ENROLLMENT

The retreaters from various churches again gathered at Camp Wood for the annual Mennonite Retreat. The full time enrollment reached the mark of 148 including 12 retreat leaders. To many this retreat was a new thing, but to others it was a time and place to see friends that had been made at previous Retreats. Twenty-six out of the fifty-five churches of the Western District Conference were represented. The three churches leading in enrollment in order are: Eden, First Mennonite of Newton, and First Mennonite of Beatrice, Nebr. Nebraska boasts seventeen retreaters and Oklahoma follows close with fourteen present at the Retreat.

PICNIC

The Saturday evening dinner was served in picnic style out under the treas about a mile southeast of the campus. The retreaters hiked out to the picnic grounds and arrived shortly before the dinner was served. The menu consisted of bean salad, sandwiches, potato chips, pickles and watermelon. The hikers were so hungry, the camp staff had a hard job to satisfy their hunger. After the meal was finished the retreaters turned homeward full and happy.

I am more than ever convinced that the young people of today are a mighty fine lot of youngsters. Little of the sham and artifice of years ago. Open and straight forward, May God bless 'em.

HEGE-ETTES

You know what you got out of the Retreat? Just what you put in. If you are dissatisfied perhaps you are at fault.

One would think that some retreaters had a share in a film factory judging by the number of pictures they took.

Life is the same whether in school or at Camp Wood. "Boy meets Girl," blusher, Giggler, Sy Glancor, Silent Walker. Ah! Such is life!

If all the pictures that were taken the last few days, were laid one to end—they'd make a pretty Gallery.

Retreat at Shipshewana Lake, Indiana

"In the Service of the King" was the theme chosen for the eleventh annual Mennonite Young Peoples' Retreat of the Middle District and Central Conferences. A total of seventy-one representatives enjoyed a week of fellowship and inspiration on the Brethren Grounds on the shores of Lake Shipshewana from July thirty-first to August 6.

Five pastors of our Mennonite churches and one college professor were the faculty members. These six instructors and the courses which they taught were as follows:

Standards for Christian Living—Rev. J. E. Amstutz, Trenton, Ohio.
Christianity's Expanding Frontiers—Rev. I. R. Dettweiler, Normal, Ill.
Music—Dr. Samuel Flueckiger, North Manchester, Indiana.
Sunset Services and Morning Quiet Hour—Rev. A. E. Kreider, Bethel College, North Newton, Kansas.
The Life of Paul—Rev. A. S. Rosenberger, Dalton, Ohio.
Vocal Interpretation—Rev. G. S. Stoneback, Goshen, Indiana.

At the close of a three-year period of faithful service, Rev. Harry Yoder, Pastor of Silver Street Church at Goshen, Indiana, retired as chairman of the Retreat. Rev. G. S. Stoneback, pastor of Eighth Street Church in Goshen has been elected as chairman for the coming year.

Myra Basinger from Pandora was elected by the students as representative to help make plans for next year's program.

Bill Zentz of Goshen, Indiana was chosen as exchange delegate to Camp Mack, the Camp for the Church of the Brethren.

WHAT JESUS SAID ABOUT SEEKING GOD'S KINGDOM

Matt. 6:19-43

Senior C. E. Topic for September 24, 1939

Worship Service

Hymns: "Come Thou Almighty King", "I Would Be True", "Just for Today"

Scripture—Matt. 6:19-34

Prayer: Our Father who art in heaven, so teach us to number our days, that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom, and seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness. Give us as much trust as the lilies of the fields and the birds of the air and trees, so that all fearfulness may be driven from our hearts. Help us in everything we undertake to do all for the glory of God and the furthering of Thy kingdom. In Jesus' name we pray. Amen.

Leader's Introduction

This Sunday we are concluding a series of three meetings on a few of Christ's teachings in His Sermon on the Mount. The first Sunday we considered right living, and last week the topic was prayer. Today we are going to think about the kingdom of God—what it is, where it is, and how we may enter it.

In reading over the Scripture lesson, we find that Jesus said the following things:

1. That there is a vast difference between the treasures of this world, which are transient and impermanent, and the treasures of the spirit, which abide forever.
2. That the quality of a person's spirit is indicated by the kind of treasures he most deeply cherishes—whether of the spirit or material, of this world.
3. That no person can cherish both kinds of treasure with an equal devotion any more than he can serve two masters at the same time with equal loyalty.
4. That if a person has a relative unconcern about the things of this world—the so-called necessities of life—the lack of abundance of them will not upset him.
5. That a person should trust in God, cherishing the treasures that abide, and living each day as it comes to the full, making use of the opportunities and advantages that are at hand.
6. That a person, if he is thus to have victory over the world, must seek the kingdom of God before anything else, must put first things—the things of the spirit—first.

What Is the Kingdom of God?

William T. H. Bayford asks, "What is the Kingdom of God?" And then he answers his question by saying, "It is not geographical, economical, mechanical or formal. From several distinct sayings of Jesus we conclude that the Kingdom of God is within, vital and present. What is it then? It is the reign of God's Spirit in human life, the recognition of His kingship; it is cooperation with Him in the establishment of righteousness and peace and joy. These are the things we are to seek."

"The Preacher's Mistake"

When a person seeks the Kingdom of God, it is an act of an individual soul, asserting its recognition of God's kingship in one individual life. But the word "kingdom" also implies that a body of people are joined together under one leader, aiming at common goals. We need the fellowship with and the cooperation of others in this kingdom in helping God to establish it upon earth. We must not withdraw or isolate ourselves from our fellow Christians. A common goal is enough to make us work together, even though small points of doctrine, creed, religious practices, etc., differentiate us. Above all we should strive for humility and a desire to serve where we can. Let us avoid the mistake of the minister in the following poem:

The parish priest
Of austerity,
Climbed up in a high church steeple
To be nearer God,
So that he might hand
His word down to His people.

When the sun was high,
When the sun was low,
The good man sat unheeding
Sublunary things.
From transcendency
Was he forever reading.

And now and again
When he heard the creak
Of the weather vane a-turning,
He closed his eyes
And said, "Of a truth
From God I now am learning."

And in sermon script
He daily wrote
What he thought was sent from heaven
And he dropped this down
On his people's heads
Two times one day in seven.

In his age God said,
"Come down and die!"
And he cried out from the steeple,
"Where art thou, Lord?"
And the Lord replied,
"Down here among my people."

—William Croswell Doane

Discussion Problems

1. Just exactly what did Jesus mean by the "kingdom of God"? In the thirteenth chapter of Matthew the kingdom of heaven is compared with several widely different things: a man who sowed good seed in his field, a mustard seed, a treasure hid in a field, a pearl of great price, a fishing net. Are all these ideas compatible with each other? What was Jesus trying to teach in these comparisons?

2. Can we take Jesus at his word? If we do put the things of the Spirit first in our lives, will we certainly and always be given what we need for our physical maintenance?

3. Discuss the matter of divided loyalties. Do so-called Christians ever try to worship God and mammon at the same time?

4. What did Jesus mean by a "single" eye?

COMBATTING UNCHRISTIAN PRACTICES AT SCHOOL

Intermediate C. E. Topic for September 24, 1939

For Daily Reading:

Sept. 12. Cheating. Lev. 6:2-5.
Sept. 19. Companionship. Prov. 13:19-21.
Sept. 20. Truthfulness. Prov. 12:19-23.
Sept. 21. Sloth. Prov. 26:12-16.
Sept. 22. Fear of man. Prov. 29:25-27.
Sept. 23. Heed of reproof. Prov. 15:5-10; 31-33.
Sept. 24. Combatting unchristian practices at school. II Thess. 3:4, 5, 11-15.

Opening Challenge:

> And it must follow, as the night the day,
> To thine own self be true,
> Thou canst not then be false to any man.
> —Shakespeare.

Song, "I'll Live For Him"
Scripture Reading—II Thess. 3:4, 5, 11-15
Sentence Prayers

Assign the daily readings before the meeting begins and have these discussed as to their relation to school life today.

Let this be a personal testimony meeting and have the members relate times when they have had opportunity to combat unchristian practices.

If you have members who are willing to engage in a debate it would be very fine to debate for and against the Honor System used in some schools.

Song, "Serve the Lord in Youth"

Have the third verse sung as a solo and then have a brief time of meditation on those words.

Discussion:

If there is sufficient time we believe it would be most profitable to conduct this discussion in the form of a panel. Probably one of your members is very capable in leading discussions and he could lead it along these suggested lines or on questions which may come from the group. We will only suggest topics not discuss them. You who are in school now are more capable of doing that.

1. If it were true that "everybody cribs" would that fact make cribbing honest?

2. Is not cheating in exams really stealing marks which you do not deserve?

3. What is the attitude in your school toward boys and girls who live in the less desirable parts of your city or community?

4. What is the attitude toward families on relief?

5. What is the attitude toward those of other races?

6. What do you think of the practice of forming cliques?

7. Is there a tendency in your school to gather at undesirable places?

8. What differences in character do you notice between those who will not stoop to unchristian practices and those who do lower themselves?

9. Does there seem to be a difference between those who attend Sunday School and Young People's meetings and those who do not?

10. What can we as intermediates do to rid our schools of these unchristian practices? Do we expect to find it an easy job?

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

JESUS AND HIS FRIENDS

Program for September 24, 1939

I. Worship Period:

1. Prelude. Pianist plays melody of "He Leadeth Me"
2. Call to worship in unison: "O come, let us worship and bow down: let us kneel before the Lord our Maker."
3. All gather around the piano for an informal sing. The Juniors themselves choosing favorite songs.
4. Scripture (Responsively):

Leader—"Even as the Father hath loved me, I also have loved you: abide ye in my love."

Juniors—"If ye keep my commandments, ye shall abide in my love; even as I have kept my Father's commandments, and abide in his love."

Leader—"This is my commandment that ye love one another, even as I have loved you."

Juniors—"Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."

Leader—"And that from a child thou hast known the holy scriptures, which are able to make thee wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus.

5. Song. (Solo voice the verses, Juniors join in on chorus, softly and prayerfully.) "He Leadeth Me", verses 1, 3, 4.

II. Mission Minutes:

Just as Jesus needed special friends to share in his work and help Him when He was here on earth, so He needs friends today to share in His work. He has called some as He called His friends of old to a special work. Some of these called ones we call missionaries, because they are sent with a wonderful message.

1. Can you tell what that message is?
2. And to whom the missionaries are sent?
3. What can we, as Juniors, do?
4. Each Junior name one of our General Conference Missionaries and tells where they are.
5. The leader should tell something about our mission collections and how our missionaries are supported. Refer to a report in either the Mennonite or Bundesbote. If your church's name is listed in that report draw attention to it. Could the contribution have been better?

III. Study Period. Aim: To help our Juniors realize that we are Jesus' friends if we accept Him as our Savior. That He will help us in our Christian life.

1. Sing one verse of "The Best of Friends I Have in Heaven"
2. Recall the names of the twelve apostles learned at the last meeting:

> "Of all the Twelve Apostles
> The Gospels give the names;
> First Andrew, John and Peter,
> Bartholomew (Nathaniel) and James,
> Matthew, and Simon, Thomas,
> Were friends both tried and true.
> Then Philip, James and Thaddeus,
> The traitor Judas, too.
> They followed Christ the Master
> O'er mountain, shore and sea
> Samaria, Judea, Perea, Galilee.
> —Author Unknown

3. Leaders Heart-talk:

We have been talking about the friends that Jesus chose when He was here on earth. Jesus wants all of us to be His friends, too. He wants to be our friend. He wants to be much more than our friend. He wants to be our Savior, but we must let Him, we must come to Him.

We say that Jesus is our Savior, because He saves us from sin, but what do we mean by that? What does sin do to us that is so dangerous that Jesus was willing to die for us to save us from it?

Someone has said, "Sin keeps you apart from God." It does. It makes us very unhappy. And God wants us to be happy. He loves us and wants our love. That is why He sent Jesus, to show us the terrible thing that sin does in our lives, and to make it possible for us to be God's children.

Jesus loved us so much that He took the punishment for sin—which is death—upon Himself. He died for us that we might be saved from death. He is our Savior, if we accept Him. He helps us to live, as God's children should live, if we but let Him help us.

4. Four Juniors discuss the following:
   a. Jesus prays for His Friends. Luke 22:32,; John 17:9, 20.
   b. Jesus teaches His friends to pray. Matthew 7:7-13.
   c. Jesus said, "If ye love me keep my commandments." Jesus gives His friends commandments. Matthew 22:37-39.
   d. Jesus helps His friends. Matthew 14:31a.
5. Duet, "Jesus Lover of My Soul" from rear balcony.
7. Pass slips of paper with the following sentences written upon it. Call for a one minute talk about the sentence from the one who has it.
   a. If we are Jesus' friend we will be loving and kind.
   b. If we are Jesus' friend we will love God's house (the church).
   c. If we are Jesus' friend we will love to give.
   d. If we are Jesus' friend we will love the Bible.
   e. If we are Jesus' friend we will talk often to the heavenly Father.
   f. If we are Jesus' friend we will think of others first.
   g. If we are Jesus' friend we will tell others about Him.
8. Leader sums up thoughts of evening and closes with a prayer.
9. All sing, "What a Friend We Have in Jesus"

THREE KINDS OF GIVERS

Some one who had the gift to express truths wittily once said: "There are three kinds of givers, the flint the sponge and the honeycomb."

To get anything out of the flint you must hammer it, and then you get only chips and sparks.—Some people are stingy and hard; they give nothing if they can help it.

To get water out of a sponge, you must squeeze it, and the more you squeeze it the more you will get.—Some people are good-natured; they yield to pressure, and the more they are pressed, the more they will give.

But the honeycomb just overflows with its own sweetness.—A few people delight in giving without being asked.

CORRESPONDENCE

BETHANY CHURCH, FREEMAN, C. DAK.

The Young Peoples' Retreat of this community was held at the Freeman Junior College, August 27-30th. The leaders were Rev. Walter Dyck of Burrton, Kansas, "Principles of Christian Citizenship"; Rev. H. Glen, Souix Falls, S. Dak., "Principles of Faith"; and Rev. A. E. Drake, Lennox, S. Dak., "Principles of Christian Living." Prof. Gerhard Toews of the college directed the music.

Rev. A. H. Leaman who served in the Mennonite Mission of Chicago for the past five years, will give a series of Bible lectures in the Bethany Church, beginning Sunday September the 3rd.

Last month while our pastor, Rev. Louis H. Linscheid, was visiting in Minnesota for two weeks, Harold Gross was in charge of the services. Rev. Gross is a local young man who is again going to take post-grauate work at the Hartford Theological Seminary this fall.—Teachers and students were given an opportunity to serve their home congregation Sunday evening, in rendering a Mission Sewing Society program before leaving for their various schools and colleges.

Mrs. H. A. Bachmann and son Siegfried of Woodlake, Calif., after an absence of twenty-four years, visited in this community for several days, while on a trip to visit the former's sisters and brothers in the east. The deceased Rev. H. A. Bachmann was instructor at the Freeman Junior College for many years and pastor of Bethany Church from 1905 to 1915.—Mrs. Gwendolyn Basinger Geiger and brother Carlos renewed acquaintances in this neighborhood, lately, while on the way to Boise, Idaho, where the former's husband is actuary in the social security department under U. S. civil service. Their father, Rev. Elmer Basinger, was pastor of Bethany Church in 1919 and '20 and again from 1924 to 1927. — Joseph A. Wollmann, Correspondent.

IMMANUEL MENN. CHURCH, PRATUM, ORE.

One Sunday morning in early May our S. S. Superintendent, Bro. Homer Leisy, announced that our pastor had something interesting to tell us. The information revealed the fact that God had laid His hand on our faithful superintendent for full time service and that he had offered himself to the Pacific District Evangelization Committee to serve the church in Dallas.

We had often prayed that the Lord would send workers into His harvest field from our group. Still we were somewhat surprised when He called for one who seemed so vital to us to carry on efficiently. We also felt honored and counted it a privilege to bid our brother and his family God speed, and pray that God may use them in bringing many precious souls to a knowledge of a personal Savior. We miss them greatly, as the entire family served faithfully in various departments of the work.

We are thankful to God for giving us a fine, consecrated, talented young man in the person of Homer Welty, a son-in-law of Bro. Leisy, to step into this so important position. He had served the school as assistant superintendent for sometime and the Lord is blessing the school under his leadership. It is very encouraging to see our young people willingly stepping into service and brings us real joy to work with them.

We have had a number of visiting speakers in the past months, among them are our own dear missionaries from China and India, the Fasts and John Thiessens.—Mrs. Jno. L. Merryman, Corr.

DONNELLSON, IOWA, August 24, 1939

To the Mennonite:

The young people of the four Mennonite Churches of Iowa held their Annual Retreat at the Eicher Church near Noble, Iowa, August 19 and 20. Rev. W. F. Unruh from the Pulaski Church, a former missionary, was the main speaker. His topics were: (1) The Principle of Stewardship as Taught by Jesus; (2) The Stewardship Entrusted to Us by God; (3) Places To Invest Our Talents; (4) God's Heart-Cry For Help. A delicious 6:30 banquent was served and Mrs. Unruh was the speaker.

The following resolutions were submitted and approved:

1. Resolved, that we thank our Heavenly Father for the blessings received and the opportunities given us to meet together in a Young People's Retreat.
2. Resolved that we express our thanks and appreciation to the Young People's Society and the Eicher Church for their kind hospitality.
3. Resolved, that we urge the young people of this district to work toward the goal which, when reached will put the Mennonite Church, not as individuals, but as a church back of a definite peace program.
4. Resolved, that we express our appreciation to Rev. and Mrs. Unruh for their helpful messages.
5. Resolved, that we as Endeavorers should take a new interest in our C. E. for the coming year.—Eileen Kohl, Donnellson, Iowa.

New Staff Members for Bethel College

A number of new staff members are to step in this year at Bethel College, to help shoulder the responsibilities of directing young minds into creative, Christian lines. These new staff members are well trained and are equipped to fill the several vacancies that have come in recent months.

Ralph C. Kauffman, A. B., B. D., comes to Bethel to do work in the field of sociology. He was a graduate fellow at Yale University and has done work for the Family Welfare Society in Rochester, N. Y.

Felix J. Schrag, A. B., B. D., who held the first externeship at Hartford Theological Seminary, is the new field representative. Arnold Voth, A. B., M. S., a graduate of the University of Arizona, is to be instructor in agriculture.

Mrs. Lulu Wertman, B. S., who for some years served as college dietition and supervisor of the dining hall at Park College, comes to Bethel in the same capacity.

Miss Lola M. Hill, A. B., M. S., who holds her advanced degree in home economics from the University of Wisconsin and has taught with unusual success, comes as instructor of home economics.

Miss Honora Becker, A. B., A. M., who holds her advanced degree from the University of Colorado, and served on the Bethel College faculty in the English department this last summer, comes to continue her work in that same position, with much experience as a successful teacher.

David D. Eitzen, A. B., Th. M., who for the current year will be on leave of absence to continue his studies and serve as instructor of Pastoral Psychotherapy and Biblical Literature at the University of Southern California, is later to join our staff as professor of Bible and psychiatric counselor.

The vacancies on the college staff have been due to various reasons. Dr. Roy E. Geeting accepted a position at Alfred Holbrook college, Manchester, Ohio, in the economics and history departments.

Mrs. Mamie K. Phillips, formerly of the home economics department, was married to Mr. Don E. Long this summer, and will make her home at Peabody, Kansas.

Harry E. Martens is to be on leave of absence to continue graduate work at Columbia University.

Rev. J. M. Regier has accepted the pastorate of the Johannestal Church, but will continue to devote part time to the interests of the college.

Willis Rich resigned from his position here during the year to associate himself with the Rich Mercantile Co.

Dr. J. E. Linscheid, head of the English department, passed away suddenly on August 5, 1939. He had served on the college staff for eighteen years, and his going is a great loss to the school.

Applications indicate that the student enrollment will again be large.

IN MEMORIAM

Father, JOHANN H. SCHROEDER, son of Heinrich and Sara Schmidt Schroeder, was born in the village Kleefeld in South Russia, August 5, 1854. He imigrated to the United States of N. A. in July of 1874. He was baptized upon the confession of his faith on December 26, 1875, by Elder Jacob Buller and united with the Alexanderwohl Mennonite Church, Goessel, Kans. On December 10, 1878, he married Katharine Warkentin. To this union were born 8 sons and 3 daughters. Of these one son and one daughter died in infancy. Mother died on February 27, 1897, thus ending this union of 19 years, 2 months and 17 days. He married Mrs. Aganetha Buller, Sept. 4, 1904, thereby assuming paternal obligations over 4 children from our second mother's first marriage. In the fall of 1920 they moved to Moundridge, Kans., and in May 1923 they joined the Christian Mennonite Church at that place. About 5 years ago his sight became impaired and his health in general failed gradually. On Easter Sunday, April 9, 1939, he had to be transferred to the Bethesda Hospital at Goessel, Kansas, where he died August 20, 1939, at the age of 85 years and 15 days. At the Bethesda Hospital he suffered intensely at times. His desire to go home is now fulfilled and in faith in Jesus his redeemer he entered into rest. He leaves to mourn his departure: his wife, Mrs. Aganetha Schroeder; the children, John J. Schroeder, Canton, Kans.; Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Klassen, Sedgwick, Kans.; Mr. and Mrs. David Schroeder, Buhler, Kans.; Mr. and Mrs. Peter M. Schroeder, Newton, Kans.; Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Janzen, Wichita, Kans.; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schroeder, Canton, Kans.; Mr. and Mrs. Adolf Schroeder, Moundridge, Kans.; Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Schroeder, Hillsboro, Kans.; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Schroeder, Goessel, Kans.; one sister, Mrs. Jacob Enns, Canton, Kans.; two brothers, Peter H. Schroeder, Goessel, Kans. and Abram H. Schroeder, Newton, Kans.; 30 grand children, eight great grandchildren, 4 step children, 15 step grandchildren and many other relatives and friends.

Funeral services were held Wednesday, August 23 at the Church of Christian, where Rev. Peter Buller spoke in German, Rev. P. P. Wedel, his pastor, in English. Rev. P. H. Unruh gave a brief sermon at the home and Rev. C. C. Wedel officiated at the grave.

MARY DYCK HOHMANN was born in Franklin, Iowa, November 11, 1864, and passed away at her home south of Deer Creek, Oklahoma, August 23, 1939, having reached the age of 74 years, 9 months, and 12 days. She had been in failing health for some time and bedfast since the Sunday before she passed away.

At the age of 15 years she was baptized by the Rev. John Hirschler and became a member of the Mennonite Church of Franklin, Iowa. At the age of 20 years she went to the Cheyenne and Arapahoe Indian Mission at Contonment, Okla., where she worked for a number of years.—She returned to Moundridge, Kansas, where she was united in marriage to Adam Hohmann of Deer Creek, Okla., March 16, 1899, at the home of her parents. To this union were born 5 children, Anna, Esther, Elsie, Henry, and John. She was one of the organizers of the Mennonite Church of Deer Creek, of which she remained a member until the time of her death.

She is survived by 3 daughters and 2 sons: Anna, Esther, and Henry of Deer Creek, Mrs. V. V. Dombaugh of Anthony, Kansas, and John Hohmann of Kaw City, Okla.; 3 sisters and 2 brothers: Mrs. Wm. Billman of Deer Creek, Miss Anna Dyck, Mrs. E. B. Schmidt and Henry Dyck of Moundridge, Kansas, Wm. Dyck of Reedley, California; two grandsons, and many relatives and friends.

—Dr. J. E. Hartzler of the Theological Seminary at Hartford, Conn. has again served as lecturer of the Bible Institute at the Mount Gretna, Pa. Camp meeting, which is held by the United Brethren in Christ Church and has just gone through its 47th annual session. The themes of Dr. Hartzler's addresses were: Religion in a Changing World, The Land and the Book, The Unseen Hand in Life, The Bible—Inside and Out, Is He Big Enough? Faith, the Telescope of the Soul, What Does it Mean? The Master Power, Building the City of God.

—Grace Church, Enid, Oklahoma.—Rev. H. N. Harder, the pastor, writes: The work is just going fine. Average attendance for August was 71, the highest 100 and the lowest 45 (on Sunday of the Orienta Convention). On August 13 I baptized four people, a gain of eight since organization in October, 1938. A few more have applied for membership.—Aug. 17, Abram Glenn arrived at our home. This makes almost a quartet, with daddy it will be four.

—Bethany Church, Freeman, S. Dak.—Sunday, Aug. 20, Rev. Orlando Waltner, who with Mrs. Waltner is soon leaving for the mission field in India, preached for us.—The local Ministerial Ass'n held its regular meeting on Aug. 16 at the North Church. Rev. Harold Gross, the speaker, used for his theme, "The Minister's Opportunity in Pastoral Counselling."—Sunday, Rev. J. H. Anderson of Minneapolis spoke of his work in the prisons. His message was very vital and touching. This is a mission cause, committed to our trust by our Lord and it is right before our doors.

—Reunion of the Fretz Family, Lansdale, Pa.—This family whose history dates back to Colonial days held its fifty-first reunion at the Deep Run Mennonite Church, which is not far from the spot where the first arrivals of the clan settled on coming to America. Rev. A. M. Fretz, the nearly 86 years old pastor of the Deep Run, Bethel and Springfield churches, was unanimously reelected president of the family, which office he has held continually since the first reunion. The other officers are: William F. Fretz, Pipersville, vice president; Jacob R. Fretz, Lansdale, secretary; Francis M. Fretz, Bedminster, treasurer. Thirty-three of the members present had attended the first reunion in 1888. The family descended from two brothers, John and Christian Fretz, who emigrated from Manheim, Germany, about 1715. It has spread all over this country. Fretz reunions are being held also in Indiana and Canada.

—MARRIED. Miss Lucy Awkland and Mr. Walter Jenkins, at the East Swamp Church, Quakertown, Pa., Aug. 26th, at 4 p. m. The maid of honor was Miss Lillian Landes, the bride's maid, Mrs. Evelyn Awkland, the groom's best man, John Awkland, Jr.

—Bethel Church, Fortuna, Mo.—For our morning messages during September we plan to speak on the book of Colossians: The Price of Redemption, The Completeness of our Redemption, The Result of Our Redemption, Our Christian Fellowship.—Here are your questions. What's your answer?

"What kind of a church would you have if every member were like you? Would you like to see your pastor at certain places you attend? Are you interested enough in our conference work to have THE MENNONITE bring you the latest information? When did you pray for one of our missionaries by name last.—Church Bulletin.

—First Church, Reedley, Calif.—Of the service recently rendered this congregation by Rev. R. Weinbrenner, Dr. J. H. Langenwalter, pastor of the church, writes as follows in their bulletin:

"It has been both pleasant and profitable to have Rev. and Mrs. R. Weinbrenner in our midst for nearly twelve weeks. It would be difficult to enumerate all the helpful touches they gave to the spirit of our fellowship and to the effectiveness of our work. We bespeak for them a career of Christian leadership and living which shall be an honor to God and a source of helpfulness and of blessing to those whose lives they may touch. We wish them well and shall never forget the bond of friendship which has been established during the term of their interneship."

—Rev. Arnold Funk, pastor of the Brudertal Church, Hillsboro, Kans., and family recently visited in Mrs. Funk's home, the Loganbill family, Fortuna, Mo., and Rev. Funk gave the Sunday morning sermon to the Bethel Church.

—From Bulletin of Eighth Street Menn. Church, Goshen, Ind.: "This is 'Friendly Week.' The Friendly Society has set this week aside for a membership drive. This society is an attempt to give an opportunity for its members to do more than is required of us, an opportunity to do "More than others." Organized in 1935 its aim is to "assist in a meager way, in bearing one another's burdens, and in expressing our mutual sympathy in a monetary form, through an organized channel, when the messenger of death visits any home represented by membership in our congregation." It goes not only to those who are members of the Society. It "goes a little farther." Give it your consideration. We urge you to join when contacted by some member of the Society. There are thirty-five members at present. The aim is fifty. All members of the Society who are willing to make a few contacts will please meet in the Lifter's Class room immediately after the service this morning."

—Mr. G. H. Willms, manager of the Herald Publ. Co., Newton, Kans., and family, have recently made an extensive trip east, going as far as St. Catherines, Ont., where they visited his aged mother and four brothers, also the World's Fair at New York, Niagara Falls, and other places of interest.

—Mennonite Patients.—Rev. H. J. Krehbiel, Reedley, Calif., ex-president of the General Conference, is reported to be seriously ill, though remarkably sustained.—Dr. P. R. Schroeder of Freeman, S. Dak., is still lingering in the Sacred Heart Hospital, Yankton, S. Dak., though with more hope. Mrs. Richert, wife of Dr. P. H. Richert of Goessel, Kans., is confined at the Bethel Hospital, Newton, Kans., suffering from a serious heart ailment. She is slightly improved at present. Rev. P. J. Wiens, missionary on furlough from India, residing at 312 E. 5th St., Newton, Kans., has been suffering from sciatica for twelve weeks. He has been in the hospital twice, once for 10 days, and recently a couple of days when his tonsils were removed. Will the readers of this paper, especially the friends and acquaintances of these sufferers kindly remember them in their prayers?

—The Hebron Church near Buhler, Kansas, will celebrate the 60th anniversary of its existence Sunday, Sept. 10. In the forenoon there will be a homecoming service at which three former pastors, the Reverends P. E. Frantz, Dr. P. S. Goertz and J. M. Regier will speak. In the afternoon a historical program will be given and in the evening a musical program.

—Paso Robles, Calif., Aug. 28, 1939.—Dear Bro. Thierstein: We have reached our last "service" station. After the services here in the First Menn. Church and in the San Marcus Church, we shall leave for home, Monday, Sept. 4th. The people in Upland, Los Angeles, Shafter, Reedley, at Lake Sequoia and here have been very kind toward us. We have met many friends and have made new ones. California is a great country with its mountains, deserts, woods, lakes, orchards and many good people. About 90 young people attended the retreat at Lake Sequoia, a beautiful spot 5500 feet high in the mountains among the giant redwood trees. We have experienced the presence of God.—Yours, A. Warkentin.

—MARRIED.—Miss Rose Buller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Buller and Mr. John Ewert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Ewert, in the Friedensberg Church of Avon, S. Dak., Aug. 16 at 2 p. m., by the pastor, Rev. D. A. Schultz, assisted by Rev. John Dirks of Hartford. Reception and program at home of the bride in the evening.

—Mr. R. G. LeTourneau of Peoria, Ill., manufacturer of road building machinery and outstanding Christian, recently dedicated his third large factory "to the guidance of God and his Son, the Savior of humanity." The plant is located at Toccoa Falls, in the North Georgia mountain district. In his dedicatory address he said in part, "We hear the argument of what we could accomplish if we had a man to show us what to do . . . a man to lead us out of our problem . . . a man who could win our confidence. We have that man—that man is my Savior and your Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ! If we would only listen to Him!"

Letter to President Roosevelt

Feeling certain that all members of our Church desire that President Roosevelt know that they prayerfully uphold his hands in his pacific efforts to keep the United States out of war and to aid the belligerants in effecting a just and peaceful settlement of their differences, the following letter was sent to him at Washington.—C. E. K.

Newton, Kansas, September 6, 1939

To the President of the United States
The Hon. Franklin D. Roosevelt
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. President:

Your radio address of September 3d, 1939, and your subsequent statements of neutrality on the part of the United States, concerning the undeclared war in Europe, are greatly appreciated by The General Conference of the Mennonite Church of North America; this the more, because this Church believes that the use of armed force in settling international differences violates the letter and spirit of the New Testament, and specifically the life and teachings of our Lord, the Head of the Church.

May God grant you, Mr. President, continued wisdom in the just and peaceful guidance of the affairs of our beloved land and in every future effort to heal the hurt caused by this un-christian outburst of violence. To this end be assured of our support and prayers.

Yours sincerely,

(Signed) C. E. Krehbiel,
Conference President.

Notice to Young People Societies

In view of the war in Europe, I herewith call on Young People's Societies to hold PEACE RALLIES in order to discuss the following subjects:

"How can we make Peace testimony more effective?"

"How to help keep America NEUTRAL?"

"What to do if called on to fight?"

Olin A. Krehbiel, Pres. Y. P. U.

Emergency Relief Work

Dear Readers of the Mennonite:

The following very urgent appeal has just been received from China. It needs no further comment, only that, we hope many will feel constrained to give as the Lord may direct them, to help care for these unfortunate ones in our mission field.

Tamingfu, Hopei, China, July 25, 1939

Dear Brethren of The Relief Commission:

Greetings! The wheat harvest in the north end of our China Missionfield was from 60 to 70 percent of a good crop. This was sufficient to bridge us over until the fall crop of millet, corn, beans, kaffircorn, sweetpotatoes, etc. could come in. However the overflowing of the Chang River on the west and the Yü River on the south has flooded the Tamingfu district. It is now almost three weeks since the flood came upon us, and still the fields remain deep under water. The fall crop in this district is totally destroyed. With heavy hearts we look forward. It cannot be otherwise, but that during the coming winter there will be much suffering. Since a large portion of the Hopei Province is hard hit by the flood, relief will be difficult, but we shall do all we can to relieve severe suffering. Any funds that come in for this purpose will be faithfully used in behalf of the needy.

Very faithfully yours, H. J. and Maria Brown.

We would also like to remind you again of the great need in Canada, referring particularly to the transportation debts of those families who are absolutely unable themselves to pay. Gifts for the above, have not come up to the expectation by the Board. May God give willing hearts and hands to pray and give. It is the Master's work.

Please send all donations to Rev. P. H. Unruh, Goessel, Kansas. The Emergency Relief Board wishes to thank you for all gifts in the name of the Lord and the needy who are helped.

John C. Mueller, Secr.

And the King said: "Inasmuch as ye did it unto one of these my brethren—even these least—the hungry and naked—ye did it unto me." Matt. 25:40.

EDITORIAL

THE PRESIDENT'S ASSURANCE TO KEEP US OUT OF WAR.—Though things have been said during the past few months that made it doubtful whether our government would take a positively neutral stand in case of another war in Europe, we now have every reason to thank God for the assurances given us by our President of his determination to keep the nation neutral and at peace. Now it behooves all of us Christians to pray continually that God may sustain him in that attitude. How comforting statements such as the following from him: "At this time let me make the simple plea that partisanship and selfishness be adjourned, and that national unity be the thought that underlies all others." "This nation will remain a neutral nation but I cannot ask that every American remain neutral in thought as well. Even a neutral cannot be asked to close his mind or his conscience . . . I have said not once but many times that I have seen war and that I hate war. I say that again and again . . . I hope that the United States will keep out of this war. I believe that it will. And I give you assurances that every effort of your government will be directed toward that end . . . As long as it remains within my power to prevent, there will be no blackout of peace in the United States." The President has already put in full effect the Neutrality Law.—T.

CHURCH BULLETINS.—By church bulletins we mean the sheets which church boards or pastors issue weekly, with the Sunday worship program and announcements. They have their value in placing the whole program at once before the audience and making it possible for the service to proceed without interruption. They thus also save the time that would be consumed by the pastor in making the announcements, in giving out the hymns, scripture passage to be read, etc. The bulletins sent us by quite a number of churches as well as others that have come to our notice, form the basis of our comments which it is hoped, will be received kindly. These helpful bulletins, enough for each one attending the service, can be produced at so small a cost that even the poorest church can afford to use them. All that is needed is some paper and a simple duplicating outfit (even mimeograph machines can now be had at around $20.00), and somebody that is willing to give a little time to do the work. The simplest and least expensive bulletin is the single sheet, two-page kind, with the order of service on one page and the announcements on the other. Some of the churches that issue four-page bulletins, buy the sheets with the outside pages already printed with worthwhile material and then fill the inside with the local program and announcements. This kind of bulletin looks a bit more dignified but costs more, and there is the question if one filled with home material is not apt to be a bit more popular. — In most bulletins the congregation is listed with the singing of "Gloria Patri", the Doxology, three hymns and, in a few, for Responsive Reading. That is as small a part as the congregation should have in the service. The reading of a selected portion of the Scriptures by the congregation should be made a very essential part of the service. But why Responsive Reading and not Reading in Unison which means so much more. Why should we in this day continue the liturgical practices of the mediaeval church? In responsive reading the meditation is disturbed by the effort to fall in line when the turn comes. It is a bit like two persons trying to eat a pie together, one taking a forkful and eating it while the other waits his turn, making it a half-hearted instead of a full-hearted affair. — One very desirable practice is a minute or two of meditation before and after the pastoral prayer, while the organist softly plays the strains of some suitable hymn. "Amens" or other responses after the prayer by the choir spoil the spirit of meditation and should be omitted. — In some programs the offering is listed, in others not. But why not? Is it not a part of worship? So why not list it and give it due significance with a meaningful label, such as: Worship in Giving, the Fellowship of Sharing, Gifts for Those in Need?—In the announcement part one wonders why things like the following couldn't find a place? 1. An appeal for prayers for the really sick in the congregation, or others who are well known. 2. On Sundays when the offering is lifted for missions, education, publication or relief why not emphasize the urgency of the cause behind it, as there often is. 3. Prayers for missionaries and others away from home who are going through trying experiences. — Church bulletins are not a luxury but a great help to the service. Churches that have tried them would not want to be without them.—T.

More Comment on the New Hymn Book

by A. J. Richert, Los Angeles, Calif.

While Prof. W. H. Hohmann and Rev. Lester Hostetler were working on the English Hymn Book at Upland, I paid them a long visit. I was impressed with the thoroughness of their work and their consistent and conscientious endeavor to meet as nearly as possible the requests and suggestions of those in our conference who are concerned about the forthcoming Hymn Book. So far the book promises to be a cherished addition to the musical literature of our conference. If the conference at large could realize the earnest attitude of this committee and the great amount of work in preparing the copy, also the fine prospects of satisfactory and very acceptable results, I believe ample gifts would be forthcoming to cover the cost of all preparatory work and the making of good uniform plates. It is unreasonable to expect any possible profits of the first edition to cover the cost of all preparatory work.

MENNONITE PRINCIPLES

In this column will be published the next couple of weeks statements of Mennonite principles and doctrines as they are recorded in different documents, so that they may be handy of access to our young men, in the event we should be drawn into the new war.

"STATEMENT OF POSITION" and "STATEMENT OF OUR CONCEPT OF PATRIOTISM"

Adopted by the Historic Peace Churches of North America

STATEMENT OF POSITION

"We, Friends, Brethren and Mennonites, assembled in the Conference of the Historic Peace Churches at Newton, Kansas, October 31 to November 2, 1935, remembering in gratitude to God the historic testimony of our churches, desire in absolute renunciation of war for the wholehearted practice of peace and love, to state the basis of our common position:

1. Our peace principles are rooted in Christ and His Word.

2. Through Jesus Christ, who lived among men as the incarnation of the God of love, we become partakers of the spirit and character of our Lord, and thereby are constrained to love all men, even our enemies.

3. Christ has led us to see the value of human life and personalities, and the possibilities in all men, who by spiritual birth from above may become sons of God.

4. The spirit of sacrificial service, love, and goodwill promotes the highest well-being and development of men and society, whereas the spirit of hatred, ill will, and fear destroys, as has been demonstrated repeatedly in human experience.

5. Since good alone can overcome evil, the use of violence must be abandoned.

6. War is sin. It is the complete denial of the Christian spirit of love and all that Christ stands for. It is wrong in spirit and method, and destructive in results. Therefore, we can not support or engage in any war or conflict between nations, classes or groups.

7. Our supreme allegiance is to God. We cannot violate it by a lesser loyalty, but we are determined to follow Christ in all things. In this determination we believe we are serving the interests of our country, and are truly loyal to our nation.

8. Under God we commit ourselves to set forth in the true way of life this statement of position and assume the obligations and sacrifices attending its practice."

STATEMENT OF OUR CONCEPT OF PATRIOTISM

"As members of the Historic Peace Churches we love our country and sincerely work for its highest welfare. True love of our country does not mean a hatred of others. It is our conviction that only the application of the principles of peace, love, justice, liberty, and international goodwill will make for the highest welfare of humanity anywhere. Our faith is in security through love, protection through good will; and for such we are willing to make the necessary sacrifice. We are opposed to war as a method of settling disputes, because it is un-christian, destructive of our highest values and sows the seeds of future wars. We feel that we are true patriots, because we build on the eternal principles of right which are the only foundation of stable government in our world community."

KAI CHOW HOSPITAL SERVES

C. L. Pannabecker

5 o'clock—the afternoon rush at the hospital is over—4 o'clock the student nurses left to go to class and since then the doctors and graduate nurses have finished the remaining cases. The crowds in the hall have broken up—the last ones have seen the doctor, gotten their advice, treatment, medicine, and turned home, many with a walk of 10 miles or more ahead of them. The quiet is a decided contrast to an hour ago; now the nurses are cleaning up, the coolie is sweeping, the accountant is figuring, the secretary is going over the patients' records. We might sit down besides him and see what has been done here since 2 o'clock this afternoon.

64 record sheets means 64 patients seen in 2 to 3 hours, which means fast work. We have occasionally seen over a hundred. Some of these diagnoses are much like you would see in a hospital in America: syphilis, 2 patients to-day, conjunctivitis, abscesses, knee infection, infected cyst in skin, and here is a woman who had an ovarian cyst removed here a month ago, scabies, anal fistula, even chillblaines and pin worms and toothache, tuberculosis, and amebic dysentery, 2 patients with gun shot wounds of the arm and shoulder. Here are a few you don't see so commonly in America; trachoma, 5 cases to-day but if all the school children who had it came at one time there likely would be one to two hundred; 5 Kala Azar kiddies, with enlarged spleens, livers, and swollen "tummies", one complicated with amebic dysentery.

From this group of 64, five were admitted to the hospital. One other patient with amebic dysentery wanted to be admitted, and should have been but we simply had no bed for him, and this is not yet the busy season. We are building wards to increase our capacity this spring by 25 to 30 beds, but even this will not take care of all our needs.

HOME MISSIONS

A. J. NEUENSCHWANDER, Secretary

Lymburn, Alberta, May, 1939

Dear Brother Neuenschwander!

Encouraged by Elder Toews, I shall try to give a report of the field of labor here in the North of Alberta. Our Mennonites have grouped themselves in four places: Wembley, Beaverlodge, Lymburn and Grand Prairie, and number about 15 families at each place. The first three groups form together the Hoffnungsfeld Mennonite Church, while the last one is not yet organized. It has until recently been served by us once a month, but this has now been no longer possible, due to certain conditions. The first three groups each have a minister and, besides, two ministerial candidates who greatly assist in the preaching of the Word. Aside from the groups named there are many Mennonite families scattered over the Peace River Valley. They live singly, separated from our people, join all sorts of religious sects, or become lost in the confusion of the world, without giving heed to the salvation in Christ, which they once knew. And there are many of this type. Our youth, young men and young women, work out in the smaller and larger towns, and on farms. Through their constant and almost uninterrupted serving for others they are weaned away from their parental homes, and also from our denomination into other unaccustomed conditions, where they are neglected in their spiritual-religious life or are exposed to evil. Many lose their faith and go ways that lead to the loss of soul and body.

All this work I face in the consciousness that I cannot overcome it nor catch up with it, for it would take all my time and involve great cost. During the current year I have not been able to do much work outside. An operation that I had to have prevented this, so that I had to confine myself to preaching and house visits among the groups mentioned. But I hope to drive out in the summer months, if the Lord gives grace, strength and the means. May the Lord bless the work done in weakness and create a willingness which will bear this work that often seems so complicated and to hold out little hope on praying hearts and generous hands.

With brotherly greetings, J. D. Nickel.

—Rev. Elmer Basinger of the Mennonite Church at Summerfield, Ill. reports that Dr. J. E. Hartzler is to deliver a series of lectures in their church the week beginning Sunday, Sept. 17 and ending Sunday, Sept. 24. A cordial invitation to attend this feast of lectures is extended.

—On Sept. 9 at 2:00 p. m. took place the 43rd anniversary of the Mennonite Home for the Aged at Frederick, Pa. A good program was rendered.

BETHEL COLLEGE

When Bethel College was built fifty years ago it was founded by Mennonites, for Mennonites. However, through all these years non-Mennonites have always found a welcome. The growth in the student body in recent years has been primarily from the ranks of Mennonite youth. To the administration this is encouraging. Out of 352 students in 1935-36, 61.9 percent were Mennonites.

An ever increasing number of students are compelled to earn a large share of their school expenses. During the past school year two hundred students were thus employed. This fact naturally creates many problems, as to how to co-ordinate the work program with the study program. To help meet this situation, the college decided to change from the semester system to the quarter system, beginning in 1939-40.

By combining work and study the student can receive the education he desires and needs, but it cuts the financial income of the school short, since no sufficient cash is forthcoming. The school year just past was financially very trying. However, during the last weeks of the fiscal year, in July 1939, a dozen churches came to the rescue of the school by making financial canvasses through the Bethel College Fellowships. The result was that although the reduction of the debt has been very small, the condition as a whole was greatly improved. Many thanks to the churches.

The training of public school teachers has always been one of the most important tasks of Bethel College. It is safe to say that far over a thousand teachers have gone out from our school. The Teachers' Placement Bureau has served very effectively. In 1937, out of 58 candidates (including former teachers and students and that year's students) 43 were placed. In 1938, out of 106 candidates 88 were placed. In 1939, (up to August 15) out of 136 candidates, 95 were placed. Each year a number of candidates remained in their old teaching places. The number of vacancies reported to our Bureau the last three years were 308, 409, and 390.

The "one-course-study-plan" during summer school is another attempt to meet the needs of the teachers. School teachers desiring to make further study, take only one course at a time, receiving one hour of college credit per week. These studies are either two, three or five-hour courses. This plan has been in effect two years and has been very favorably received by summer school students, which is evidenced by the increased enrollment during this time: 94, 127, 145.

A large percentage of our graduates always have full time Christian service, the ministry or missionary work, in mind. Of the last five graduating classes, twenty five are now either in this kind of work or preparing for such service.

On August 5, 1939, a most faithful servant of Bethel

College, Dr. John E. Linscheid, passed to his eternal reward at the age of 52 years. For six years between 1905 and 1914 he was a student at Bethel, graduating in 1914, and for eighteen years, 1921 to 1939, he served as professor of English. He has left an indelible mark on the lives of hundreds of his students.

Thus the work at Bethel College goes on and shall continue, as long as the vision of our people is wide enough, and the hearts warm enough to sacrifice.

FAREWELL, DEAR FRIENDS

Farewell, Dear Friends, farewell, we say,
Since you forsook your house of clay
And moved to a much better place,
How much we miss your loving face!

And since your soul has been released,
To us henceforth you are deceased;
We hope, you safely did arrive
In your new home of higher life.

The parting in this world is hard,
Of those of whom we are a part;
All loved ones who must yet remain
Are feeling it with crucial pain.

What an illustrious life you led,
Is proved by all the friends you've had.
Your work has ended here on earth,
And who can calculate its worth?

Your home has changed—the empty chair
Does indicate you are not there;
Your voice is silent since you left,
Which proves to us that we're bereft.

Although you did from us depart,
You left a warm spot in our heart,
And memories of every sort
Give hope and joy and much comfort.

Just wait a while—we're coming too,
Rest peacefully till we meet you;
And what a meeting that will be,
When we'll meet in eternity!

V. HOW

1. Ways of Working

"And they went forth preaching, teaching, and healing." "Teaching them to observe all things . . ." There is such a great variety of service, that we can only suggest a number of ways, while new ways will constantly present themselves. We learn as we go.

Workers may start out, let us say, by visiting homes where there are the sick, the old, the friendless, and the neglected; with songs, scripture reading, prayer, a testimony or two, and a word of encouragement, leaving with them a few tracts, perhaps a Penny Gospel. Usually people are very grateful for such visits. Do not forget the children! Tell them a Bible story, teach a few Bible verses and a few choruses or a little song, and a little prayer, if they do not know these things; and leave with them a few pictures and some easy reading matter. Whatever the reaction may be in a place, be sure and keep the door open to come back! This may require much tact sometimes. Pray for wisdom.

Other Ways: Young men may put up Gospel signs along the highways. How to do this? Learn from the business people. Write letters, where necessary. Invite people to services, where you know that the full Gospel is being preached or taught. Give out tracts, carefully and prayerfully, everywhere. Visit families all along, thus by and by canvassing the whole neighborhood. Give Biblical Programs in public places. These should not be long but full of life, and to the point. Expect practical results everytime. Start Mission Sunday Schools and Christian Endeavors. Arrange Daily Vacation Bible Schools and Children's Bible Classes on weekdays throughout the year. Also neighborhood Bible classes with young people and older ones, and start winter Bible courses. Visit jails, reformatories, county farms, trying to arrange regular meetings and Bible classes, if possible.

Follow up the work constantly. Later arrange revival meetings, in school houses, or wherever possible. Have a loan library of the very best scriptural books.

2. How to Win the People into the Right Way here follow a few principles: Above all, remember, this is not a social service, although some physical help may be given in places, and this largely as a means towards spiritual ends. Recall Jesus' method at the Samaritan well. Study this principle. We want to get the tree healed, and better fruit will result. All service must lead toward the real aim: To lead souls to Christ; and then lead souls closer to Him.

Always leave the definite impression that this work is non-sectarian. Let the people know and feel it that you are not coming to get anything that is theirs, but to do them good. You want to help them to help themselves. Be interested in what they are interested in, as far as possible, and lead them out and on into better ways. Find things commendable, and speak of these. Help to make Christians out of them. Church membership will be taken care of later. Let them help you, in any way possible, to make new contacts. Most families are thankful, if shown better ways of bringing up children. — Let the singing of spiritual songs be heartfelt, rather than just pleasing to the ear. It should be harmonious rather than loud. Songs must have a great message of Christ and the Gospel, and therefore the words should be plainly understood.

3. How to Keep Them in the Right Way

"Teach them to observe the all things" of Matt. 28:20. Keep on following UP all the work. Teach much Bible! Provide good Sunday literature. Lead on and on, into a fuller and deeper Christian life. Put people to work as soon as possible, young and old, to help you, and to pass on to others what they have learned, received, and experienced. This will help them to grow in all things. Do not organize churches, but lead people to churches that are really commendable. The Lord will direct.

SERMON SKETCH

GAIN THROUGH LOSS

Rev. W. Harley King, Pastor, First Menn. Church, Colfax, Washington

Mark 8:34-35. " . . . For whosoever will save his life shall lose it; but whosoever shall lose his life for my sake and the gospel's, the same shall save it."

Introduction

The words of the text were spoken by our Lord himself and are recorded six times in the four synoptic gospels. It is one of the potent sayings which might have been termed, "an hard saying", because of the seeming paradoxical statement. If the critics of that day were like some of today they might have been heard to say, such utter foolishness, that cannot be. But perhaps it is not as paradoxical as it seems.

I. The Significance of Following Christ

Multitudes were following Christ, literally, wherever he went: disciples, inquirers, sign-seekers, skeptics, and the indifferent. Our Lord had no difficulty in distinguishing the true disciples. He would however have his hearers openly declare themselves: believers or unbelievers; disciples or opposers; either for or against him. The invitation was, and still is: "Whosoever BELIEVETH on him hath LIFE" and is free from condemnation (John 3:15-18). Such a Gift to undeserving man! Let none deceive himself, however, the cost of discipleship must be considered. It may prove to be a test of one's love for and fidelity to Christ. A yielded life, a surrendered will he desires. In John 12:25 we find the words, "He that loveth his life shall lose it."A hard blow at all selfishness.

II. The Cost of Discipleship

It is stated in the form of a challenge in three parts.

First, "Let him deny himself." Not deny himself something, but self. Say, no, to the self life and yes to God. (Gal. 2:20; John 12:24.)

Second, "Take up his cross." Not the trials which sometimes befall us, though they may be a cross, but his cross whatever that cross may be, he asks us to bear to the place of death.

Third, "And follow me." To go where he leads, whatever the cost, follow. It may mean being scoffed at; it may mean persecution or even ostracism for another. (As it does for our American Indian brethern).

III. The Alternative and the Respective Recompense

The alternative is stated in the text in a striking way. Life, is used in a double sense: the physical or temporal and the spiritual or eternal. The aim in life will determine the goal and the result. To live for this life only may mean the loss of both. Example, the rich fool of Luke 12:17-21. To place first things first, the eternal, the spiritual to the end that Christ may be exalted and the gospel promgulgated gain in spite of loss material or physical. Where is there a captain, a pilot, a fireman, a nurse who will desert his post in the face of danger to save his own life. To do so would mean to bear the world's contempt which would be worse than death. If that is true in a worldly sense, can it be any less so in the spiritual realm? Illustration: The candle to which is given a light and a place to shine must needs give itself, be consumed, if it is to give light and be of service.

ISAIAH: FORTELLING THE BIRTH OF THE MESSIANIC KING

Isaiah 7:14; 9:1-7; 11:1-5

Introduction

Isaiah lived and prophecied in troubled days for Judah. Ahaz, a king with little or no faith in God, was on the throne and Judah was in constant trouble because of her enemies, Syria and Assyria (7:1-13). Isaiah called upon the king and the people repeatedly to put their trust in God. It appeared to be a hopeless task. Isaiah declared to his people a revelation of the divine will and predicted dire results unless there were a change of heart. Isaiah surpassed the other prophets in the extent of the predictive element. His predictions concerning the Messiah are remarkable, reaching their climax in the wonderful 53rd chapter.

The Virgin Son 7:14

Isaiah is urging king Ahaz against seeking the help of the Assyrian king against Israel and Syria (vs. 11-13). Ahaz refuses to ask God for a sign to prove that Isaiah's words will prove true. Therefore the Lord himself will give him a sign (v14). In faith Isaiah foresaw the coming of the Messiah as a child, born of a virgin. His name was to be "Immanuel", which means "God with us". This could not be true in an ordinary birth. It meant that God would become incarnated in human flesh in the son, born of a virgin. This prophecy was so remarkably fulfilled in the Babe of Bethlehem.

Light Shining in Darkness 9:1-7

Israel was in a dark day when the Assyrian invaders swept the country—Galilee—and carried the people into captivity (v1 also 2 K. 15:29). Dark gloom enveloped them. In these darkened places the people shall see a "great light" (v2). The Messiah, King, Israel's only hope, was to come to Galilee. These people were to receive unusual blessings through Him. He is to bring spiritual light and joy into people's hearts in a world lying in spiritual darkness.

The kingly character of the coming Messiah is here portrayed. He is the bringer of light. He is also to liberate the people from the yoke of the oppressor. Isaiah had been talking about the Assyrian invasion and oppression (8:7, 8). He thinks of the Messianic deliverer from oppression. Isaiah's people needed most of all, deliverance from the burden of sin and that is what humanity needs, above all else, today.

The Messiah is described as a child "born unto us", that is Israel; a Son, given unto them, God's extraordinary gift unto man. He shall be the Head of the Kingdom. No one title is adequate to describe his characteristics (v6). These titles reveal the various aspects of his character. He is the Prince of Peace, the arbiter of peace between God and man, the one who alone can bring peace to our warring world today. His government and peace shall be increasingly established as men shall yield themselves to Him. Wars are instigated by men who have not yet enthroned Him in their hearts. His reign will be in righteousness and justice for ever (v7). He is everlasting and his Kingdom will be everlasting.

Nature of Christ's Kingdom Rule 11:1-5

The royal line of Israel is compared to the stump of a tree. Out of the seemingly lifeless stem will spring forth a Branch—the Messiah. His supreme endowment shall be "the Spirit of the Lord." He shall be divinely endowed (vs. 2-4). His character is here described. Isaiah describes here conditions as they shall be after Jesus rules upon earth. He pictures marvelously the characteristics as seen in the life of Jesus while here on earth. He was anointed with the Spirit of God, his equipment for his task.

We should enthrone Christ as King in our hearts and lives.

The Mennonite Conscience and the World

By Dr. Henry Stauffer, Berkeley, California

To be a Christian is to be a resolute idealist. And that means being different from the world in so far as the world is a force hostile to Jesus' way of being good and doing good. The Mennonites have always taken Paul's admonition seriously: "Come ye out from among them and be ye separate." (II Corinthians 6:17).

There are three possible reactions to the world:

1. Yielding unresistingly to the insistent pull of mass gravitation. This insures a man's regularity, popularity, and, in the long run, his ethical non-entity. For the crowd is very often in the wrong. And a few sane idealists who have dared to step out from the rank and file and bear witness to the truth that was in them have become the lights of the world. Difficult as the role of the non-conformist is, it is the only course that leads to self-realization, self-respect, and the respect of others.

2. Fleeing from "the maddening crowd's ignoble strife," resolved to live alone or with a group of kindred spirits who take upon themselves the triple vow of poverty, chastity, and obedience. Those who have chosen this course are called monks and nuns. I know the negative Protestant reaction to these words. But I submit that, in view of all the facts, it is neither fair nor scientific to toss monasticism jauntly into the scrap heap along with the delusions of an infallible church and witchcraft. For we cannot forget that during the five centuries of the Dark Ages a few monks were the sole custodians of the priceless manuscript of the Greek classics and of the oldest three manuscripts of the Greek New Testament. These monasteries were the vital germs of the future universities and libraries of Europe. What would the world be today, if these little and almost unknown groups of idealists had forgotten their vows and gone to sleep!

3. Remaining in the world, but daring to be different—the choice of the Mennonites. This course was exceedingly difficult and dangerous at the beginning of the reformation four hundred years ago, when the Mennonite movement originated. And it is difficult today, especially because of our complex economic and social structure. The modern man who takes Jesus seriously and who therefore tries conscientiously to act his part and fails to measure up to the exacting situation deserves sympathy and encouragement rather than denunciation.

A Mennonite of high standing some years ago was asked by his party to accept its nomination to the governorship of his state. He declined because, if elected, he could not have taken an oath to enforce all the laws, including the one which prescribed the death penalty for murder.

During the World war a certain Protestant layman in New York who had inherited great wealth found himself in a very trying situation. He was so strongly opposed to the war he felt he could not accept any of the profits received for manufacture of war implements. However, some of the corporations to which he belonged, but in which he did not own 51 per cent of the stock, decided to accept large orders at an enormous profit. He was the helpless victim of circumstances. He took the only honorable course open by devoting one million dollars, his share of tainted war profits, to the relief of the distressed Armenian refugees.

In 1873 a colony of Amish Mennonites of Lancaster county, Pennsylvania, settled in Kansas, hoping there to keep the even, unworldly tenor of their way. And they realized their desire until on an evil day oil was discovered in their vicinity. Immediately they had to meet the devil's bait in an entirely new form. Here was a chance to get easy money for which they had no use at all. In Pennsylvania it was easy to defy the fashions of the world by going unshaven, wearing broad-brimmed hats, and riding in plain, horse-drawn buggies, while their neighbors whirled by them in automobiles. But it was not so easy to resist the wily arts of the trained, high-pressure salesmen of the oil companies who followed them around the fields with generous contracts, begging them to sign on the dotted line. Finally the stricter members of the sect sold their farms to their "worldly" brethren at the mere cost of the land as homesteads and fled from the scene of temptation to Iowa or back to Pennsylvania.

I cite these cases not to hold them up to ridicule, but to make vivid the difficulties that beset the path of any one who dares to be different and who is ready to pay the cost. The Mennonites have succeeded in a greater measure than did the larger Christian groups in keeping themselves "unspotted from the world." Whether the price they paid was not too high in many cases is an open question.

Coming to closer grips with the real meaning of the renunciation of the world, whether in the Roman Catholic or the Protestant way, we see that it implies the choice of a partial, instead of a complete cultural, civic, and political status; in other words, voluntary limitation of privileges and obligations. For the stricter Mennonites it means the refusal to vote, hold office, and bear arms.

Such a course raises the ethical question whether those who refuse to bear their full share of responsibility for the maintenance of an efficient government are entitled to all the benefits which such an organization guarantees to its citizens. The man of the world may rightly insist that those who refuse to bear arms when war threatens the very existence of the state are in duty bound to make full compensation for such civic slackness in other ways. The Mennonites have always conceded the justice of such claims and have gladly given their full measure of service to the state in various ways. The Russian Mennonites in the nineteenth century during the many years of their residence in the Ukraine conducted a conspicuously successful social and agricultural experiment station. And so they rendered a greater service to Russia than by bearing arms. Likewise in Poland, a stronghold of Roman Catholicism. In spite of the fact that the Mennonites there were regarded as dangerous heretics, they were long tolerated because of their distinguished service to the wealthy landowners.

Only that part of our environment with which we correspond is culturally significant for us. There may be an oratorio on the air, but it becomes real and culturally significant only to the man who snatches it from the mystic ether by turning his radio dial so as to receive it.

The Mennonites insured themselves against the blighting effects of too close contact with the secular affairs of the world by corresponding with but a part of their environment and so limiting their cultural status. This major decision accounts for their maintenance of private schools, their preference for the German language, their settlement in the country, and their rejection of an educated ministry. Their opposition to the public school system in Pennsylvania, which evoked severe criticism, was due to the fact that experience had proven that the free mingling of their children with worldly children resulted in a disrelish for the plain ways and severe ethics of the parents.

The total effect of this self-chosen, restricted cultural status was insulation against the subtle influence of the scientific spirit of the day; and it accounts for the perpetual exodus of many of their most talented boys and girls to churches whose standards of membership are much less exacting. It led inevitably to the deplorable error of renouncing as sinful the love of beauty in sound, color, and form. I recall my experience as a child whose parents were members of a small Mennonite sect, the River Brethren, in Stark county, Ohio. To them any attempt to improve the congregational singing was an instance of worldliness. The orthodox attitude was expressed by one who insisted that the refusal to participate in the singing merely because not every one was singing in the same key was due to sinful pride. In this view the one purpose of singing was to "make a joyful noise unto the Lord." In this they did succeed. But to at least one adolescent the effect was not especially edifying.

From the Shipshewana Retreater

We note that the Mennonite young people of the Shipshewana Retreat exchanged retreat delegates with the Church of the Brethren and the Quakers. The results were very edifying. This is a good means of promoting inter-denominational cooperation and friendliness.

Reverend Kreider of Bethel College conducted some very inspiring sunset services on the shore of the lake. After quiet music he told of a notable character who works "In the Service of the King." He builds his talks around the scripture: "Seekest thou great things for thyself—seek them not." Some of the men used as illustrations were, Wilfred Grenfell, Albert Schweitzer, Frederick Oberlin, and Booker T. Washington.

Subjects used by various groups in the daily chapel services were, "Peace," "Music," "The Greatness of Service," and "Wisdom and Understanding."

For improvement of future retreats, Harry Yoder suggests, a common bunk house for all boys, a common bunk house for all girls, a common dining room, and a schedule for two groups—those of intermediate age and those older.

A HOPE

As a new school year begins may many young people avail themselves of the strong Bible departments of our church colleges. Bethel has so strengthened its Bible department that it offers to grant a Bachelor of Theology degree.

A MEANS OF CHRISTIAN GROWTH

Christians are continually tempted to dilute the strength of the Christian religion. They are tempted to act and think as though the Christian life were a capsule to be taken and not something to be cultivated by hard, diligent labor.

Christ taught that those who would follow Him would have to put forth effort, sacrifice, and continually seek to grow. To live otherwise means making Christianity shallow and ineffectual.

Various Christian agencies exist in order to deepen the Christian life by the impartation of Christian knowledge and inspiration. Among them are the C. E. societies. Thus, the C. E. societies and the programs they render are not ends in themselves but rather means unto an end. They should exist not for entertainment but for edification.

The Christian Endeavor material in these pages is intended for the latter purpose. It should prove very useful for the planning of Christian Endeavor programs. However, it is capable of rendering a much greater service. To those who take the time and effort to read it, it can give knowledge and inspiration for making Christianity real and vital in everyday life.

In Genesis we read, "And Isaac went out to meditate in the field at eventide." This was a very wise thing for a young man to do. If we fail to take time to meditate on the problems of our own Christian growth and the problems of human society, then we can expect a shallow, superficial Christian life. Dynamic Christian living does not come easily.

Why not use some time in your daily worship period for meditating on the weekly C. E. topic. It will help you to grow daily and it will help you to receive and contribute much more effectively as the C. E. topic is considered in your C. E. program. This material is intended for the use of all young Christians, not for program committee members only. Regardless of whether your program committee does or does not use it, read it and grow. It is a means unto an end in which we should all be interested. Let us see clearly. Leaders, this needs your encouragement.

Eastern District C. E. Convention

Quakertown, R. D. No. 2, Pa., Sept. 4, 1939

The following is the list of the Officers and Resolutions favorably acted upon at the Eastern District Christian Endeavor Convention on May 30, 1939.

OFFICERS OF MENNONITE YOUNG PEOPLE'S C. E. UNION, 1939 - 1940

President, Mr. DeWitt Temple, 129 Herman St., Philadelphia, Pa.; Vice President, Mr. James Gerhart, Bally, Pa.; Recording Secretary, Miss Grace Moyer, 612 S. 5th St., Allentown, Pa.; Corresponding Secretary, Miss Alverda Bauman, Quakertown, R. D. No. 2, Pa.; Mission Secretary, Miss Margaret Slotter, Kulpsville, Pa.; Treasurer, Mr. Chester Mill, Blooming Glen, Pa.; Intermediate Superintendent, Mr. Norman Geissinger, Palm, Pa.; Junior Superintendent, Miss Anna Baum, Hilltown, Pa.

RESOLUTIONS

The Resolution Committee presented the following Resolutions for adoption:

Be it resolved that:

1. We are grateful to the Heavenly Father for His loving kindness to our organization during the past year, and for this Memorial Day; also, we offer our heartfelt thanks to Rev. Swartz and all his helpers who are showing us true Christian hospitality.

2. The Executive Committee continue efforts made to branch out in our Young People's Work by investigating the possibility of a joint meeting of Brethren, Friends, and Mennonites, and the possibility of a radio broadcast over a local station.

3. We take an active part on planning for the General Conference in 1941 and that we notify the Eastern District Conference to this effect.

4. The incoming Executive Committee appoint a "Mennonite Correspondent" to send advance notices and following reports of all our activities.

5. The Eastern District Conference C. E. will cooperate with the General Conference in working out the Follow-up system, especially supplying membership of the local societies to General Conference Christian Endeavor Union.

6. We endorse resolutions adopted by the General Conference C. E. Union and that the local societies be urged to put them into effect.

7. We, as a Christian Endeavor organization, wish to express our appreciation to our own Eastern District Conference and to the General Conference for their direct stand which they are taking on the subject of Peace and World Brotherhood. We wish to go on record as willing to uphold the principles of Peace as expressed by our Mennonite forefathers.

WHAT DIFFERENCE DOES IT MAKE WHAT WE BELIEVE?

For Daily Reading:

Sept. 25. Belief necessary to please God. Heb. 11:5, 6.
Sept. 26. Abraham's belief. Gal. 3:6-9.
Sept. 27. Without belief a promise failed. Heb. 3:18 - 4:2.
Sept. 28. Belief the way to salvation. Acts 16:27-34.
Sept. 29. Unbelief about Christ leading to belief in a lie. II Thess. 2:8-12.
Sept. 30. The fate of unbelief. Rev. 21:8.
Oct. 1. What difference does it make what we believe? Psalm 12.

Opening Song, "My Redeemer"
Scripture Reading—Psalm 12
Sentence prayers asking God to help us to form proper beliefs and expressing gratitude to God for His goodness to those who believe in Him.
Chorus, "I Have the Joy, Joy"

We want this meeting to echo with real joy.

Bible verse-finding contest between girls and boys. Use these verses which have a bearing on the topic. Ps. 78:22; Matt. 8:13; Matt. 9:28; Matt. 18:6; Mark 1:15; Mark 5:36; Mark 9:23; Luke 8:13; John 1:7; John 6:36; John 12:36; John 14:1; John 16:30; John 20:31; Acts 8:37; Acts 13:93; Rom. 1:16; Rom. 3:22; Rom. 9:33; I Cor. 1:21; Gal. 3:22; Heb. 4:3; Heb. 11:6; I Pet. 2:7; I John 5:1.

Song, "Thy Word is Like a Garden, Lord"

Thoughts on the topic:

Joy and peace come from believing in things worth believing in.

1. It is a joyful thing to really believe in the forgiveness of sins.

2. It is a joyful thing to believe that every trouble that may come to us is an opportunity for us to become better men and women. It is a part of our process of Christian growth.

3. It is a joyful thing to make unselfish sacrifices.

4. It is a joyful thing to live those convictions which we believe. It is only then that our lives will have an influence upon others for good.

Song, "Somebody"
Offering and announcements

Closing thought by the leader

"Our joy is founded on the conviction that in Christ our sins are forgiven; through Christ our cross is made purposeful and bearable; with Christ our service is redeemed from selfish motives: This joy no man taketh from us. It is the joy of perfect peace—it is to live in the very atmosphere of heaven. In this world where so many souls are desperate and afraid, all who claim to believe in a God of hope are challenged to be different from the average. How joyful are you, and to what measure are your mind and heart at peace in believing? How well do you proclaim by the light of your countenance, that it is good to be alive?"

Close with Psalm 19:14.

The more sincere and positive we are in our belief, as a rule, the less demonstrative we are.—Beecher.

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

October 8—"Speaking To Yourselves in Psalms and Hymns and Spiritual Songs." Eph. 5:19.

October 15—"And the Ransomed of the Lord . . . Shall Come . . . With Songs. Isaiah 35:10.

October 22—"I Will Sing Unto the Lord For He Hath Triumphed Gloriously." Exodus 15:16.

October 29—"Singing and Making Melody in Your Heart to the Lord." Eph. 5:19.

Verse for the Month. Psalm 104:33, 34.—"I will sing unto the Lord as long as I live: I will sing praise to my God while I have my being. My meditation of him shall be sweet: I will be glad in the Lord."

Song for the Month: "O Could I Speak the Matchless Worth," M. H. B. 239.

"COME BEFORE HIS PRESENCE WITH SINGING"

Psalm 100:2

Program for October 1, 1939

To the Leader:

We have a wonderful heritage in our congregational singing. Just recently a visitor in a Mennonite Church remarked about the beauty of the congregational singing in that church. This has always been a characteristic of Mennonite Church worship. May we as Junior leaders make this precious to our Juniors in this month's study.

In this lesson we want to stress the thought of worshipping God with our singing, in the next lesson we will study the Psalms. On October 15 the Songs of the Bible and follow that with a study of hymns and illustrative pictures, completing our months work with a program of hymns we love.

I. Worship Service

1. Prelude
2. Call to Worship—"O come let us worship and bow down; Let us kneel before the Lord our Maker: For we are His people, and the sheep of His pasture."
3. Song, "O Worship the King," M.H.B. 31, v. 1, 2.
4. Scripture: Psalm 108:1-5 by a Junior Boy and Psalm 98:4-6; 40:3 by a Junior girl.
5. Prayer by leader
6. Song—"O Could I Speak the Matchless Worth" (The Leader should read the words of this song and make necessary comments before it is sung)

II. Mission Minutes

1. Choose and sing a mission song
2. Invite a representative of one of the missionary organizations of the church to speak briefly to the Juniors of the aims and work of their organization.

III. Study Period:

Aim: To help our Juniors to realize their responsibility and privilege in sharing in the congregational singing.

1. Recall the songs sung during the morning worship. What was it, a prayer song or a praise song? Sing one verse of each song sung.
2. Discuss:
    a. Why do we sing in our church service?
    b. How do hymns help in the service?
    c. Which hymns do you enjoy most to sing, one that you have memorized, or one that you must read in order to be able to sing?
3. "We should memorize some good hymns. Why?" Might be discussed by an older person.
4. Two Juniors speak on "Where apart from church service, may we serve God by singing"
5. Boys chorus sing a favorite hymn
6. Girls chorus sing a favorite hymn
7. Verse of month in unison—Ps. 104:33, 43
8. Talk by leader:
    Bring out the fact that songs are older than sermons." People sang before preachers preached. Every song has a message for each hymn was written by some one who had a reason for writing it. We should find this message and then sing the song in such a way that the essage is brought out. A prayer song should be sung prayerfully. We must think of the words of the song we sing just as we think of the words of the prayer we pray. It is our privilege to sing with all the others in the church service. May we do this to the honor and glory of God.
9. Sing a song that is a general favorite
10. Leader's closing prayer

Invitation to Annual Hospital Gift Day

To be held All Day, Thursday, Sept. 14 at Home for the Aged, Newton, Kans., beginning at 10:00 A. M.

Friends of the Institution far and wide are cordially invited to visit the Hospital and its additions on this day, enjoy the programs, meet friends, and leave whatever contribution they desire to make in cash or supplies to help along in the benevolent service that the institution renders.

With the extensive building program, which included the training school and new clinic annex, the Bethel Hospital has made some phenomenal advances this year. Because of its ever increasing scope and area of service, it is hoped also that a much enlarged crowd of visitors will attend the Gift Day exercises next Thursday. With new opportunities and responsibilities have come also new needs which the Hospital must meet and therefore solicits the support of many friends at this time.

Two programs will be given, one in the afternoon and one in the evening. There will be interesting addresses and special music which everyone will enjoy, and to which everyone is invited. Ladies of the senior and junior auxiliaries will serve a lunch at noon and will have refreshments available at the afternoon and evening programs. All receipts from the sale of food and sundry articles will be used for the benefit of the institutions.

The new hospital annex, built at an approximate cost of $50,000, was just recently dedicated. It marks a distinct advance for better hospital and medical service, and also helps to meet the exacting present day medical requirements. Many who have not yet had the opportunity, will want to see this hospital addition which was made possible only through the united labors and sacrifices of many friends.

To old and new friends and supporters, to all who read this, the Bethel Hospital and Bethel Home for Aged therefore extend a most hearty invitation for the coming Gift Day. Whatever gifts they can bring will be very gladly received and very much appreciated.

Extracts of a Letter from South Anerica

Tomorrow it will be a week since Brother Henry Fast left the ship to come to us, and yet it seems as though he had been long among us, as though he had never been a stranger here. We have all come to love him.

To me was accorded the honorable commission to meet Bro. Fast at the steamship and bring him here. It did not take much effort to single him out of the crowd of passengers. It pleased Bro. Fast very much to find so readily a guide in this foreign land with a foreign language. After customs formalities were attended to, we traveled by train to the one-million city St. Pauli. During this short distance we rose 800 meters from sea level. In St. Pauli we had the privilege of meeting some of the young Mennonites employed there, among others also the two sisters Ediger who five years ago came here from Canada.

On Sunday morning we took our seats in an autobus that conveyed us on good roads, through a beautiful mountain region to Curitiba, 520 kilometers away. Here we were anxiously looked for, as there was to be a meeting in the evening, at which Bro. Fast was to speak. The joy of meeting was great. The greetings of elder, Bro. Jacob Hübert, were concentrated in the word of God, "Du hast wohlgetan, dass du gekommen bist." What Bro. Fast has been to us in four short days, resp. five evenings can not be expressed in such a short letter. Old and young, children, men and women were captivated by what the Brother had to report to us.

Now it became clear to us in what great danger we find ourselves. In the danger, namely, that we here at this lonely spot drift away from the great work of our denomination, from the great activities in God's kingdom. That we lose the vision for the large things. That we will soon see no work challenging us. And when that is the fact, we become lost in little things. Through this we have again been stirred up. I shall not proceed farther for fear that I may anticipate things that Bro. Fast will write.

With gratitude and greetings,
Peter Klassen

—MENNONITE CHURCH, BUTTERFIELD, MINN.—Plans had been under way for some time by the members of the Mennonite Church to help Rev. Schultz celebrate his birthday on August 27. This was to be in the nature of a surprise. As he had previously arranged to be out of town Sunday afternoon and evening, the group met at the church Monday evening, and when all was in readiness Rev. Schultz was sent for. This was the regular evening for Senior choir rehearsal and as he often attends these rehearsals, his suspicions were not aroused. When he entered the church, he was greeted with the "birthday song." A short program was rendered and a collection was taken. To show their love for him and their appreciation for his services, the congregation presented him with a purse amounting to $125.—Corr.

—Rev. H. N. Harder of the Grace Church, Enid, Okla., will conduct a series of morning devotions over radio station KCRC, 1360, from 7:30 to 7:45. Everybody is cordially invited to listen.—At the baptismal service, recently, 300 worshippers crowded the new church.

—"The Zion Mennonite Church of Donnellson, Iowa, held its baptismal service Sunday, Sept. 3. Four young girls and three young men were admitted as church members."

A GENERAL CONFERENCE CHURCH

CUAUHTEMOC, CHIHUAHUA, MEXICO

H. P. Krehbiel

Cuauhtemoc

Inhabitants, Occupation, Surroundings

CUAUHTEMOC, MEXICO

View from the northwest. Lake in the foreground—retained by dam. City is spread out over several miles. The mountain peaks rise, some of them several thousand feet above the surrounding plateau country.

As is known from the preceding section of this report, the town Cuauhtemoc is located in the western part of the state Chihuahua in Mexico. In civilization this part of Mexico is still very backward. It is within but very recent time that Mexico has attained a form of government under which the citizens, whether native or immigrant, are really free and have the right to own land or engage in other undertakings for independent selfdevelopment. Formerly all land was owned by land-barons as family heritages, or was owned by the Catholic Church. The rest of the inhabitants, especially the natives, were virtually peons or serfs. In consequence the aboriginal inhabitants were very poor, without culture and utterly unprepared to take advantage successfully of the opportunities now open to them. They lacked practical knowledge and experience. Then also they had no capital with which to purchase land, even at a very low price. There were only a few here and there who were able with some degree of success to take advantage of the opportunities offered them under the new regime.

As has frequently happened in history, Mexico is seeking to attract successful farmers from countries of Europe and North America to locate in Mexico, buy land and farm it. This they do with the expectation that native Mexicans will learn from their example the art of up-to-date farming. However this lead only very slowly to the attainment of the end sought, namely to the conversion of these children of nature into successful modern farmers.

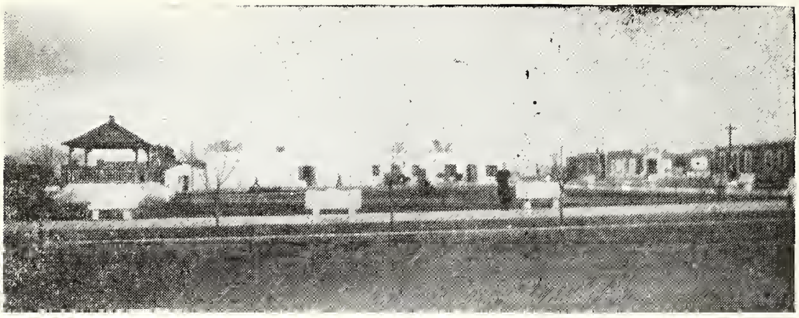
Residence of the brothers and families; Rev. Jacob Janzen, wife and child, and Wilh. Janzen, wife and two children.

It should be mentioned that before 1922 no Mennonites had as yet located in the Cuauhtemoc region. That whole territory had only widely scattered land barons occupying extensive haciendas. Their property consisted mostly of cattle, horses and donkeys. Very little farming was done. Thus the region was in this respect seventy years ago, very similar to the West Central Plain of the United States and stretching beyond into Canada, an uninhabited plain, a prairie country.

It was about the year 1923 that Mennonites began to settle a short distance north of Cuauhtemoc. That brought some life into the little village. In 1926, David Redekop Sr. decided to locate here. As reported previously, he located in the village. Mexicans continued also to locate here and build houses Mexican fashion, and sought employment. Some other Europeans also continued to locate here, some on farms, some in business. But Mexicans far outnumbered all other inhabitants of the town. However, these natives appear to be pleasant people with whom it is not unpleasant to deal. At present the town has greatly expanded until its population now numbers about four thousand.

The government appears to be liberal. In the center of the city there is a public clinic, in which, according to information received, two days each week sick persons without means receive free examination and treatment. This public clinic is also patronized by European immigrants including Mennonites and other Germans.

The owners of larger estates have built in the city their own pavilion for gatherings or meetings of their group as also by individuals for occasionally spending a night there.



CUAUHTEMOC CITY CENTER

The Park. Note the cement walk, the comfortable seats and the Band Stand. In the central background note David Redekop's business establishment. See buggies, still used there, standing in front of the store.

Spanish idealism is conspicuously observable at the pretty, though still young public city park. It is located in the center of the town and covers an entire city block. Ornamental trees are planted within the park. These are irrigated during the dry periods. A liberally wide cement walk surrounds the park, and many substantial cement seats along the walk invite the public to be seated. In the center of the park a small roofed over platform serves as music stand or lecture platform at occasional public meetings.

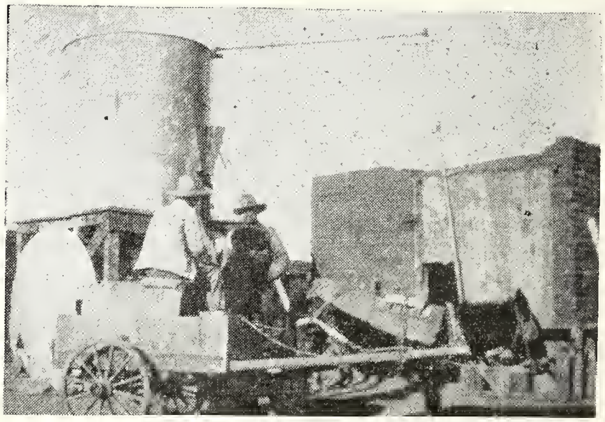
Excepting the large buildings in the center of the city, almost all the buildings in the city used for residence or other purposes are constructed of adobe blocks, and very few buildings are more than one story structures. As this mode of building is quite inexpensive, even the poorest are able to live under their own roof.

This is preeminently a farming country. Much corn is grown. We saw many fine cornfields in the Mennonite colony north of Cuauhtemoc. At this time the farmers—men and women—were out in the fields, busy harvesting the fine large white corn ears. Besides corn, much oats are grown. At many places the farmers were busy assembling the oats in stacks or under roof. Another extensively raised product are beans. One farmer related that on one farm operated jointly as a family undertaking, the bean harvest in 1938 was from a field of more than 300 acres, while oats on the same farm covered a field of about 700 acres. Corn, oats and beans constitute the chief food of the Mexicans, and there is a very satisfactory market for these products.

The city does not thus far have its own waterworks. In its development there were opportunities for persons of practical vision. Among such was David Redekop Sr. So years ago he established a private waterworks near the center of the city. This plant is in daily operation. From all parts of the city customers come. On two wheeled carts customers carry away water for the family. A German is in charge of the waterworks. In addition this enterprising Mennonite refugee brother operates a butter factory alongside his commercial establishment with a fullblood Mexican as the buttermaker. He also operates two cheese factories far out in the Old Colonist Mennonite settlement. There is in this Mexican country for farmers and others a promising future so far as material interests are concerned.

And now for a look at this country in general. Mexico from a continental point of view is peculiar in its geological and topographical characteristics. The eastern and western parts along the coast are very low, being only slightly above sea level. However along the central length of the country, north and south, is one extensive plateau, along each side of which high mountain chains form a continuous rim as it were for an immense dish of which the plateau is the bottom. Almost all the water which falls within the inner side of these mountains is thereby retained and conserved for the wide-expanding plateau. At many places there are larger and smaller lakes, which rarely or ever become dry. Such a large lake is located about ten miles northeast of Cuauhtemoc. It is about five miles wide and ten miles long. The plateau is lifted from 6500 to 8000 feet above sea level.

A temperate climate prevails the year round, as this



WATERWORKS IN CUAUHTEMOC

Water pumping works in building to the right. The pump goes almost all the time. The large tank does not hold water enough for one day's supply. The Mexican sitting on the barrel is settling with the German superintendent of the works for the water bought. When the little donkey moves on with his load, other patrons waiting will follow.

region is located only about 25 degrees north of the equator. It is never hot in the summer nor ever cold in the winter.

VIEW OF PLATEAU NEAR CUAUHTEMOC

A distance view over the plateau northwestward of Cuauhtemoc. Visible in the distance are mountains enclosing the plateau. Within the plain a few farmsteads are faintly visible, either isolated farms or portions of Mennonite villages. This expanse visible here is about 40 to 60 miles wide and about 100 miles or more in length northward.

As a whole this great plateau is reasonably level and well adapted for the use of modern farm machinery. Wide extending plains await the husbandman. These plains are covered with a rank growth of native grass, on which animal life thrives. As may be seen on the accompanying picture, the city of Cuauhtemoc lies on a higher elevation than does the land expanding to the north, while immediately to the south rise romantic mountain heights. The glorious view reminds one of the Swiss mountain heights, only that here the eye sweeps out over the wide expanding and majestic plains lying at the foot of the mountains.

In respect to school and cultural training Mexico is still at a very low level. In the large cities—Mexico City, Chihuahua, Vera Cruz and a few others—the state schools are progressively active. However in the interior, in sparsely settled regions only very meagre or no educational opportunities are available to the growing generation. Immigrants are more or less dependent on establishing their own schools supplementary to what the state offers. So for example there exists in Mexico City a school maintained by Germans, where in addition to the subjects required by the state German is taught. Students come to this school, which has an enrollment of about 900, from various parts of Mexico. Some of the Mennonite people in Mexico have attended it.

So far as advanced education is concerned, it will be wise for the Cuauhtemoc Hoffnungsau Mennonite church group to lean definitely, for the present at least, on the Canadian Mennonite schools, by sending their studious youth and future church workers to those schools, particularly Gretna and Rosthern. However, at the same time, the fine school for younger children which is at this time in successful operation under the capable spiritually minded guidance of Mrs. Jacob Janzen needs to be continued and further expanded in the future.

Both secular and religious education and spiritual nurture will very likely for some time to come require the cooperation and support of other Mennonite churches. The faithful utilization of this precious opportunity will bear richly blest spiritual and temporal fruit to the glory of God in the coming generations. For this lone General Conference church in the great country of Mexico, can easily become the gateway for a wide expanding influx of Mennonite settlements, churches, schools, and Christian homes. It may prove to be a spiritual blessing to many natives, the descendants of a notable ancient ancestry, a people for whom Jesus also came to this world to save.

—SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 17, HAS BEEN DESIGNATED AS A DAY OF PRAYER AND THANKSGIVING FOR OUR SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES. LET US MAKE USE OF THIS PRIVILEGE.

—Rev. H. J. Krehbiel feels very grateful to those who have sent him many beautiful flowers, to those who have written him, and all those who have helped him with their prayers. He is improving slowly and all of us pray that he may soon be able to return home. Mrs. Krehbiel bore up well during all the trying days of her husbands sickness.—J. H. L., Reedley, Calif.

—Rev. W. S. Gottshall to Change his Home.—A letter from his daughter, Mrs. Flora Gottshall Geiger has this information: Father had hoped to spend his last days among his friends and relatives in this vicinity, the Mennonite Home at Frederick. But since Mother's death he has been so lonely and unhappy in these same surroundings, that we three children have planned a change for him. He is going home with me this evening, Sept. 4, and will make his home with us. This will take him far away from his old friends, but we feel that a change may benefit him. As to his health, his speech is very poor, he can't carry on a conversation, his eyes are too dim to read even his beloved Bible in very large type. So please send THE MENNONITE which he always enjoyed to read to my address:

Rev. W. S. Gottshall,
Care of Mrs. Homer Geiger,
1729 Allendale Ave., East Cleveland, Ohio.

NOTE: May all readers of this paper who know the good brother pray for him that God may sustain him with His comforting presence.—Editor.

—San Marcos Church, Paso Robles, California.—MARRIAGES: On August 8, Miss Katherine Claassen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Claassen, to Mr. Abe Schultz, Rev. F. F. Jantzen, the pastor, officiating.—On August 17, Miss Gertrude Schroeder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Schroeder to Mr. Peter Becker of Los Angeles, the pastor officiating, at a beautiful church wedding. Reception at the bride's home with supper and a nice program.—On Aug. 13, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Smiley celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary, with over 200 guests present. Many beautiful and useful gifts were received.—Ten of our C. E. Members attended the retreat at Sequoia Lake.—Dr. A. Warkentin of Bethel College preached for us on three evenings.—Fred Smiley, Corr.

—Mennonite Church, Deer Creek, Okla.—Rev. J. B. Epp, Beatrice, Nebr. preached in this church Sunday, Sept. 3, and spoke to the young people in the evening. Rev. John Lichti, pastor emeritus of this church, delivered the sermon at the Deer Creek Mennonite Church, Sunday, Sept. 3, substituting for Rev. H. E. Miller, the pastor there, who with Mrs. Miller attended the ordination of Rev. and Mrs. Marvin Dirks as missionaries to China, at the Gnadenberg Church, near Whitewater, Kans.—The Missionary Voth family from China will be at the Medford Church Sunday.

—Rev. S. P. Preheim, Freeman, S. D. writes.—"Our family is well. Bro. P. R. Schroeder is on his way to recovery. The hot weather has been cooled off by a rain. The young people have had a very profitable and blessed retreat. TESTS, section one, is made up of modern style tests: true-false, choice of answers, completion, and association tests.

BIBLE GAMES has many wholesome Bible entertainments.

PROBLEM STUDIES presents practical everyday problems of the Christian life, with the object of finding verses to answer these problems.

BIBLE DRILLS is composed of questions covering almost the entire Bible.

MEMORY VERSES is an aid to the selection of choice memory verses and REFERENCE FINDING helps to find the passage wanted.

Christian workers among young people will find this book worth many times its cost.

LET'S GO BACK TO THE BIBLE

by Will H. Houghton, D. D.

President of Moody Bible Institute

The great cry today, not only of Christians but of many thinking people is back to the Bible. The teachings of the Bible must again be made to permeate the life of people or they will face destruction.

The author says: "The World has chased down a lot of blind alleys in the past decade or two: the blind alleys of prosperity, of pleasure and of pride. It is time now to admit that we're against a stone wall. Its time for a call for help."

THE INDIVIDUAL IN OUR PRESENT-DAY WORLD

by Cecil V. Crabb, D. D.

Author of "Psychology's Challenge to Christianity"

Price $1.00

Many psychologists have been leading us in a blind chase of airial notions about man's soul or psychic self, far away from its source, GOD, and the TRUTH of the matter.

In this book, easy to read and digest, Dr. Crabb shows how to fit the psychology of the individual into the tenets of the Christian religion. He proves that Christianity furnishes the finest basis for the integration of traits which go to make up personality. Here is a simple key to self-understanding which should be in the hands of the general reader and especially parents and those engaged in any kind of Christian teaching.

EDITORIAL

AMERICA'S NEUTRALITY AND THE NEW WAR.—Naturally the views of the people of this country with respect to the possibility of remaining neutral as the conflict across the seas progresses, reveals a curious division. We quote this as given by a usually reliable "Exchange": "America would fight," some said, "because Europe would not let us stay clear. Recalling the ceaseless waves of Allied propaganda that helped wash the U. S. into the World War, they pointed to the already strong sympathy in this country for the so-called democracies, the alreday violent hatred most Americans feel for Hitler and his axis allies. With this fertile soil to work in, they argued, it would not take British and French propaganda experts long to bury the U.S. isolation under a mountain of enthusiasm to "save the world for democracy."

(2) America would fight, others held, to protect its economic interests. U. S. property in Europe is worth something like one and a quarter billion dollars; more important still, this nation sells a full third of all its exports in the European market. Despite laws forbidding new U. S. loans to the prospective European belligerents, some felt, American money would be raised, indirectly, to finance still another war. In this finiancial and economic stake in a friendly Europe, they saw a catapult which would eventually hurl America into the maelstrom.

(3) Soberest and most alarming of the arguments that war ,if it came, must engulf this nation too was this—the U. S. must fight dictatorship now in Europe or later at home. The philosophy and methods of the totalitarian states, it was said, demanded an ever-increasing sphere of power. Victory in Europe, far from appeasing their appetites, would lead them finally into attack on the western hemisphere. With their European enemies vanquished, with the great British and French fleets at their command, they would soon confront the Americans with the bloody prospect of a fight for life in their own lands. Rather than risk such a catastrophe, some believed, the U. S. would finally cast its lot with the new Allies." How much actual reason there may be in each of these views, we would not dare to conjecture. They all imagine us getting into war eventually.

For us Christians, however, the vital question is: What can we do in the face of such an alarming outlook? In the first place, we ought to maintain our faith in the President's assurance, "that our government will be directed toward the end of keeping us out of war." Secondly, we can write Pres. Roosevelt that we are praying for him that God in His love may uphold his hands in steering the ship of state away from the maelstrom of the awful conflict; that we do this with the conviction that war is contrary to the teachings of Jesus Christ. Thirdly, we can appeal to the members of Congress, our representatives in Washington, to do all they can to help maintain our neutrality in this crisis.

Upon request the following short form for such an appeal is presented here::

Dear Mr. ---------------------------

In the matter of the benevolent neutrality of the United States in the present conflict in Europe, may God grant you the wisdom that comes from His love.

Yours sincerely,

Mennonite Principles

By prearrangement a delegation of Brethren, Friends and Mennonite on February 12, 1937, had a pleasant and profitable twenty-minute audience with President F. D. Roosevelt at the Whitehouse. During this meeting each of the three groups presented to the Chief Executive a formal declaration of their convictions on war and peace. We reprint here the copy of the declaration of the Mennonite group:

MENNONITE PRINCIPLES ON WAR AND NON-RESISTANCE

The following is a summary of the attitude of Mennonites on the subject of War and the principles of non-resistance which have been abhered to by Mennonites more than four hundred years and some of the Biblical grounds on which they are based.

"1. The spirit of sacrificial service, love and goodwill promote the highest well-being of man and society, whereas the spirit of hatred, ill-will and fear-inherent in war—destroys. Matt. 5:9: Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called the children of God. Rom. 14:19: Let us therefore follow after the things that make for peace.

"2. Through faith we have become partakers of the character and Spirit of our Lord Jesus Christ, who lived among us as incarnation of the God of love, and we are thereby constrained to love all men, even our enemies. Matt. 5:44; Luke 6:27: But I say unto you, love your enemies, do good to them that hate you. Rom. 12:20-21: Therefore if thine enemy hunger, feed him; if he thirst, give him drink; for in so doing thou shalt heap coals of fire on his head. Overcome evil with good.

"3. War is sin! The destruction of life is wrong. It is contrary to the Spirit of Christ and Christian charity, indeed to everything that Christ represents. War is wrong in spirit and in method, since its object and practice is destruction, hence we hold it inconsistent to participate in war. Matt. 26:52: Then Jesus said unto him, put up again thy sword into its place; for they that take the sword shall perish with the sword.

"4. Christ forbade his followers not only all practice of revenge, but even all the vindictiveness from which we draw our principles of non-resistance. Rom. 12:19: Dearly beloved, avenge not yourselves, but rather give place to wrath, for it is written, vengeance is mine; I will repay, says the Lord. Matt. 5:38-39: Ye have heard that it has been said, an eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth; but I say unto you, that ye resist not evil, but whosoever shall smite thee on thy right cheek, turn to him the other also.

"5. Our first and highest allegiance is to Christ whom we are determined to follow in all matters. Acts 3:29: Then Peter and the other apostles answered and said, We ought to obey God rather than men.

"6. In keeping with the above expressed principles we believe ourselves sincerely loyal to our country and believe that we can thus best serve its interests and highest welfare.

"Under God, whom we serve, we commit ourselves to set forth in this true way of life this statement of position and to declare ourselves willing to assume the obligations and sacrifices attending its practices."

The above statement, drawn up by representatives from different branches of Mennonites, together with copies of Ris' "Articles of Faith" and Smiths' "Menno Simons, Apostle of the Non-resistant Life", was presented to the President by: C. L. Graber of the Am. (O) Mennonites and A. J. Neuenschwander of the General Conference Mennonites.

A CRY IN THE NIGHT

We sat up in bed! From the direction of the hospital came the sound of weeping and wailing which had awakened us. Oh, that cry in the night when a loved one slips away!!

Thoughts flew back to the first time we heard this heartbreaking cry after our furlough. That time it came from a Chinese mother whose baby had died of smallpox on our boat. As she beat her breast and swayed her body back and forth in time to her lament, we passengers could only stand by helplessly for we could not speak her language. But her cry haunted us as we turned back to our cabins.

One night, shortly after we had arrived in Mauhadih, we were again startled by an anguished cry that broke out on the still night air. That cry could only mean that someone had died. We remembered that there had been a very sick patient at the dispensary. We heard Rev. Wiens walk over to them. Gradually the cries became more controlled and then we heard the people leave with their dead. But we could imagine the wailing that would break forth when they reached their non-Christian village.

And now this cry! A woman's voice rose above the confused wails. We heard the cry for "Mother" and decided it must be the woman from Chanaudi village who had died. But we had thought she was improving! Years ago she and her husband had been baptized together with others of their village. For some reason or other they had become dissatisfied and had gone back into heathenism again. The years went by. Two daughters and a son were baptized here in Jagdishpur. Other children came here to work. The old father and mother began to talk of coming back to Jesus. The mother took sick and was brought here to her children. Finally she was brought to the hospital and she was improving.

To our questions the reply was, "Yes, we want to be united with the Christians again. Our children are all here. We want to receive our last handful of earth from the Christians." This "last handful of earth" is a great concern to the village people of India. At the burial those with whom they are in fellowship each pick up a handful of earth and throw it into the grave as a last mark of love and respect. Hence this mother's desire for the "handful of earth" from the Christians.

But death stalked in that night and it was too late to take the step that would outwardly unite her with the Christians. The cry, "Mother, oh Mother" fell on deaf ears. Though we believe that she had again turned to Jesus, yet in the delay she had robbed her children of the comfort that the outward uniting with the church would have given. —Christena H. Duerksen.

What Must A College Do to be Christian?

By President Ralph Waldo Lloyd of Maryville College

It must desire, with a great desire, to be Christian. Nothing less is likely to make an American college Christian. The institutions, the educational writers, the current philosophies of education, of greatest prestige just now, usually ignore the Christian religion as a life essential. All speak of "character," "skill in living," "religion to be studied like other social elements." But where, in the places of most educational prestige, do educators set forth God the Father or Jesus Christ the Son and Saviour specifically and passionately? Only constant courage will enable the Church college to do it in the face of the current situation. Those who do not really wish to be considered distinctively Christian have tremendous influence.

(2) To be Christian, a college must be free. Without question, some institutions do not count themselves at liberty to emphasize Christian belief and training to any effective degree. Law, tradition, clientele, alumni, faculty or custom may limit a college in this matter. One fears that most tax-supported and independent institutions are more timid than is necessary. But the Church college is officially free to be as Christian as it can and will. It is missing its most distinctive opportunity when it lessens its effort at this point.

(3) The board of directors or trustees must be committed to this purpose. The board is comparatively permanent; it has power to set the policies; it selects the president, who in turn has chief responsibility for choosing a faculty and for putting policies into effect. Unless this board is composed of men and women who are greatly concerned about the college and its Christian character, and who know something of the spiritual and educational issues in our secular society, the religious character of the institution is sure to suffer. Choosing directors or trustees merely because of their personal influence and wealth is a dangerous procedure.

(4) A Christian faculty is probably at the heart of the whole matter. Without effort, even without realization, more than one Church college has drifted far into the current of secularized education merely by adding from year to year faculty members trained chiefly in secularized institutions.

Present standards and requirements demand graduate training for teachers. So far as the writer knows, there are in the United States no strong graduate schools, other than schools of religion and theological seminaries, which claim to be deliberately Christian. Graduate schools are not antagonistic to Christian faith; as institutions they merely ignore it as an essential. Some graduate students, of course, adopt anti-theistic beliefs and develop feeling against orthodox religion. But the greater danger is that teachers will come unconsciously to count as unimportant in all education what is left out of their own education.

It is not difficult to discover well trained teachers and officers who are friendly to religion; but every college president who wants Christian teachers knows it requires vigorous effort to find teachers who are enthusiastic advocates of a Christian interpretation and program. A half century ago practically every teacher in a Church college was a minister; today there is an unfortunate prejudice against ministers and their training on the part of many who control or influence educational standards.

Few who write the recommendations which make up the usual set of teachers' credentials know what we really mean by a Christian college. After almost a decade of experience in searching for enthusiastic Christians among people holding Ph. D. and M. A. degrees, the writer is convinced that some Christian graduate schools are sorely needed, that theological seminary graduates ought to have more consideration, and that investigation of candidates for Church college positions must be far more than is carried on for teachers in general.

(5) The curriculum must be built and taught, with some special emphases. We are speaking here of colleges, not of such special and vocational institutions as Bible schools or theological seminaries. All liberal arts colleges, Christian and non-Christian, offer substantially the same courses. How can one liberal arts curriculum be more or less Christian than another? The answer in part is: First, a college intending to be Christian certainly must see that all its students study the Bible and Christian beliefs, ethics, and philosophy as thoroughly and extensively as they do any other field of knowledge; there is special value in doing so under a college faculty and with a college student's maturity and intellectual interest. Secondly, the Christian teacher must be able and committed to give an interpretation and correlation of his subject, whatever it is, that squares it with Christian truth and strengthens the Christian life.

The college with which the writer is connected requires of every student who graduates a total of ten semester hours of English Bible, three hours of Ethics and Christian belief, and three hours of some other related subject, these making thirteen per cent of the total graduation requirement. This is an unusually large amount, but it in no way hinders academic recognition. One regrets the continued tendency of colleges and Church boards to lessen the Bible requirements in Church colleges.

Another major curriculum problem is in the fact that few standard textbooks are written by those holding the point of view we are advocating. Even authors who are earnest Christians usually omit any direct advocacy of the Christian faith; many textbooks set forth untenable and unchristian material; but the most common tragedy is in treating Christian essentials as unimportant or to be studied as mere human phenomena. We need college students and graduates who are not only Christian, but consciously and enthusiastically Christian.

(6) The selection of students is of major importance. They set much of the tone and they must be youth whose background prepares them to respond to a Christian program. No college can hope to overcome in three or four years the influence of the preceding eighteen years on the majority of boys and girls. If a student body is largely one of irreligious or unchristian background an effective Christian program will not have a reasonable chance. Also students are affected by one another quite as much as by faculty or official institution. A Christian college aims to win youth to Christ, but it wishes likewise to help those who come to college as Christians to remain Christian through the questioning, assertive period of college age.

(7) There are many effective forms of student organization and activity which do much to make colleges Christian. Unless the religious life of the student body is vital and virile enough to produce and carry strong Christian activities there is not likely to be any great institutional influence. This activity is both a result and a cause. The college has much of the responsibility for maintaining it, for the college, not the student, is the permanent factor.

(8) The institution itself must organize all these factors toward the end that students who attend will normally become more Christian in belief, in faith, in manner of life, in service, and become established in the church. Church attendance, at regular churches if possible, should be a clear requirement, with refusal to be deceived by the plausible argument that since no one can be forced to be religious or good, youth should not be compelled (most colleges require attendance at other activities); and daily chapel of a definite religious form; and proper rules to protect these boys and girls (after all they are just our own boys and girls) from themselves and the unuseful or bad investment of energy; and frank teaching and enforcement of standards on drinking, vice, dishonesty, profanity, and other unchristian conduct. Young people today are as fine as ever youth were, but they need more rugged not more compromising or comfortable experiences.

Surely there is need for times of focusing attention and decision upon Christ and His offer and requirements. For the supreme effort of this kind each year there has been discovered no substitute for the "college meetings". "Meetings" held for at least a week and preferably longer; carefully and prayerfully planned; with the entire institution, faculty, and Christian student groups supporting them; with other extra-curricular activities discontinued for the period; with strong gospel preaching and a program of personal interviews and campus prayer groups; with some opportunity to indicate decisions for Christ and His service: such "meetings" exert a mighty influence. No series of lectures or forums or guidance programs or the like can compare with "meetings" of this kind.

What must a college do to be Christian? Well, what has been written reveals a conviction that the process is very far-reaching; but it is definite and within the power of every free college where the Christian foundation and traditions have been retained; if they have not been retained enough, a long building program is necessary. But to be Christian is worth all it costs any college.—The Presbyterian

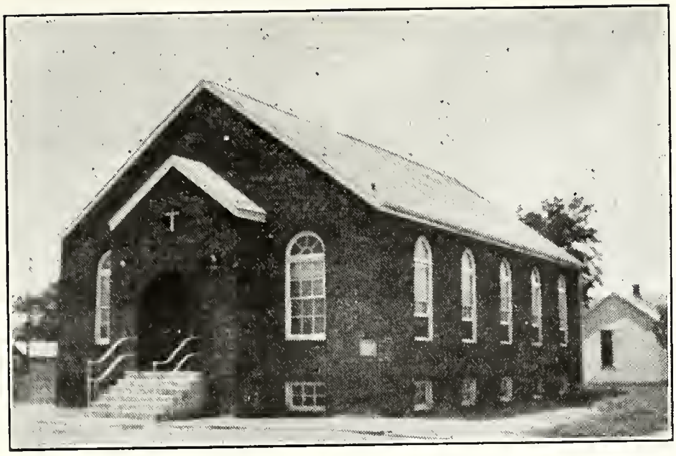
God gives us the great privilege of prayer for our own good and His glory. He intends prayer to be a joy and a constant blessing to us. Many a Christian has become cold in prayer, and some never have been warm in prayer. Does any Christian say, "I do not know how to pray"? The Bible teaches us how to pray, and the Spirit of God is ready to help us in prayer. Jude 20.

A fruitful Christian life without prayer is an impossibility. Prayer is the mighty power with which God has entrusted us to bring about His will in His Church and in our individual lives. Through unceasing, fervent prayer every child of God can be fruitful. When the people of God learn to pray, their lives will abound with fruit for eternity, multitudes will be saved, believers will be edified, and the Lord will see of the travail of His soul and be satisfied.

To continue in prayer is God's command to us. I Thess. 5:17. It is sin to neglect prayer. I Sam. 12:23. Prayer is God's appointed method for us to obtain what He has to give. Matt. 7:7-11. To pray is to be fruitful. John 15:7, 8, 16. Prayer can be true missionary service. I Tim. 2:1-4; Matt. 9:37, 38. The apostles practiced prayer and regarded it as most important service. Acts 6:4; I Thess. 3:10. Our Lord Himself is now making intercession for us at the right hand of the Father; if we want to be like our Lord, we should give much time to prayer. Heb. 7:25; Rom. 8:34.— G. P. Rand in Christian Monitor.

—A timely Article by Dr. J. H. Langenwalter in the Reedley, Calif., church bulletin, which we shall bring in the next Mennonite has this fine opening paragraph: "A cool head and a warm heart is a way of expressing what Jesus taught His followers through word and deed with much emphasis. It suggests one of the finest Christian virtues. Not in twenty-five years has it been so necessary this virtue as it is now." —Readers, watch for this worthwhile article.



Grace Mennonite Church

York and Adams Streets, Enid, Oklahoma

The Grace Mennonite church of Enid, Okla., is happy to report that by the grace of God this young but hopeful church has been able to set several important milestones. Praise God for that!

"Resolved, that the Home Mission Committee (of the Western District Conference of the Mennonite Church) sent someone to Enid to investigate concerning the prospects of establishing a Mennonite Mission in the city of Enid and to send or station a worker there if deemed advisable." This resolution, passed at the 1934 session of the Western District Conference, was the result of a request made by a number of Mennonite families living in Enid and feeling the need of spiritual unity and cooperation. These families had been meeting in private homes for fellowship. This resolution also marked the beginning of definite work in Enid. Since the 1934 session our churches have manifested definite interest in the work here and have heard our Home Mission Committee report annually on the work. At the 1935 session the Conference passed a resolution to make the Enid field a permanent project to the Western District Conference.

Many were the joys and trials of those who attended here faithfully and labored as ministers of the Gospel and Sunday School teachers. Rev. J. B. Frey ministered here from March 1935 to July 1935. Then the undersigned were appointed by the Home Mission Committee to minister to this group. From March, 1935 until July 2, 1939, we met in a home for services.

A new impulse came to this group in October 1938, when several more devout families joined us. We then felt the time had come for us to organize a church. Ten days before the 1938 session of our Western District Conference which was held at Enid, Okla., we were organized by elder Rev. A. J. Dyck, Inman, Kans. The name Mennonite Mission was changed to Grace Mennonite (Church). The other happy thing that we experienced at that time was a definite resolution to build a new church in Enid.

During November until February of 1939, the H. M. C., the trustees, and the Grace Menn. Church were busy drafting plans for a church. On February 12, 1939, at 11:45 the congregation met at the place where the church was to be built for ground-breaking service. These services were very impressive and left a definite blessing upon all present. During a period of almost 5 months the church you see in this issue was being built. It is a work of faith and love and devotion to our Lord Jesus and a proof that men and women have experienced Christ. You people have made this church possible and may God bless you richly.

The church is built of brick, backed with tile and is 36 x 56 feet. It has a full basement which will be a fine place for Sunday School. The main auditorium and balcony seat about 250-270 people. Besides the auditorium the main floor has four side rooms: a nursery, store room, primary S. S. class room, and a Pastor's Study. Those who have seen it say it is an attractive building. We are happy for it.

The church is also deeply grateful for the many spiritual blessings it enjoys. Since organization in Oct. 1938, four people have joined by letter and testimony, four were baptized in August and other additions are now pending. Our Sunday school enrollment is a little over 100. The attendance during summer months was good. The highest being 92, and for preaching 105. During August the average attendance was 71. We are looking forward to a blessed fall and winter. The prayer meetings are quite well attended, the highest in August was 31. We have a choir of 22 young people.

It always affords us much pleasure to meet you when you are driving through Enid to pay us a brief visit and to look at the new church. We are happy to serve in this field and most earnestly covet your prayers and interest. May God grant us more days of grace and peace to preach the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

THE INFANCY OF JESUS

Matthew 2:13-23

TOPIC: THE WORLD INTO WHICH JESUS CAME

Introduction

The lessons of this quarter are chiefly upon the teachings of Jesus as found in the first half of Matthew's Gospel. The aim is "To learn the teachings of Jesus concerning the Kingdom of heaven and their significance for the life of today." Because of Christ's supreme authority as a teacher, his teachings should rank first in interest. There is no phase of his teachings which has lost its interest and hence may be ignored. He exemplified them in his own life and proved his power to make them effective in others. Because Christ is divine and has all authority and all power, his teachings will stand out as unique to the end of time.

God Protects the Infant Jesus vs. 13-18

Our lesson context requires a study of verses 1-12. The wise men, students of the stars, came to Jerusalem having been guided on their way by a star, seeking the new King of the Jews, to worship Him. They followed the light they had and God gave them fuller light. After they had received the desired information in Jerusalem, they started at once toward Bethlehem, following the star until it led them to the Christ Child. They worshipped Him—that is of first importance—then they gave Him the gifts, the best they could give to Him. God then guided them on their return journey by another method—a dream (v12).

God now acts to protect the infant Jesus from the fiendish scheme of Herod who pretended a desire to worship Him. Throughout the whole narrative in Matthew, God's protecting care is evident. God did not leave anything to chance. He came to Joseph in a dream (v14) and bade him to flee with Mary and the child to Egypt for safety. There they were to stay until God bade them to return. Joseph obeyed without hesitation, feeling secure under God's protection. The cruel king in his mad anger, ordered all the male children in Bethlehem under two years old to be slain. This was one of the last acts of the seventy year old king.

Childhood of Jesus at Nazareth vs 19-23

Herod died soon after his cruel edict (v16). God again appeared to Joseph in a dream (v19) and asked him to return to the land of Israel (v20). Herod dies, but the young Child whom he sought to slay, lives and returns but not to the place of his birth. God is still leading and protecting the Child (v22) and Joseph went with his family into the hills of Galilee, to the city of Nazareth. There is scarcely anything given in the Gospel record about the childhood years in Nazareth. He grew there physically, in wisdom and in favor with God.

The Word Into Which Jesus Came

In the fullness of time God sent His Son. Various factors helped to make the time of Christ's coming opportune. Augustus Caesar ruled over the Roman empire from the Atlantic to the Euphrates river and had brought the vast territory under law and order and peace such as was unknown before this time. This was very advantageous for the new religious movement inaugurated by Christ. The religious preparation for His coming was very important. Through the Jews some were prepared to appreciate his message. They, through the century of teaching and discipline had acquired a knowledge of the true God and of His demands that they forsook idolatry. The Jews of Jesus' day believed firmly in the one true God of Justice and holiness who would redeem his people through the expected Messiah. The world of that day was needy of redemption because of moral decay. Christ is the only hope of the world of today.

SERMON SKETCH

"BRINGING BACK THE KING"

Rev. W. R. Augsburger, Pastor, Grace Church, Albany, Oregon

Text: II Samuel 19:10

In Europe we have the case of the ruler of a nation dertermined to bring back lost territories to that nation. The Scriptures, on the other hand, record the case of a ruler who was waiting to regain his entire empire. This man had fled from his domain due to internal rebellion. He fought with his adversary and won the battle. Yet, ere he returns to his rightful throne, he awaits an invitation from his subjects. The current question in Israel at that day was: "Why speak ye not a word of bringing the king back?" (II Sam. 19:10).

All of us are familiar with this event in the life of King David. Under the pretense of paying a vow unto the Lord, Absolom obtains leave of his father, King David, to go to Hebron. Here Absolom's conspiracy reaches its fruitation, and he is crowned king in the city where David had originally been crownd.

The events follow in rapid sucession. David, upon hearing of his son's rebellion, flees from Jerusalem. Absolom triumphantly enters into the capital city and usurps his father's throne. Absolom will not rest until he kills David, so he leads his army against David and his servants. The Lord gives the victory to David—Absolom being slain in battle. Now that Absolom is dead, the Israelites inquire among themselves: "Why speak ye not a word of bringing the king back?" These words reach David's ears, causing rejoicing. Yet, his heart is grieved because the people of his own tribe, the tribe of Judah, have not invited him back. David sends a message to the elders of Judah saying, " . . . . ye are my brethren, ye are my bones and my flesh: Wherefore then are ye the last to bring back the king?" (II Sam. 19:12). Then it is that King David is finally ushered in triumph back to his rightful domain.

We are witnesses, Christians, that there has been a rebellion in this world, and that the present world continues therein. " . . . . the whole world lieth in wickedness" (1 Jn. 5:19). God's own created people have turned against Him (John 1:11), even as Absolom turned against David. Satan is reigning in the place which belongs to the Son of God. Through all the centuries, since the initial rebellion, there has been warfare between the servants of God and the servants of Satan. According to Hebrews 2:14, Christ Jesus took upon Himself the form of man "that through death He might destroy him that had the power of death; that is, the devil." The crucifixion of Christ, therefore, means that Satan is a defeated, roaring lion. Thus, if we believe these things, "Why speak ye not a word of bringing the King back?"

The Church of Jesus Christ, like Judah of old, today is loath to say a word about bringing back the King. One wonders if the heart of Jesus does not burn even as the heart of David—"Ye are my brethren, ye are my bones and my flesh: wherefore then are ye the last to bring back the king?"

Space permits one to but briefly enumerate a few reasons why the Coming Again of Jesus is important and should occupy an eminent place in the doctrines of the Church:

1. The Second Coming of Christ is said to be mentioned 318 times in the 260 Chapters of the New Testament, and it occupies one in every 25 verses from Matthew to Revelation.
2. By far the greater number of the predictions concerning Christ in the Old Testament are connected with His Second Coming.
3. The apostles of Jesus preached the doctrine and even looked for His return in their day.
4. The Church is exhorted to look for His Coming. (Titus 2:13; 2 Peter 3:11-13).
5. Christ Himself again and again instructed His disciples to watch and look for this blessed event. (Mt. 24:42, 44; Mt. 25:13).
6. No doctrine tends to produce more holiness and righteous living among Christians than the fact that Jesus is coming—it may be today! (Titus 2:11-13; Luke 21:34-36).
7. The last message of Christ to the Church and the concluding words of the Bible are: "Surely I come quickly. Amen. Even so, come, Lord Jesus." (Rev. 22:20).

"Why say ye not a word of bringing back the King?
  Why speak ye not of Jesus and His reign?
Why tell ye of His Kingdom, and of its glories sing
  But nothing of His Coming back again?
Why tell ye of His Kingdom, and of its glories sing

"Dost thou not want to look upon His loving face?
  Dost thou not want to see Him glorified?
Would'st thou not hear His welcome and in that very place,
  Where years ago we saw Him crucified?

"O hark! creation's groans, how can they be assuaged?
  How can our bodies know redemptive joy?
How can the war be ended in which we are engaged,
  Until He come the lawless to destroy?"
(James M. Gray).

"Ye are my brethren, ye are my bones and my flesh: wherefore then are ye the last to bring back the King?" (II Sam. 19:12).

" . . . Now therefore why speak ye not a word of bringing the King back?" (II Sam. 19:10).

"Come quickly, blessed Lord; our heart a welcome hold
  We long to see Creation's second birth;
The promise of Thy coming to some is growing cold,
  O hasten Thy returning back to earth.
Bringing back the King, oh, bringing back the King!
  The angel choirs of Heaven their hallelujahs sing,
Brniging back the King, oh, bringing back the King!
  Ye ransomed let your joyous welcome ring!"

"A Few Suggestions Regarding Our Attitude Toward War"

by Dr. H. F. Toews, Teacher of Bible, Tabor College

The war that has been feared for a long time is upon Europe. Poland and Germany are engaged in heavy fighting. England and France, also, have entered the conflict. In fact, we fear that it is only a question of time when again Europe will be in a great war taking in many countries.

That America is not neutral in sentiment and attitude even at this hour we know from the radio reports. We are glad to hear that the administration claims to date, to have strictly refrained from making any pledges to any power of Europe. Let us hope that we remain neutral. That it can be done, we do not doubt, when we think of such countries as Holland and Switzerland in the World War. They remained neutral and out of the war. At the same time, we know what happened to the United States.

During the World War it became my duty to serve on a Conference committee of the M. B. Church dealing with the questions pertaining to the Mennonite doctrine of exemption. Six times I visited camp Funston during the winter and spring and summer that we were in the War. At this time I feel it my duty to call attention to a few things learned from that experience. In the first place I want to say that the young men that were permitted to stay at home longest were those on the farm engaged in profitable employment, especially of their own, where no one could well be secured to carry on their work instead. This, no doubt would again be so in the event that America were drawn into the war. Good successful farming was looked upon by the government as good reason for exemption.

In the College we felt it was not right for young men to enroll as ministerial students in order to escape the draft. Those that did such a thing made it hard for those that had right claims. The rule should be this: Where young men are candidates for the ministry or religious work before the thought of war enters in, they are of course entitled to such claims. But to make it an escape from military service after the war begins, arouses suspicion. And such suspicion I found to be well founded upon facts by the government. I believe that we need not fear that the constitutional right in this matter will not be honored by our government. It has in spite of the fears of many always been so honored in the past.

Then it behooves us to be worthy examples of neutrality. Neutrality means that we refrain strictly from taking either the one side or the other openly in our speech or action. Though we may have our convictions of right or wrong in the matter, and in our feeling cannot be strictly neutral, we should nevertheless be so in all we do and say. We should look upon even such an event as an opportunity to live out the faith of our fathers. But we should not give the impression that we desire to use our principle of conscientious objection to war as a happy means to escape the hardships and dangers of war only.

Another point I would like to mention is that the Mennonites should not permit members of their churches on relief roles of the government too much. The history of the Mennonites shows that they have been very careful at all times to take care of the poor among themselves. When this is not done let us be sure that it will be held up to them as inconsistent with the principle of non-participation in war.

Hillsboro, Kansas, Sept. 8, 1939.

The Mennonite Conscience and the World

In the course of time inevitably many of those who had been aesthetically starved in childhood awoke to the awesome fact that the true, the beautiful, and the good form a holy trinity and that the love of these three helps to find the gateway to the abundant life. Spoken language alone cannot convey the full meaning of truth, goodness, and beauty. But when they are clothed in fitting forms of speech and rendered in music that matches the language, we have complete expression. Unfortunately I did not experience the full glory of music until in my twenty-sixth year in Boston I heard Handel's Messiah rendered by a great chorus and orchestra. On that eventful night I was reborn. Suddenly I became aware of an unsuspected affinity with the beautiful. When the audience arose and stood reverently during the Hallelujah chorus, I was caught up into the seventh heaven of ecstasy. Then for the first time I felt the glory of Christ's great adventure of faith and love and knew it was predestined to ultimate triumph. In that sacred hour the idea of duty in connection with the Christian enterprise gave way to that of privilege.

One other factor of this voluntary limitation of cultural status which has unfortunate practical implications is the error of regarding Jesus as a literalist. On the contrary, he was an outspoken essentialist. It was that which brought him into conflict with the good people of his day and sent him to the cross. To the conscientious literalists he was an irreverent image-breaker. To those who accused him of undermining the authority of the law and the prophets he replied: "I have come not to destroy them, but to give them deeper meaning." It was this deeper meaning perceived, for example, in the law forbidding the murder and adultery which created a wide cleavage between himself and the literalistic Scribes and Pharisees. His refusal to be bound by the letter is apparent in his deliberate violation of the Sabbath law, when he found an opportunity to serve, and in his kindly treatment of an adulteress, whereas the law prescribed the death penalty in such a case. This is the only right course, if the evolution of man means the steady growth of knowledge through experience and if "Time's latest off-spring is the best." If being a Christian means imitating the Master, it is clear that he expects his followers in all ages to examine inherited creeds, doctrines, and customs critically, interpret them according to their essential meaning, and discard such as have been outgrown.

In conclusion the following deductions, transcending all sectarian differences, are offered as guides to the abundant life:

I. The absolute "thou must" of conscience is the awesome voice of the Eternal speaking through the experience of mankind.

II. The human race has progressed by the painfully slow and wasteful method of trial and error. Which means that what good people have regarded as duty their equally conscientious descendants often have branded as gross error or crime.

III. Concientiousness alone is not a sufficient guide to right conduct. The Puritans of New England in the seventeenth century, believing that the absolute will of God was expressed in Exodus 22:18 ("Thou shalt not suffer a witch to live"), hanged nineteen innocent persons.

IV. Conscience must be continually illuminated and shaped by growing knowledge. He who would know what his duty is in a given case must with open mind seek for all the knowledge available and be ready to

The Swift Current Dormitory Project

Los Angeles, California

Has your Christian Endeavor or Sunday School taken interest in the Swift Current Dormitory project? Here are a few facts about the school which might spur us on.

It was started by Rev. N. D. Bahnmann in the fall of 1936 with the financial support of the General Conference. During the past year the school has been run on a self-supporting basis.

There are two teachers receiving remuneration from the Conference.

$230 were receivd as donations during the past year besides vegetables and farm products.

Students pay 7.50 a month toward board and room plus tuition.

The church basement is partitioned off into four rooms for lodgers, one kitchen, a pantry and a coal bin. Up till the present, all the girls roomed and boarded down there.

Subjects taught: English Bible, Bible doctrine, Personal evangelism, Scripture memorizing, Eschatology, Exegesis, German Bible, Bible history, Church history, and German language.—Louise Richert.

Commitment to Christ

Senior C. E. Topic for October 1, 1939

MAIN TOPIC: Committing Ourselves to Christ, Rom. Christ, Rom. 12:1-8.

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: O Happy Day," "There's Not A Friend Like the Lovely Jesus," "More About Jesus Would I Learn."
2. Reading of main topic and prayer
3. Quartet—"I Want My Life to Tell for Jesus."

II. Leader's Introductory Talk:

Being with Jesus transforms the life of any one, no matter how humble or how ignorant, how gifted or how capable he may be. His life will be different, it will increase in meaning and in value. It will make life beautiful as well as useful. The following little poem brings the thought of this transforming power which Jesus has on our lives.

"A Persian fable says: One day
A wanderer found a lump of clay
So redolent of sweet perfume,
Its odor scented all the room.

" 'Who art thou?' was the quick demand.
'Art thou some gem from Samarcand,
Or spikenard in this rude disguise,
Or other costly merchandize?'

" 'Nay! I am but a lump of clay.'
'Then whence this wonderous sweetness—say?'
'Friend, if the secret I disclose,
I have been dwelling with the Rose.' "

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks

Practicing self-denial. Luke 9:23-26.
Putting on "the new man." Eph. 4:21-24.
Living as Christians. Col. 3:12-16.
Renouncing the world. I John 1:15-17.
Yielding ourselves to God. Rom. 6:11-13.

IV. Facts for Study

We are in a revolutionary world. Hitler, facing 30,000 German youth, said, "We want you as slim as tigers, fast as greyhounds, as hard as stone." A tame, easy-going church cannot win in the world where forces like that are rampant. A bigger, better, holier generation must be developed.

Christianity must give its youth a religion of power discipline, exuberance of spirit, a sense of control, wisdom, resourcefulness, faith, and love of advanture. Fear, cowardice, self-pity, cynicism, the sense of futility and pessimism must be cast out. It can be done only by a great experience of God.

V. For Discussion

How does our life become different if we commit ourselves to Him, and to His way of living?

VI. What do the following stories suggests about the effect of committing life to Christ?

Christ continues to reveal God through the lives of his followers. A missionary in China once told the story of Jesus for the first time to a group of people in an inland town. When he had finished some one said, "Ah, yes, we knew him, he used to live here." Somewhat surprised, the missionary said, "No, he lived centuries ago in another land." The man still insisted he had seen Jesus, saying, "Not so. He lived in this village, and we knew him." Whereupon the crowd conducted the missionary to the cemetery and showed him the grave of a medical missionary who had lived, served, and died in that community.

Christian Ideals Every Day.—Branch Rickey, has never played baseball on Sunday nor has he even seen a game played on that day. Because he was a Christian gentleman, those who, at first, booed him because of his stand soon came to regard him highly. When asked just what Christ meant to him, Branch Rickey's response was: "He means everything. From boyhood I have had a growing religious experience. I want to live the ideals of Christ every day, in business and on the athletic field. I want to grow to make my responses to certain situations arise as automatically Christian as my nervous responses are unconscious when I drive an automobile." Such lives as this are helpful examples of the possibilities that are ours for growing more and more Christian after the pattern of the greatest leader, Christ.

VII. Food for Thought:

I will strive to live this whole day through, hour by hour, in the consciousness that my Heavenly Father is near me, and that underneath me are His everlasting arms.

"Have Thine Own Way, Lord
Have Thine own Way,
Thou art the Potter, I am the clay—
Mould me and make me,
After thy will;
While I am waiting,
Yielded and still."

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

IS GOD REAL TO US?

Intermediate C. E. Topic for Oct. 8, 1939

For Daily Reading:

Oct. 2. Hagar's experience. Gen. 16:7-14.
Oct. 3. Abraham the friend of God. James 2:21-24.
Oct. 4. Speaking with Moses mouth to mouth. Num. 12:1-8.
Oct. 5. At the Psalmist's right hand. Ps. 16:5-11.
Oct. 6. Beset behind and before. Ps. 139:1-12.
Oct. 7. The voice from heaven. II Pet. 1:13-21.
Oct. 8. Topic. Ps. 53:1, 2; 46:1-3.

Revelation

All things burn with the fire of God
Violets bursting from the sod:
The hill-top, tip-top cherry tree,
Shouting with silver ecstacy;
Wild birds blowing down the wind;
Blue-brook music far and thinned;
Many-hued roses; rains that beat
On spreading fields of yellow wheat;
Sun-flame, moon-flame, flame of star;
Opal-walled heaven where bright clouds are;
Dreams, and pain, and love's desire . . .
All things burn with God's white fire.

Verne Bright (F. H. Revell Co.)

Opening song: "God, that madest Earth and Heaven"

Scripture Reading: Ps. 53:1, 2; 46:1-3

Sentence prayers asking God to reveal himself in a new way to us.

Read James 2:21-24.

Song: "Jesus is the Friend You Need."

"God is real. He is seen in an inner experience. He is felt, not physically, but with the soul. The soul knows."

Are we as intermediates certain that we have had this inner experience? In our discussion today we want to strive to find how God can become more real to us. Perhaps we feel that he is real to us but the opportunity may come when we want to help someone else have this essential inner experience. The following are suggested as guide posts in our thinking. We need to know how to develop God-consciousness.

1. The Bible. Study and concentration of God-inspired words.

2. Meditation. "Meditation is spiritual digestion."
   a. On the Word of God.
   b. On life's great themes.

3. Prayer. "He that cometh to God must believe that he is and that he is a rewarder of all them that diligently seek him." In prayer we talk to God. By talking to God we are drawn up to him.

Song: "Father, In the Morning"

God becomes real to us through Jesus Christ
   1. His teaching.
   2. His life.

The closer we draw to Jesus the closer we draw to God. You cannot know God until you first know Christ.

Bible references: Luke 10:22; John 5:23; John 10:30; John 10:38; 2 John 7, 9.

How to know God in Christ.—Bible references: Acts 16:31; Isa. 35:8; 2 Cor. 5:7; Rom. 8:16, 17; 2 Tim. 1:12.

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

Program for October 8, 1939

"Speaking to yourselves in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs," Eph. 5:19.

To the Leader:

The Psalms, the Hymnbook of the ansient Jews, and of the church from the very start, and in some circles today, are not used enough. They express all religious emotions and conditions of man and if he but read them they are a source of strength, comfort and devotion. F. B. Meyer says, "Would you each morning truly meet God and worship Him in Spirit and in Truth, then let your heart be filled with the Word of God in the Psalms." It has been said, "The psalter rightly holds the middle place of the Bible being the heart of both Old Testament and New Testament." Let us make this precious book still more precious to our Juniors in this lesson.

Setting: A large Bible opened to the Psalms may be placed on a small stand or table. Place a lighted candle at each side of the Bible, and a large basket of autumn flowers and foliage in front of it, on the floor.

I. Worship Period.

1. Quiet Music.
2. Call to Worship. "Oh come, let us sing unto the Lord; Let us come before His presence with thanksgiving, Let us make a joyful noise unto Him with Psalms."
3. Songs: Select hymns based on psalms. Suggested are: M. H. B. No. 53 (Psalm 19), No. 192 (Psalm 119:18), No. 56 (Psalm 103:4), No. 202 (Psalm 72:6).
4. Scripture: Psalm 100, by a Junior.
5. Prayer.
6. Verse of month in unison: Psalm 104:33, 34.
7. Solo—M. H. B. No. 239, V. 1, 2, 3.

II. Mission Minutes

The September "Missionary News and Notes" is rich in material that will be of interest and help to Juniors. Let two Juniors report on letters found in it.

III. Study Period.

Aim: To help our Juniors appreciate and use the Psalms.

1. Three different Juniors read from memory familiar Psalms, (those usually memorized).
2. An older Junior should prepare a talk on: "The Psalms."—The Psalms are hymns that the Hebrew people sang at home, in the temple or synagogue or when they went on a journey.

Jesus probably learned many psalms as a boy.

Each year the people went up to Jerusalem for the great feast of the pass-over. They traveled in companies and rested by the campfire at night. They sang psalms as they journeyed and as they rested. The songs they sang were called "psalms of pilgrimage."—They are Psalms 120 to Psalm 134. They all tell about going up to Jerusalem to worship.

Many of the Psalms tell of God's beautiful world. The Psalms about the out-of-doors are called "nature psalms." Some of these are 8, 19, 104. Some were songs of thanksgiving and praise like Psalm 100. Some are prayer songs, Psalm 122 is a prayer song. The praise songs were probably the favorite songs of the Hebrew people. Many of the psalms tell us about the Lord Jesus. That is another reason why we love the psalms. Psalms 22, 23, 24 tell about Jesus.

The Hebrew people sang the psalms in their homes and family devotions. The 63, 103, and 130 were often used in the morning. At noon the psalm 4, 7, 19, 104 may have been used, and in the evening the psalms 3, 4, 8, 127, 134, 139 were used.

3. All stand and sing: "The Lord is My Shepherd." (Psalm 23).
4. Read Psalm 24 or Psalm 121 antiphonally. Have two speaking choirs. One in the front of the church and one in the rear.
5. Bible Drill. Find the verse, read it, and tell whether it is a prayer verse, a promise verse, a praise verse or a verse that tell us about our Lord Jesus. Psalm 24:1; 32:5; 121:7, 8; 40:3; 104:33; 51;10 104:24; 149:1; 119:33, 34; 95:2; 1:3; 16,11; 22:1.
6. Leader's Heart-Talk and Closing Prayer followed by the song "Into My Heart."

MENNONITE CONSCIENCE AND THE WORLD

change his mind, if new facts should show him to be in error. That is the scientific spirit. The discovery of the germs of contagious diseases and the means by which they are communicated made a new code of sanitary laws necessary and created new duties.

V. Willful, avoidable ignorance of God's ways in nature and of his way of dealing with man, lagging a century behind accredited discoveries of science is plain sin. He who believes too much misses the mark as truly as he who believes too little. To believe that the ethics of the Old Testament are as binding today as they were three thousand years ago and on a level with the insight of Jesus in the Sermon on the Mount is to be guilty to the sin of lying for God! A belated conscience has often proved to be a serious social hindrance and peril.

VI. The superior insight of the great exemplars of high religion — Jesus, Isaiah, Paul, Kagawa, and Gandhi— has discovered new continents of truth; and these rare spirits have become pioneers in th creation of the Christian ideal which today with awesome and winsome insistence challenges all mankind. And he who fails to obey its imperious call for the best known thereby loses his soul and his one chance to count for the utmost in the building of that society which ought to be.

IN MEMORIAM

Rev. John B. Baer was born May 19, 1854, near O'Fallen, Illinois. He departed this earthly life and passed on to his home beyond August 23, 1939, at the age of 85 years and 3 months. Besides receiving a common school education, he studied one year in the Mennonite school at Wadsworth, Ohio; one year each at a Methodist, Baptist, and three at a Presb· institution, and in three years worked his way through Union Theological Seminary, N. Y., from which he graduated in 1880· During vacations he was active as colporteur for the American Tract Society, also in the city Mission work of the 5th Avenue Presbyterian Church, N. Y., two years.

In the year 1886 Brother Baer was ordained to the ministry by Rev. A. B. Shelly. It was in the same year that he joined in holy wedlock with Miss Jennie Roberts who, as a true helpmate shared with him the joys and sorrows of life.

He served as the efficient Home Missionary and Field Secretary of the General Conference, 15 years; as pastor of the St. John and Ebenezer churches, Bluffton, Ohio, 10 years; of the Mennonite Church, Aberdeen, Idaho, 3 years, and of the Mennonite Church at Summerfield, Ill., 6 years.

Funeral services were held Aug.23, in "Rest Home" at 1055 N. Kingsley Drive, Los Angeles, where Bro. Baer passed away. The funeral sermon was preached by Rev. Eugene Eyman. As a text appropriate passages were chosen from I Cor. 15 and I Thess. 4.

"And I heard a voice from heaven saying unto me, Write, Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth: Yea saith the Spirit that they may rest from their labors; and their works do follow them." Rev. 14:13.

JOSEPH H. GOERING, son of Jacob and Kathrine Ries, was born on the 29th of October, 1857, in Waldheim, Russia. He was baptized upon the confession of his faith and taken up as a member in the Mennonite Church. In the year 1874 he came with his parents to America. On the 20th of April in the year 1880 he entered into holy wedlock with Mary Strausz with whom he was permitted to share the joys and sorrows of life for over 58 years, which they spent on the farm near Moundridge, Kansas, until 9 months ago when she preceded him in death. This union was blessed with 7 sons, one daughter, two sons dying in early childhood. He was very active all his life and busy until the 19th of June when he fell and broke his leg. He was taken to the Bethel Hospital immediately and remained there for two months until his departure on the 18th of August, 10:50 a.m. He suffered patiently these last days of his earthly life even as he had always done. In the hours of severe pain he found refuge in prayer unto the Lord. He could say out of experience with the Psalmist: "The days of our years are three score years and ten: and if by reason of strength they be fourscore years, yet is their strength labor and sorrow for it is soon cut off, and we fly away." Brother Goering was the father of Missionary Sam Goering. He attained an age of 81 years, 8 months, and 18 days, and leaves to mourn his departure 5 sons, one daughter, 2 daughters-in-law, 12 grandchildren, 4 great grandchildren, 4 brothers, one sister, and many friends and relatives. The deceased was buried from his church, the Eden Mennonite church. Rev. Walter Gering and Rev. J. C. Kaufman conducted the funeral services.

MRS. ALBERT S. AUGSPURGER, daughter of Christian and Anna Kinsinger Mosiman, born February 6, 1872, died August 26, 1939. In early youth she united with the Mennonite Church of Trenton, Ohio, remaining a loyal and faithful member until death. On September 3, 1896, she united in marriage with Albert S. Augspurger. Surviving are her husband, two daughters, one son and two grandchildren (One son and daughter preceded her in death) and seven sisters and five brothers.

Rev. J. E. Amstutz, her pastor, conducted the services from the Mennonite Church, Tuesday, August 29th. Interment was made in the Mennonite Cemetery.

CORRESPONDENCE

HEBRON CHURCH, BUHLER, KANSAS

Sunday, Sept. 10 was a memorable day for the Hebron Church, 5 miles east of Buhler.

In the morning three former ministers(Rev. P. E. Frantz, Rev. J. M. Regier, Dr. P. S. Goertz) reminded us of the changeableness of the things about us, pointing us to the 'Things that Abide'. During these perplexing times we need an anchor that will hold, something that does not change which is "Jesus Christ, the same yesterday, today and forever".

At the same time a mission program was given in the church. Mrs. A. M. Lohrentz spoke of the Chineese, and Martha and Frieda Wiens told of the life in India and showed things they had brought from India.

At noon a fellowship meal was served by the congregation, at which over 550 were fed. This and the evening meal made it more convenient to anew acquaintances and talk over "the good old times". The afternoon program was of a historical nature bringing to mind experiences of the early years of the pioneers in this part of the country. It was real pioneer work, for these early settlers had left practically all and came to this country to find freedom to worship God. Rev. C. E. Krehbiel opened the afternoon session and Rev. P. P. Wedel closed it with prayer.

The evening gathering was the largest, filling the tent to capacity, several hundred being outside of the tent. The choirs of the Hoffnungsau, the Buhler Mennonite, the Inman Mennonite, the Bethel Church and the Hebron Church, as well as the Stucky family from the Alta Mill, rendered a program which was enjoyed by all. How pleasant it is for members of different churches to gather and mutually present a program for the edification of all.—We are grateful to our heavenly Father for the pleasant weather and the many blessings received during the day.

FIRST MENNONITE CHURCH, NEWTON, KS.

Rev. Wilber Regier of Emmanuel Church, Los Angeles, Calif., preached for us August 6. His subject was Faith. August 13, in the evening, our Young People's C. E. and the Choir gave a program in Wichita. On the same evening a young peoples peace meeting of the Western District was held in our church.—On August 27, in the evening, our orchestra gave a very interesting and edifying program.—During Dr. Warkentin's absence in the west, Dr. Schellenberg, Rev. Krieder and Smucker of Bethel College taught our teacher's meeting.—The Senior Bible Class was taught by different ministers, and students of the congregation.—With kind greetings, C. H. A. v. d. GRACE MENNONITE CHURCH, DALLAS, ORE.

How time flies! Here winter is almost upon us again. And all the turmoil about us, it is terrible. What will happen next? Everything we read about indicates that what will happen in the last days is coming to pass.—We have been very busy here lately. Will soon have our church finished. The floor is being laid now. It is a pretty sight to see from one Sunday to the next, how the work is going forward. —August the 13th we had several visitors in our church, Mr. and Mrs. Julius Franz of Monroe, Wash., and family, also Mr. and Mrs. Henry Eitzen and son Oliver of Shafter, Calif. They have a number of relatives in Dallas. In the afternoon a number of relatives and friends gathered in the City Park for a very enjoyable visit.—Oliver took a number of moving snap-shots of our church.—Our pastor and family have bought them a home near Dallas, now they don't need to drive so far.—Sunday evening our C. E. gave a musical program which was very well received by a full house. It surely is marvelous what big crowds we are having now. It certainly is time we finish our church. We need and appreciate your constant prayers for the work here at Dallas.—Most everyone here is busy with the Hops or Prunes, with a very good crop in view. About a week ago we had a little rain which was very beneficial.—We expect to dedicate our church to the Lord in a few weeks. We wish you could all be here on that day.—Mrs. Leonard Schmidt, Corr.

BETHEL COLLEGE CH., N. NEWTON, KAN.

With the opening of school in the fall of the year the Bethel College Church again finds itself host to a large group of students, new and old. In the contacts with students from the various churches of the Conference, we feel ourselves in a measure in contact with the various churches of which they are members. Sunday, September 17, the homes of church members were opened to the students, each faculty member family taking in three or four students, for an afternoon's visit and entertainment.

September 24 this church intends to observe the Lord's Supper. This service is always a wonderful blessing and inspiration to all who attend, and the invitation is freely extended to all of God's children who wish to partake with us.

The various activities of the church which have been partially suspended during the hot summer months are one by one reopening. The Women's Missionary Society is urging women and girls who are not yet members to join with them in their first fall meeting September 19.

The entire school, and the church mourn the passing of one of its most lovalble young people, Melba Kliewer, daughter of Christ Kliewer, and member of Bethel College class of 1939. The funeral took place in the Bethel College Church, Friday morning, September 15. —Correspondent.

SALEM ZION CH., MARION, S. DAK., 9-14-39

Vacation days are over and school bells have called children and youth back to their tasks. Several have left this community to attend various colleges, or to resume the teaching profession.

Our church extended an invitation to Rev. John Bartel, Mountain Lake, Minn., to conduct a series of meetings in August. He was able to come, and all who attended were spiritually blessed.

The Young People's Retreat took place at the Freeman College Auditorium. The first meeting was held on the evening of Aug. 27 and for 3 days following they had a fully outlined schedule. The enrollment was the largest it had ever been and the teachers made the class work both inspirational and enlightening.—On Sept. 10th, the Salem Zion Choir gave a very fine cantata entitled, "The City of God" under the able direction of John P. Miller. There were many present and all music lovers were impressed by its story in song.

The farewell services for Rev. and Mrs. Orlando Waltner which were to be held Sept. 17, have been postponed indefinitely. Waltners are not able to get their passports, due to the present war dangers and so will remain in the States temporarily.

Last Sunday forenoon, Miss Elizabeth Foth spoke to us about her Mission work in the poorer districts of New York City. Hearing of how unfortunate some are, living in poverty and worldly sin, we were again reminded of the many blessings we enjoy from day to day. May we always be grateful to the Lord, and pray that as we receive we shall also share.

The weather here has been very warm and dry, and a good rain is not yet in sight.—Corr.

ANNOUNCEMENT
SIXTY-FIFTH EASTERN DISTRICT SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION — SEPT. 23rd, UPPER MILFORD CHURCH - ZIONSVILLE, PA.
SESSIONS: 2:30 and 7:30 P. M.
SPEAKER: REV. WILLARD CLAASSEN
PASTOR ROARING SPRINGS CHURCH
THEME: THE PLACE OF THE SUNDAY SCHOOL IN THE CHURCH

—Our Colleges and Higher Schools.—Now that the schools are getting lined up for another year of work, we are anxious to bring such items of their activities that may interest our readers. Bethel College has already been heard from and we have the promise of an article from Bluffton College. Who is next?

—Rev. A. S. Bechtel of Hanston, Kansas, writes among other items: "It is still so dry, very dry here and has been so uncomfortably warm and hot for the past two weeks. Hope summer's backbone will soon break. You people in the eastern half of Kansas, with good rains for some time, don't realize what a paradise you are living in.

—Our friend Bro. H. F. Toews, Teacher of Bible at Tabor College, has our hearty thanks for his timely article on "A Few Suggestions Regarding Our Attitude Toward War." We are sure our readers will appreciate it. We shall bring it either in this issue or in the next —We are in possession of a very good paper on "What is Good Choir Music" by Rev. H. E. Miller of Deer Creek, Okla., which he read at the recent Oklahoma Convention; also a report of that Convention by Prof. August Schmidt, both of which we shall bring as soon as space permits.

—Rev. J. M. Regier and family have moved from the Bethel College Campus to Hillsboro, Kansas,, into a home which the Johannestal congregation has acquired for them to be used as a parsonage. Brother Regier has recently been chosen pastor of this church He will, however, continue to assist Bethel College in its field work as his time permits.

—Bethesda Church, Henderson, Nebraska.—"Fourteen young people from this church attended the Retreat at Freeman, S. Dak. Various students have left for their respective schools and colleges: St. Paul Bible School, Moody Bible Institute, Freeman Jr. College, Bethel College, York College, Nebr. U. of Nebraska Agr. School and Medical College, are the institutions chosen. Preparations are being made for the local Bible School again this winter.—Rev. and Mrs. George Dick of the Lima, Ohio, Mission Church were with us August 27th.—We are much interested in the new Hymn Book and believe it will meet the need of our present time. We are using a small English songbook for S. S. and C. E., but for general worship it does not meet the demand."—A. W. Friesen.

—WESTERN DISTRICT CONFERENCE IS TO BE HELD IN WICHITA, OCTOBER 18-20. Look for detailed information in the next issues of this paper.—LORRAINE AVENUE MENNONITE CH., W. W. Toevs, Chairman.

—Grace Mennonite Church, Dallas, Texas.—Please change our address to Dallas, Ore., R. 1, Box 298A. We bought a home with 3.6 acres at the city limits on the Salem Highway, less than a mile from the Grace Menn. Church, of which I am pastor.—The work is progressing above all expectations, a hearty cooperation of all is enjoyed. The church building is nearing completion. They are in need of additional funds to complete it.—Fraternally, Homer Leisy.

—Bethel Church, Wolf Point, Mont.—"We certainly enjoy reading THE MENNONITE.—The Young People's Rally took place in the Bethel, Wolf Point, church, afternoon and evening of Sept. 3. It was very well attended. Six different churches were represented, each contributed to the Rally. Lunch was served by the local church. It is said that this is the first time that a Rally has been held in this community. It was a success.— Rev. Noah Unruh.

—Second Church, Philadelphia, Pa.—The Wednesday Evening Bible Class has been a most faithful group. The study of the prophet Amos has proved most illuminating. At present the book of Jonah is being studied. Several men of the church went on a deep sea fishing trip Aug. 26. They brought back a good catch and an abundance of fish stories. — Sunday, Oct. 1, will be Rally Day at this church.

—From Rev. G. S. Stoneback, Goshen, Indiana, we have this important and timely note of warning: "I appreciated the article in the last MENNONITE on PROPAGANDA. I feel, however, that it covers only half of the picture. You should carry another article showing that Great Britain is flooding this country with far more insidious and dangerous propaganda than the Nazi, Red, etc., groups. The latter is obvious, the former is not, and is intended to make us hate Nazis, etc., and join in a way to pull England's chestnuts out of the fire."—We are asking Brother Stoneback to write such an article for the Mennonite.

—News from Dr. H. A. Fast, in South America, from a letter to his family, dated Aug. 18. He had just arrived safely at Assuncion, Paraguay. The trip by airplane from Curitiba, Brazil, to this place, a distance of about 650 miles, took only four hours. The scenery from the air was indescribably beautiful. The plane was a large twin-motored machine, with a wing spread of 150 feet and a capacity of 21 passengers. Due to the strained international relations, the officers took the cameras away from the passengers and fingerprinted them. At Assuncion Brother Fast was met by four men with whom he arranged for the trip to Fernheim. "On Tuesday evening we leave for Chaco, where we hope to arrive Saturday night. Travel here is terribly slow . . . You can count on it now that I won't come home until the last of October, perhaps not until the middle of November . . . I must say that God has blessed my work here far beyond any expectation. The people are so grateful for this visit and this contact with Mennonites from N. A. And how delighted they are when they discover that I can speak 'Plattdeutsch.' "

—Dr. P. R. Schroeder is gradually recovering. — Dear Bro. Thierstein: Sunday, Sept. 17. I am to be dismissed from the hospital. Then it will be 32 days since I came here. I was on the operating table twice. A cancerous tumor was removed from the colon by electric cauterizing. In 3-4 months the doctor plans to finish the operation. During the past month I have experienced God's gracious healing hand in answer to many prayers. May the Lord be greatly glorified in the surgeon's further work on me!

—Berne, Indiana.—Recently the editor's home enjoyed a short visit by the Misses Rose and Alina Sprunger of Berne, Indiana, accompanied by a third sister, Mrs. J. C. Kaufman, Rev. Kaufman and daughter. The visit was much appreciated. It was a pleasant reminder of the years at Bluffton College, when Rose was a student in our classes.—Mrs. Caroline Tschantz Sprunger, 79 years old, widow of D. C. Sprunger, passed away Sept. 7, at her home in Berne. She was a great reader, hence remarkably well informed, and a most faithful member of the Mennonite Church. Mrs. P. J. Boehr of Richlandtown, Pa., who, as Frieda Sprunger, served as missionary in China, and who is just recovering from a severe case of erysipilis, is a daughter of the departed.—MARRIED: Aug. 20, in the First Mennonite Church, amid banks of flowers and in the presence of a large audience of relatives and friends, Miss Eddyth L. Baumgartner, daughter of Mr. and Mr. E. W. Baumgartner and Mr. Wayne Reusser, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Reusser. A reception was held after the ceremony at the Baumgartner home. The couple will live in Berne, where the groom is in the employ of the Dunbar Furniture Manuf. Company.

—Indian Churches, Oklahoma. — The six Indian Mennonite Churches — Thomas, Clinton, Hammon, Canton, Fonda, and Longdale — have had another camp meeting at the Thomas church, Sept. 5-8.—Mrs. J. E. Ediger and children made a trip to Chicago to visit the Ediger Baehr family, engaged in study there. And on the way home they stopped in Tulsa, Okla., with the family of their son and brother.

—Emmanuel Church, Los Angeles, Calif.—We have had a very busy summer. Had many out-of-state visitors, among them Dr. A. Warkentin, wife and children. Our church enjoyed his messages very much. —A. J. R.

—Rev. and Mrs. M. Horsch are getting ready to move to California, to Upland, where they have a home and where Rev. Horsch served the Mennonite church about twelve years as pastor, also as superintendent of the Los Angeles City Mission. There, amid beautiful surroundings and a fine climate the couple, it is hoped, will find the rest which their rather impaired health is in need of.

The BIBLE

An old Professor of biology used to hold a little brown seed in his hand. "I know just exactly the composition of this seed. It has in it nitrogen, hydrogen, and carbon. I know the exact proportions. I can make a seed that will look exactly like it. But if I plant my seed it will come to nought; its elements will simply be absorbed in the soil. If I plant the seed God made it will become a plant, because it contains the mysterious principle which we call "the life principle." This Bible looks like other books. We cannot understand altogether its power. Planted in good ground, it shows that it has the life.—C. U. Herald.

When War Shall Be No More

Were half the power that fills the world with terror,
Were half the wealth bestowed on camps and courts,
Given to redeem the human mind from error,
There were no needs of arsnals and forts.

The warrior's name would be a name abhorred!
And every nation that should lift again
Its hand against a brother, on its forehead
Would wear forevermore the curse of Cain!

Down the dark future, through long generations,
The echoing sounds grow fainter and then cease;
And like a bell, with solemn, sweet vibrations,
I hear once more the voice of Christ say,
PEACE!

Peace! and no longer from its brazen portals
The blast of war's great organ shakes the skies!
But beautiful as the songs of the immortals.
The holy melodies of LOVE arise.

—Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

Moral Rearmament

Armament is equipment for fighting or the task of providing such equipment. Rearamament is the process of renewing or increasing armament. Disarmament is getting rid of fighting equipment. Rearmament, as the nations are using the term, means the acquisition and accummulation of physical power to destroy and kill. But recently the term Moral Rearmament has been invented, which means the development of more heart power, more power that comes from love. Spiritual Rearmament would be better, because it is the spiritual power that Christ brought into the world that is needed to combat successfully the ever increasing forces of evil that are lined up against the kingdom of God.

How can we rearm spiritually? By doing the very things that God asked his chosen people to do, when they had fallen away from him, i.e., again seek God's face, draw near to Him in penitence, fasting, if need be, and worship Him in spirit and in truth. Members of Christian churches especially need to rearm, not only to fight evil but also to be able to draw others to the heart of Christ and convince them that Christianity has power for good. Then Christians must rearm themselves in Prayer, which may have been sadly neglected. When all goes well man is apt to be negligent or slothful in prayer. Prayer has power, "The righteous cry, and the Lord heareth." The Christian must also seriously endeavor to re-evaluate the reading of and medition upon God's Word, for it is a powerful headspring to feed the inner life. To love to read it and apply its teachings is to love God, for in it he has shown us the only way to genuine happiness. Christian families will do well to re-establish family worship. There parents can throw out the lines of influence that will draw their children and other attendants to the Savior. Churches and other Christian groups must practice evangelism, for their own and their neighbors' good. Christians must insist more vigorously that their school boards hire none but active Christian teachers for their schools. On Sundays and week days, on every occasion of service in their church, all well members should be present, the families in a body. Habitual, interested church attendance is one of the best antidotes against backsliding.

If my people . . . shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sins, and will heal their land." 2 Chron. 7:14.

A THOROUGH CURE

"Years ago a woman who professed Christianity was troubled by the fact that her husband and sons would have nothing to do with Christ because of her example. To a minister she confessed she had one bad fault, an ugly temper, but then she said, "I can't help it; I was born that way." The minister wrote down a verse for her. "The Egyptians whom ye have seen today, ye shall see them again no more forever." Ex. 14:13. Three weeks later he received a check for his church and a note attached which read, "A thank offering for a drowned Egyptian."—Sunday School Times.

Need of a Cool Head and a Warm Heart

Dr. J. H. Langenwalter

A cool head and a warm heart is a way of expressing what Jesus taught His followers through word and deed with much emphasis. It suggests one of the finest Chistian virtues. Not in twenty-five years has it been so necessary to cherish this virtue as it is right now. Matthew 12:35-37 is worthy of special consideration at this time: "The good man out of his good treasure bringeth forth good things; and the evil man out of his evil treasure bringeth forth evil things. And I (Jesus) say unto you, that every idle word that men shall speak, they shall give account thereof in the day of judgment. For by your words ye shall be justified and by your words ye shall be condemned."

In the light of the foregoing, it is well to learn to distinguish between information and propaganda and to larn to emphasize facts, as Jesus required those who would learn of Him to do. It is not impossible to learn to do this. Jesus made that clear when He said: "For nothing is hid that shall not be made manifest; nor anything secret, that shall not be known and come to light. Take heed therefore how ye hear: for whosoever hath, to him shall be given; and whosoever hath not, from him shall be taken even that which he thinketh he hath." That puts the emphasis upon character—What one is in the sight of God.

Much will be said about conscience under existing conditions. May we realize more fully than ever before that only God recognizes conscience! The spirit of materialism—Mammon—never does. That is why it is so futile to ask people who are committed to a thing-minded philosophy of life to recognize conscience. That idea lies beyond their understanding. That is why Jesus said so much about the impossibility of serving God and Mammon at the same time.

Under pressure people will either demand their rights or they will try to find their places and fill them well. During the Word War many people spent much time and effort in securing privileges, others bethought themselves of how they could serve best under untoward conditions. The former rather largely became notorious for the spectacles they made of themselves; the latter started reconstruction work in the war torn areas and did more to portray the Spirit of Christ to a reeling world than did all the oratory about Peace.

Many are facing problems now which tend to make them afraid and, therefore, unfit to solve those problems. Frank and intelligent discussion of such problems is always the best way of getting at the heart of difficulties. That is one reason why our evening meditation hour is to be used as a discussion period for five Sunday evenings. Other discussion groups are welcomed by appointment.—An Open Letter in the Reedley Church Bulletin.

Merits and Demerits of Prophet and Priest

by G. A. Linscheid

At the suggestion of the editor that I write something for THE MENNONITE I shall take this opportunity to briefly allude to a very interesting discussion in a Sunday School class recently of the difference between, and the merits and demerits of a prophet and a priest. Various questions were asked among them such as: Who is a prophet? Who is a priest? Have we prophets in our day? Is a pastor or a minister a prophet or is he a priest? Is a doctor a prophet, because he can tell his patient that he will die soon? etc.

Interesting suggestions were made such as: the prophet is progressive—has visions of possibilities while the priest is conservative, rather reactionary. The prophet is, very often, considered a crank, and there are those who wish to appear as prophets who in reality are but cranks.—The interesting question arose in my mind: Have we no way of distinguishing between the prophet, the priest and the crank? The Lord, of course, tells us that by their fruit ye shall know them, but must we always wait for their fruit to develop before we know their spiritual parentage? I am reminded of the words of the prophet Isaiah (8:20) "To the law and to the testimony: if they speak not according to this word, it is because there is no light in them." The chief function of the prophet is to represent God and His Word to man, while that of the priest is that of representing man before God, but the chief function of the crank is to represent himself and his own interests—ostensibly he may be very vociferous for some cause or some person, but at heart it is to gratify himself.—The pastor—and for that matter every child of God—prophesies when he delivers the Word of God to man. 1 Cor. 14:31: For ye may all prophesy, etc. When the pastor—or any child of God—intercedes in behalf of fellowman he functions as a priest. 1 Peter 2:9: "But ye are . . . a royal priesthood." God's Word still is a lamp unto our feet, and a light unto our path.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

CLINTON, OKLA. Sept. 1, 1939.

Dear Readers: We have said before that there are very few if any Indians in our district who do not know that Jehovah is the only true God and Jesus Christ the only true Savior. Here is another example.

In a family of four, father, mother, daughter and son, the daughter has been a Christian for some years. It was hard for her to be the only Christian in the family. She said her parents love her but give here no encouragement. She said her father believes in the Old Indian religions and as long as his father (her grandfather) lived, was strengthened in this whenever they visited him. These parents never attended our church services and when we visited them were friendly but distant when approached spiritually.

This summer the son sent word that he wanted to see me. When I went there, not only the son and his sister, but also father and mother came into the "front room" of their well kept house. I asked the son why he had sent for me. He said he had decided to become a Christian and wanted me to tell him, how to repent and be converted. We prayed. Then I explained the plan of salvation as plainly and simply as I could. It took quite a while but the son sitting with me on the bench, mother and daughter on chairs and the father in old Indian style on the floor, listened closely. After I was through I asked the boy if he had any questions to ask. He shook his head and said: "This is what I want." Then the father and mother exchanged a few words, and then he said: "Three of us, she and I also."

During the time of instruction the difference showed between these and others who, unlike these, though not Christians, came to the house of God to hear the Gospel message. But from lesson to lesson their understanding grew and they willingly, yes, gladly accepted the Word of God as read and explained to them. It was our blessed privilege to baptize these three redeemed souls and welcome them as members in the church of Jesus Christ.

"My word shall not return unto me void, but it shall accomplish that which I please, and it shall prosper in the thing whereto I sent it."—Isa. 55:11.

Open Forum—Rev. A. J. Dyck

Music will be furnished by the First Mennonite Church.

It is requested by the Program Committee that questions to be discussed in the open Forum be sent to Rev. Dyck before Conference time. It is the purpose of this Forum to give opportunity for discussion of problems which confront ministers in their work. Your problem will be welcome.

What is Good Church Music?

by Herbert E. Miller

Read at the Oklahoma Convention

Music and song have always been very instrumental in propagating the Gospel of Jesus Christ. Many a heart and soul that had remained closed to the spoken word has opened to the message of a song. Song carries the gospel into many hearts that the sermon does not reach.

Music today is used for various purposes: for selfish interests, for business interests, entertainments, as well as for church purposes. All music should be of a wholesome and moral nature. Thinking of church choir music, it must be for one purpose only, that is, to glorify God. This means that the music must be Christ centered, and the singers or musicians must be Christians. This is a high standard, but it must be maintained in order that a choir may render a consecrated service.

In many instances the emphasis has shifted from glorifying God to glorifying self. Ira D. Sankey said, "Conventional music is performed by singers who think of glorifying themselves. They have but little sympathy for the minister, they rattle the leaves of books, or show listless inattention; they sing expressly for musical effect, and nothing more except the pay they expect to receive. Dwight L. Moody once said, "I will not have songs that have no doctrine in them, nor singers without the Holy Spirit." And again quoting Sankey, "Singing has been an important part of worship in all ages. It should be prayed for as much as the preaching." These two men, who were partners in a successful evangelitic campaign, certainly spoke from conviction and experience, and no doubt this has also been the conclusion of many other servants of God.

Good choir music we may then say must embody a scriptural or spiritual message, and must be sung in a way that will edify God. Choir music in our churches today ranges all the way from difficult anthems and oratorios to simple Gospel Hymns. All have their place if rendered to glorify our heavenly Father. To the devout Christian who lives in the presence of God, the oratorios such as the Messiah and Elijah, and great anthems, are a wonderful inspiration and give occasion for worship and devotion, but it may be that to an unsaved person these musical numbers may not mean as much as a simple gospel song such as, "Jesus Paid it All," or "What a Friend We Have in Jesus."

Thus I would say that oratorios, anthems, and gospel songs may be good choir music. However, good judgment must be exercised as to an appropriate number for the occasion and the ability of the choir to render it. An oratorio or part of it, and anthems, may very effectively be sung at special seasons such as Christmas, Easter, Thanksgiving and other special occasions. Whereas at evangelistic meetings simple gospel songs would be more appropriate.

In our modern day of so-called cheap music and jazz it is necessary that we keep a constant guard lest it invade our church music and undermine its sanctity. There are songs which lend themselves quite readily to variation, and when variations begin to border on the jazz type of music they lose their spiritual power and are no more suitable for church and choir use. A few religious radio programs have music that can almost be classed as jazz. I contend that the music of our gospel songs has been composed to bring out in the best possible way the message contained in the verses.

In choir or group singing the interpretation of the music is largely determined by the director. Many times if a song is sung too fast or is given too many added interpretations the singers give the impression of straining for effect instead of bringing out the message of the song. Let us then remember that the type of choir music and its rendition must be of such a nature that it glorifies God. They who sing must let themselves be the instruments through which the power of God may flow.

In closing I want to illustrate this with an incident in the life of Martin Luther. During the great Reformation which he began, his co-worker, Melanchthon, was speaking one evening on the public square of a large university town. The feeling against the reformers was very bitter and gradually a large unfriendly crowd gathered. As Melanchthon spoke the opposition increased. Howls of anger broke forth from the crowd, then came louder threats, followed by sticks and stones. Melanchthon looked for his friend Luther, but he had not come. The crowd became wilder, when suddenly above all the commotion a clear, rich and powerful tenor voice could be heard singing the song of the Reformation.

"A mighty fortress is our God
A bulwark, never failing
Our helper, he, amid the flood
Of mortal ills prevailing."

Without a falter Luther sang on and on and a strange change came over the throng; it grew silent; hands that held stones let them drop; doubled up fists relaxed; anger flushed faces grew quiet.

The singing of this great hymn miraculously changed the attitude of the crowd. Thus we see the power of a hymn sung by a man who was consecrated to God. It is our obligation to use our talents in serving and glorifying our heavenly Father.

In Psalm 96:2, we read, "Sing unto the Lord, bless his name; show forth his salvation from day to day.

"Make a joyful noise unto God, all the earth; Sing forth the glory of his name: Make his praise glorious... all the earth shall worship thee, and shall sing unto thee."—Psalm 66:1,2,4.

Our Peace Stand

by Walter H. Dyck

Paper Read at the Mennonite Peace Rally, Newton, Kansas, August, 30, 1939

Dear Lovers of Peace:

"Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall." (1 Cor. 10:12). No truer is this maxim than when applied to our so-called, "Mennonite Peace Position."

We have a four hundred year record, a venerable list of martyrs, a distinction of having had the largest group of conscientious objectors of any denomination in the last war, and a confidence that all will be well if and when we enter the next.

These elements of apparent strength may well lead to over-confidence. "Pride goeth before destruction. and a haughty spirit before a fall." (Prov. 16:18). A record of the past is no assurance for the future unless Christian young men and women are equipt to know, feel, and act in the spirit of their Lord.

What, then, is our peace stand? We will attempt to define it in three words. It is a reasonable stand, a rightful stand, a realistic stand. First we note, that it is reasonable.

A Reasonable Stand

The non-resistant position is not a peculiarity of the Mennonite Church. In peace time, when the public thinks and feels more sanely, it is generally admitted that war has always raised more problems than it was supposed to settle. It is reasonable to point out, when passions are cool, that economic disturbances, passion for power and profit, together with suspicion and misunderstanding, fear and hatred, have been causes for wars. It is reasonable and commonly accepted that the late war brought losses—human, material, moral—which cannot be calculated. Think of the sacrifice of the best manhood, wrecks—physically and morally—broken homes, debts bringing dissatisfaction, unemployment following a "war boom," blood and tears. When the public is susceptible to reason it will regard the non-resistant position as plausible.

But the unreasonableness of war alone—its futility—its wastefulness—its hellishnesss—does not create in men the necessary dynamic to overcome its causes. Men do not always act on what they know to be right. This leads us to say that ours is a rightful stand.

A Rightful Stand

Our beloved country owes its beginning to those who recognized the value of contientious convictions. Therefore, they placed No. 1 in the Bill of Rights, a part of the constitution, the following clause: "Congress shall make no law respecting the establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof." The South Dakota State Constitution says: "The right to worship God according to the dictates of conscience shall never be infringed." The Canadian government has been even more tolerant in this respect.

Among the various reasons for being opposed to war—economic, political, or humanitarian—there is none as important in its foundation and appeal as the simple Christian answer: "War is Sin."

Non-resistance is a Christian position. We cannot speak for those who reject the gift of life and the "God of Love" who impowers His children to make his principles active in daily conduct. For this reason the Apostle Paul was led to write: "But the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God: for they are foolishness unto him: neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned." (1 Cor. 2:14).

Numerous have been the attempts to bring about reform. Peace societies have been active. Most of them have emphasized that "war is the greatest collective sin" but not as many have added that the rejection of the Savior's atoning death—the new birth—new desires—is the greatest individual sin. The Bible teaches that something is wrong with the individual nature of man. But painting the pump does not cleanse the source of pollution. Faith in man is not possible without faith in God and a knowledge of being right with Him. This is peace that passeth understanding.

If war is to be averted in the near future it will be because enough Christians permit their conscience to assert itself. Consciences are awakened when hearts become impressed with the extreme sinfulness of sin and the supreme joy that comes through sacrificial service. It is not a matter of "I will not fight" (defiant resistance) but "I cannot fight" (How dare we wound the hearts and lives of those whom God loves?). Dwight L. Moody declared that his conscience would not permit him taking part in war. He took this stand, neither because it was a popular thing to do nor because of his church's position. Similarly, others have become impressed with the sanctity of human life, that our work as Christians is to save and not to destroy life, and that good alone will overcome evil. This is the teaching of the scriptures. It is our rightful stand because "Thus saith the Lord"! Then, again, ours is a realistic stand.

A Realistic Stand

We are facing real life situations. We must be able to meet them. We are not so optimistic about world betterment and brotherhood when men continue to reject God as their Father through Jesus Christ (John 1:12). But neither are we pessimistic, withdrawing as a turtle into its shell, saying, "This world is too bad for a peace testimony."

But it's real life we are living. A real faith to hold, real temptations, real opposition, real sacrifice and persecution. What a challenge that we know that there is a real victory ahead for those who endure in this faithful testimony.

What, then, are some of the real things we may do that will further this Christian peace testimony? May we suggest that:

(a) We must undertake a more thorough study of the life and teachings of our Lord. We must memorize and meditate upon salient positive scripture texts. We should study apparently difficult scripture passages in the light of their contexts. We need peace talks, rallies, study courses, discussion groups. We need a most thorough biblical undergirding of our position.

(b) We must know our Mennonite background. Different pamphlets are available on this subject. We would treasure our church more if we were better acquainted with its struggles.

(c) We must combine knowing and doing into practical living. Zwingli, for instance, wrote in 1522: "Considered from the Christian view, it is by no means right to have part in war." In 1531 he died on the battlefield. After all, actions speak louder than words. Thousands of young people have committed themselves to the C. O. position during the last few years. Will they stand?

(d) We must stress our wholehearted allegiance to the highest welfare of our country. Opposition against war places us under greater obligation to give our life blood for peace.

(e) We must apply this principle to everyone everywhere. We dare not chime in calling certain countries enemies. We prefer democracy. But Jesus and the Apostle Paul lived and taught allegiance to a country under despotic rulers. Christians live under a common banner but under different forms of government. We must love the German as the English, sympathize with the Japanese as with the Chinese. Neither dare we heap reproach on the Jews. Jesus says, "Whosoever will." Ours is the identical message.

(f) We must exercise our non-resistant faith at home—with neighbors, members of the family, and in the church fellowship. We are told that during the last war some of our boys were grilled on four rather embarrassing questions:

"1. Are you a regular attendant of your church? Evidence had to be given over the signature of the pastor that this person was a regular attendant at the Sunday service.

2. Do you support your church financially? How much? I wonder how many pastors would be embarrassed to satisfy this demand for certified evidence?

3. Have you attended your communion services?

4. Finally, if one claimed that his request for exemption from war service was religious, what are the texts on which he would base his claim?"—Dr. D. W. Kurtz in Gospel Messenger, Mar. 14, 1936.

(g) We must organize now for constructive peace time service to the needy. Our communities present many opportunities. It would be well to sponsor special projects of slum clearance, public health projects, crime and fire prevention, etc. The world must learn that there are needs greater than those of killing fellowmen.

(h) We must list probable avenues of service in war time which are compatable with our position. During our last war a joint Mennonite committee presented to our government "a list of services which . . . . conscripted Mennonites can render, without violating the conscience or offending against their confession of faith. In short," the statement read, "we can render any service outside the military organization, which has as its purpose to save and maintain life, and by which the national benefits are promoted, but we cannot participate in any work whatsoever which results in the physical injury of others or deprives them of life."

A joint committee of Mennonites, your Western District Peace Committee, and a Continuation Committee of Historic Peace Churches are considering some such draft at the present time. May the Lord give guidance in this important task.

(i) And lastly, we must pray that all efforts may be in accord with God's will. The World Peace Crusaders are appealing to the citizens of the world in words which the Hon. Sol Bloom of New York presented for entry into the Congressional Record, as follows:

> "If millions can be intensively trained and mobilized for war, why should not millions mobilize for peace? The Bible says, 'The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much.' This appeal is made to every man, woman and child to enlist in world-wide mobilization by praying daily, fervently, systematically, consecratedly, and unfailingly for the cessation of war, etc."

May this be our united prayer and purpose for action.

THE TEMPTATION OF JESUS

Matthew 5:1-11

Introduction

Jesus' hour of loftiest exaltation and clearest testimony from the Father (last week's lesson) is succeeded by Satan's fiercest assault. The Spirit led Jesus into the wilderness, Mark says, "drove Him" (1:12). Jesus was tempted by the devil. It came from without, not from within. It came from a person, not merely from abstract sin. The personality of Satan is here clearly taught. The reality of Jesus' human nature is plainly seen in his being tempted, and in his hunger. He met the temptations as a man and conquered them by the Word of God and the power of the Spirit, the same means that are available to each of us today.

The First Temptation vs 1-4

Jesus was alone in the desolate section of eastern Judea, where John the Baptist had been. Doubtless He spent much of the time in meditation and prayer while fasting for forty days. Mark and Luke indicate that He was tempted throughout this period. The three temptations of our lesson, are the climax of all. After forty days He became very hungry and physically weak, so resistance to this temptation was difficult and yielding would have seemed to be quite excusable. Satan appealed to Him to use His divine power (v3) which would be entirely proper for Him as the Son of God.

Jesus recognized the suggestion as a temptation of the devil. In becoming a man, He took upon Himself human limitations and to live the life of a man among men, He could not adopt the policy of satisfying His physical hunger by working miracles. Had he done so, we should rightly feel that He was not like one of us. Jesus met this temptation by citing the Word of God (v4). Physical food is necessary but it is not the thing of the supremest importance.

The Second Temptation vs 5-7

This was a suggestion that Jesus could quickly win the people by performing a startling sign or miracle (v6). Satan quoted Ps. 91:11, 12. Why should Jesus spend years of patient labor in teaching and trying to win the Jews, when in a brief time He could win them? Jesus realized that spectacular deeds were not the foundation on which His kingdom could be founded. He refused to work a miracle merely as a sign. He again answered by quoting God's Word. We have no right to expect God to protect us when we take very unwise and foolish risks. Had Jesus yielded, He would have shown spiritual pride, a mere putting God to the test, seeking His protection in a rash adventure.

The Third Temptation vs 9-11

In this temptation Satan appears in his true colors (v9). He seeks worship of himself. He would have Jesus render to him the worship which belongs to God only. He would have Jesus compromise with him and use worldly means to win men to Himself. Had Jesus become King through compromise, Satan would have been His prime minister. Satan offered to Him dominion over the world by another way than that of the cross. Jesus knew His kingdom must be a holy kingdom, established through worthy means. Jesus was tempted in all things like as we are. Not for a minute, not even in thought, did He yield to sin. For the Christian, the only attitude toward temptation and sin is that of outright opposition. A will consecrated to Christ, is the final factor in our overcoming temptation.

Publication

THE NEW HYMN BOOK

This morning (Friday, Sept. 22) the pastor of a nearby church asked the undersigned, how soon the new Hymn Book could be obtained. The answer was, as soon as enough money was available from voluntary donations by the churches to start making the book. The brother then asked if the Board of Publication would accept prepayment for orders on hymn books. The answer was that we so much wished voluntary donations from each church first, so as to prevent the Board's getting into a heavy debt again. His reply was that his church had already sent in their donation and they were ready to help speed the making of the books by placing an advance order for 200 books and paying for them in advance. On hearing this we felt like embracing the brother for his and his church's noble attitude toward this important undertaking.

In making our appeals for the annual gift offerings which the Conference has asked the churches to make for the work of publication, we had in mind to give every church an opportunity to do something toward this missionary enterprise of getting out a more servicable hymn book without at once running into debt. And we keep on hoping and exercising our faith that most churches will do something.

A subsequent plan to help us finance the project is the one held out by this church which not all churches can, and some will and some may not want to use. May God bless this church and lead others to help us by this second plan of proceedure.

The price of the new Hymn Book has not yet been fixed. A first edition of 2,500 copies will make the cost in excess of $2.00 for a first class book in every respect. But we will have to take around $1.50, may be even less, to overcome competition. And the church mentioned seems to be willing to advance $300.00 (an excess could be refunded).

We have acceptable offers for the work of furnishing first class electroplates for the book from several reliable firms, and can contract for the work to be started right away, with the possibility that the book may be available for new year presents. Only, as burnt children shun the fire, we would like to see the financing partly assured before executing contract.

SERMON SKETCH

ACCORDING TO GOD'S PLAN

(Making Life Count)

by Rev. E. S. Miller, Pastor, Alberta Community Church, Portland, Oregon

"Let us lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus." Hebrews 12:1.

I. INTRODUCTION

The author is writing to a group of Jewish Christians who are finding the Christian life distressingly full of difficulties. Persecuted, robbed of their goods, with bitter foes from without and within, many are discouraged and wondering if Christianity, after all, is but a sheer futility.

So the author writes a letter to encourage and hearten them. He urges the importance and necessity of loyalty to their faith, and gives them definite directions for living the Christian life. These directions are as pertinent today as they were 1900 years ago and we will do well to listen to the instructions for making a success of the greatest of all enterprises, Christian living.

II. DIRECTIONS THAT WE ARE TO FOLLOW

A. We are to run . . . ("Let us run.")

1. Living a Christian life is a strenuous matter . . . a race to be run . . . a stubborn battle to be fought.

a. This is in harmony with the whole New Testament. Paul said, "Put on the whole armor of God." —Jesus said, "Strive to enter into the straight gate." 'Strive' is a muscular word, at home on the athletic field, on the battle field, in Gethsemane. It speaks of white-heat earnestness and is not in the vocabulary of the coward or lover of ease.

2. This race to be run is set before us. (Not round about us nor behind us) Illustration: A football player gained possession of the ball and carried it 69 yards, but made no score for his team. He had run hard but in the wrong direction. We see the same thing happen in our churches. Only as we face forward can we hope to win.

B. Not only are we to run, but to run being stripped of every handicap. (This is common sense and every athlete knows this is necessary in order to win a race.)

1. To run the race successfully, sin must be put aside.—This does not mean only great glaring sins. It means every sin . . . fault-finding, back-biting, indifference. Nothing so hampers us as conscious sin.

2. To run the race successfully, every weight must be put aside.—A weight may not be sinful in itself but becomes so because of our wrong use of it. Many things which ought to be a help become a hindrance. . . . Illustration: While a certain church member was poor he attended church regularly, but as his success increased, interest in the Kingdom decreased. Today he never enters th church and his home is wrecked.

"Laying aside every weight" is the acid test of our amusements. Does a certain amusement help or hinder you in running the Christian race? Do you run the race more swiftly after a card party or a dance? Whatever helps, cling to . . . whatever hinders throw it away. An eagle caught its leg in a steel trap and was weighted down by it so close to the earth that it became a prey of a hunter. What a spread of wings some of us have! How we might soar! But we are weighted down so close to the earth that we become an easy mark for the enemy.

C. Not only are we to run stripped of all handicaps, but we must run with patience. (We must persist . . . exercise patient endurance. This race is not a 100 yard dash but a race from the cradle to the grave.)

1. Some lose patience because they meet opposition. Yet, opposition is to be expected. Any driftwood can float downstream, but going against the current requires effort. Think of the difficulties encountered by Christ, the early saints, the Mennonite saints.

2. Exercise patience, for suffering is not a mark of God's displeasure. It is, rather, a mark of sonship. "My son, despise not the chastening of the Lord, nor faint when thou art rebuked of Him."—It is His mark of love, not His forgetfulness. Suffering is not necessarily an evil. It may be a means of great good. The tenderest hearts are usually those that have been broken. Be patient. God will kiss your tears into jewels and change your sorrow into song.

D. We are to run looking unto Jesus. (The Greek word for 'looking' is 'aphorontes' meaning, "looking away from everything else" unto Jesus. Our eyes are to be fixed upon Jesus, not upon assets or liabilities.)

1. Look to Jesus as our example . . . not at faulty church members or the preacher.

2. Look to Jesus as our Saviour and constant Helper. An example is good, but not enough. Perfect examples may often discourage us. Christ must do more than set an example. He must save me, and keep me, and give me the power to follow Him. No man who runs with his eyes fixed upon Jesus will ever lose the race.

III. CONCLUSION

A. Let Us Look to Him

He will give us strength to renounce sin, and power to throw away our weights; will enable us to run with patient endurance. "Look unto Me and be ye saved all ye ends of the earth." And we find, "They looked unto Him and were radiant and their faces were not ashamed." This is our hope . . . our privilege . . . our divine command according to God's plan.

B. Therefore let us lay aside every weight.

Let us lay aside the sin that so easily besets us. Let us run with patience the race that is set before us. Let us, by the grace of God, look away from everything else unto Jesus Christ our example, yea, our Saviour and Redeemer.

The Hebron Church

1879-1939—Sixty Years

The people that organized the Hebron Church all came from South Russia, some as early as 1872. In 1871 the Russian government discontinued the promise that the Mennonites would not have to do military service. Then our parents said: "We do not want our dear boys to kill other boys, nor be killed by other boys in war." They sent delegates to the United States of America to ask the privilege of exemption from military srvice, if they emigrated to the U. S. This was promised by President Grant. So our parents decided to emigrate to the U. S. They sacrificed much. They had to sell good improved farms, leave well organized schools and churches. They had to leave all that, even separate from some good friends and relatives, mostly for religious freedom.

After making the long troublesome trip, our parents settled on the prairie in Kansas. God gave them courage and help to live a Christian life. Their motto was: "Plow, Spade, Needle, Bible, Song and Prayer." Some would have gone back if it had not been for the big "puddle" between the old home and the new home. When our parents first settled here they dug a cellar, a well, then they built a house of mud or raw brick and a hay roof. They organized district and private schools and churches. The churches were organized only a short distance apart because traveling was slow and had to be by foot, horseback, ox team or one or two horse vehicle. Now we use an 80 horsepower car or airplane to go to church or some other places.

In this immediate locality two churches were first organized. Hebron was organized a little later.

The different forms of baptism and other independent rulings caused differences of opinion. Some good Christians believed that they could serve God and other churches better by tolerating other forms of baptism and men that were converted and lived a Christian life, regardless of the form of their baptism. Baptism should not to be considered as conversion but an open sign of conversion and peace with God. Our parents organized the Hebron Church that they might obey God's will and serve God who is seeking the lost. Sept. 3, 1879 they had a prayer meeting. The same day the Hebron church was organized. The following were elected: Rev. B. Buhler, Elder; C. B. Froese and David Penner preachers; John Wall and Peter Lohrentz, deacons. Church meetings were held in different residences till a new church was built by John Wall on the present location on the "Dutch Avenue." In 1900 this building was sold to Dietrich Neufeldt and a new and larger one was erected by F. Goertz.

Rev. B. Buhler was ordained by his former Elder Leonard Suderman, in the Immigrant house 3½ miles north and 1 mile west. Elder Buhler served the Hebron Church from 1879-1906. He died in 1918.

Elder A. M. Martens, 1901-1924. He died in 1925.

Rev. Jacob B. Dick, 1901-1919, serving 18 years.

Rev. Peter Lohrentz, 1888-1925. Died suddenly.

John E. Hildebrand elected to preach 1918, serving part time.

Isaac H. Balzer, elected to preach 1918, served part time till 1925. A. R. Epp and Jacob P. Balzer occasionally substituted in the pulpit.

Rev. J. H. Langenwalter was our first minister on pay for full time, 1925.

Rev. P. E. Frantz served 1925-29 and 1931-1936.

Rev. P. S. Goertz, 1930-1931.

Rev. J. M. Regier, 1936-1937.

Rev. T. A. van der Smissen, 1937, and continuing to serve.

Dr. and Mrs. A. M. Lohrentz were the missionaries from the Hebron Church. Rev. and Mrs. J. M. Regier were ordained for the same purpose, but on account of sickness could not go out. There were about ten who entered the field of nursing. During the last World War five of our boys were drafted but went to camp as conscientious objectors.

In 1887 it was voted to have S. S. teachers, for class No. 1, Rev. C. B. Froese, Jacob Lohrentz; No. 2, John Balzer, Jacob Suderman. Other important problems came up: C. E., Women's Sewing Society, authority of Church leaders, drink, tobacco, liberalism in religion. The Hebron Church joined the General Conference in 1916, during the World War.

Our dear parents and Hebron church workers during these 60 years made mistakes, but did much in the Spirit of God, for which we are very thankful. We join with St. Paul in Gal. 6:2, "Bear ye one another's burdens and so fulfill the Law of Christ." That has brought and will bring success in individuals, in family life, in social life, in national life and in Church life.—Paper read by J. G. Neufeld at the 60th anniversary of this church.

Report of the Oklahoma Convention

Held at Orienta, Aug. 27-28

The General Conference churches of Oklahoma and of Perryton, Texas, usually meet 2-3 days every year in, what is called, the Oklahoma Convention, for inspiration, worship and the regulation of projects which they carry on. A large tent was erected at the Saron Church to accommodate the audiences. Although this congregation is small, the members planned and cooperated so well that the large number of visitors were well taken care of.

Sunday morning was the mission festival. Rev. P. K. Kroeker of Orienta opened the meeting and welcomed the Convention. After this Rev. Solomon Mouttet of Inola spoke in German and Rev. Clyde Dirks of Hutchinson, Kans., in English. Their deeply spiritual sermons inspired the audience to greater faithfulness in the Lord's service. Rev. A. E. Kreider of Bethel College had been secured as the Convention speaker, but due to an infection he could not come. So the Lord directed it that Rev. Clyde Dirks could take his place and preached four inspirational messages through which we were blesssed.

Sunday afternoon the song festival took place. Eight mixed choirs, two men's choirs, two quartets and one trio took part in the program. Most of the songs were well prepared and inspiring. Rev. Herbert Miller of Deer Creek read a paper on "What is Good Choir Music?" and was made leader for the coming year. Rev. J. W. Bergen of Goltry led the program this year.

Sunday evening we had the Young People's Meeting. Two short themes by Harry Reimer and Virgil Buller were read. There were also several songs and a reading by Clara Mittlestate. Rev. Dirks preached a sermon for the young people.—The meeting Monday morning was opened by Rev. P. K. Kroeker, after which Rev. Mouttet delivered the Conference sermon. Then followed the Convention business. The minutes and different reports were read and approved. The result of the elections was: Chairman, Rev. S. Mouttet; vice chairman, Rev. Albert Schmidt; secretary, Ernest Voth; treasurer, Rev. H. N. Harder; program committee, Rev. J. W. Bergen and Mrs. John Frantz; members in the Christian Worker's Conf. com., Rev. Menno Kliewer, and O. B. A. board member, Mr. J. C. Ratzlaff. The tent com. Adam Ratzlaff, J. P. Wedel and Frank Wiebe was retained by motion. After the business Rev. Dirks and Rev. Benno Toews preached short sermons.

The afternoon meeting was opened by Rev. Albert Schmidt of Medford. Rev. J. B. Frey then gave a talk on Religious Education, followed by reports from officers of the O. B. A., after which Rev. Dirks preached his concluding sermon.—Monday evening the sewing societies gave the program. Miss Elizabeth Baergen led the song service, Mrs. John Frantz made the opening. The roll of societies was called, each answering with a Bible verse, then Mrs. Benno Toews gave a piano solo. The Meno Mission Circle next gave a missionary pageant. It presented the past, present and future of missions, and was much appreciated. The closing number of the program was a sermon by Missionary Benno Toews.

The Convention was uplifting. None that came seeking a blessing was disappointed.

August Schmidt, Sec.

Let us then come hungering and thirsting for the Bread and Water of Life, to satisfy the spiritual desires of which the Lord is author.

Lest We Forget

During such a time as this it is easier than usual to forget the sacredness of all human personalities. Christians who believe in peace as a way of life in which one respects all persons cannot afford to dull their appreciation of the sacredness of all human personalities if they would be consistent in their peace stand. To those who oppose us and our belief in peace as a way of life we must show respect and sympathetic understanding if we would be followers of Him who said, 'Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do." — R. W.

False Witnessing in Advertistng

(The following is a Christian Endeavor theme written by LeRoy Eitzen of the Bethel Church, Mountain Lake, Minn. Mr. Eitzen has attended college for one year and is a cousin of Rev. D. D. Eitzen. For more good material on misleading advertising refer back to THE MENNONITE of August 8th, p. 10.)

In the seventeen hundreds the owner of a small store in Boston installed a notice in a newspaper of his day:

> Thomas Smythe respectfully notifies the people of Boston that he has offered for sale stoves, foot warmers, and similar heating appliances.

This gentleman was certainly not bearing false witness. But the blatant, screaming advertising of today is a far cry from the simple wordage of this eighteenth century bulletin. Is the fault in today's advertising, in the system, or in its methods? I believe that the system is perfectly justified but that it is abused. What is the system of advertising to which we are subjected? It consists of:

1. Billboards and poster advertising at available public places
2. Startling facts and color advertisements in magazines and newspapers
3. Private enterprise sponsoring radio broadcasts.
4. Freak stunts—everything from men carrying sandwich signs to aviators doing skywriting.

For some concerns who cater to the elite or who live by a long standing reputation alone, mere mention of the name is an accepted procedure. Examples are the Tiffany and Company advertisements on the first page of the National Geographic Magazine or the Standard Red Crown billboards. This form of advertising is innocent enough. It is the sensual advertising which appeals to one's instinct for pride, vanity, popularity, the opposite sex, wealth, and a good time that has the harmful consequences.

What is desirable about our present advertising? For one thing, nation-wide advertising puts products where all people can test them. Secondly, some of the finest things in life, among them, refined entertainment, are brought to us merely for our enduring a small amount of commercial sales talk.

But take a look at the dark side—merely through ballyhoo, many worthless commodities are made to sell. For instance, any chemist will mix you a five-dollar batch of Listerine for a few cents. Then too, the manufacturers of many products the values of which are doubtful are the biggest advertisers. In order to appeal to one's desire to be smart and up to the minute, tobacco companies show pictures of fashionable users of their brand of cigarette. Once they say, "They Satisfy," and then they say, "One Calls For Another." The back cover of a magazine never suggests the great truth that you can get along without a lift if you get along without a Camel. By being shown together with a fireside, a cozy chair, a pretty girl, and a good book (never the Bible) a glass of Scotch may be made to appear innocent. The American Federation of Brewers has been running a very clever series saying, "Pay your bills before you drink, we believe in moderation and sobriety, we, the beer industry of America, have bought millions of dollars worth of grain from the farmer" and much of similar tripe. They never tell of the bartender who wrangles all the money out of an inebriate. They never show the mangled body of the child that was crushed beneath the car of the man who said, "Two glasses will never affect my driving." They never admit that beer that made Milwaukee famous will make you drunk.

The very thing that caused the Great Depression is causing our misleading advertising—a handful of men less concerned about the starvation, corruption, and wrecked lives of the people who give them their riches than they are about the riches themselves.

Never hold anyone by the button or by the hand in order to be heard out; for if people are unwilling to hear you, you had better hold your tongue.—Chesterfield.

Influencing Others For Christ

Senior C. E. Topic for October 8, 1939

Main Topic: INFLUENCE FOR CHRIST
John 1:35-45

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "I Would Be True," "We've A Story to Tell to the Nations," "Let the Lower Lights Be Burning."
2. Reading of main topic, several short prayers.
3. Special music: "Seeking The Lost."

II. Leader's Introduction

Sometimes we ask ourselves, "How is it that people can accomplish such splendid things in the service of God. Do you remember that incident of Abraham sitting in his tent out on the plains? God led him out into the open, and told him to look toward heaven. Abraham, in responding to God's loving leading, was brought out into a larger place, given a larger outlook. His spirits were uplifted, his heart was cheered. When we respond to God's love, our depession vanishes, our blurred outlook is brightened, our hearts are strengthened. So, as we respond to God's love we are brought out into the place where we can most effectively serve him.

III. Suggested Topics

1. Changed through contact with Christ. Acts 4:12-14.
2. Ways of winning others for Christ. I Cor. 9:19-23.
3. Confessing Him. Matt. 10:32, 33.
4. Saving others from death. James 5:19, 20.
5. Compelling them to come. Luke 14:16-34
6. The Reward. Dan. 12:2, 3

IV. Facts for Study

"Anything I have been enabled to do here in this community," the pastor of one church said, "is due to the faithful and constant cooperation of my two right- and left-hand supporters—the men's and women's Bible classes. Without appointment and of their own desire, they have held up my hands and helped to carry out my plans, until, together, we have made this church a power in the community. I am your leader, and I have tried to be 'on the job,' but so were they, or it never could have been accomplished."

Are we all qualifying as "right- and left-hand supporters"? On a committee or not, are we on the job of doing everything in our power to make the C. E. an asset to the church and the community? Being a member commits us individually and collectively to this job. Are we on the job?—A. J. C.

V. For Discussion

What can our C. E. do to influence others for Christ?

VI. Illustrations

"Here For Him!"—At memorial services held for soldiers and nurses in France during the war, it was customary, we are told, to have a member of the family answer, "Died for France," as each name was called and the grave decorated.

But on one occasion, the appointed accidentally responded, "Here for him." The hopeful message appealed, and the phrase has since replaced the other.

Likewise the missionary, and also every Christian worker, represents Christ, and may answer "Here for Him!"

Introduced to Jesus.—As Reverend George Winn was walking along a high mountain trail he came upon an elderly Korean man carrying a load of wood, and offered to carry it for him. The Korean finally yielded to the unusual request from the strange foreigner, who carried the load until the parting of the ways. Here he returned it to the man, who thanked Mr. Winn for his assistance. Mr. Winn said that the act was nothing, but added that the man had a greater burden of sin which Jesus Christ had come to bear for him, if the man would let him.

The two men parted. Some years later at a Bible class for men, a Korean told this story, ending it with, "I am that man. I accepted Jesus as my Savior, and have always wished to thank the man who introduced me to the great burden bearer, but as all foreigners look alike to me, I do not know which of the missionary teachers here may be that man."

VII. Food for thought

Blessed is the man whose words move others to follow Jesus.

Conquering Trouble

Senior C. E. Topic for October 15, 1939

Main Topic: What shall we do when trouble comes? John 14:1; 1 Pet. 5:6-11.

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "Does Jesus Care," "What A Friend We Have in Jesus," "Be Not Dismayed."
2. Reading of main topic and prayer
3. Special music

II. Leader's Introduction

The religions of the world differ most deeply in the solution they offer to the problem of evil. Islam is known as the religion of resignation; Christian Science and Hinduism are alike in that they solve the problem by running away from it; Buddhism seeks relief by way of oblivion. But Christianity offers victory over evil. It helps us to turn trouble into triumph, to make stepping-stones out of stumbling blocks. In every age, Christ's followers have found grace and power given to them, welling up within them like springs of living water, when outward circumstances were most desperate.

III. Suggested Topics

1. Flee to God. Ps. 46:1-3.

3. Trust in the Good Shepherd. Psalm 23.
2. Resort to prayer. James 5:13-16.
4. Accept Christ's invitation. Matt. 11:28-30.
5. Take it to Jesus. Mark 6:29-31.
6. Seek God's will. Luke 22:39-44.

IV. Facts for Study

In times of trouble, let us not run away from it or give way to it, but discover what God would have us do in spite of it. Let us never blame God for our trouble, saying, as so many do, it is God's will. Let us rather find what God would have us make of this trouble.

V. For Discussion

1. What did Jesus do when he was in trouble?
2. Are times of trial to be desired?
3. How may the "dark days" become valuable days?

VI. Illustrations

Where Flowers Grow.—When a little lad was told by his mother that it was God who made the beautiful flowers grow in their neighbor's yard, he asked, "Why doesn't he make some grow in ours?"

"We haven't prepared the soil, Sonny," was the reply.

VII. Food for Thought.

If your heart is full of sadness,
And your life is full of care,
Help to bear another's burdens,
Some one else's trouble share,
And in grieving for their pain,
You will find your joy again.

If your life is full of labor,
Tired grow your heart and brain,
Stretch a helping hand to others
Bending 'neath life's stress and strain,
And from every loving deed,
Back will come the strength you need.

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

WHAT HELP CAN WE GET THROUGH PRAYER?

Intermediate C. E. Topic for October 15, 1939

For Daily Reading:

Oct. 9. The prayer of Cornelius. Acts 10:1, 2, 30-33.
Oct. 10. Prayer for Peter. Acts 12:5-12.
Oct. 11. Paul's three prayers. II Cor. 12:2-10.
Oct. 12. Fruitless praying. James 4:2, 3.
Oct. 13. The Spirit's aid. Rom. 8:26, 27.
Oct. 14. Asking in Christ's name. John 15:7-16.
Oct. 15. Topic. Col. 4:2-4; James 5:16-18.

Teach Us To Pray

The while within this sacred place,
We humbly gather now to pray,
Oh, wilt Thou through Thy loving grace,
As here we wait before Thy face,
Teach us, O Lord, to pray.

Lord, may we lift our hearts in praise
And laud Thy holy name for aye,
May we give thanks through all our days
For guidance down life's troubled ways;
For this, O Lord, we pray.

And set our hearts in tune with Thee,
Lord, give us such a trust alway,
Such boundless faith, that we may see
Thy love, whate'er Thy answer be
When to Thee, Lord, we pray.

Edith Dunn Bolar

Scripture Reading and Prayer
Reading of Daily References

Luke 11:9, 10. Prayer is a venture in faith. Jesus himself was a man of prayer and surely he was far busier than we will ever be. Is it, therefore, ever a good excuse to say we have been too busy to pray? Jesus also called his disciples away to pray. The world's most spiritual men have always expressed their need of prayer. (Assign various members to relate what prayer meant in the lives of men such as Franklin, George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, George Mueller and D. L. Moody.)

Vocal Solo: "The Lord's Prayer" (Have an accomplished singer in your church or community render this solo.)

What help can we get through prayer?

1. It will give a clear vision of duty. It will put within us the desire to do that revealed duty.

2. It will give us strength to bear. Life will not always be easy and the greatest source of help in the hardest moments is prayer.

3. It will be a source of strength in weakness. When faced with temptations turn your eyes to God in prayer.

4. It will serve as a release from passions such as anger and hate.

5. Prayer makes real to us the life that is to come.

6. Above all it brings us into fellowship of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

Hymn: "Dear Lord and Father of Mankind"

References to the prayer life of Jesus: Mark 1:35; Mark 6:45-47; Luke 6:12; Matt. 14:31-36.

References to the prayer life of Paul: Rom. 1:9; Rom. 15:30; II Cor. 1:11; Eph. 1:15.

"And so amid life's toil and struggles,
God, who gave to us His son,
Whispers, when we're weak and weary,
'Faint not, my child, pray on, pray on.' "

Announcements

As we stated in the very beginning, prayer is a venture in faith. Let us conclude our meeting by singing the Hymn, "Faith of Our Fathers."

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

"AND THE RANSOMED OF THE LORD . . . . SHALL COME . . . WITH SONGS." Isa. 35:10

Program for October 15, 1939

I. Worship Period.

1. Call to worship by quiet music.
2. In unison—Psalm 104:33, 34—"I will sing unto the Lord as long as I live: I will sing praise to my God while I have my being. My meditation of Him shall be sweet: I will be glad in the Lord."
3. Song: "Come We That Love The Lord" M. H. B. No. 27.
4. Scripture: Zacharias Song found in Luke. Luke 1:68-79. A Junior Boy.
5. Prayer by leader.
6. Pianist plays melody of "O Worship the King." M. H. B. No. 1, softly while Juniors read the words of verses 1, 4, 5 silently. Then a solo voice from rear balcony sings the first verse.

II. Mission Minutes

Three Juniors should discuss briefly, "Why I Should Give for Missions."

III. Study Period: Aim—To help our Juniors sing songs that will edify them and glorify God."

1. Introduction: The Bible is full of song. God's children cannot help but sing for the joy that is in their hearts when we read the songs in the Bible we find that there is no thought but "The Lord" in them. They are songs of praise, praising God's power, love, mercy and kindness.
2. Reading of "The Perpetual Psalm" Rev. 4:8.
3. Sing one verse of "Holy, Holy, Holy (v4).
4. Reading of Mary's song. Luke 1:46-56.
5. Reading of the angels' song. Luke 2:13-14.

12. Victrola of Halleluiah chorus. Rev. 19:1-7. the Messiah.
13. Leader's closing Prayer.
14. Doxology.

America Must Stay Out of War

From an Article by Carl J. Landes, Peace Worker

Congress has been called into special session to do one thing, to repeal the mandatory arms embargo and substitute a "Cash and Carry 'Neutrality' " in its stead. As senator Borah has pointed out, this would not be "neutrality" at all.

The Administration wants a "neutrality" which will sell war materials to anyone who can come to New York or San Francisco, pick up these materials, pay cash for them, and carry them away in their own boats. "Cash" and "Carry"!

This is not "neutrality." If this substitute program is put through, during this special session, the United States will be a direct ally of France, England and Poland. They are the only set of belligerents who have enough ships to come, pay cash, and carry away. So as in 1917 we are about to invest our money with the allies, and that means that we will ultimately be drawn into the war, if we are needed; for money, markets and armies have a habit of travelling together.

Can adoption of the substitute program be stopped? Yes, an aroused public opinion can stop it by working through Congress. The voter back home has much power over Congress. Certainly this is the time when every voter who wants peace ought to use his rights as a citizen.

What to Do!

1. Every Christian ought to pray daily that Church leaders, Governmental officials, and the nation may be led into paths of Justice and Peace.
2. Write a post card or letter,(in your own handwriting, not with typewriter), to the president, your two senators, your one congressman, telling them that you do NOT want the mandatory arms embargo lifted, because that will ultimately draw us into the European War. Write these cards or letters NOW.
3. Watch Congress! The day before Congress is to vote on any substitute program, send four night letters: one to the president, one to each senator, and one to your congressman. Repeat your opposition to the lifting of the arms embargo. 500,000 telegrams on the day of voting will leave their mark.
4. Ask your friends and neighbors to do likewise!
5. Ask your church officials to have a congregational resolution sent by letter or telegram, or both to these same officials. (But by no means let this substitute for individual letters and telegrams.)
6. Urge every organization of which you may be a member to take some such action NOW.

Begin to carry out the above six simple points NOW! Keep at them until the substitute "neutrality" program is defeated, and a stronger neutrality written.

Such a program will take several hours of your time, and cost somewhere in the neighborhood of a dollar. But if those of us who "wish" for peace will spend this time and money NOW, we may save hundreds of hours of unnecessary labor and time, and billions of dollars, and (more important) millions of lives.

The Christian People of America must answer—"PEACE?" or "WAR?" Will YOU help give that answer?

"In Flanders fields the poppies grow,
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place; and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing, fly
Scarce heard amid the guns below.

"We are the Dead, Short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow
Loved and were loved, and now we lie
In Flanders fields.

"Take up our quarrel with the foe (war)
To you from failing hands we throw
The torch; by yours to hold it high.
If ye break faith with us who died,
We shall not sleep, the poppies grow
In Flanders fields." —John McCrae.

"He that would follow after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross and FOLLOW me. —LOVE your ENEMIES—.

Will we keep the faith!

Mennonite History Library

Carrying out a General Conference resolution, the Executive Committee of the Conference has appointed four brethren to comprise an Historical Committee. The brethren are: J. R. Thierstein, chairman; H. P. Krehbiel, H. A. Fast, A. Warkentin, secretary-treasurer and custodian.

This committee considers itself privileged to receive and preserve historical material of our denomination. Some friends have contributed cheerfully, money, books, papers, pictures, letters, etc.; so that the Historical Library of the General Conference now consists of five beautiful oak book cases, one cut case, one typewriter, about 500 books and pamphlets, circa 30,000 letters, 750 cuts and many pictures.

Bethel Sollege has kindly invited the General Conference to preserve and display this material in the Science Hall, where everyone is welcome to get acquainted with it.

We thank everybody most heartily for the contributions in money or material. God has revealed Himself in the experiences of our forefathers. To preserve their inheritance and make useful for future generations is our sacred duty.

All contributions and correspondence should be addressed to the secretary-treasurer, A. Warkentin, Bethel College, North Newton, Kansas.—A. Warkentin.

CORRESPONDENCE

GNADENBERG CH., near WHITEWATER, KAN.

The Gnadenberg church wishes to extend greetings to the editor and contributors. We find the MENNONITE helpful, indeed, in carrying on the various branches of our church work.

On the first Sunday in September we had the rare privilege of seeing two of our members, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Dirks, ordained as missionaries to the China field. Many visitors had found it possible to be with us. After a hot and dusty morning, the weather was comparatively calm in the afternoon by the time the meeting began which might well be considered as a token of Divine good will. This is always very important to us, because our church is small and has no basement. But the loud speaker worked well and the receiption could be had on the church lawn. So no one needed to go away without a chance to listen to the inspiring sermons and the choir music and then remain for a simple repast and a bit of fellowship. Words can hardly describe the value of such an occasion. It seemed to me from witnessing the many warm handclasps that the group would have liked to linger together longer. Are we not all agreed that such occasions afford us a splendid way to use the Lord's day?

A few days later, Mrs. Dirks found it possible to attend the Women's Missionary society where she further endeared herself to us. She had not been so well known here. We feel benefitted. If the missionaries in China read this, may we through this letter commend Mr. and Mrs. Dirks and their son to their especial regard. They will do their best in the great work.—We were glad on this same Sunday to greet another of our missionary couples, home on furlough—the Will C. Voth family. We expect to have them in our midst often.

As may be generally known, Rev. G. N. Harms, who has been elder of the Gnadenberg Church for more than fifty years, wishes to retire. He has done his work with unfailing faithfulness. While we have not yet found anyone who is willing to assume all of his duties, we have been very fortunate in having Rev. J. J. Voth of the Bethel College faculty preach for us quite regularly. A word of appreciation is also due this dear friend who has a fine gift for interpreting a portion of scripture in such a way that we feel helped along the path of the "Better Life."

Rural churches have their own peculiar problems and one of these is the matter of choir music. However, our men's chorus and other smaller groups render very creditable service. Of especial promise is our junior chorus. But really the most important special activity that our church carries on is the vacation Bible School. We have for a number of years been able to secure the services of Mrs. Gus Dyck from the Emmaus Congregation. She is a born teacher and is good for the children. The Vacation Bible Schools are of the utmost importance in helping to bring our children up in Christian nurture. Could we not make it a Conference slogan that every church shall earnestly strive to carry on a Vacation Bible School. Could we not apply the parable of the Precious Pearl here?

Mrs. Herbert A. Schmidt, Corr.

WEST SWAMP CHURCH, QUAKERTOWN, PA.

During the past month, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Roth, Quakertown, Pa., celebrated their sixtieth Wedding Anniversary. On August 8th the Senior Bible Class from Bethany Church gathered at the Roth home for the commemoration of the anniversary. A short program was rendered which brought back memories of 60 years ago. The Pastor, Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander delivered a short address and the group sang a number of familiar songs. The meeting came to a close when refreshments of "Sixtieth Anniversary Wedding Cake" and lemonade were served.

At different times relatives and friends gathered at the Roth home to felicitate the couple. Among these were Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Myers and family from Philadelphia. Mr. Myers is General Secretary of the Pennsylvania Sabbath School Association. A long and pleasant relationship between the two families sprang up on the occasion when Mr. Myers lead a party of Sunday School workers from Pennsylvania to attend the World's Sunday School Convention in Los Angeles in 1928, and Mr. and Mrs. Roth with their daughter, Mrs. Adelaide Moyer, were members of the Convention Tour. Hearty Congratulations!

—Eden Mennonite Church, Schwenksville, Pa.—What a blessed year we have had with the organ. Its ministry has been a great blessing to pastor and people. We wish to express our thanks to God and to all who contributed.—Harvest Home Services were not as well attended as one would feel they should have been. The offering for foreign missions that day was $275.00—The sailing of Paul Shelly on Sept. 7, was cancelled. The outbreak of war hinders his studying abroad. It is, however, expected that he can enroll some where outside the war zone, so that he can make use of his scholarship.

—The Junior Bible Class of Bethany Church, Quakertown, and the True Blood Class of the same church, held a joint Doggie and Corn Roast in a pleasant grove near town recently. Counting the children, about 60 were present. Everyone enjoyed the social so much. The True Blood Class is preparing a peanut sale, the profit from which will go toward the class' mission offering.

—Recently the four ministers of our Iowa Churches got together for a day to discuss what they might do to further the cause of peace, feeling that it is not enough for us Mennonites not to take part in war. But we should be busy with definite projects of good-will and uplift to overcome evil with good." Some resolutions to that effect were drawn up.

—Grace Mennonite Church, "The Friendly Church, 207 Jefferson St., Dallas, Texas, extends a friendly invitation to the churches of the General Conference to the Dedication of the Church, the Ordination of its pastor, Homer Leisy, and the Reception of new members, October 15, 1939, at 2 p.m.—Homer Leisy, Pastor.

—Rev. Wilmer S. Shelly of the Wadsworth, Ohio, church announces sermons on the following topics for a few Sundays, "The Christian Attitude Toward Harvest (on Harvest Home Sunday); the Christian Attitude Toward Temperance; the Christian Attitude Toward Communion (on Communion Sunday); the Christian Attitude Toward the Sabbath; the Christian Attitude Toward Stewardship. — The pastor and family visited in Pennsylvania during the month of August.

— FIRST CHURCH, ABERDEEN, IDAHO.—Rev. Edgar Toevs had a public sale, Sept. 18th, and is leaving this week for San Francisco, California, where he plans to attend the San Annselmo, Presbyterian Seminary. Rev. Toevs had served the Presbyterian Church of Aberdeen for a little over a year.—The Idaho State Christian Endeavor Convention will be held at the First Mennonite Church of Aberdeen, Nov. 2-5. This Convention is generally quite large and it is therefore, quite a responsibility for the host church. THE WEDDING of Miss Irene Dick of the First Mennonite Church, and Fred Thiede of the Pleasant Valley (Lutheran) Church was solemnized, Friday, Sept. 15, 1939. Rev. P. A. Wedel performed the ceremony. Fine refreshments were served and many presents presented to the Newly Weds. Corr.

—An Apparently Ideal Church Council.—From the Bulletin of the Menn. Church, Reedley, Calif., we glean the following: There are fifteen members in our Church council. They are: The pastor Emeritus, the Minister, three Deacons, three Trustees, the Chairman of the Congregation, the Secretary of the Church, the Treasurer of the Church, the Superintendent of Christian Endeavor, and the Superintendent of Missionary Interests. By occupation this group divides itself as follows: four ranchers, four business men, two ministers, one attorney, one music teacher, one trucker, one homemaker, and one physician. This certainly makes a representative group.

—Rev. C. E. Krehbiel, Editor of "Chr. Bundesbote," and Mrs. Krehbiel are on a tour to Houston, Texas, primarily to visit their daughter Florence there. Along the way they expect to make stops at Geary, Medford and other places in Oklahoma.

ATTENTION, NORTHERN DISTRICT

Butterfield, Minn., Sept. 15, 1939

Editor:

Kindly serve notice in the "Mennonite" that the Treasury of the Northern District Conference is sorely in need of funds.

Sincerely yours,
Rev. V. Sawatzky, Treas.

—Bethel College.—Opening exercises for the new school year were held Sunday evening, Sept. 17, with Prof. Bernhard Bargen as the speaker, while Pres. Kaufman presented the members of the faculty to the students and large audience. The school's enrollment at the time of opening exceeds that of any previous year. It is: Total enrollment, 336; Freshmen, 151; Sophomores, 68; Juniors, 60; Seniors, 49; special students 8. This year, after a laps of several years, there is again a class in Greek New Testament numbering 9, also a class of 6 in "Principles of Preaching." Theological seminaries are ready to accept credits for first year's work done at Bethel.

—Col. Charles Lindbergh seriously warns our country against participating in the new European war. In a recent radio address he said in part, "If we enter fighting for democracy abroad, we may end by losing it at home----Let us not delude ourselves. If we enter the quarrels of Europe during war, we must stay in them in times of peace as well. It is madness to send our soldiers to be killed as we did in the last war, if we turn the course of peace over to the greed, the fear, and the intrigue of European nations. We must either keep out of European wars entirely, or stay in European affairs permanently."

—The Berne, Ind., Witness reports that the state of Indiana expects a corn crop of over 207 million bushels, or an average of 50 bushels to the acre, the highest acreage outlook in 76 years and five bushels above previously recorded mark, as per figures by university experts.

Jottings.

—Mr. J. J. Kroeker of Newton, Kansas, who is in Germany making use of a study fellowship granted him by the University of Nuernberg writes, he thinks that matters causing the war will be settled in a couple of months.

—Honored Couple Celebrates Golden Wedding.—Amongst a concourse of relatives and friends Mr. and Mrs. Jacob F. Toews of Newton celebrated their golden wedding at the Mennonite Church, Sept. 11. Mr. Toews is the son of the once favorably known Rev. J. R. Toews and Mrs. Toews is a sister of Prof. H. H. Ewert for about fifty years a prominent educator in our General Conference, and of Rev. Benj. Ewert, leading home missionary among our brethern in Canada. We wish the fortunate couple many more years of happy life in each other's company.

—An Iowa Mennonite Winner in Cattle Exhibits.—Erman Bauman of Pulaski, breeder of pursebred Jersey cattle, with his entries of a male and female Jersey specimen, is reported to have won both grand championship honors at all fairs in which they were exhibited with the exception of the State Fair, at which he nevertheless copped seven firsts against the stiffest competition in the nation. His champion cow "Pretty Carnation Goldie" has been declared winner at three successive All-Iowa Fairs.—Congratulations to Brother Bauman, master cattle-raiser and farmer.

HARD OR SOFT.—How do you take affliction? Do you repel or accept? What about the sorrows and disappointments that come your way? Do you blame God or thank God? For the child of God, does the exhortation, "In everything give thanks," apply to life's abasements as well as its aboundings. Jeremiah and Job present two reactions to the discipline of difficulties. Job said, "God maketh my heart soft," but Jeremiah, "Thou hast stricken them, but they have not grieved; . . . they have made their faces harder than a rock." Your observation will make you know that sorrow hardens some and softens others. A child is taken from the home. One parent blames God and lives from that moment a life of rebellious protest. The other parent yields in will to that which could not have been prevented in deed, and with tenderness of full submission says, "God's way is the best way." The passing time brings sweetness and growing hope to the one, but bitterness of spirit to the other. How foolish for us to protest the outworking of God's plan in these or any other matters! Surely He who knows the end from the beginning can be trusted with the issues of life and death.—Moody Monthly.

Let Us Have Peace

The earth is weary of our foolish wars.
Her hills and shores were shaped for lovely things,
Yet all our years are spent in bickerings
Beneath the astonished stars.

April by April laden with beauty comes,
Autumn by Autumn turns our toil to gain,
But hand at sword-hilt, still we start and strain
To catch the beat of drums.

Knowledge to knowledge adding, skill to skill,
We strive for others' good as for our own—
And then, like cavemen snarling with a bone,
We turn and rend and kill . . .

With life so fair, and all too short a lease
Upon our special star! Nay, love and trust,
Not blood and thunder shall redeem our dust.

LET US HAVE PEACE!

Nancy Byrd Turner.

MAKING MISTAKES.—Some of the best people fail to accomplish what they are capable of, because they are afraid of making mistakes. In extreme cases of that kind the psychologist would say they are suffering from an inferiority complex. And yet such people sometimes come to be outstanding among their fellowmen and do great things, when God takes hold of them. We need only to think of Moses, Jeremiah and even the apostle Paul. But God does not use all people that way. He lets most of us struggle along as best we may, to carry on in a manner which the psychologist calls the "trial and error method" of learning procedure. We learn to do any task, any skill, by trying again and again until we succeed. The child learning to walk stumbles again and again in the attempt, until it acquires the necessary equilibrium of body and control of muscles and bones to walk along. We need what someone has called, "the courage of the imperfect", i.e. just enough courage to do our best at any task we undertake. The man who was given five talents earned only five, no more; the one who had two talents to start with, won just two others, and they both received their "Well done," because they had, no doubt, done their best. To do our best, even if the result is not perfect, brings personal rewards, inward satisfaction. The work of the apprentice does not measure up with that of the master workman, but it is necessary, if the apprentice is to acquire skill. It is by doing our best day by day, that we grow in our accomplishments step by step, until perfection or near-perfection is reached. The "courage of the imperfect" is needed so much in our Christian life and service. Mistakes will be made but, just so we profit by them, we will win success and God's approbation in the end. If Christians generally would do the best they can, every hour, every day, what a mighty force for good they would be in the world. "God advances the success of them that are upright."

THY SPEECH BETRAYETH THEE. — Matt. 26:73.—When the maid on that memorable night of Jesus' trial approached Peter with the words: "Thy speech betrayeth thee," she said more than she knew. It was not the words which Peter spoke, so much as the accent of his voice, that led the maid to detect Peter's relationship to Christ. Peter plainly said, "I know not the man." Nevertheless, the accent of his words proclaimed him a Galilean, and perhaps the tone and manner of his speech further certified that he was one of the twelve. The true Christian cannot speak the world's shibboleth; neither can a sinner correctly speak the heart-throbs of a child of God. After all, it is the inner life that tells. Any man may formally sign a creed, or he may verbally assent to a statement of doctrine, and yet know nothing of the life of a "born again" believer. Orthodoxy and creeds have their place, and a vital one: however, they mean nothing unless they are the expressions of a life which follows Christ. We may be found wanting in our deeds as well as in our creeds. Many there are who "come as the people cometh"; they make long prayers and enlarge the borders of their garments, but their hearts are far from Him. When deeds are "put on" they mean nothing; when, however, deeds and creeds are the expression of the heart life, they faithfully declare a possession that is more than a profession. — R. E. Neighbour.

Bluffton College News

Bluffton College began its new school year on September 10 with a meeting of the faculty for a period of devotion and discussion of the aims of the college. Those taking part in the discussion laid special emphasis upon the task and methods of attaining the religious aims of the institution. The registration of old students took place on Tueday, September 12, and of the freshmen the following day. Everything points towards a very good college year.

There is an increased enrollment over last year. At this time there are registered 219 students, 214 of whom are taking regular college work; five are special music students. 81 freshmen have registered, an increase of 14 over last year. Twelve states are represented in the student body, Ohio ranking first and Pennsylvania second in the number of students furnished. An especially large number of students from the city of Lima are found among the freshmen this year. In quality and character the student body seems to be one of the finest Bluffton has had in recent years. Of the students who graduated last spring and desired to teach, 23 or 82 per cent have secured teaching positions; of the five remaining, several have good prospects of still being placed. This percentage of placement is high in comparison with many schools.

Several new members have been added to the faculty. In economics, Miss Marjorie Posten is taking the place of Mr. Babione who is on leave of absence donig graduate work at Ohio State University. Miss Geraldine Evans teaches French and Mr. George Hansche teaches physics and mechanical drawing. Both Miss Moyer and Mr. Bowman are doing graduate work this year. Mr. Byers is teaching philosophy and psychology on a part time basis.

The inauguration of Dr. Ramseyer as president of Bluffton College is scheduled for October 20, at 4 P. M. in the college chapel. This event will be celebrated in connection with Home Coming day on October 21. A large number of visiting guests from neighboring colleges and universities as well as friends of the college will make this an outstanding event. A luncheon and a musical program will be featured in the evening.

The churches of the Middle District Conference voted at their last conference to support the college on a dollar per member annual basis. Several churches have already taken action on this resolution. It is hoped that the other churches will do the same in the near future. This added support will do much to make Bluffton a better and more efficient institution. With the fine hopeful and devoted spirit on the campus among both faculty and student body and the enthusiastic support of the constituency a good year is in prospect. — Irwin W. Bauman.

A Word from the Prison Cell

"For with the heart man believeth unto righteousness and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation."

Each of these two clauses expresses fundamentally the same thing and each aims to avoid a misunderstanding of the other.

Heart confession is genuine only if it results in mouth confession, and mouth confession is genuine only, if it is really a confession coming from the heart. It is not so easy to probe the genuineness of a mouth confession. As long as such a confession means some advantage, even if it is only a show of holiness, some people will exercise it liberally. But when mouth confession yield no advantage, if perchance it may even lead to a taste of the cross, then it stands unmasked in all of its shallowness. Then it becomes very evident that it had not been a confession of the heart." For with what-ever the heart is filled the mouth will overflow." Calvin, in referring to heart confession, says, "In considering this word we make the observation that the grains of faith do not lie in the brain but in the heart. And, as for the heart, it means a serious and deep agitation of the inner life." Regarding mouth-confession he says, "The heart must burn with such zeal for the glory of God, that the flames beat to the outside." "I am come to cast fire upon the earth, and what do I desire if it is already kindled?"

A faith that we do not confess is not faith. "I believe, therefore I speak." That is a death warrant that one would impose on himself who would say to his pastor, "I think just like you do, but I simply don't dare to express it." Or, "Let come what may, no one can rob me of my faith," with a possible gesture toward the beast, but with it all the maintenance of a bold silence.—I know very well how difficult it often is to open one's mouth. But let us fraternally encourage one another, to open our mouths for our Lord Jesus. And in so doing let us look to Him to whom is given all power in heaven and on earth.

Dear brethren, there comes, in the future judgment a moment, when we will voluntarily unlearn to look upon any man whatsoever, when every look of our eyes will be rivetted on His mouth, in tense expectation whether he will say to us the one single, saving word. And in that moment our weak, pitiable confession, that we have given with fear and trembling, will play no inconsiderable part. "Everyone therefore who shall confess me before men, him will I also confess before my Father who is in heaven." Our faith in the beyond is a rank fraud, if we do not demonstrate it in action and conduct here on earth. Here in this earthly life our bearing must be such that our fellowmen may be able to read from our decisions, be they large or small: There is one that really believes in yonder life. May God forbid that we take our composure in an unreal, lazy, dumb so-called heart confession and die in that state! But I know that this will go harder and harder, the more we look upon ourselves and our own weakness, guilt and sin, and upon our oppressors. And it will be the more liberating and blessed the more we learn to look upon Him and Him only, "the beginner and finisher of our faith."

This one prayer I have that, as long as I breathe, I may be permitted to proclaim His righteousness and truth, and sing His praises. Where and how I may do this, I will solely to Him. But this I pray that my last breath be for him! That is my prayer for my loved ones, my congregation and my church, and shall also be my prayer for me.—Translated from "Zionspilger."

An Illuminated Bible

Visitors to our national capital should not fail to see the most beautiful volume among the nearly a million in the Congressional Library.. It is a Bible which was transcribed by a monk in the sixteenth century. It could not be matched today in the best printing-office in the world. The parchment is in perfect preservation. Every one of its thousand pages is a study. The general lettering is in German text, each letter perfect, in cold black ink, without a scratch or blot from lid to lid. At the beginning of each chapter, the first letter is very large, usually two or three inches long, and is brightly illumined in red and blue ink. Within each of these capitals is drawn the figure of some saint, and some incident of which the chapter tells, is illustrated. There are two columns on a page, and nowhere is traceable the slightest irregularity of line space or formation of the letters. Even under a magnifying glass they seem flawless. This precious volume is kept under a glass case, which is sometimes lifted to show that all the pages are as perfect as the two which lie open. A legend relates that a young man who had sinned deeply became a monk, and resolved to do penance for his misdeeds. He determined to copy the Bible, that he might learn every letter of the Divine commands which he had violated. Every day for many years he patiently persued his task. Each letter was wrought in reverence and love, and the patient soul found its only companionship in the saintly faces which were portrayed on these pages. When the last touch was given to the last letter, the old man reverently kissed the page and folded the sheets together. The illustrated initials in perfection of form and brilliancy of color surpass anything produced in the present day. Will all our boasted progress, nothing either in Europe or America equals it.

Letter to Members of Congress

September 20, 1939

Dear Sir:

Congress is being convened because of the war in Europe, for the purpose of determining the attitude which our beloved country—The United States of America—is to maintain toward the present unhappy upheaval across the sea.

We, the members of the Peace Committee of the Western District Conference, a subdivision of the General Conference of the Mennonite Church of N. A., representing a total membership of over 10,000, feel that we owe it to the members of congress who represent the states of our Western District Conference, namely: Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Texas and Colorado, to voice the conviction of our constituency to our respected lawmakers in the national congress.

As followers of Jesus Christ we are convinced that war is sin, both against God and man. In view of this vital truth we hold that as a Christian nation our country should not engage in war with any other nation. Christians—faithful followers of Jesus—should in genunie goodwill persist in endeavoring to adjust all international differences by well meant negotiation and not by force of arms. We therefore urge:

(1) That our representatives steadfastly insist that a positive neutrality be maintained in the case of the present war, or of any war between other nations, whether beyond the seas or on the western hemisphere.

(2) That no munitions, armaments, or any other military supplies, materials or equipment be supplied or sold to belligerent nations.

(3) That our national influence be exerted in a genuinely friendly non-partisan spirit toward the peaceable adjustment of all differences.

By a consistent manifestation of genuine goodwill our nation can be of far-reaching influence toward the attainment of world-wide peace and goodwill.

Let us as a Christian people do what we can that the nations "shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning hooks: (and) nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more."

Very Respectfully Yours,

The Peace Committee of the Mennonite
Western District Conference.

American Protestantism and European War

by George A. Buttrick

Great interest has been expressed in the radio address on "American Protestation and European War" made on Friday, September 8, over the Blue Network of the National Broadcasting Company by Dr. George A. Buttrick, president of the Federal Council of Churches. We believe the readers of this paper will appreciate reading this address:

"This courtesy of the National Broadcasting Company is most generous, and I am most grateful. Though president of the Federal Council of Churches I am not now speaking their official word which doubtless soon will be issued. This word is mine, and its responsibility. But I think it measurably reflects the mind of goodwill of our American Protestantism in the light thus far given us as we wait fuller light.

"The war, now a week old, still beggars belief. We had trusted, despite all dark omens, that the sanity, if not the reverence, of rulers and peoples, would have recoiled from this blood-letting. But war has come, and the end is 'not yet.' We in America cannot live apart. If we could and did we would despise ourselves. In prayer and compassion we intercede from the stricken family of mankind that the light of God may soon break upon us again and the pity of God heal us. But, despite all deep distress, we are not in despair. For the truth and love of God are not in eclipse except as we have turned away from Him to live in our own shadow. Christ has not failed: we have failed Him. The world is chaotic and disconsolate just because we have failed Him. Power politics and the quest for secular security are poor substitutes for His wisdom. But as soon as we turn again He is there in all light and grace.

"The duty of our Protestant churches in this tragic time is not far to seek. We now try to trace it in plain terms.

"First, we shall do well to keep unbroken our world-wide Christian fellowship. War's hatreds must not sever the bonds by which Christians everywhere are bound to one another and to God. It is a cheering fact that in these recent years, when nations have been hostile and sundred, the Christian churches have held world conferences (which nations have not held) and that there Christians from all lands have met in instant mutual trust. We must keep these bonds: they are the true girding of mankind. If Christ is Truth, as we firmly believe, He cannot be merely parochial or national Truth: He is Truth for the world, and all men are truly one in Him.

"Second, American Protestantism must lead the nation to repent, forbear, forgive, and in every word and work of reconciliation. The command of Christ still holds that we should 'love one another.' This does not mean ever that we should condone evil, but rather that we should renounce evil. It means that we should resist propaganda and refuse all hatred — a requirement resting especially on ministers, since their utterance is credited to the whole church, and may, if it is violent or unseemly, bring the cause of Christ into disrepute. It means—this command that we 'love one another'—that we acknowledge our sins, for politics of power and possession are not one nation's monopoly but the whole world's virus of guilty disease. It means that we strive to understand the history and divergent viewpoint and peculiar difficulties of every land. It means that we try to find and face the causes of war which lie deeper far than the immediate occasions of war. It means that we should be charitable in judgment, cleaving meanwhile to the right, and that we should be resolute in goodwill.

"Third, American Prtestantism must enter into the fellowship of suffering with millions on both sides of every battleline. We should abhor profiteering, especially profiteering in arms and blood, and hold any government renegade that does not try effectively to curb it. Instead we should seek to lighten the world's tragic burden. I find myself wishing (again it is a private word for which I take private responsibility) that our churches might find some clear-cut means to minister to prisoners of war, to discourage reprisals, to comfort refugees everywhere, and by reconstruction units to rebuild shattered homes and cities. Ships at sea listen every half-hour for any S.O.S. and are required to respond, whatever the nationality of the ship in peril, whatever the nationality of the ship which hears the call. If our churches could thus respond through practical service and the spirit of goodwill we could look back on this conflict unashamed. That would be an 'entanglement' consonant with our best destiny and for which all mankind would bless us.

"Fourth, our American Protestantism will do well to strengthen our government's purpose to keep us out of war. But or motives mst be clear. It is very easy to be neutral from base motives. We must be neutral from high and costly motives: not for physical safety, not in the attempt to maintain an impossible isolation from world problems, assuredly not for commercial gain, but rather because we know war is futile and because we are eager through reconciliation to build a kindlier world. Let us remind ourselves constantly that war has been proved futile. Twenty-five years ago we tried by means of war to 'make the world safe for democracy.' Now the world tries once more to cure hate by means of hate, to mend killing by multiplied killing. Twenty-five years hence our children may be fighting against other coercions, bred of the hatreds and poverties of war, different only in name from present coercions, unless a worthier spirit and a nobler planning enter world affairs. Let us remain neutral, not selfishly, but as a people dedicated to that 'magnificent obsession' of a kindlier world. Humbly penitent for our share in the world's guilt and suffering, staunchly maintaining those civil liberties vouchsafed to all under our Constitution, unperjured by propaganda or profiteering, let us keep peace in this land where men of all lands live in comradeship to that we may bring peace to all mankind.

"Fifth, we can pray. True prayer is not a last resort. It is not an escape. It is not a plea for security. It is a beseeching that God's compassionate will may be done among men. It is a spiritual force stronger than all armies. It is a healing serum injected into the one body of mankind of which all nations are members and of which Christ is the Head. Quietly it overcomes areas of dark infection and disease. It is the antidote of hate and the overcoming of violence. Our worship during these critical times should acknowledge the kinship of all nations; our churches should be filled with the Spirit of Him Who is the world's peace; our altars should be places of earnest and unremitting intercession. This is the nobler energy for lack of which the world is arid and torn. Let us pray and pray again in home, in business, in church; and let us then strive to live more nearly as we pray. Thus, 'may the God of peace lead us into all peace.' "

Special Fall Meetings

In very many churches special meetings are held in the fall for the deepening of spiritual life. These meetings afford an outstanding opportunity to minister to the whole spiritual need of the community—to lead Christians into complete abandonment to Christ, to lead the young people of the church to a solemn commitment of their life to Christ as the Lord of life, and to lead those of the community who do not own Christ to repentance and to a saving faith in the Redeemer. This opportunity of the church calls for a deeper identification on our part with the Master Himself that we may get His view about the people for whom we pray. Does Jesus see something of the travail of His soul in us? Would that the Christian church could learn to intercede for those of the community in such a way that the Lord Jesus would be satisfied with us as intercessors. The Prophet Isaiah says that the Lord wondered that there was no intercessor for the people. — W. F. Unruh.

The Foolishness of the Christian Gospel

A Sermon by Harold H. Gross of Freeman, S. D., Student at Hartford Theological Seminary

Text: I Cor. 1:21, " . . . it pleased God by the foolishness of preaching to save them that beleive."

Introduction

The text is given in the authorized version and reads, "the foolishness of preaching." If one translates the original Greek in which it was first written it will be more accurately rendered "the foolishness of the proclamation (or the Christian Message)." Thus, it is not a reference to the act of proclaiming but rather to what is proclaimed. It will be our purpose in this sermon to show that it is in this very "foolish" character of the Christian Gospel that its adequacy and its strength lies.

Suppose that Jesus were to walk the streets of the United States today, just as He did those of Palestine 1900 years ago, teaching, preaching and being for a time popular with the crowds; refusing the chance at becoming President, just as He refused an offer of kingship then; and suppose that when the tide turned He would, as then, "set His face steadfastly toward Jerusalem," realizing that in that pathway an execution lay before Him. They called Him a fool in that day, what would public opinion say today? He would probably still be called a fool for taking such a foolish way out! For human nature hasn't changed much in 1900 years. Surely, according to our hard-headed thinking of today He would be called a quitter, or a failure at the very least.

But He did one thing very few political leaders do, He kept His promises. He told Peter of His intentions and though Peter strenuously objected, He carried them out. He had said that " . . . whosoever will save his life shall lose it: but whosoever will lose his life (for my sake), the same shall find it." (Luke 9:24).

Jesus' message was a paradox; and so was Jesus! A paradox is a self-contradictory, seemingly foolish fact or statement. If this be so, then the Gospel is grounded on and rooted in this very kind of foolishness, and it finds its strength therein. Paradox seems to be the only thing in the world which is able to get at matter-of-fact men and women, to change and challenge them into action. That is why ordinary, common-place law has failed to adequately stimulate goodness and righteousness in humans—it is why the Israelites backslid so repeatedly.

But here comes a new message which not only demands something of men but somehow taps a romantic impulse in human nature and offers a challenge to the human spirit, literally startling it out of its complacency. It is the grandest and most romantically startling challenge in the world to be told that only in risking the loss of one's life will Life really be attained.

The core of the Christian message is the Cross. And this Cross cuts right across the purposes and intents of the modern man. That is why it seems so utterly foolish and a sign of defeat. Paul is determined within himself "not to know anything . . . save Jesus Christ and Him crucified." (I Cor. 1:2), and further states the active paradox in Galatians: "I am crucified with Christ, nevertheless I live, yet not I, but Christ liveth in me." (2:20). Jesus Himself states the effect of the paradox of the Cross when He says "I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto me." (Jno. 12:32) (cp. 8:28). The Cross of Christ is the most effective instrument of man's redemption from himself and sin that man has yet or ever will come across. It is God's supreme act of paradox.

Many modern preachers and laymen have since the beginning of the scientific emphasis, in the last half of the 19th century, been suffering from an acute inferiority complex. They have lost hold of any authority whatsoever which might be found innate in the Gospel, while they have sought the approval of the scientist regarding what is truthful and verifiable or authoritative. We must agree with true science on demonstrated points; but the most precious truths of Christianity will not yield to scientific demonstration or to syllogistic logic. They are verifiable only in the laboratory of our experience, and must be accepted upon Faith. Science simply has no way of analyzing paradox any more than it can analyze the existing fact of love. Christ's Spirit is essentially at one with the scientific spirit—an empirical or experiential search for and use of Truth. But Christ's teachings and principles transcend science and are outside of its sphere.

Men of conquest have, generally speaking, used two things in attaining their goals: force and logic; or, to put it more subtly: power and wisdom. In I Cor. 1:22 we read that "the Jews require a sign, and that the Greeks seek after wisdom."

You will remember that Matthew 16 gives the record of Jesus' encounter with the Pharisees and Sadducees as they required of Him a sign from heaven, likely as an indication of His power. He refused to comply, for they would still have been unconvinced —for the use of external and visible power or force never has and never will be the means of convincing individuals or nations. Jesus has demonstrated throughout the centuries since His advent that true power lies in the "foolishness" of a peculiar kind of weakness, which in the end is more potent than anything else. Paul maintains that "the weakness of God is stronger than men." Who would have suspected that a lowly and despised Nazarene, "foolishly" marching toward His crucifixion, bearing His cross, would one day be the most potent force in the world in the changing of men and women from stubborn, selfish individuals into veritable sons of God. There lies your modern miracle!!

In His daily life Jesus demonstrated this "foolish" spirit of weakness in two ways: in His own Meekness and in His Mercy. It is the Meek who ". . . shall inherit the earth," says Jesus. It is nothing to be wondered at that in a world order whose Gospel is deified Force that the meek non-resistant is ridiculed and called a slacker, or that the conscientious objector is put into (concentration) camp—as was done in "democratic" America during the Great War—and persecuted even unto death. Picture the meek Christ as He stood before Pilate and you can see the picture at its best.

The nominally Christian world knows very little about "Second-mile" Christianity. (Much of it hasn't demonstrated much "First-mile" Christianity.) We are educated from childhood to "stand up for your are educated from childhood to "stand up for your own rights." To most of us to "turn the other cheek" sounds terribly foolish not to say impractical and insane. To "give to him that asketh thee" (and it does not mean to give whatever is asked of you, but to give something) would be the heighth of folly in our day. Today we put it "ask and he must give thee." And yet, we must be honest and admit that we haven't even tried it to see if it works. Again, it is the principle of surprise in the paradox. It sounds practical to return fist for fist and to repay in kind; to return hate with hate and slander with slander—forgetting or not admitting that "he who takes the sword shall perish by the sword." We aren't cunning enough it seems, to surprise our foe with weapons of a different kind, love for hate, the other cheek for a slap. To be sure it might cost us something in false pride, but it will bring victory ultimately. It does, after all, take two to make a fight. A fist might bring flesh into subjection, but it is the wrong way to deal with man's inner spirit—only love can subjugate that!! Well, someone will say, that might work with indidividuals, but it won't with nations. It is to be admitted here that we as Christians are to a large degree victims of a system of civilization which doesn't yet appear to be quite ready for a broad application of Christ's principles. But we must be willing to admit that we have never really experimented with them on national scales. Ghandi—a non-Christian, of all people—has tried something closely akin to Christ's ideals in dealing with the British nation, and has, to a fair degree, won his point. America could well be a pioneer in this, but no, we think that we must build up huge armaments and show our fists.

A woman one day was caught in the act of adultery: and according to the law she should have been stoned to death. (The man in the case was to have received the same—but where was the man in this case? It is the woman, too often, even in our day who bears the brunt of this sin, and the man in a thousand cases too often goes free.) "What sayest thou," the Pharisees and scribes asked Jesus upon bringing her to Him. You know what he said, "He that is without sin . . . let him cast the first stone," said the Master. The accusers fled. Jesus "foolishly" said, "Neither do I condemn thee, go and sin no more." Foolish to be merciful to a very sinful woman! But it was this very foolishness which changed her from a vile person to a righteous woman, probably. After all, Jesus saw that she was worth redeeming.

An illustration from our day will show the significance of this. South Dakota has for more than a dozen years ruled out the death penalty from its penal systems. But just recently, through agitation created when a Marjuana-dope-addicted transient brutally murdered a young girl in a South Dakota city, the death penalty was easily legislated into the state's statute books—a slip back into barbaric methods of dealing with criminals. It is a happy fact that one of the eight negative votes was cast by a Mennonite attorney. And it was a Christian preacher who created most of the affirmative agitation in the legislature. The law now says "he shall be electrocuted," but Jesus still retorts down through the ages and still says "he that is without sin among you shall pull the switch." We haven't yet tried Jesus' methods in the field of criminology; we haven't yet learned the true value of a human soul. It all still sounds "foolish" to us. The quality of mercy still is not strained—it is basic to Christ.

"The Greeks (and Americans) seek after wisdom," said Paul. The Greeks believed wisdom the most precious thing, but among the many wise Greeks were great moral failures. It is a fact that among medical students a large percentage of them drink quite heavily—they know better. Knowledge and wisdom are not enough.

The Christian will yield to the foolishness of being pure, of being honest, and of being a lover of God and man. We are very wise in the way of scientific achievement today. We can check many physical diseases with the knowledge medical science makes available. We are rich in knowledge and wisdom in other fields as well. The exhibits in "The World of Tomorrow" at the New York Fair reveal some marvelous achievements. But there is also a picture in contrasts. On one side of you you see the marvels of a truly great age. But upon looking to the other side you are confronted by exhibitions that show that, if anything, we have retrogressed morally. We're so wise that we can build skyscrapers and heal bodies, but seemingly we can do nothing with our putrifying souls. We need an injection of the Spirit of Christ and His purity not only under the skin but well into the muscle fibre of our being. "The pure in heart shall see God." We've separated the moral or spiritual world from the physical scientific world while in reality they are one. We have, significantly, a moral and spiritual depression at the same time that we have an economic one. Let us revert to the "foolishness" of being pure in heart.

From the contemporary unveiling of corruption in political and social life it would almost seem that honesty is at a premium. There are those who contend that you can't get along successfully in business unless you deal with dishonest competitors in kind. But that is not Christian! It is like casting out Satan with Satan; acting like the Devil so as to beat the Devil himself. It can't be done!! Honesty may be foolish, but it's still the best policy.

Jesus loved God and man so much that His actions toward both seemed really foolish; in fact, they called him a fanatic and believed Him to be "beside himself." He was a fanatic. Would that we had some really Christian fanatics today!! Christ's Gospel makes no discriminations of race, color or nationality. Hate, today, is making fiends of the best of us, and hate and love don't mix. We can't be Christian and at the same time shake our fists at Germans, Jews, Italians or any race or nationality. We in America decry the Jewish persecution. (And it is wrong). But—who slaughtered the original American, I mean the Indian! And who commercialized negro slavery and even now "politely" despises him?! "Where is the wise"? We have so very much to learn from that fanatic Lover of Mankind, Jesus. Mankind will be saved by the weakness and foolishness of His Gospel, and not by the power or wisdom of men. "Unto them which are called both Jew and Greek, Christ the power of God, and the wisdom of God."

THE FORERUNNER OF THE KING

Matt. 3:1-17

TOPIC: Making Ready for the King

Introduction

John the Baptist, a unique character in Biblical history, was the connecting link between the old and the new dispensation. He was a prophet who came in the spirit and power of Elijah (Luke 1:17), yet he was more than a prophet (Matt. 11:9). He, the forerunner of the King, had the high privilege to proclaim his coming, and later his presence and to administer the rite of baptism to Him. It was God's plan that there should be a special preparation of people's hearts when Jesus' ministry was actually at hand and John was spiritually endowed for this specific purpose.

John's Call to Repentance vs 1-6

John started his preaching mission probably six months before Jesus came to begin his ministry. The scene of his preaching was in a desert region west of the Dead Sea and of the Jordan (v1). John's message was very similar to that of the last of the Old Testament prophets (Mal. 3:1-5; 4:1-3). John received his message directly from God while in solitude and communion with Him in the wilderness. He preached a startling message "repent ye, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand" (v2). He ignored the form and traditions which closely bound the Jewish religion of that day, and proclaimed a truth which made religion something vital and real. He called on people to forsake their sins. His preaching was simple, practical, effective and drew many people to him (vs. 5, 6). He proclaimed that the King was at hand and was about to set up his kingdom in the hearts of those who would receive Him.

Fruits Meet for Repentance vs 7-10

John' preaching, such as the people had never heard before, drew the religious leaders to hear him. He did not use honied words in denouncing their sins v7). They needed to repent in all genuine sincerity, thus fleeing from the wrath to come. Their repentance was to show itself in a changed life, "fruits" (v8). Even though they were the sons of Abraham, they needed to repent (v9). No one is ever saved by a pious ancestry. Each one is personally responsible to God for his own manner of life.

Enduement of the Holy Ghost vs 11, 12

John pictures the coming of the much mightier one than he, who will baptize believers with the Holy Ghost and will also be the judge of men, separating the wheat from the chaff, consigning the latter to "unquenchable fire."

Baptizing the King vs 13-17

Jesus comes to John to be baptized with water (v13). John hesitated, declined, knowing that Jesus did not need the baptism of repentance. He felt himself unworthy to baptize the sinless One (v14). Jesus was not a sinner but He took the sinner's place. He expects His followers to confess Him in baptism and He identifies himself with them in this rite. His baptism expressed his consecration to the work entrusted to Him by the Father. The descent of the Spirit and lighting upon Him (v16) showed his endowment with power from God. The voice from heaven (v17) showed the Father's approval of Jesus' consecration.

To prepare the way for the Lord's coming one must repent of sin.

—Mrs. Sarah Hiebert Penner, wife of Rev. William Penner, Wayland, Iowa, writes, "My appreciation and respect for THE MENNONITE have grown steadily during the months that I have read it regularly. I would like to extend my good wishes to the writer of the article, "The Mennonite Conscience and War," that appeared in two recent issues. Its emphasis could help us to greater spiritual heights as a Mennonite fellowship and create peace tone among us. We need to rediscover the HEART of the gospel of Christ and its application to our day. Then bickerings about non-essentials will cease, and we will with a united spirit "serve the Lord with gladness."

Because of Thy Great Bounty

BECAUSE I have been given much,
I, too, must give:
Because of Thy great bounty, Lord,
Each day I live
I shall divide my gifts from Thee
With every brother that I see
Who has the need of help from me.

Because I have been sheltered, fed,
By Thy good care,
I cannot see another's lack
And I not share
My glowing fire, my loaf of bread,
My roof's safe shelter overhead,
That he, too, may be comforted.

Because love has been lavished so
Upon me, Lord,
A wealth I know that was not meant
For me to hoard,
I shall give love to those in need,
Shall show that love by word and deed,
Thus shall my thanks be thanks indeed.

RETREAT REPORT OF THE BETHEL C. E. SOCIETY, FORTUNA, MO.

The Bethel Christian Endeavor Society had a blessed time in fellowhip during the young people's retreat, which was held at Gravois Beach, Lake of the Ozarks, Aug. 16, 17, 18.

Our speakers were: Rev. and Mrs. George Dick, Lima, Ohio, and Rev. Harleigh Rosenberger from Bluffton, Ohio. They were accompanied by the small son of Rev. and Mrs. Dick and their friend, Miss Devana Welker.

Some of the messages given during the retreat were:

"Missionary," Hosea 5:6-11,—Mrs. George Dick.

"Being Filled with the Spirit," Acts 19:2,—Rev. George Dick

"Sacrifice," Romans 12:1,—Rev. Harleigh Rosenberger.

Many more inspiring messages of similar nature were given.

Our recreation period consisted of hiking, going to the beach, boating, playing croquet, and taking snapshots.

Two cabins were rented by our society. A tent with chairs, donated by a friend, was used for the services. Our meals were arranged by a special food committee who told each member what to donate. A schedule showed which members of our C. E. were responsible for the various meals listed.

We, the young people of our C. E. society, appreciate the efforts put forth by our pastor and co-worker, Rev. and Mrs. Jacob Unruh, who were responsible for a large part of the work. We also appreciate the help of Miss Ruth Hofstetler, president of our C. E. society. —Miss Nadine Lehman, Versailles, Mo., Correspondent for the Bethel C. E.

THIS AND THAT

Because the Bethel Church (Fortuna, Mo.) is somewhat isolated from other Mennonite communities it undertook this year the task of launching a retreat of their very own. The spirit shown by these young people and Rev. and Mrs. Unruh deserves our appreciation.

Miss Mariana Ensz, a graduate of Bethel College and a member of the Reedley, California, church, contributed the excellent C. E. material which appeared in these pages during the past summer.

Watch for another excellent poem, entitled, "O MAN, O MAN, HOW LONG MUST IT BE?", by Karl Baehr. Mr. Baehr is a graduate of Bethel College and is now preparing for the ministry. While in college he took first place in the Kansas State Peace Oratory Contest with the oration, "Mars Beats the Drums."

When one remembers the tremendous amount of newspaper and magazine space which was given to Lindbergh's flight over the Atlantic and to the Lindbergh baby kidnapping case, one wonders why his recent stirring and excellent speech received so little notice in the press. Is there censorship of news from within the United States for a certain purpose? Is the Lone Eagle again performing a lonely task? Hats off to such heroism!

According to the reasoning of those who would profit from the repeal of the arms embargo, Matt. 6:33 should read: "But seek ye first the bloody mammon of war profits and the Kingdom of God and his righteousness shall be added unto you."

Our Associates

Senior C. E. Topic for October 22, 1939

MAIN TOPIC: Getting Along with our Associates. Col. 3:12-17

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "All Hail the Power of Jesus Name," "I Have a Savior," "Give of Your Best to the Master."

2. Reading of main topic and prayer

3. A series of short verses by members in line with the main topic similar to these:

A little love, a little trust,
A soft impulse, a sudden dream,
And life as dry as desert dust
Is fresher than a mountain stream.
—Stopford Brooke

I hold that Christian grace abounds
Where charity is seen; that when
We climb to Heaven, 'tis on the rounds
Of love to men.
—Alice Cary

II. Leader's Introductory Talk

What a bumpy old highway it is we're on! Some are too busy to stop and question, to puzzle and bother, and wonder what the pack on the other man's back is, and some don't care. It is only their pack of which they think, but everywhere, everywhere are people and packs, and a lift is the least we can give each.

—Kate Langley Bosher: The House of Happiness

III. Suggested themes for short talks:

1. Working side by side. Neh. 4:13-22
2. Considering other's weaknesses. Rom. 14:19-21
3. Exercising love. I Jn. 4:7-12
4. Practicing kindness. Eph. 4:31, 32
5. Cooperating as one body. I Cor. 12:12-14; 20-27

IV. Facts for study

The lives of those whom we meet daily, in the market-place, on the street, in school, in clubs, in our work, can be made brighter by what we do, by the way we meet them, by our interest in them. One of our own missionaries has said that he has found that it makes a difference just how he hands the few coins to the man who has earned them while working for the mission, at the close of day.

It is often some little insignificant thing that proves to be a large influence on some one else. A life which consistently reflects a kind heart will be a blessing to others.

V. For Discussion

1. Whom would you rather live with—a man like Napoleon or a man like Pasteur? Why?

2. What traits of character must some one have in order to get along with others well?

VI. Illustrations

The Essential Ingredient.—There was once a moman who tried to make a pudding according to a printed recipe. She put together sugar and spices and various other specified things, stirred them together and followed the directions as to the temperature of her oven and the time of baking. But there was something wrong with her pudding. At last she discovered that she had overlooked one essential ingredient. She had put in no flour. Paul emphasizes in our relation to others the essentiality of love.

"It doesn't do any good to bark at me, Mr. Jones," said an office worker to his employer. "It only confuses me and delays what you want done." Do you ever "bark"?

VII. Food for Thought

A kind word keeps warm for three winters.

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

THE PRACTICE OF DAILY DEVOTIONS

Intermediate C. E. Topic for Oct. 22, 1939

For Daily Reading:

Oct. 16. The hours of prayer. Acts 2:15; 3:1; 10:9.
Oct. 17. Prayer in the early hours. Ps. 119:145-152
Oct. 18. Midnight prayer. Acts 16:19-28.
Oct. 19. Christ's night prayers. Matt. 14:22, 23; Mark 1:35; Luke 6:12, 13.
Oct. 20. A daily prayer. Matt. 6:12, 30-34.
Oct. 21. Prayer without ceasing. Luke 18:1-8.
Oct. 22. Topic. Dan. 6:4-10.

In the Night Watches

In the watches of the night,
When sleep refuses to come,
I have communion with my Lord
Such as the day can never bring.
Now, in quietness of soul,
I listen, while He speaks to me
Through the Scriptures, which
The Holy Spirit brings
To mind. I let Him speak to me,
And thus strength is brought
To put to flight the strife
And weariness of my life.
He knows my need
And I am comforted.
'Tis His voice that speaks
And makes the hour profitable.
And I am blessed.
—Ida E. Widney.

Opening song: "Father, In the Morning"
Scripture Reading
Silent Prayer

Song: "Sweet Hour of Prayer"

Thoughts on the topic which may be discussed further:

Most Christians will say that the best time for daily devotions is in the morning when our minds are fresh and free from care. The time we spend in meditation and prayer in the morning will help us to adjust ourselves to everything as it comes during the day before us.

To some it may seem that the evening is the better time for our daily devotions. These are the people who get great inspiration by reviewing before God the events of the day. Perhaps the following day will be made better because we have seen our mistakes, failures and joys.

The purpose of daily devotions whether in the morning or evening is to find God. We want to have that sweet feeling that God is in our lives. To have this feeling we must take time to find God.

"When we are ready to be silent before Him in a regular period of devotion every day, ready to listen, to read, to ponder, to obey, then results will follow, slowly, it may be, but surely, if we are patient, and our lives will be filled with joy."

Song: "Just When I Need Him Most"

Questions for further open discussion:

1. Of what benefit is it to prepare for the events of the day?
2. How can we best prepare for each day?
3. Of what help is it to meditate upon the portions of Scripture which we read?
4. What is prayer? What place should prayer have in our daily devotions?
5. Ask members to name devotional books which they have found helpful.

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

"I WILL SING UNTO THE LORD FOR HE HATH TRIUMPHED GLORIOUSLY"

—Exodus 15:16

Program for October 22, 1939

To the Leader.—We have been trying to make the words of the hymns that the Junior sings meaningful, by reading the hymn to him without comment, or by making neecssary comments, and by having him read it while it is sung or the melody played softly. In this lesson we hope that the picture may portray the thought of the song so that the Junior will get the meaning and the song becomes his very own that he may truly serve the Lord with his singing. It will not be possible to use all of the material suggested. Each leader should choose that which is best suited to her needs. Use only the best prints available. The picture may be in the hands of the leader who shows it, making a few remarks or asking some questions about it, then the song follows. Or the pictures may be displayed as space permits. A good plan would be to make a large old-fashioned album, put this on an easel, one Junior could turn the pages of the album to the picture while another tells about the picture, then the song should follow either as a reading, a solo, or in unison. May this lesson help our Juniors to "Sing unto Him, sing praises unto Him. Talk ye of all His marvelous works," and to "offer . . . the fruit of our lips." Hebrews 13:15.

I. Worship Period

1. Prelude—Melody of "Come We That Love the Lord"—M. H. B. No. 27
2. Call to worship—"Sing unto Him, sing praises unto Him. Talk Ye of His marvelous works"
3. All stand and sing the above song in unison
4. Scripture read responsively:

(a) 1 Chronicles 16:23—"Sing unto the Lord all the earth; show forth from day to day His salvation."

(b) Hebrews 13:15—"By him therefore let us offer the sacrifice of praise to God continually, that it, is the fruit of our lips giving thanks to His name."

(c) Psalm 104:33, 34—"I will sing unto the Lord as long as I live: I will sing praise to my God while I have my being. My meditation of Him shall be sweet: I will be glad in the Lord."

(d) Exodus 15:16—"I will sing unto the Lord for He hath triumphed gloriously."

(e) (In unison)—Psalm 85:1—"O come let us sing unto the Lord: Let us make a joyful noise to the rock of our salvation."

5. Leader's prayer
6. Song of the month—"O Could I Speak the Matchless Worth."—M. H. B. No. 239.

II. Mission Minutes

1. At the last meeting several Juniors discussed "Why I Should Give to Missions." It might be well for them to discuss this time "What I Should Give to Missions."
2. "The Mennonite" of September 26 has a very interesting letter from Clinton, Oklahoma. This should be read, either by a Junior or an older person.
3. Sentence prayers for these new Indian converts.

III. Study Period:

Aim: To increase the Juniors understanding of and love for some of our grand old hymns.

1. Introduction.—Music is one of the greatest and most beautiful gifts of God to man. God gives the songs not only to those who wrote them, but also to us who sing them. They are ours if we make them ours. The hymns we sing tell us of God's love, of how Jesus saves us, of the joy that is in our hearts. All Christians sing, for singing pleases God. Again and again we read the commandment: "Sing Ye." Singing also helps us to serve God. Someone has said, "keep your mouth full of songs and you will keep your heart full of praise."

2. a. Picture: "The Song of the Lark"
   b. Song: "When Morning Gilds the Skies." vs. 1, 3, 5. M. H. B. No. 8. In unison.
3. a. Picture: "Adoration of the Shepherds" or "Christmas Chimes"—Blashfield.
   b. Song: "Away in the Manger"—Solo.
4. a. Picture: "The Christ."—Hofman.
   b. Song: "Fairest Lord Jesus" (Melody played softly while it is given as a reading from memory)
5. a. Picture: "Pilgrims Going to Church"—Boughton or "Pilgrim Exiles"—Boughton.
   b. Song: "Faith of Our Fathers"—In unison.
6. a. Picture: "Jesus Blessing Little Children"
   b. "I Think When I Read that Sweet Story of Old"—Solo by a little girl.
7. a. Picture: "The Good Shepherd"—Plockhorst.
   b. Song: "Saviour, Like a Shepherd Lead Us." Duet.
8. a. Picture: "On the Way to Emmaus."—Plockhorst.
   b. Song, "When We Walk With the Lord" In unison.
9. a. Picture: "Christ Entering Jerusalem." Plockhorst.
   b. Song: "Hosanna, Loud Hosanna." M.H.B. No. 97. In unison.
10. a. Picture: "Of the Crucifixion"
    b. Song, "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross." Solo by the best singer in the Church.
11. a. Picture: "The Angelus"—Millet
    b. Song: "Sweet Hour of Prayer"
12. Leader's closing words and prayer.

—Bethel College.—The Ninth Parent-Student Day is scheduled for Sunday, October 8, in the evening. From 2:00 to 3:00 p. m. guests and students are invited to visit all student rooms and campus buildings. Frm 3:00 to 4:15 there will be a program with a student and a parent as speakers, and remarks by Pres. Kaufman. Following this will be a fellowship hour with refreshments.—Rev. Erland Waltner, an alumnus of Bethel, now pastor of the Second Church, Philadelphia, will be the speaker for Religious Emphasis Week, October 3-6, sponsored by the SCM. There will be two services each day.—The SCM (Student Christian Movement) has set its membership goal this year at 250.

BETHEL CHURCH, MOUNTAIN LAKE, MINN., 9-23-39—School has begun again. Our streets seem deserted while school is in session. Even in our church and Sunday school we notice it. Many of those who have helped so willingly during the summer months have left us for further study or to teach. Of course some others come, but it seems so many more go away that it is a little hard to adjust ourselves for the first few Sundays.—Miss Elizabeth Foth from Brooklyn, N. Y. spoke to us the Sunday forenoon of Sept. 17. We could feel how she lives heart and soul in her work among the people of the slums. One realizes that only one who is fully consecrated to God's call can do what she is doing, and we are reminded of the second mile that Christ speaks of.—The farmers are getting ready for the corn harvest. As one looks at the rows of very tall corn heavily loaded with large ears we feel that this is God's great blessing to this community and we can not be selfish. We have had a rather dry spell in Sept. so that the corn has had a good opportunity to ripen.

Since Rev. Bartel's term of service for this church expires with the new year, it was decided to ask him to continue to serve until June, to give the committee more time to meet with prospects to fill Rev. Bartel's place. The brother has served us for six years and we know that during that time he has rendered us very faithful service.

Many have received comfort from God through him in their great sorrow. Others have seen their way with his aid in finding peace in Jesus Christ. His many visits to the sick and old will be very much missed. His pleasant disposition is a gift of God. But wherever God calls him, we know that the prayers and best wishes of the Bethel church will follow him and it is for us to continue to pray, so that God may send us a laborer who will take up the threads of the work in the church when Rev. Bartel leaves us.

We are living in an ever changing world. What seems so sure today is no more tomorrow.—Corr.

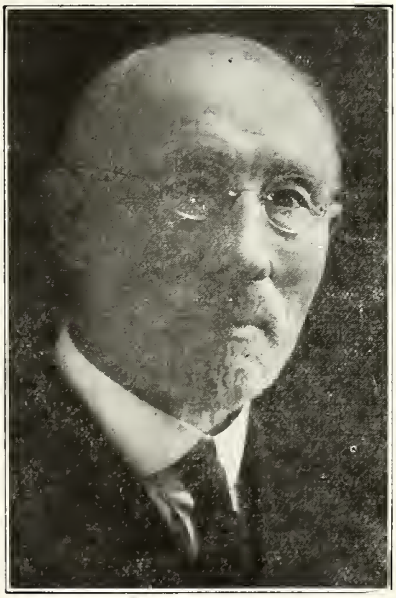
IN MEMORIAM

JACOB W. REGIER, the son of Abraham and Anna Regier, nee Wiebe, was born May 20, 1849, near Marienburg, Germany. When only two years of age he lost his mother's love through her death. At the age of six, he also lost the loving care of his second mother. These losses he felt keenly and often mentioned them. He received his early training from his father with the aid of housekeepers. Later he attended a local grammar school, followed by a Biblical course at another institution.

Upon confession of faith he was baptized and received into the Heubuden church in May, 1866. On the 12th of May, 1876, he was united in marriage to Agathe Dyck. Four weeks later they emigrated to this country, locating first at Mt. Pleasant, Iowa. From there he and others made a land-seeking trip to Nebraska and Kansas, finally locating on a farm 7 miles south of Peabody, on which he resided until 1909. In 1892 he received a call from the Zion Mennonite Church and served in its ministry for 27 years.

During his entire life he was always interested in S. S. and church activities, serving the local organizations in many and divers offices. He was also president of a fire insurance company, vice-president on the Bethel College Board, and director of the Bethel Hospital. In all of these nistitutions he showed great interest and gave of his best to help establish and promote their welfare. Wherever he was, he always manifested his interest in the cause of Christ and his Kingdom. He showed interest in the establishment of the mission church in Los Angeles. In the words of a friend, on the occasion of his 90th birthday, he was "a Prophet of Faith and Grace."



REV. J. W. REGIER

Desiring the best care for his ailing wife, they moved to Newton in 1909, there establishing their home near the Bethel Hospital, where the sisters were in close touch with her. She was released from her suffering and passed on to her heavenly reward June 1, 1911.

After an absence of 36 years father, in 1912, had the privilege of visiting his birthplace and making a trip to Switzerland. This trip was instructive as well as recreative, for it inspired him with new ideas pertaining to the deaconess work which occupied his interest at that time.

When in 1922 his children, the A. J. Richert family, moved to California, he went along and made his home with them. Here he enjoyed the advanced years of his life, interspersed by annual visits to Kansas. Upon his visits he often mentioned the loving care of his children and grandchildren whom he drew to himself with tender affection.

As his general health gradually demanded constant care, he and the children decided that he enter the Bethel Home, where he hoped to spend the time still left him among friends and relatives.

This according to God's will was limited to only a few days. A cold which he had contracted developed into acute bronchitis and later into Broncho-pneumonia. After a few hours he succumbed. And, in accordance with his prayers in the late afternoon of his last day, he was privileged to go to his rest according to his oft repeated and greatest desire.

He attained the ripe age of 90 years, 3 months, and 10 days, and is mourned by his 3 sons, one daughter, one son-in-law, 3 daughters-in-law, 10 grandchildren, 6 great-grandchildren, and many relatives and friends.

Funeral services were held at his home church, the Zion Mennonite Church at Elbing, Kans., with the pastor, Rev. H. J. Dyck, and Rev. C. E. Krehbiel in charge.

MRS. ISAAC ZUERCHER passed away on Sunday afternoon, Sept. 24, 1939, after a lingernig illness of several years. She had attained the age of 74 years, 9 months, and 29 days. She was born in Wayne County, Ohio, the daughter of Christian and Barbara (Hofstetter) Garber. In her childhood she moved with her parents to Versailles, Mo., where she grew to womanhood, became a Christian and a member of the Bethel Mennonite Church, was married and lived there until March, 1901, when the family located in the Pandora, Ohio, community where they have since lived. On Jan. 24, 1884, she became the wife of Isaac Zuercher, also of Varsailles, Mo. This happy union lasted for more than 55 years until broken by the death of Mrs. Zuercher. She is survived by her husband, seven children and nine brothers and sisters. She was a faithful member of the Grace Mennonite Church, Pandora, Ohio. Funeral services were conducted Sept. 26, by her pastor, Rev. Paul E. Whitmer,. assisted by Rev. Isaac Zuercher a near relative, of Kidron, Ohio.

MELBA EILEEN KLIEWER, the oldest of four children of Mr. and Mrs. Chris. Kliewer, was born Sept. 9, 1918, near Newton, Kansas, and passed away September 12, 1939, at the early age of 21 years, having enjoyed her last birthday only three days before.

Melba was a member of the Bethel College Mennonite Church, having been baptized at the age of 15 and received into the membership of the Bergthal Mennonite Church at Pawnee Rock, Kansas. She accepted her Savior in early youth and served Him faithfully and conscientiously the rest of her life. She was always very active in Sunday School and work among the young people.

In the spring of 1919 the family moved to Pawnee Rock, Kansas, and there Melba received her public school training, graduating from high school in the spring of 1935. In the fall of the same year she entered Bethel College, where she was privileged to spend four years. She was active in school affairs, sang in the a capella choir, and became known as a good student and a good friend. She was graduated last spring with an A. B. Degree, and had a position to teach in the Cedar, Kansas, high school this fall.

Six days after graduation she had to enter Bethel Hospital for observation. It was found from the start that her case was serious, but in the face of three months of adverse conditions, she showed remarkable courage in her battle for life. It was her hope in life which sustained her in quiet patience, but she was quite ready to answer the call of her Maker.—Her last days were especially happy in the hope of fullfilling her pledge when her betrothal to Richard Goertz was announced.—Quiet and unassuming, she enjoyed living to the fullest, and enriched the lives of her associates and acquaintances.

She has preceded her parents, two sisters, Norma and Merle, a brother, Homer, and her fiance. Funeral services were held Friday morning at 10 o'clock, at the Bethel College Mennonite Church, with Rev. J. N. Smucker and Dr. E. G. Kaufman officiating, preceeded by a prayer service at the home. The Bethel College Mixed Choir sang, "In the Time of Roses," by Reichardt, and "Be Still, My Soul," by Sibelus, while Herbert Baehr sang, "I Will Lift Up Mine Eyes." —Interment was in the Pawnee Rock cemetery, where Rev. J. B. Schmidt officiated at the graveside service.

—Mrs. H. J. Andres of Newton, Kansas, whom many readers will remember as the efficient editor of the "Junior Corner" in the Young People's Section of the Mennonite, which work she had to give up because of impaired health, will be glad to hear that she is considerably improved. A stay of several weeks, in the healthy climate of Colorado, benefitted her greatly.

How to Become A Christian

by R. A. Torrey

No one can be saved unless he is born again by the power of God's Holy Spirit. "Ye must be born again" (John 3:3, 7), says Jesus. The necessity is absolute, not merely ye may be born again—though that is true—but you must be born again. Nothing will take the place of the new birth. Baptism will not take the place of the new birth. Confirmation will not take the place of the new birth. Simon Magus (Acts8:13) was baptized; but when Peter and John came down and perceived his character, Peter said unto him, "Thou hast neither part nor lot in this matter, for thy heart is not right in the sight of God. Thou art in the gall of bitterness and the bond of iniquity"—a baptized, lost sinner.

No performance of religious rites will take the place of the new birth. A great many people are depending upon the fact that they say their prayers, read their Bibles, go to church, partake of the sacrament, and perform other duties, but all that will not take the place of the new birth. Orthodoxy of faith will not take the place of the new birth. A great many people are saying, "I believe the Apostles Creed, I believe in the Athanasian Creed, I believe in the Nicene Creed, I say the Catechism; I am orthodox; I hold right views about Christ, right views about the Bible, right views about the Atonement." You can be orthodox upon every doctrine, and be lost forever.

Culture and refinement, and outward correctness of life will not take the place of the new birth. The trouble with us is not merely with our outward life; the trouble is in the heart, in the very deepest depths of our inward life, and merely to reform your outward life will not save you. Suppose I had a rotten apple. I could take that apple to an artist, have him put a coating of wax on its surface, and then paint it till it was the most beautiful looking apple you ever saw, but it would be just as rotten at heart as ever, and one bite into it would be a bite into decay. The trouble is that out of Christ you are rotten in the heart, and mere culture, mere refinement, mere respectability, mere morality, is simply putting a coating of wax on the outside and painting it up. You must be changed, down to the deepest depths of your being. "Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except a man be born again, he cannot see the Kingdom of God."

Are you born again? Now, I think a good many of you will say, "No, I am not. Can you tell me just what I must do right now to be born again?" I can. You will find it in John 1:12: "As many as received Him, to them gave He power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on His Name." We are born again by God's Holy Spirit, through His Word, the moment we receive Christ. When you take Christ into your heart, Christ transforms you through and through, in a moment. I care not how worldly you are, I care not how sinful you are, I care not how hard you are—any one today that will throw his heart open and let Jesus come in to rule and reign, God will make that one a new creature in a moment.

"Evangelizing Our Neighborhoobs"

by J. B. Epp

V. THE EQUIPMENT

The Word of God; The Spirit of God; The Man of God.

A. The Message

"Jesus Only" makes a suitable Motto.

"Preach the Word," and nothing else. "But we preach Chist, and him crucified." "The preaching that I bid thee." Present Christ in a new way every time. He is irresistable! "This is the Gospel," as found in 1 Cor. 15:1-4. Phillip and the apostles preached Christ from the Old Testament. "Christ" is the subject of the whole Bible.—Let the people of the churches find out for themselves whether their church has the true and full Gospel or not. We need not tell them so.

The real "Gospel Hymns" are sermons in themselves, if sung right. Sing the Gospel! Sing prayerfully. Do not sing for entertainment. Choir pieces that contain no Gospel, and often cannot even be understood, for the beauty (?) of the artful music, are not in our program.

Don't ever think, that people will get tired of hearing about Christ. It is the nominal Christian who wants a self-and man-exalting "social gospel," which is no Gospel.

B. Spiritual Equipment

Seek the Holy Spirit's guidance at every step. "Watch and Pray!" Be "apt to teach." Have and keep on getting a "working knowledge of the Bible." Know how to "feed the flock." Develop your talents as you go. Workers should meet from time to time, for prayer, for fellowship, for study, for discussing and planning the work, for enlisting others.—Be faithful, tactful; self-sacrificing. Like Jesus, be a friend to the poor, the sick, the sinner.

C. Material Equipment

Look at Christ and at Paul, how much, or how little, of this they had. Study that.

1. The Financial Policy! In nearly all undertakings today, even in missions, money is about the first and greatest concern. Let us try to eliminate the money question just as far as possible. Some cash will be needed for incidentals. But in all meeting let this be the Motto: "No collections; no solicitations; only presentations." Speak of the work; of the spiritual needs; of the need of workers, last and least mention the fact that there are some expenses; and if any feel that the Lord wants them to assist in this way, they may indicate this. Otherwise make the work self-supporting. The workers should make up the small expenses among themselves, or in a private way from friends of the work. This exception to the general rule will have a good effect upon all. Make this "a great work with little expense." Try to do some colportage work. Such colportage work itself is evangelizing work. See what the Adventists, Russelites, and others are doing in this line. This will also help to create an interest, and will build up a moral constituancy for the work. Get public buildings for meetings, free. A little cash will be needed for light and fuel. "Consecrated cars" are to be supplied by the workers; the group should offer to pay for gas and oil, at least.

2. Other Things! A mimeograph comes handy many times. Tracts with the plan of salvation should be included in all that is given to any person, not only tracts with a good story or moral. Many tracts can be had free; also Penny Gospels. Write us. E.

Musical instruments can be helpful; portable ones especially. Singing without instruments is coming to the forefront. Instruments often hinder more than help. At least see to it that they do not drown out, or cover up, the words—the message.

VI. CLOSING REMARKS

This is the most worthwhile work on earth. "Do all to the Glory of God." Don't bank upon man—draw on God's "Bank." "All things are possible to him that believes."—Never forget that souls out of Christ are lost.—A great uplift will come to all souls heartily engaged in such work.—Workers will grow in the work.—True workers may be sure that they are in the will of God; and all hindrances, difficulties, and misrepresentations can be overcome. Be sure Satan does not like this work.—Young and old can have a part in this work.—Where such work already exists, offer your help.—This work can be sponsored by a church, or a Sunday School, or a C. E., or a group may go out independently.

"Evangelizing Our Neighborhoods," in all home and foreign lands, is the only solution of the problem of evangelizing the world! The 15,000 foreign missionaries and the 150,000 appointed native helpers alone will never do it! Neither will this land, which is becoming more and more God-less and God-forsaken, ever be properly evangelized, although we have thousands of preachers, modernists included, and tens of thousands appointed church workers; unless hundreds of thousands of lay workers put their hand to the plow! Hoping that many, everywhere, will hear and answer the call, and say, "Here am I, send me.

Shall we do our part?!!

Write in time to W. W. TOEVS, 655 LORRAINE, WICHITA, KANSAS, who is chairman of the committee.—The Minister's Conference will convene, October 17, at the First Mennonite Church, Newton, Kansas.

— Emmanuel (Eicher) Church, Noble, Iowa, was having a series of evangelistic meetings, beginning Sept. 24, with Prof. Arnold C. Schultz, of the Bible department at Bluffton College as speaker.

— The Vine Press, a bi-monthly news sheet published by the Young People of the Middle District, is again making its round, in an artistic new "jacket", designed by Bob Boles. Deep regret is expressed at the resignation of Miss Inda Sprunger, with these fine words of appreciation: "Well deserved recognition is due to the one who has edited this little news-organ since its inception several years ago, and who as Field Secretary of the Y. P's Division has directed the activities of the Young People's groups in a self-sacrificing, tireless and inspiring manner since 1936." S. class of young women, and more recently as co-editor of the Intermediate Christian S. S. Quarterly. — Gordon M. Leichty, Berne, Ind. is her successor.

— Rev. H. N. Harder, pastor of Grace Church, Enid, Okla., writes, Sept. 25: "A week ago tonight I entered St. Mary's Hospital here for an appendix operation. My health had been failing for some time. Am glad that the little, apparently unnecessary organ that caused so much trouble is removed. Am improving slowly, but hope to get out in about four days.

— First Mennonite Church, Berne, Ind., — At the coming Youth Bible Conference to be held at the Mennonite Church, October 1-6, Dr. Will H. Houghton, president of the Moody Bible Institute, will be the speaker. Sunday services are announced for 10:00 a.m. and 7:30 p.m., the week day services for 7:30 o'clock. A speical invitation is extended to all youth of all denominations of Berne, and community to make use of this unusual opportunity to hear these great Bible messages.—Berne Witness.

— Brother Hugo Lowenberg of the Zion Church, Donnellson, Iowa, sent a check for $33.00 from his congregation to help the Board of Publication finance the new Hymn Book. This gift was most gratefully received and forwarded to the Board treasurer, Brother E. W. Baumgartner, Berne, Indiana. May God bless the gracious givers!

A LETTER

BEATRICE, NEBRASKA, Sept. 29, 1939

The Second Mennonite Church, Beatrice, Nebr., has unanimously called Rev. Reynold Weinbrenner of Lehigh, Kas., to succeed Rev. M. Horsch, as their pastor on Nov. 1st. The retiring pastor, according to present plans, will extend the eldership ordination to his successor, in connection with his farewell services, on Oct. 29th. Many prayers for divine guidance in the securing of a new pastor have gone forth to the throne of God and we feel confident that this selection is in accordance with His will. We are reminded of the answer that a late brother gave when, some 12 years ago, he was asked: "How did you folks manage to get Rev. Horsch?" The brother replied: "We did not get him, God sent him, he is a 'Godsend.' "

It is our hope and prayer that God may richly bless the new as well as the retiring pastor and that we as a congregation may do our part in the upbuilding of His kingdom.—W. C. A. Corr.

LECTURE BY DR. E. L. HARSHBARGER

The Women's Association of Bethel College is sponsoring a lecture by Dr. E. L. Harshbarger on "Europe", Oct. 9, at 8 p.m. at the Presbyterian church in Newton.

— Prof. Paul Erb of Hesston College, Kansas teaches in Goshen College, Ind., this semester.

— Our Brethren in Minnesota and the people of that state are blessed with a bumper harvest of corn, wheat and oats, also vegetables and fruit. At the recent Annual Gift Day, the Bethel Hospital at Mountain Lake was literally showered with useable gifts.

— The Christian's Soul in Safe-Keeping.—Close to the spray of a roaring waterfall, at the end of a slender branch, a little bird built its nest and could be seen sitting quietly and unafraid beside the tumult of water. An artist chose this scene for his picture of peace. The Christian whose soul is hid with Christ in God, though surrounded by troublesome world events, can yet have a truly tranquil spirit, knowing that, whatever comes, God cares for His own. "Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid." —E. W.

— Rev. Reynold Weinbrenner of Lehigh, Kansas, graduate of Bethel College, recently a student at Hartford Theological Seminary, and assistant pastor of the First Church, Reedley, Calif., during the summer, stopped at Beatrice, Nebraska, on his way back from the coast and preached for the Second Mennonite Church there. On Sept. 25, he writes, "Yesterday the Beatrice Church, wrote, asking me to succeed Rev. M. Horsch as their pastor. This makes us very happy. We are to begin our service Nevember 1."

EDITORIAL

FOOLS IN A SPIRITUAL SENSE.—"Thou fool, this night thy soul shall be required of thee."—Luke 12:20.—The landowner of whom this was said was not necessarily a wicked man. Jesus did not question his integrity, nor the moral character of the foolish virgins, nor the honesty of the foolish builder in his parables. The landowner is called foolish, because his thoughts and plans centered entirely on self. He made his body and merry life his god. "Take thine ease, eat, drink and be merry." In trying to solve the problem what he should do with his wealth of grain, he never once thought of the many starving people in his neighborhood and country, whom he could have fed and still have retained plenty to do him. He was a fool because he saw nothing but barnes. What a contrast between this man's thinking and Jesus', "Take no thought for your life, what ye shall eat or what ye shall drink—is not life more than meat?" The life of this man was most unfortunate, because he knew nothing of the meat or food of which Jesus told the disciples at Jacob's well, "I have meat to eat that ye know not of." The foolish man who built his house upon the sand was foolish in that he lacked all possible foresight and the realization that all things worth while must be founded on a solid basis, truth, facts, rock or solid ground. Only a small, innocent child will build its playhouse on sand, but not an intelligent person. Neither should one imagine that an intelligent person would build life, which lasts into eternity, on anything but a solid foundation, namely the truth as found in God's word and in Jesus Christ, the author of eternal life. "For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Jesus Christ."—The five foolish virgins may be comparable to many of the girls of today whom we would not call foolish, though they may act a bit silly occasionally. They were just having a good time, each day, with no thought of tomorrow, no thought of the seriousness of life. Their inner life lacked the oil of faith and love in a Savior which come from a regenerated heart that would have given meaning to their being. All three types of these characters sadly lacked one thing which is even more important than something to stand on. They needed, what we all need, something to stand for. They needed a sound, worthwhile, lasting ideal to live for as their life's compelling motive. They were figuratively drifting on the sands of time. T.

THE CHRISTIAN'S SURETY.—The world is full of uncertainty, as the poet has so truly said, "Change and decay in all around I see." There are changes political, social, economical, national, and religious. No earthborn individual can tell, what may happen next. Just now the uncertainty hinges on, will it be war or may it be peace? In a world of unrest and instability, it is the Christian's privilege to dwell in certainty, for he has the Bible which is full of assurances, it is his realm of certainties, where he learns to say, I KNOW. "I know that my redeemer liveth." "I know that the Lord is great and that our Lord is above all gods." "I know that the way of man is not in himself." "I know that thou art a gracious God, and merciful, slow to anger, and of great kindness, and repentest thee of evil." "For I know that in me (in my flesh) dwelleth no good thing." "I know whom I have believed, and am persuaded that he is able to keep that which I have committeed unto him against that day." Yes, surely, we know that we are saved through Christ and Him alone. We know that the Son of God has come to earth to show us the way to heaven. We know that the time will come when "they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning hooks: nations shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more."—T.

LEST WE FORGET.—A few weeks ago the Emergency Relief Board issued an SOS call through the church papers, supported by an earnest appeal from Missionaries Brown in China, for help in their mission territory, where floods have destroyed the principal crops and the poor people are facing hunger and starvation during the winter months. Wonder how many of the churches and Mission Societies have noticed this call and have already made appreciable contributions toward this crying need, and how many others are speeding up plans to do their part? We are to love our neighbors as ourselves. These poor Chinese are just now our neighbors. Do we love them enough to do our part in keeping them from starvation or death? PLEASE READ THE SECOND APPEAL OF BROTHER AND SISTER BROWN, which now comes to us through the Board of Foreign Missions, in the missionary column. The Board of Home Missions, through its secretary and treasurer, has also appealed for larger gifts that they may adequately do their sadly needed mission work in Canada. The treasurer reports that for the month of September only $896.50 has come in as gifts from the churches, while he had to pay out $1361.50. Where there is a will there is a way to meet these needs. May God give us the vision and brotherly love to do our utmost!

A BIG FLOOD IN CHINA

Dear Readers:

You may have read in newspapers about a big flood in China. Our Tamingfu district is in it too. The Yeu River and the Chang River both broke through the dykes and flooded practically the whole area on this side of the Yeu River. All of the fall crops have been totally ruined. You see, we have the wheat crop in June and the kaffircorn, millet, corn, beans, sweet potatoes and other crops in fall. Really the fall crop is the most important one, and it supplies the greater part of the food and feed for man and animals: but this year we shall not have any of it. Even now after six weeks the ground is still covered with water. We do hope however that the water will go down in a month or six weeks so that the people can put in winter wheat, which would give them hope for a wheat crop next June. However it is a long time till then, and winter will soon be here again. How shall these poor peple find bread enough to keep from starving. Relief work will be very necessary, but as yet we do not know, how much funds will come in for this purpose. We do pray that the dear Lord will undertake for us to move the hearts of Christian people to provide the needed means.

Our Gospel work has been continued notwithstanding the hot and rainy season, the bad roads and the continuous fighting in some parts of the district. There are many summer vacation Bible schools for children taught throughout our field. Here in the Tamingfu end of the missionfield consisting of three counties, we have more than one dozen of them. Some are larger others again are smaller, but the total number of pupils is close to around five hundred. If we had had enough picture-cards we should have given them more. Now there were hardly enough to go around when giving one picture to each pupil. They learn Bible stories, scripture verses and appropriate songs. On Saturday I attended the closing exercises of one of these schools, and appreciated the work done very much. This was one of the larger schools with about 65 pupils.

The regular schools will open in eight or ten days. We have in the Tamingfu area however two schools, that cannot be opened now on account of the war conditions prevailing. We are looking foreward for normal conditions again. In our schools we have a number of pupils, that have accepted Christ as Savior. There is another group, who want to become Christians. The others will also have an opportunity to learn of Jesus, for we teach Bible in our mission and church schools.

Thanking all for the interest in the work and the prayers for us, we beg to remain as ever,

Your representatives in China,
H. J. and Maria Brown.

HOME MISSIONS

A. J. NEUENSCHWANDER, Secretary

REGULAR AND PROPORTIONATE SUPPORT

Now that most of our harvests have been gathered, we trust that the interest and prayers of many friends of Home Mission work, might find concrete expression in the coming in of more regular gifts.

In past years, there were few months in mid-summer when the Board experienced smaller incomes than during the fall and winter months. This year, the lean months have continued longer than in former years and this has caused the Board great concern for the work. Can you send us your gifts regularly?

WHAT IS PROPORTIONATE GIVING?

We have known churches that regularly take offerings for Foreign Missions and occasionally insert one offering for Home Missions. By studying statistics, it was found that the offerings were not proportionate.

It is the conviction of many church leaders that our people should give for all Mission work regularly, both Foreign and Home—at the same offering. Then the Church can make a plan of proportionate giving, so that both Boards receive shares proportionate to their needs.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The Home Mission Board of the General Conference has made arrangements to have one of the workers, Rev. John S. Raugh, East Freedom, Penna., present at our Western District Conference in Wichita, Oct. 18 and 19. He has also agreed to visit our two city missions in Chicago and visit churches in Kansas the Sundays preceding and following the Conference.

At the Conference Brother Raugh will bring two messages and besides those he also has speaking engagements in the following places:

Chicago, October 12 and 13.
Alexanderwohl, Sunday, Oct. 15, a.m.
Hillsboro, Sunday, Oct. 15, evening
Emmaus, Monday, Oct. 16, evening
Open, Friday, Oct. 20.
Eden, Sunday, Oct. 22, evening.

We trust that the churches will receive Brother Raugh as one of the servants of the Master, engaged in the cause of home missions in our Conference.

Very sincerely, J. M. Regier.

To Every Pastor in the General Conference of Mennonites

By this time, certainly since Russia has aligned herself with Germany, every American citizen ought to be aware that we are actually in danger of becoming involved in the turmoils of a Second World War. All indications point to a long and exhaustive struggle which will involve more nations in the actual fighting than now engaged in this initial stage of the War.

The people in the United States are still calm and self-composed, and far from a fighting mood at the present time. They are anxiously asking the question whether it is not possible to keep their country out of the terrible holocaust this time. From all parts of the country come reports of church actions against American intervention in the European war. Some of the denominational leaders have issued official warnings, urging complete neutrality. We are told that great rallies have been held to strengthen the people's will to peace. Resolutions calling for a neutral policy have been adopted by numerous bodies, such as the one recently passed by the Illinois Methodist Conference. Today the voice of the churches is almost unnanimously against America becoming involved in this second World War. For this we are indeed very glad. But let us not fool ourselves, THE REAL TEST IS YET TO COME. No real pressure has yet been put on the American people so far. But what will happen when heavy pressure is turned on? It is coming, and is already on the way. The entrance into the war of Russia on the side of Germany will probably, as some authorities think, draw a number of other countries in its train, and that will make the outlook for England and France exceedingly dark. Then listen to the propaganda like this: Does the United States mean to stand by and see the outnumbered democracies go down before the attack of the power-crazed totalitarian despotisms? Rest assured, that there will be an abundance of subtlely phrased statements like the above to stir up the fighting blood of the American public and inflame public opinion to the point where even the very elect will be swept off their feet.

Just how long it will take to whip up the war fever among the American people, no one knows. But we are told that Hollywood is already on the job. The editor of one of our religious journals makes the following report: "in one half-column dispatch sent to the New York Times on September 13, we find that its Hollywood correspondent lists seven new screen productions calculated to rouse the nation's fighting spirit . . . Warner Brothers have rushed into production two films with war backgrounds . . . Republic is starting work immediately on 'London Blackout,' . . . . But to those who remember the Hollywood of 1917 no announcement in the list will bring more poignant memories than that of Producers Pictures that has gone into production on 'Hitler, the Beast of Berlin.' Of all the vile and mischiefmaking films turned loose on the public during the hysterical period which prec eded America's entrance in the First World War, none equalled in unalloyed indecency 'The Kaiser, the Beast of Berlin.' " These things ought to give a little forewarning of what in all probability will come.

Our historic peace principles of the Mennonite Church and of the other like-minded denominations are going to be put to the test, perhaps as never before. Right now, while there still is calm before the storm, when people can still think sanely and cooly through questions as to what is right and Christian, let us take the opportunity to do it. It is not a time to rush about and make new converts to pacifist principles. That should have been done long ago by our religious leaders in their churches. But let us strengthen the faith of those of our number (every member of the Mennonite Church ought to be a conscientious objector) or any others who have been genuinely interested in following the way of our nonresistant principles in our daily life in time of peace and in time of war.

For the sake of unity and effectiveness during this time when testing days are ahead of us, the General Conference Peace Committee, puts forth an urgent plea to the pastor of every church in our General Conference to call a meeting of the men of his church, and either himself or some other competent Christian layman or minister, help them to see more clearly the doctrine of non-resistance as based on the Scriptures; also to help them in any difficulties or honest questions they may wish to ask.

A very fine booklet that can be used as a basis for discussion with the men is the "Pacifist Handbook" in which are taken up in a very practical manner questins and answers concerning the Religious Pacifist in wartime. The booklet of 48 pages was issued by the Peace Section, American Friends Service Committee, Brethren Board of Christian Education, Friends Book Committee, Fellowship of Reconciliation, General Conference Commission on World Peace, Methodist Church, The Mennonite Peace Society, Women's International League for Peace and Freedom. Price 10 cents. Every young Mennonite should read it.

Another fine booklet is that of "Non-Resistance in Practice" by J. S. Hartzler of the Old Mennonite Branch of Mennonites. Price 10 cents.

There is also "Christian Peace According to New Testament Peace Teachings Outside the Gospels" published by the Peace Committee of the General Conference of Mennonites. Price 10 cents. All of these booklets can be ordered at the Mennonite Book Concern, Berne, Indiana. Let us loose no time to prepare ourselves for the great test.

Excerpts from the President's Report to the Corporation at its annual meeting held Sept. 15, 1939

"Looking back over 36 years of Freeman College history leaves one deeply impressed with two facts: on the one hand a spirit of sacrifice on the part of those who believed in the cause of Christian education; and on the other hand, manifold blessings.

This report would become much too long should I attempt to relate all of the sacrificial experiences in these past 36 years—sacrificies on the part of the founders of the institution—time, means, and energy; sacrifices on the part of parents to enable their children to obtain the elements of a Christian education in an environment favorable to the cherished traditions of our Mennonite people; sacrifices on the part of teachers who through the years have served with willing hearts; sacrifices on the part of board members who without remuneration have carried tremendous responsibilities. Out of it all have come blessings not only to those who made the sacrifices but to this community, and other communities as well. Those of us more intimately in touch with the problems here can speak of dark moments when all seemed hopeless—then a ray of light, an easing of a serious tension, answered prayer, blessing. We cannot fail. We must impress upon our people, both young and old, that the greatest blessings come when we are willing to make sacrifices.

Never in the history of Freeman College has nature been more unkind to our constituencies than in these past eight or nine years. And yet, paradoxical as it may seem, we can report marked progress. The record enrollment of the college has come during this period (1935). In terms of preparation as measured by graduate work and advanced degrees, no faculty has ever equalled our present faculty. Our debt has reached its peak during these years but has also taken the sharpest drops. Our college department has received its greatest recognition from the University in these "depression years." What has been accomplished even in these hard and trying years has come as a result of a spirit of sacrifice on the part of those who belive in Christian education. God has supplied the blessings."

II

The enrollment this year is somewhat less than last year. There are 139 students enrolled while last year's mark was 150. The College Department boasts 67 students (a new high), while 72 are enrolled in the academy.

At the annual Corporation meeting the By-laws were revised and the Atricle of Incorporation amended, changing the name of the institution from "Freeman College" to "Freeman Junior College."

Elected to the Board of Trustees for a three year term was Rev. Martin Kroeker of the Mennonite Brethren Church. Adolph L. Waltner of Freeman and Henry C. Ewert of Avon were reelected to three year terms.

The debt of the college has been reduced from a peak of $63,212.27 in 1935, to $47,755.67 in 1939. The net reduction for the fiscal year ending August 31, 1939, was $1,480.49.

The Mennonite Central Paece Committee

September 30, 1939 will become a memorable date in the history of the American Mennonites. On that date in Chicago, Illinois, representatives of seven branches of Mennonites completed organization of the Mennonite Central Peace Committee. Participating groups were the Old Mennonites, General Conf. Mennonites, Mennonite Brethren, Central Illinois Conference, Evangelical Mennonite Brethren, Krimmer Mennonite Brethren, and Defenseless Mennonites. The Mennonite Brethren in Christ were the eighth group to express desire to work with the group, but were not represented at the meeting.

This organization, as the name would indicate, is intended to serve as a central agency for more effective peace work, just as the Mennonite Central Committee has so successfully functioned in relief work. Like the Central Committee it has no power to bind any cooperating group. This means that whatever is done by the committee must have the sanction of the respective conference bodies. All decisions at the organization meeting were by unanimous vote. A splendid Christian spirit prevailed and a definite program of action in line with Mennonite tradition and Biblical non-resistance has already been inaugurated. Printed statements of the program are being prepared for the press.

The officers of the new committee are: President, P. C. Hiebert of Sterling, Kansas, who is also President of the Peace Committee of the Mennonite Brethren Conference; Vice-president and Treasurer, E. L. Harshbarger, North Newton, Kansas, President of the Peace Committee of the General Conference of the Mennonite Church of N. A.; and Executive Secretary, Dean H. S. Bender, Goshen, Indiana, President of the Peace Problems Committee of the Old Mennonites.

The new committee is of course in need of funds and contributions should be sent at once to the Treasurer. — E. L. Harshbarger

O brother, lift a cry, a long world cry
Sounding from sky to sky—
The cry of one great word,
PEACE, PEACE, the world will clamoring to be heard—
A cry to break the ancient battle-ban,
To end it in the sacred name of Man!

Edwin Markham.

Letter from U. S. Senator

United States Senate, Sept. 30, 1939

Mr. P. H. Richert
President, Peace Committee
Mennonite Western District Conference
Newton, Kansas

Dear Mr. Richert:

Thank you for the letter signed by yourself and other members of your committee expressing your views on neutrality. I am glad you like my stand on the question. I shall bring your letter to the attention of the Senate. I have received a great many letters and petitions from all over the country approving the sentiments I have expressed in this respect. It might interest you to know that 90 per cent of these take a strong stand for the neutrality program I am favoring.

I shall continue to do everything I possibly can to keep the United States out of the European war. I shall fight to retain the present Neutrality Act and will oppose repeal of the embargo provisions.

Cordially yours, Arthur Capper

Meeting Church Expenses

W. C. Andreas, Beatrice, Nebraska

How can we meet our church expenses? This question is troubling many of our churches at the present time.

In many churches the "brunt of the burden" is born by a comparatively few and there are many members who do not get the blessing that is in store for them; the saying that "the more you put into a thing the more you get out of it" applies to the church as well as to anything else in life. A mother on the way home from church complained bitterly about the pastor's sermon until finally her little son said: "Ah, Ma! what can you expect for a penny?" (He had noticed his mother's contribution to the collection box). We know of a wealthy, well meaning lady who built a fine church, hired a good pastor and paid for all church expenses. After a few years the church closed its doors for lack of interest; the individual members had nothing invested.

To be sure we cannot all give alike but we can all give something—and do not depreciate the pennies. If every member of an average congregation of say two hundred, would give three pennies per day (the equivalent of a postage stamp for sending God a daily "thank you" letter) that would make $6.00 per day, $42.00 per Sunday, or $2190.00 per year—enough to pay all church expenses and leave a nice balance for other purposes.

But, you will say, there always are some members living at a distance, or going away to school, etc., who hardly ever come to church. Let us make a 10 per cent (20 members) deducation for such absentees and we still have 180 left. But, then again, like in every business there are always some bad accounts and so we will just strike off another 10 per cent of the members who should make regular contributions but do not give anything; this then would leave us a balance of 160 active, paying members. An average contribution of 18 cents per Sunday for these 160 members would then amount to practically $1500.00 per year. Now we realize that we cannot always go by averages, but would it be assuming too much to say that one fourth of these members can put 5 cents, and another fourth 10 cents into the collection box on every Sunday? This would account for one half of all the paying members; another fourth could, no doubt, pay the mentioned average of 18 cents per Sunday and, by dividnig the last fourth so that twenty members would give 25 cents and the last twenty give 50 cents per Sunday (there are always those who pay more) we would have a yearly total of not far from $1500.00. Contributions like this, in addition to our Mission offerings, should not be a burden, and what a blessing it is for any congregation if and when every member makes a definite and regular contribution. The Apostle Paul admonishes (1 Cor. 16:2) "Upon the first day of the week let everyone of you lay by him in store, as God has prospered him."

Seven Ways of Giving

1. The Careless Way—To give something to every cause that is presented without inquiring into its merits.

2. The Impulsive Way—To give from impulse—as much and as often as love and pity and sensibility prompt.

3. The Lazy Way — To make a special offer to earn money for benevolent objects by fairs, festivals, etc.

4. The Self-Denying Way—To save cost of luxuries and apply them to purposes of religion and charity! This may lead to asceticism and self-complaisance.

5. The Systematic Way—To lay aside as an offering to God a definite portion of our gains—one-tenth, one-fifth, one-third, or one-half. This is adapted to all, whether rich or poor, and gifts would be largely increased were it practiced.

6. The Equal Way—To give to God and the needy just as much as we spend ourselves, balancing our personal expenditures by our gifts.

7. The Heroic Way—To limit our own expenditures to a certain sum, and give away all the rest of our income.

Apply these standards to your church and missionary contributions. Bulletin, Eighth St., Menn. Ch., Goshen, Ind.

When thou makest presents, let them be of such things as will last long; to the end that they may be in some sort immortal, and may frequently refresh the memory of the receiver.—Fuller.

SERMON SKETCH

"WHAT DOES IT MEAN TO BECOME A CHRISTIAN?"

It is one thing to bear the name "Christian" but quite another to prove true to it. It is one thing to accept Christ as Savior but quite another to crown Him as Lord. The first is basic; the latter the expected result. First, "babes in Christ"; then, "fullness of Christ." (1 Cor. 3:1; Eph. 4:13). In a sense, salvation is complete when one "receives Him" (John 1:12); in an other, salvation is not complete till one is "conformed to the image of His Son" (Rom. 8:29).

Conditions Set by Jesus

1. "No man can come to me, "EXCEPT the Father . . . . draw him" (John 6:44). Man is lost. Lost men go in circles. Men cannot find God. But God can find men. Men cannot save themselves. "Not by works of righteousness which we have done, but according to His mercy He saved us." (Titus 3:5). But helpless man is saved by grace. "By grace are ye saved through faith and that not of yourselves" (Eph. 2:8).

II. "EXCEPT ye repent ye shall all likewise perish." (Luke 13:3) Here is man's part. He must give up as lost. God "now commandeth all men everywhere to repent." (Acts 17:30) Repentance involves the (1) intellect—a change of mind regarding the monster sin and Christ the redeemer from sin; (2) emotion—"made sorry after a godly manner" (2 Cor. 7:9) (3) will—"Let the wicked forsake his way . . . and let him return" (Isa. 55:7).

III. "EXCEPT ye be converted and become as little children" (Matt. 18:3) Not childishness. But childlikeness. Teachable. Susceptable to love. Trusting the Father's promise. "As newborn babes, desire the sincere milk of the word, that ye may grow thereby" (1 Pet. 2:2). A normal child craves for more nourishment. A healthy Christian grows continually.

IV. EXCEPT a man be born again he cannot see the kingdom of God" (John 3:3). God must draw. Man must feel sorrow and humility in view of the past. But now the miracle that empowers for life and service. A new life is implanted beside the old one. It is to take the place of the old one. "If any man be in Christ he is a new creation" (2 Cor. 5:17, R. V. Marg.) New birth brings new desires, those that please God.

V. "EXCEPT your righteousness exceed the righteousness of the scribes and Pharisees" (Matt. 5:20). Here is the test of growth. Now God looks for fruit. The new heart seeks permission to do good. "What do ye more than others?" Deaconess says: "They have a right to expect more of a Christian hospital." Light creates responsibility. "He that knoweth . . . and doeth it not to him it is sin." (Jas. 4:17).

"To Become a Christian" we must heed these warnings of Jesus. There are no short-cuts to perfection in life and service. (1) God must draw; (2) Man must yield; (3) Normal childlikeness means growth; (4) New desires come from a new nature; and (5) the test of life is fruit. The dying thief became a Christian (His soul was saved); but living thieves rob God today of fruitful service (the lives are lost). Shall we learn what it means to become a Christian—a real Christian?

THE CITIZENS OF THE KINGDOM

Matt. 5:1-16

Introduction

The synoptic Gospels say but little about the year which intervened between Jesus' temptation and the Sermon on the Mount. John records various events (Chaps. 1-4). Soon after His temptation, Jesus visited Cana, Capernaum and Jerusalem at the Passover time. A ministry of about seven months in Judea followed. Then He returned to Galilee, made Capernaum his headquarters and began His active ministry. Here the synoptic Gospels resume the story. A preaching tour throughout Galilee followed. His popularity grew rapidly and large multitudes came to hear and to be healed. It seems according to Luke 6, that Jesus made a final selection of the twelve apostles after a night of prayer. These He planned to train for a large work. The Sermon on the Mount followed immediately after the choosing of the twelve.

The Blessed Ones vs 1-12

Jesus points out eight classes whom God esteems as blessed, who enjoy the favor and blessing of God. First mentioned are "the poor in spirit" (v3), the lowly in heart who realize their poverty of soul apart from God, who are contrite and humble in spirit. Christ rules in their hearts and the kingdom is a present possession. They who mourn are blessed (v4). Deep sorrow and trouble can well be a great blessing when we seek God's comfort. God will comfort those who mourn in penitent sorrow because of their sins and also those who mourn in sympathy with others. The meek, humble, gentle, long-suffering as distinguished from the self-assertive—are blessed (v5). Meekness is a power in the world and increasingly so as Christian ideals more largely prevail. Meek people get more true happiness out of life than the proud.

Blessed are they who have an intense longing for truth, righteousness, moral and spiritual good (v6). Such soul hunger shall be fully satisfied by the Gospel of Christ. They who show loving kindness and help others in distress, who show mercy (v7) will be helped of God. Purity of heart, of inward thought and desire brings the greatest of all blessings (v8) for the pure see God, understand Him and have fellowship with Him. They who are peaceable in heart, who strive to promote peace on earth, are like their Father who is the "God of peace" (v9). Jesus has special words of comfort for those persecuted for righteousness sake (v10). He is preparing His followers for the persecutions awaiting them (vs 11, 12). They shall consider these a great blessing, a reason for rejoicing with exceeding gladness. The reward in heaven will be correspondingly great. Those enduring persecutions, enjoy God's favor and experience a development of soul.

The Salt of the Earth v 13

Christians are like salt and must have a distinct character which distinguishes them. Salt, when it has lost its distinctive character, can not regain its power —is worthless. So also, when a Christian losses his distinctive Christian character, nothing can take its place. His influence is lost.

The Light of the World vs 14-16

When we receive Christ into our hearts, we become lights to the world. He, "the Light," shines in and through His followers. When we let our light shine it glorifies Him and God. We shine when we do Christlike deeds, speak Christlike words, live a Christlike life, bear witness to His saving power. This, people can see and hear. Citizens of God's kingdom are Christlike in character.

Weekly Meditation

By the Rev. R. A. Marquardt

"O give thanks unto the Lord; call upon His name: make known His deeds among the people." Ps. 105:1.

We may have been toiling for weeks and months so that the crops in the field would grow and could be harvested in due time. We may feel as though that crop is the due reward for our work. Should the crop be a poor one we might even feel as though we had been short-changed. But are such thoughts permissible? Are they justified?

Note the green grass which you have offered your cattle during the summer. Take note of the fresh air and the sunshine which have served you faithfully all summer. How much have we done toward deserving or earning these? And yet all these are numbered among the crops which we harvest.

Even though we work faithfuly in the field or at the shop all summer, is that sufficient reason or cause for a successful outcome? Does our work force the crop to be a good one? In other words, do we not realize that there is another who has a great deal more to do with the crop than we? Our deeds are as nothing compared with "His deeds."

Even though this be the case, we often think so much more about our deeds that we forget His deeds. Therefore He prompts us in this Psalm to "make known His deeds among the people." This is necessary for a thankful heart. We often sing: Praise God from Whom all blessings flow. And at the same time we will be thinking about these things as a result of our work.

Let us "give thanks unto the Lord" from the bottom of our heart. All these gifts from the field are from Him who bountifully provides for us. v. 2: "Sing unto Him, sing psalms unto Him: talk ye of all His wondrous works."—Mountain Lake Observer.

To the Home Mission Committee of the Western District Conference:

All members of the Grace Mennonite Church and others who attend our services herewith express our gratitude and appreciation to the churches of the Western District Conference for the kind interest they have displayed and the support they have given in the construction of this church. In particular we thank the members of the Home Mission Committee, under whose auspices the work has been done, and the members of the Board of Trustees of the Western District Conference for their efforts in making this building possible.

We will at all times endeavor to use this place of worship to the glory of God's name. Our hopes and aspirations are further expressed in the following lines written by Mrs. A. Theo. Mueller:

Give us a pride in our new church, dear Lord:
But make us humble in our hearts and minds.
Give us alertness and a willingness
To always put Thee first in all we do.
Give us true sense of stewardship and trust,
That we shirk not responsibility.
Then, too, dear God, we ask for tolerance,
For love, and understanding of our fellowmen
With whom we live and work to make this house of Thine
A house of prayer and blessing to all human kind.
May Thy calm spirit so this place pervade
That everything be peaceful. Let us live each day
As though it had been started here, alone with Thee,
In this Thy house which we now dedicate to Thee.

In behalf of the Grace Mennonite Church,

H. N. Harder, Pastor
C. B. Schmidt. Deacon
Simon Unruh, Truestee
A. Theodore Mueller, Clerk.

And this is THE MISSION OF THE CHURCH—not civilization, but salvation—not better laws, purer legislation, social elevation, human equality and liberty, but first, the Kingdom of God and His righteousness, regenerated hearts, and all other things will follow.—A. S. Kittredge.

Some Thought-Provoking, if not Alarming Facts

By Charles V. Vickrey

National Committee for Religion and Welfare Recovery, 60 East 42nd St., New York

Scientifically directed personal interviews with 9,500 representative citizens indicate that the average citizen believes that —

(a) "religion is losing ground," and
(b) "our moral standards are growing worse."

If Mr. Average Citizen is right in his observations there are other thought-provoking facts which may suggest ways whereby he may reverse this serious trend.

1. Since 1928 and during the depression, Mr. Average Citizen has —
    - (a) increased his expenditure for Armies and Navies by 31%, and
    - (b) decreased his gifts for churches and related benevolences by 36%.
2. Mr. Average Citizen now spends nearly twice as much for Armies and Navies as he does for churches and Sunday-schools.
3. He spends more than twice as much for alcoholic beverages as for churches and church-supported philanthropies.
4. He spends more for cigarettes than for churches and religious education.
5. Current estimates indicate that we spend fifteen times as much for crime as for Churches.
6. (a) Our national income increased from $40,014,000,000 in 1932 to $71,853,000,000 in 1937 —an increase of more than 79%.
    - (b) During the same period our contributions to churches (as officially reported through the United Stewardship Council from 25 major communions and denominations) decreased from $398,828,514 in 1932, to $314,946,269 in 1937, a decrease of more than 21%.
7. Mr. Average Church Member last year (1938) gave an average of $13.47 (less than 4 cents per day) for all forms of church work, religious education and church-supported philanthropy, whereas in the deepest depression years he gave $16.11 in 1933, $19.02 in 1932, $22.62 in 1931, $23.38 in 1930, the highest national average ever recorded. Must we have another depression in order to restore support to our churches and character-building institutions?
8. The total gifts reported last year (1938) were $327,003,336 which was $185,247,769 or 36% less than the $512,251,105 given ten years previous in 1928. The total last year was also from 1% to 31% less than it was for the early depression years when the gifts in 1930 were $488,829,435; in 1931 - $457,536,473; in 1932 - $389,828,514; and in 1933 - $331,640,786.
9. In 1937 our national income was $31,839,000,000 larger than it was in 1932. This provided an average increased income of $240 for every man, woman and child — but Mr. Average Church Member not only cooperated with Mr. Average Citizen and his family in absorbing this increase of income in various forms of personal betterment, or pleasure, but Mr. and Mrs. Church Member actually reduced their support of church and charity by 29% and each gave $5.55 less than they gave before they each received the $240 per annum of increased income for themselves and each member of their family.

Would not a modern Malachi, as Jehovah's messenger, in face of such alarming facts cry out, "Return unto me, and I will return unto you, saith the Lord of hosts." . . . "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse and prove me now herewith saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of Heaven and pour you out a blessing that there shall not be room enough to receive it."

RECOVERY AND ADVANCE

The National Committee for Religion and Welfare has no defeatiest attitude in the presence of the above sobering facts.

The Committee interprets them as a temporary reaction in a forward movement which spans the centuries and accepts them as a challenge to action—a call to re-consecration, personal devotion and increased sacrifices for the saving of our homes, our Nation, our civilization and our world neighbors.

THE PROGRAM for Recovery and Advance includes

A CALL TO WORSHIP — "Every citizen in a House of Worship every week."

A CALL TO STEWARDSHIP—"Every citizen a Steward of Life and money for the Welfare of Mankind."

— Goods with "Quaker" Names. — Because the Friends or Quakers are known for their genuine integrity and dependability, some greedy manufacturers have made "Quaker" a label of their goods. Thus we have Quaker Oats, Quaker Maid Hosiery, Quaker Paint. To these uses the Friends don't object seriously. But they have been vigorously objecting to Old Quaker Whisky, a label used by the Schenby Distillers' Corp. However, the company declined to give up the mark used for 33 years. Recently, the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board had before it a formal complaint—as close to a law suit as Friends would go—backed by a delegation of 100 Friends, with the demand that the board ban the whisky from the shelves of the company's stores, Pennsylvania's only retail outlet.—Summing up, their spokesman said "No one would think of calling liquor "Old Catholic" or "Old Protestant."—This shows that ways can be found to obtain justice outside the courts.

O Man, O Man, How Long Must It Be?

By Karl Baehr

As in a dream I mused about the nobility of man and the majesty of God.
Before me I saw the mighty nations of the world;
Their music, art, and culture paraded before my eyes.
"Of a truth," I declared, "such marvels are from Thee, O God."
And then, a thousand latent devils were loosed, and I awoke.
The world was seething with the ominous rumble of war.
All that was good and lovely and noble fled into the night,
Leaving but a surging tide of hate and sempiternal death.

In anguish I cried unto the Lord, even the Most High,
"Who is on the Lord's side—who is serving Thee?"
And then a great calm filled my soul.
A still, small voice filled the pregnant silence:
"Go tell America the truth concerning these things;
Enlighten her lest she too falls victimized."

Thus saith the Lord:
"O man, O man, how long must it be?
Centuries have come, yea, millenniums have passed before me—
Millenniums that were perforated with poisonous strife and nefarious wars—
And still thou hast failed to comprehend my immutable truth, my sacrificial love;
For, once again, strident voices cry unto me for my benison and protection,
And nations call upon me to lead their forces to 'victory' and 'righteousness.' "

Thus saith the Lord:
"O man, O man, how long must it be?
Know ye not that in war there is no 'victory' and no 'righteousness'—
That the atrocities thou condemnest in thine enemies thou avengest not in love,
But by viciously visiting a double portion of those same atrocities on thine enemies?
Know ye not that war is its own progenitor—
That it feeds on the hate it creates and justifies its rebirth by the injustices it conjured up?"

Thus saith the Lord:
"O man, O man, how long must it be?
How, then, can I bless war or give audience to that self-perpetuating enemy of all that is good and true?
Could I deny my own Fatherhood or shatter the universal brotherhood of my children
By directing the bullets of one side straight to their mark,
Or by deflecting the efficacious blows of the one against the other?
Could I help kill my children and still be a tender, loving, and forgiving Father?"

Thus saith the Lord:
"O man, O man, how long must it be?
My soul writhes within me to hear the supplications of man in his fatuity;
Bitterly I cast them aside, for such ways are not my ways!
How can I countenance that which destroys me:
For every fired shot wounds Me; each shattered city pierces Me;
Every heinous deed crushes Me; each death crucifies Me."
Thus saith the Lord:
"O man, O man, how long must it be?
I can never justify war: Its benign promises of equity and peace are feigned;

For what diabolical parlance causes thee to trust war to liquidate itself?
It lives not to die but that more of every age shall die to its honor.
And why thinkest thou that if thou art heavily armed war will fear to cross thy threshold?
War thrives on brandished defence, on 'impregnable' armaments, for they are the stuff with which war is waged."

Thus saith the Lord:
"O man, O man, how long must it be?
My ways are the ways of love: for as war creates war so love flowers in love—
Love that finds in its heart the power to forgive, even seventy times seven;
Love that longs to do good to the enemy, is glad to atone for his evil ways so that he too may be saved to love and peace;

Love that sees in each man an image of Me, his Lord and Creator."

Thus saith the Lord:
"O man, O man, how long must it be?
Who, then, is on the Lord's side—who is serving Me?
He who refrains from hatred and lives each day a life of love,
That when the inferno ends he may speak commandingly of truthful, just, and loving peace—
That nation who strains its very all to be at love with all,
Thus carrying the torch of brotherhood to a benighted world and kindling a long-sought, silent dawn."

Getting Along With Older People

Senior C. E. Topic for October 29, 1939

I. Worship Service:

1.Songs: "I Would be True," "More Like the Master," "Abide with Me."

2. Reading of Eph. 6:1-4; Phil. 2:5-11, and prayer.

3. Special Music: "Tell Mother, I'll be there."

II. Leader's Introduction:

In the home, in the church, at school, at work, and often in their leisure time, young people associate with older people. Some of the most important relationships in life are those that young people have with their elders—children with parents, pupils with teachers, members of youth groups with their counsellors, and so on. It is thus highly necessary for young people, if they are to get the most out of these relationships to value them.

Older people have seen more of life; they have experienced more; maturity has given them a new and larger perspective. Younger people lose much if they fail to cultivate the friendship of older people.

III. Suggested Themes for short talks

1. A good mother, 1 Sam. 1:26-28; 2:18, 19.
2. A good son, Phil. 2:19, 20.
3. A good father, Philemon 1:8-14.
4. A good daughter, Ruth 1:14-17.
5. Command to revere age, Lev. 19:32
6. Regard for older men and women, 1 Tim. 5:1-4

IV. Facts for Study

In China old age has always been honored, and is honored there today. It is a time that is being looked forward to. The young obey the old, and life centers around them.

In Israel, disobedience of children was not only frowned upon, but severely punished. It was a tragedy in a home if a son turned out to be disobedient. On the other hand a son who walked in the ways of his father brought the family honor, and he not only received the father's blessing, but God's favor was upon him. Long life and good days were promised the one who honored his parents.

In nations where the old people are not being honored and loved and taken care of the coming of Christianity always brings a change. The spirit of Christ creates and fosters love and respect for older people.

V. For Discussion

1. Why should there be a blessing on those who honor their parents?

2. What is the attitude of "Young America" toward older people?

3. How can we show our love and respect to our parents, and our teachers?

4. Is there anything wrong by talking about one's father as "the old man"?

VI. Illustrations

Young people gladly and sincerely respect older people like those in the two following illustrations—

When David Livingstone returned to Glasgow after becoming famous for his work in Africa, he was asked to address the students of the university. The young men thought they would have some fun out of this "missionary fellow," so they brought pea shooters and rattles to the meeting, determined to greet him with the biggest din they could make. But an eyewitness of the occasion says that the moment Livingstone walked onto the platform, "gaunt and thin from twenty-seven fevers, and with his arm in a sling from an encounter with a lion," the students were hushed to a great silence. Presently Livingstone was telling them that the secret of all he had done in Africa was due to a promise made to him by a "Gentleman whose word was never broken—'Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end.' " The students forgot their pea shooters and their catcalls as they looked upon a man who knew what it was to walk through life with the divine Comrade.

A passage in the life of Ian Maclaren (Dr. John Watson) tells how, as a little boy, he was present at his first Communion service ,in the church at Perth where his father was an elder. As he looked on from the gallery he was greatly interested in the procession of elders bearing the elements into the church, and especially so in an old man with very white hair and a meek, reverent face, who carried a cup. Some time after, walking along the road, he passed a man breaking stones. The man's white hair caught the lad's attention, and looking back, he recgnized the elder who carried the cup. Full of curiosity and wonder, he asked his father about the old man. His father explained to him that the reason the old man held such a high place in the church, although he was one of the poorest men in town, was that he was one of the holiest. Said the boy's father, "James breaks stones for a living, but he knows more about God than any person I have ever met." The boy learned that the greatest thing in life is character and the crown of character is holiness.

May the friendship of older people be a recommendation?

A young man once came to London bearing a letter of introduction to Baron Rothschild with the request that he would give him employment. The great banker received him warmly, but expressed regret that he had no position open for him. As the young man was leaving, the baron put on his hat and walked along with him, pointing out the various objects of interest. Passing a bank, the rich man went in to transact some business. Afterwards the young man applied at the same bank for work, and was asked, "Are you not the young man who was walking with the baron this morning?" "Yes." "Well, you were in good company; and since we need a young man we will consider this sufficient recommendation."

VII. Food for Thought

As thou sowest, so shalt thou reap. Kindness and love and respect shown older people bear large dividends.

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

PURE THOUGHT, CLEAN SPEECH, RIGHT DEEDS

Intermediate C. E. Topic for Oct. 29, 1939

For Daily Reading:

Oct. 23. Guard against corrupt speech. Eph. 4:29-32.
Oct. 24. Speech betrays the heart. Luke 6:43-45.
Oct. 25. Man defiled by things from within. Mark 7:14-23
Oct. 26. Clean hands and a pure heart. Ps. 24:1-10.
Oct. 27. Cleanse your hands; purify your hearts. James 4:8-10.
Oct. 28. Blessed are the pure in heart. Matt. 5:8.
Oct. 29. Topic. Prov. 4:23; Matt. 5:21, 22.

Opening prayer—Hymn, "Purer Yet and Purer"

Scripture Reading: Ps. 24:1-10, Matt. 5:8; Prov. 4:23; Matt. 5:21, 22. (Read the first responsively.)

Prayer by Leader

Reading of Daily References. (We believe these are so good that they should be read in your meeting.)

Song: "Purer in Heart, O God"

I. Pure thoughts (Refer to topic of Sept. 17).

A. "An arrow may fly through the air and leave no trail; but an ill thought leaves a trail like a serpent."

B. Thoughts even more than overt acts, reveal character. W. S. Plumer.

II. Clean speech.

A. Think all you speak, but speak not all you think. —Thoughts are your own, your words are so no more. Delany.

B. There are three things that ought to be considered before some things are spoken,—the manner, the place and the time. Southey.

C. The name of God.

1. Of sir Isaac Newton it is said that he never said the name of God without removing his hat. And Sir Isaac Newton was a scientist.

2. To the Jews the name of God which was revealed to Abraham was so holy that it was never said or written by them.

D. Speech reveals your character.

E. Careless speech reveals a lack of vocabulary.

1. If we cannot find words to express our thoughts without the use of slang, shall we resort to it?

2. How can we remedy this lack of vocabulary?

a. Read good books and preferably aloud.

b. Talk with people who use good language and who have a wide vocabulary.

c. Read the Bible. This is the best source that can be found.

III. Right deeds.

A. A word that has been said may be unsaid—it is but air. — But when a deed is done, it cannot be undone, nor can our thoughts reach out to all the mischiefs that may follow. Longfellow.

B. A noble deed is a step toward God. J. G. Holland

Poem SPEAK TRUTH

Talk happiness. The world is sad enough
Without your woes. No path is wholly rough;
Look for the places that are smooth and clear,
And speak of those to rest the weary ear
Of earth, so hurt by one continuous strain
Of human discontent and grief and pain.

Talk faith. The world is better off without
Your uttered ignorance and morbid doubt.
If you have faith in God, or man, or self,
Say so; if not, push back upon the shelf
Of silence all your thoughts till faith shall come;
No one will grieve because your lips are dumb.

Talk health. The dreary never-changing tale
Of mortal maladies is worn and stale.
You cannot charm, or interest, or please
By harping on that minor chord, disease.
Say you are well, or all is well with you,
And God shall hear your words and make them true.

Edna Wheeler Wilcox

Closing Song: "He Leadeth Me"

Sentence prayers by members asking God to help us have pure thoughts, cleans speech and right deeds.

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

"SING UNTO THE LORD"

Program for October 29, 1939

"Singing and Making Melody in your Heart to the Lord."—Eph. 5:19.

I. Worship Period

1. Prelude—"Sweet Hour of Prayer"

2. Call to Worship—"I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go into the house of the Lord"

3. Response (Rise to sing in unison): "The Lord is in His Holy Temple"

4. Silent Prayer followed by the "Lord's Prayer" in unison.

5. Scripture read by a Junior boy:

Ps. 95:1-3—"O come, let us sing unto the Lord: let us make a joyful noise to the rock of our salvation. Let us come before His presence with thanksgiving and make a joyful noise unto Him with psalms. For the Lord is a great God and a great King."

Psalm 96:1-4—"O sing unto the Lord a new song: sing unto the Lord all the earth. Sing unto the Lord, bless His name; shew forth his salvation from day to day. Declare His glory among the heathen, His wonders among all people, for the Lord is great, and greatly to be praised."

Psalm 146:2 (In unison from blackboard)—"I will sing praises unto my God, while I have my being."

6. Song—"O Worship the King", No. 31, M.H.B.

II. Mission Minutes

1. While the piano plays the melody softly a Junior girl should read, "We've a Story to Tell to the Nations." M.H.B. No. 332.

2. Sing—"Send the Light." M.H.B. No. 334

III. Study Period

Aim: To enjoy the singing of hymns we love. To strengthen one's inner life.

1. A ten minute memory "Hymn Sing." (Ask the Juniors to suggest hymns that they love, make a list of these and let the Juniors memorize them at home before this meeting.)

2. One Junior talks on: "The Hymn I Like Best and Why."

3. Two Juniors tell stories associated with well-known hymns.

4. Consecration Service:—Leader introduces this service by pointing out that the hymns we sing express our experiences, emotions and determinations. More than that they tell of God's love to us, of Christ's sacrifice for us, of our relation to God our Father and our Lord Jesus Christ. When these songs are sung we should think what every word means.

Let one reader read the verses of scripture, then follow with the song:

(a) John 6:37b. "Him that cometh to me, I will in no wise cast out."
Song: "Just as I am."

(b) Acts 16:31. "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved."
Song: "My Faith Looks Up to Thee" v. 1.

(c) Ps. 51:7b. "Wash me and I shall be whiter than snow."
Song: "Whiter Than Snow"

(d) Ps. 119:94a. "I am Thine."
Song: "I Am Thine, O Lord."

(e) 1 Cor. 10:13. "God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able."
Song: "Yield not to Temptation"

(f) John 15:9. "Continue Ye in my love."
Song: "More Love to Thee, O Christ"

(g) Romans 8:38-39.
Song: "Blessed Assurance."

5. Talk by the pastor.

6. Closing prayer

7. Sing—"Into My Heart"

STOP! READ! THINK!

"1,350,000 young girls are employed in Liquor Saloons and taverns in the U. S. 'Barroom bait'—Report Philadelphia Iinquirer."

Sunday School and Christian Endeavor

Address by C. C. Epp at Sixtieth Anniversary of Hebron Church, five miles east of Buhler, Kansas, Sept. 10, 1939

Dear Friends: What marvelous changes man has wrought in sixty years. In transportation, the automobile, and aeroplane. In communication, the telephone, the radio, and the lightning printing plant. In agriculture, the tractor, and the combine. In manufacture, marvelous machines, mechanically tended for mass production. Mechanical contraptions, taking the place of human hands. The linotype, marvelously intricate in operation, its exact workings replacing many human hands. Well I remember going with father to the market in Russia to hire harvesters to swing the scythe, the grain to be bound by others, then hauled 6 or 7 versts (about 5 miles) into the village, there to be stored and threshed with flail in the winter, fanned and stored. Centuries from the sickle to the scythe, only a generation from the scythe to the combine. This is the machine age. Progress in mechanics makes our heads swim. How much have we progressed spiritually?

My task on this occassion is to say something about our Sunday school and Christian Endeavor. To speak of these as Hebron church activities, I must confine myself to the more distant past. It was then that I was permitted to take part in these programs. Since 1907, because of change of residence to Hutchinson, Kans., I have lost immediate contact with Hebron. But Hebron is still our home. Here rests father, mother and two brothers, beckoning us to follow them, saying with the voice of the dead, "What you are, we were; what we are, you will be."

In 1893, through baptism by Elder B. Buhler, I joined Hebron. Others baptized on the same day were Henry Holzrichter, John Bergen, Anna and Sara Balzer, Maria Fedrau, Maria Koop, Elizabeth Schroeder, and Anna Unruh. Several of these have preceded us into the great beyond. Up until this time I took no vital interest in church activities. Sunday school was then in many Mennnite churches in its primeval development. The older members were antagonistic and non-conforming in the introduction of anything new. But friends, may we, with profit, remember and revere them as sometimes rather prejudiced, yet hardworking, pious, honest, forbears. Their times were not only horse and buggy days, but slowly they plugged along even with ox and wagon. By customs and language they were a segregated community—mostly by their own choice.

Sunday Schools were mostly introduced in our school houses, conducted by more progressive young leaders. Gerhard Bergen, well known for his untiring, successful efforts in S. S. and church work, conducted such S. S. in the old Perez School, one-half mile east and one mile north of the present Paris school, eight miles east of Buhler in 1885, on Sunday afternoons. That was my first Sunday school experience. Jacob Lohrenz (father of Dr. A. M. Lohrenz), Cornelious Regier (father of Rev. J. M. Regier), J. H. Regier (father of J. B. Regier, of Buhler, soon came to assist. Some time later Sunday school was started in Hebron. Elder Buhler was teacher, and the whole congregation was the class with the New Testament as the only text book. Rev. Buhler, always progressive, tolerant and comprehensive in his views. Soon the Sunday school was divided into three classes for men, women and children. Church resolutions of Mar. 16, 1867, appointed Rev. Cornelius Froese as teacher of first class, John Balzer, deacon, teacher of second class, and Elder B. Buhler of the Bible Class. Then I remember, because of objections of older members, Sunday school was continued only intermittaently. Then again resolutions were passed on April 19, 1892: "Sunday school shall again, if possible, be conducted in school houses, Sunday afternoons. If this is not satisfactory, then we will try again Sunday morning, before Service." Another resolution on December 20, 1893: "Resolved to continue Sunday school through the winter. Teachers for men and women, the four ministers—Rev. B. Buhler, David Penner, Corn. Froese, Peter Lohrenz. Middle class, Jacob Dick, Jacob Lohrenz; small children, Jacob Suderman, Corn. Regier. Again, December 22, 1894, for 1895: Resolved to have S. S. the whole year. Teachers selected by the church were: Class I, Rev. Peter Lohrenz, Rev. C. Froese assistant. Class 2, Cornelius Regier, C. C. Epp, ass't. Class 3, P. W. Enns, ass't., Jacob Lohrenz. Class 4, David Penner, ass't., John Balzer. Class 5, Jacob Dick, ass't., Peter Balzer. Elder Buhler, Supt."

Other faithful Sunday school workers were Rev. A. M. Martens, B. Buhler, Jr., J. J. Buhler, Gerhard Fedrau, John C. Epp, John Ediger, Adolf Janzen, Corn. Franz, C. P. Froese, J. G. Neufeld, Mr. and Mrs. John Ediger, etc.

Our Mennonite Church confesses a firm stand on Baptism on personal confession, pacifism, against the oath, also against ultra modish apparel in clothes. Difference of opinion on these easily provoked heated arguments, which often lead to personal attack, instead of constructive, edifying, discussion. This danger is even now too often present. "Rechthaberei." Insisting on the right of our own opinion. Should we not accord others the same privilege? We have learned more tolerance in the free intercourse with others. But has this not also given us more laxity of convictions in the sturdy pious, honest traits of our venerable fathers? In the cemetery to the south of the church they sleep, awaiting the great resurrection morning. May we, their children worthily continue the work, they so well begun 60 years ago. May we meditate the difference between now and then. Our Sunday school arranged in many classes in convenient departments, well graded lessons, regulated programs, easy, yes, luxurious transportation! Are we gratefully appreciating these privileges?

THE HEBRON CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

In 1893, while attending Salina Normal University, one Sunday afternoon, I heard a group of fellow students in one of our class rooms singing: "Where he leads me I will follow." I had never heard this song before. They sang with so much devotion and consecration. It gripped my innermost soul. I asked myself, "Do they really mean what they sing? Do they understand what they say?" Upon inquiry I found, they met Sunday afternoons about 3 p. m. Young Christians endeavoring to grow in Christian graces. This was my first contact with C. E. It created a desire in me to start similar work in my home community.

In May, 1895, we started the Alta Township C. E., meeting every other Sunday afternoon, at the Paris School, my home school. A sample program follows: "1. Opening by Chairman, C. C. Epp. 2. Reading of minutes of last meeting. 3. Poem by Frank Dyck. 4. Moses' Calling, by Susie Schmidt. 5. Essay by C. C. Dyck. 6. Talk by Helen Schmidt. 7. Poem by Lisie Regier. 8. Essay by C. C. Esau. 9. Poem by Maggie Fast 10. Roll Call. 11 Close." According to C. E. Secretary, C. C. Esau, we had 20 signed members.

Of the early Hebron C. E. I have no programs. They were similar. But in my diary I find: "Sunday, April 26, 1896, We organized today a C. E. in the Hebron Church. Rev. B. Buhler elected chairman. 16 members." "Sunday, May 10, 1896, first C. E. meeting. Rather slow, but goodwill." "July 19, rain. No program rendered. Not enough present." Aug. 1, 1896, I started working in Hutchinson and so lost active contact with Hebron church activities until 1899 to 1907, while teaching in the Vereinsschule, near Buhler. During that time I was privileged to assist in the work of the Hebron S. S. and C. E. as superintendent and teacher. Since then the work apparently has prospered much. May the Lord's richest blessing rest and abide with the Hebron Sunday school and C. E.

Most Christian Endeavors stress in their programs devotion, instruction and entertainment. Have we in this machine age probably advanced so rapidly in the adoption of modern impliments, for our physical well-being, and neglected the spiritual values? What will the next 60 years bring to this war-torn world?

Yours for a better world, C. C. Epp.

This address, though local in content, has historical value, and is given here by request.—Editor.

Rachel Weeping for Her Children

Extracts from a letter by the International Reform Federation, Addressed to Congress, by C. N. Howard

After the first bombardment of Chungking Madame Chiang Kai-shek, American educated wife of the Generalissimo, in a letter to an American friend, describes the bombing of Chungknig as follows:

"The bombing was the worst exhibition of cold blooded mass murder that the Japanese have so far been able to perpetrate. They came on the 3rd and 4th; they dropped demolition and incendiary bombs; they reduced great sections of the city to debris and embers, and they killed I do not know how many. Remains are still being dug out of the heaps of ruined houses, but it is estimated that the death roll will run into thousands, maybe much more. The injured are in great number, the homeless uncountable. On the sixth day after the last bombing, lines of coffins still stand in front of every heap of wreckage . . .

"I went to see what was being done in rescue work after the bombings. The areas affected were raging infernos. I never saw anything like it. Most of the houses, which climb the hillsides, are made of timber, perched on long poles. They burned like tinder. When fires get started in them the result cannot be described . . . After the second bombing I got to the rim of the fire. No one could go further. Three quarters of a square mile of houses were in flames. Tongues of fire on every side leaped and crackled and devoured everything . . .

At dawn the sky was still angry with crimson light—crimson with fire, and, indeed, with the blood of the thousands of victims who perished. Fathers and mothers watched their children burnt alive. Other children saw their parents struggling to fight their way across the flames, only to disappear in the ruins of falling beams and pillars. . . . The shrieks and cries of the dying and wounded resounded in the night, muffled only by the incessant roar of the ever hungry fires. Hundreds tried to escape by climbing the old city wall, but were caught by the pursuing flames and, as if by magic, were shriveled into cinders. . . . It was a terrible holocaust, and perhaps quite satisfactory to the Japanese, whose lust to kill is not yet satisfied.

"It seems as though the bodies of our people are being crucified, but the spirit is being baptized in fire and blood. . . . Do what you can to make your people realize that this death and havoc came to us with the help of American gasoline and oil, and materials for bombs. . . . . America's only safeguard lies in taking a courageous, resolute and active stand against all aggressor nations."

Mayling Soong Chiang.

Madame Chiang Kai-shek has repeatedly said, "We can win the war against Japan, but we cannot win a war against Japan and America at the same time."

CORRESPONDENCE

FIRST MENNONITE CH., WADSWORTH, OHIO

Mr. and Mrs. A. Z. Shelley, parents of Rev. Wilmer Shelley, have been staying at the Rev. Shelley home since the latter part of August, and expect to be there for a three months visit.

The annual harvest home service was observed at our church on September 17, and a very fine display was shown of the bounties which our Heavenly Father so generously bestowed on us. The display remained in the church for the Union Young People's service which was held in our church that evening, after which it was all given to the Wadsworth Municipal Hospital.

On October 1st, our congregation celebrated the Lord's Supper, as is our usual custom at the beginning of each quarter, and a goodly number were present and partook of the Holy Communion.—Tillie Krabill.

FIRST MENN. CHURCH, NEWTON, KANS.

Dear Editor and Readers of "The Mennonite": On September 3rd, Rev. A. E. Kreider of Bethel College preached in the forenoon on "The Mission of the Church," very interestingly and instructive. The service on September 10 was especially for the young people going to high school, college or Bible school. The students marched singing into the church, led by our pastors. Dr. Warkentin and Rev. J. E. Entz each gave very suitable short sermons. Bro. Walter H. Regier and Waldo E. Harder made short speeches, the student body sang: "Living for Jesus." All were impressed with the importance of the occasion. On Monday evening occurred the Golden Wedding Anniversary of Brother and Sister J. F. Toews. Rev. Benjamin Ewert, brother of the Golden Bride, and Rev. P. H. Unruh gave the message.—On Thursday, September 14, was the well attended gift day of the Bethel Hospital and the Home for Aged. Rev. Paul Erb spoke very fittingly in the afternoon. In the evening the City Band gave a fine program and Rev. Black gave a short address.—Tuesday evening, Sept. 19, Mrs. G. A. Linscheid gave to the ladies a report of her trip to our Montana missionfield. Thursday afternoon occurred the beautiful wedding of Harry A. Klaassen of the Emmaus congregation and our sister Martha E. Entz. Friday evening was a Sunday school workers conference.—Sunday evening, September 2, Brother John E. Renich gave a good message to the Senior C. E.

Wishing you all God's blessing, Fraternally your correspondent, C. v. d. S.

"Search me, O God, and know my heart, and know my thoughts, And see if there be any wicked way in me, and lead me in the way everlasting."—Ps. 139: 23-24.

—The Western District Conference, at the Auditorium in Wichita, Kansas, a city of 125,000, Wednesday and Thursday, October 18 and 19, preceded by the Minister's Conference at First Mennonite Church, Newton, Tuesday, October 17.—As the Auditorium has a seating capacity of 5,000, pastors and church leaders should urge their members to attend in large numbers, so as to fill the large hall fairly well. The Lorraine Avenue Church is anxious to take care of all vistors who desire entertainment during the conference sessions. Applications should be sent to W. W. Toews, 655 Lorraine, Wichita, Kansas.

—Clothing for Our Brethren in Canada.—The Relief Committees and Women's Missionary Societies of our churches are again getting busy to assemble clothing to be shipped to Canada where they will be distributed among those of our kin in the faith that are not quite able to provide the necessary bodily protection for winter. This work has been going on for a number of years, and is greatly appreciated. May we all gather all the still serviceabe clothing and bedding that we can spare, also new, and bring it to the stations designated for this purpose, thence to be shipped before full winter sets in.

—First Mennonite Church, Reedley California.—Rev. J. M. Suderman, Manager of the Mennonite Publication Office, has sent us a list of the subscribers to the Mennonite and the Bundesbote, at the present being sent to Reedley, Fresno, Dinuba, Parlier, and Visalia. That list makes one wonder when it shows that less than one-fourth of the families of this church keep themselves informed on the far-flung work, not only of our denomination, but of Christendom in general. If ever there was a need of intelligent work for the good of mankind and the honor of God it is now.

—Alberta Community Church, Portland, Oregon.—With hearty appreciation we acknowledge receipt of several artistically decorated bulletins from this church, the work of the pastor's wife, Mrs. Christine Miller. How fortunate when artistic talent is consecrated to the service of the Christian church!—The pastor, Rev. Ed. Miller is featuring a series of sermons on "Ten Rules for Living."

—Bethany Church, Freeman, So. Dak.—Rev. A. H. Leaman, our mission worker in Chicago, invited by the local Church Council to hold meetings here, will be with us from Nov. 13 to 24. Previously announced dates for these meetings could not be filled, but at the time now set, he will be here.—Young Men's Bible Class Monday evenings at the parsonage at 7:30.—S. S. Teacher's Training Class every Wednesday, at 7:30, at the home of Mrs. S. P. Preheim.—German Bible Class and Prayer Meeting every Thursday at 7:30 at the church.

Truly, it is the season for the recuperation of physical strength and the resuscitation of drooping spirits after the withering heat of the summer. The exhilarating autumn air fills our veins with new vim and vigor. The chromatic kaleidoscope of nature stirs our souls to awe and worship of the Creator of such sublime beauty.

Second Mennonite Church is being possessed by the spirit of the season. The pulse of the church activity begins to quicken. The wheels of organization are being set in motion. Every symptom points to a successful fall program. Members of the church are smiling and praying and working. Are you doing your part for the church? Are you doing YOUR BEST for the church? ARE YOU?

—FAREWELL SERVICES FOR REV. AND MRS. ORLANDO WALTNER were held at the Salem-Zion Church on Sunday, September 24th, 1939, in which the neighboring churches participated. There was a forenoon and an evening program in which special music was rendered and many speakers took part. It was a nice day and the attendance taxed the church beyond its capacity, and loudspeakers accommodated those on the outside. This worthy couple left on Monday for Seattle, Washington, and on the 29th sailed on a Japanese boat for their chosen Mission field of India. Missionary Waltner is the son of Rev. A. P. Waltner and his wife a daughter of Rev. P. R. Schroeder. The interest displayed at the farewell event shows that the wishes and the goodwill of the entire community goes with these fine young people.

—St. John Menn. Church, Pandora, Ohio.—How does your missionary interest rate? Are you enthusiastic about missionary work? Do you pray for the missionaries? daily? occasionally? seldom? or never? The sincerity of a Christian depends to a large degree upon his desire and aid to help others to know the Lord Jesus as their Saviour from sin. Millions have never heard the gospel, others have heard a distorted gospel. May the Lord Jesus so live in our lives that we will adorn the gospel. Then let us pray and give so that those who go may tell the "story of Jesus and His Love." Let us speak a word for our Saviour in the mart, the shop, and the home as well as in our schools and church.

MESSAGES FROM THE WORD OF GOD gripped the heart of an Indian chief. The missionary was Rev. R. Petter. One message was out of 2 Corinthians, chapter 5, part of which says, "For we know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle were disolved, we have a building of God, an house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens." The chief gave his heart to Jesus thirty-nine years ago. He was glad to see many others take the step he had taken. How grateful he was when mother and daughter were baptized at the same time. Then the other members of the family followed. On August 29 he was called to his eternal home. You all know him. His name is Red Bird Black.—The Ch. and A. Messenger.

GOSPEL HARDENED

"Hearing they hear not, neither do they understand."

A blacksmith's dog used to spend most of its time in the smithy, and thus it got used to the fire. Other dogs came, and the moment the sparks flew they ran away in terror, but the smith's dog would sleep in the midst of all undisturbed. It would scarcely leave the smithy, but used to stay all night. One night the smithy caught fire, and the dog lost its life in the conflagration. — How many hearers have got too familiar with the warnings of the gospel? Many have taken warning, but many sleep amid the sparks.

Bandits in Missionary Brown's Home

Letter to Daughter Jessie at Bethel College

Taming Fu, Hopei, China
September 7, 1939

Dear Jessie:

I just want to add a word this morning. Last night between ten and eleven o'clock after we were in bed, robbers came in. I went downstairs when I heard them outside. They demanded that I open the screen door on the veranda toward the west. They had a flash light. I quickly went in and closed the second screen door. The dog was on the veranda fiercely defending the place. Mother was still in bed, so I quickly ran up to get her in the attic. I wanted to go too, but mother had only a night gown on, so I ran back to get covers. They had already forced the door open and were coming up the stairway. I held the door shut, but could not, because they were many. Not wanting them to shoot, for they had pistols and daggers, I surrendered. They demanded money after tying my hands. I gave them what was in the drawer, but they demanded more, so I finally volunteered to get the rest, which was locked up in a trunk upstairs. I had a great time getting the proper keys, as they continually threatened to shoot. In all they got over $300 dollars, but they wanted $3000.00, so they beat me and threatened to shoot me. Several times they made me kneel to shoot me. Once they made me kneel and then threatened to pour the lamp's kerosene on my head to burn me up. I had committed myself to the Lord, and so could only say, that I had no more money, if they wanted more things, they should go get them. Finally they took me out and tied me to a tree, the others left, but one stayed as guard, and two went in to plunder. The value of the goods they took amounts to maybe about $50.00 in U. S. value. The worst is that they took my glasses. They wanted mother badly but never found her. She hid behind a trunk in the attic, lying flat on the floor, covered with a dark steamer robe. There God saved her in spite of flashlights. We are grateful to God, that although beaten and burned, I am not wounded with gun or knife. The Lord has again wonderfully protected after all. Prasi His holy name!

Your loving father, H. J. Brown.

OUR COUNTRY AS A PEACEMAKER.—"Blessed are the peacemakers for they shall be called the sons of God." President Roosevelt has shown a disposition to assume the role of peacemaker in the European turmoil. And how fortunate it would be if he, backed by the nation and the hope of God's help, could manage to accomplish what the cunning of European statesmen prevented President Wilson from doing, bring about "a peace without victory." With the South American republics unitedly agreed to maintain peace on this western continent, our nation appears to be particularly suited, yes, may be chosen of God, to lend its good offices in a serious attempt to stop the age old wrangles of the old world and the heartaches of its peoples. As one of our exchanges so aptly expresses it: "a great new opportunity for the establishment of world peace on a permanent basis awaits the United States. This nation, if it lifts the officially maintained doubt concerning our own neutrality law, has the opportunity to lead sixty neutral governments in the establishment of united and continuous meditation. Out of this process and out of no other procedure can permanent organization for peace be expected to come." If the war continues and Germany should win, revenge for Versailles will be the order. If the Allies win, something worse than the 1918 settlement will ensue. The hope now lies in an armistice, with enough time given to initiate peace proposals. If events should take such a turn, it would become our privilege unitedly to importune President Roosevelt to use his influence and the prestige of our nation, backed by our prayers, in a serious effort to lead Europe in the establishment of a sane and, let us hope, lasting Christian peace. At the same time we should draw upon our vast resources and in Samaritan fashion proceed to succor the war stricken people of Poland, China, and Spain, binding the wounds, feeding the starving, clothing the naked, comforting the dying, and bringing a ray of sunshine where there is now wretchedness.

Why not be the world's peace makers and Samaritans and take the lead in imitating Christ!—Of course we cannot forsee the turn of events, but if peace continues to beckon, why not write the President, in a manner somewhat as follows:

To the President of the United States,
The Hon. Franklin D. Roosevelt,
Washington, D. C.
Dear Mr. President:

You have in a Christian spirit on different occasions evinced your readiness to use the influence of your high office in helping bring about peace among the war scarred nations of Europe. May I (we) beg of you, now or at the earliest opportune time, to take the lead in a serious effort to establish a sane, Christian and, may God grant, lasting peace among those nations. I (we) assure you that my (our) earnest prayers will go with you as you proceed in this very difficult task.—Matt. 5:9.

Very respectfully and sincerely yours,
(Name and address)

GOD CARES.—"Casting all your cares upon him, for he careth for you."—Acts 16:25.—Safe in our protected American homes, with our wants provided and God still granting us peace, we may not appreciate the application of this passage fully in our own case. But every true follower of Christ will have his heart burdened by the distress elsewhere and the darkness spread over the world. To relieve himself of such a burden he can himself do his very best to bring help to the distressed and pray God to put it into the hearts of His own to do likewise, with the assurance that He will care. Nevertheless, there are times when we have our cares. They may be cares about poor health of self or in the family, cares about how to make a living, cares about work, cares about bad habits hard to break, cares about one's children, and what not. Of such cares our passage says, cast them upon Him, for He cares for you. That Christ can relieve His own from their cares, has been provd in innumerable cases. If there is a hitch, it is because we do not come to Him in the right way with our burdens or we do not have enough faith in His promise. Those who have taken Christ at His word and the Bible at its par value, have found no valley so deep, no situation so dark, no waters so contrary, but that He was with them and cared for them. Of Paul and Silas, who were lodged in stocks and prison, we read: "But at midnight they were praying and singing hymns unto God," thus leaving their cares to Him. And, behold, suddenly there was an earthquake and the doors of the prison were thrown open, Paul, plowing through deep, stormy waters on his way to Rome never feared, he let God care for him. Yes, He will care, if we only have faith in Him.

—BLUFFTON COLLEGE GOSPEL TEAM.—The following students compose Bluffton's Gospel Team this school year: Stanley Fretz, Lansdale, Pa., president; Leonard Metzger, Roaring Spring, Pa., vice-president; William Snyder, Altoona, Pa., secretary-treasurer, and Harvey Bauman, Quakertown, Pa., Deputation chairman.

Bluffton College President's nauguration

Administrative officials from all colleges and universities in Ohio have been invited to attend the inauguration ceremonies of President Lloyd L. Ramseyer to be held in the Bluffton College Chapel on October 20, 1939. A similar invitation has been extended to representatives from churches in the conference supporting the school and to the presidents of the related colleges.

The program begins with the Inaugural procession which will form at the Musselman Library at 3:30 P.M., and will then proceed to the chapel. This procession will be made up of the Bluffton College faculty and invited guests.

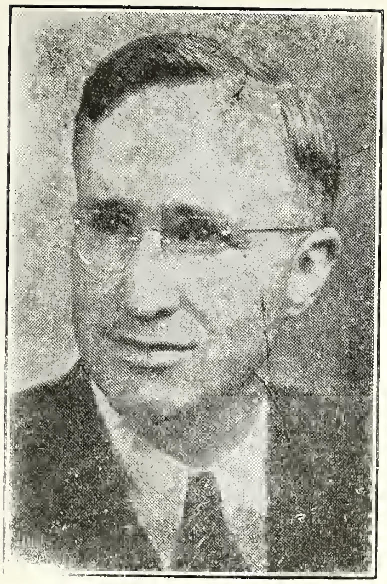
At 4:00 P. M. the Inaugural program will begin in the College chapel. The address will be given by Kenneth I. Brown, president of Hiram College and president of the Ohio College Association, following which President Ramseyer will give the inaugural response. The induction will be performed by Dr. J. S. Slabaugh, president of the Bluffton College Board of Trustees. Music for the occasion will be presented by the College Vesper Choir under the direction of Professor R. A. Lantz. The college is also planning to confer several honorary degrees at this session.

The Inaugural Banquet will be held in the Ropp Hall dinging room at 6:15 P. M. Dr. Maurice Troyer of Syracuse, N. Y., alumni representative on the Board of Trustees, will act as presiding officer. The group will again be made up of the College faculty and invited guests. The program will consist of a number of informal talks by those present.

The Inaugural Concert to be held in the First Mennonite Church, Bluffton, at 8:15 P. M. will conclude the day's activities. Selections will be given by the College Orchestra, the Vesper Choir, and several smaller groups and soloists. Plans are in charge of the music faculty of the college.

Dr. Ramseyer was selected as president of Bluffton College at a special meeting of the Board of Trustees last November and has served in this capacity during the past year. He holds his Bachelor of Arts degree from Bluffton College and his advanced degree from Ohio State University at which place he was also engaged as research assistant. After completing his work at Ohio State he taught at Bowling Green State University where he introducted the study of Visual Instruction.

The new president, who has been engaged in educational work since his graduation from Bluffton in 1924, is a member of the National Education Association, the Phi Kappa Delta education fraternity, and a past secretary-treasurer of the Department of Visual Instruction of the N. E. A. His work in his special field has been given wide publicity by professional magazines in Ohio and neighboring states.



President Lloyd L. Ramseyer, Ph. D.

A native of Hudson, Illinois, the new executive comes to Bluffton with a fine Mennonite background, having been affiliated with the East White Oak Church in that community. Mrs. Ramseyer is the former Fern Yoder, the daughter of Rev. S. S. Yoder of Middlebury, Indiana. There are three children in the Ramseyer home. —P. W. Stauffer.

LETTERS

S. S. Saturnia, Atlantic Ocean, 10-3-39
"Pray that your flight be not in winter"
Dear Bro. Richert:

We are told the Clipper will bear messages to America in a day. They must be ready at Lisbon in the morning. Now we are to pass Gibralter soon. The Mediterranean is like glass and the sun is out in all its glory.

Some advised us to stay in Vevey. Even the Swiss police said, "Don't expose yourselves on ship. Stay here. No one will molest you." But with uncertain world conditions, we decided the wise course was to return now. God graciously opened the way, for all the ships are crowded. Monday morning, Sept. 25th, we were told a cabin was available in an Italian ship. We left Vevey Thursday morning, Sept. 28th, and had an easy trip to Genoa before night. Stopped at a Swiss hotel and boarded the Saturnia Sunday afternoon, however, she did not sail until past 9 o'clock. We have a good cabin and are comfortable. Meals and service are very fine. From Lisbon our ship takes a straight course across the Atlantic, keeping to latitude 38 until just before we reach New York City. Our address will be Taft Hotel near Central Park. An air mail letter would reach us. The ship's orchestra is giving its afternoon concert while I write, so I can't think "straight". We are grateful to all who have been praying for us, including our Christian Indians.

Sincerely, Bertha Petter.

P. S. We were very comfortable at a Christian Hospiz in Vevey. Moderate prices. The proprietor's name is Kraehenbuehl. We felt very much at home there.

Freman, South Dakota, October 11, 1939
Dear Brother Thiertein:

The leave-taking of our children, Orlando and Vernelle Schroeder Waltner, came on such short notice, that it was not even possible to have an announcement of it appear in the Church papers. On September 18th, through a telephone call from the Secretary of the Foreign Missions Board, Bro. P. H. Richert, to Bro. A. P. Waltner, we received the information that Bro. and Sister Marvin Dirks with their child, Bro. and Sister August Ewert with their family, and our children, were to be ready to leave for their respective fields of labor on September 29th, from Seattle on a Japanese Liner. The first two couples are going to China and Waltners to India.

This required fast packing and thinking. Our children's passport was in the custody of the Cunard Lines, since they had at first made arrangements to go east on the Georgic. But a telegram brought that here in time. I was barely out of the hospital and so most of the packing was left to Bro. A. P. Waltner and his relatives. They did careful work, first making strong boxes, and then making all the shipping arrangements. The short travelling notice made freight shipment of the goods impossible. The express bill came to about $80.00 more than freight would have cost. But everything arrived in Seattle in time for sailing, according to a later letter from the children.

We are well nigh overwhelmed by the great-hearted liberality of our South Dakota people in helping with the necessary equipment of our children. As meager as the crops have been for years, an extraordinary missionary spirit showed itself among young and old. The farwell services, held in the North Church (Bro. H. Albert Claassen, Pastor) on September 24th, were the first services I was able to attend since returning from the hospital. Some one will report on those services. To me it was a special Divine providence to be so far restored as to be able to be there.

The "Hikawa Maru" is scheduled to arrive in Yokohoma October 13th. When the China missionaries can proceed from there I do not know, but that will probably be without much delay. Our children wrote from Seattle that passage for Singapore and Bombay may not be available until almost two weeks after their arrival in Japan. Their trip to India may take a full two months. But letters from our India missionaries indicate that a welcome awaits them there.

I preached last Sunday and am continuing to gain strength. All honor and praise to the Lord.

Sincerely, P. R. Schroeder.

An Appreciation of The Girls' Home In Winnipeg, Manitoba

Kitchener,Ontario, July, 1939.

Dear Friends in the Girls' Home:

When I left the Home some three weeks ago, Neta Epp said among other things: "No doubt you will do it like most of the other girls, promise to write and when you are away you will forget."

Now, dear sisters, even though we may not write many letters we still think of you very often. And how could a girl forget a place where she has been year after year and where she has experienced as much love and kindness. The Ebenezer Home will, to most of us, remain a source of joyful remembrance for life!

No doubt many of the girls in the Winnipeg section have gone to the beaches with their families. I do not envy them. Although I do miss the bathing and swimming in the Lake of the Woods, where I spent the past six years with my people, I find here so many delightful things that I can easily forego the other.

Kitchener is a pleasant place, where streets are washed each morning. I have not noticed anything like the dust alleys prevalent in Winnipeg. In fact they do not seem to have alleys here. It seemed too queer to find that garbage has to be set out on the curb of the front street. Back yards are divided simply by small wire fences. My mistress has a most delightful garden and roses are at the height of their beauty. These remind me of our garden in Russia, with the many roses and begonias.

My work with Mr. and Mrs. Cundich seems very pleasant. Formerly I had hardly antcipated that as a servant one might discover such a difference in people. These people are very simple and unassuming. The home is not nearly as large as Mrs. Fergusons. Cooking here is not a big task, since the main meal is at noon. At 6:00 p.m. I serve them a light supper. In the afternoon I usually have some leisure time and as seven o'clock my work is finished.

On Thursday when I have the afternoon free, I would so much like to attend the Bible Study in your home. Those inspiring hours I do miss greatly. The other Thursday I visited a Braun family. I learned to know them in 1925 at Winkler, Manitoba. I worked with Mr. Braun on a farm. Mrs. Braun is a T. B. patient and is already four years in a Sanitarium. Mr. Braun has a fairly good position, but since he has no housekeeper, his income does not reach very far. The ladies from the Church often go and help out, but they cannot take the place of the mother. The children help as much as they can. Mr. Braun is a minister in Waterloo, and accepts this hardship without complaining.

Yesterday I attended a Saengerfest in Kitchener. The Old Mennonites have a most delightful place with a large tent for such occasions. In front of the tent the banner carried this verse: "This is the Day the Lord hath made." And truly the Lord granted a most pleasant day for the festival. Here I met several friends: Lory Penner, Anna Enns, Susie Thiessen, Lena Klaassen, Anna Giesbrecht, Liese ad Anna Thiessen, Anna Boldt and Agatha Duerksen. Sara Unruh's husband was also present, but she could not come on account of the little baby. We felt almost as though we were in the Girl's Home. The girls all send greetings to the Home and asked me many questions about the institution and the other girls.

One point stands out clearly: whether here or there, God's Word touches us everywhere, and wherever we journey here on earth, Jesus once will gather us all home with Him.

Cordial greetings to Rev. and Mrs. Enns and all the girls in the Home. Agatha Braun.

OUR NEED FOR GOD

"But be not thou far from me, O Lord: O my strength, haste thee to help me."—Psalms 22:19.

Everyone needs to find God for himself, for finding Him is a decidedly personal experience. It is an experience which is imperative if we are to reach our full development as human beings. As God the Father has created us in His own image, our lives are incomplete until they find completion in Him.

This fundamental need for God is evident in many phases of life. For instance we need God for direction, in order to find our way through this topsy-turvy world. So many things are changing that we need one sure point by which we can keep our bearing.

We also need God for help and strength for broken bodies and spirits. This is an exceedingly hard world. Again and again it strains us to the utmost and beyond our own limited strength and endurance. But God is able to do for us far more than we are able to do for ourselves.

Likewise we need God for the courage which is born of faith in Him. The demands for courage these days fairly takes one's breath away. But the one great source of courage has always been man's experience of God.

Help us this day, O Father, to recognize the cause of our restlessness and our frequent weakness. Help us to see clearly our vain and selfish strivings which too often leave us weakened and disappointed. May we earnestly seek the abundant life. Amen.

The War Is On

by Jacob H. Janzen

"Because iniquity shall abound, the love of many shall wax cold"—Matt. 24:12.

War is an iniquity in itself. There might be honest people in war who mean well, but as a whole war is iniquity. It is that sort of iniquity that cannot stand love. If there were sufficient love among the peoples there would be no war. If there were enough good to overcome evil there would be no war, and the good would nevertheless prevail.

If there were less greed in this world, there would be less envy and less hatred and lust for revenge. There are so many here who give their hearts to be the soil in which the Prince of Darkness may plant the seeds of greed, envy, hatred, and all sorts of iniquity, and who permit the forthcoming fruits of such seeds to grow up to full maturity.

There are also those who open their hearts to faith, love and charity. But, being altogether too humanly weak, they very often do not cherish these virtues well enough. They grow, — but they grow slowly. Besides, many allow the seeds of the thorns of iniquity to strive in themselves on the same soil with the virtues, and the thorns grow up and choke them.

Therefore we have no right to look around for the one who is guilty of this war. We should rather come to ourselves and confess, "I have sinned against heaven and mankind." I have sinned by not letting the good seed of the Word of God grow up in my heart, but, instead, have permitted the evil seed of sin to suffocate the good seed of righteousness.

And now we cry out and pray, "God, stop that terrible war!" Did you ever come to think of the fact that God never stepped in to hurry events unnaturally?—He always allows things to develope naturally. He only directs developments along naturally given lines. Wars will be stopped as soon as there will be enough men and women willing to offer their hearts for the soil on which God may grow the good that overcomes evil.

Certainly, we are fervently praying that God might stop this war. But are we also willing to travel the road toward peace and serve as vessels for the good that overcomes evil? Are we willing to sacrifice our own greed, envy and hatred that love, charity, and faith may grow up in us instead?

Where, o where, did all those peace time pacifists go who have preached the Gospel of Peace when it was opportune to do so? Where are the courageous who even now would raise their voice for peace, while it is dangerous to do so?—Very few of them are left, and these few are being mistrusted and liable to be persecuted before long. The present world is like a great field of thistles and thorns. Everyone wants to see this war through and to reap something useful and good from it. But grapes cannot come from thistles, and all combatant nations will be the losers in this war, as they were in the last great war.

War is the admitted bankruptcy of mind and heart. We now try to solve by violence such problems which we are unable to solve by means of reason, faith and love. Where these have failed because of our luke-warmness and inconsistence, there violence will fail most certainly, and most miserably.

After the fighting front of the civil war in Russia had broken down, and the armed forces of the Whites had fled,—then it was left to the peacemakers to fight for the salvation and for the rebuilding of whatever life there was left by the bombs and shells of war. It was then that many a peaceful man who never had borne arms, had to face hords of armed bandits who came to the dwellings of the non-resistant to destroy and to kill. Life could be saved and preserved only thanks to the fact that such men without arms were able to subdue by their heart and mind the armed forces of evil.

How much more could the peace makers achieve if humanity would intrust to them the reigns of government before armed forces had left death and destruction in their footsteps, thus making the task of the builders of life difficult, by their murderous stupidity! The peace makers will reign with Christ Jesus when He comes in the clouds of heaven to crush the murderers of mankind by the sword of His mouth,—but not before the Antichrist has brought the world to the verge of definite ruin, "He who shall not regard any god: for he shall magnify himself above all, and in his estate shall he honor the God of forces (god of fortresses): and a god whom his fathers knew not shall he honor with gold, and silver, and with precious stones, and pleasant things."

God will let things develop naturally to the finish, and after men have proven to themselves their inability to build up life and happiness by their corrupt minds, and by their evil forces, God will step in and build up eternal life on the ruins which have been left by the godless violators of every Law of Nature which is the Law of God.

Then God shall break the yoke of our burden, and the staff of our shoulder, the rod of our oppressor, as in the day of Midian. And then the battle of the warrior with confused noise, and garments rolled in blood shall be for burning and fuel of fire.—And peace shall reign.

Are we among those who destroy and are being kept for destruction? Or are we the peace makers who are called the children of God, and the meek who shall inherit the earth?

War is one of the greatest plagues than can afflict humanity. It destroys religion, it destroys states, it destroys families. Any scourge, in fact is preferable to it. Famine and pestilence become as nothing in comparison with it.—Martin Luther.

TO THE MEMBERS OF OUR CHURCHES

As a loyal, live member of our Mennonite Church you are taking and reading one of our church papers, THE MENNONITE or CHRISTLICHER BUNDESBOTE. ARE YOUR REALLY? Our Conference is a great, big family of about 36,000 members. These papers go to their subscribers and their families every week, bringing them news from our mission fields, contributions from our conference boards, outlines of Sunday school lessons, short sermons, and many other interesting articles and items of information. They are a sort of conference visitors to each subscriber's family. Those that do not subscribe miss this visit and contact with the conference family and its interests, which means a distinct loss to them.

Assuming an average of four members to each Mennonite family, there would be about 9000 families in the Conference. Can you guess how many of them take one of the papers? Just about half or 4500. Is that the way it ought to be? Half of our Mennonite families practically ignorant of what is going on in our conference circle? In an effort to improve this condition, the Publication Board is offering some special inducement to interest new subscribers and to encourage old subscribers to advance their subscriptions. Following are some of them:

1. New subscribers may have either of the papers tor $1 for the year. For old subscribers the price is $1.50 per year.
2. All subscribers (new or old) who pay one year in advance receive a copy of the 1939 Year Book free as long as the supply lasts, and we have quite a few on hand yet. The Kalenders for 1939 are not available anymore, since the supply is exhausted.

3. In addition we give a copy of "Mennonite Articles of Faith" or the German counterpart "Die Glaubenslehre der Mennoniten oder Taufgesinnten" free to all who pay up their arrears and pay one year in advance from October, 1939. This book ordinarily sells for 40c per copy.

4. To all old subscribers who pay a year in advance from January we give the 1940 Kalender or Year Book. This is in addition to the book mentioned under No. 3. But to obtain this premium they must pay a full year in advance from January 1st, 1940."

The church paper is a necessity for united and effective work in the church and God's Kingdom.

Kindly send all subscriptions, new and renewals, and all remittances for them to:

BEVERAGE ALCOHOL AND SOCIAL PROGRESS

Micah 2:9-11; Luke 21:29-31; 1 Cor. 6:9-11

TOPIC: The Drag of Liquor Upon Social Progress

Introduction

In our last lesson we studied the fundamental principles of an ideal Christian life. Today we consider some of the destructive forces of this life. This life is, and must be, definitely separated from all forms of sensuality. The most powerful of all evil forces which undermines social progress is the beverage use of alcoholic drinks. From the days of Noah this has been a devastating force in human society.

A Warning to Israel vs 9-11

Israel's downfall was due to apostasy. The people turned away from God to their sinful desires (Is. 1:4-6; 5:1-7). God intended Israel to be a holy nation, but through sin the whole social life became decadent. Micah is denouncing the heartless aristocrats for their cruel treatment of womanhood and children (v9), an evidence of the depravity of the social life. Orphaned children were the worst sufferers. Today childen suffer the most because of the sin of alcoholic drink.

Punishment at the hand of God is inevitable (v10). The oppressors will be taken into captivity. The land which was given to them, will not be their home because they polluted it by their wickedness. They had sunk so low that they did not want true prophets but preferred false and lying ones (v11) who encouraged the use of strong drink and wine. How similar conditions are today, a look at the lying propaganda seen in advertisements of wine, beer, and whiskies in magazines, newspapers and on bill boards, will quicky reveal. Christian people will not listen to these deceiving advertisements.

Warning to the Christians vs. 34-36

Jesus is warning people against over-indulgence which corrupts the soul and unfits them for a pure spiritual relationship with Him (v34). People who love alcoholic drink can not be in holy communion with Christ, and will be taken "unawares" when the death summons comes. Constant watchfuness and readiness for this summons is a Christian duty. Life is a stewardship.

Warning to the Unsaved 1 Cor. 6:9-11

The kingdom of God is closed to those who persist in unrighteous and unclean living. Let no one deceive himself. It is certain that we must get rid of our unrighteousness. The power of the Spirit of Christ can cleanse of all unrighteousness.

The Drag of Liquor Upon Social Progress

True social progress seeks to give to each one the best opportunity for personal development and harmonious living with others. In the lives of many people, alcoholic drink is the greatest obstacle to this progress. The use of such drink definitely lowers the standard of this progress. The use of such drink definitely lower the standards of living for the large majority of users. Money spent for drink can not possibly be used for needed food, clothing and comforts for the home. Children are entitled to an attractive and spiritual home atmosphere. This is usually lacking in drinking homes, it can not be otherwise. Drinking promotes vice and immoral living. They are inseparable. Drink is prolific in causing crime. Social progress requires law observance and moral living. Drinking greatly hinders both. Alcoholic drink is an enemy of Christianity. The power of Christ can change the heart of the drinker, be he a heavy or a moderate drinker. When love for Christ fills the heart there is no room for liking for alcoholic drink in any form whatever. A conscientious Christian can not possibly indulge in the use of alcoholic drink or beverages of any kind.

Evangelize or Perish

by Harold D. Burkholder, Quakertown, Pa.

When speaking of evangelism or evangelizing, many of us at once think of the foreign field as being the only object in such work. Perhaps we have not become practical enough in our ministry. What we need to realize today as never before is, that evangelism in the church is the need of the hour, or we will perish as a church.

In going through various communities you will find that, in most cases, the church that is thriving in these "perilous times," is one that is not substituting current events for the Gospel. Many today seem to think that man needs something new, perhaps a New Theology; however, I am convinced that the Old Gospel Story is still the only remedy for sin. The character and life of Christ cannot be substituted for His shed blood. "For without the shedding of blood there is no remission of sin." The Gospel is still the "power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth." Unless we return to the first Century evangelistic fervor of Peter and Paul, we are far from what God would have us to be.

So often we find lack of interest in the Young People's or perhaps in other organizations. I believe definitely, that if evangelism were stressed more, and really put into practice, such difficulties would disappear. Have we failed to give our young people that which satisfies completely? Have we failed to stress the value of a lost soul? Have we failed to reach out for the lost souls in our communities, because we felt that we didn't want too many in our fellowship without a Mennonite heritage? Have we failed to give souls an opportunity to take a public stand for Christ.

Is your Church losing ground? Is your Sunday school losing interest? If it is, then perhaps a greater evangelistic program will solve the problem. Not giving people an opportunity to publicly take a stand for Christ, is to cripple the work of the Lord. WE MUST EVANGELIZE OR PERISH.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

THE MENNONITE PUBLICATION OFFICE OF NEWTON, KANSAS, is furnishing the programs for the sessions of the Western District Conference which convenes at Wichita, Kansas on October 18-19. This office and the Mennonite Book Concern of Berne, Indiana, have arranged for a book and periodical exhibit at the conference and will offer a wide range of books and other articles for sale. The exhibit will be in charge of Brother C. B. Friesen of Mt. Lake, Minnesota, and he will be authorized to sell books and receive subscriptions to all General Conference publications—J. M. Suderman.

THE BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE GENERAL CONFERENCE plans to have its annual meeting at Bluffton, Ohio, beginning, October 19, and continuing in the days following thereafter.

There are a number of important problems that the Board has been working on for some time which will come up for reconsideration, further study, and possibly a decision. May we ask that our congregations remember the Board and its work in their prayers during the time of its meeting.

Ed. G. Kaufman, President.

THE BUSINESS MEETING AND LUNCHEON OF THE WOMEN'S MISSIONARY SOCIETIES of the Western District Conference will be held in the First Methodist Church in Wichita at 12:00 (noon) October 18, 1939. All sisters are invited to attend both the business meeting and the luncheon, whether member of the local society or not.

Arrangements have been made so that those who do not wish to attend the luncheon can be accommodated. Those who plan to attend the luncheon, please get your tickets (35c) at the Forum from a member of the committee before 10:00 A. M. so that the ladies will know how many to prepare for.

Executive Committee.

A Statement from The World Conference of Christian Youth held at Amsterdam, Holland, July 27-August 2, 1939

EXTRACTS

We are fifteen hundred delegates from over seventy peoples. We are divided in national allegiance, we are separated by denominational and confessional barriers, we are members of different Christian organizations, we are drawn from every walk of life. And yet we are here together because we belong together as those who have one Calling. It is Christ who draws us together, and it is by Him that we have been held together these ten days.

We came in hope, believing in the power of Christ to be victorious over the things which separate us. He has not disappointed us.

As we have talked together we have become aware how often we have put our national loyalties before our allegiance to God. We have seen that when the Church becomes fully the fellowship of those who seek first the Kingdom of God, it is the hope of the world.

We believe that a truly just and ordered society will only be built by those who have surrendered their wills to God and who train and discipline themselves to live every day as members of a Christian community.

We affirm the task of the Church is to proclaim the truth as it is made known in Jesus Christ and experienced in the life of the Christian community, and to test all human systems and institutions in the light of this truth.

We pledge ourselves and those whom we represent to work for peace and justice in all social and international relationships. In war, conflict or persecution we must strengthen one another and preserve our Christian unity unbroken.

Characteristic of this time in which we meet is not only the fact of international tension and social unrest, but also the fact of a rising ecumenical consciousness. The nations and peoples of the world are drifting apart, the churches are coming together.

At this Conference we have not only discovered fellow Christians, but also fellow churches with our own. In common worship through the services of different traditions . . . . we have seen of each other's faith, shared in each other's riches, and understood together more deeply the fulness of the stature of Christ.

We believe that the different churches need each other. A great responsibility rests, therefore, on us to seek opportunity where we live for closer cooperation in work and for larger sharing in worship with our fellow Christians.

Many of us have been puzzled and distressed about our separation at the table of our Lord. While we rejoice that he has come to all of us through the Sacrament, we cannot believe that these divisions in the most central act of our worship must of necessity persist.

We believe that those who planned this Conference were guided by God when they placed Bible Study in such a central place. Many of us have discovered the Bible afresh . . . finding God a living God, declaring a living message for our own lives and our generation. We have come to see that the Bible has far more light to shed on the problems of youth than we knew, and so we desire to explore its wealth with far greater eagerness.

As we now return to our different lands and callings within the one Church of Christ . . . we realize that this world gathering marks the beginning of an ever widening task. We face this task realizing that in Christ is our strength. "The people who do know their God shall be strong and do exploits."

SOMETHING AMERICANS LEARNED AT AMSTERDAM

In America many people think that a conference is a failure unless it grinds out resolution after resolution. The Amsterdam meeting was a success as an educational gathering but a failure in a legisative sense.

The first thing Americans learned is that the distinction between "the American point of view" and "the European point of view," "American theology" and "European theology," "American attitude" and "European position" is really a false distinction so labelled, because there were representatives of both categories from each continent.

The second thing that some learned is that a Christian point of view is more important than a cultural one; that Americans and Europeans as Christians have something in common to contribute to all peoples, and this common contribution could be made just as well by some one from a different land.

The third thing Americans learned is that Europeans are not pessimistic as was expected to be the case, at least not because they are Europeans. On the contrary, it was a real jolt to recognize the pessimism characterizing many Americans in pointing dolefully at the evils of today or by an occasional forced display of lightheartedness. — An Indian observed:

"AMERICANS ARE NOT HAPPY, THEY LAUGH TOO MUCH."

A fourth thing Americans learned is to use the Bible. The usefulness of and the necessity for some sort of Bible study was clearly shown. The Bible was unequivocally affirmed as the touchstone for the interpretation of a Christian's experience, a dependable source of God's message to man.

Finally American youth learned that witnessing was "doing something about it." They had their opportunity to make platitudinous remarks about the hypocracy of merely talking, about "witness," but they learned that that did not deliver them from the constraint to witness in both word and deed.

If Amsterdam was a process of learning by doing, learning what ecumenism is by participation in it, Amsterdam was even more a process of teaching by being.—From Christian Century.

Our Youth Says

"A UNITED MENNONITE YOUTH IN CHRIST"

Sponsored by the Young People's Committee of the General Conference

Olin Krehbiel, Pres.
Lansdale, Pa.
William Juhnke,
Secretary
McPherson, Kans.

For minds that find new thoughts to think,
We thank thee, God, for eyes to see
The beauty of the earth;
For ears to hear warm words of love
Or happy sounds of mirth;
For minds that find new thoughts to think,
New wonders to explore,
For health and freedom to enjoy
The good thou hast in store.

Help us remember that to some
The eye and ear and mind
Bring sights and sounds of ugliness,
And only sadness find;
Help us remember that to them
The world has seemed unfair;
That through no effort of our own
Have we the larger share.

Oh may our eyes be open, Lord,
To see our neighbors' need,
And may our ears be kept alert,
Their cries for help to heed;
Make keen our minds to plan the best
For one another's good
That all the world shall be at last
One friendly neighborhood.

WAR

Senior C. E. Topic for Nov. 5, 1939

Armistice Sunday

Main Topic: Must we have war? James 3:13 - 4:2

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "Stand Up, Stand Up for Jesus," "Onward Christian Soldiers", " O Zion Haste, Thy Mission High Fulfilling."
2. Reading of main topic and prayer
3. Reading in unison of 1 Cor. 13.

II. Leader's Introduction

Jesus Christ our Master has given us a very definite word as to the way in which all wars between nations and all enmity between individuals may be ended, and that word is: "Love your enemies; do good to them that despitefully use you." The spirit which is to dwell within his followers is to be the spirit of the "Second Mile." Hate and jealousy fly out of the window when love and good will come in. It is impossible for these opposites to live together in the same place. We can not pray "Thy Kingdom come" and still go on hating one another.

Oftentimes people hate each other because they lack understanding and knowledge of each other. Friendship projects between nations, such as sending dolls to Japan, or the interchange of students between colleges of different countries, or the writing of letters, or radio programs given by children of one country for those of another country help to build up friendship and sympathy between nations.

But the most important thing will always be having the love of Christ in our hearts. That will hold in times of testing, and will be the only power strong enough to win in the fight against war.

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks:

1. War is born of deceit. Prov. 12:17-22.
2. Desolations attending war. Mk. 13:7-13.
3. War is Hell. 1 Sam. 31:1-10.
4. The promise of Peace. Isaiah 2:1-5.
5. Admonition to pursue Peace. Rom. 14:16-19.

IV. Facts for Study

Those who refuse to go to war because they believe that war is sin may have to pay a price for their conviction.

According to an official report issued in Berlin on September 16, August Dickman of Dinslaken, Germany, had just been shot by a firing squad on charges of refusing to go to the front. The brief report which appeared with other war news in American newspapers, labeled the condemned man, "Germany's first conscientious objector to be executed."

Dr. E. L. Harshbarger of Bethel College writes in the "Fellowship":

"In 1937 and again this summer I witnessed coming of the second World War. I was on the high seas when war was declared. Everywhere among the European peoples one found an ardent desire for peace; but one also found an aimless, blind fatalism which was willing to accept whatever governments may decide. Europe seems totally devoid of statesmen who see beyond mere power politics to the welfare of all mankind. Selfishness and pride of the Allies of the last war prevented the effective functioning of the peace machinery which arose out of that war. Resultant fear and economic adversity destroyed all hope of lasting peace. Hitlerism raised its destructive head in retaliation. Then armaments, crises, finally, war followed. The one vital thing lacking was a dynamic will to peace.

A few weeks ago I disembarked at New York. I found that Americans also wish to stay out of war, but already hysteria is sweeping the country. Already we hear people saying, "I hope we can stay out," while others fatalistically reply, "Yes, but I don't suppose it will be long before we are in it again." Americans are talking themselves toward war. We are more excitable than Europeans; but like them, we lack a dynamic will to peace. . . . The most powerful dynamic known to man is a sensitive Christian conscience, both personal and national, which will give us a dynamic will to peace; it will turn hatred to love; it will unite Americans and keep them out of war; it will restore peace and confidence among the nations."

All C. E. workers who wish to make their lives count for peace should read and re-read the Beatitudes, "Blessed are the peace-makers, for they shall be called children of God;" and "Blessed are the meek for they shall inherit the earth." These verses suggest the method of love and the aim the making of peace. To keep faith in this method read and re-read 1 Cor. 13.

V. For Discussion:

1. What kind of work will the making of peace require?
2. Should Christians try to influence Congressmen and the President to keep us out of war, and to work for peace in Europe?
3. By what methods could we work for peace in Europe?
4. Will prayer have any effect on war?

Courage for Important Service

When President Mary E. Wooley of Mount Holyoke College was appointed to represent this country in the world disarmament conference at Geneva, she accepted it as a divine call to service. Huge petitions, begging for disarmament and signed by millions of women were brought to her. The men delegates at first refused to admit the petitions, but Miss Wooley appealed to the spirit of chivalry and fair play, and won the day. The women of the world were heard as they spoke in many languages the same elequent message: "WE MUST HAVE PEACE."

"I Am Counting on Them"

In one of his books, S. D. Gordon imagines a conversation between Christ and the Angel Gabriel, soon after the ascension. Gabriel says, "Master, you died for the whole world, did you not?" "Yes." "You must have suffered very much." "Aye, Gabriel, I cannot talk about that even to you; it goes too deep." "And do they all know about it down there?" "Oh, no, just a little handful in Syria know about it thus far." "Well, Master, what plan have you made to tell the world that you died for them?" The master is supposed to reply, "I asked Peter and James and John and some more of them down there just to go out and make it the business of their lives to tell the others. And the others are to tell others, and the others yet others, and still others beyond, till the last man in the furtherest reach has heard the story, and has been caught, thrilled and enthralled by the power of it."

Gabriel looks as if he could see difficulty in the Master's plan and he says: "Yes, but Master, suppose that after awhile Peter forgets. Suppose John loses his enthusiasm and simply doesn't tell the others. Suppose their successors away down there in the twentieth century get so busy that they do not tell the others; what then?"

"Gabriel, I haven't made any other plans," answers the quiet voice of the Lord Jesus, "I am counting on them."

VII. Food for Thought:

Peace will not come as the result of an idle dream but by prayer plus hard work and sacrifice.

Activties Among Y. P. Societies In The Eastern District

The new C. E. STANDARDS have made their appearance in some of our Society Meetings. They should serve as a guide to our young folks in preparing their programs.

Among it's many and varied activities, Schwenksville, C. E. has conducted a song service or other delightful program for the guests of our Old Folks Home at Fredrick, once a month. Recently the Young People of Grace Church, Lansdale, also conducted devotional Services there and then remained to fellowship with the guests by eating the evening meal with them.

President of the Y. P. Union, DeWitt Temple, has been busy visiting the various Societies and stressing our projects and aims. He reports that the Annual Fall Rally is to be held at Bethany Church, Quakertown, on October 29th, with Rev. Enoch Moore, Doylestown, as speaker. Plans are also under way to investigate the possibilities of sponsoring a Radio broadcast by our Young People.

Grace Livingstone Hill, well known author and evangelist, will be the speaker at the annual banquet of the First Church C. E. Phila., on November 4th. Several years ago, the speaker was one of our Retreat Leaders.

Members also conducted evangelistic services at home as a service activity.

Many of our young folks attended the peace meeting at Souderton, on Sept. 9th, addressed by Dr. Emmett Harshbarger, of Bethel College, who had just returned from Europe a few days earlier. An all-union social scheduled for that evening at Lansdale has been postponed until October 14th at the same place.

Rev. Willard Claassen, formerly of Newton, Kansas, addressed the Eastern District S. S. Convention at Zionsville Church recently, and also spent some time visiting his former school-mate, Rev. Olin Krehbiel; He spoke at Grace Church and Sunday School the following day.

Mr. Wilbur Lauer, graduate of Bluffton College, and an active member of First Phila., C. E., has taken up graduate work at the University of Chicago.

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

HOW SHALL WE WORK TO END WAR?

Intermediate C. E. Topic, Nov. 5, 1939

For Daily Reading:

Oct. 30. Causes of strife. James 3:13-4:2.
Oct. 31. Put away race prejudice. Acts 8:5-8, 14-17, 25.
Nov. 1. Faithfulness in covenants. Ezek. 17:11-21.
Nov. 2. Peace under Jehosohphat. 2 Chron. 17:3-12.
Nov. 3. Be at peace with all. Rom. 12:17-21.
Nov. 4. The promised peace. Mic. 4:1-5.
Nov. 5. Topic. How shall we work to end war? Luke 6:27-35. (Armistice Sunday)

Call to Worship. "God helping me, in my whole life everywhere, I will be Christian. At whatever cost, I choose Christ."

Opening Song, "Christ For the World We Sing"

Scripture Reading, Luke 6:27-45

Prayer by Superintendent

Song, "Open My Eyes, That I May See"

Introduction by Leader:

From the Address by Dr. Poling "We Choose Christ" we quote the following significant sentence, "The Christian Endeavor movement, which joins many others in calling youth to accept and follow Jesus Christ, recognizes the freedom of individual choice that is at once the glory of the free citizen and both the duty and the privilege of the individual Christian."

As citizens in America we are given great liberties. We have a right to express individual opinions. But we also have a duty in that it is up to us to form wise opinions, opinions which are arrived at after we have studied a problem. Today we want to consider this topic wisely so that we may form wise opinions.

Let us first of all think of the stand which our church takes in regard to war. Our Minister will tell us about that later in the program.

Hymn, "Peace, Perfect Peace"

Discussion:

1. What is war? Is war ever effective in solving problems?

2. Read Ex. 20:13 and Matt. 5:43-48. If we believe those verses can we believe in war?

3. Who is in the position to lead to the abolition of war? Is it not the Christian church that must lead the opposition?

4. Is it enough to argue against war?

5. Should we support the leaders who are trying to make peace permanent?

6. Don't you think it would be fine to ask your minister or superintendent to help you study the causes of war?

7. Should we not recognize the fact that natural resources, territory and privileges must be shared if we are to escape another war? Do you think the world will ever understand or be willing to do it?

8. When should we let our opinions be heard in regard to policies of our nation? When Congress is about to pass a huge army and navy bill then it is the time for us to be heard. Don't wait until after the bill is passed. In order to act at the proper time we must read the newspapers, weekly magazines, discuss the issues when they are hot and inform our Congressmen of our opinion before the votes are taken. It would be well to follow this with a letter of appreciation when our Congressman has done something of which we approve.

Talk by the Minister on what the attitude of our own church is toward war?

Reports on the following magazine articles. (If you have these articles available ask several of your members to read them and report at this meeting.)

1. Siren Song of War, by Janet Mabie—Christian Herald, Jan. 1939.

2. The Impossible Next War, by Roger Burlingame—Scribner, Apr. 1936

3. Billions for "Defense"—Forum, Apr. 1936

4. Some Ways to Escape War—Review of Reviews, Apr. 1936

Song, "Serve the Lord in Youth"

Report on present conditions in the world. (Ask several members a week previous to the meeting to closely observe world conditions and report at this meeting.)

Suggestions for peace projects:

1. Plan peace meetings to discuss causes and cures of war.

2. Plan peace meetings during which your minister will lead you in forming strong and proper Christian convictions. A fine study book to follow would be "Christian Peace" by Rev. Ernest Bohn of Souderton, Pa.

3. Start a peace library.
4. Present a peace play.
5. Have a peace poster contest and have the posters displayed in prominent places.
6. Plan a peace Rally.
7. Plan an International Tea or a meeting with as many nationalities represented as there are in your community.

Read Eph. 6:10-18 in closing and follow it with a period of silent meditation.

Close with the Lord's Prayer.

(While the Intermediates are leaving have the pianist play "Onward, Christian Soldiers")

Program for November 5, 1939

IT IS A GOOD THING TO GIVE THANKS UNTO THE LORD — Psalm 02:1

"AT ALL TIMES" — Psalm 34:1.

I. Worship Period

1. Instrumental Prelude
2. Call to worship by leader: 1 Chron. 16:8-9. "Give thanks unto the Lord, call upon His name, make known His deeds among the people. Sing unto Him, sing psalms unto Him, talk ye of His wondrous works."
3. Song: "Praise Him, Praise Him!"
4. Scripture: Isaiah 12 by an older Junior boy.
5. Leader's prayer
6. Song, "O Worship the King" v. 1, 2, 3, 4.
7. In unison, verse of the month.

II. Study Period. Aim: To lead our Juniors into "Thanksgiving."

1. An older person may tell the story of the "Feast of Tabernacles." References Ex. 23:16; Lev. 23:34-43; Deut. 16:13-15; Num. 29:12, 38; Neh. 8:14-18, John 7:2, 37.
2. Two minute talk by a Junior on "We Should Have a Special Day of Thanksgiving", a day of remembrance. Ps. 95:1-2.
3. Three Juniors discuss: (a) We should give thanks every day. Ps. 145:2. (b) We should give thanks in the morning. Ps. 92:2. (c) We should give thanks all the day. Ps. 145:1; Ps. 34:1.
4. Solo, "We Thank Thee, O Our Father"
5. Story of Jesus feeding the five thansand told by a Junior girl.
6. Memorize a table prayer.

III. Mission Minutes

1. Read portions of letters found in either "The Mennonite" or the "Missionary News and Notes". Our missionaries write very interesting letters.
2. Draw especial attention to the appeal by Rev. and Mrs. H. J. Brown of China found in "The Mennonite" of October 10.

Leader's closing prayer
Doxology

IN MEMORIAM

JOHN W. GRABER, son of Jacob and Frances (Widmer) Graber, was born, October 27 1865, at Soulce, department Daubs, France.

Heeding the admonition "Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth," he made his confession of faith early in life and was baptized at Blamont, France.

In 1880 he migrated to America, settled in the South Wayland community and was received into the membership of the Sugar Creek Mennonite Church. In 1916 he was transferred to the Eicher Emmanuel church, of which he remained a loyal and faithful member until his departure from this life. We shall gratefully remember him for his testimony and faith in the saving power of Jesus Christ, and for his friendly Christian spirit and patient suffering which were evidenced to all those who visited him during the days of physical suffering, and during that time he often expressed his desire to be with his Lord and Savior. On August 15, 1939, he was called to his eternal abode.

He was united in marriage to Emma Eicher, Dec. 21, 1893, by the Rev. Sebastian Gereg. Three sons were born to this union, Earl, Henry and Lee.

He leaves to mourn his passnig, his wife Emma, three sons, Earl and Henry of this community and Lee of Denver, Colorado, one brother and four grandchildren. —Mrs. D. E. W. Corr.

The War That Nobody Wants

Under this caption Lord Beaverbrook has published, in his London Evening Standard, an article that probably carries enough truth to warrant publication of an outline in this paper.—Both sides ask: What kind of a war is this? Senator Borah says: There is something phoney about this war and Henry Ford agrees. In an effort to explain to the nation the lack of action, the English government has sent out a series of radio and newspaper addresses, the essence of which is: The Allies have everything to lose and nothing to gain from a direct attack on Germany.—Herr Goering has told the German people that they are living in a fortress and the surest and least costly way to win an Allied victory is just to settle down to a siege. —The British and French militarists tell their people that the Allies cannot win a short war and Germany cannot win a long war. The British fleet and the French Maginot line will eventually starve Germany into surrender.—Hitler does not want war. He thought he would win his demands without fighting until he had gone too far, now he evidently wants peace, to further which three major suggestions have already been made: 1. Goering in his speech to the armament workers said, France has nothing to fear from Germany, and Britain could not win the war with her naval blockade. 2. At Danzig Hitler vouched a desire for lasting peace and asserted the absence of any real war aim by France and England. 3. Mussolini has counseled: Accept the situation of Poland as a fact and stop the war now.—Germany in the west has her arm raised, but is reluctant to strike hard, the alliance with Russia does not look like gain. The Allies are just as hesitant. They did nothing to save Poland and British planes are still scattering pamphlets, telling the German people that the Allies have no quarrel with them, thus attempting to incite them to a revolution.—Go to war to rid the world of Hitlerism? What kind of a peace would that lead to? Restore Poland, Czechoslovakia, Ukrania and chart a new map of Europe, and another Versailles settlement? What will America do? All are watching her. Summarizing: Both sides hesitate. The governments have not yet discovered a reason for the war commensurate with the horrors of bloodshed and devastation that it would cause. (So far the article). Europe has sinned terribly with its continual warfare, murder and injustice. In Old Testament history God had to punish nations for such sins. May we hope and pray that Europe's time has not yet come, but rather that God in his mercy will lead the nations to repentance and a realization of the eternal truth that "righteousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people."—Culled from Christian Century.

If Christians and nations were nations of Christians instead of half pagan, there would be no wars.

CORRESPONDENCE

—BETHEL COLLEGE CH., NORTH NEWTON, Kans.,—With the fall of the year comes renewed activity for all of us, as individuals and as a church. Again we take renewed interest in all of the efforts to make all the organizations of the church, and of social welfare function more perfectly. It is a challenge to all of us to respond more willingly to the urgings of the Spirit within us to live more holy lives and to be more active in well doing.

The Bethel College Church was, at least, an interested by-stander in the inspiring meetings sponsored during Religious Emphasis Week by the Student Christian Movement, October 5-8, during which time Rev. Erland Waltner, of the Second Mennonite Church of Philadelphia, presented lectures and discussion hours both mornings and evenings.

With the turn of the quarter the new Upper Room boklets for family and individual morning devotions were made available, and a large supply at the low cost of five cents per copy, was quickly exhausted. The revival of the family devotional hour is a definite sign of the deepening interest on the part of the layman in spiritual matters. Many members of this church would, we feel sure, recommend it highly as a good suggestion for any church to make these booklets available also to their members.

The presence of Missionary Voth's in our midst is a blessing to all of us. Like all their fellow workers, the emanate love and goodwill whereever they go.

EICHER EMMANUEL MENN. CH., NOBLE, IA.

During the week of Sept. 24 to October 1, special evangelistic meetings were held at this church, with Dr. Arnold C. Schultz, instructor of Bible at Bluffton College, as speaker.

The first Sunday was observed as the annual harvest and mission festival, with the morning services as a service of thanksgiving. The afternoon meeting was in charge of the Women's Mission Society which gave a mission program.—During the noon hour a bountiful meal was served as a basket dinner.

Each evening the folk showed their appreciation to Brother Schultz for his messages by their attendance and attention and we feel that it was a week of spiritual feasting.

—"The Beneficent Reprobate," an educational temperance film is to be shown under the auspices of the Christian Temperance Union at Berne, Ind. This town and community are strongly for Temperance. This movie is said to be a scientifically accurate treatise on the uses and effects of alcohol in industry and in relation to the central nervous system of the human body.—Berne Witness.

IN MEMORIAM

MARY EGER SCHMIDT was born August 16, 1849. in Tafelhof, Bavaria, Germany, and passed away at her home in Moundridge Sept. 8, 1939, at the age of 90 years and 23 days.

When three years old, she came with her parents to America, settling in Franklin, Lee County, Iowa. Here she grew to young womanhood and became a member of the Prairie Mennonite Church. On Mar. 3, 1867, she was united in marriage with Jacob H. Schmidt and with him went to Summerfield, Ill. In the fall of 1867 they, in company with others came to Kansas, lived as farmers near Moundridge, and became members of the Christian Mennonite Church.

In the fall of 1900 they moved to Deer Creek, Okla., where they lived for ten years, then again returned to Kansas and built the home in which she spent the remainder of her life. Here they put their membership into the West Zion Mennonite Church. Her husband passed away 21 years ago. Since 1911 Mrs. Schmidt had suffered numerous strokes of apoplexy and for the last few years she could not attend public gatherings, especially missing those of the church.

Four children preceded her in death, an infant son, Magdalene, at the age of 11; Emma, Mrs. Oswin Lehman of Berne, Ind., and Arthur of Hinton, Okla. She leaves to mourn her departure, her children: Mrs. P. B. Krehbiel, Washington, D. C., Mrs. Adam Luginbill, La Grange, Ind.; Mrs. O. D. Beutler, Meade, Kans.; Mrs. H. P. Smith, Hinton, Okla.; Ed. H. of Sontag, Miss., Dora Z. of Monterey, Mexico, Anna, Minnie and Susie of the home, and a large number of other relatives and friends.

PAUL M. GRABER, son of Jacob J. and Anna J. Graber, was born at Freeman, South Dakota, January 23, 1889. In 1898 he moved with his parents to North Dakota, where he spent his youth on father's farm. In 1900 he accepted the Lord Jesus as his personal Savior, was baptized by Elder Christian Kaufman and received into the Swiss Mennonite Church. From 1910 he worked some years in a store at Alsen. —On June 2nd, 1925, he was married to Katie Rohn. This union was blessed with four children. The last five years the family lived on a farm.—Since some folks from Alsen moved to Warroad, he took the opportunity to go along, to see the land there, Sept. 15. But on the way there, on a slippery road after a heavy rain his pick-up, with trailer attached, slid down a five foot embankment. He was thrown out and landed under a wheel, so that the whole load rested on him, excepting that the roof resting against the other embankment gave some relief. He lived yet from Friday until Sunday morning. The Lord heard his prayer as he lay beneath the truck, and the prayers of his wife and friends that they found him alive, so that he might tell them he was ready to die. —He was one of the quiet people, but recently he gave proof that he stood on solid ground.—His age was 50 years, 7 months and 25 days, was married 14 years, and leaves his wife, 4 sons, his parents and parents-in-law, 2 brothers, one sister, 5 brothers- and 7 sisters-in-law to mourn his passing, all of whom are thankful that he left the testimony, he was going to be with Jesus. He earnestly admonished the children to give their hearts to Jesus, to attend church and Sunday school regularly. The funeral was held Sept. 21, at Alsen, preceded by a short service at the home. Rev. H. Ortman spoke on 2 Cor. 5:1-10, the pastor, Rev. Ed. Duerksen, on John 11:25, Mark 16:16, and Rev. Fadenrecht on 1 Sam. 20:13.

MRS. IDA LAW AUGSPURGER, daughter of John and Sarah Trine Law, was born July 11, 1860, at Trenton, Ohio. On March 2, 1879 she married Henry Augspurger, and to this union the only child Harry Augspurger, was born.

Mrs. Augspurger lived in Trenton until a month before her death, when due to illness she was taken to the home of her son where she departed this earthly life, September 8, 1939, having reached the age of 79 years, 1 month and 29 days.

She leaves her son Harry, three grand-children, one great-grandchild, one sister, and two brothers.

Rev. J. E. Amstutz conducted the funeral services at the home of her son.

MRS. DANIEL F. ZIEGLER.—The death of Emma (Anglemoyer) Ziegler came after many years of suffering from heart disease. Mrs. Ziegler was born October 22, 1868, and passed away Aug. 30, 1939, aged 70 years, 10 months and 8 days. Beside her husband she is survived by 2 daughters, Mrs. Reed Landis, and Mrs. Edwin Wallis, and one son, Russel, 1 sister and 1 brother. Mrs. Ziegler was a splendid example of Christian womanhood and motherhood in our congregation.

We commit her beloved husband and her daughters and son to the care and love of our Heavenly Father.

—SALEM MENN. CHURCH, DALTON, OHIO.—Our best wishes for a successful and pleasant year of study are extended to our young people who will be in college this year: June Breneman, Wooster; Rose Marie Amstutz, Teacher's College at Milwaukee, Wisconsin; Ward and Ralph Hofstetter, Ohio State; Murray Gerber, Bluffton; Irene Zuercher, Business College, Sandusky. (Are there others?)

—St. John Church, Pandora, Ohio.—The Women's Missionary Society is sponsoring a shower of staple groceries and canned goods for the Missionary Thiessen family.—The parsonage has been equipped with a bathroom and furnace and the pastor and family have moved in recently. They greatly appreciate this home and the members are cordially invited to call and view it.

—From the Mennonite Church, Albany, Oregon: "Finding it physically impossible to continue his work in the ministry in our church under the handicap of secular work necessary to supplement his allowance, our pastor, Rev. William R. Augsburger, found it necessary to submit his resignation to the church on Sunday, Oct. 8, after five years of faithful service for the Lord here in Albany, Ore. Resignation effective April 1, 1940."—Corr.

—Rev. Erland Waltner of the Second Mennonite Church, Philadelphia, did an outstanding and blessed piece of work as speaker during Religious Emphasis Week, Oct. 3-6, at Bethel College. He spoke at chapel time in the morning and also in the evening. The topics and themes he presented were as follows: Personal Need — "What Lack I Yet", "Far Away From Home." Personal Faith—"Credo", "No Neutrality," Personal Consecration—"Life with a Focus", "Excess Baggage". Personal Growth—"Life's Upper Room," "Scaling the Heights."—Only twenty five years of age, he speaks with a knowledge, understanding and freedom that give force to his messages which are brief, simple and to the point. His work was thoroughly appreciated.

—News From Bro. H. A. Fast, our field secretary.—He finds himself badly handicapped because of ignorance of the language in the countries he is visiting. Though all the Mennonites in Brazil and Paraguay are very friendly and helpful, he mentions two that have been of immeasurable help to him, Peter Klaassen, of the Bruecke, now discontinued, in Brazil, and Franz Heinricks of Asuncion, Para. "The presence of an official representative of the Conference," he says, "produced exactly the result desired. It has made them feel the bond of fellowship, and they grip eagerly and warmly the hand of love and greeting which the Conference in this way tries to extend." The Krauel group desires to extend greetings with II Chron. 15:7, the Kirchliche group with Rom. 15:13. — August 13th the Kirchliche group had baptismal service and asked Bro. Fast to officiate. He consented and, in the presence of a congregation overflowing the beautifully decorated church, he baptised 15 young people. The audience here and in other large gatherings, where he has spoken was composed of Kirchliche and Bruedergemeinde folks who work together in a truly fine spirit of brotherly love.—The weather down there is very changeable. Some days it is oppressively hot, on others cool enough for the coat and even a light overcoat.—Economically the people are generally poor, but those who are well manage to get along. The Krauel has been suffering from the ravages of some pests, besides the hoof and mouth disease among the cattle. This year low prices are a handicap. In that settlement they have a factory where they make starch from "Aipim", a tuber which they raise exclusively. They also raise corn on hills so steep where the planters slide down and only heavy hoes, called "Kabin" can be used.

—Parent-Student Day at Bethel College turned out to be the real thing. Favored with fair autumn weather the students' parents and friends turned out in large numbers and crowded the chapel during the program. The speakers did splendidly. Miss Gladys V. Graber of Freeman, S. D. made a splendid talk for the students. Speaking without notes she pleased the audience all the more. Mrs. Addie Claassen, representing the parents, as usual said things much worth while and said them well. President E. G. Kaufman in his address showed what a serious thing the education of college young people is and how necessary it is for parents and faculty to work together in this work.

—WEDDING at First Church, Philadelphia, Pa.—Miss Christina Grede and Mr. W. Earl Money were united in marriage in this church by Rev. J. J. Plenert. Attendants: Miss Leila Young of Philadelphia and Mr. William Kulp of Newark.

—HILLSBORO, KANSAS, Oct. 10, 1939.—Missionary P. W. Penners arrived at Hillsboro Saturday, Oct. 7 forenoon. On Sunday morning the Bruderthal congregation, their home church, had arranged for a "Welcome home" program which was followed by a fellowship dinner in the church basement. In the afternoon we again met in the church auditorium for another program of music and very interesting reports from Rev. and Mrs. Penner. On Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 10, the "Naehverein and the Mary Martha Circle had a joint meeting at which Mrs. Penner told us more of their work. A grocery shower for the Penners followed. They have an apartment in the Gerhard D. Ewert home in Hillsboro, where they will make their abode for the present. We are all grateful to the heavenly Father to see the Penners so well and hearty.—Mrs. H. R. Nickel.

—Mennonite Hospitals Growing.—The Bluffton, Ohio, Community hospital is a new and enlarged institution. The Bethel Hospital, Newton, Kans., has just completed a building extension program with a clinic as an important addition. And now the "Christian Evangel" reports that their hospital at Bloomington, Ill., is overcrowded, due to the reputation which the institution enjoys. So they are considering an extension program, in the near future, which would add forty patient rooms, provide extra surgical space, and include a standard nurses' home for sixty student nurses. How good God is that he puts it in the heart of our people to concentrate their efforts on the work of healing and succoring the sick and disabled, both physically and spiritually, and thus follow in the footsteps of the Master.

—Special Services at Bethel Hospital, Mt. Lake, Minn. Sunday, Oct. 8, this hospital held its annual meetings of thanksgiving. The afternoon program was in German, with Rev. H. P. Schultz of Langham, Sask. as speaker and special music by the Delft Men's Chorus and the Hospital Sisters. The evening program was in English, with Rev. Bernard Brown of the Carson M. B. Church as speaker, while the Messionary Alliance Choir and a quartet from First Menn. Church of Butterfield rendered special music. The offerings received went to the Hospital.

—The Men's Chorus of the Berne Mennonite Church had the honor, recently, to sing at a program in Detroit, Mich., where the aged Governor Dickinson of Michigan was the main speaker. The choir sang in one of the large city churches in the forenoon, in the afternoon and evening at Rev. D. C. Stucky's Rescue Mission. The governor spoke in the Mission in the afternoon and the famous radio evangelist, Dr. Savage in the evening.

"The one concern of the devil is to keep the saints from praying. He fears nothing from prayerless studies, prayerless work, prayerless religion! He laughs at our toil, he mocks at our wisdom, but trembles when we pray."—Samuel Chadwick.

A Call for Clothing

And it shall come to pass, that before they call, I will answer; and while they are yet speaking, I will hear. Isah 65,24.

Since 1923 I have asked again and again for help for our needy in the way of clothing etc.

But I had made up my mind that as soon as we would have a crop, I would not ask for second hand clothing again. Now this year we had a crop even in the southern part of our province, but in spite of this there seems to be as much need of help as in former years. As a result I came in conflict with my resolution not to ask for help again.

But lately I read in the "Herold" that the Relief Committee in Newton was again at work collecting clothes for Canada and I must say that I felt real relief when I read this notice. I would herewith extend our heartfelt thanks to all the members of the Relief Committee and to all those who are ready to participate in this work. We have also heard from other places where shipments of clothing are again being prepared for us.

In order to explain that there will be need of clothes even this year, I would point to the many crop failures, especially in our province of Saskatchewan and also to some extent in Manitoba and Alberta.

In order to show that many of the farmers will derive very little for their own personal use out of any of their crops, I will have to make an explanation. Toward spring of this year very many of our farmers had no seed grain and the Government supplied them with wheat at $1.50 per bushel. Now this year our Government has fixed the price of wheat at 70 cents per bushel Fort William, that means about 50 cents per bushel here, in Alberta even less than that. This means that they will have to sell three bushels in order to pay for one bushel which they received for seed. With regard to oats and barley the proportion is similar.

Now with our farmers in Manitoba and Saskatchewan the yield is about the same, about 15-20 bushels per acre. Most of them have bought their land on a half-crop payment plan which was changed by our Government making it a one-third payment plan. Other debts have accumulated and the regulations this year are that the seed grain they received has to be paid, also the arrears of taxes for one year at least, as well as hospital and doctor's accounts before they can have one bushel for their own use. By these regulations on the part of our Government many of our farmers after paying all that is required will not have one bushel for their own use.

These circumstances put us in a very precarious position. There was that selfimposed resolution—not to ask for clothing again as soon as we had a crop. And then we had so many letters and personal pleadings for clothes.

I hope our kind friends in the United States will understand our situation and I hope you will prove also this year that you have not yet become weary of well-doing. I trust it will be possible for you to help us with clothes again this year.

Rosthern, Sask., Oct. 12, 1939. Yours very sincerely,
David Toews

"Forgive Us Our Debts"

The words, "as we forgive our debtors," in the Lord's prayer is the acid test by which to determine the sincerity of the prayer on the part of him who utters it.

Prayer for forgiveness is not something superficial, and as easy as a wave of the hand.

In common life to forgive an injury is to take the blow ourselves instead of him to whom the penalty is due. If a man is indebted to me and he seeks my forgiveness, and I forgive, then I suffer the injury instead of him who deserves to be punished.

When society forgives the wrongdoer, society has suffered before it forgives. Somehow an atonement must first be made. There is no such thing as mere forgiveness. Sacrificial suffering is a fundamental fact between man and his fellowmen, between man and society, and between man and God.

In the case of man's salvation, the forgiveness of sin and eternal life, God received the blow in the death of Jesus on the cross. He died for us. Unless man comes to an appreciation of this fact he cannot be forgiven. Unless we are really to suffer for our fellow men, as Christ suffered for us, there is no forgiveness for us with the Father. It is evidence that we are not His child.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

BRIEF REPORT OF THE LAST FOREIGN MISSION CONFERENCE OF N. A.

by Howard G. Nyce

Dear Mission Friends:

As a result of the motion passed by your Foreign Mission Board at its annual meeting last February, I attended the Foreign Missions Conference of North America last June on the beautiful campus of the Friends School (Swarthmore College), Swarthmore, Pennsylvania.

There were close to two hundred people present, representing the majority of Mission Boards of the United States and Canada. In this group were a number of Missionaries on furlough as well as some fifty who were leaving for various parts of the world as new recruits. A number sailed the following week.

In Plenary sessions we discussed the reports of five commissions, namely, 1. The Life-Giving Church; 2. The Maintainance and Sustenance of the Church's Life; 3. Missionaries and Ministers (Leadership); 4. World Tensions and 5. Cooperation. Later these reports were referred to Area groups of which there are seven. namely, 1. Africa; 2. Far East; 3. Home Base (The Church and Boards in the homeland): 4. India; 5. Latin America; 6. Moslem Lands and, 7. The Philippines and East Indies. I was a member of the India group.

This was the third Foreign Missions Conference that I attended representing the Board and by far the best. The spirit of the conference was exceptionally fine and we attribute this to the fact that we met in the Friends school. The note was clearly evangelical although there were some that did not necessarily agree with this group. I might add that the other two I attended were not evangelical and so naturally I enjoyed this one much better. Occasionally a motion was proposed by the (shall I say altogether too progressive group) and with but a few exceptions their motions were lost.

One Missionary suggested that the Boards should be more careful in the selection of new missionaries. He continued, "They should be men and women, well qualified first of all, for this to be sure is important. But they should have a spiritual experience. Young people who will not come to us with the idea of turning the world upside down with social and economical answers to the world's problems, but who have a passion for souls." By the nodding of heads you could see a great number of furlough missionaries who agreed.

A great deal of emphasis was put on the work of the medical missionaries. The following statement was made by one of the men, "We, as Boards, should encourage our Medical missionaries to reveal the compassionate spirit of the Master." He continued by saying, "It is true that in America, especially in our Municipal hospitals, we do not find the spirit of Christ manifested, but we should encourage and urge that this spirit be found in the younger churches (Mission field Churches). I immediately thought of our own doctors and nurses in India and China and bowing my head could say, "Thank God for consecrated workers." I would like to add, this refers not only to our medical missionaries but to our entire group, whether they be in India, China or on the American Indian field. We have a group of men and women for whom we can praise God because of a sacrificial service for our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

Dr. John R. Mott made a startling statement when he said, "Not 30% of the church membership of America gives anything to missions." As you read this statement, ask yourself whether you are doing what you should. How much more could be done if the Board would receive larger contributions.

The entire Conference was a rehearsing of Madras. The plenary sessions and the Area group sessions were both very helpful and inspirational. While our Conference may not be so large, we are nevertheless a part of a great body that is interested in the same thing, namely, the salvation of souls in all parts of the world.

The Intermediate S. S. Quarterly

Soon the Intermediate Sunday School Quarterly will enter the second year of service. Many Sunday schools have found it practical and helpful and plan to use it next year. The number of orders has increased every quarter. But there is much room for improvement, and so for the year 1940 some changes will be made in the quarterly.

1. The division editors will have only children of the age of 9-12 in mind while they write their contributions.

2. The "work book" page will be written by Dr. Schellenberg and will be expanded.

3. The "Discussion" will be dropped altogether.

4. Instead of discussing the text verse by verse, a general interpretation and application will be introduced.

5. A "Dictionary" will give teachers and pupils the necessary explanations of difficult words and phrases.

6. The space for Bible reference will be limited more and the number of practical illustration will be increased.

Preparations for the first issue of 1940 are well under way and we hope and pray that the Lord, our great master teacher, will direct our efforts and bless our Sunday Schools.

The Place Of The Sunday School In The Work Of The Church

Paper read by Miss Emma Vansworth

at the Sunday School Union in the Upper Milford Mennonite Church

Nehemiah 4:6—"So built we the wall; and all the wall was joined together unto the half thereof: for the people had a mind to work.

The objectives of the Sunday School are: a. Educational, b. Evangelistic, c. Spiritual. All have their place in the work of the Church. Educational cannot be eliminated from the spiritual.

Seventy-five per cent of the members of the Christian Church come from our Sunday Schools. It is high time we do something to stop the appalling losses we are experiencing today. For the past seven years there has been a gradual decline in the attendance of the Sunday School throughout the world. The figures, if closely examined, show an alarming decrease of nearly twenty per cent. This is due in large part to the lack of a worthwhile program of worship and teaching.

The statement has been made that the Sunday School of today is not meeting the needs of the people and therefore will be extinct in a few years. This is a harsh statement, but worthy of thought.

Do we know the purpose of the Sunday School? What are we trying to accomplish? Just this—a sense of allegiance to Jesus Christ as Savior and Lord, and an appreciation and acceptance of the Church as the body and organ of that Christ. Sunday School workers have a task! Protestants believe that secular education is worth $88.30 a year per pupil, but religious education is valued at only 39c. We wouldn't think of sending our children to public school to be taught by incompetent teachers. Why have them in the Sunday Schools?

Meaning of the word spiritual—controlled and inspired by the divine spirit.

Meaning of the word spirit— (a) that part of us that thinks and feels and knows, (b) that part which we cannot seem to catch hold of; (c) the part that knows right from wrong.

Spiritual power is a matter of life not theory. One source—which is GOD. A trained leader ought to be spiritual. A leader in the Sunday School must walk in the Spirit and be led by the Spirit in order that his religious sense may be keen. So shall he know the things of God and be able to teach them to others. How is Spiritual power attained? 1. By prayer. Without earnest continual prayer there cannot be spiritual power. 2. By separation. To be in the world, working for the welfare of humanity, is quite different from being of the world. 3. By use. Power is given to be used for the good of mankind and the advancement of His Kingdom. Use power available. 4. By obedience. The world has yet to see what God can do with a fully consecrated man or woman. This statement still holds true.

How may spiritual power be lost? By unbelief; by trifling; by indulgence; by pride; by sin. What are the results of spiritual power? See Galatians 5:22, 23. "The fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, long-suffering, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, meekness, self-control." Love—God is love; to know what love is, we must know God. Joy—Ability to sing praises in spite of circumstances. Peace—Christ by His Spirit dwells in the heart that receives Him. Longsuffering—One must have love, joy, peace in order to be long-suffering. Kindness—Kindness is love in operation. Goodness—True goodness is like the glowworm in this, that it shines most when no eyes except those of heaven, are upon it. Faithfulness—Faithfulness is fidelity and sincerity. Faithfulness expresses itself in two ways, Godward and manward. Meekness — Submissiveness to God. Meekness is not weakness. Self-control—He who controls self manifests the power of the Holy Spirit.

God will give power to anyone who will ask it and fulfill the conditions of its reception.

The place of the Sunday School in the spiritual work of the church. If your leaders are spiritual, they will pass it on to workers and to scholars who will be the future Church.

Historical Library

The General Conference Historical Library has received some valuable contributions during the last few months. It is always difficult to get old sets of our church papers, year books, and Conference Reports. Rev. and Mrs. G. A. Linscheid of Newton, Kansas, and Rev. F. F. Janzen of Paso Robles, Calif., have sent us six boxes of such papers. That helps the librarian to collect and bind all issues of a year into a nice-looking volume.

With the papers they have also sent books and other material. Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Jansen, Pasadena, California, donated the works of Menno Simons, the 1871 edition, and other books. We have now eleven editions of Menno Simon's works, but we have a long ways to go yet to get all the editions complete. Of the Martyrs Mirror we need only two more editions, those of 1660 and 1748, in order to make the collection complete. Perhaps someone can help the Conference get these.

Look over your old books and if they have become a burden to you, make them a benefit to others by sending them to the General Conference Historical Library.

A. Warkentin, Librarian.

Eastern Dist. Conference Notes

PAUL R. SHELLY, son of Rev. and Mrs. Elwood Shelly, was ordained to the office of elder in the Hereford Church, Bally, Pa., his home church. Rev. H. G. Nyce, conference secretary, read the Scripture Lesson and offered prayer; Rev. J. J. Plenert, conference president, delivered the ordination sermon and ordained Brother Shelly. Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander offered the ordination prayer; Dr. E. E. S. Johnson, his pastor, delivered the charge to the young minister and Rev. Freeman Swartz officially welcomed him into the Ministerial Fellowship.—After the service, Rev. Shelly left for Aberdeen, Washington, where he will supply a Congregational church one year.

REV. NYCE'S TENTH ANNIVERSARY.—The First Church of Allentown and the Upper Milford Church of Zionsville, comprising this pastor's charge, honored him in a tenth anniversary service Sunday afternoon, October 8, in the Upper Milford Church. Mr. M. S. Geisinger, deacon of this church, acted as chairman. Mr. W. H. Mohr, spoke in behalf of the Allentown Church Council, and Clarence S. Shelly represented the Upper Milford Church, and its various organizations. Rev. J. J. Plenert of the First Church, Philadelphia, delivered a very inspiring message. The pastor gave a brief statistical report of activities during the ten years' service. Music was renedered by the choirs of both churches, with the organists of each church taking turn at the console.—The church was beautifully decorated with all kinds of flowers, among them two large baskets of Chrysanthemums presented by the Ladies' Aid Societies of the charge. The congregations surprised their pastor when they announced that on the morrow he would receive a fine and comfortable easy chair and a nice lamp to go with it.

Neutral Also In Thought

The other day I read an editorial in one of our leading daily newspapers entitled: "Not Neutral in Thought." In it the writer suggested that when the World War started President Wilson called upon the American people to remain neutral in thought as well as in deed. This war, suggests the writer, is wholly different. This time, he feels, we can remain neutral in deed, but never in thought. It is his contention that in this European tragedy we can't help but line up absolutely against Germany in our attitude even though we remain neutral in deed.

Unfortunately this editorial expresses the opinions of all too many Americans. And it is exactly such an attitude that will sooner or later drag us into this war. If we freely and carelessly take sides in our thinking and daily conversations, we most certainly will favor selling to Engand and France war supplies. And unmistakeably, if we'll give the President his way by lifting the Arms Embargo we'll end up by sending millions of our finest young men to slaughter again.

I am definitely not taking sides with Germany. But neither am I taking sides with England and France. I am neutral in thought. This is a European war; and it is none of our business except to stay out. I saw something of Hitler's abominable party machine. And certainly no one in his right mind can defend that. But I also know something of English Politics and History.

Let no one again be fooled into believing that this is a war to "end war," a war "to make the world safe for democracy." England did not enter this conflict to save Poland. She has never fought for anyone but herself. And what is more, she has always sacrificed whom she would to make herself more secure. Anyone who questions that should thoughtfully read English and European History.

This war is another war of European "Power Politics." England entered it not to save Poland, but to take Hitler's gun away from him, because he now seriously threatens her prestige and security. She has too short a political memory to stop and think that if she had had more vision at Versailles in 1919, or even listened to Stresseman in 1925 Hitler would likely never have risen to power. But that would have been to sacrifice some of her prestige—something which England zealously guards.

England has always played the role of matching the powers of Europe, sacrificing who she would in order to destroy her most threatening rival. First it was Spain. Then it was Holland when she appeared to become a major world power. Next it was France under Napoleon. Since 1870 it has been Germany.

Hitler must be stopped as far as Europe is concerned. But England's politics must also be stopped if any permanent or tolerable peace is to follow. That means that there should not be a decisive victory on either side.

This is a European War in which we have a great moral responsibility—to STAY OUT. Another war like the World War with a Peace like Versailles can bring only a greater calamity; and will only set the stage for an even darker tragedy later on. America can make the greatest contribution to World Affai by remaining sober, sensible, peaceful, and democratic. My plea is therefore to be intelligent; to think carefully and clearly; to guard against insidious propaganda; and to remain Neutral in Thought as well as in Deed.—Wm. H. Stauffer, Sugar Creek, O.

"This article," the author says, "was written for our local paper, in response to requests for my attitude toward neutrality in the light of my trip through Europe. It has been sent to the President, the Secretary of State, our Senators and Congressmen.—"Due to the fact that it was written about five weeks ago, a few changes seemed necessary.—Editor.

IDOLS

"Dear children, guard yourself from idols." — I John 5:21 (Weymouth) .

What is an idol? In a limited sense it is a representation of a god which is worshipped. A false god. In a broader way it means, anything that comes between you and God. That which holds first place in one's life. When a person gives something precedence over Christ, that object becomes an idol.

John says to the Christians, "Little children, keep yourselves from idols." This is an exhortation that should not be passed over lightly for it is not addressed to the heathen who bow down to wood and stone but applies to us.

If you think more of your home than of Christ then the guard rail for idols has dropped down. A home is a fine thing and one needs to have an appreciation and respect for the home, but it is not to come first in our affections. The same is true of one's family, wife, children and property. For Christ says that anyone who values these more than they do me is not worthy of me.

How do you rate your business, does it have preeminence over the Master? If an important deal can only be made on the Lord's Day, who gets the vote, the deal or the Lord? When a radio program, a lodge meeting, a club banquet, a scout hike, a party, a motor tour, a show, or the like conflicts with a worship service, which do you choose? Is your first interest, being with the gang, taking in the rounds of pleasure, indulging in some idle pastime, sitting at home in a chair reading and blowing smoke clouds, or does the Almighty get the first claim upon you? Which is the uppermost in your mind, doing what you want to do—or what God would have you do? —Pastor. From the Grace Menn. Church Messenger, by Olin A. Krehbiel.

Extreme Teachings

by J. B. Epp

Such are coming in among us more and more; even into our Bible schools. Here they are especially undesirable; for the young people are not yet safely rooted and grounded. Permit me to enumerate a few at this time:

Dispensationalism, when taught conservatively and carefully, is an eye-opener for many readers and students of the Bible, to many a truth; but when taught in an extreme way, it becomes dangerous. Here are a few examples:

The four Gospels, speaking of Jesus as "a minister of the circumcision," are therefore said to be not for the Church, the Body of Christ. They are not to have any authority upon us. The Sermon on the Mount is to be for the "Kingdom age" only; so also the Lord's Prayer. This is not to be used by us now. Even the book of Acts is not yet for us; it belongs to a different Church, a "Jewish Church," a transitional Church, which reaches from Pentecost to the time of Paul in Rome. All the many epistles written during these years, are consequently not yet for us either; they are for that "Jewish Church." Only the three "Prison Epistles," Ephesians, Philippians, and Colossians, are for us. So they teach. The book of Revelation is supposed to be altogether Jewish, and is intended for a coming age, for still another Church, the "Church of the Tribulation," a "Kingdom Church," which is to rule for Christ.

The Christian ordinances, baptism and the Lord's Supper, therefore are not at all binding upon us; really they should not be used now, so they teach, at least we should not baptize in the Name of the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit; but either in the name of Jesus only, or without water, only with the Holy Spirit.

Still other minute distinctions are made. Some actually go so far as to teach that in this, our very present dispensation, where only Ephesians, Philippians, and Colossians, are to be observed, namely the "Dispensation of Absolute Grace," here people are simply "called," nothing more is necessary. They really automatically belong to this Church, because predestinated to be born at this time: There is therefore now no special need for repentance, nor conversion, nor faith, nor prayer for forgiveness nor necessarily an acceptance of anything. If any wish to do all these things, feeling that they want "to be on the safe side," let them do it; but really they should know better. (So they teach). There is really no chance to say Yes or No: All these things are ours automatically, whether we know and believe it or not. Furthermore, it does not matter much how one lives—although it is always better to live a good life—we are simply predestined to be members of His (personal) Body, not the Bride. That is all! And no one can get away from this either, even if he would "Chosen by Grace," that is our destiny!

More yet: God is said to want evil, sin, and Satan. He needs this for His purpose . . . . (We stop here).

This also introduces so-called "universalism," where it is taught, that all will be saved, eventually; if not in this age (world, dispensation, aeon), then in the next, or the next. The coming dispensations (also called ages, eternities) will reconcile every one and everything, including of course Satan also. Some are teaching "soul sleep," between death and resurrection. Some, anihilation of the wicked. Some teach various ways of salvation, in the different dispensations: Salvation through obedience, in that dispensation by law, in that dispensation; by faith, in the Church dispensation, etc.

These teachings usually take away the evangelistic fervor from those who follow them. Most Mission Boards reject candidates with such views. Such teachings also split up churches; cause divisions among Christians; create a spirit of superiority in those who thus claim to know so much more about these things than we poor ordinary believers, who only "follow the old traditions of our fathers." As said before, systems differ; and not all go equally far in all this. Some change a word or an expression here and there; and then claim that they are not teaching this or that. (Keep this well in mind!)

Let us beware, of these extreme teachings! ------

Much more could be said. But may this suffice for the present. We are exhorted to warn against such things that cause divisions. J. B. Epp.

NOTE: If Brother Epp, in mentioning our Bible schools, includes the Bible departments of our three three colleges, Bluffton, Freeman and Bethel, he is seriously misinformed, for the facts do not bear him out. These schools teach the Bible as the Word of God, as he may discover if he wishes to investigate. One source of erroneous teaching, not mentioned by him, are persons from the outside that some of our churches allow to speak in their pulpits, for variety and emotional stir.—Editor.

SERMON SKETCH

I Ought To Go To Church

By Clinton I. Weber

Sermon from the Hutchinson (Kansas) News-Herald

"O magnify the Lord with me, and let us exalt his name together" (Psa. 34:3)

There have been many articles and sermons concerning this proposition, some with the title, Why I Do Not Go to Church, and some Why I Do Go to Church. During these discussions we heard about the poor preaching, poor singing, long services and need of rest. We also heard from those who felt they received nothing, and from some who said that the church school was sufficient for their needs in worship. Then, too, we have read and heard that we should go to church out of courtesy. But why go to church? Does the preaching, singing or length of services have much to do with my going to church?

I ought to go to church to worship God. William Clarke has said that God is the personal Spirit, perfectly good, who in holy love creates, sustains and orders all. Then, if there is a God, we should worship him. We should worship him because of his character, and because of the relationship he sustains to the universe. He is the Creator, Upholder, Lawgiver and Judge. His will is supreme, the universe heads up in him. He is holy, kind and wise. The difference between a man who really worships God and the one who does not, is as that between the skylark who soars in the heavens and rains down beauteous melody on all, and the centipede who is content to crawl in the dust and dirt, collecting such upon itself.

"But why go to church to worship God?" one asks. "I can worship at home." The answer is contained in an admission and a question: "Yes, you can worship at home, but do you?" We have found that those who worship at home always seek a larger concourse of people to worship with them; and hence, to church they go. Yes, home worshippers are regular church attenders.

I ought to go to church to be instructed in the ways of spiritual truths. Much has been said concerning the inadequate preparation for the instruction given at church. I know of no better place where the best of spiritual instruction is given. Let us improve the instruction.

I ought to go to church if I need to be comforted. To meet with others of like precious faith, and with Christ himself, is to truly bring comfort to oneself and others around him.

I ought to go to church to help maintain the greatest and best organization on this earth and in the world to come. The church has long been the best teacher of the things worth while. Our charitable institutions have had their origin in the church; also our press, our educational institutions, our literature—and we could go on naming the children of the church. Perhaps many have strayed far from their mother, but nevertheless the good things of this life have their head, many of them, in the church. The church is a good and necessary institution, it has been ordained of God. It demands your time and your talents and your financial support. Yes, and to an extent far more than many of us are now doing for it.

I ought not go to church simply for the preaching and singing, but to worship God and help maintain the best organization, the organization that has given us liberty and truth and shows us the way to be really happy.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

A. S. BECHTEL

November 5, 1939

RIGHTEOUSNESS IN THE KINGDOM

Matthew 5:17-20, 38-45; 6:1-4

TOPIC: Righteousness and World Peace

Introduction

The lesson title suggests a contrast between the righteousness which Christ taught and that demanded by the scribes and Pharisees. The Jewish conception of it was a scrupulous keeping of the Mosaic Law and the numerous rules devised ostensibly to clarify and interpret the Law. In this multiplicity of rules the high ethical teachings of the Law and the prophets were largely forgotten. The Jews said much about the indestructibility of the Law, yet with their many trivial and foolish regulations for its observance, they made it practically of none effect.

Jesus' Standard of Righteousness vs 17-20

Jesus clearly and forcibly endorses the divine authority of the Law of Moses, even down to the smallest letter and part of a letter (vs 17, 18). He has not come to abrogate or set aside any part of it, has not come to annul God's will as expressed in it, but to fulfill, to bring out the full divine purpose in the Law. He intended to teach men the deeper meaning of it. Even the smallest letter "jot," and part of a letter "tittle," are very important. The disciples, the future teachers, shall scrupulously refrain from declaring any part of the Law as being no longer binding (v19). The righteousness of those in the kingdom must exceed that of the scribes and Pharisees (v20). Theirs was so entirely on the outside. A mere external performance which in itself, can not suffice. Kingdom righteousness must be a matter of the heart, of motive, of desire. Jesus uses five illustrations to reveal his interpretation of righteousness.

Kingdom Standard vs 38-45

Kingdom righteousness is above the spirit of retaliation. It shows a better way than abuse for abuse, injury for injury (v 38). Jesus illustrates this better way in verses 39-44. Resist not evil with evil as has been the practice in the past, but take a second abuse or insult in the spirit of good will toward the offender. Evil can be overcome only with good will. Love, which is active good will, should go out to all—friend and enemy alike (v44). Love should move us to pray for those who are unfriendly to us. In loving our enemies we shall be true children of our Father who shows His love for those who hate and curse Him, by blessing them with sunshine and rain. His perfection of love is the kingdom standard.

Right Motive in Righteousness 6:1-4

Jesus gives a needed warning. The very religious among the Jews loved to display their righteousness. Doing alms—"your righteousness" R. V.—is a general expression for piety and religious duties which must not be done to win praise. Such righteousness will win the reward ought—praise from men—but will not merit the Father's higher reward. He rewards the acts of righteousness which spring from the right heart motives (v4). He knows the desires of the heart and rewards accordingly.

Righteousness and World Peace

If the higher righteousness of Christ, good will, and love ruled in the hearts of the leaders of nations the world over, war would be impossible. Leaders so motivated would not even think of settling their differences with others by resorting to war. The one sure remedy for war is true Christ righteousness in the hearts of the responsible rulers of nations.

IN MEMORIAM

MRS. ADDIE R. BENNER, daughter of the late William and Sarah Roth Taylor, was born November 3, 1876.

At the age of sixteen, she openly confessed Jesus Christ as her Lord and Savior and was baptized April 23, 1892 and was admitted into the membership if the East Swamp Mennonite Church.

On January 1, 1898 she was united in marriage to John Harvey Benner, with whom she shared the joys and responsibilities for more than 41 years.

She was a Charter Member of Bethany Mennonite Church, joining in January 1899. For a goodly number of years they made their home in Landsdale, where they joined Grace Mennonite Church also as Charter members. In 1935 she with her husband returned to Quakertown and rejoined Bethany again, remaining ever faithful to her end. Her spirit took flight after a few days of sickness, on October 6, 1939, bringing her age to 62 years, 11 months and 3 days.

Surviving are her husband, a sister, Mrs. Thomas White, her step-mother, Mrs. Mary Taylor and many other friends and relatives.

Text used by Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander, Matt. 5:8.

Interment, Union Cemetery, Quakertown.

MOTHER KATHARINA KRAUSE, daughter of Abr. and Katharina (Warkentin) Nikkel, was born Feb. 13, 1860, in Lichtenau, South Russia, and departed this earthly life Sept. 25, 1939, at Hillsboro, Kansas. She attained the age of 79 years, 7 months and 12 days.

In the year 1878 she came, with her parents, to America and settled at Alexanderwohl (Goessel), Kansas; where she was reared in a Christian home. August 15, 1880, she was baptized upon confession of her faith in Jesus Christ and received into the Alexanderwohl Church. In 1920 she transferred her membership to the Hillsboro Mennonite Church. On December 10, 1885, she was united in marriage with our father Franz Krause. To this union were born 3 daughters, Katharina, Aganetha and Anna; 5 sons, Abraham, Jacob, Isaac, Frank and Peter.

In her younger years mother was a willing helper, especially in cases of sickness and death. She nursed father through his illness of eight years, besides taking care of nine children. She was strong and healthy up to the time of father's death, Sept. 25, 1807, which left her a widow for 32 years. After that her health failed and was never regained. Several weeks ago she suffered a light stroke which caused her death.

Mother loved to sing, and the many verses of hymns and scripture which she knew were a source of strength and comfort to her, especially during her later years, when she was unable to do any kind of work. She leaves to mourn her children: Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Wedel, Hillsboro, Kans.; Mr. and Mrs. Abr. F. Krause, Shafter, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. Golbeck, Dinuba, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Krause, Wichita, Kans.; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Krause, Lehigh, Kans.; Mr. and Mrs. Peter Krause, Inkster, Mich. and Anna Krause at home; one sister, Mrs. P. A. Pankratz and husband, three sisters-in-law, one brother-in-law, 36 grandchildren and many relatives and friends.

Mother was of a quiet disposition, was a devoted Christian, giving the assurance that she was at peace and looking forward with glad hope for her Savior to take her home. Funeral services were held Thursday, Sept. 28, at the Hillsboro Mennonite Church. In the home, Rev. J. H. Epp based a brief talk on Ps. 29:5-6 and Isa. 40:29-31. At the church, Rev. B. Janzen of Lehigh spoke in German on Phil. 3:13-4 and II Tim. 4:7-8. Rev. J. H. Epp, her pastor based his text on Phil. 3:2, 21, speaking in English.

One of the songs used was Mother's favorite, "Die Engel sie stehen auf des Himmels Hoehn", und singen—Komm Heim."

MRS. DANIEL F. SCHMIDT, nee Gaeddert, was born in Washita County, Okla. June 30. 1904. Her parents were Henry and Mrs. Corline Gorshing Gaeddert. When she was six years old she lost her mother by death. Later her Father moved to Thomas county Kansas with his two children and bought a farm there. April 8, 1920, she came to the Jacob Unruh home near Goessel, Kans., where she remained for a time. While she was there, she attended the Catechism class of the Alexanderwohl Church and, upon the confession of her faith in Jesus as her personal Savior, she was baptized June 25, 1922. At that time she joined the Alexanderwohl Mennonite Church, of which she was a member at the time of her death. She married Daniel F. Schmidt Sept. 19, 1926. This union was blessed with 3 sons and one daughter.

The third of October she complained of a sore throat. On the fifth a doctor was consulted and on Sunday the 8th her condition became very alarming. She received her last treatment from the doctor at about 10 p. m. Sunday night and at 2:20 a. m. she quietly passed away, at the age of 35 years, 3 months and 19 days. She lived in the state of matrimony 13 years and 19 days. Before she became unconscious, she comitted herself in prayer into the trust of her Savior, and expressed her desire to be buried in the Alexanderwohl cemetery. She is now at home with the Lord.

She leaves to mourn her early departure: her husband, Daniel F. Schmidt; the children, Louis, Oswald, Dennis and Delmar; her father Henry Gaeddert and the family of her brother, Mr. and Mrs. Will Gaeddert, her husband's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob R. F. Schmidt and family. Funeral services were held in the Alexanderwohl Church, Thursday afternoon, October 12. Rev. J. H. Epp spoke on "Behold, what manner of Love the Father hath bestowed upon us that we should be called the sons of God." Rev. P. H. Unruh spoke comforting words based on John 14,1-3. The bodily remains were laid to rest in the Alexanderwohl cemetary.

—Harleigh M. Rosenberger, student at Colgate-Rochester Divinity School, Rochester, New York, writes: "Enclosed find a dollar for as many of the Mennonites as it will buy. Although I am here only a few weeks, I already feel isolated from Mennonitism, hence my request. May I say that I have enjoyed reading the Mennonite greatly. I compliment you, as editor, not for literary merit or rhetorical genius but for the sincerity that can be plainly read through the lines of the man who allowed them to be placed there. The Mennonite is, without doubt, one of the greatest binding factors in our denomination today.—Editor: Thank you for this compliment, Bro. Rosenberger, which is not deserved. But if you in a place surrounded by splendid libraries have real need for our church paper, what shall we think of the hundreds (thousands) of our Mennonite families that never take one?

—WEDDING.—On October 21st, Miss Margaret Gratz was married to Mr. Paul Detwiler at Bluffton, Ohio, where the groom is the owner and manager of a high grade dairy. We offer hearty congratulations.

Some Aspects of Christian Home Life

Paper read by Mrs. A. T. Mueller at the C. E. Program, Medford, Oklahoma

A great minister once said, "I always preach to myself. I've found that if I talk about the problems that interest me personally, and the hopes that are of urgent concern to me I am likely to make other people feel that I am well acquainted with their dilemmas—and their wistfulness, too." And with this in mind, I have chosen the things I want to tell you tonight.

It has been said that one should always have one's ideals set so high that they cannot be attained. However, I believe, as our achievements mount, our ideals should go on ahead. The task of building and maintaining a Christian home—one in which children are stimulated and inspired to live Christ-like lives—is not a simple one. Often we find it difficult to teach a child to pray; to answer his questions honestly and fairly; to show him that authentic Christian living consists in so much more than family altar, grace before meals and regular church attendance. It may be comparatively easy to teach our boys and girls that it is criminal to rob a bank or cheat anyone in a money transaction; but are we always mindful of instilling in their very hearts and minds that honesty is always the best policy in every detail of life? Jesus said, "All things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them." It is a good rule to follow in the home.

The following story about Mennonites has been told by a great preacher to illustrate the futility of impractical religion. While it does not directly apply to home life, I feel that it does point a lesson to us who are also Mennonites.

"A health officer of Toronto told me a story which illustrates the consciousness of sin created by the old religious teaching. If milk is found too dirty, the cans are emptied and marked with large red labels. This hits the farmer where he lives. He may not care about the health of Toronto, but he does care for the good opinion of his own neighborhood, and when he drives to the station and finds his friends chuckling over the red labels on his cans, it acts as a moral irritant. One day a Mennonite farmer found his cans labeled and he uttered a worldly oath. The Mennonites are a devout people who take the teachings of Christ seriously and refuse to swear, even in law-courts. This man was brought before his church and excluded. But, mark well, not for introducing cow-dung into the intestines of babies, but for expressing his belief in the damnation of the wicked in a non-theological way. When his church will hereafter have 'learned to be good intelligently,'* it may treat the case this way: 'Our brother was angry and used the name of God profanely in his anger; we urge him to settle this alone with God. But he has also defiled the milk supply by unclean methods. Having the life and health of young children in his keeping, he has failed in his trust. Voted, that he be excluded until he has proved his lasting repentance.' The result would be the same, but the sense of sin would do its work more intelligently."

I have a friend who for some time lived in the home of her brother who is a minister. When she came back to our home town and paid us a visit, she made a statement which I consider a high tribute to her preacher brother. "I have lived for one year in Pete's home, and I can say truthfully that in his home and with his family he practices during the week what he preaches on Sunday." Consistency in our behavior is perhaps the thing children will first notice. Someone has said, "If a man talks much about high ideals, and then shows shabby conduct, it isn't his conduct that draws a sour laugh from his friends: it's his ideals."

I read a story of a family which was very critical of others, and often this criticism was expressed in unkind terms. To help themselves get over this bad habit, they decided that each time any one of them made an unkind remark about some other person, he would put a nickel in a bowl provided for that purpose. The money would be used to buy something for the home. At first the coins were collected quickly. When there were about 15 nickels in the bowl, the children were allowed to buy a beautiful bowl which they had long coveted to set on the buffet in their dining room. The mother, who tells the story, says by that time the bad habit was broken, and they never again collected enough money to buy anything more.

*The wording of this phrase has been altered to suit the theme.

This family approached its difficulty from a very practical angle, but who would dare to call it un-Christian? I venture that some families would have said, "We must pray about this bad habit we have of criticising others." And perhaps every day they would have continued to say mean and cutting things, and every evening they would have asked God's forgiveness, and the habit would have remained. Do not think that I mean to belittle the efficacy of prayer. The Bible says, "The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much." Let us remember, too, that prayer without effort on our part isn't worth much as far as measuring results is concerned. When Jesus was on the hillside with the hungry multitude he first asked his disciples "What have you?" And so, today, God expects us to use our resources—whether it is nickels in a bowl or some other ordinary practical trick.

When I was a child at home, we had on the wall of our dining room the following motto: "Say nothing that you would not like to be saying when Jesus comes.—Do nothing that you would not like to be doing when Jesus comes.—Go to no place where you would not like to be found when Jesus comes." I like to remember this now. I must confess that when I was a small girl it frightened me. But that has caused me to resolve to do all I can to keep my children from being afraid of God and religion. We want our children to be "God-fearing" in the finest sense of the term, but we do not want them to be afraid of God. Being afraid of God puts a barrier not only between Him and us, but also between us and our fellowmen.

It is quite proper that in our discussion of the Christian home we say something about the family altar. The morning and evening devotional period is not to be an end in itself, but a means to an end. The end should be Christian character and dynamic personality in those who are regularly exposed to this type of worship. We must re-charge the battery of our personality and character daily at the great Dynamo if it is to carry us satisfactorily through our day's work and temptation.

The late English poet John Drinkwater, wrote a poem which has been set to music by Dr. Frank E. A. Stoney. It is one of my very favorite hymns. The last stanza is this:

"Knowledge we ask not, knowledge Thou hast lent,
But Lord, the will, there lies our bitter need;
Give us to build above the deep intent
The deed, the deed."

I think of this hymn often in connection with our home life. Surely science and psychology have provided us with knowledge—and it is just and right that we make use of it,—but what we truly need is a will consecrated to God so that in our use of this knowledge we may be guided aright.

Sherwood Eddy, who may well be called an evangelist among college and university students, once made this statement: "O Christian, if you have the will as you have the power you can win the world for Christ." We may perhaps alter the words to suit our thoughts tonight: "O Christian father and Christian mother, if you have the will as you have the power, you can win your child for Christ." There will without doubt be many interpretations of how to win our children for Christ, but the point we want to remember is this: If you have consecrated your life, your hopes and ambitions for yourself and your family, if you have consecrated your will to Him, there is nothing this side of heaven that can stop you. You may be detained by circumstances, but you may rest assured that you will go through to the end. It may not mean that you will have all the things you had hoped for, but if you are able to meet disappointment with fortitude, your children will see that you "have something." There is nothing, I know, which would so inspire your child to follow Christ as to see His principles at work in your daily life as you face practical problems.

Poverty

Senior C. E. Topic for Nov. 12, 1939

MAIN TOPIC: Must we have poverty? Amos 8:4-7
James 2:15-17

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "What A Friend We Have in Jesus," "Lord Jesus, I Long to be Perfectly Whole," "What a Fellowship, What a Peace Divine."
1. Reading of main topic, and prayer
3. Special music by several groups.

II. Leader's Introduction

Jesus, like Amos, lived in an age when a few rich men passed their time in idleness and luxury while the great mass of the common people toiled all their lives in poverty and wretchedness. The fashion of luxury was set by the Romans, who were the rulers of the world. The Emperor, Nero, who lived only a few decades after Jesus, once spent the equivalent of nearly a hundred thousand dollars for fresh roses from Egypt for a single dinner party.

One of the things which stirred Amos' anger at the injustice of the rich Hebrew nobles to still whiter heat was the luxury in which they habitually lived. While they ground the poor into hopeless misery; while little children starved for lack of a crust of bread, these rich families gorged themselves at the costliest banquets.

Greed and love of money is responsible for much poverty today. But greed and the love of money is not confined to those who are the so-called rich. It is often found in some measure even among those of our own group.

As followers of Christ we would like to help those who are in need.

III. Suggested topics for short talks:

1. Blessedness of the benefactor. Ps. 41:1-3

2. Persistence in well-doing. Gal. 6:9.
3. Impartiality advised. Jas. 3:1-5.
4. Admonition to be content with little, 1 Tim. 5:5-10.
5. The way to make a living, Mt. 6:33.

IV. Facts for study

According to reliable surveys, in 1929, seventy per cent of the people living in the cities of the United States had less to eat than what the Department of Agriculture regards as an adequate diet.

In 1929, if all of the clothing made and sold in this country were distributed equally among all the people, every boy and man would have had one-half of a suit, one-sixth of an overcoat, three shirts, one half of a sweater, two hats. For every girl and woman there would have been two-fifths of a coat, one half of a sweater, two hats, three and two-thirds dresses. Since many people bought more than their share of clothing, it is evident that a large number were able to buy little or no new clothing.

As to housing, in 1929 one-fourth of the people of our country were living in slums or in shacks which should have been torn down. More than one-third of the homes in towns and cities, and nearly four-fifths of those in our villages, had no sanitation or running water.

V. For Discussion

1. Where should we spend our money to help those who are poor?
2. The needs of our mission field especially flood- and war-stricken China.
3. Is government aid for poor desirable?
4. Should the church take care of its poor? If so, in what way?

VI. Illustrations

God's Care of the Little Ones.—A poor little boy was found in the streets by a kind-hearted man. The child was lean and thinly clad, bearing the marks of hunger and poverty. "What are you doing here?" inquired the man. "I am waiting for God to come." "What do you mean?" asked the man, touched by the novelty of his reply. The poor little boy responded: "Mother and father, and my little brother died, and my mother said God would come and take care of me. Won't He come?" "Yes," resplied the man, "I have come." "Mother never told me a lie," said the little boy, "I knew you would come; but you have been so long on the way."

A man who was about to take a long journey had two sacks of corn. He gave them into the charge of two friends,—one to one, and one to the other,—requesting these friends to take care of them for him. In due time he came back. Going to the first friend, he said, "Where is my corn?" "All safe," he answered; "I tied up the mouth of the sack, and put it in the cellar. Take it again." It was brought out and opened, and there it was, mildewed, rotten, and utterly worthless. He went to the second; "Where is my corn?" "Come out with me, and I will show you." He took the man into a field all waving with golden grain: "There is your grain." Then said the owner to the first friend, "Take your reward, the sack of mildewed corn you gave to me"; to the second, "Give me back one sack of grain when it is threshed out, and all the rest is your own."—J. M. Neale.

If possible, have some one tell of the work of Jane Addams.

VII. Food for Thought

"Jesus gave away a bit of his soul with every healing touch."

"Who gives himself with his alms serves three.—Himself, his hungering neighbor and Me."

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

USING SUNDAY IN A CHRISTIAN WAY

Intermediate C. E. topic for Nov. 12, 1939

For Daily Reading:

Nov. 6. A holy day. Ex. 20:8-11.
Nov. 7. Calamity from neglected Sabbath. II Chron. 36:15-21.
Nov. 8. The way to true delight. Isa. 58:13, 14.
Nov. 9. Christ's custom. Luke 4:16-21.
Nov. 10. A Christian gathering. Acts 20:7-12.
Nov. 11. Dedication of money. I Cor. 16:1-5.
Nov. 12. Topic. Matt. 12:1-9.

Opening Poem

I took a day to search for God,
And found him not, But as I trod
By rocky ledge, through woods untamed,
Just where one scarlet lily flamed
I saw his footprint in the sod.

Then suddenly, all unaware,
Far off in the deep shadows, where
A solitary hermit thrush
Sang through the holy twilight hush—
I heard his voice upon the air.

And even as I marveled how
God gives us heaven here and now,
In a stir of wind that hardly shook
The poplar leaves beside the brook—
His hand was light upon my brow.

At last with evening as I turned Homeward, and thought what I had learned
And all that there was still to probe—
I caught the glory of his robe
Where the last fires of sunset burned.

Back to the world with quickening start
I looked and longed for any part
In making, sowing Beauty be . . .
And from that kindling ecstacy
I knew God dwelt within my heart.

Song—"Safely Through Another Week"
Scripture Reading—Matt. 12:1-9.
Prayer by Leader

Using Sunday in a Christian Way:

I. Worship in God's house.
  A. A commandment or a privilege
  B. Follow the example of Jesus
  C. The church has a higher purpose than any other group in the world.

II. Quiet time as a time of refreshing our souls as well as resting our bodies. We may refresh our souls by reading the Bible and other Christian literature. Best of all may we refresh our soul by communion with God.

III. A time for fellowship with friends. What a cheer even a brief visit may bring. A time to write to those friends who are too far away to see.

IV. A time for family fellowship.

V. A time for close observation of nature. Refer to the opening poem. Read in unison the Nineteenth Psalm.

Song—"This is My Father's World"

Discussion:

1. Do you think there would be more proper observance of Sunday if it were always spoken of as the Lord's Day?
2. Name additional ways of worship on the Lord's Day.
3. Can one be a Christian and not attend worship in the Lord's house more than once or twice a year?
4. Should intermediates attend all services of the church? Or are we excused from the evening service if we attend the morning service?
5. Is it all right to "go for a ride" on Sunday afternoon?

JUNIOR CORNER

"It is a Good Thing to Give Thanks Unto the Lord"

Psalm 92:1

To the leader.—We should give our Juniors an opportunity to express their thankfulness in a material way. There are always needy families and the Juniors would enjoy filling a basket for some one in need. After telling them of several, let them choose the family for whom they wish to fill a basket. Mrs. Andres, the beloved editor of the "Junior Corner" for so long, suggested that a "Pyramid" be built. (The Mennonite, October 19, 1937). This was used very successfully at that time. Shall we again build a Pyramid?

Program for November 12, 1939

"WITH MY WHOLE HEART"—Psalm 9:1a

I. Worship Period

1. Prelude—Playing of Hymn "All Hail the Power of Jesus Name!"
2. Stand and sing above song in unison.
3. Call to worship, "Give thanks unto the Lord, call upon His name, make known His deeds among the people. 1 Chron. 16:8.
4. Song—"Praise Him, Praise Him."
5. Scripture—Two voices responsively.

a. "Bless the Lord, O my soul and all that is within me bless His holy name. Bless the Lord, O my Soul and forget not all His benefits." Ps. 103: 1, 2.

b. "I will mention the loving kindness of the Lord and the praises of the Lord according to all that the Lord hath bestowed on us."—Isa. 63:7a.

a. "Now therefore, our God, we thank Thee and praise Thy glorious name." I Chron. 29:13.

b. "We Thy people and sheep of Thy pasture will give Thee thanks for ever. We will show forth Thy praise to all generations." Ps. 79:13.

a. "Give thanks unto the Lord, call upon His name, make known His deeds among the people, Sing unto Him, sing psalms unto Him, talk ye of His wondrous works." 1 Chron. 16: 8, 9.

6. Song—"I Love to Tell the Story."

II. Study Period. Aim: To help the Junior know how to express his praise and thankfulness.

1. Leader's introduction. Stress that we should think of the many things for which to be thankful, for we must thank, as we think of all of God's goodness, mercy and grace. Sme one has said, "A thankful man is a thoughtful man." We should show our appreciation of God's goodness in every possible way.

2. Short talks by Juniors.

a. We should give thanks with our whole heart.—Ps. 9:1; 86:12.

b. We should remember and give thanks. Ps. 103:2.

c. We should make known His deeds. Isa. 63:7, Ps. 105:1, 2.

d. We should go to His house and give thanks. Ps. 100:4; Ps. 122:1.

e. We should thank Him with our gifts. (Give ourselves—Let your life be a continual thankoffering. Rom. 12:1).

f. We should give of our means and give thanks. Gen. 28:22.

3. Reading of Psalm 147. (Select a good reader. God's Word should always be read well, reverently and beautifully) by a Junior boy.

4. Song: "Bringing in the Sheaves"

5. Poem: by Junior girl.

Gentleman Gay

"Said old Gentleman Gay, on a Thanksgiving Day
If you want to be happy, give something away.
So he gave a fat turkey to Shoemaker Price,
And the shoemaker said, 'What a fine bird!' How nice!

I'll give Widow Lee the fine chicken, I bought!
Said the pleased Widow Lee, 'See this chicken! Oh, my!
I'll give washerwoman Biddy my big pumpkin pie."
And, 'Oh sure,' Biddy said, 'it's the queen of all pies!'
Just to look at its yellow face gladdens my eyes!
Now it's my turn, I think, and a sweet ginger cake
For the motherless Finnegan children I'll make!
Said the Finnegan children—Rose, Benny, and Hugh,
'It smells sweet of spice and we'll carry a slice
To little lame Jake who has nothing that's nice.'
'Oh, I thank you and thank you,' said little lame Jake.
'What a beautiful, beautiful, beautiful cake!'
And such a big slice, I will save all the crumbs
And give some to each little sparrow that comes!'
And the sparrows they twittered as if they would say,
Like old Gentleman Gay, on Thanksgiving Day,
If you want to be happy, give something away!

(From "Friends in God's World" Keystone Graded Lessons).

III. Mission Minutes

1. "The Mennonite" of October 17, gives the names of several missionaries going to the foreign field. Let some Juniors name these and tell to which field each one is going.

2. Sentence prayers for God's protection and care of these missionaries.

3. A missionary letter or story may be read. If possible select one in which the spirit of gratitude is especially evident.

Leaders closing prayer.

Stand and sing the Doxology.

—WHAT DOES IT MEAN TO BECOME A CHRISTIAN was the title of a splendid sermon sketch that appeared in this paper, issue October 10, page 6. In some way, hard to explain, the sketch appeared minus the name of the writer. For this the editor and the printing plant wish to convey to him our sincere apology. The writer is: REV. WALTER H. DYCK, PASTOR OF THE MENNONITE CHURCH, BURRTON, KANSAS.

—BRO. AND SISTER PETTER LANDED SAFELY.—Chicago, Ill., Oct. 16, 1939: To Rev. P. H. Richert.—"Landed last Thursday. Then days sea voyage from Genoa. On way to Lame Deer now."—Mrs. Petter.

—The 1940 Year Book, Rev. A. S. Bechtel acting editor, is rapidly taking form, as it must, so that it may be ready to be sent out as premium for prepaid full year subscriptions to The Mennonite. The editor finds it necessary to condense some of the material especially statistical tables, considerably, to get it all within the contract size, 48 pages plus covers. This may cause some disappointment, but it should be remembered that it just can't be helped.

—The 87-year old Reverend C. H. van der Smissen marked his anniversary as a minister of the gospel, Sunday October 15, by giving two missionary addresses at the mission festival of the Evangelical Churches in and near Newton, Kansas. Sixty-five years ago, on October 15, 1874, the good brother received his ordination at the hands of his father, Rev. C. J. van der Smissen and Rev. Eph. Humsberger, in the Mennonite Church at Ashland, Ohio. On this same day of the month, 102 years ago, Rev. van der Smissen's grandfather ordained his father to the ministry. This truly is a family of ministers, for Brother Alvin van der Smissen, Rev. C. H.'s son, is also a minister who is at present serving the Hebron Mennonite Church near Buhler, Kansas.

—Western District Conference had a busy time last week. On Wednesday the Ministerial Conference was held at the First Church, Newton. Attendance was large and the addresses which centered in the idea "Exalting Christ" were splendid. The one by Rev. J. N. Smucker of the Bethel College Church was ordered to be printed in pamphlet form for wide distribution. The Conference proper was held in Wichita. Although the attendance was unusually large, the crowd did not even half fill the large Forum hall. Rev. J. M. Regier, the chairman succeeded in getting things to move along well, so that the heavy program could be finished on schedule time. Like other church bodies, this conference finds itself handicapped by the lack of funds in its efforts to do the many needful things confronting it.

— First Church, Reedley, Calif.—Frisco County Rural Ministers' Association is to hold its next meeting, November 14, in this church. The meetings are open to all who are interested in learning how to do our work better.—The Board of Education (of which the pastor of this church is a member) holds this year's meeting at Bluffton, O., beginning Oct. 19. This Board has to plan with and for Sunday Schools, Christian Endeavor, Daily Vacation Bible Schools, Bible Schools, Colleges, the Seminary, the Gen. Conference Field Secretary, Young Peoples' Union, Family Relations, etc.—Ch. Bulletin.

—Rev. Henry Hege becomes pastor and elder of the Bergtal(Okla.) Church. Brother Hege, who for a number of years was superintendent of schools at Gotebo, Oklahoma, and at the same time served the local Mennonite church as pastor, last spring accepted a high school position at Corn, Okla. On Sunday, Oct. 15 last, he was ordained as minister and elder of the Bergtal Church of that place. The services were held in a large tent, to accommodate the many visitors from nearby and even more distant churches. The Reverends P. K. Regier of Moundridge and John C. Kaufman of Inman, Kansas, were there to officiate and serve as speakers.

Truth, like the sun, submits to be obscured; but like the sun, only for a time.—Bovee.

Mexico - - Mennonite Colony

Near Cuauhtemoc, Chih, Mexio — by H. P. Krehbiel

Seen from an elevation a half mile south of the city.

In the foreground near the city is a caravan of pack donkeys. Beyond the city the plateau expands about fifty miles east and west and as much or more than 100 miles to the north.

View into the expanse across the City of Cuauhteomc

Framed in between majestic mountains is situated the attractive country within which the Old Colony Mennonites have selected a wide territory for their permanent home, and have established their attractive and prosperous community settlement.

It was about the years 1921 to 1923 when a large transmigration of Mennoites from Canada to Mexico took place. By far the larger part of these people are known under the name of "Alt Kolonisten" (Old Colonists). However, a number of socalled Sommerfelder also moved with them.

This settlement is located almost entirely north of the city of Cuauhtemoc, which is the principal trading point of these settlers. The settlement covers a territory approximately 25 miles wide and 40 miles long. It is said that the colony has about 30 villages, however, a map shows more than 45 villages. The whole settlement is said to number about 9000 persons.

For two half days Wm. Redekop took myself and wife and his mother out in his auto into the colony. There were several things I desired to do:

1) See the colony of which one had heard so much. 2) Meet leading persons of the colony and converse with them. 3) Learn something about the well-being and prosperity of the colonists. 4) Ascertain whether the settlers in general were satisfied, or whether it was true that practically all the Canadian settlers in Mexico were purposing to leave and either return to Canada, or remove to South Dakota, U. S. A.

Here then first something about the general arrangement of the colony, its plan of operation and its economic condition.

The whole settlement is divided into villages. The farmers of that region live in the village on liberal space for their farm establishments, barn sheds, poultry yards and house, etc. Plenty of space for the home of the family, flower garden, vegetable garden, orchard, and stockyards. This proximity of farm residences enables the people to promote more successfully interests which these farmers and families have in common. Cooperative farm activities are possible. Social life is benefitted. Mutual aid both in family and on the farm can be easily rendered. Schools and training of youth can be promoted more successfully. Spiritual uplift and the fostering of Christian life through religious services, and pastoral care and instruction are favored by these farm village settlements. Each village has its village school and teacher. Such a community life has within it the possibility of great and blessed gains both spiritual and temporal.

So far as the material and economic interests are concerned one cannot otherwise than gain a favorable impression. For one must not forget that only about fifteen years ago this whole territory was an uncultivated grass covered prairie. The settlers came here with rarely much more means than necessary to get started; perhaps to buy a farm of raw land, build a little house and provide other necessary equipment. For several years only a very small income could be realized. Only after a larger acreage was brought under cultivation and an increased cattleherd had bolstered the income was further expansion possible. Remembering such vital facts one can but be amazed at the visible relative prosperity everywhere. The villages are plotted on a liberal scale. The Main Street of the village is exceedingly wide, perhaps four times as wide as in an American city. At various places new residences had been built recently. Here and there one saw a tractor in the field or at the farm. Let us look at the fields which here are planted chiefly to corn, beans and oats. Surely they were harvesting a fine crop. Much attention is given to cattle raising, for which that territory is peculiarly favorably suited. So far as natural conditions are concerned, there are few places in the world that are better favored for general agricultural enterprise than is the very extensive plateau region of Mexico. One can easily see why these abstemious Mennonite colonists have achieved such striking results in a material way.

On these study trips it was my fortune to meet and converse with a number of leading persons, such as heads of villages, business men and with the manager of a growing printing establishment. Only one person, a business man, did I meet, who is connected with a movement which was then speaking of removing to South Dakota. He had then just lately been in South Dakota with a small group under the guidance of land agents. They were shown deserted farms in the neighborhood of a town by the name of Miller. This man informed me that the land agents had told them that the South Dakota Legislature would likely pass a law in the year 1939 under which the settlers from Mexico would be permitted to conduct their schools, "just as they pleased," without paying any attention to the school laws and program of the state. They claim that land will be sold to them at low prices and on exceedingly favorable terms. Can it be that the State of South Dakota would really make such exemption laws for the schools of a small minority? This man was unsettled in his own mind as to whether he would take part in a shift to South Dakota. All others with whom I spoke were unanimous in their position—"There is nothing to a general migration away from the settlement." All spoken to expressed themselves as being well satisfied in this setttlement and that they intended to remain here, except one. He expressed himself as dissatisfied in the colony, but that he had no idea where he could find a better place to go to."

At the home of David Redekop, Sr., I met a woman who related to me that two of her daughters were in the company which I had the opportunity to meet in Newton on their journey back to Canada. She informed me that her children are now pleading for help to return to Mexico. While we were at Cuauhtemoc, one family which years before had gone back to Canada, now returned again and we were told that they were very glad to be back again in Mexico.

It was my special privilege also to visit at the home of the Elder or Bishop over the entire "Alt Kolonie," Isaak M. Dyck, at Blumenfeld No. 16, Cuauhtemoc, Chih., Mexico. We received a cordial brotherly welcome. It was my special desire to receive direct information from the spiritual leader of this very extensive colony. After I had learnt during a prolonged conversation that he also knew of no general movement to leave this settlement, he made mention of certain official correspondence in his possession in which the leadership of the national Government manifested a decidedly friendly attitude toward the Mennonites. In compliance with my wish to obtain copies of this correspondence, Elder Dyck sent me, some weeks later, through Brother Redekop, a letter with the copies of the correspondencies issued by President Cardenas.

Letter from Elder Isaak M. Dyck, written near the end of November, 1938.

To you, honored friend and Brother H. P. Krehbiel!

This letter and the Correspondence from President Cardenas follow in translation:

First—I wish to you the precious peace of God, the love and grace of our Savior Jesus Christ and the fellowship of the Holy Spirit, these together with all conceivable good for all time and eternity, which to us is needful here for a godly life and conduct (2 Peter 13) and thereafter is needful for a peaceful transition, etc.

As in these days I had the pleasure, my beloved brother, to have you together with your wife under my humble roof, and you made inquiry of me concerning the condition of the Mennonites and expressed the desire to obtain a copy of the important document which I have received from our present President, Lazara Cardenas, I let follow a verbal copy taken from the original manuscript:

First I do herewith inform you that the Minister of Education has received renewed instruction to extend to you also for the future the privileges granted to you by President Obregon in the year 1921, are herewith also to be granted to you, and that the provision be made that the liberties shall also be respected by the subordinate Boards. Very Respectfully, Sufracio Effectioo.

No. Reeleccion.—In the National Palace, June 19, 1936. The President of the Republic, firma. Lazara Cardenas.

Second—To the General Antonio Rios Zertuches, Commandant of the 5th military zone, Chihuahua, Chih.

Very respected Friend! On this day I do address the Resp. General Rodrigro M. Quevedo, Governor of the State of Chuhuahua, in a letter of the following content: Several Mennonite delegates made complaint to me, that frequently bands of armed Mexicans enter their colony and take away various things, particularly implements, and also become guilty of attacks upon persons. Occasionally Mexicans force entrance into homes and there misuse wives and daughters of Mennonites. I am of the opinion that these colonists referred to are of greatest importance to us for the economical development of the state, and already have contributed very much. And not only that, but because our justice demands it, I request of you, to suppress these criminal acts with every power, and thus render to these named colonists, both as to their person and as well as their property, the protection to which they are rightfully entitled. I place with you this information that you may know and that the soldiers, who are under your command, may aid the political boards in providing protection to the Mennonite Colonies.

Your Sincere Friend,

Lazara Cardenas.

Postscript by Elder Isaak M. Dyck:

This command from the President to the General of the military zone has had the effect so that in the last two years we have very little to complain of concerning robberies or thefts.

To the question you have asked me, dear friend Krehbiel, I make the following answer: We entertain no thought of leaving Mexico and if in isolated cases a few of our people speak of leaving and returning to Canada or locate in South Dakota, and some evil reports are spread abroad about Mexico, we are in no wise agreed to such reports, and as long as the contract which was closed with President Obregon, in 1921, is kept by the Government, we purpose to remain in this country, and shall not cease to pray for our Government, as we were taught: "Seek the peace of the city whither I have caused you to be carried away captives, and pray unto the Lord for it: for in the place thereof shall ye have peace. Jer. 29:7."

With friendly greeting and with kindly thanks for your visit, I am your friend, Isaak M. Dyck, Blumenfeld No. 16, Cuauhtemoc, Chih., Mexico.

From this dependable information it is quite evident that the large Mennonite colony near Cuauhtemoc, Chih., Mexico, does not contemplate leaving that location for some other country. The fact is that from a dependable and competent source I was informed that the leadership of the colony is at present dealing with the problem of expanding the borders of the colony to gain room and farms for the repidly multiplying increase in the families in the colony.

It is reported that fairly good land can be had there for $30.00 up an acre. The Shafter Church is being served by Rev. Glanzer of Dinuba, Calif. from time to time.

—First Church, Bluffton, Ohio.—Gratifying progress has been made in securing signers to the pledge to give $25.00 per year to Bluffton College, conditioned upon securing 200 signatures. This help is needed both for accrediting the school and successful operation. We are grateful to all friends of the college who have helped in this enterprise.

Pray That Righteousness And Love May Prevail

There is much injustice, unrest, hatred, and violence in the world today. The Bible admonishes that, "the wrath of man worketh not the righteousness of God (James 1:20). And Paul insists that, "Love never faileth . . ." (1 Cor. 13. And Jesus himself, the Prince of Peace, (in Matt. 5:43-) challenges His followers to do "more than others" in these words, "Love your enemies, and pray for them that persecute you; that ye may be sons of your Father who is in heaven . . . "

To this end, let us unite on Thanksgiving Day in praise and thanksgiving, but also in fervent prayer that Righteousness and Love may prevail everywhere and in all human relations!

C. E. Krehbiel, Conference President.

SOMEBODY BUILT BRIDGES AHEAD. — Sometime ago we read of a little girl, unused to traveling, who was taken on a long railway journey. She seated herself by a window and gazed at the scenery ahead. Whenever she saw a river in the distance she would show signs of alarm, for she could not understand how they were going to get across. But when they got to the river a bridge always appeared on which the crossing was easy. After several experiences like this, the girl leaned back in her chair with a sigh of relief and said, "Isn't it splendid? Somebody built bridges ahead." Yes, what a lot we owe to somebody who built bridges ahead.! We are born into a wonderful world made all ready for us by somebodies. God made nature to provide food for us and a lot of resources that men have made into clothing, shelter and a multitude of comforts of life for us. The endless things that come to us every day to enrich our lives and to give us ease and enjoyment, are the gifts of innumerable somebodies. Parents, teachers, ministers, statesmen, philosophers, inventors, artisans, poets, writers of literature and Holy Writ, besides hosts of everyday toilers, have done their part to make this twentieth century world what it is. How insignificantly small in comparison to the wealth of things offered to us by the world and by God's love is any addition we now, even the most illustrious of men, may make! Yes, bridges have been built for us, in endless ways. Jesus built the most wonderful bridge of all. He bridged the once impassable chasm between God and man, caused by sin, in giving himself as a ransom for all, so that we might have free access to the Throne of Grace. But alas! evil men in all ages have been trying hard to destroy that bridge in almost every conceivable way. They are doing it and have been doing it strong in Europe. Some are trying to do it in Washington right now. But, fortunately, the bridge still stands and will continue to hold until time is no more.

ANCIENT WISDOM.—"Remember the days of old."—Deut. 32:7—During the last three-fourths of a century, the ruins of Egypt and western Asia, through archeological excavations, have spoken. in loud and definite terms, in proof of the veracity of the Bible. So pronounced were these voices and these discoveries that apparently nothing that the Bible says has been disproved or discredited by these efforts. Mankind has lived a long, long time, and as far back as records go, it has been wrestling with the same problems that are before us today. Meanwhile, however, the race has learned or, at least, should have learned some pointed lessons. And we can but scoff at some of the superwise "moderns" who would disparage them. One of these lessons is the primacy of religion. No ancient ruin ever dug up up has failed to reveal a house or place of worship as a conspicuous part of community life; no clan or tribe, no matter how primitive, have been found without some form of worship. Another lesson is the sanctity of the home. In Babylon, Ur, Shushan, Pompeii there have been unearthed large sections of individual homes. A third lesson is the fact of patriotism. All researches and discoveries reveal a devotion to national solidarity and safety, and national consciousness. Still another lesson is that of the chastity of womanhood, proved by records in stone and otherwise. And to these may be added, justice between man and man. So in this age, in which everything seems to be lopsided or upside down or, tending to go modern, we may get a great deal of comfort by remembering the days and the lessons of old.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

BIBLE SCHOOL

CHANG YUAN EVANGELISTIC WORK

Altogether this quarter has been one of the busiest I have ever put in in China and for the present there is no let-up in sight, especially now since Browns have moved to Taming and all their work is temporarily in our hands. I believe every one of our missionaries is overworked and we appreciate the fact that the Board is getting some new workers out to the field and returning old ones.

Inspite of minor skirmishes between the Japanese troops, who now occupy Taming, Nanlo and Chang Yuan, and Chinese troops of various kinds scattered throughout the field we have been able to keep our work going about normally. A few times changes in plans have been necessary as when Mrs. Pannabecker and a wagon load of Bible School girls were going to Chang Yuan for Chinese New Years and ran into a fight. The rifle shots were a trifle alarming at first but they went on until they encountered Chinese soldiers in full flight who urged them to turn about and go back.

Chang Yuan Work

The outstations about Chang Yuan, four in number, have been having unusual opportunities due to the many people who have left the city to reside in the country. At these places good progress can be seen. Fan Hsiang has a lively group each evening meeting for singing and Bible memory work. It was an nispiration to hear the 50 or more voices repeating in concert one after another the verses they had learned. Chiu Chi another village has shown enough interest to pay part of the rent on the house used for services and offers to raise more if only a Bible woman can be sent them. In the city of Chang Yuan itself, things look momentarily discouraging. Everybody left the city when it was occupied and even now only a handful of people can be found in the city. On one hand they are afraid of the Japanese troops because of the terrible experiences of last year when 1700 people lost their lives during the fighting over the city, on the other hand they are afraid of night attacks of the Chinese troops on the city. As a matter of fact neither of these fears are liable to be realized but it keeps the city cleared out anyway. However there are some 30 people living in the church compound and daily morning prayer meetings are held and services as usual on Sunday. The day I was there two weeks ago about 50 were in attendance. The school work there suffered most, for all children have left and no classes are possible. The teacher was hoping that a small group could be gotten together but it would be only ten or so in contrast to the hundred a few months ago.

Bible School

Our work here has suffered no interruption so far. Studies are carried on as usual with the addition of the work program mentioned in previous reports. During this quarter we have added a printing press and a good supply of type. The mission allowed $300 (Chinese currency) for the purchase of type and granted a loan of another $300 for paper and supplies, same to be repaid later. Thus we have gotten a fair supply of equipment and materials. Other things will be needed but we hope the project will be self-supporting and future additions can be made from receipts. Both our lithograph outfit and our press have been busy printing tracts of which it seems any number could be used. We have printed 20,000 in the past three months. Besides these we have printed two little pamphlets and various odd jobs for the hospital and mission.

Besides the printing, students have been busy at bookbinding, weaving, knitting stockings, and various other odd jobs. Our work projects have brought in $214.28 during the quarter, most of which came from printing. This is not enough to pay students for the work they do, since much of their work is not remunerative but it helps and we expect it to increase. At the end of next quarter after our first year is past I shall make a fuller report.

We have tried not to let other aspects of the school work suffer from overemphasis on work projects. The work is a means not an end. This year there will be 22 graduates, eleven each from the regular and elementary courses, if all goes well. The National Bible Society in Scotland has again promised to present gifts Bibles to the graduates. Some of the graduates will doubtless find a field of service in the church while others will return to their homes and be helpers in their local churches. We hope everyone will make a contribution to the Kingdom of God.
dom of God.

Before closing, we want to emphasize again the openness to the gospel. From one place after another arrive requests for workers to come and teach. The demand for scriptures is more than we can supply. The Bible Societies report the same that they cannot keep up with orders. The uncertainty of life and need of dependance on superhuman power is driving people who paid scant attention before to think of God and to study the gospel. We pray that God may use us to help many of these to find real peace in their hearts and to know Him who is the source of eternal life. Continue to remember us.

Being Conference Conscious

President's Sermon by Rev. J. M. Regier, preached before the Western District Conference, Oct. 18, 1939

"And the multitude of them that believed were of one heart and of one soul." Acts 4:32a.

We have here a picture of the first church that grips our imagination. It was no longer a small group of people. There are several indications in the book of Acts suggesting the size of the congregation. From the day of Pentecost we read: "There were added unto them about 3000 souls." A little later it says, "And the Lord added unto the church daily such as should be saved." And again a little later: "Many of them which heard the Word believed; and the number of the men was about 5000." Our text speaks of the "multitude of them that believed." None of our Conference churches approximates the size of that body of believers. Who knows but what it may already have been as large as our whole Conference.

The thing that interests me is that there was conscious unity. One of our home mission workers often wrote in his reports: "There is such a wonderful spirit of love among our people." Whether this love manifested itself as a force which purposefully bound people to common tasks he did not state. But when our story says that these believers were of "one heart and of one soul," it also gives an illustration of its effectiveness. "Not one of them said that ought of the things which he possessed was his own; but they had all things common. For neither was there among them any that lacked: for as many as were possessors of lands or houses sold them and brought the price of the things that were sold, and laid them at the apostles' feet: and distribution was made unto each, according as any one had need."

The thought that impresses itself upon me here and the one I wish to stress this morning is the fact that there was a very definite group consciousness. This group of people belonged together and they knew it, and lived accordingly. Their tasks were common tasks. The work of the group was also the work of the separate individual. We believe that when the large group undertook an enterprise there were not smaller groups within the large one who were pulling sideways, saying that is none of my concern.

One great lesson that we wish to learn from this incident is that we need to have a stronger conference consciousness. Nearly sixty Mennonite churches have banded themselves together as a Western District Conference. This has been done deliberately, purposefully. By doing so, each church and each member within the church has assumed responsibilities. The tasks and undertakings of the larger group become the responsibilities of the smaller groups and individuals. "If the foot shall say, because I am not the hand, I am not of the body? And if the ear shall say because I am not the eye, therefore I am not of the body; is it therefore not of the body?" If a minister in one of these 60 churches shall say, I did not grow up in this conference and I did not get my education in Mennonite schools, therefore I do not belong to the Conference; does he then not belong to the Conference? Or if a church shall say, one of our members is a missionary under another Board, therefore we have no obligations toward the conference missions; does it then have no such obligations?

In many quarters there is strong conference consciousness, but we need to cultivate this more effectively. Our conference is so organized that no force or legal pressure will ever be brought to bear upon individual groups and single members, forcing them to co-operate with the rest. Where people of "one heart and of one soul" no such methods are needed, but to bring them to the place where they will be "of one heart and of one soul" requires understanding and much love.

But, somebody objects, why become so narrow as to limit one's helpfulness only to one group? That is not the request. As long as a certain type of work is being done, and the group to which I belong is active in that field, and we are "of one heart and of one soul," is it not quite natural that I would support my own group first?

I like to compare the church to a family. Paul did so in Eph. 5. Jesus once said, "Whosover shall do the will of God, the same is my brother and my sister and mother." Spiritual kinship can become more powerful than physical relationship. When a church is of "one heart and of one soul" there is a group consciousness present that has force.

You would expect me to have a deeper interest in my own family than I have in other families. If the emotional interest should seem lacking, I would still have stronger obligations to them than to other people. I have two sons. Supposing I would become so interested in my neighbor's boys that I would keep providing for them, purchasing them clothes and sending them to school, leaving my own boys in want. What would you think of me as a father? But I argue that my neighbor's boys are better than my own. The whole community thinks them better and they are deserving such support, therefore I have decided to help them and not mine. What would you think of me as a father? However if my own boys are well taken care of, and I then decide to give the neighbor's boys a lift also, is there anything wrong with that? Don't I have a perfect right to help others also if that will not cause my own family to suffer? I believe a father who supports his own family well, will be more likely to help beyond the border of his family than one who neglects his own.

Can this not all be applied to our church duties? If the efforts and prayers and gifts of the people of a church go out to others to the neglect of their own conference work, is there not some of that spirit lacking which makes "one heart and one soul"? Sometimes we need stronger conference consciousness.

Mennonite churches have frequently served as good hunting grounds for various groups and individuals purporting to serve the Kingdom of God. How readily some of our people will fall for the appeals of some able speaker. If the sause so represented were all evil, our people would not follow. We are not condemning such causes, but we are pleading with our churches for conscious unity with that body,—and in this case our Conference, to which adherance and loyalty has been pledged. Surely, as Paul says, "Let us do good to all men, but especially unto them who are of the household of faith."

Such a condition of conscious unity in which people will be "of one heart and of one soul" will not just happen. It must be cultivated. We must want to be loyal. We must acquaint ourselves with the aim and the purpose and the goal of the movement. We must become an integral part of the organization. Then can our lives become effective. If we spread our efforts out over too wide a territory we make our lives so thin that we will be without effect. "Straight is the gate and narrow the way, that leadeth unto life."

I wish to be a little more definite and practical. Our District Conference is only a branch of the General Conference, and so let us think of the set-up of the larger organization as we meditate further upon the practical application of our text. What applies to the larger organization, also applies to the smaller. "The multitude of them that believed were of one heart and of one soul."

Our Conference has entered upon very definite fields of service. The bigger part of this work is being carried on under the supervision of six standing boards. May we compare the work of these boards to six children of the parent church? They belong together and by supporting one phase of this work you wish to express your loyalty to the whole.

We are thinking first of Foreign Missions. Our Conference has sixty some workers in three large mission fields. Thus we have a very definite part in carrying the gospel to the uttermost parts of the earth. It was not without considerable hesitation that some of these fields were entered upon. But finally, after very deliberate consideration and much prayer the Conference voted to undertake the work in these various fields, trusting that the churches who constitute our conference would be loyal and true, and feel deeply the responsibility of these decisions.

The men and women who have gone out to represent us in Oklahoma, Arizona, Montana, India and China are our representatives. We will never let them down. Our responsibility toward these workers is greater than toward any other foreign missionaries. Do we believe that they are better than others? Recently in a small local paper from another state the editor mentioned that the missionaries in China sent out by the church to which he belonged were the most effective missionaries in China. The statement might have sounded better if someone else had made it. We do not contend that our missionaries are better than others, although we believe that their work as a whole is just as acceptable, but what we do wish to stress is that they are our missionaries. You would not think highly of me as a father if I would neglect my own family and support other children. Neither will other denominations think highly of us if we neglect our own workers and reach out to help others.

But as I have already stated, if my own children do not suffer and I then render help to others, that is a wonderful privilege. One circumstance that makes this condition a little more complicated for some of our churches is the fact that more Mennonites have gone out as missionaries than our church has been able to support. We find some in Africa and in South America where we have no work, and a number with other boards in China and India, since our Board had insufficient funds to send them all. These workers are doing splendid work for our Lord and Master, and frequent appeals come from the various sources to different churches to render assistance. What are they to do? In the first place, we wish these other organizations would realize that we have our own work to do, and that they would not make themselves an imposition upon us. But on the other hand, after having given faithful and generous support to our own workers, a church usually finds it possible, through additional sacrifice, to help still others.

(To be Concluded)

IT OFTEN REQUIRES terrible conditions and frightful experiences to bring men to grasp the serious truth. This is illustrated in the case of the French atheistic author, Lavredan, who made this confession after the World War:

"I laughed at faith and thought myself wise. Finally this laughter became hollow and vain, for I saw France bleeding and mourning. What would become of France if her children did not believe, if her women did not pray? Oh, a people whose fields are covered with the dead! How difficult it is to remain an atheist on this national cemetery! I cannot, I cannot, I have deceived myself and you who have read my book. It was a delusion, a giddiness, an evil dream. I see death and call for life. Hands equipped with weapons make death; folded hands bring life. France, turn back to faith, to forsake God means to be lost! I do not know whether I shall live tomorrow, but I must tell my friends, Lavredan is afraid to die an atheist. I am not afraid of hell, but the thought impresses me, God lives and you are so far from Him. Rejoice, my soul, that I have been permitted to experience the hour when, on my knees, I can say, I believe."—From "The Presbyterian."

The Student and His Religious Nurture

By J. D. Epp, University of Nebraska

The month of September and the opening of schools by their common association have almost become synonomous in our thinking. It is at this time that many little children, in addition to the ones already initiated to the school system, make their first venture into the intellectual world. On that first day of school many a parent has felt ill at ease; just as if something vital was being extracted from his or her life. If this is the experience of parents when little children leave home for school, only to return after a few hours, it is equally true when son or daughter for the first time pack their trunk and suitcase to leave for a distant college or university. At the farewell, the parents' misty eyes and the firm handshake express far more than words feebly chosen at the moment could express. Yet even so, a Kansas wheat farmer did express to his son at just such a parting what weighed heavy in his mind. He said: "Son, you are now leaving the parental home for a distant school and my eyes will not see the paths that your feet may follow, but don't forget your Christian heritage."

The sons and daughters who have migrated to their chosen denominational college certainly will not through a change of geographical location forget their Christian heritage. The college will by its regular program and close association with the church attempt to nurture and promote the Christian spirit that took root in the home and will be happy to see it develop into an intensified and deepened religious experience. On the other hand, however, the student attending a state university under our political system that separates church and state must forego a similar religious nurture, for the university does not provide a department of religion, nor does it set up a program for religious nurture. Then what about the nurture of the religious interests of those attending a state university?

The question is pertinent. For religious interest is not peculiarly confined to those never attending a university, nor are those attending a university devoid of religious feelings and interests. For that very reason, a university community does supply some concrete means to promote these religious interests. There are the campus YWCA and YMCA which through their respective non-sectarian programs attempt to develop a Christian consciousness. In addition, various denominations maintain endowed foundations with a university student pastor. These pastors and their wives create a homelike atmosphere for the nurture of the religious interests of their respective denominational students. Moreover, the churches in a university city are aware of the religious needs of a student population and arrange programs that will supply such needs. Thus a university community does offer means and programs that will nurture the religious interests of the students; while the university itself does not through its regularly organized program set up such means. That does not necessarily mean a general indifference to religion and the program of the church on the part of those responsible for the operation of a university. Quite to the contrary, many faculty members are vitally connected with church programs and are deeply concerned that the church militant may be successful.

The religious culture on a university campus is largely maintained by the aforenamed forces, but not wholly confined to these local forces. A recent national movement, called the University Christian Mission working under the auspices of the Federal Council of Churches, brings the religious culture of a university community in touch with the wider outlook of national religious leaders. This mission goes from campus to campus for a short but intensified emphasis on religion. Such a mission came to the Nebraska campus last fall and the week of their stay was called Religion and Life Week.

The team that came to the Nebraska campus was composed of fourteen members. Each one was well versed in the field of his lectures and had achieved national and some international recognition. To mention only a few of the members of this team, there was: E. Stanley Jones, Missionary to India; T. Z. Koo, a Chinese Christian and an engineer by training; Benjamin Mays (colored) Dean of the School of Theology at Howard University. Religion and Life week was a new venture on the campus and one was interested in how it would be received both by faculty and students. After the week was over and a few tabulations had been made, it was found that E. Stanley Jones had spoken to 6,000 people at the opening session on Sunday evening; that members of the team had appeared in 47 different classrooms comprising 15 departments; that every organized house (both men and women) had entertained speakers at one or more dinner engagements; that members of the team had conducted 7 different seminars each day; and in addition there was one evening meeting each day. These evening student meetings averaged 800 per meeting.

The writer considered this Religion and Life Week a rather remarkable experiment on the campus of a state university. A few things became very evident as the week proceeded. First, state universities are not necessarily the bulwarks of atheism and irreligion. The interest and support given this week by the Chancellor, the various deans, and by many members of the faculty deny any such implication. In addition to the moral support rendered, the university helped materially by financial contribution and the free use of its buildings in making the program a success. There may be areas and circles in the university where religious interest is lacking, but during this week these were not in evidence.

A second matter that becomes very evident was the fact that we still have religious liberty in America. None of the speakers were afraid to speak of God, of Christ, of the Bible. Their free expression was a great witness to our religious liberty. This is our great American heritage, and may it never be lost to us.

Another impression gained from this week was the way people with different backgrounds and varying points of view fellowshipped together. There were differences in color of the skin, differences by way of schooling and experience, differences by confession (adherents of the religion of Jehovah and Christian, both protestant and catholic); yet they sat down together for a common fellowship. Individual differences, which are peculiar to personalities and find their way into creeds and confessions, were somehow merged into a union of purpose. This purpose was the meeting ground for fellowship.

If one were to mention a fourth impression, it would be the decidedly positive emphasis on religious experience rather than a negative emphasis. Salvation is not so much a matter of fleeing the devil and his cohorts as it is an active embracing of Jesus, the Christ, as savior, and letting his spirit become the guide and influence in one's life. By thus filling one's life with the good as persoanified in Jesus, the Christian Religion becomes meaningful not primarily as so many don'ts and prohibitions, but rather as a guiding spiritual influence that is being translated into a Christ-like character by human beings.

Once again, what of the religious nurture of the students in a university community? The student there is not secluded as possibly a monk and protected against adverse influences. Divers influences will bear down upon him and seek his allegiance. Life at the university is in the midst of a stream that has breakers and rocks that may shatter the sailor's raft. Yet this stream of life offers to the discerning and the desirous the things that are true and beautiful and enduring; yea, and the things that are deeply religious. The Kansas wheat farmer father had wisdom on his side when he said to his son: "don't forget your Christian family heritage." The son and the daughter can grow and prosper in their religious life and convictions in a university atmosphere if they heed that wise parental admonition and search out centers of influence that promote their Christian heritage.

Note of explanation by the writer: "Each year a number of our Mennonite students enter our various universities. At Nebraska, we have 13 of them. I suppose that the parents at their going and later also contemplate the opportunity provided in a university circle for religious culture. For that reason I have written: "The Student and his Religious Nurture." Maybe yo have room for it in the Mennonite and I hope some parent may find some value in it."

EDITOR'S NOTE: Of course we want our young people to attend our own Mennonite Colleges. But nevertheless, we should be glad that especially our state universities are making some real efforts to satisfy the soul needs of their students.

Across the Desk

By President L. L. Ramseyer, Bluffton College

We often speak rather glibly about school loyalty. To many it means attendance at games, cheering for the team, and other demonstrative methods of expressing approval of what the school is doing. Is what loyalty to Bluffton is?

I would like to think of true loyalty as something bigger than that. To be sure, it does include enthusiastic backing for all worthy school projects, for those things which help to make this school a better place. But cheering alone is not all there is to it. The person who cheers the loudest may not be the person who is doing the most to forward the best interests of the institution which he represents.

The truly loyal school citizen is the one who upholds and defends the ideals for which the institution stands. This may be through the display of stamina, courage, and sportsmanship on the athletic field. It may be through active participation in the A'capella choir. Perhaps it is through the work of the Gospel team or the Y.'s that some individuals can best display their school loyalty. It may even be through preparation to become an outstanding chemist, or specialist in some other field that some one may be able to make his greatest contribution to his alma mater.

I had a letter this morning from a senior in the high school at Wilkes-Barre, Pa. I never saw him, he never saw me. But he wrote to tell me about the anthracite production of his community and what it meant to his town to have the mines operating. He was loyal to his community, he was trying to tell others about its strong points.

The loyal Bluffton student will help strengthen his school. He will tell others about its strong points and attempt to strengthen it where it is weak. And above all, the loyal Blufftonite will try to be a living example of the ideals for which the college stands, for after all, it is hard to get past a bad product to see what is good in an institution; but an excellent product sells itself and the institution from which it came.

SERMON SKETCH

"THE PRECIOUS BLOOD"

Text — I Peter 1:19

by Harold D. Burkholder, Pastor of East Swamp Church, Quakertown, Pa.

Introduction.—In every individual's life there are certain things that are considered to be very precious. In this day when the Blood of Christ is not very popular, there needs to be a new appreciation in every believer's life, of that Blood which is indeed PRECIOUS. Let us consider therefore, just why the blood should be so precious.

I. Because It Has Redeemed Us. (I Peter 1:18, 19)

We have not been redeemed with silver or gold, but with the precious blood of Christ. The writer of the Epistle no doubt has a picture in his mind of the slave markets of his day, which were numerous. A place where men and women were sold at auction, even as animals are today. Certainly where such a thing was going on, there could be no true conception as to the value of a human soul. The Word reveals to us the true value when it says, "What does it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul." The auction for souls is still going on. Satan and Christ are bidding for our lives. Satan offers the pleasures of the world which are but for a season, while Christ offers pleasures at His right hand forever more. If Jesus Christ could have purchased our souls with a price other than the blood He would have done so. But beloved of God, man's sin was so great that nothing less than His blood could make atonement for him. If only the blood can cleanse from sin, should it not therefore be precious to every blood bought Christian?

II. Because It Brings Us Nigh (Eph. 2:13)

Without Christ we were aliens, without hope and without God. We were dead in sin, walking according to the course of this world, doing the will of our father, the devil (John 8:44). But now in Christ Jesus we who were sometimes afar off are made nigh by the blood of Christ. Thank God for the blood which brings us nigh to a Holy and Righteous God.

III. Because It Brings Peace (Col. 1:20)

Today the countries in Europe are shedding blood for the purpose of establishing peace, a peace which has always proven to be nothing more than temporary. The natural human heart is always without peace, for God Himself has said in His Word, "There is no peace saith my God to the Wicked." What man could not accomplish, Christ did accomplish on Calvary. "And having made peace through the blood of the cross." It was the blood that has made Peace with God. It is the blood that provides for the Peace of God which passeth all understanding. Truly the Blood of Christ is precious to us, because it brings peace.

IV. Because it Justifies (Rom. 5:9)

A simple definition for justification is JUST as IF I had never sinnED. Justification does not minimize sin, but rather magnifies the blood. Some years ago a Frenchman was arrested for a crime, of which he was innocent. When released he demanded papers which would prove him innocent before the public. When this was done, he stood justified before all men. He was treated as if he had never been in prison.

Now in regard to our position before God, we know that we are guilty sinners. It is only the grace of God as manifested in Christ that can justify us in His sight. Though guilty, yet in Christ guiltless, for the Father sees His Saints only as He sees them in Christ, the sinless One. If this is what the blood does for guilty man, then certainly it must be precious.

Let us therefore thank God for the blood of Christ that washes the vilest sinner clean. His blood is indeed precious, for it has redeemed us; it has made us nigh; it has brought peace; it has justified us before a Holy and Just God. Let us exalt the BLOOD, "For without the shedding of blood there is no remission of sin."

PUTTING GOD'S KINGDOM FIRST

Matthew 6:19-34

TOPIC: The Christian's Chief Concern

Introduction

We need to acquire the ability to recognize what things are most important to be done, the vital things for time and eternity. Some things are secondary in life as a whole. We readily waste time and energy in petty pursuits when we should be doing things much more worthwhile. Jesus says we should put the kingdom things first, things pertaining to the spiritual welfare. Give first time to the spiritual. People find time to do the things they desire to do the most.

Laying up Heavenly Treasures vs. 19-23.

We should give serious attention to laying up treasures in heaven (vs 19, 20). Jesus is not forbidding the acquiring of any earthly or material property. He is teaching that our chief emphasis should be put upon laying up spiritual, heavenly treasures which will endure forever. Material treasures will perish, they have no enduring value. There is never a financial depression involving havenly treasures. No insurance is needed, for fire and rust can not destroy them, neither can thieves steal them. They will always retain full value. We lay up heavenly treasures when we develop the enduring graces—love, faith, purity, brotherliness, hope, when we seek to help others find the Christ. Our hearts are centered in our chief treasures (v21) and our hearts should be fixed on heaven (Col. 3:12), so we should lay up treasures there.

The will is to the soul what the eye is to the body. The eye needs to be in a sound and healthy condition, single in purpose, pure in motive, unclouded. When the outlook of the soul is normal, we will perceive the spiritual realities in their true proportion and conduct will be right. When the spiritual outlook is defective, we will be in moral and spiritual darkness.

Serving Two Masters is Impossible v 24

Jesus declares it is impossible to serve both God and the world. We must choose between serving Him wholeheartedly and being absorbed in the pursuit of wealth. We can not do both at the same time." "Serve" here means to serve as a bond servant or slave, and "master" means an over-lord. We can not be surrendered to the service of the world and also be surrendered to God at the same time. God demands the first and supreme place in our hearts and lives.

Refrain from Useless Anxiety and Worry vs 25-34

Jesus would have us avoid useless anxiety about our future sustenance and comforts. Be not anxious, overly anxious about food and drink (v 25). Much of the life of so many is occupied with anxiety about these things. God who gave us the life can also enable us to get the necessary food and raiment. He provides for the fowls and clothes the flowers and the grass of the field, and much more will He do for His children whose needs He knows so well (v32). People who do not know God are naturally very anxious and troubled about these things. The Christian's chief thought should be about spiritual things.

Our circumstances may be difficult today, yet it is usually the fear of what tomorrow will be that weighs us down with anxiety. Such anxious care never helps us. People need to learn to live one day at a time. This is what Jesus tells us to do and trust God for the future. God wishes to rule in our hearts and order our lives. If we let Him do this—seek first the kingdom of God (v33), then He will not let us suffer for lack of necessities. Do the best possible today and be not filled with useless anxiety about tomorrow. If we really believe in a heavenly Father who cares for us as He cares for the birds, it should give us a spirit of contentment, gratitude and trust.

CORRESPONDENCE

MENNONITE CHURCH, BURRTON, KANS.,

With grateful hearts, hands clasped, we turn our faces heavenward, praising and thanking God for His love and mercy that endureth forever.

We, as a congregation, have grown in the knowledge and grace of our Lord Jesus Christ through God's open channel, our pastor. Rev. and Mrs. W. H. Dyck have now served us three succssful years, and we are looking hopefully forward to God to continue His blessings upon us all as they continue to serve the new term.

Our church membership now is 146. The Sunday school enrollment has increased from 66 to 142, with 9 organized classes. The average attendance in 1937 was 77; in 1938, 94; and 103 so far this year. We are sorry to lose our faithful superintendent, who served ten years, as they have left Burrton. But another faithful consecrated young man has accepted the office. The recognition of the former superintendent's service was expressed by the presentation of a gift at our home coming day.

Our Home Coming Day fellowship at the basket dinner, following the morning services, was much enjoyed. Our new superintendent led the afternoon program. He called on former superintendents for short talks. Rev. H. P. Krehbiel, the first pastor of our church, related very interestingly its beginning. Two cornet solos and two numbers by a Ladies' quartet were rendered. Our Junior Endeavor, organized in the pastor's first year, has 32 members at present. They have a meeting onc a month, featuring chorus singing and question box discussion from the whole congregation. Our Senior Endeavor has done good work under the leadership of our young people. Programs with other Endeavorers were exchanged and two plays were rendered. Our first meeting this fall consisted of reports from Camp Wood retreat, South Dakota retreat, C. E. conference and election of new officers. Then Rev. Dyck showed the moving pictures taken on his trip to the retreat at South Dakota. He took four young people along who according to their reports gained much. The Camp Wood pictures were shown at our Young People's Home Night in August which was associated with a watermelon feed. These retreats have proven to increase interest in church work and the social life among the young people.—Corr.

—Mrs. Barbara Burkholder, wife of Rev. Harold Burkholder, was taken to the Grandview Hospital at Sellersville, on Saturday morning, Oct. 21, where she underwent an appendix operation. She is getting along very well at this writing, Oct. 23, 1939.

How is this for one pastor's schedule in India?

Fourteen functioning churches in the district and one large church at Basna, and he is pastor of them all. He is the only one who is ordained to give the Lord's Supper, baptize and marry people for all these churches. He is the leader and supervisor over the preachers of the various churches and must keep a check on their work, direct them, teach them, inspire them, and help them with their problems of discipline, etc. He is also responsible for directing the evangelistic workers who may be working in six to ten villages.

This, in brief, represents the field for which Rev. J. R. Duerksen, our missionary in India, is responsible, and the traveling in it is being done in a worn out Model T Ford. It is hoped that something can be done soon to provide Rev. Duerkson with a better means of transportation. May we uphold these faithful workers in their tremendous responsibilities in our prayers daily.

The Alberta Community Church, Portland, reports Rally and Promotion Day exercises on Sept. 24, with the new year getting off to a good start. Not only were pupils promoted, but banners were awarded to the classes having the highest percentage in attendance and offering for the past year. These two classes will retain their banners for the next quarter or until they are bettered by some other class. 100% attendance pins were given to those who had not missed a Sunday during the year and special recognition was given to those who had only missed once.

A few weeks ago the Junior Girl's Missionary Club gave a chicken dinner and sacred music concert at which time they displayed the beautiful quilt they had pieced and tied for one of the mission fields. These girls and their leader, Mrs. Anderson, deserve much credit for the spendid work they are doing. — The Pacific District Workers' Exchange.

REQUIRED READING

A time like this requires that everyone, who is a conscientious objector to war inform himself of the problems that he is likely to meet under a war situation, that he acquaint himself with the courses of action which may be open to him, and that he learn what activities he may carry on in time of peace. The "Pacifist Handbook" (described in The Mennonite, Oct. 10, 1939, p. 3) is an excellent booklet for such reading. The price is 10 cents. It can be ordered from the Mennonite Book Concern, Berne, Indiana. Write for a catalog and see how many helpful things our book store has.

Comments on Foreign Policy

by Florence Brewer Boeckel

"Not only is the gentleman who is probably the most powerful publisher in England, Lord Beaverbrook, over here and dining at the White House, but leading men in the labor movement including Bevins and Citrine, came here especially to attend the A. F. of L. conference and protested against the resolution passed by the A. F. of L. which dared to declare American labor to be opposed to our entering a foreign war "under any circumstances." It is now announced that one of the outstanding political leaders in England, Duff Cooper, is about to sail for our shores. Already more than one-third of all foreign propagandists who have been required to register at our State Department have been shown to be British.

Along side knowledge of this British war propaganda, it is being widely recognized that the forces in England seeking to bring about a negotiated settlement now, instead of later on after millions of men have died, can best be aided by prolonging the uncertainty as to what this country is going to do. Months ago well-informed Americans coming back from England declared England would never go to war unless this country 'signed on the dotted line.' Which reminds me that a friend who has returned within the last week says the common remark of Englishmen today is 'well whatever you do we are one war debt up on you anyway.' Another friend just back reports this statement from a British army officer when he asked him what he thought this country ought to do. 'What we would like you to do' the officer said, 'is to come right in, but what you ought to do is to stay out. Whether we win or lose, if there is a major war, we will be reduced to a state of complete economic chaos. The United States must provide a basis on which we can all rebuild civilization.'

There is only one thing which can happen in Europe today that can serve the interests of this country and that is a peace settlement."

SENIOR DEPARTMENT

CRIME

Senior C. E. Topic for November 12, 1939

MAIN TOPIC: Must We Have Crime? Prov. 1:10-19

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "Somebody Did A Golden Deed," "Brightly Beams Our Father's Mercy," "If You Cannot Cross the Ocean."
2. Reading of main topic, and prayer.
3. A half dozen short verses similar to the following:

"My life shall touch a dozen lives before this day is done—
Leave countless marks for good or ill ere sets this evenng's sun.
So this the wish I always wish, the prayer I ever pray:
Let my life help the other lives it touches by the way."

II. Leader's Introduction

It is a well-known fact that the foundations of character are laid in the days of our youth. "Child shows the man as morning shows the day." It is one of the big problems of our age to bring children and young people into daily touch with lives consecrated to Christ that they may learn of Christ, and "catch" the spirit of true Christian living. If youth would be more generally led to consecrate their lives to Christ the problem of crime would be solved.

III. Suggested topics for short talks:

1. Laws against crime
    a) Thou shalt not kill
    b) Thou shalt not commit adultery
    c) Thou shalt not steal
    d) Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor
    e) Thou shalt not covet.
2. How to avoid crime, Prov. 4:14-17, 24-27.

IV. Facts for Study

Crime will continue to be a major problem with us as long as the conditions which produce criminals are permitted to exist. Some of these conditions may be described as follows:

Badly managed homes. Family quarrels, self-indulgent parents, low moral standards, drunkenness, lack of sympathy and understanding, carelessness in handling delicate problems of child nurture—these and other similar conditions in homes sometimes turn young people toward immorality and crime.

Bad companions. In many neighborhoods, it is easy for young people to choose friends with low moral standards and to engage with them in escapades which are against the law. Criminal gangs are thus formed and criminal careers are fostered. In all of our larger cities there are these crime-breeding neighborhoods.

Poverty. It is poverty, more than anything else, which gives rise to environmental conditions—home and neighborhood situations—out of which our criminals come.

Corruption in government. Political corruption is not only the result of criminal manipulation; in itself it is a primary cause of crime.

V. For Discussion

1. What can we do to remedy the above causes of crime?
2. Is there a chance to prevent young folks from getting into crime by something we can do in our own neighborhood?

VI. Illustrations

1. Right thinking. "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he," and we might add, "and so will he become." Paul tells us in our Scripture lesson what kind of thoughts to have. If our minds dwell on low ideals our lives will tend in the same direction. On the other hand, if our minds live among high and noble thoughts, our lives will be pure and noble.

"Sow a thought, reap an act;
Sow an act, reap a habit;
Sow a habit, reap a character;
Sow a character, reap a destiny."

How can we develop habits of right thinking?

2. Dare to Do Right.—When "Coley" Patteson was a boy at Eton, he was popular with all of his school mates. He was a good student, "captain of the boats," and member of the cricket eleven. At a certain gathering coarse songs were started. They were part of the traditions of the school and had been sung for years. As brave morally as he was physically, "Coley" declared that those songs should not be sung in his presence. When one was started he left the room—something few boys would have dared to do under the circumstances. Then and there, however, this old-fashioned custom was stopped.

That brave boy at Eton, who courageously stood up for his principles, even at the risk of being described as "tied to his mother's apron strings," became a famous missionary in the South Pacific. As Bishop Coleridge Patteson he fearlessly faced the Melanesians, with their clubs and arrows, and daily risked his life for the cause of Christ. Physical courage has a moral foundation. Dare to do right, and nothing can daunt you. How can we develop habits of right acting?

VII. Food for Thought

I once had a daughter who was hard on clean tablecloths. She was accustomed to decorating her section with all the colors of the menu. With the harsh pride which arises from conscious superiority, occasionally I cautioned her:

"Molly, there is another spot!"

"But, Daddy, I did not mean to."

"Ah, Molly, it is not enough that you did not mean to. Your must mean not to!"

One day, after I had spoken to her with just a trace of scorn about an amazing variety of spots at her place, I discovered to my great dismay that I made a spot. I knew that I had not meant to. But I did not dare offer that as an excuse to Molly. I watched her as she saw the spot I had made; then she turned her eyes toward me, and I heard her little voice say:

"That's all right, Daddy, I know just how you feel. I made some spots myself once!"

Dear little girl, you have taught your daddy something. There are spots enough to go round. We have made spots once ourselves.

Magazine Articles to be read, if possible, and reports given.

1. I Like to be Different, by Grace Fletcher—Christian Herald, February, 1936.

2. Will the Wets Cut Their Own Throat, by Frank S. Mead—Christian Herald, January, 1936.

3. Missionary for the Brewers, by Fred Eastman—Christian Century, February 19, 1936.

4. Curbing the Demon Rum with a Chalk Line—Christian Century, February 5, 1939.

5. Alcohol Automobiles and Autopsies, by Jay Milton Roque, Christian Herald, August, 1937.

Facts about Alcohol and the use of it:

1. It is not only the weak who fall prey to it but there have been many prominent Americans who have been examples of the destruction of lives caused by alcohol.

2. "In ten cities during nineteen weeks immediately following repeal the court records show increases in arrests for drunkenness that rang as high as 116 per cent.

3. "Indemnity companies have figured that the probability of being killed in an automobile accident has increased thirty-three per cent.

4. "Never before have so many drivers had their licenses taken because of intoxication."

5. Modern science has declared, (1) "Alcohol is a dehydrating, protoplasmic poison, and its use as a beverage is destructive and degenerating to the human organism." (2) "No other poison causes so many deaths or leads to or intensifies so many diseases, both physical and mental, as does alcohol in the various forms in which it is taken."

6. Dr. Taavetti Laiyenen, the world-famed specialist in diseases of children, made a study of 5,848 Finnish families and found that the total abstainers lost only 13.45 per cent of their children; the moderate drinkers lost 32.2%."

7. In 1936 it was estimated that there were 500,000 women employed in the business of serving liquor. How many do you think are employed in 1939?

Song: "Loyalty to Christ"

What can we as intermediates do about this serious problem?

1. Form our own convictions.

2. Stand true to those convictions whatever the cost.

3. What help can we get in the forming of proper convictions?

a. Ask youth leaders of your community to speak to your group.
b. Ask your local physician to help you. He knows what alcohol does to you physically.
c. Ask intermediates to consult textbooks, reference books, and magazines and give reports. We really learn when we find material ourselves.
d. Ask intermediates to interview leading business men in the community.
e. Why not ask a judge or a police officer to present his observations and convictions to you?
f. The editor of your local newspaper could give you some very worthwhile observations.
g. It may be possible to have a member of the state legislature at one of your meetings.
h. Have a committee responsible for bringing in clippings relative to this problem.

JUNIOR CORNER

"IT IS A GOOD THING TO GIVE THANKS UNTO THE LORD" — Psalm 92:1

Program for November 19, 1939

"All Ye Lands" — Psalm 11b
"All Ye People" — Psalm 148:11a

I. Worship Period

1. Prelude, Pianist plays softly, "Now Thank We All Our God".

2. Call to worship: Ps. 30:4; Ps. 107:8. "Sing unto toe Lord, O ye saints of His, and give thanks at the remembrance of His holiness. Oh that men would praise the Lord for His goodness, and for His wonderful works to the Children of men."

3. Remain seated, bow heads and sing very softly, "Into My Heart".

4. Leader's opening prayer.

5. Scripture: Psalms 117 in unison. Then a Junior boy reads all of Psalms 100,—again in unison Psalms 117.

6. Rise and sing: "Now Thank We All Our God"—Mennonite Hymn Book, no. 383.

7. Story told by a Junior girl.

"The Monk's Song of Praise"

"There is a legend of some monks in France who were beloved for their loving sympathy and many, many kind deeds. They had one great sorrow. None of them could sing. They too wanted to praise and thank the Lord in song, but try as they might, the music in their services was a failure. It was a great grief to them that only in their hearts could they make melody to the Lord and thus praise Him.

One day a traveling monk, a great singer, asked to stay for a while with them. Great was their joy, for now this newcomer could sing at their services, and they planned to keep him there always.

That night an angel came to the abbot in a dream. "Why was there no music, no songs of praise in your chapel tonight?" "We always listen for the beautiful music that rises from your service."

"You must have been mistaken," cried the abbot, usually we have no music worth hearing; but tonight we had a trained singer with a wonderful voice. It was he who sang for us." Then he added proudly, "For the first time in all these years our music was beautiful."

The angel smiled and said, "And yet, up in heaven we heard nothing."

—Retold.

II. Study Period. Aim: to help our Juniors realize that they should show their gratitude for God's many blessings as individuals, but also as members of a group.

1. Leader introduces the thought of—"who shall give thanks."

2. Two minute talk by a Junior. "I shall give thanks." "Bless the Lord, O my soul"—Ps. 103:1,2; "I will call on the Lord, who is worthy to be praised." 2 Sam. 22:4; "I will praise Thee."—Ps. 118:21a. Also Dan. 6:10.

3. Song.—"Count Your Many Blessings"—Solo.

4. Story by a Junior girl. "The Grateful Leper." Luke 17:11-19.

5. Two minute talk by a Junior.
The nation shall give thanks.
"We thank Thee".—1 Chron. 29:13; "Make a joyful noise unto the Lord all ye lands".—Ps. 100:1;

6. Reading of President's Thanksgiving Proclamation.

7. Reading of Governor's Thanksgiving Proclamation.

8. Song in unison. (Stand.) "America, the Beautiful"—Mennonite Hymn Book. No. 388.

9. Two minute talk by an older Junior.—God's people shall give thanks. "So we Thy people and sheep of Thy pasture will give Thee thanks forever. Psalms 79:13a; "Sing unto the Lord, O ye saints of His, and give thanks at the remembrance of His holiness." Ps. 30:4; Also Revelation 7:12-15.

10. Song of month by a trio. "Praise Him, Praise Him".

11. Reading of Psalms 148.

12. In unison verse of the month: "My Cup runneth over. Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life. Ps. 23.

III. Mission Minutes.

1. Name some great missionaries.
2. Tell something of the life and work of a missionary hero.
3. Leader's closing proyer.
4. Doxology.

LINCOLN'S THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION

October 3, 1863

"The year that is drawing to a close has been filled with the blessings of fruitful fields and healthful skies. To these bounties which are so constantly enjoyed that we are prone to forget the source from which they come, others have been added which are of so extraordinary a nature that they cannot fail to penetrate and soften the heart which is habitually insensible to the ever watchful Providence of Almighty God.

"In the midst of a civil war of unequalled magnitude and severity, which has sometimes seemed to foreign states to invite and provoke their aggression, peace has been preserved with all nations, order has been respected and obeyed, and harmony has prevailed everywhere except in the field of military conflict; while that theatre has been greatly contracted by the armies of the Union.

"Needful diversions of wealth and of strength from the fields of peaceful industry to the national defense have not arrested the plow, the shuttle, or the ship; the ax has enlarged the borders of our settlements, and mines, as well of iron and coal as of precious metals, have yielded more abundantly than heretofore. Population has steadily increased, not withstanding the waste that has been made in the camp, the siege, and the battlefield, and the country rejoicing in the consciousness of augmented strength and vigor is permitted to expect continuance of years with large increase of freedom.

"No human counsel hath devised, nor hath any mortal hand worked out these great things. They are the gracious gifts of the Most High God, who, while dealing with us in anger for our sins, hath nevertheless remembered us in mercy.

"With Humble Penitence—"

"It has seemed to me fit and proper that they should be solemnly, reverently, and gratefully acknowledged as with one heart and one voice by the whole American people. I do, therefore, invite my fellow citizens in every part of the United States, and also those who are at sea or who are sojourning in foreign lands, to set apart and observe the last Thursday of November next as a day of Thanksgiving and praise to our beneficient Father who dwelleth in the Heavens. And I recommend to them that while offering up the ascriptions justly due to Him for such singular deliverance and blessings, they do also with humble penitence for our natural perverseeness and disobedience, commend to His tender care all those who have become widows, orphans, mourners or sufferers in the lamentable civil strife in which we are unavoidably engaged, and fervently implore the interposition of the Almighty Hand to heal the wounds of the nation to the full enjoyment of peace, harmony, tranquility, and Union.

"In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

"Done at the City of Washington this third day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three, and of the independence of the United States the eighty-eighth.

A. Lincoln

By the Pres.: Wm. H. Seward, Secretary of State.

—"The Geary Menn. Church, received nine new members into its fellowship on October 22, four by rite of baptism and five by letter. One other was sick but is to be received later. During the winter months the Methodist, Christian, and Mennonite churches of Geary will have union Sunday evening services twice a month. Also a Union Young People's Council prior to the services. Just recently these same churches conducted a 3 weeks union revival.—Correspondent, Mrs. P. E. Frantz.

Publication

Attention

In The Mennonite of last week the announcement was made that a copy of "Articles of Faith" by C. Ris will be given free to all readers of the Mennonite who pay their subscription one year in advance from October 1939. In this announcement an error crept in. It should have read "who pay their subscription one year in advance from JANUARY 1, 1940. It is also necessary to state that the supply of these "Articles of Faith" is limited and that, therefore, the offer is good only as long as the present supply lasts.

This is a liberal premium offer because the book sells regularly for 40 cents. So send in your renewal early if you wish to obtain one of these valuable books.

Glimpses of the Recent Western District Conference Session

We have a suspicion that few readers relish a long stereotyped report of a two-days conference session. So we shall here give a brief summary of the doings of the conference held in Wichita, October 18-19.

Both the Ministers' Conference which met at Newton, Oct. 17, and the District Conference were well attended, interesting and pervaded by a fine spirit. The theme at the ministers' meeting was Exalting Christ. Rev. J. E. Entz in his opening sermon on Rom. 1:16 brought out some good and practical lessons. Exalting Christ in My Own Life was so ably treated by Rev. J. N. Smucker that the meeting voted to have it printed and distributed in pamphlet form. Exalting Christ in My Church, treated by Rev. M. Horsch, and Exalting Christ among my Fellowmen, by Rev. C. F. Hartman, a guest speaker, were rich in applicable spiritual food. An "Open Forum" conducted by Rev. A. J. Dyck brought on some interesting discussions. The question pertaining to the "Gemeindeprinzip" (Church Souvereignty) was brought up, because some church organization had been endangered by meddlesome outside influences, threatening the unity or solidarity of the Christian church. Caution: We must beware of strange doctrines making the rounds.

In Wichita, after opening devotions, Rev. J. M. Regier, conference president, gave his sermon, using the theme, Being Conferenc Conscious, based on Acts 4:32a, which was a plea for conference unity in spirit and action, and also contained warnings against questionable outside religious propaganda. Inasmuch as this sermon appears in part in this paper and will be concluded in the next one, we shall desist from further comments.

During the preliminaries pertaining to organization, statistics, etc., it was learned that of the 59 churches which the Conference has, 56 were represented by 275 delegates with about 330 votes. The Conference now has 11,294 members. The 10,861 S. S. membership is served by 1,040 officers and teachers. The Senior C. E. groups show a membership of 3,856. The Ladies' Mission Societies number 1,642 members. These contributed to Foreign Missions, $4,013; to Home Missions, $1,467; to all other purposes, $1,661, making a total of $7,141. There are 92 active and retired ministers in the Conference, with ages from 29 to 76, average 51. The churches made the following contributions during 1938: For local church support, $58,748; Foreign Missions, $26,095; Home Missions, $9,258; Relief, $4,874, all other purposes, including education, $30,183; making a total of $130,141.

The Home Mission Committee's report showed considerable activity. It assists ten mostly small and consequently weak churches, and three groups, in maintaining church services. The Committee might, and would, do more extensive and in some instances more intensive work, if it were not for the lack of funds. During the past year it has caused to be erected a nice brick church in the city of Enid, Oklahoma, which cost in excess of $7,000.00. A larger building for the rapidly growing church in Wichita is a coming necessity. This church, with aid from Bethel College, has also developed a nucleus of a tenement mission group in southwest Wichita. It has shown its readiness to undertake big things by inviting the Conference to its city, and has done splendidly in looking to the entertainment part.

The Education Committee which with the help of a radio committee was to arrange programs "for the spreading of the gospel by ministers of the Conference," reported considerable difficulty in their efforts in this line. Because the radio committee was given a fifteen-minute weekly use of the KFH station in Wichita, free, the management insisted on certain proceedures. Since they faced the demands of other denominations for similar service, they asked that Bethel College put on the programs as the "Mennonite Hour," and that the programs be in dramatic form. So after some micsellaneous preliminary programs, the College gave a series of dramas from Old Testament history, concluding them with the story of Joseph, when the spring school semester came to its close. The Conference voted that its directions of the previous year be carried out this year, if at all possible.—This Committee now has assembled a conference Loan Library of nearly 1000 volumes, of which fairly good use is being made by nearby churches. With postage on books reduced to 1½ cents per pound, it is hoped more distant churches will fall in line, too. The Committee has sent two boxes containing about 600 German books to the brethren in South America, while another box is to be sent to Canada. In collaboration with the S. S. Board of the First Church, Newton, the Committee has also arranged for the printing of large Bible Memory charts for Sunday Schools. Besides, it urged provisions for Daily Vacation Bible Schools by all churches, with longer terms where possible. A very encouraging report by the Retreat Committee concluded this part of the program.

Following this was the report of Bethel College. Relative to the Student Body it was noted that the enrollment last year, including summer school, but eliminating all repetitions of names, was 496, the senior class numbering 50. An increasing number of graduates are going into the ministry and foreign mission work. Five years ago the Mennonite enrollment was 150, last year it was 264, representing 68 congregations. For the current year the enrollment thus far is 345, the largest in history. The demand for work by students is constantly increasing, which creates quite a problem, with efforts to meet it. The Faculty has undergone some changes. The beloved Dr. J. E. Linscheid was removed by death. Prof. Willis Rich, because of impaired health, had to seek different work. Rev. J. M. Regier, field secretary, became pastor of the Johannstal Church, but continues with Bethel for part time. All these places, with two others have been acceptably filled. As to Finances the school continues to have its weighty problems. But they serve to keep it "close to its constituency and ever mindful of the fact that it exists for Christ and His church." In spite of economic stress, the school's endowment has grown, the plant has developed, the Memorial Hall fund has increased and the debt slightly decreased. Rev. S. J. Goering again assumes his position as business manager and his place on the Board of Directors has been filled by the appointment of Mr. K. A. Richert of Newton.

The Peace Committee too showed activity and, among other thing, reported a "tentative plan" of action to be observed jointly by the Mennonite churches in case of war. In this connection it was reported that the General Conference Relief Board hoped to send a representative to Europe to assist in relief work. Likewise the churches were reminded of our obligation assumed at the Conference in Saskatoon, to help pay the debt of those refugees in Canada who are physically incapacitated to do their share, or are dead.

Next in order were the reports of the Committee for the Care of Poor, and those of our Hospitals, Beatrice Bethel and Bethesda. These institutions showed increased activity and added devolopment. Someone has found that the total number of patients cared for by them the past year was 2341. Fears were expressed in regard the effect of the "Wagner Hospital Health Bill" on "Voluntary Hospitals." But why could not these hospitals join the movement toward community hospitalization, whither the government and the bill are tending?

The Ladies' Missionary Society meeting on the first evening, under the able presidency of Mrs. A. M. Lohrentz, featured an interesting and instructive program, considerably enhanced by a group of missionaries arrayed on the stage in the costumes of the people whom they serve. Interesting talks were given by Missionary John Thiessen on India, Mrs. W. C. Voth on China, and Rev. John S. Raugh on Home Missions. The collection amounted to $120.00.

The Book Shop featured by our Mennonite Book Concern, under the efficient salesmanship of Brother C. B. Friesen of Mountain Lake, and his wife proved to be a fitting adjunct to the Conference. The sales were quite satisfactory and some twenty subscriptions to our church papers were received.

Appropriate music was rendered during the sessions by different church choirs or quartets. Altogether the Conference was preceptibly blessed by God, and the chairman performed his task well.

— Rev. J. H. Janzen, Waterloo, Ontario, conveys interesting news. Newspaper clippings sent us by Brother Janzen, report that seventy-five pacifist ministers of the United Church of Canada on Friday, October 20, issued a manifesto expressing their disapproval of "this or any other war," as incompatable with the Christian spirit and aims. The clergymen assembled in Toronto, behind closed doors, at what was described as a "witness against war." Dr. Richard D. Roberts, former moderator of the United Church of Canada is one of the prominent signatories. But already the authorities are stirring up things. The attorney-general calls the action pussilaminous and "seriously considers prosecution if it contravenes Section 39 of the Defense of Canada Regulations." Brother Janzen adds, "The Manifesto of the United Church of Canada beat the Mennonite ministers to it. My question, 'Where, O where did all those peace time pacifists go? has been answered satisfactorily.' " — First Church, Bluffton, Ohio.—"Who can stand thoughtlessly on a beautiful fall morning and not feel God speaking to him? Take a leaf that has fallen to be lost forever and read what God has written on that leaf. How happy we should be to know that there is something more abiding than the leaf that withers away and is no more. Ch. Bulletin.

— Hebron Menn. Church, Buhler, Kans.—Missionary and Mrs. Voth spoke in this church Sunday morning, Oct. 22. In the evening they showed pictures of our mission field. The services were interesting and attended by a large audience. The Voth family had dinner with Dr. and Mrs. Lohrentz and supper with the Rev. van der Smissen family.—Corr.

— CHANGE OF ADDRESS: Rev. Walter H. Temple, formerly of Wilkes Barre, Pa., notifies us that his address is now: 238 South 14th Street, Allentown, Pa. —In a note Brother Temple mentions the fact that much of the $250.00 needed to help John Boehr through Bluffton College this year is yet to come in. The brethren in the Eastern District aim to see the young man through college. He is preparing for Christian work in China. Being the son of Missionary P. J. Boehr, formerly of China, he has the language already and will be able to start active mission work on his arrival there.

— ATTENTION!—The Mennonite of November 21 will be a MISSION NUMBER and articles pertaining to missions will have the right of way over all others in this paper. Christlicher Bundesbote, the German paper will bring the mission material a week before.

— WEDDING.—"The Mennonite Church of Butterfield, Minn., was the scene of a lovely wedding Sunday evening, Oct. 15, when Louise Linscheid, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Linscheid, became the birde of Amund Thompson of Minneapolis. Mr. and Mrs. Thompson left the same evening for San Francisco, Los Angeles and other points in the West."—Corr.

— WEDDING—First Menn. Church, Butterfield, Minn.,—"On Sunday afternoon, Oct. 22, a large number of relatives and friends gathered at the church, the occasion being the marriage of Mrs. J. P. Linschied to Mr. Gerhard Bartel of Aberdeen, Idaho. Rev. P. J. Friesen, a former minister and long time neighbor of the bride, and Rev. John Bartel of Mt. Lake spoke before the ceremony. Rev. Schultz, the local pastor, united them in marriage. They will make their home in Aberdeen."

— The Mennonite Aid Plan, an organization insuring against fire, held its triannual session at Mountain Lake, Minn., Oct. 11-12, and elected the following officers: Pres., Christ. Thierstein, Whitewater, Kans., vice Presidents, Geo. D. Wiens, Corn, Okla.,, John Roup, Hesston, Kans.; Gen. Secretary, D. J. Mendel, Freeman, S. D.; Treasurers, J. M. Wollman, Freeman; D. G. Hiebert, Mt. Lake; D. K. Hiebert, Buhler, Kans. The next meeting will be held at Hillsboro, Kans.—Freeman Courier.

— Missionary J. B. Ediger extends the following sincere invitation to the Indians and people of his charge: "If there are others in our three districts who know they are sinners, and repent of their sins, and want Jesus as their personal Savior, do not wait. Come now. To know your sins are forgiven, to know Jesus Christ is your personal Savior, to know you are a child of God, to know you have a home in heaven where there is no night, no temptation, no sickness, no tears, no death, gives a joy that must be experienced to understand it."

—South or Salem Menn. Church, Freeman, S. D.—The Pastor announces baptismal services and reception of new members on Sunday, Nov. 12. He reports that "at present there are 35 members of the South Church that are married to someone that is not a member of this church. Family unity and solidarity are greatly aided by belonging to the same church."—Messiah Oratorio practices are well attended. The choir lofts of the two churches are too small.—The pastor who was operated on for a cancerous tumor of the colon Aug. 13 and is home again since Sept. 17 and preaching now, expects to be called back to the hospital for the final major operation, Nov. 15. Much depends on this operation.—May we all pray that, if it be God's will, he may pass through that ordeal safely!—News Letter.

—Zion Church, Souderton, Pa.—The attendance at the Study Class for Sunday School teachers has been fine so far. The secret of a strong Sunday School is the teachers and leaders who are thoroughly consecrated to their task and who will try to understand the Bible as well as possible. One of the important questions of the New Testament is, What did Jesus mean by the Kingdom of God? What is its relation to the Second Coming of Christ? We hope that our teachers can all be present as we study and discuss these vital questions.

Editorial

THE CHURCH HAS MANY FAULTS.—We have often been told that by all sorts of people. It has been criticised freely, from within and without its fold. If criticism would cure the troubles of the church, it should be in a very healthy condition by this time. Criticism has its place and sometimes does some good. But the other side of the picture should not be obscured by the critics. The church is useful. It is necessary to our well-being. It is the most important institution in human society with the possible exception of the home. One should be glad to be a member of the church. Its support should be with enthusiasm and without apology.

A noted scientist says this of the church:

"A very large fraction of the altruistic and humanitarian work of the world, in all its forms, has its mainspring today in the Christian churches. My own judgement is that about ninety five per cent of it has come and is coming, directly or indirectly, from the influence of organized religion in the United States. My own judgement is that if the influence of the American churches in the furtherance of socially wholesome, forward-looking movements, in the spread of conscientious and unselfish living of all sorts, were to be eliminated, our democracy would in a few years become so corrupt that it could not endure."—The quotation is from Robert A. Millikan of the California Institute of Technology.—"The Herold", Upland, California.

ARMISTICE DAY, NOVEMBER 11.—What should we do with Armistice Day this year? is a question in the minds of many thoughtful people. We have celebrated the day to express our joy over the ceasing of the World War, to give thanks for the return of peace, and to pray that war may be no more. But what did God say to the whole affair? "He that sitteth in the heavens will (did) laugh: the Lord will have (people, nations) in derision. Then he will speak unto them in His wrath, and vex them in sore displeasure," Psalm 2:4.—Yes, God must have laughed at our celebration of the treaty of Varseilles as an arbiter of peace, when in fact it was the most treacherous betrayal of humanity's hope for peace and good will among men, when it merely sowed the seeds for more wars. And does he not now vex the people of Europe in sore displeasure? Under the present, most deplorable conditions, the churches can do only one thing: Meet silently, penitently, shall we say in sacks and ashes, as it were, to mourn the absence of peace and the terrible tragedy that God-forsaken nations have brought upon themselves, and vow to get together the world over in determined opposition to war and the need of lasting peace, if such a peace is humanly possible.—T.

"GEMEINDEPRINZIP" — CHURCH UNITY AND DEMOCRACY.—This German term, for which it is difficult to find an exact English equivalent, has meant much in Mennonite circles, though subject to varried interpretation. For one thing it signifies a strong sense of unity and communion in spiritual life, as examplified by the early Jerusalem church. It also involves a strong element of independence or democracy maintained by individual churches. It is on the latter phase we wish to comment, because of certain weaknesses involved, of which this is an illustration: Our general conference constitution declares its opposition to the lodge, but since its function is merely advisory rather than legislative, it cannot execute its precepts. It must leave it to the churches to use their judgement in dealing with them.

The conference in its efforts to carry on its activities or projects, mostly through boards, is entirely dependent on the churches for their adequate support. In its budgetary estimates it can suggest proportionate giving to the different activities, but experience has shown that many churches pay no attention to the arrangement proposed. In good times matters go tolerably well, but in poor times some of the activities are so inadequately remembered that their work often suffers to the hurting point. Foreign missions, due to the fact that it has come to be our major project, also the lift given it by frequent visits of missionaries on furlough, and the enchantment lent to the work by distance, usually fares quite well, while some of the other activities are languishing for support. Just now it is home missions, publication and relief that are pleading for more adequate help, for reasons which our papers have been holding before us. Anyone who will watch our monthly financial reports by the board treasurers, can see how few churches really support all of our activities. If we could only get every family and independent member in the conference to tithe. If then, as second step, our boards could agree on a fair division of the tithe dollar; and if, in third place, everybody would heed their counsel, how much better our conference activities would prosper. This subject of adequate financial support of the different conference activities is so important that it should be placed upon the program of our next conference session as a major topic.—T

KAI CHOW HOSPITAL NOTES

by C. L. Pannabecker

Meeting Mr. Li reminded me of a day just one year ago; in fact, Mr. Li reminded me himself. He said, "Do you remember me? A year ago I came to the hospital and you treated my wound and said I'd be all right in a few days, and the other man who was brought with me died." Yes, I well remember that day—my first experience with war bombing. The day before we had been at the office of the Asiatic Petroleum Company office. Mr. Li jumped under a table when he heard crashes around. The building collapsed, one man was killed, another injured severely and died, and Mr. Li received only a minor scratch on his head because the table protected him.

"God saved my life," he said. "I think God shoved me under the table, and ever since then I have thought I ought to serve him. Last spring I became a Christian and studied the catechism and was accepted as a church member."

The business Mr. Li was in went "flat" and Mr. Li started a little stand selling food articles, "not much of a business," he aid, "but I made a living until now—so many people leave town there is not much to do." Mr. Li lives an earnest Christian life and is one of those who has been brought to Christ through the terrors of war.

RELIEF

As per General Conference resolution at Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, Canada, the Mennonite Churches of our conference in the United States would try to collect from the members 2-3 (approximately $27,000.00) of the hopeless emigrant debt which is for transportation. Our Board has several times called the attention of the conference churches to this promise. Only $1648.96 has been collected. We would through this note remind our churches of this obligation.

Being Conference Conscious

President's Sermon by Rev. J. M. Regier, preached before the Western District Conference, Oct. 18, 1939

(Concluded from last week)

A second field of service is that of Home Missions. Here the condition is very much like it is in Foreign Missions. In one respect it is even a little more complicated. The District Conference has its own home mission work, and a large field, too. As General Conference churches, desiring to be "of one heart and one soul," we have obligated ourselves to support that work and as members of the District Conference we have this additional field to look after. Both Boards could use more funds if they were available. Should we not first satisfy the needs of our own children before we venture out to support others?

When we think of the field of Publication, a third child in the family, we find one that has often been overlooked and neglected. Such discrimination should not happen in a family. Occasionally we enter homes of our Conference and there find church periodicals, but not of our own. People are practically uninformed as to the work of our own conference, but we do not want to ignore that either. I believe I have been a subscriber to both of our church papers for at least twenty-five years, and at the same time I always keep several other religious magazines in my home. I want to know what other Christians and larger church bodies are doing. I have received much inspiration from these periodicals. When we think of that new publication of our conference, the Adult Sunday School Quarterly, we believe the churches have done commendable work. The Quarterly is exceptionally good and the churches have been quick to appreciate this. However, some S. S. classes have never given our own literature a trial.

When it comes to our hymnals we are far from being "one heart and one soul." We trust that when the new hymn book will appear it will do much to bring this about. In order to meet this condition in Canada they are publishing an "einheitliches Gesangbuch." Singing is always a way of drawing hearts together and by singing the same old gospel songs in our churches much will be done to bring about this conscious unity.

Our Book Concern is prepared to provide you with every and any book that you need. Within the last few weeks the Publication Board has been pleading for an annual offering from each church. If we would support our own Book Concern to the extent that we would secure our books from them, the profit that now goes to other book concerns, would then remain with our publication cause, and these annual offerings might not even be necessary.

When we think of the children of our home, we do not like to think of one as being more important than another. Nevertheless, in later life one will play a more important part than another. One Conference child that is growing in importance is that of Education. We just cannot overemphasize the significance of this work. Again we have a General Conference Board of Education and a District Conference Education Committee. Their cause is the same and they supplement one another. I already referred to the S. S. Quarterly. It is the Board of Education that sponsors its preparation so it can be published. They have prepared other literature for the good of our people.

A Sunday school standard has been provided whereby each school can measure its efficiency. A limited amount of literature has been prepared for children to be used in S. S. and vacation Bible school. But the Board of Education is also very deeply interested in providing leadership for our churches. For that reason they have given very much attention to our colleges and a possible seminary.

As a Western District Conference we naturally feel a greater interest and obligation in Bethel College than in our other colleges. I doubt whether is is possible to do more in the matter of becoming "one heart and one soul" than in the matter of training of leadership. This became the great concern of our fathers immediately after the immigration of 1874-1878. They contended a school must be built that through its leadership conscious unity might be established among our churches. The influence of that first strong Bible teacher in Bethel College, Prof. C. H. Wedel, is still bearing fruit. He created in us a sympathetic, harmonious understanding of the Holy Scriptures that has served as a tie that binds our hearts in Christian love. Scores of times have I heard the students of Dr. Langenwalter quote their beloved Bible teacher, who had done so much to create among them a sympathetic understanding. And already in their thinking many are following the consecrated leadership of Professors Kreider and Warkentin.

It stands to reason that when ministers have had an entirely different background in college and Bible school or seminary, and in addition have a nature that likes to assert itself, that it will sometimes be difficult to obtain that harmony which is needful to be of "one heart and of one soul." If the future of our church is to be a power, we must have institutions that make for such conscious unity.

A fifth child that calls for help periodically and sometimes very urgently, is that of Relief. We are surrounded with opportunities to aid in relief, but this Board was established to help especially where those of the "household of faith" are involved. Last week I, as also undoubtedly many of you, received a letter addressed to 100,000 American preachers, in behalf of the inexpressible suffering due to the floods in China. The same week our church papers printed a letter from missionary Brown telling us of the intense suffering in our own Chinese field near Tamingfu. Naturally we want to help, but does it not become our first duty to place some funds into the hands of our own missionaries so they can render such aid? Whether the money is intended for war sufferers or the Red Cross, we like to forward our contributions through our Relief Board.

The sixth child has to do with money and real estate; it is the Board of Trustees. How well they have taken care of many of the large donations that have been made by different persons. Large gifts and bequests can always be handled by this Board. Only a few weeks ago I learnt of a man with some means, a man with a very familiar name, who had stated that his estate should go to the Bible Institute in Los Angeles and possibly the John Brown school. The institutions of his own people would be very glad for gifts and would be able to make very good use of them.

Occasionally somebody leaves a large gift or bequest with some person when his own family members received only minor portions. It never meets with the approval of the community when the own family members have been unduly discriminated against. When a church organization is "of one heart and one soul" its members will prefer to turn their large gifts over to the Trustees of this organization, that they might be used for the furtherance of God's cause through their own church, rather than some other organization.

Thus to the extent that there is conscious unity within our conference, in other words, a strong sense of Conference consciousness, created by that spirit that makes us "one heart and one soul," will our joint efforts be effective. A spirit of harmony always adds a great deal to the joy and happiness of serving in a common cause. None of us will claim that our Conference is faultless. We frequently discover that other methods than those that were used would have been better and wiser. But our aim and desire is that all the conference endeavors shall be for the "perfecting of the saints, unto the work of ministering, unto the building up of the body of Christ: till we all attain unto the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a fullgrown man, unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ."

How we desire that at the close of this conference session it might be said of us: "And the multitude of them that believed were of "one heart and of one soul."

DEPENDENCE

O Love triumphant over guilt and sin,
My Soul is soiled, but thou shalt enter in;
My feet must stumble if I walk alone,
Lonely my heart, still beating by thine own,
My Will is weakness till it rest in thine,
Cut off, I wither, thirsting for the Vine,
My deeds are dry leaves on a sapless tree,
My life is lifeless till in live in thee!

Into the Valley of Service

Matt. 17:9

Who will not agree that every conference and especially the last one of the Pacific District Churches held at Monroe in June was one of inspiration and help. Messages of inspiration were given. Again the business part of our Conference which gave an inventory of what is being done by the Evangelization Committee was interesting and helpful. Like the disciples of Christ, we were taken away from the valley of service to evaluate once more the many blessings received throughout another year. When we think of the additions in church membership, Sunday school attendance, and C. E. workers, who would not praise Him from whom all blessings flow?

But, like the disciples could not stay on the mountain because the valley was calling, so did the Pacific Conference realize that further plans must be made for carrying on the work of the Lord. We cannot walk with uplifted eye and folded hands through this world. We need to descend from a time of worship and praise into our valleys of service.

An since we have taken inventory of our conference work on the mountain top, let us not forget it in the valley. There is the Dallas Church building which is still incomplete. The Conference pledged itself with a motion that every church take one offering towards its completion. The congregation is growing rapidly and the need for more room is evident. Again, the workers of the smaller groups like Winton, California, Newport and Deer Park, Washington, and the city mission in Portland, are partially supported by our offering. There are other avenues of missionary service in the Pacific District Conference. The treasurer, Brother J. C. Jantz, in a letter of September 6, 1939, reviews our financial situation and pleads that the conference churches remember our TREASURY with their offerings. The scene of the Mountain was glorious, but the scene of the Valley is no less so. LET US DO OUR PART IN THE VALLEY OF SERVICE DURING THIS CONFERENCE YEAR.

—Pacific District Worker's Exchange.

Yours in His service, Phil. A. Wedel, President.

— Bluffton College.—The first building project which Bluffton students have been handling is now nearing completion, and Mr. Cheney, the sponsor, will use it for his poultry business which consists in raising young chickens as frys for hotels and resturants. He has agreed to employ 15-20 students throughout the year, with a total of 12,000 hours of work.

— Bethel College.—At the recent inauguration of Dr. Lloyd L. Ramseyer as president of Bluffton College, the degree, LL. D., Doctor of Law, was conferred on President E. G. Kaufman, also on Dr. S. K. Mosiman, president emeritus of Bluffton College. At the banquet Dr. Kaufman gave the address.

What Are the Peace Committees Doing?

by E. L. Harshbarger

An almost chronic lack of funds has always hampered the work of our peace committees, but more has been accomplished in the period since the first world war than in all previous Mennonite history. Constantly recurring international crises of ever increasing intensity have created more interest in peace activity, and hence, committees are receiving more encouragement. A brief review of our organizations and programs will be of interest to our members.

1. A "Statement of Position," thoroughly Biblical, has been adopted and circulated widely among our people. This pamphlet also contains our concept of true patriotism.

2. These statements have been presented to the President of the United States, and the representatives reported a very pleasant visit.

3. A program for action along the lines of peace education has been adopted, but inadequately performed because of lack of funds.

4. District peace committees have been organized, the one in the Western District having done noble work for the last several years. It is hoped that each district will perfect such an organization

5. As outlined in a recent issue of The Mennonite, A Mennonite Central Peace Committee, representing seven branches of Mennonites, was created, September 30, for the purpose of coordinating our efforts for peace education and perfecting plans for aid to conscientious objectors in events of war.

6. As a result of contacts made at the World Mennonite Convention in Holland, an international Mennonite Peace Committee has been created to strengthen the faith of and offer brotherly help to all Mennonites holding the historic non-resistant position in whatever country they may live.

7. Cooperation with Friends and Brethren has been most cordial and fruitful. These churches have adopted the same statement of position, have assisted in its presentation to the President, and are now at work on a joint plan of action for conscientious objectors in the event of war. Plans are also being formulated for sacrificial service before and during the hostilities. Plans for such service will be laid before the proper government officials within the next few days.

8. Increased efforts to spread peace literature are being made. In the event of war it may be impossible to do this well.

To further this program of preparation to meet any emergency which may arise we need more funds. If you value Mennonite principles, and if you would aid our boys upon whom the brunt of any hostilities would fall, then please forward contributions at once to the treasurer of the General Conference Peace Committtee, Mr. L. J. Horsch, of Upland, California.

FREEMAN, S. D., OCTOBER 20, 1939

To our many Friends who remembered me during my recent illness:

We feel constrained to address this word of personal appreciation to all of you for your remembrance of us in the recent unexpected trial. You visited us during the 32 days in the Sacred Heart Hospital at Yankton, South Dakota. You did that with a card or a letter, and many of you even did it personally.

Several hundred cards and letters came from far and near. It seemed as though our own SALEM CONGREGATION came nearer to us, even though their Pastor was lying critically ill at the Hospital. It seemed as though our many prayer remembrancers from New York to California and from Texas to Canada were at our side. The many precious Scripture promises that you laid before us were as a feast of the Lord to us. And—most marvelous—the Lord heard and answered your prayers for us.

Singularly pointed and precious were such words of the Lord as Jeremiah 30:27, "For I will restore health unto thee, and I will heal thy wounds, saith the Lord," and John 11:4, "The sickness is not unto death, but for the glory of God, that the Son of God may be glorified thereby." We had hardly been aware of these particular verses until some of you held them up before us, and then they began to grip our souls. They became the direct Word of the Lord to us. He provided me with the right kind of hospital care. I had expert surgical attention. The nurses and Sisters, always at hand and always cheerful, applied every means at their disposal for my comfort and restoration.

As far as recovery is possible for the present, I have recovered. I have already gained ten pounds after losing twenty-two. I have already preached and am doing most of my routine pastoral work. But the removal of the cancerous tumor from my colon required the severing of the bowl. So I am awaiting another major operation about the 15th of November at the same Hospital, at which time Dr. F. J. Abts, my very efficient surgeon, will try to close the colostrum.

My earnest desire and prayer is, that the Lord may have His way with me, and that He may find me altogether pliable in His hands to accomplish His purposes with me. The coming operation is a critical one. Its successful outcome depends upon the direction and blessing of the Lord.

May I therefore ask you to pray for me and Mrs. Schroeder and for the surgeon. "The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much." James 5:16. "If ye shall ask anything in my name I will do it." John 14:14.

Mrs. Schroeder, who has been so utterly indispensable to me through it all, joins me in addressing you with this letter.

Thankfully and humbly yours in the bonds of faith,

P. R. Schroeder.

KEEP THE FAITH

by Don. E. Smucker

The organized sin of mass murder has started: Europe and Asia are in flames.

To Mennonites these are dark moments not only because of a general sense of tragedy but because so many of our brethren are living in warring countries. In Canada, Germany, Russia and France there are Mennonites facing the bitter trials of conscription or mobilization. Our prayers must be with them.

In the months to come, all efforts must be made to keep America out of this debauchery. The history of 1914-18 must not repeat itself! In New York there are thousands of people already making vast sums of money in war stocks. The book store near our apartment is advertising special books of capitalizing on the war boom in the stock market. Think of it! Men are gleefully engaging in a traffic with instruments of death to be used in slaughtering their fellow men. This is sin.

All energies must be bent on keeping the church out of war. A. J. Muste (who was converted from Communism to Christianity) declares that the church must choose: it cannot be half pacifist and half militarist. If the church does not take the offensive, following the Mennonites, Quakers and Dunkards, the kingdom of God will greatly suffer. At present a great campaign is being set up to organize the Christian conscience of America against war. Fortunately, I can report that many Methodists, Congregationalists, Disciples, Episcopalians and Presbyterians will take the Mennonite pacifist position in this campaign. We will not be alone; some progress has been made!

Finally, the Mennonite church must take immediate steps to prepare its youth. Every single church should set up a special committee of prayer and instruction for young people, especially young men, who may face the question of conscription. The basis for these discussions might well be the Pacifist Handbook jointly written by the Fellowship of Reconciliation and other religious peace groups. Copies of this handbook may be secured from the Fellowship of Reconciliation, 2929 Bdwy., New York City. The Fellowship, an organization for Christian pacifists of all denominations, also urges Mennonites to unite with brothers of similar faith, by joining this group. Since we are small we must make our influence as great as possible by uniting with those who, after 400 years of persecution, now share our faith.

No one can miss this great truth: every single sacrifice made by Mennonites in the past 400 years was justified. Now as never before we declare with Menno Simons: "THE REGENERATED DO NOT GO TO WAR NOR FIGHT."

PEACE is the happy natural state of man; war his corruption, his disgrace.—Thomson.

WARNINGS AND PROMISES

Matt. 7:1-14

Judging Others, Motes and Beams vs. 1-5

Jesus is laying down certain rules to guide his disciples in the Christian life. The important thing for us is to grasp the meaning of these teachings and let the truth sink into our souls. Sinners should not judge other sinners and Christians are not to hold that censorious spirit which is so ready to find faults in and pass sentence upon others. This spirit, too common yet, is here condemned by Jesus (v1, 2). Judging is God's work, not ours. We are not competent to pass judgment upon others. We so readily see the smaller fautls in others—the "mote"—and fail entirely to see the very much greater faults—the "beam"—in ourselves (vs 3, 4). The critical and unloving temper of the fault-finder is as a beam in his eye. He can not see the faults in another in the true light. When we pass judgment on others we are really judging ourselves. We too judge others by standards quite different from those by which we judge ourselves. Before we can help another to get the mote out of his eye, we must be sure that our moral and spiritual understanding is not vitiated by our own defects and faults. Our life needs to be above reproach.

Christ does not mean that we shall never form any opinions in our minds concerning anyone. To do this we would have to stop thinking. Moral criticism is inevitable. Jesus practiced it when He judged the Pharisees, but He was guided by the law of love. We must not regard our opinions of others as infallable and final.

Pearls and Swine v 6

Jesus indicates clearly that there is a proper sphere for exercising our power of judgment (v6). Precious truths we should seek to give to those who will appreciate them. Some people are like swine in their lack of appreciation of spiritual things. There are also sometimes experiences in Christians' lives which are too sacred to give to those who will but scoff and reject the truth. We should treat religion with caution and prudence in speaking to others.

Wisdom of Prayer vs 7-12

Jesus begins his words upon prayer with three commands and each accompanied with a promise (v7), one of the most gracious words He ever spoke. He urges us to ask with importunity (cf Luke 11:9, 13). God is willing and desires to give to us and our receiving depends on ourselves. True prayer brings results (v8). Earnest asking goes farther, it also seeks and knocks; it finds and has the door opened. Jesus does not promise that everything asked for is given, but He does say that "everyone that asketh receiveth." In sincere prayer there is power and every prayer effects something. God, our Father, will give His good things to those who sincerely ask Him. His spirit of love and justice, ingrained in our hearts and applied to all relationships in life, will lead us to treat others as we desire them to treat us.

The Strait Gate vs 13, 14.

The "way" symbolizes a manner of life. Jesus says, take the narrow way of separation and self-denial which is found by the few. The multitude go down the broad way of sin. Living a life acceptable to God requires determination. Self-mastery and self-denial are not easy. People entering upon the Christian life need to exercise vigilance. God will fulfill His promise and we must do our part. We should always endeavor earnestly to live by the Golden Rule.

The Doom of Capitalism

By Mrs. S. P. Preheim, Freeman, S. D.

Yes, capitalism is doomed. Its doom was spoken 2000 years ago. Read James 5:1-6. "Go to now, ye rich men, weep and howl for your miseries that shall come upon you." We know by the context that James is speaking of the "last days," that this prophecy is still in the future, but we believe in the very near future.

James accuses the capitalists of four things: 1. "Ye have heaped treasure together for the last days." When has the world ever known so many millionnaires, and so many very poor? Not only have they "heaped together treasures," but they have withdrawn from circulation and buried gold and silver. The very "rust of them shall be a witness against them." Some people ridicule this statement and say, "Gold and silver do not rust." I have heard, from good authority, that when undisturbed long enough, it gathers a sort of mold which causes it to deteriorate.

2. "Ye have kept back by fraud the hire of the laborer." v. 4. There does seem to be something wrong, somewhere, when the one furnishing the capital becomes a millionnaire, and the one furnishing the labor can scarcely make a living for a small family. James accuses the capitalists of fraud. Of course in our day, they stay within the limits of the law (usually), but the laws are all formed for the protection of the rich: I could give many an example, but it is unnecessary, as the reader surely must have observed some himself.

3. "Ye have lived in pleasure,—Ye have nourished your hearts," v. 5. What else would YOU expect of the wealthy, but to "live in pleasure, and to nourish their hearts"? They claim their money is their own, and why should they not enjoy it. It seems the LORD expects something else of them. Did you ever notice that, "The Rich Man," whose fields the Lord had blessed so that they brought forth bountifully, accumulated his wealth in an honest way, by labor and thrift? There is no mention of fraud. Yet, the Lord addresses him "thou fool," Why? Because he had left the Lord and the poor out of his reckoning. "Thou fool," not for laboring and being thrifty, but for hoarding for personal use. "This night thy soul will be required of thee. Then whose will those things be?"

4. "Ye have condemned and killed the just," v. 6.

A terrible accusation. If we put it in a milder form and call it, perverted justice, then we need not seek far for concrete examples even in our day.

James says, "Go to now, ye rich men, weep and howl for your miseries that shall come upon you." The Lord hath spoken, let men take heed.

Yes, capitalism is doomed. Just how the rich will be punished is not revealed. Judging from the trends of the times, I would say, God is permitting the evil one to gather together the Christless poor, of which there are hoards, and that these will be the scourge, that will cause the rich to weep and howl for the miseries that have come upon them.

What should be the attitude of the true Child of God when these things come to pass? You have the answer in verses 7-9. "Be patient therefore brethren." "Establish your hearts; for the coming of the Lord draweth nigh." "Grudge not one against another."

Be patient unto the coming of the Lord. Let the banks and insurance companies take your farms, your businesses, your homes; for when the trumpet shall sound, and Christ shall appear, and we, "whose hearts are established," shall be caught up to meet Him in the clouds," "then whose shall these things be," which we leave behind? Our children's? God forbid. Oh that they too, might all be ready to answer the summons of the great trumpet. I fear greatly that earthly possessions will be the weight, which will prevent many a Christian from rising to meet his Lord in the air, and from participation of the "Marriage Supper of the Lamb." True child of God, do not begrudge, nor envy the rich; but rather pity them.

RALLY

The Western District Young People's Peace Rally will be held in the Eden Church, Moundridge, Kansas, on Sunday, Nov. 12, 1939, beginning at 7:30 p.m. The tentative program features Dr. E. L. Harshbarger, professor at Bethel College, as speaker.

Dr. Harshbarger has traveled in Europe and was a student at the Hague last summer. He was on the waters when the European conflict began. He has visited Mennonites in Netherlands. Dr. Harshbarger will emphasize the historical angle in his discussion of "Peace Convictions".

Young People are urged to attend this rally to develop a Christian attitude toward war, and to pause in an hour of uncertainty to reconsider their relation to God and the world at large. As individuals we should keep calm, weigh the facts, and let reason rule over passion. This has been and is the work of the peace movement.

Dr. E. G. Kaufman was the main speaker at the first rally on Aug. 20, 1939, in the First Mennonite Church at Newton.

Publication

BOARD OF PUBLICATION IN NEED OF MORE CASH

The Board of Publication is very anxious to get the new Hymn Book out as early as it is humanly possible, and many of our churches want the book just as badly.

Our Board has felt that we should have about $3000.00 ready cash before giving the order for the making of the book. To obtain this fund we have repeatedly appealed to the churches to send in their annual gifts for the work of publication or, if they chose, for help with the Hymn Book.

As the gifts have been coming in rather slowly so far, we find it necessary to use a second plan to get the money still lacking. This plan is: 1) for churches to order new Hymn Books ahead and pay for them, now, or 2) to send (loan) our treasury any sum they may choose, for which they agree to take books as soon as they are ready.

Or, may we make this plea to members of our conference who are well-to-do, to loan us such sums of money as they may see fit, without interest, with our promise that it will be repaid from the sale of books.

The following is an exhibit of the money now in our treasury that may be used for financing the song book and the amount we are still sorely in need of:

Designated for hymn book	$ 417.38
General fund possibly available for book	439.29
Advance payments on hymn book	358.00
	$1214.67
Amount still needed to start making the book is	$1785.67

One church with great faith in God and those who have prepared the new Hymn Book has sent in a check for $300.00 for 200 books or as many as this will buy. The price for the book will have to be fixed later.

We pray that God may abundantly bless this church and that others will soon follow its good example. Who will be next?

Send all money intended for the work of the Board of Publication and for the song book to: E. W. BAUMGARTNER, BERNE, INDIANA.

For the Board of Publication, J. R. Thierstein, Chm.

THE NEW UNIFIED GERMAN SONG BOOK AND HOW MATTERS STAND TODAY

When a few years ago, at the General Conference of the Mennonites of Canada, the publication of a new, unifying hymn book was decided on, and work on it started, we did not realize that the project involved so much.

Today I can report, that we are getting nearer and nearer the goal. It appears to be within reach. Until now there have been received by the undersigned, 1800 orders for the song book, with $670.00 as pledge money. My initial goal was 2000 preorders, with 50 cents prepayment or pledge money for each book ordered.

Recently, however, the orders have come in rather slowly, and the pledge money still more slowly. But, to our joy, the information has reached us, that the larger Bergtaler Congregation in Manitoba, that had 2324 members last new year, had just decided to use the new hymn book, at a church meeting, and orders with advance money are already coming in from that section. That helps the cause very much, in fact it means its realization. Would that other churches or groups might now fall in line and help the undertaking to an overwhelming victory!

Many may not realize that this undertaking involves far-reaching and very important mission work. Nothing brings people closer together, and unites them so much, as group singing. Other things conceived for the common good, may separate men, in fact they do it too often, but singing a song in which all join unites. Our conferences and churches will, through a generally-used, unifying hymn book, experience a powerful impetus. It makes me happy when I think of this new, unifying song book.

I am now expecting many orders and much pledge money, also from those who have sent in their orders, but were not able to send the money. If all goes well, we should get the new song book by New Year. The price, which we are placing on the book, is $1.75 a copy. Why this price, which may appear rather high to some, and why the project is proceeding slowly, I would like to explain in an article soon to follow.

With friendly greetings,
Johann G. Rempel,
Secretary of the "Gesangbuchkommission"

A VALUABLE OFFER

The year 1939 is fast drawing to a close. If the readers of the Conference papers, The Mennonite and the Christlicher Bundesbote, will look at the label on their paper or papers—many read both Conference papers—they will notice the Expiration Date printed on it. Subscriptions to these papers (including the Junior Messenger) should be paid in advance. This is necessary in order that the Publication Board may be able to meet the expense of printing and mailing the papers. As a rule the treasury is quite low at this time of the year because many readers forget or, for other reasons, fail to pay their subscription in advance. This causes considerable inconvenience and worry to the Board because expenses cannot be met unless the papers are paid in advance.

Right now is a good time to send in renewals because:

1. The present year will soon come to a close.
2. The 1940 Kalenders and Year Books will be off the press in a few weeks. These annuals contain much valuable information which is of special interest to Mennonites, and they will be given as a Premium to readers of The Mennonite and the Christlicher Bundesbote respectively, who pay their subscription one year in advance from January, 1940.
3. At this present time the Publication Board is offering, in addition, a clothbound copy of "Mennonite Articles of Faith" by Cornelius Ris (English or German) to all who pay their subscription to either of our Conference weeklies one year or longer in advance from January, 1940, at the regular rate of $1.50 per year. This is a liberal premium offer because the book sells regularly at 40 cents per copy.

The supply of "Articles of Faith" is limited (only about 500 copies are on hand), and this special offer is good only as long as the present supply lasts. To obtain the benefit of this double premium offer, readers must, therefore, act quickly. Send your remittance to the Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kansas.

Special Offter to New Subscribers

New subscribers to either The Mennonite or the Christlicher Bundesbote can have either of these papers from NOW UNTIL JANUARY 1941 for only $1.00. This is a saving of 75 cents or just One Half of the regular price of the paper. Please use the following subscription form:

Mennonite Publication Office,
Newton, Kansas

I accept your liberal offer to New Subscribers. Please send The Mennonite to my address from now to January, 1941. I inclose $1.00 as payment for same.

Meeting Temptation

Victories over temptations are greatly facilitated by forethought. To know what temptation is likely to vex you and to clearly realize what the opposite, constructive attitude and action should be in such a situation is an aid to moral success.

A pastor and his wife had traveled with their car in some countries of Europe. There, as well as in the United States, they had always driven on the right-hand side of the road. Now they were intending to sail for England and there use their car for further travels. They were leaving their baby daughter on the Continent. Should anything happen to them, the child would then be left in the hands of strangers. Clearly realizing this and the fact that serious consequences would very likely follow should they ever forget to drive on the left-hand side of the road in England, they resolved to fix the right course of action so firmly in their subconscious mind that they would never be tempted to drive on the right-hand side of the road in England. So clearly and forcefully did they carry through this forethought, that in their whole stay in England, they were never troubled with a tendency to drive on the right-hand side. Coming back to the Continent they were not impressed with the need of mentally reverting to the habit of driving on the right-hand side. They knew where to drive, but they did not take the trouble to register it deeply in their being. Consequently, while driving on the left side of the road (the wrong side, now) they narrowly averted an accident.

This approach opens vast possibilities. For instance, forethought will help one to speak kind, useful words instead of unnecessary, slanderous ones; forethought may enable you to be patient, gentle, and understanding when situations provocative of anger arise; forethought will help one to choose wisely in regard to vocation and a life companion; and forethought may urge you to write out a Pacifist pledge. Jesus in the Garden of Gethsemane—what forethought divine!

Life Light

Troubles thrive on attention. They shrivel and disappear when we ignore them. It is not easy to ignore them, you say? That is so; but it becomes easier if we find something else to take their place in our thought. We usually can find these substitutes by looking for them.

If you have trouble, do something for somebody, quickly. Turn your attention outside yourself. Lose yourself in thinking of others, and you will find your greater self and will lose your trouble. Said Christ: "He that findeth his life shall lose it; and he that loseth his life for my sake shall find it." — The Pastor's Helper.

THANKSGIVING

MAIN TOPIC: Using our Privileges 2 Cor. 9:6-15

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "O Worship the King," "Praise Him! Praise Him," "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name."
2. Reading of main topic and prayer.
3. Several numbers of special music.

II. Leader's Introduction

A Thanksgiving Litany

by Ozora S. Davis

For the fair world in which we live;
For the crescent splendor of each new morning;
For the mystic meaning of the night;
For the songs of birds;
For country roads and lanes;
For the traffic of city streets;
We praise and thank thee, Lord and Father.

Praise is ordained of God: In everything give thanks: for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you." The Psalmist said: "I will bless the Lord at all times: his praise shall continually be in my mouth." Instead of waiting until we are in dire need of something, would it not be well to go to God with thankful hearts and express our gratitude for what he has already done for us? It is praise that completes the circle of prayer. If you experience some little dissatisfaction with your prayers, try a little thanksgiving.

III. Suggested Topics for short talks:

1. Privilege of abiding trust. Ps. 34:1-10.
2. Privilege of ceaseless prayer. I Thess. 5:16-18.
3. Privilege of divine fellowship. I Jn. 1:3-7.
4. Privilege of liberal giving. Acts 20:35; Luke 6:38
5. Privilege of God-given talents. Mt. 25:14-18.
6. Privilege of gladsome service. Ps. 100.

IV. Facts for study.

The heart of thanksgiving lies in faith in God. Many of us, through recent months, have come to a new realization of our utter dependence upon the power that is not human.

We can scarcely be thankful for the blessings which are ours unless we pause long enough to take a survey of our social heritage. The old days had much that was good in them. Let us all hold fast to that which was good, fine, true, high and noble. Our social heritage includes, says a thoughtful writer, "our racial traditions, the nations that begat us, the families that have nourished us, the heritage that has enriched us. We can more or less choose our manner of living in the foreground of our experience, but the background we can not change. That was given to us. That is our inheritance. We can change only our attitude toward it. We can forget it, be irreverent concerning it and unappreciative of it, or we can be grateful for it, live up to it, rejoice in it, and be worthy of it."

V. For Discussion

Have 10 or 15 C. E. members name one thing for which they are truly thankful, and state one reason for their thankfulness.

VI. Illustrations

Thanksgiving is a day for song and praise and meditation, so instead of story illustrations we offer these poems.

For the morning sun and evening dew,
For every bud that April knew,
For storm and silence, gloom and light,
And for the solemn stars at night;
For fallow field and burdened byre,
For roof-tree and the hearth-side fire;
For everything that shines and sings,
For dear, familiar daily things—
The friendly trees, and in the sky
The white cloud-squadrons sailing by;
For hope that waits, for faith that dares,
For patience that still smiles and bears,
For love that fails not, nor withstands;
For healing touch of children's hands,
For happy labor, high intent,
For all life's blessed sacrament,
O comrade of our nights and days,
Thou givest all things, take our praise!

—Arthur Ketchum

I thank Thee, Lord, at break of day,
When all the east is red with sun,
For health and hope and heart to say,
I would be part of any way
In which the will of God is done.

I thank Thee at the time of rest
For strength that held the long day through;
Foot-sore and worn, yet peace-possessed,
I know the honest toil is best
Of him who strives thy will to do.

And though the task that I have sought
Transcends my hands' unaided skill,
I thank Thee for this mighty thought—
That all the wonders to be wrought
Lie hidden in thy perfect will.

—Grace D. Goodwin.

"TESTS OF A GOOD HYMN: A singable tune. Appropriate words that carry a real message. (It was a good poem before it was set to music.) The attitude and feelings created by words and music. Good imagery. Harmony."—Christian Endeavor World.

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

GIVING THANKS TO THE GIVER OF EVERY GOOD GIFT

Intermediate C. E. Topic for Nov. 26, 1939

For Daily Reading:

Nov. 20. The Harvest Festival. Deut. 16:13-15.
Nov. 21 Expressing thanks by giving. Deut. 26:1–10.
Nov. 22. National blessings. Ps. 126:1-6.
Nov. 23. Forgiveness. Psa. 32:1-11.
Nov. 24. Spiritual graces of converts. I Cor. 1:4-8.
Nov. 25. Topic. James 1:17; I Thess. 5:18.

Call to Worship

Enter into His gates with thanksgiving,
And into His courts with praise:
Give thanks unto Him, and bless His name.
Psalm 100:4.

Hymn: "Come, Ye Thankful People, Come"

Scripture Reading—James 1:17; I Thess. 5:18.
Prayer by Leader
Reading of Psalm 95:1-7.

Poem: "Gratitude"

For sunlit hours and visions clear,
For all remembered faces dear;
For comrades of a single day
Who sent us stronger on our way;
For friends who shared the year's long road
And bore with us the common load;
For hours that levied heavy tolls,
But brought us nearer to our goals;
For insights won through toils and tears—
We thank the Keeper of our years.

Clyde McGee, (F. H. Revell Co., 1933)

Hymn: "For all the Blessings of the Year"

Have the following references read: Ps. 65:11; Deut. 26:11; I Tim. 4:8; I Chron. 29:12, 29:13; Deut. 4:7; Ps. 103:1-5.

Hymn: "Now Thank We All Our God"

Poem: "Thanksgiving"

When with wheat and corn the bins are filled,
And the noise of the gathering-in is stilled;
When the trees are bare, and the fields are brown,
And the feathery flakes come floating down;
When the ground is hard and the skies are gray,
And the skaters skim o'er the ice away;
When the cattle stand in their stalls, content,
And munch the clover the summer sent;
When the wood-house shelters the wood-piles neat,
And the cellar is stored with the things to eat;
When the house is banked 'gainst the winter storm,
And all within is snug and warm;
When the days are short and the evenings long,
Then rings the glad Thanksgiving song.

—Annetta J. Robineson.

(This is especially for our intermediates in Canada.)

Song: "Praise Him! Praise Him!

Gratitude should become a habit.

1. Where should that habit begin?
2. What responsibility has the school in the formation of the habit of gratitude?
3. What can we do to form the habit of gratitude?
   a. Think of the fine things we have.
   b. Think of the source of those. things which we have. Restate topic for today.
   c. Do we have any responsibility as to how we use those things which we have?

Closing thought: "Let us give thanks to God upon Thanksgiving Day. Nature is beautiful and fellow men are dear, and duty is close beside us, and God is over us and in us." Phillips Brooks.

Offering during the singing of the Hymn "May Jesus Christ Be Praised"

Lord's Prayer

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

"IT IS A GOOD THING TO GIVE THANKS UNTO THE LORD." Psalm 92:1.

Program for November 26, 1939

"For His Unspeakable Gift." — 2 Cor. 9:15a.
"For All Things." Eph. 5:20.

I. Worship Period.

1. Prelude: Pianist plays softly, "Come Ye Thankful People Come."

2. Call to Worship: I Thess. 5:18; Deut. 26:11a. "In everything give thanks: for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you. Thou shalt rejoice in every good thing which the Lord, thy God hath given unto thee, and unto thine house."

3. Song: "For All The Blessings of the Year." Mennonite Hymn Book, Number 381.

4. Leader's Opening Prayer.

5. Scripture by an older Junior boy.—Deuteronomy 26:1-11.

6. Poem—by three Juniors.

"We Thank Thee"

"For the flowers that bloom about our feet,
For tender grass so fresh and sweet,
For song of bird and hum of bee,
For all things fair we hear or see—
Father in heaven, we thank Thee."

"For blue of stream, for blue of sky,
For pleasant shade of branches high,
[illegible] air and cooling breeze—
For beauty of the blooming trees—
Father in heaven, we thank Thee.

"For mother love, for father care,
For brothers strong and sisters fair,
For love at home and school each day,
For guidance, lest we go astray—
Father in heaven, we thank Thee."

—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

7. Rise and sing in unison the first two verses of: "Come Ye Thankful People Come." M. H. B. No. 380.

II. Study Period.

Aim. To help our Junior bring before his mind the many gifts and blessings that are his, because of God's loving kindness. This should lead to a deep feeling of gratitude to Him, who is the giver of all "good and perfect gifts."

1. To the leader: As the Junior enters the room give him a slip upon which one of the following is written. These are to be read later.

We should be thankful for—

a. The gift of His son, 2 Cor. 9:15; Luke 2:28, 38.
b. Victory through Christ. Rom. 7:25; I Cor. 15:57; 2 Cor. 2:14.
c. A living hope. I Pet. 1:3.
d. The salvation of sinners. Rom. 6:17, 18.
e. The fellowship of Christ, Acts 28:15.
f. His Word, Ps. 56:4, 10.
g. All blessings. Ps. 103:1-6; Ps. 68:19.
h. Our bodies. Ps. 139:14.
i. Our food. I Tim. 4:3, 4; Acts 27:35.
j. Answered prayer. Ps. 118:21; John 11:41.
k. The privilege of service. I Tim. 1:12.
l. A new heart. Ezek. 11:19-20.
m. Everything we have. Eph. 5:20, I Thess. 5:18; Phil. 4:6.

In case you have built a "pyramid" (as suggested several weeks ago) place all the cans into a decorated basket and appoint several Juniors to take it to the place intended for. If the group is not too large, it would be nice to let them all go; they could sing some song, but should not prolong their visit.

2. Solo—Verse one of "Now Thank we all Our God."

3. Let each Junior mention something for which he is thankful.

4. Four Juniors each give two minute talks on the following subjects:

a. "We thank God for our food."—Psalm 145:15-16
b. "We thank God for our friends." Phil 1:3.
c. "We thank God for our Saviour, the Lord Jesus Christ." Isa. 12:2; 2 Cor. 9:15; Eph. 2:8; John 3:16.
d. We thank God for all things. Ps. 103:2; Eph. 5:20.

5. Boys' Chorus Sings: "We Plow the Fields and Scatter."

6. Girls' Chorus Sings: "I've Found a Friend"

7. Combined Chorus: "Jesus is all the World to Me."

8. Leader's Heart talk: In I Samuel 12:24 we read "Consider how great things He has done for you." Consider means to think, to meditate. Lead the Juniors to "consider" in this heart talk to them.

9. Juniors rise and read suggested verses on their slips of paper.

10. All sing song of month, "Praise Him, Praise Him."

III. Mission Minutes.

In the November "Missionary News and Notes" under "Needs and Projects" we find that the Arizona Mission is asking for Bibles. Plan how your Junior Endeavor may provide a Bible for this mission.

Some hae meat and canna eat,
And some would eat that want it;
But we hae meat, and we can eat,
Sae let the Lord be thankit. —Burns.

Light from Bible Prophecy on the European War and Its Result

Why Russia had to break with Britain and join Germany

Why Italy must break with Germany and join Britain.

Why the Roman Empire must be revived.

Why Palestine Will be Coveted by the Nations

Britain's Break with the Jews, and Italy's opportunity.

Why the final war must head up in Armageddon.

Why the rapture of the church must be very near.

No careful student of Bible prophecy would make the mistake of attempting to say just how the present European war is going to end, or what this or that European ruler is going to do. We dare not attempt to identify such present Dictators as Hitler, Stalin, and Mussolini with any personages of Bible prophecy. One or another of the present European Dictators may be on the scene, or may not be, in the final events of the end of this age, so plainly described in Scripture, when Christ returns in glory and power to reign over this earth.

But we do know, from Bible prophecy, the course of national and religious events in the end of the age, and many careful students of prophecy believe that we can identify certain nations of today from Bible prophecy, and know the part that they will play in the final line-up and warfare of the nations. Whether that final line-up and warfare are close at hand, or years ahead, no man dare say. Date-setting in connection with Bible prophecy is thoroughly discredited, as it should be. As to the actual return of the Lord, Christ himself said, "Of that day and hour knoweth no man, no, not the angels of heaven, but my Father only" (Matt. 24:36).

But that same Lord made it plain that it is the duty of every child of God to study the signs of the times and to understand and interpret them. He sternly rebuked God's people for being able to interpret the signs of the weather while they were blind to the infinitely more important signs of the times in fulfillment of prophecy: "O ye hypocrites, ye can discern the face of the sky; but can ye not discern the signs of the times?" (Matt. 16:1-3).

One of the most widely known and best loved Bible teachers in the field of prophecy today is Dr. Louis S. Bauman, of Long Beach, California. His sermons and published articles on prophecy have been eagerly followed for many years by Christian people. Therefore when the cataclysmic war broke last month in Europe, the Editor of The Sunday School Times asked Dr. Bauman to write a series of articles interpreting the present war and the coalitions of nations. They will be published, D. V., week by week in this interdenominational journal of nation-wide circulation, beginning almost immediately. In a recent letter to the Editor Dr. Bauman wrote: "Never, never, never was there a time when the world's happenings were so tremendously significant! The stage is being set exactly in Europe as I have preached it for nearly forty years."

This entire series beginning in November may be secured by a 24-weeks subscription for $1.00 to THE SUNDAY SCHOOL TIMES, Philadelphia, Pa.

A Hide - And - Seek Game

In spite of their pompous assertions that they are ready to get at each other's throats, premier Chamberlain and Chancellor Hitler want peace, only they are too proud to state, in simple terms, on what basis. They are playing a hide-and-seek game so common among statesmen and rulers. Chamberlain and Daladier know full well that the longer the present lull in the war continues, the more their people are losing interest in the undertaking and yet they are taking the risk. In France the strong communist party has been ordered dissolved and 37 communist leaders have been imprisoned, with possible dire consequences ahead of them. The great French pacifist, Philippe Vernier, and his brother, may have to face death. A note from them, with this silent appeal, has been smuggled to America: "We would like people in America more to remind us of the truths of the gospel than to send us ammunitions."

Such acts of suppression only serve to foment the anti-war sentiment in that country. England is screwing the clamps of censorship against any peace sentiments down more tightly. Lloyd George publicly urges the government and people to listen to Hitler's peace suggestions, and the stand taken against war by George Bernhard Shaw and H. G. Wells exert considerable influence. In Canada, too, 75 ministers of the United Church of Canada have issued a manifesto that takes a definite stand "against this war and any war."

Hitler, on the other hand, must feel guilty at heart for breaking several of his promises; and he must also fear that the German people, who have been known for their veracity, once they become aware of this and of the fact that their country is getting to be more and more unpopular the world over, may grow lax in their support of him, and, no doubt, he is coming to realize the terrigly hard sledding he would have in carrying on a war that he may have to fight single-handed, with a people not unitedly interested in his plans.

What Chamberlain and Daladier accuse Hitler of, that he has not points to his addresses may be rightly charged against them too. They say that they have taken up arms against aggression and will not lay them down until they have security. War against agression? Do they mean by this that they aim to call to account Italy for her arbitrary conquest of Ethiopia, and Russia for her seizure of part of Poland, besides Germany? Is it only Hitler from whom they demand an accounting, or are Mussolini and Stalin also to be called before the bar? If so, they will have an enormous task on their hands. If not, what are the Allies war aims in reality? Reports show that Chamberlain's failure to express in definite terms the Allies' war aims is weakening the confidence and sympathy of their cause in other lands, not only his own.

Thus there appear to be developments which, taken toggether, may after all lead to steps looking toward a peaceful settlement of the ominous situation in Europe. May we all pray for such possibilities!

The Education Obsession

Education alone will contribute little, if anything, toward the emancipation of the world from savagery, from jungleism, from malicious selfishness, from the instincts of the brute.

It is not brain-power for which the race languishes in its present anguishment. It is soul power that it needs. The crisis of the world today is not social nor political nor economic, it is moral; it is spiritual.

The secular education for which America has such a supreme passion is notably efficient in teaching individuals as to the means by which they are to live. It is notably deficient, we fear, in teaching them the ends for which they should like. And, after all, that's the important point in living.

For that reason, it is the conviction of this newspaper that more of what is termed the distinctly religious type of education should be incorporated in the instruction in the public schools, colleges and universities.

Charlotte has for some years had an efficient and satisfactory course in Bible in the curriculum of its high school, and other communities of the State likewise. The long-established hostility toward such religious instruction in public schools has been reduced to quiescence here by reason of the intelligent, impartial and discriminating kind of instruction that is given in Bible study.

We recite the instance merely to indicate that it is possible to incorporate such religious instruction in the schools for the young without doing violence to the differing doctrines that prevail and the sectarianisms that usually cry out at once against such invasion.

But the larger point in making mention of this matter is that this is along the line of the kind of fundamental training that the young people of today so critically need as against the purely secular sciences that tend to minimize the dignity of personality, the majesty of individuality and the central sovereignty of GOD in our universe of things and of matter.

This is peculiarly the genius of the Christian or the denominational colleges—they keep clean and clear the emphasis upon the supreme issues of life. They promote the religious objective in all of their atmospheres. They stress the Christian concept of life.

They will not allow the spiritual fundamentals to be denied.

We submit that this is increasingly the kind of education that America needs and that the world must have if it is to bring to halt the present tendency to run off after the false gods of secularism and material, mechanistic philosophies of life.—The Charlotte Observer, Charlotte, N. C.

Correspondence

SECOND MENN. CH., BEATRICE, NEBR.

Sunday, October 29, 1939, will long be remembered as a red letter day for this congregation—it was the farewell for the retiring pastor, Rev. M. Horsch, and the welcome for his successor, Rev. R. Weinbrenner. Rev. Horsch received Rev. and Mrs. Weinbrenner into the church and, assisted by Rev. B. H. Janzen of Lehigh, Kans., and Rev. F. Albrecht of the First Church, Beatrice, ordained Rev. Weinbrenner as an elder in our denomination. Basing his remarks on Acts 11:19-21, Rev. Janzen emphasized the responsibility of both church and pastor. He expressed the belief that the selection of Rev. Weinbrenner was in accordance with the spirit's leading. For his parting text, Rev. Horsch chose Rom. 12:12. He assured his congregation that this separation was only geographical and not spiritual, that the Holy Spirit taught us how to "Rejoice in hope," that "tribulation" may be a special favor of the Lord, and that the "continuation in prayer" represents the respiration in our spiritual life. He closed by saying: "Continue to pray for us as we want to continue to pray for you." After the morning services the congregation, including a number of visitors, gathered in the spacious rooms of the local Y. W. C. A. building for the noon day lunch, served by the ladies of our church.

In connection with the afternoon program the local lay ministers, Revs. H. T. Reimer and Jacob Wiebe, the visiting ministers Revs. B. H. Janzen, F. Albrecht and J. B. Epp, as well as the various board members and S. S. and C. E. representatives expressed their appreciation of the services rendered by Rev. and Mrs. Horsch. A hearty welcome was also extended to Rev. and Mrs. Weinbrenner. In his response Rev. Weinbrenner based his remarks on Acts 2:46 and stressed the need of unity in our church and conference work. Both Rev. and Mrs. Weinbrenner expressed their appreciation of the hearty welcome and the proffered pledges of cooperation.

Rev. Horsch in his final farewell statements recognized the support and assistance given him by his good wife and both he and Mrs. Horsch once more expressed their appreciation for the many kind considerations they had received during their stay in our midst. The afternoon and morning programs were interspersed with vocal selections by the choir and the men's and ladies' quartettes.

During Rev. Horsch's ministry the church membership here has increased from 99 to 173. We thank the good Lord—and Rev. and Mrs. Horsch personally—for the many blessings we have received through their untiring efforts. It is our hope and prayer that their work may continue to bear fruit for time and eternity. And to our new pastor and his wife we offer our prayerful support and co-operation. May God give them much joy to work in His vineyard and may we all do our part in the upbuilding of His kingdom.

W. C. Andreas, Corr.

GRACE MENN. CHURCH, DALLAS, OREGON

What a big day we had here at Dallas, Sunday, October 15. We had morning services as usual, except for a record attendance of 169 in Sunday School. Brother Leisy's message for the morning was "The Lord hath done great things for us, whereof we are glad." A fellowship dinner was served in the basement at noon, when approximately 250 partook of a bountiful dinner.

At 1:30 the doors of the new auditorium were opened and within a few minutes it was filled to capacity. so also the balcony and the basement, where a loud speaker was put up. It was unfortunate for those who came a little late.

There were approximately 700 people present. The church was beautifully decorated with ferns and flowers. The dedication was performed by Rev. S. S. Baumgartner, member of the Home Mission Board of the General Conference. Our pastor, Homer Leisy, was ordained by Rev. J. M. Franz, member of the Evangelization Committee of th Pacific District, who also preached the ordination sermon. Then William Perry was baptized and 45 new members were received into the church. A glorious sight such as has never been seen in our church before! A generous offering was held for the building fund.

Short talks were given by Nick Neufeld, building superintendent; John Rupp, S. S. superintendent; Gay Rempel, C. E. president; Mrs. Abr. Toews, president of the Women's Mission Society. Music was rendered by the Junior Chorus and the S. S. Choir. Closing remarks and prayer by Rev. Edmund Miller of the Portland Mission.

The evening praise service opened with the singing of favorite hymns, and was followed by an informal praise and thanksgiving service, in which a number took part. Special songs were rendered, the Orchestra played 3 numbers. We have a fine Orchestra. Talent is cropping up all around. The service closed with sermonettes given by Rev. Edmund Miller and Rev. W. R. Augsburger of Albany.

Surely every one present received a great blessing and can say, "It was good for me to be there and I was glad when they said unto me: 'Let us go into the House of the Lord'." I believe that each and everyone went away happy. Wish you could all have been with us.—Mrs. Leonard Schmidt, Corr.

IN MEMORIAM

PETER CHRISTNER, age 73 years, 10 months, and 2 days was born near Trenton, Iowa, on December 9, 1865. He was the second son of Jacob and Barbara (Egli) Christner.

When a young man he was baptized, by the Reverend P. E. Stuckey, upon his confession of faith, and taken into the membership of the Eicher Emmanuel Mennonite Church.

On June 19th, 1900 he was united in marriage, solemnized by Rev. P. E. Stuckey, to Lydia Conrad of near Noble, and they moved to their present home where they have since resided. To this union were born 5 children.

He is survived by his widow, 5 children, 7 grandchildren, 4 brothers and 2 sisters.

Funeral services were conducted at the home and the Eicher Emmanuel church with the Rev. D. E. Welty officiating.

» » JOTTINGS « «

—Bethesda Church, Henderson, Nebr., 10-27-39.—Sunday, Oct. 22, in the the evening the Beatrice Young People's meeting rendered a splendid program in our church. In the afternoon of the above date Communion Services were observed. The Bible School opened last Monday for a five month's term. Up to date 22 scholars have enrolled. There are two teachers. Ted Schmidt of the Bethesda Church and John Dueck of the E. M. B. church. Enrollment in the Sunday School is increasing slightly with cool weather coming on. Last Sunday the enrollment was 748. We hear that Minnesota and Iowa farmers are having a problem on hand of storing their corn. Many youngsters here do not know what corn picking is as there has been no crop the last years.—A. W. Friesen.

—Members of the General Conference Executive Committee and other invited brethren met with the two "Friends", Ray Newton and Guy Solt, at Bethel College, Oct. 27, to receive information about possible substitute service which defenceless individuals might do in times of peace. The meeting was interesting and elicited considerable discussion on some points. —It is high time that our denmoination plan such service which the Friends have carried on so nobly for a long time and has befriended them with many people.

—WEDDING.—At his home by Pastor A. M. Fretz of Perkasie, Pa., on October 14, the marriage of Mr. Warren H. Derstine and Miss Grace Mill took place.

—Rev. J. N. Smucker, Pastor of the Bethel College Church, held a series of meetings in the Alexanderwohl Church near Goessel, Kansas, last week. This week is serving the Bethel Church of Mountain Lake, Minn., in a similar way.

—Mennonite Church, Halstead, Kans.—For its September meeting, the first this season, the Brotherhood made a trip to Wichita Police headquarters.—At the suggestion of the church Board the group devoted its October meeting to a discussion of "the Beliefs and Principles of the Mennonite Church with Reference to War."—The Home Builders Class is again gathering clothing for the Wichita Mission.

—Rev. H. A. Fast, General Conf. Field Secretary has just arrived home safely from his visit among our brethren in South America, which he made at the request and under the auspices of our Home Mission and Relief Boards. We will want to hear his report.

—Berne, Indiana.—Father-Son banquets and Mother-Daughter banquets are quite common these days. At Berne, Indiana, the fathers, sons, mothers, daughters recently all met in one group, which would seem to be an improvement over the other way, for it spells family unity.

— Rev. D. J. Unruh of the St. John Church, Pandora, O., conducted evangelistic services at the Misssion church, Lima, Ohio, October 8-15. Speaking of this church he says to the churches of the Middle District, "Remember this is the mission project of this district. We believe our Mission workers there, Rev. and Mrs. Geo. Dyck, are faithful in their testimony to the Lord and His Word, and your prayers are needed as well as in other mission work."—Ch. Bulletin.

—From the Bulletin of First Ch., Philadelphia.—Friday, November 10, the Jews and Christians of Philadelphia and vicinity are urged to attend a service of prayer for world peace at the Friends' Meeting House. No public addresses.—A word of Appreciation is extended by the Pastor to all that had a part in in the visitation the past week. Great blessings are being reported. Thank God for such a fellowship. Such visits will help to make our Church a Family Church.

—Rev. P. H. Unruh, Treasurer of the Relief Board, in a note pertaining to our obligations to help pay the travel debt of those of our brethren in Canada who are either disabled or dead, explains that while we want to do our honest share to wipe out this debt of $27,000.00, it is also expected that the M. B. Church which has many members on the hopeless debt list, should also sholder its share. He also reports that "the Relief Board has another account with the Rosthern Board, that is for the sick, disabled and otherwise stricken. We send them from our treasury a monthly allowance of $150.00 for this purpose."

—Church Union in South America.—"Zionspilger," weekly paper of the Mennonites in Switzerland, reports: "In South America the Methodist Episcopals, the Waldensians, the Mennonites, the Scottish-Presbyterians, the Disciples of Christ, the Evangelical Union, the Christian and Missionary Alliance, and the French Evangelical Church have all united as a church confederation, and have appointed an executive board which is to carry out the provisions of the adopted constitution."

—Rev. J. R. Barkman, who is a student at Bethel College and also the new pastor of the iZon Mennonite Church at Kingman, and his church board arranged for a three-day Bible Conference in their church recently. Besides the home pastor, three ministers of our churches in Kansas and three outsiders were the speakers.

—Brother Paul R. Shelly does not venture to go to Europe for study.—"Due to the situation in Europe the plans of Paul R. Shelly have been changed and he will not study at the University of Edinburgh this year. Instead, he began his work as pastor of the First Congregational Church, Aberdeen, Wash., for a year, on Sunday morning, October 8th. He will be glad to welcome any of the Mennonite brethren from the states of Washington or Oregon or any other state if they happen to be in vicinity of Aberdeen. His new address is: Rev. Paul R. Shelly, 301 H. Street, Aberdeen, Wash."

—Rev. A. S. Bechtel, Hanston, Kans. writes that it is still as dry as it can be out their way, some days more windy and dusty than others, with no signs of rain for ever so long.—It is the observation of missionaries on their visits that the churches living in the outer fringes are more appreciative of outside help than those more centrally located, where they are almost overfed with good things.—Here is a hint to our mission boards, our colleges, and singing organizations to help satisfy the longings of less favorably located groups for more wholesome entertainment and instruction.

—"What America needs more than railway extension, Western irrigation, a low tariff, a bigger cotton crop, is a revival of religion. The kind that mother and father used to have . . . "—Wall Street Journal.

—Louise Richert, chairman of the Young People's Committee of the Pacific District says to her groups in the Worker's Exchange, "Have you been following 'OUR YOUTH SAYS' in The Mennonite? If you do not already subscribe to this paper in your home, consider sending $1.00 ($1.00 is the introductory price, not $1.50) to the Mennonite Publishing Office, Newton, Kansas, soon. By reading the 'Our Youth Says' every week you will learn how others are finding opportunities to serve the Lord. Let us unite our youth for Christ."—Worker's Exchange.

—At the Farewell Services held Sept. 24 at the North Church, near Freeman, S. D. in honor of the outgoing missionary couple, Mr. and Mrs. Orlando Schroeder Waltner the mission offerings and gifts to the couple amounted to $367.00 which is a magnificent sum considering the drouth stricken conditions which that section has experienced for so many years. Besides, there were other gifts which made it possible for the couple to start out well equipped for their 7½ years stay in India.—Arriving in Seattle where they boarded the Japanese steamer "Hikawa Marw", they found 13 other missionaries scheduled for the same trip.—News Letter.

We Thank Thee

Not for our lands, or wide-flung prairie wealth
Our mighty rivers born of friendly spring,
Our inland seas, our mountains proud and high,
Forest and orchards richly blossoming;
Not for these, Lord, our deepest thanks are said
As, humbly glad, we shall hail this day serene;
Not for these most, dear Father of our lives,
But for the love that in all things is seen.

We thank Thee not for prestige born of war,
For dauntless navies built for battle stress;
Nor would we boast of armies massed for strife;
These are all vain O Lord of kindliness.
What need have we of swords and bayonets,
Of mighty cannon belching poisoned flame!
O, woo us from the pagan love of these
Lest we again defile Thy sacred name.

We thank Thee, Lord, on this recurring day,
For liberty to worship as we will;
We thank Thee for the hero souls of old
Who dared wild seas their mission to fulfill.
O, gird our hearts with stalwart faith in good,
Give us new trust in thy providing hand,
And may a spirit born of brotherhood
Inspire our hearts and bless our native land.

THANKSGIVING DAY

This festival day will this year not be observed unitedly throughout the United States, for while the President has designated November 23 as the date, some of the states prefer to use the customary last Thursday of the month, November 30. As this day approaches from year to year, thoughtful people naturally meditate upon the reasons for giving thanks, because new experiences in their lives and in the world about them change the thanksgiving panorama. This year the war in Europe adds a tone of sadness to the joy of thanksgiving. What have we, the Christian people of this land, to be thankful for? In the first place we should be thankful that we can have Thanksgiving and that our government officially honors God Almighty by appointing a day for it. We should be truly thankful that in a world torn with hatred, strife and war we are still at peace. Again we have cause to be thankful for the freedom we enjoy, religious, civil, social. No other country in the world has these blessings in a measure that we do. Naturally, too, we ought to be thankful for life and all that goes with it, home, shelter, clothing, food, health, and even our sufferings. To day there are many empty pantries, bare tables, desolate homes, vacant chairs and fresh mounds in the graveyard. All these things were part of the experience of the early Pilgrims, half of whom had perished from cold, exposure, lack of clothing, food and adequate shelter during the first year on our shores, and yet they found occasion for thangsgiving. We need to be thankful that God is still on the throne and, though we may not discern it, He still guides the destinies of the world. What we seriously need, is to exercise a fuller trust in Him and daily strive toward that higher life, where we shall "be careful for nothing, but in everything by prayer and supplication let our request be made known to God." Last, but not least, we owe everlasting gratitude to God father and son for their love in providing us with our redemption. We cannot thank our Savior enough for His profound sacrifice and the great lesson He has taught us, in giving Himself with unspeakable love in service for suffering mankind. He who is truly thankful ponders how he may make others thankful. Here again the Pilgrim Fathers have taught us an unforgetable lesson. For, in spite of their harrowing first year experiences, they spent not only one day, but several, in giving thanks to God. And, urged by a spirit of gratitude and neighborliness, they invited the Indians in, that they might help them enjoy the blessings which God had bestowed upon them.

A truly thankful person also prays, unselfishly, that God may help fallen men face about and return to their God whom they have forsaken. May we on this Thanksgiving Day unitedly pray for this and for the peace of the world!—T.

The First Thanksgiving Day in America

To recall the circumstances of the first day of Thanksgiving may serve to remind us of how much more we have to be thankful for than had those early Pilgrims. History tells us that of the one hundred and two emigrants that landed on the bleak and rocky coast of Cape Cod Bay in the winter of 1620, almost half died before the following winter fairly set in. Today, in our comfortable country and city homes, we cannot even imagine the sufferings of the survivors, both from destitution and the inclement weather, which they were not prepared, either as to clothes or habitations, to brave. The most of the brave people were not inured to hardship; among them were delicately nurtured men and women: They staked and laid out two rows of huts for the nineteen families that composed the colony; but within the first year they had to make seven times more graves for the dead than houses for the living. Notwithstanding all their trials and hardships, these brave founders of a great and glorious race had so much to be thankful for that they had to appoint "an especial day on which to give especial thanks for all their mercies". So they agreed among themselves that, since their prudence and forethought had been so wonderfully blessed of God, they would send out four men hunting, that they might rejoice together in a special manner after the fruit of their labors had been gathered. According to the historian, barley and Indian corn were the only crops; the "peas were not worth gathering; for, as we feared, they were too late sown". This was under the good Governor Bradford. The four men who went hunting brought in as much game as served the company for a week. The recreations of the day consisted of the exercise of their arms, Massasoit, the Indian chief, and ninety of his men, coming among them for three days, during which they were entertained and feasted by the colonists, the Indians killing and bringing to the feast five deer. This was in 1621, and was the beginning of Thanksgiving day in America.—American Agriculturalist.

"Be thankful unto Him and bless His name, For the Lord is good; His truth indureth to all generations."

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

Korba, via Champa, C. P., India.
August 22, 1939

Dear Friends of our India Mission:

Several months have passed since we returned from our hill furlough. They have been in some respects the most challenging months we have ever experienced during the time of our work in Korba.

Before leaving on our vacation we were conscious of the fact that Satan was making fresh inroads within the flock and that all was not well in the church. Very soon after our arrival in Landour, the storm broke and letters began to come bringing word of almost unbelievable situations among the brethren. One young man, husband of a lovely wife and father of three beautiful children, eloped with another man's wife. This woman had formerly been a Bible woman. These two had consumed much liquor and were under its influence for days, in order to commit this terrible deed. Another young couple, unmarried, eloped at the same time. There were other cases of immorality, then there were beatings and fightings and quarrels among others, even including some of the Christian workers. In all it was a situation most dishonoring to the name of our Lord and Savior, whose name they bear.

We were driven to our knees in intercessory prayer, and tried to help by letters as well. The church council did what they could to get matters settled. As the time drew near for our return we were made conscious of our need for special preparation to come and face the situation. God graciously met that need. Much of the help which supplied this need came through our friend and brother, Rev. R. A. Graham, by way of very helpful messages, and by his laying on of hands in prayer for physical healing according to Mark 16:17, in a case of sinus infection. And as the prayer covered much more than physcial healing so also has the answer to the prayer. We shall always be grateful to him for this help.

Arriving here God wonderfully blessed us with courage and good cheer in spite of the darkness. During those first days our daily task was to listen, and we listened, though it was often grievous indeed to hear how Satan had gotten control. At each fresh tale we went together for covenant prayer in the prayer room and brought the matter before God. We agreed that we would not lift a hand to touch any single problem without first bringing it to Him. And then it was our blessed privilege to stand and see God working.

And what have we seen! Five of the seven who had to be excommunicated already reclaimed! Enemies made friends, confessions of sins, including old hidden sins in short, the beginnings of an awakening in the church such as we have not seen in our experience in India. Yes, the enemy is still busy and the victory is not won in the hearts of all! There are those who openly challenge this awakening, saying it is not of God, but only a deception in order to win our favor for a higher salary, etc. (Surely, "the love of money is the root of all evil"). Sometimes our own faith is challenged most severely, but God is faithful and we must go forward expecting great things from Him. We need your prayers.

Yours in Christian love,
Paul and Adah Wenger.

"YE DO ERR, BECAUSE"

By Robert E. Speer

Half a century ago one of our truest American poets, now too much forgotten, Edward Rowland Sill, wrote a little poem entitled "A Fool's Prayer." It was the story of a medieval king who, for the amusement of the court, ordered his jester to make a prayer. And the jester prayed, but his prayer was no jest. He asked God's forgiveness for being a fool—not for his sins so much as for his sheer follies. And when he had ended, there came no laughter, and the king went off alone to pray for himself, "Lord, be merciful to me a fool."

That is our prayer for ourselves and for this mad world today. The badness is bad enough, but how terrible is the folly. Why are men guilty of such blundering? Why are we ourselves constantly falling into error and mistake?

What would we not give to ask Jesus this question! He never erred. He never said a word which he asked to recall. He never left the right word unsaid. He did always the things that pleased his Father. To what would he attribute our human blundering? We do not need to ask this question in vain. On one notable occasion he answered it. It was on the day of the "great controversy," when Pharisees, Herodians, and Sadducees had ploted to trap him, and the Sadducees had posed their specious question regarding the woman who had seven husbands, and the resurrection. Jesus ignored their insincerity, assumed the honesty of their inquiry, and pointed out to them the source of their error.

"Ye do err," he said, "because ye know not the Scriptures, nor the power of God." Can this be the cause of our error? Jesus did not say so. He said it was the source of the error of the Sadducees. But the more one reflects upon his words, the more one wonders whether this can be the source of all our errors.

To these Sadducees the Scriptures were the equivalent of history; and they discredited the principle of resurrection because they did not grasp the teaching of history, and because they disbelieved in the presence of divine forces in life and history. Taken in this sense, Our Lord's words trace error to ignorance of history and its lessons, and to disbelieving in the divine government of the world. And do not our errors today have this very origin? Men are plunging into a new era of human insanity in plain disregard of all the lessons of history, and in wicked defiance of God's holy and righteous sovereignty and his law of brotherhood and unity.

And even in the strict sense of his words we find today the source of our folly. Every wrong course of our life,—personal, national and international, —breeding mishap and misery and ruin, is flat in the face of the plain teaching of the Bible, and is open and direct repudiation of the divine influences and persuasions working in human life.

The Bible teaches the unity of man, and we are denying this unity. It teaches that might is not right, but that only is right which is true and good and brotherly and loving; and yet great nations are acting on the principle of might and force and violence. It teaches the certainty of God's judgment on all courses of action which violate his laws and the mind of Christ, but the world forgets this, and plunges into ways which can not escape the judgment.

And the world errs today as the Sadducees erred, because it does not believe in the sovereignty of God and is unwilling to adopt his government. It does not believe in his presence and power. It sets up its organizations and projects its schemes on the level of man's wisdom and man's sovereign will.

And on all such errors the judgment of God is sure. "Justice may travel with a leaden heel, but it strikes with an iron hand." We had best turn back from our blundering and take up our Bible and learn its lessons, and once again "in God put our trust."—Bible Society Record.

"It is a people that de err in their heart, and they have not known my ways." Ps. 95:10.

That They May Know

The following booklets should be in every home, and should be studied in every church interested in maintaining Biblical peace teachings and in preparing young and old to live a full Christian life in the event of another war:

1. "Principles of Christian Peace and Patriotism with Scriptural Basis."
2. Smith. "Christian Peace: Four Hundred Years of Mennonite Principles and Practice"
3. Bohn, "Christian Peace: New Testament Peace Teachings Outside the Gospels"
4. "Pacifist Handbook," Questions and Answers Concerning the Pacifist in Wartime.

These may be ordered from the secretaries of your peace committees or from the Mennonite Book Concerne, Berne, Indiana.—E. L. Harshbarger

NOTICE!

The Peace Committee of the General Conference is planning a meeting at Bethel College, December 1-2, 1939.

This is the first meeting of the committee outside of conference sessions, all business having been done heretofore by mail.

In this age of renewed crisis and warfare which may soon produce difficulties for our people, your committee felt that its business was so urgent and important that a meeting should be called.

Committee sessions are planned for Friday afternoon and Saturday morning with a public meeting on Friday night. The program will appear later.

Remember the work of the committee with your prayers and contributions.

The So-Called Non-combatant Military Service

By John Horsch

As regards the so-called noncombatant army service, need it be said that it is actual military service? In principle there is no difference between noncombatant service and the regular service. The noncombatant army service, including the army chaplaincy, is as a matter of fact essential to the prosecution of war, it is an institutional part of the government's war organization and is always recognized as military service. A man accepting noncombatant service will release some other unknown man for regular service.

The assertion has been made that farmers who are engaged in raising foodstuff in war time are performing noncombatant military service. But clearly, when the farmer in the case of war continues to follow his calling of producing foodstuff, he is not doing military service. Even if there is the probability that some of the food, going through the regular channels of trade, is used for the army, he is not doing that which is inconsistant with the principle of nonresistance. In view the fact that the Christian principle of nonresistance implies the duty of feeding one's enemy (Rom. 12:20), and the army of one's own country does not by any means come under the category of enemies, would it be consistent with the profession of this principle, if the Christian farmer in war time ceased producing food on account of the possibility of some of the food being used for the soldiery? Obviously his duty would lie in the opposite direction. A proposal of Mennonite farmers to unite in an attempt to starve the army into submission to Christ's demands would clearly be an absurdity.

Rally Christians, for the right,
Move resistless in God's might.
Soon the day dawn you shall see,
Day of glorious victory.

FAREWELL

A Tribute to my Nephew and Niece, Orlando and Vernelle Waltner, going to India

Friends, we've met to night to say farewell.
And how I wish I had the words to tell
Just how I feel, and could reveal
The joys and heartaches you conceal.
It isn't easy to say Good-bye
To friends much loved by you and I.
Friends who were honest and friends who were true,
Who forgot their own grief to be happy with you.
The waters may carry them wherever they will,
But these precious memories will linger with us still.
We live in hope, and yet we part in tears,
Because we know not what the years
May have in store for you or me—
How much of pain, how much of ecstasy.
And if your eyes the years ahead could read,
Would you be willing now His call to heed?
Perhaps no voice could ever half express
The bounteous measures of your happiness.
Or, perhaps, no lips could ever have the power
To speak the grief and agony of your future hours.
And so I take it, that it wasn't meant for us to know
For, if we did, perhaps we wouldn't want to let you go.
God hasn't promised that your skies be always blue.
And your pathway strewn with flowers and lined with roses, too.
But He has promised strength for all your trying days,
His presence will be felt in many different ways.
Trust Him, He'll give you strength and skill
If you but yield to His sweet will.
His eyes can see unto the utmost,
His hand will never fail the humblest.
He needs you, it matters not how weak or ill.
Or how many tears your eyes may fill.
He needs your hands to lift souls out of sin.
And clearly point out the way to Him.
He needs your feet to tramp the weary road.
To seek the lost, and lighten every load.
He needs your heart with love to beat,
He needs your all, your human self complete.
God, sail their ships when they put out to sea.
And help them face the tempest manfully.
And while the billows rock the ship, man-made,
Speak Thou to them, " 'Tis I, Be not afraid."
Then bring them safely to their destined shore,
And thine be the praise and glory for ever more.
Lord, use them, according to Thine own will.
Show them their work, and keep them working still.
And grant that we, with strength and zeal renewed,
May pray for them, and with our gifts endue.
And then, should come the time for their return—
The time for which all of our hearts will burn—
Oh God! Thou lover of the souls of men,
Please, bring them safely home again.

Partial Report of Eastern District S. S. Union held at Upper Milford Menn. Church, Zionsville, Pa. September 23rd, 1939

THEME: "THE PLACE OF THE SUNDAY SCHOOL IN THE WORK OF THE CHURCH."

Business: The Mission Secretary reported a total of $771.43 had been raised on our pledge of $750.00. The amount in excess of the pledge was added to the amount allotted to Missionary Samuel T. Moyer.

Mission Project this year: For itinerant work in Canada, $250.00; for hospital addition in Kai Chow, China, $500.00. Treasurer reports a balance of $150.90; receipts, $1,010.89. Total $1,161.79. Disbursements, $549.59. Convention offerings, $32.96, leaving a total of $645.16. Bills paid after closing books: Convention expenses, $35.22. Rev. S. T. Moyer, $155.00 plus $21.43; Dr. Harry Bauman, $350.00. Balance $83.51.

Resolutions adopted:

1. Resolved: That we express to God our deepest gratitude for the spiritual blessings of this convention and that we thank sincerely the Upper Milford Mennonite Church for their kind hospitality and especially the Ladies' Aid Society for the delectable supper.

2. Resolved: That in this time of wars abroad and the presence of subtle subverting propaganda at home, we reaffirm emphatically our historic hatred of war and pledge our prayerful support to all intelligent and Christian peace measures on the part of Church bodies, Peace Organizations, and our National Government, and that we instruct the Executive Committee of the Eastern District Sunday School Union to inform our Pennsylvania Senators in Washington to this effect.

3. Resolved: That we recall to active memory our promise of last year to support the forthcoming General Conference of North America in 1941.

4. Resolved: That we pledge an increased helpful support toward the development of the New Retreat Grounds.

5. Resolved: That a definite effort be made by the Sunday Schools to take an active part in the educational, evangelistic and spiritual work of the Church.

6. Resolved: That Superintendents and Teachers in the Intermediate Departments of our Sunday Schools be urged to examine with consideration the adoption of the Intermediate Sunday School Quarterlies now published by the General Conference Publication Board.

7. Resolved: That the Sunday School Union Executive Committee be urged to consider as a subject for discussion at the convention next year the possibilities of cooperation among our Sunday Schools for conducting Teacher Training courses.

8. Resolved: That the Sunday School Union Executive Committe be urged to consider plans whereby the site of a succeeding convention be determined and announced at the previous convention.

9. Resolved: That the Sunday School Union Secretary be instructed to convey convention greetings to a faithful Sunday School worker and pastor of former years, Rev. Wm. C. Gottschall.

10. Resolved: That a resume of the proceedings and resolutions of this Convention be sent by the Executeive Committee to the Sunday School Superintendents and the Pastors of the Eastern District Conference.

Other resolutions adopted earlier in the convention proceedings: (Resolutions One to Four are here omitted. Number 4, to change the time of the annual convention failed to pass.)

5. Resolved: That we support the various publications of the General Conference, using the material whenever possible and consider the Mennonite Book Concern when purchasing supplies.

Following the business session, those present separated into two group conferences conducted by Miss Emma Vansworth and Rev. Olin Krehbiel. These groups discussed the Convention Theme as applied to the Educational, Evangelistic and Spiritual phases. A Superintendents' Corner was conducted at the same time by Field Secretary Walter H. Temple.

The evening session was addressed by Rev. Willard Claassen, Pastor of the Roaring Spring Mennonite Church. His message was based on the three phases of the Convention Theme.

High Lights from Officers' Reports:

President: — The need of Evangelistic work in our schools was stressed at the Executive Committee meetings and we recommend that this part of our work be greatly developed and emphasized by the local schools. —Had great pleasure associating with the young people at the '39 Retreat and realized what a wonderful work is being accomplished for the youth of the Conference. We cannot conceive the extent which this work will have on the future of our churches and our conference, and upon the individuals who avail themselves of this training.

Field Secretary: The privilege of the Sunday School is to assist the Church in presenting the "way" to all people. It is our privilege and responsibility as Sunday School Workers to see that all who come under our influence learn from us that the only way to a complete, satisfying life, is by accepting Christ as our personal Saviour, and completely surrendering ourselves to Him. The Sunday School is not a side issue or just something to fill in time. It has a definite place in the work of the Master.—The Memory Work course has been printed and is now ready for distribution.

Officers of the Sunday School Union for 1939-40

SERMON SKETCH

THE UNPREDICTABLE ELEMENT IN LIFE

Rev. John F. Schmidt, Pastor Mennonite Church, Buhler, Kansas

"Be not therefore anxious for the morrow." Matt. 6:34.

The mystery of the unknown future confronts all of us. We cannot see as far in time as we can in space. It may well be "the glory of God to conceal a thing." However, if men have no adequate response to make to this unpredictable element in life, they grow cynical and say with a cynic of old, ". . . . time and chance happeneth to all. For man also knoweth not his time; as the fishes that are taken in an evil net, and as the birds that are caught in the snare; so are the sons of men snared in an evil time, when it falleth suddenly upon them."

The cynic knows that the future may hold for us disappointment, failure, tragedy and unforeseen heartaches. The lightning will flash and the rains will descend, so the cynic would comfort us with: "Never mind, time and chance happen to all." That being small comfort to the person who is anxious for the morrow, we then see him going to the astrologers, the palm readers, crystal readers and fortune tellers in a desperate effort to quiet his anxiety.

How do men of God deal with this problem? Can men of consecration know more of the future than the cynic? Yes, the man of God knows that this is a moral world. He knows that the process of history will not deny God's sovereignty of His universe. So two decades ago, men of moral insight predicted the international anarchy we have here today. Had the prophets of Israel lived in Rome in the second century of the Christian era, they could have predicted the downfall of the Empire. The prophet sees doom and destructin in the wake of selfishness and Godlessness. He also sees the fulfillment of the accumulated prayers of the ages for redemption. The man of consecration always has a vision of a glorious future.

The unpredictable was also present in the life of Jesus. As a prophet he knew a terrible fate awaited Jerusalem if its leaders persisted in their double-dealing policies. He knew that if He dared to challenge and humiliate the self-righteous leaders in Jerusalem His end could be none other than the cross. And yet there was no mechanical forordination in His life. His temptations and trials were as real and as unpredictable as are yours and mine. But His response to the unpredictable was neither rebellion nor indifference. It was rather a triumphant expectancy. "Not my will, but Thine be done." If worst should come to worst He would lose His life and in so doing, find it.

To move forward as firmly and decisively as Jesus did, we must meet the unpredictable with a response of faith. "Be not therefore anxious for the morrow. . . But seek ye first the Kingdom of God." With faith we may conquer fear and worry as we face the unknown and expect the richness of the Divine to become real in the human. By looking to Jesus for the renewal of our faith, we may confidently expect surprises in life which will be rich with beauty, comfort, and fulfillment of long-cherished hopes. If we live in readiness to welcome the highest, it will come. Such preparedness believes that the Messiah will come to all. As we approach the Advent season we would cultivate the expectant mood to be ready for the Great Guest. With Him the unknown is conquered, anxiety is routed. "O come to us, abide with us, Our Lord Immanuel."

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

A. S. BECHTEL

November 26, 1939

THE WORKS OF THE MESSIAH

Matthew 8:14-27

TOPIC: Ministering to Human Needs

Introduction

Matthew follows the Sermon on the Mount with a record in chapters eight and nine of ten miracles arranged in three groups. These miracles are the credentials of his divinity. We need the teachings of Jesus and also His healing touches; and each miracle is a parable of his saving power. Our lesson records a few of his marvelous works among men.

Jesus Serves the Needy vs 14-17

Jesus came again to Capernaum where Peter lived. Possibly his home was Jesus' headquarters during his Galilean ministry. Here He found a cordial welcome and on this visit Peter's family was especially well repaid for welcoming Him. It always pays greatly to welcome Him into our homes and lives. Jesus saw that Peter's wife's mother was sick (v14) and He was much concerned about her (v15). He touched her hand (Mark 1:31 "He took her by the hand and raised her up"). His healing touch restored her to complete health. She was well at once, she arose and helped in the house-work. The touch of Jesus heals physical and spiritual illness. At the end of the Sabbath many sick and helpless ones were brought to Jesus and He healed all of them (v16). He used his divine power for the good of others. He gave his sympathy and help freely. The human heart craves for sympathy. We too may bring our sick and helpless ones to Him who in His great love healed those who came to Him.

The Cost of Discipleship vs 18-22

Jesus became wearied at times by the congested crowds and sought to escape from them (v18). He did not seek the applause of curious enthusiasts.

They distressed Him. Wholesome popularity is desirable. There is something better than merely drawing a crowd. A fakir can do that. Jesus was ever ready to talk to a single earnest inquirer (John 3:1-18). A scribe (v19), one of those who usually opposed Jesus, seems to have been impressed with his preaching and offered to become a disciple and accompany Him. Jesus saw clearly that he didn't understand all that was involved and made it plain that it would involve self-denial and probably privation (v20). Another disciple whom Jesus had called (cf. L. 9:59), was hesitating about giving full and complete obedience to Him (v21). He wished to stay with his father until his death so he could attend to his burial. Jesus probably knew the family and that others could well do that. He placed the urgency of discipleship above family claims (v22). Let the spiritually dead attend to the burial of the physically dead father. Jesus reserves the first place in our thinking for himself.

Jesus Quiets the Tempest vs 23-27

At the end of a very busy day (Mk. 4:1-41) Jesus and his disciples sought rest in a ship on the Sea of Galilee (v23). Jesus, greatly exhausted, quickly fell asleep—a striking evidence of his humanity—and even the severity of the tempest (v24) failed to awaken his wearied body. We see Jesus here as a real man. The disciples, alarmed and in great fear, awoke Him and cried for help (v25). There could not have been any real danger of perishing with Jesus on the boat. The storm was severe, yet Jesus was calm. The disciples were gripped with wild fear. What a contrast! Their prayer was short, to the point—plenty long enough—"save us, we perish." Jesus was disappointed in them and rebuked them for their "little faith." True faith in Christ banishes all fear from the heart. Then Jesus spoke in His majesty as Son of God, rebuked the wind and the sea became a great calm (v26). The disciples were filled with marvel, they were with one who had unheard-of supernatural power. A holy fear possessed them. Jesus had words of sympathy, a healing touch, and a strong arm for the weak. He ministered to both soul and body. The power of Christ is using people today to help Him in this ministry.

Correspondence

MENN. CHURCH, DEER CREEK, OKLA., 11-6-39

God spoke to us in a wonderful way when He gave us a very good harvest this summer. Again He is speaking to us by not sending us needed rains for the new crop which was hopefully sown into dry ground. Some of the wheat is up, but a good deal of it is lying in its dry seed bed.

We have been privileged, the last month, in hearing various groups and individuals from our neighbor churches and also from our mission field. Miss Elizabeth Foth spoke to a joint meeting of the Medford and Deer Creek Mission Societies one aftrenoon in our church; then again to the church in the evening.—A group from the Meno Bible School had charge of our morning services one Sunday, giving us a message in word and song.—A group of young folks from Medford, with their pastor, rendered for us a lovely song service one Sunday evening.—Missionary John Thiessen gave us a message on Sunday, November 5, again making us realize, how much the results out in the field depend on our efforts here at home.—Our men's chorus, with the pastor and the help of a few ladies' numbers, gave programs at the Enid and Medford churches. All of this, the giving as well as the receiving of these blessings, strengthens and renews our faith in God and one another.

For our midweek Bible hours we are studying Paul's letter to the Ephesians. Our pastor plans to have us finish this course in six weeks. During this study hour Mrs. Miller has kindly offered to have the little folks come to their home. So with the help of one of our S. S. teachers, Mrs. E. Krehbiel, they are taught Bible truths in a way which they can understand. For these efforts put forth by Rev. and Mrs. Miller we are grateful.—Mrs. M. C. Lichti, Corr.

FIRST MENN. CHURCH, NEWTON, KAN.

Dear Editor and Readers of the Mennonite: God's blessing to you for heart and home and work. On Sunday, October 1, Rev. Benjamin Ewert of Winnipeg, Manitoba, brought us the message. In the evening Miss Elizabeth Foth of Brooklyn, New York, spoke of her Home Mission work.—Mrs. Ferdinand Voth, who very successfully directed the Young Peoples' Choir, had to take a leave of absence on account of her health.—On Sunday, October 15, we had Communion service. In the evening Missionary W. C. Voth of China showed pictures from China.—On Tuesday, October 17, the Ministers' Conference of the Western District was held in our church. It was very well attended and a great blessing. It was a guest of the Congregation for the noon meal. Rev. John S. Raugh of East Freedom, Penna., spoke on Home Mission. Missionary P. W. Penner from India brought greetings and news from the India mission field.—Many of our members attended the Western District Conference in Wichita, Wednesday and Thursday.—Sunday, October 22, Dr. Warkentin preached a very interesting sermon on "Heaven"; text: Matt. 8:11; and Brother Walter Regier gave a report of the first day of the conference. In the evening the student nurses of the Bethel Deaconss Hospital gave a very good program. —October 27, 28, 29 the District C. E. Convention convened in the Christian Church. The banquet, Saturday evening, was in our church basement.—On October 29, Dr. Warkentin preached a very earnest sermon on "Hell"; text: Matt. 8:12. Rev. J. M. Janzen gave a report of the second day of the conference.—God bless you all. Fraternally yours, C. v. d. Smissen, Corr.

Extracts from Letters by Missionaries Frank and Augusta Balzer Manning

Many of the readers of this paper know this dear couple, and although they are not working on one of our mission fields, we are glad to hear from them. Their letters show that they are very busy instructing their native friends in the Way of Life and harvesting souls for the kingdom of God. Following are some extracts from their letters:

"Frank and Pastor Yonazani were privileged to start visiting in the huts of every Christian in this parish. They were gone 18 days to the mainland section of this field. The Lord was present in power in the different centers. Sinners were saved, backsliders reclaimed and Christians built up in the most holy faith. One elderly woman was baptized over twenty years ago and is still standing true.

"Praise the Lord that He has made it possible for Frank to obtain a bicycle. It is a great help in the work. With it he can visit any center on the island and return the same day. An extra seat has been procured, and now Grace (their daughter) can travel with her daddy. We trust that Augusta will soon learn to ride a bicycle, for then we can go out together on the visitation work.

"For the raising of Augusta we want to offer distinct praise. Some of you have heard of her illness—yellow jaundice which at times is stubborn to cure. For five weeks she stayed in Mwanza, near the doctor. How we do rejoice that we are all together again and in good health!

"The Annual Missionary Conference was this year held at Uzinza station. Thirty missionaries were present. It was a blessed conference throughout, and everyone could say, "It was good to have been there." The theme of the conference was PRAYER, and truly our hearts were deeply stirred as one around the common mercy seat.

"The station school here has been closed until September. You will rejoice to know that most of the pupils have come to a saving knowledge of the Lord Jesus Christ, in or during the school term. Most of them are standing true and are faithfully attending catechism classes and Sunday services during vacation.

"January 12, 1939. So many of you loved ones have remembered us with letters, greetings, pictures, calendars, packages and gifts for the Christmas season, that we, your unworthy servants for Christ's sake, are overwhelmed with gratitude to our heavenly Father and to you, His children, for your thoughtfulness and lovingkindness toward us and toward Him who gave Himself for us.

"The first week of the new year services were held in conncetion with the Universal Week of Prayer. How precious was every service . . . ! Our brother Sywulka came from Mwanza for the meeting. He revealed things from the Holy Book in a way to enrich every heart. The other speaker was our brother Yermia Mahalu. What a power he is for God and against evil. He knows how to get right down where people live in their sin and he preaches fearlessly. The Sunday meeting culminated in the ordination of brother Yeremia as pastor. The meeting place was jammed full and many were looking in the windows. Yeremia will soon take over the mainland section of our field, with 25 or 30 thousand people.

Rev. and Mrs. Frank Manning and Daughter Grace at Nansio, Ukrewe Island, Tanganyka Territory, East Africa

"Last Sunday the women gathered for a prayer meeting, after which we separated into three groups and went out into the villages. We met nine negro gardeners, all working for one master. When we had spoken to them for an hour, four of them gave their testimony. Then we spoke to a man and his wife. In due time they, too, said they would walk the Jesus way. They both prayed, and when the wife halted the husband helped her. Today they were both in church.

"Recently a pair of parents brought their eleven-year old son, very sick with a high fever, to us at 2:00 a.m. Saturday, and at 10:00 p.m., same day he died. Immediately the father gave a wonderful testimony of faith and trust in God, so did his wife, though near the breaking-down point, saying, "Lord thou hast given us the child, now we gladly give it back to thee. It is thine, but it is also mine." Then the couple led in singing songs of praise. They had lost four children before.

"Grace became sick at 1:00 a.m., with a temperature of 102 degrees. The fever increased gradually until it reached 107 degrees at 8:30 in the morning, when death color appeared on her face, her eyes became set and froth gathered about her mouth. Humanly speaking she was near death. Then Miss Arnold, the nurse, took charge and in an hour the girl began to perspire, the danger was over. The Lord had been near us with His comfort and help. When it comes to such a pass, it is no wonder that missionaries want to go home with their children."

LANSDALE, PENN. On May 15th the membership of the Grace Mennoite Young People's Society of Lansdale, Penn., petitioned the present administration to reorganize the society and to rewrite the constitution.

Acting on the petition, the president, Miss Martha Fretz, commissioned Mrs. Olin Krehbiel and Rev. Olin Krehbiel to re-write the same.

On September 12th the new constitution was formally adopted at a special business meeting.

Under the revised constitution the membership qualifications have been stiffened in order to maintain a higher percentage of active members. The Executive Committee has received more power. The standing committee have not yet been named.

The name has officially been changed to "Senior Young People's Society of Grace Mennonite Church of Lansdale, Penn."

CAN YOU ANSWER THESE?

"Often the strongest arguments given in attempting to convince that the pacifist that he is wrong are taken from the Bible. Among them are the following: Didn't God command the Israelites to fight for the land of Palestine, and not to make terms with the inhabitants until they were completely conquered, sometimes annihilated? We read of the "wrath" of God being directed against evildoers of all kinds. Jesus was not always meek and mild, for he angrily denounced the priests and scribes, calling them 'hypocrites' and 'vipers!' Didn't he cleanse the temple by force? He told his disciples that 'wars and rumors of wars' . . . must needs come to pass! Several of his sayings seem to show that he approved the use of force on some occasions: 'Think not that I came to send peace upon the earth!'; 'When the strong men armed guardeth his own court, his goods are at peace.' Doesn't he also say, 'Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends'? He advocated obedience to the state, in saying, 'Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's'; and so did Paul, 'Let every soul be in subjection to the higher powers . . . the powers that be are ordained of God.' Jesus teaches his followers to love their personal enemies, and not the enemies of Christianity itself. In some circumstances it is necessary to punish those whom we love. To allow the evildoer to go unrestrained is not to love him at all. The soldier does not personally hate the men he kills, but ony the things which they do and their reasons for doing them. His motive is justice, not revenge. It is God's will, or at least it seems to be, that great evils, like slavery, be cast out by means of great suffering, in which the innocent must perish with the guilty, and war is one of the providential instruments by which He purges the world."—Taken from "THE PACIFIST HANDBOOK."

WORLD MISSIONS

Senior C. E. Topic for December 3, 1939

MAIN TOPIC: "Into All the World," Mark 16:14-20

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "We've a Story to Tell to the Nations," "Hark! 'Tis the Shepherd's Voice I Hear," "Dear to the Heart of the Savior."
2. Reading of main topic, and prayer.
3. Talk by the pastor (5 min.) telling in what countries missionary work is being done by our denomination.

II. Leader's Introduction:

We are never to forget that of the gospel Christ said: "Go ye into ALL THE WORLD." We are to preach to ALL NATIONS.

To all of the World. (Mark 16:15). "It is significant that the word 'news' is made up of the first letters of North, East, West, South. So the Good News of the Gospel is sent out to all points of the compass, that all the ends of the earth may look and be saved."

The Inclusive Kingdom. When on a furlough from Africa Dan Crawford, who followed on the trail of Livingstone, addressed a meeting of the Bible Society in England, and said: "We have a Bantu proverb that says, 'You can count the number of apples on a tree, but you cannot count the number of trees in one apple.' I was working away at a difficult translation, and the devil came to me and said, 'Drop it; it is not translatable.' I thought awhile, then went back to it, and my Bible opened at Daniel 7:14: 'And there was given him . . . a kingdom, that all people, nations, and languages, should serve him.' We have 440 translations. That is not enough. I went on, and succeeded."

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks

1. Preparing the way, Lk. 10:1-11.
2. Persecution, the driving force. Acts 8:1-4; 11:19-21.
3. Consecrated as missionaries, Acts 13:1-5.
4. Gifts for Christian Service. Eph. 4:7, 8; 11-13.
5. Glory of God's messengers. Isa. 52:7-10.

IV. Facts for study

The onward march of missions has always come as a result of truly consecrated lives; men and women to whom living for Christ and winning others for him was a passion.

The interest in missions needs to be cultivated, the church must give of its time to the study of missions. Even plants and shrubs and flowers will not grow without painstaking care, they need cultivation. Surely missions is as worthy of careful and prayerful attention as these.

The work of missions is a worthy enterprise. No other task meets with so much soul-thrilling reward as this work. No other work requires more painstaking labor and greater effort—but those who have engaged in it all agree that the reward is well worth the price.

No other message is so universally needed as the message of the missionary who comes to bring men to Christ. He is today as he has been yesterday, and all the days of the past, the Only One who can bring peace and joy to the human heart. He is needed by all men everywhere. What a big task is entrusted to Christ's follower's—the task of missions.

V. For Discussion

Why should the church carry on missions?
How should the church carry on missions?

VI. Illustrations

Who is to carry on missions? Some years ago when I was speaking in the city of Minneapolis, I noticed down in the audience a young man whom I knew to be a lawyer. When the meeting was over I made my way to him and said, "Are you a Christian?" "Well, sir," he said, "I consider my self a Christian." I said, "Are you bringing other men to Christ?" He answered, "No, I am not. That is not my business; that's your business. I am not called to do that; I am called to practice law. You are called to preach the gospel." I said, "If you are called to be a Christian you are called to bring other men to Christ." He said, "I don't believe it." I answered, "Look here," opening my Bible at Acts 8:4. I asked him to read, which he did, aloud: "They that were scattered abroad went every where preaching the word." "Oh, yes," he said, "but these were the apostles." I referred him then to the first verse of the chapter, which he read: "They were all scattered abroad . . . except the apostles," and "they that were scattered abroad went every where preaching the word." He had nothing more to say. — Rev. R. A. Torrey.

The reward of mission work is large, not in dollars and cents, but in other ways.

"I encountered at one time in a railway train a nurse in the habit of her profession and I remarked, casually: 'I cannot understand why you nurses, so badly paid and so hardly worked, are nearly always so happy.' To this the girl replied, 'Perhaps you don't know the thrill of saving a life.' It was a priceless reply.

London's great preacher, C. H. Spurgeon, always emphasized the value of the immortal soul, and the joy of winning men for Christ. Said he on one occasion:

"When we endeavor to lead men to God, we pursue a business far more profitable than the pearl fishers' diving or the diamond hunters' searching. No pursuit of mortal men is to be compared with that of soul winning. I know what I say when I bid you think of it as men think of entering the cabinet of a nation, or occupying a throne. It is a royal business and they are true kings who follow it successfully."

VII. Food for Thought

His lamp am I,
To shine where he shall say;
And lamps are not for sunny rooms,
Nor for the light of day;
But for dark places of the earth.
Where shame and wrong and crime have birth,
Or where the lamp of faith grows dim,
And souls are groping after Him.
So may I shine, his love the flame,
That men may glorify his name.
—Mrs. Induk Pak, of Seoul, Chosen (Korea).

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

HAVE I THE RIGHT TO DO AS I PLEASE?

Intermediate C. E. Topic for December 3, 1939

For Daily Reading

Nov. 27. Who is Lord over us? Ps. 12:1-8.
Nov. 28. Ye are not your own. I Cor. 6:19, 20.
Nov. 29. Redeemed with Christ's blood. I Pet. 1:17-25.
Nov. 30. Do all to the glory of God. I Cor. 10:23-33.
Dec. 1. Account for every word. Matt. 12:36, 37.
Dec. 2. Meekness toward all men. Tit. 3:1-8.
Dec. 3. Topic. Luke 15:11-24.

Call to Worship

If I have strength, I owe the service of the strong;
If melody I have, I owe the world a song;
If I can stand when all around my post are falling;
If I can run with speed when needy hearts are calling,
And if my torch can light the dark of any night,
Then I must pay the debt I owe with living light.

Song: "Somebody Did a Golden Deed"
Scripture Reading: Luke 15:11-24.
Sentence prayers
Song: "Somebody Came and Lifted Me"

Questions for Discussion:

1. Where is the first place in which we learn that we cannot do as we please?

2. Who was the first one to teach us to respect others rights?

3. What happened to pupils in school who thought they could do as they pleased?

4. Have you ever consulted an older person as to what you should do? Have they always suggested the thing you wanted to do? If not, how did you take it?

6. Read I Cor. 6:19, 20, and explain what affect these words should have upon our lives.

7. What great principle should govern our every action? Read I Cor. 10:23-33.

8. Read Matt. 12:36, 37. How do those words affect our speech? Did you ever stop to think that you will be held accountable for all idle words? What does this teach us in regard to idle or slang words?

9. Picture what would happen in traffic if every driver felt he had a right to do as he pleased.

10. Ask one of your athletes to picture what would happen if the team did not obey the rules of the game.

Song: "I'll Live for Him."
Leader read these lines;

"Others, Lord, yes, others,
Let this my motto be;
Help me to live for others,
That I may live like Thee."

   Leader—Luke 1:53, 54, 55.

7. Solo. Verse one of "All Glory, Laud and Honor" Mennonite Hymn Book, No. 96.

II. Study Period

Aim—To help our Juniors to prepare their hearts for the coming of the Lord, that they might celebrate Christmas in such a way that it will be a blessing to them.

1. To the Junior. You know that we have a "church year." Parts of it are named like this—Advent, Christmas-tide, Lent, Pentecost, and so on. We are now in Advent—the four Sundays before Christmas day. You know that the word means arrival, visit, the coming of some one.

There are always four Sundays in the Advent season. Counting four Sundays backward from Christmas day gives the date for the first Advent Sunday for the year. This is either the last Sunday in November or the first Sunday in December. This year the first Advent Sunday comes on the first Sunday of the month because Christmas comes after the fourth Sunday. Advent means arrival, or the coming of some one. It means the coming of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ.

When we know that some one is coming we prepare for him, clean the house. Just so, we should all be getting ourselves ready for the Advent of our Lord. Our hearts should be cleansed because we want to honor this ONE above all others. If we stop and think just who this ONE is it will help us to get ready to celebrate His birthday as it should be. If we study His names it will help us to know Him better.

Many people prepare their hearts to receive this "COMING ONE" by memorizing a verse of prophecy on each Advent Day. Perhaps your Junior leader will give you a list of the prophecies each week that you may memorize them.

2. Song in unison—"Love Divine, All Love Excelling." Mennonite Hymn Book, No. 236.

3. Three Juniors read the following: (a) Zechariah 9:9; (b) Zechariah 14:9; (c) Revelation 17:14.

4. Talk by a Junior: "The Coming King"

5. Two Juniors read the following: (a) Isaiah 7:14; Matthew 1:23. (b) Matthew 1:21; Luke 1:31.

6. Talk by a Junior: "The Coming Saviour." Luke 2:11; Acts 5:31; 2 Timothy 1:10.

7. Poem—by a Junior girl:

"They shall call His name Emmanuel . . . God with us."

"God with us," now and evermore;
This life of weakness and of woe;
His love, His power, and His strength,
With us, wherever we may go;
Since He hath come to earth to dwell,
And be for aye . . . Emmanuel!"

—Annie Johnson Flint.

8. Read in unison, Isaiah 9:6.

9. Duet with Violin—"That Beautiful Name"—Service Hymnal, No. 78.

10. Leader's Heart talk.

11. Song, "Take the Name of Jesus with You"

III. Mission Minutes:

1. Let us plan to send letters or cards to the missionary children. Plan for this at this time.

2. Leader's Closing prayer.

3. Song in unison, "Into My Heart." (Sing this very softly, twice.)

IN MEMORIAM

WIDMER: PAUL PETER WIDMER, son of Peter and Catherine (Widmer) Widmer, was born at Hasingen, Alsace Lorraine, France, May 31, 1910. When he was about 3 years old he migrated with his parents to America and settled at Noble, Iowa. Upon his confession of faith he was baptized Aug. 19, 1923, by the Rev. P. K. Regier and accepted into the membership of the Eicher Emmanuel Mennonite Church—On February 9, 1933, he was united in marriage to Cora Barbara Graber in a ceremony solemnized by the Rev. A. H. Miller. Four children were born to this union.

He suffered from Hodgkin's disease for several years and had been seriously ill since May of this year. On Tuesday morning, October 31, 1939, he was called to his eternal abode, at the age of 29 years and 5 months.

He leaves to mourn his passing, his wife, Cora, and baby daughter Joyce Elaine, his father, mother, brother Jake and sister Rosalie. "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on thee." Isaiah 26:3. Funeral services were held at the Eicher Emmanuel Church, with the Rev. Delbert E. Welty officiating.—Mrs. D. E. W., Corr.

SUSIE L. FRIESEN, the second child of Jacob J. and Eva Loeppky Friesen, was born August 18, 1891 at the home farm five miles northwest of Butterfield, Minn. Here she grew up to womanhood, attended the district school and the German Parochial School. As a child of less than four years old, she lost her father through sudden death. So with her fatherless brothers and sisters she gave her entire love and devotion to her mother, and took care of her until she died about five years ago. Four years ago, her stepfather, Rev. N. F. Toews, for whom she also provided a home and care to the end, was also called to his reward.

Susie was quite lonely as she lived alone in her home here in town. She served the community with sewing and thus her expert needlework was a help to most of the ladies of the community. On May 19, 1907, she was baptized and received as a member of the Bethel Church of Mountain Lake by Elder H. H. Regier. She remained a devoted member of this church to the end.

She died Sunday, October 15, 1939, at 3:35 a.m., attaining the age of 48 years, 1 month, and 27 days. Her sickness was a stomach ailment of long standing which, in spite of an operation 14 years ago and other medical treatments, continued to get worse. She was seriously sick only one day and night in the Bethel Hospital. She was clear to the end and ready to follow the call of her Maker. Of her faith in Him and her long anticipation she testified the last fleeting moments of her life. There remain to mourn her unexpected departure: two brothers, Jacob L. and John S. Friesen; one sister, Helen, Mrs. A. A. Stoesz; two sisters-in-law; one brother-in-law; 5 nephews; 3 nieces; one step brother and two step sisters and their families; also a large circle of relatives and friends here and in Canada.

— St. John Menn. Church, Pandora, Ohio.—For four days, Nov. 9-12, this church is holding its Sixth Annual Young People's Conference, with Rev. Isaac Page, D.D., Field Secretary of the China Inland Mission, Toronto, Ont. as the principal speaker. Cooperating in the meetings are the following organizations: Young People's Choir of First Mennonite Church, Berne, Ind.; Bluffton College Gospel Team, and Young People's Choir of the home church.—Miss Mary Haas and Miss Eva Duerksen, missionaries in Africa, who left there Sept. 23, arrived in New York Oct. 27. They have a thrilling story of the adventure of traveling the sees during these war times and especially of God's protection over them.

— First Menn. Church, Reedley, Calif.—Ways of inducing more people to come into this building in the spirit of worship and understanding: Greet strangers, whom we seldom meet, more often.—Visit people who worship here . . . especially if we are not well acquainted with them now.—Provide more adequate room and equipment to make the S. S., C. E. and Worship Service more helpful and inviting.—Make the possibilities of the Church and her services to mankind our first interest.—Learn to have our emotions and feelings that lead to deeds, controlled more by the Spirit of God than by the fears of men.— Learn to compete less with each other and more against our lesser, baser selves.—Ch. Bulletin.

— Eighth Street Menn. Church, Goshen, Ind.—A number of our people attended the recent festivities at Bluffton Clolege and also visited friends. Mrs. Grover Soldner was well enough to attend a few of the programs. The campus shows improvement in physical equipment. The student body is larger. There is an excellent spirit in the air . . . Bluffton is growing. It merits your support.—October 19 the Indiana Mennonite Women's Miss. Societies met in this church. Meetings were held beginning at 10:00. 1:30 and 6:30.

— First Menn. Church, Bluffton, Ohio.—Clothing will again be sent to Canada. Those who wish to contribute should do so early.—A week of inspirational and evangelistic services in our church will begin on December 10 with Rev. A. C. Schultz of the college as speaker.—Bulletin.

— The Einsiedel Congregation at Hanston, Kansas recently held a baptismal service, thus adding three young girls to our number. We also enjoyed the inspirational talk of Missionary Thiessen on Sunday afternoon, Oct. 22. Yours for an inspirational paper.—Mrs. Vivian Ewy, Corr.

— *Our Field Secretary, Dr. H. A. Since the study of foreign languages in that country is forbidden, the young man has come here to study, first in some high school and then in Bethel College.

— Mr. Don E. Smucker, who managed the Institute of International Relations at Bethel College a couple of years, is now with "the Fellowship of Reconciliation at 2929 Broadway, New York City." He writes, "I am busy working with various Christian youth groups and am happy to discover that the Mennonite doctrine of non-resistance has many followers in other denominations. In fact it is a great thrill, to find a member of a large denomination who says that he now realizes that the Anabaptists were right and his founding fathers were wrong.—I am doing all I can to overcome the superficial analysis of laying the world's evil on the shoulders of Adolf Hitler rather than on the hearts of sinning mankind where it belongs.

— Rev. J. J. Balzer of Mountain Lake, Minn. in a letter tells of the abundant grain yields in his neighborhood. A nephew of his had a yield of 108 bushels of corn an acre from a ten-acre field of hybreed. Another neighbor gathered 119 bushels per acre, and oats yielded as high as 122½ bushels on a 60 acre field.—The good brother had the misfortune to fall from a stairway down on a sidewalk, whereby he seriously injured one of his legs, though no bones were broken. He is recovering, though slowly.

— First Mennonite Church, Newton, Kansas will have a series of meetings beginning Sunday, Nov. 12. Rev. Erland Waltner of Philadelphia will be the speaker Sunday morning and evening, also each evening from Monday to Thursday. Dr. Warkentin will conduct a Bible study hour in German at 10:00 a. m. and 2:30 p. m., Monday to Thursday.

— Outgoing Missionaries Arrived Safely in Yokohama, Japan.—The missionary group, Rev. and Mrs. August Epp and family, Rev. and Mrs. Marvin Dirks and child, and Rev. and Mrs. Orlando Waltner arrived in Yokohama, Japan, Oct. 14, apparently all well. They expected to board a ship that was to take them to China in about five days.

— Articles on Education and Schools to Appear again. We have a letter from the Secretary of the General Conference Board of Education, Rev. A. S. Rosenberger, saying that they are planning to continue the work of furnishing, to our papers, regular short contributions pertaining to the field of education.

— Bluffton College.—On December 1 and 2 Bluffton will be host to a Historic Peace Church Conference, represented by the following schools: Brethren—Manchester Cllege, Manchester, Ind.; Friends—Earlham College, Richmond, Ind. and Willmington College, Willmington, Ohio; Mennonites—Goshen College, Goshen, Ind. and Bluffton College, Bluffton, Ohio. Some of the subjects to be considered are: "Ways and Means to Preserve Peace," "The Christian Philosophy as the Basis of Pacifism."—Bluffton is again featuring a Course on Marriage. Lectures have already been given on subjects like, "The Psychology of Marriage," "Physical Qualification for Marriage." Others to come are, "The Legal View Point of Marriage and Divorce," "Courtship and Sexual Adjustment" and "The Home and the Child."

— Corn Husking Champions.—At a recent corn husking contest near Mt. Lake, Minn., Art Johnson husked 24:65 bushels in 80 minutes, throwing ears into the wagon at the rate of 44 a minute. In Indiana Alva Smith husked 40 bushels in 80 minutes, which means close to 60 ears per minute. That certainly requires skill and the corn must have been very good. Just recently the national husking contest was held near Lawrence, Kansas. There, with about 100,000 spectators looking on, Lawrence Pfitzer of Indiana outstripped the other ten contestants, husking 28.39 bushels in 80 minutes. His runner-up was Richard Huth, Minnesota state champion, with 27.03 bushels.

— A Peace Rally sponsored by the Peace Committee of the Eastern District was held at the Grace Mennonite Church, Lansdale, Pa. with programs afternoon and evening. Addresses were made by Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander on "The War Situation Today and What We Have Done to Meet it in Study Classes"; by Orie O. Miller, Akron, Ohio, on "Non-Resistance in Practice in Time of War." Don E. Smucker of New York City also spoke.

— England Has Serious Troubles with India, where the National Congress is declining to vote its support of the war against Germany. The argument is that England's claim that she is fighting for democracy is a lie as long as she is unwilling to give India self-government.

MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN - - Berne, Indiana

—Bethel College.—The Student Volunteers have been arranging for a rich program this year. The group plans to create a greater mission spirit within its own members and to make Christ known to their fellowmen. Two prayer meetings are held every Monday night. Hospitals and old peoples homes are to be visited regularly, and visits to all the surrounding churches are in prospect. The theme for the year is "To know Him and make Him known."—Recently President Lloyd L. Ramseyer and Business Manager J. H. Loganbill of Bluffton College paid Bethel a welcome visit to study Bethel's industrial work, organization and equipment, and to give this sister college a friendship call. On the way they visited other colleges among them Pulaski College in Iowa and Park College, Mo.

MONTANA MISSION ANNIVERSARY NUMBER

The Montana Mission Field receives more space in this number than usual on account of the 35th anniversary celebration held there this past summer, in which nearly all of the present and past missionaries participated. Of the present missionaries there, only Bro. and Sister R. Petter could not be present on account of their furlough in Switzerland. Now they are back safe, and may have the opportunity to take part in some of the final meetings of this celebration. The different reports by the participating missionaries and one board member, Bro. Horsch, are telling the rest of the story.

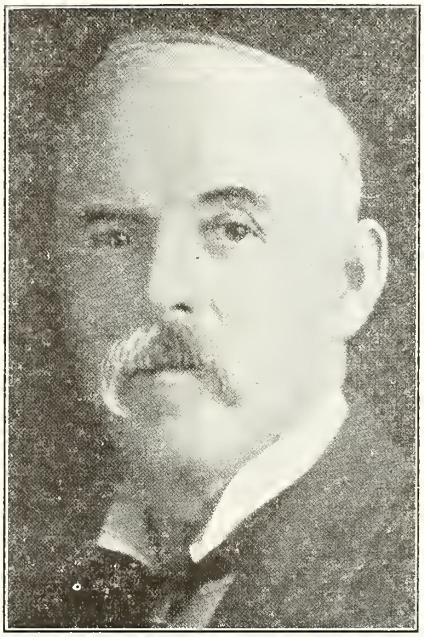
Missions have passed into a dangerous and critical time on account of wars in both the East and the West, and also on account of the resulting hard times in many places. Floods, especially in China, have added much to the tragedy. Read it all and let your heart become big in sympathy, but let it also become firm in the only hope for the world, Christ and his gospel.

We call especial attention to the incident mentioned in Mrs. W. C. Voth's article, which sounds much like the Elisha story of the host of angels sent for his protection. (See further below).

The Present Condition of our Treasury

The mission friends have a right to learn from time to time the condition of our treasury. The Lord has been very gracious in providing through his children what we needed to make all payments during the year, even if for the last payment we had to borrow $12,000. But if contributions this month and Thanksgiving Day come in as usual in November, we expect that all will be paid by December first or so. We thank God and the many donors for this, and know that the blessing upon the gifts will be double, i.e. for both the donors and the recipients. For what better means have we to keep from going to sleep than keeping hands and hearts busy in praying, working and giving for missions?

In Canada Bro. D. W. Friesen, Altona, Manitoba, is our assistant treasurer. All mission contributions from Canada should be sent to him.



Missionary Rodolphe Petter *

Brother and Sister Rodolphe Petter, Our Senior Missionaries in Montana

They have just recently come home safely from Switzerland, where they spent their furlough, because it is Bro. Petter's homeland. He reports of the Lord's protection during the home trip among other things as follows:

"God surely led most graciously for we were offered a cabin on the ill-fated Athenia, which I instinctively refused, and had I gotten my visa through France to ship in Bordeaux, we would have been in the "harding" and almost shipwrecked. A few days—yea the day before we heard that we had a cabin on the Saturnia, in my reading I just came to Isa. 43:2 and told Mrs. Petter who had misgivings, "Now we have complete assurance from our heavenly Father; it will be just as he says." The morning we boarded our train for Genoa and our ship, my sister came to tell us adieu and handed me the Bible word (Calendar) for the day; it said (in French translation): "I shall be with thee on the way thou goest." I said, "I have a passport, a steamer ticket, and a re-entry permit but how far more precious to me is this promise and assurance of God! And it proved true day by day on our way until today so it will be until my journey on earth shall reach the end and its goal."

Mrs. Petter reports: "The Indians received us as if we had risen from the dead, because rumors had reached them that our ship had gone down. The Christians especially had been depressed, and had earnestly and constantly prayed for our safe return. Although usually undemonstrative, they gave us a touching welcome. Bro. Petter had gone to the children on the first Sunday, but they celebrated a welcome for me after the morning service. In all their prayers they thanked God for the safe return of the missionaries, and prayed that they might remain a long while to teach them what they not yet know."

* The cut with both Brother and Sister Petter was unfortunately broken in printing the "Bundesbote," so the above substitute with Bro. Petter alone has to be used here.

MONTANA THIRTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY OF MISSION WORK AMONG THE NORTHERN CHEYENES

B. A. Habegger

Where there is life there is growth. Where there is spiritual life there is also growth. Our Lord compared the Kingdom of God with seed, while the world is the field. The Northern Cheyenne field, located in the southeastern part of Montana, has been receiving the seed of the Word of God during the past 35 years. The Lord has given precious souls peace, joy, salvation, yes, eternal life, because they have believed and trusted in Him.

Families celebrate the birthdays of their children; married folks celebrate their wedding anniversaries; churches and institutions, too, celebrate their anniversaries. It is a time when those concerned lift up their hearts in gratitude to God, and take a look into the past, a look about them, a look into their own hearts, and a look into the future, and rejoice together in Christian fellowship.

How delighted we were, when we found out that we could have special guests for this occasion. Rev. and Mrs. G. A. Linschied, who were the pioneer missionaries, serving 16 years at Busby, came early, the first part of June, and stayed on the Reservation for 8 weeks and renewed old friendships and made many new ones. They lived at Lame Deer during this time and visited and served at all the stations, bringing encouragement and joy to all the Indians whom they reached. Rev. M. Horsch, of Beatrice, a representative of the Foreign Board, came for the celebration, and also to visit the entire field. Rev. Horsch served in the mission field among the Cheyennes in Oklahoma in the early days of the Mission work there, and his deep interest and sympathetic attitude to the work, made his visit a great blessing to the Indians and the workers. Rev. and Mrs. P. A. Kliewer who started in the Mission work only 4 years after the Linscheids began their labors, and who also served 16 years in pioneer work, were able to be with us for a part of the celebration, and their coming was a joy to many Indians, for they had worked in all the different districts, during their years of service.

Besides the above veteran missionaries, all the present workers on the field took part at various times on the three day program, and made important contributions to the success of the meetings. We were sorry that Dr. and Mrs. R. Petter, who were still on their furlough in Switzerland, could not be with us. Their 23 years of untiring service here among the N. Cheyennes, however, showed its fruit in the sincere messages, and capable service which the Native Christians gave here during the celebration. Prayers of thanksgiving for what all the missionaries have done by God's grace for the Cheyennes were coming from the hearts of those who took part. Those who appreciate the Word of God most, were also deeply concerned that the Lord bring the Petters home safely from Europe.

The hardships and privations which were recalled by the visiting missionaries and their wives, showed what sacrificial labors were required to open up the Mission work on the various stations. We who came later did not have to build homes and churches, like the pioneers had to do. We also have more translations and linguistic materials with which to learn the language. The early missionaries had to go about with horses and carriages, or wagons, while we have had cars from the beginning of our coming to the reservation. They laid the foundation upon which the later workers have built.

Because of distances, and circumstances, many who would have been glad to attend these special meetings could not be present. Even in our own district, Indians from Ashland and Birney, although interested, found it hard to come, so that only a small representation could be present. The ones who did come however felt happy together, and rejoiced in the Christian fellowship.

While the adults met at the church, special meetings for the children were conducted by Mrs. G. A. Linschied, Mrs. P. A. Kliewer, Miss Marie Buller, Mrs. Laura Petter, and others, among them Mrs. R. N. England of Hardin, Mont. One meeting was a women's meeting, at which time the above ladies made their contributions in talk and songs, and devotions.

The fellowship dinner for the Christians will be long remembered. It was held in a large Tepee, owned by the local store keeper. Here in this spacious tepee, made of large trees, covered with boards and shingles, tables were arranged, at which 64 people enjoyed a dinner together. Rev. C. A. Bentley, missionary among the Crow Indians west of Busby, was the guest speaker. His message was interpreted by Milton Whiteman. Special music and prayers helped to make this occasion a feast in more ways than one.

On Sunday morning the Lord's supper was impressively conducted by Rev. G. A. Linschied. The opening was led by Milton Whitman, who also helped in most of the meetings as interpreter. All the ministers assisted in the distribution of the bread and wine, and everyone received a blessing from this important service.

We feel very grateful to our Heavenly Father, for giving us nice weather for these meetings. We also are very thankful for the spirit of helpfulness and cooperation which was shown by all those who took part in the meetings. It is our hope that we may have such a celebration at five year periods, so that the Christians may look forward to them, and in their memories look back to them, and take special notice of the developments that take place during the years through the influence of the Mission work. It is our prayer that the coming years may show a vigorous growth in deepened interest in the things of God, greater loyalty to Christ, and more efficient participation on the part of the Indian Christians in the work of the Lord.

The second generation of Christians is growing up, with much more Christian back-ground, and better education, and a different outlook on life, from that held by their ignorant heathen parents and grandparents, when the mission work was opened. There are still heathen Indians who hold to the old ceremonial life. Then there is the Peyote organization, that tenaciously holds to their false worship, calling their cult the Native American church, although it is not based on Scripture, nor repentance, nor salvation from sin through Jesus Christ.

May the Lord grant that His Holy Word, used in Cheyenne and English bring about a complete transformation of the Cheyenne Indians. May those who have learned to love Him and His Word, grow in strength and become a means of leading many others to faith in Him.

ARIZONA

Also in Arizona the work shows fruit. This is especially true this year regarding the Vacation Bible School in the different villages. In Moen Copi they had 27 pupils, in Hotevilla 88, and in Oraibi 115. It was our first attempt in this work, and the native helpers assisted much, as also another couple that lives there, the Kliewers, for which we are thankful.

The new High School in Oraibi gives much opportunity to teach gospel songs and the Bible to the children. We need about three dozen Bibles and as many song books for them. Special gifts for this are solicited by the sewing societies. Send gifts to Mrs. Frieda Regier Entz, Newton, Kans.

Why the General Conference Does Such Extensive Mission Work Among the Natives of America

We may notice two special and very important reasons: first, the Great Lord of the Harvest called us to this work. It is practically 60 years ago since He pointed our Conference to the Indian Territory, to the Cheyenne and Arapahoes. Looking back in retrospect over these years, we must humbly and gratefully exclaim: "What hath God wrought!"

Was the work easy, the road smooth and even? By no means. The work was and still is hard and discouraging. The road was and still is rugged and steep. But the outlook always was and still is as bright as the promises of God.

The fact that these people first came into contact with the scum of civilization and many white people who called themselves Christians but acted anything but Christ-like, gave the natives a distaste against and distorted ideas of the white man's religion, as they called Christianity. If such is the fruit of their religion, we do not want it. So they reasoned quite naturally. It was by a slow and painful process that they learned to distinguish and discern between the true and the false, or the genuine and the counterfeit. Thanks and praise be to our Lord, that by the work of His Spirit, many of them have surrendered to Christ and became His followers. Hundreds today are a living testimony, that the blessed Gospel is the power of God unto salvation, to all who believe. They do not come in numbers as on other mission fields but, one by one, as they submit to the power of the Word. It is not an easy matter for a proud and haughty Cheyenne Chief to surrender and submit his stubborn will under the will of God. But this miracle has happened and does happen. Yes, "he shall divide His spoils with the strong—Er soll die Starken zum Raube haben".—Isaiah 53:12:

The road was and still is rugged and steep. There were and still are very severe tests that seem to shake the very foundation of the work: tests by fire, tests by loss of faithful laborers, who were called home, humanly speaking, in the best of of their days. There were and still are very severe tests by the siren voices of false religions and false gods. This means great opposition against our Lord and His claims. Satan is on the job to deceive, if possible, the very elect. He knows his time is getting short and he puts forth his most destructive forces. Should this surprise us? No! We must expect it with our Indians. "Must I be carried to the skies on flowery beds of ease, while others fought to win the prize and sailed through bloody seas?" Our Indian mission fields may lack the glamour and halo of the fields across the oceans, but it calls for genuine heroism, self-abnegation and hard work and above all perservering and unquestioning faith in the final triumph of our Master's great cause among the American natives.

Secondly, we want to note another and very important reason for carrying on mission work among these people. To do so, we discharge a sacred duty toward our country. We, the Mennonites, have found in America a haven of refuge religiously and materially. The religious side, it is true, did not always predominate. But in a number of cases the economic and material side was strong enough to leave the ancestral home and find our daily bread and a new home in America. These two motives hold true with all of us and we feel that the religious side predominated with most of us. Whether our ancestors came as passengers of the good ship Concord, which carried 13 Mennonite families and landed at Philadelphia in 1683, or whether we ourselves came over as immigrants, we have found a new home and we dearly love it. We have found freedom of conscience, which is dearer to us than life, just as it was with our fathers. We live under the protection of our new government and, in gratitude to our Father and our government, we seek our country's best and peace, which our Lord alone can give. Jeremiah 29:7.

One way to do this and an effective way, is our extensive mission work among the natives of America. They are the only natives of America. It was their country. The means by which it was wrested from them were not always commendable. Much of the ill-will against the whites, was the white man's fault. We are thankful, that as far as we know there is nothing in the early and later history of our people, which would indicate any trouble between Mennonites and Indians. By doing mission work among them, we pay our debt to these people. We bring them the Gospel of Peace and Goodwill, the Gospel of Salvation.

May we always in our life clearly demonstrate to them that, indeed, we are children of peace. We do not only claim to be, which does not go very far, but we are a non-resistant people. Not being non-resistant in our hearts and life, it avails us nothing in the sight of God and discerning fellow citizens. We might just as well take carnal weapons. God help us to be real consistent followers of Him "Who, when He was reviled, reviled not again, when He suffered, He threatened not, but committed Himself to Him, who judgeth righteously." urely, these our consistent lives, together with the proclamation of the Gospel of Peace, will continue to bear fruit on our Indian mission fields. Thus we pay our debt toward these people.

The same may be said with reference to our country. The more of these people become Christians, the less our government has trouble with them. Christians will settle down, endeavor to make a living and not depend on the government. Present adverse conditions are a great hindrance, but they will not always remain. That, of course, we must have in God's hands, Who rules and overrules such conditions. It is a blessed thing, when our workers may be on the best of terms with government folks. Then there may be mutual help and assistance for the best of the Indians.

What the future may have in store for us we do not know. This, however, we do know:

"The work is Thine, O Christ our Lord,
The cause for which we stand;
And being Thine, 'twill overcome
Its foes on every hand.
Yet grains of wheat before they grow,
Are buried in the earth below.
All that is old doth perish there,
To form a life both new and fair".

OKLAHOMA

Our missionaries in Oklahoma, the new ones as well as the old ones ask for our prayer against the outside influences more or less extreme, like those from the Penecostals, the Nazarenes, etc., on top of the old trouble with the peyote-worship, all of which tends to confuse many.

In spite of it all, the work is progressing and brings fruit. Brother Ediger's last report contains the following paragraph:

"We have this year baptized 37, and received two by letter. Next Sunday we expect to baptize three more and receive one by letter. That will be 44 additions this year. Every new member receives a Bible or a New Testament. We have spent $25 this year for them."

Brother Toevs, the new missionary, reports: "The Lord's work is definitely going forward. On Sunday I had the privilege of baptizing four and receiving in 2 others. All seemed very sincere. They were all Arapahoes. This is especially noteworthy since both the Pentecostals and the Nazarenes are working among this tribe. Sunday we had an attendance of 70. Today for mid-week prayer meeting 41. Please, continue to pray for the work."

AFTER THIRTY-FIVE YEARS

by G. A. Linscheid

Viewing a large painting at close range we are apt to see but a maze of unintelligible paintbrushings which do not convey any harmony nor any sense of depth of focus and we fail to recognize the real meaning—the soul, as it were, of the painting it-strokes of the brush, compose a painting and the distance fuzes the individual strokes of the brush into a harmonious whole do we recognize the soul of the picture. It is very much the same way in regard to our daily activities which, like the individual strokes strokes of the brush, compose a painting and it, too, viewed from the immediate present often appears as a confusion of unrelated and quite unintelligible events, but which when fuzed by the lapse of time brings to our recognition a harmonious whole with meaning, with a soul—even life itself.

It is perhaps generally known that it is now 35 years since missionary activity among the Northern Cheyennes in Montana was assumed on the part of our General Conference, and that it was our privilege to be your first missionaries there.

Being pretty well tied down with work among the Southern Cheyennes, we could not well accept previous invitations to visit Montana. But with our retirement we were free to attend the 35th anniversary of the work there. And encouraged by an offer of the Mission Board to re-emburse part of our trip expenses, we attended. We, therefore, feel an obligation—and it is a pleasure as well—to give a brief account of our visit on the mission field among the Northern Cheyennes in Montana, trusting at the same time that it may in some way stimulate the interest not only in this particular field but in the great work of our Lord and Master everywhere.

I shall forego the recitation of the experiences of the trip to and from the field, so as to have more of the allotted space for the field itself.

The first thing that impressed us as we came onto the reservation was the fact that the Indian homes along the banks of the Rosebud River were largely vacant, and that with few exceptions the fields were overgrown with weeds and neglected—we missed the alfalfa and grain fields of former years—only here and there were there gardens and fields of grain, and these wer luxuriant. We were unable to explain to ourselves this peculiar situation till we came to Busby and saw there quite a concentration of tents and dwellings. We found later that the same conditions obtained all over the reservation, namely a concentration at focal points. We learned that for a number of years the efforts of the Indians to raise gardens and crops of grain, alfalfa, etc., had failed, due to drouth and insects, especially the so-called Mormon crickets that infested the gardens and fields in hordes and destroyed all vegetation. The Government found it necessary to provide other means of subsistence for these people. Various work projects afforded such means, but this in return concentrated the Indians in certain places and their homes and fields were largely neglected—very much as is the case among the Southern Cheyennes in Oklahoma. There were, however, some very fine fields and gardens here and there. Such (mostly either half-breeds or whites who had leased places from Indians) who had again sowed in hope and this time not in vain, at least not up to that time, for it had rained this spring again and again and was raining when we came onto the reservation. As a result there was a rich growth of grass, and of weeds on those fields which had not been cultivated. Not only could the things planted grow because of the moisture but the moisture was hard on the insects, so that we saw only, here and there, armies of the crickets. When one of these armies crossed a road it would have the appearance as though the road were in motion.

Extensive governmental building projects had given the various places a very much changed appearance from what it had been before. The school plant at Busby has been very much increased with buildings in the most modern fashion and with the very latest equipments—very fine—in our humble opinion, too fine to accomplish their intended purpose. But Uncle Sam seems to have plenty of money—even though he must borrow it—and he seems anxious to get rid of it in some way. At Lame Deer a fine hospital had been erected some years ago and is meeting a very specific need. Besides that a number of other buildings have been erected at this place, giving it a much altered appearance from what it was in former years. At Birney the Government is about to build a day-school, and whatever Uncle Sam builds is not to be despised, as a rule. One very great improvement, which we even had the opportunity to enjoy, is the roads which are now so that you can really travel—quite a contrast to the unimproved roads of former days. Of course, not all the roads on the reservation are improved as yet, as we had occasion to experience. But we can state without hesitancy that we were able to get to more of the outlying parts of the reservation in the 8 weeks we were there now, than we did in the 16 years we spent there before.

Another matter that we could not help but notice is the fact that near all of our stations in the Montana field are chapels erected by the Catholic Church, which is indicative of difficulties in the spiritual work which would otherwise not be. I was struck by the unabashed way in which certain Indians questioned me in regard to status ouo of the peyote-cult in Oklahoma. I learned later the cause of their concern in this matter. The state of Montana has a law prohibiting the importation of peyote, but since the Commissioner of Indian Affairs seems to favor this cult among the Indians, they were so much encouraged that an attempt was made on their part to have the state law repealed. This caused an investigation of the peyote, and the intimation was that in case it is found that the peyote is a narcotic is will be placed under that law and its use prohibited entirely—no wonder they were concerned.

The general indifference to things spiritual we found here, as well as elsewhere, briefly stated — painful. In contrast to this, however, it was real heart warming to note the spiritual growth of individuals in spite of adversities—individuals to whom salvation in the Lord Jesus Christ has become an affair of the heart and who are most vitally concerned about the eternal welfare of their fellows.

But that which made the deepest and most indelible impression upon us during our visit that was what we saw, heard and were permitted to experience during the celebration of the 35th anniversary. While we must admit that there are many who are indifferent towards the Gospel, and there are those who have fallen by the wayside, and some who have gone onto by-ways, yet it is equally as unassailable that there are many in whose heart the good seed has found good ground and is rooting deeply, bearing fruit manyfold. I was especially impressed by one of the native helpers. His ability to read the Scriptures in his own language, apt applications he made, his humble faith, his childlike prayers and his solicitude for the eternal welfare of his people were quite touching in themselves, but to me they were even more, for I knew this man years ago as one who had, according to his own admission, gone far down the moral ladder—but now he is a humble, surrendered child of God. Verily we need not be ashamed of the Gospel of Christ, for it is the power of God unto salvation. Wherever this Gospel is given full sway in the heart by faith there is regenerates to the glory of God.

Another observation I wish to make here is in regard to the use of the Cheyenne language. Among the Southern Cheyennes in Oklahoma both languages —English and Cheyenne—have been used in the church services for some time already and more recently only the English is being used in places, but among the Northern Cheyennes a knowledge of the Cheyenne language for the missionary is not only an advantage, it is a necessity for effective work. For that reason the extensive translations of brother Petter will continue to be an invaluable help in the procalamation of the Gospel among this people. Time, however, is constantly changing conditions and it is my personal opinion that the Northern Cheyennes have arrived at a place where changes will be very much accelerated. Here, too, as formerly already in Oklahoma, the land has now been parcelled out to the individual—allotted. These individuals are now at liberty to lease their land to whites, and unless the Government effectively discourages them from doing it, I am looking for a rather large influx of whites whose influence will bring about conditions as they are among the Southern Cheyennes.

Time blends the brush strokes of daily action into a harmonious picture raised against the dark background of past centuries and reveals a study of eternal values—a study in which the sacrifices of strength, of means, of prayers made in His name and by His grace shall not be overlooked—a study which will reveal more clearly His love, His infinite mercy as well as His Power and His glory as the eternities roll by.

HEROIC NATIVE HELPERS IN CHINA

by Wilhelmina Kuyf

In one sense, China is a fine country to grow old in because old age is so thoroughly respected. One of those who is thoroughly worthy of respect is Mrs. Sun. You can tell from the accompanying picture that her face is one mass of wrinkles, but nevertheless she is a vigorous woman, and her joy in the Lord, and her eagerness to work for Him is a real spur to those whose spirits sometimes lag.

She is stationed at the town of the Dragon King Temple, and since that town is situated along the river bank, it has been subject to many attacks, during the hostilities of the past two years, and our mission property there has suffered from shelling and other shooting. A wall on one of the dwelling houses is literally peppered with bullet holes. None of this has made much difference to old Mrs. Sun, or to her co-worker, a somewhat younger woman, Mrs. Wang. Indeed at one time Mrs. Wang was running up the American flag over the church when a shot whizzed by, taking the rope right out of her hand. After this they moved to Mrs. Wang's home, about three li (one mile) away, but continued to come back almost every day to meet with those Christians or inquirers who were left in the town, and who need the help and encouragement that contact with other Christians gives.

Mrs. Sun is a character in her own right, and I asked Mrs. Voth more about her. It interested me, but after all it didn't surprise me to learn that she had been pensioned, because of her age, and because it was thought that the constant strain of work might be too much. However, the reduced income under the pension made no difference, she went out every day to preach and to sing and to bear her personal witness to the power of Christ in her own life. Later on, because of her continued activities, she was put back on the regular list of workers where she still is.

Mr. and Mrs. Sun and their younger children

The above picture shows her son and his wife and part of their family, they have two older sons besides. This son and daughter-in-law are themselves earnest and active workers and have done some good work in the town of Feng-ku, some of which has already been reported in our church papers. Their labors have not all been outside of the home either, because the older children are showing promise of following in the footsteps of both grandmother and parents. We can remind these children, as Paul did Timothy, of the faith that is in them, which first was in their grandmother and mother.

OUR SIX MISSIONARIES HAVE ARRIVED SAFELY ACROSS THE PACIFIC

On Board "Hikawa Maru," Oct. 13, '39

Dear Brother Richert: We are to arrive at Yokohama in a few hours. We have had a very fine trip, the best we ever had. We had no storms to speak of and no trouble with sea sickness, except a little ill feeling the first Sunday. There is quite a group of missionaries on board going to various places. We have been well satisfied with our cabins and the service. So all we can say is, we are thankful to our heavenly Father for his kindness and mercy, and we trust Him for His guidance the rest of our journey which may involve more difficulties. We are to leave Kobe the 21st, so we have to spend a few days in Japan.

Yours in Him, August Ewert.

CHINA

PEKING, CHINA, AUGUST 17, 1939

Dear Friends: We need to thank God first of all for His care over each member of our mission during the past months. Through cholera epidemic last fall, occasional contacts with fighting forces, a few bombings, and more or less continual travelling through no-man's land, we have all ben kept unharmed and even permitted to carry on our usual Christian work. Surely, this deserves thanks and praise. Don't think that we feel heroic though, for life has mostly been day by day the usual hum-drum routine. Especially after spending weeks at the coast for a summer vacation, one cannot think of suggesting hardships. Here we have had rest and quiet, the beauties of nature, recreation and fellowship. With work to do, health, a sense of God's presence and care, and the privilege of being in China in this time of opportunity and need, surely we China missionaries are especially favored.

One of the great lessons which has been forced upon us is the taking of each day as it comes and living it for God trusting Him. When this can be done, one is assured of peace and unfavorable conditions are much improved. Most of our troubles never materialize. It is fear and worry that sap our strength. Today I am travelling into the interior and it would be possible to almost go insane thinking of what might happen. Perhaps the train will be attacked, perhaps wrecked, perhaps I will run into an anti-British demonstration, and be detained, perhaps fighting and bombing are ahead, perhaps will meet an uncultured and impolite individual who will treat me badly, perhaps . . . perhaps. There is no end to these things, everyone quite possible—but not probable. We cannot give rein to all possible fearful imaginings, so we have learned to take what comes as it comes, trusting God for the future. I know no other way of successfully negotiating the present disturbed conditions, but I know this way works.

As to the work, our special concern has been the Bible School at Kai Chow. During the past year we inaugurated a work program whereby every student does about nine hours of work per week. He is credited a definite rate per hour and the total accruing at the end of the term may be applied on his expenses for the following term. No other financial help is given students by the school. In general the system has worked well and the students have been anxious to work. They have done many kinds of jobs, janitor work, serving at the hospital, sawing wood, repairing roads, making soap, making bean milk, weaving cloth, knitting stockings, bookbinding and printing. With fifty students to keep busy, it has been quite a problem to organize work and supervise properly.

All equipment was made or purchased locally with the exception of six hundred pounds of type and a stocking-knitting machine, brought down from Peking. The soap was boiled in a Chinese iron kettle, the beans ground between Chinese mill stones, thread wound on ordinary reels and woven on a Chinese loom. For bookbinding the equipment demanded some ingenuity, sewing frames were easily improvised and a satisfactory press produced out of an old organ stool. Trimming was done with a knife made from a plane bit mounted on a handle and the book clamped in a press,—very similar to the method used before the invention of the modern paper knife.

For printing we secured two second-hand outfits. One is a lithograph outfit where copy is placed on a stone and printed off. This has the advantage of printing anything that can be written with a brush and is used a great deal for tracts where large characters are desired. A second-hand printing press in good condition was also secured as well as the services of a printer. With this we have been able to run off thousands of tracts, a weekly "MESSENGER" for the hospital, and a few issues of small pamphlets. We even attempted the last issue of the "CHINA-HOME BOND" which most of you have seen. While acknowledging great room for improvement, we fell that the school is attempting something worthwhile.

We hope the coming year will enable us to continue with no more interruption than the past. Remember us in prayer.

BOMBING PLANES STOPPED BY ANGELS

by Mrs. W. C. Voth

The devotion and courage of our Chinese brothers and sisters in this time of war and suffering present a challenge to us for a deeper faith and a greater sacrifice. "God moves in a mysterious way his wonders to perform" when his people fully trust in Him. An account came to our attention a few days ago of a defenseless city in China which had been saved from bombing through the prayers of a devoted Chinese pastor. The account appeared in "The Harvester," a bi-monthly periodical printed in Chicago for the "Home of Onesiphorus," an orphanage and old people's home in Taian, Shantung.

Rev. A. A. Caswel, Sec. of the Canadian Holiness Mission in Changteh, Hunan, describes the experience of a veteran missionary, Dr. Charles Kimbel who is familiar with the language and philosophy of both China and Japan. In his experiences with the soldiers of both nations the following is outstanding:

"Dr. Kimbers received two letters in the same mail, one from a Japanese and the other from a Chinese. The Japanese told of a young Japanese flier who had received orders to lead ten planes in an air attack on a defenseless Chinese city. With this commission in view, he flew toward the city, leading the other nine machines. As he approached the city, he saw before him a multitude of angels with drawn swords, blocking his way. Believing them to be only cloud formations, he flew ahead, but was stopped by these beings. He was a devoted Buddhist, but the incident made such a deep impression on him that he turned about, and his squadron followed him. It was further related in Dr. Kimbers' letter that the flier was executed for not carrying out orders.

"In the letter from the Chinese, an account was given of the fright the inhabitants of the defenseless city had experienced upon hearing that ten planes were coming to bombard their city. A devoted Chinese pastor had fallen upon his knees and prayed that God would somehow hinder those planes from coming. For several hours he struggled with God in prayer, until he saw the squadron approach; then suddenly, he saw the leader irresolutely swerve back and forth after which he turned back the same way he had come, followed by the other nine machines."

Often indeed it has been proven that "beyond the dim unknown, God keeps watch above His Own," and also that "we have to struggle, not with blood and flesh but with the Angelic Rulers, and angelic Authorities, the potentates of the dark present, the spirit forces of evil in the heavenly sphere" (Moffat, Eph. 6:12).

Your Coworker, Mrs. Wm. C. Voth.

INDIA

A MEETING WITH A NEW NAME

by J. R. Duerksen, India

"I have never been to the Sammelan," (Sam-me'-lan e pronounced as in they) said one of our Christian men, "What is that anyway? May I attend the one which is to be held at Saraipali July nineteenth and twentieth?" "Yes, you may attend," was the reply, "If you make your own arrangements for food and lodging. Only delegates get their meals and a place to stay free of charge."

What then is the Sammelan? The word is Hindi and means a meeting or gathering. This Sammelan which I wish to describe is composed of leaders and delegates of seventeen village churches. They represent about a thousand Christians who live in fifty two villages in the Basna area of our India Mission Field. The churches vary in size but there is none which has a membership of less than twenty and the largest of them has over one hundred members. The Sammelan was organized only a year ago by Brother W. F. Unruh and I consider this the most valuable contribution to the work during his one year of fruitful service in the Basna area.

The main purpose of this organization is to provide a channel through which God's living Word may be taught continually and consistently to all Christians of this area so that they may "grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ" and thus be enabled to bring others to the Saviour. Without definite organization it would be impossible to teach them to observe all things which Christ has commanded. Their problems are many and they must learn to solve them in the light of God's Word. Church discipline is no easy task when new Christians are added continually, but there is hope of success if paid and unpaid leaders can be united in the one purpose of making our heavenly Father's will known to all. Forty four delegates were present. They showed good interest and a willingness to work.

What did we do at the Sammelan? The evening before our work really began there was a preparatory service. This included some lively singing (such as no one has ever heard except the few of us who have the privilege of hearing the people who come from Orissa), a sermon, testimonies, praise and thanksgiving and prayer. All were as happy as friends, who seldom meet, should be. Those living at the extreme ends of our field are only about fifty miles apart but to walk all the way takes as much time as it takes our Kansas relatives to go to Oklahoma or Nebraska. We had a happy evening together, drawing nigh to God and He to us.

One of the most important duties of this organization is to see to it that the Christians of every village may have an opportunity to attend services on Sunday morning and Sunday School in the afternoon, and that the women of each village may have an opportunity to attend a Bible class for women every Wednesday afternoon, and that all Christians may have a chance to gather for evening worship in their respective villages every evening of the week. Some of the larger churches have Christian Endeavor, too, but that they have according to their own plan. Most of the leaders are not well educated, so much of the time at the Sammelan was spent in preparing sermon outlines for each Sunday of the coming month and Bible lessons for the Daily Evening Worship for the four weeks ahead. Some of the preachers presented these lessons as they were to be taught to the village congregations. The leaders took notes and promised to do their best. They were repeatedly admonished to do their service as unto the Lord. With the exception of those who have charge of several groups these leaders do not get pay for their services. This work does not go equally well in all villages and yet, as a whole, the results are very encouraging.

Part of our time we spent in listening to reports of the secretary and the treasurer and some committees. There is one committee, called the bara pancheit, composed of seven or eight members whose duty it is to settle quarrels. Some thought that this committee should be dissolve, not because of unemployment but because, after having worked faithfully, obedience to their decisions was not forthcoming from the stiffnecked quarrelers. Having had a warm discussion on this point, we decided that we needed the committee.

The budget was an interesting item. The different churches have been assessed for one year according to membership. The amount to be raised is Rupees six hundred. Until now the mission gave a grant of one rupee for every rupee raised by the church. In other words, the amount raised by the churches was doubled by a grant from the Mission. For this year the grant will be somewhat decreased, still the budget to be collected will amount to about twelve hundred rupees. Eight Indian workers are employed by the Sammelan as evangelists or leaders and the monthly payroll is rupees fifty-five. Besides this there are other expenses, such as repairs for church buildings, help for new church buildings, retreats, traveling expenses, etc. "Give unto the Lord the glory due unto His name: BRING AN OFFERING, and come into His courts" is exactly what every Christian must learn.

The six preachers, (shepherds) each of whom has charge of a certain area, gave stimulating reports. That does not mean that everything was ideal. Some things that were reported were quite the opposite but indeed stimulating nevertheless. We are to provoke one another unto love and to good works. These six men have a very good opportunity to do that.

The minutes show that eighteen resolutions were passed during the two days. These resolutions concern the budget, the building of churches and houses for workers in important centers, schools for the children and Sunday schools, a Bible course for church members on which they are to have an examination at the end of the year, revival meetings, help for the widows and the poorest of the poor, medicine for the sick and church discipline, especially in regard to marriage. The marriage problem is one of the most difficult, I should really say the most difficult. At least two men have taken another man's wife. Of course they are out of church, but that by no means solves the whole problem. They continue to live among the Christians and keep on calling themselves Christians. They cannot be taken out to be stoned according to Old Testament law and so they are a source of constant sorrow. Besides there are other men who beat their wives until they run away. There are not very many of these, but two or three are sufficient to cause much heartache to the church.

It took much time to discuss all these problems. Including the time we spent in Bible study, I found that we spent twenty-two hours in solid conference work during the two days we were together. The chairman was happy that the delegates were interested enough to sit that long and the delegates seemed to be glad that the chairman had patience to stay with them that long. May our churches at home continue to pray that the churches in India may grow and prosper.

HOME MISSIONS

A. J. NEUENSCHWANDER, Secretary

HOME MISSION

Isaiah 43:5-7: "Fear not for I am with thee: I will bring thy seed from the east, and gather thee from the west; I will say to the north, Give up; and to south, Keep not back: bring my sons from afar, and my daughters from the ends of the earth; even every one that is called by my name: for I have created him for my glory."

In these words from Scripture we have several hints for Mission work:

First, the Lord God is with the work. We need not fear or be anxious. The Lord will do many and great things for the advancement of His cause.

Second, the Lord wants us to be ready to support his work. The north is commanded to give up, and the south is directed not to withhold her support. What a glorious illustration of the Kingdom of God in our midst is demonstrated in our Home Mission work. The International boundary line separates Canada from the United States, but our Mission work crosses and recrosses this man made boundary line, for the Kingdom of God knows no such boundaries. Let the north give of her means and let the south not keep back, then can the Cause of Christ be carried on effectively and souls can be brought to the Lord. Read the reports from north and south.

Third, the Lord has called all men to come unto Him. As long as we have unreached places where the Gospel has not penetrated, our task is not finished. Even those who still live in sin and darkness are not called to bring glory to Him.

Sincerely in Him,
A. J. Neuenschwander, Sec.

BLUMENORT MENNONITE CHURCH, GRETNA, MANITOBA

I have the privilege to be a co-laborer with many workers in the large vineyard of our Lord Jesus Christ, under the supervision of the General Conference of the Mennonite Church of N. A. My field is the congregation of the Blumenorter Mennonite Church in South Manitoba, which spreads over an area of 25 miles from east to west and from the boundary of the U. S. A. 12 miles to the north. They are the villages left by the Alt-Kolonier Church when she emmigrated to Mexico in 1921-1926. As our members immigrated to Canada in 1923, they bought some farms in 12 villages and around there, and organized the Community in 1925. Some of our members could not fulfill the agreed terms and must leave their farms and seek other farms. In that way our congregation was scattered more and more, in greater and smaller groups and single families, far apart from 50 to 300 miles, among very different nationalities and religious denominations. The largest church of our scattered groups is between Fork River and Winnipegosis. It is now organized as an independent congregation under the name of "Nordheimer Gemeinde." There are two young preachers and they try to do their best in preaching the Gospel and to lead the Sunday School, but I have been asked to head the congregation as Elder. Each Sunday the members assemble in their church for worship and Sunday School.

Our Blumenorter Community has about 220 members at home, and about 60 to 70 living in scattered groups. In two churches and five other places—schoolhouses or private buildings—nine preachers alternately lead the worship, and one hour before in each place the children are assembled in one, two, three and four classes for Sunday School. In some places we may not have many visitors in the church, but we always have many children in the Sunday Schools. The reason for this is the fact that in some villages our members are in the minority, to the "Sommerfelder" and "Alt-Kolonier," but their children come to our Sunday Schools.

Since the time that I am Elder of the Blumenorter Church in 1928, we could add from two to nine young members which were won by Catechism Classes, also in evangelistic meetings held mostly during the winter evenings, and personal "Seelsorge." I could relate some interesting cases, how they came to Christ, but I will describe just one. It was during evangelistic meetings, on the evenings for three or four days that a young man was touched by God's Word to realize that he was a sinner and that he must be born again or be lost eternally. In the distress of his soul he asked his father how he could be saved. The father realized that he also was not born again. He told it to a brother in Christ and asked him to come to his home to help him and his son. The son told his companions and after a few days 10 to 15 souls prayed to God for peace. Afterwards in the evenings this young man and his friends would hold meetings here and there in the houses for prayer and thanksgiving to God that they had received peace for their souls. The above-mentioned son is now a preacher, Sunday School and Public School teacher, a blessed worker for his Master.

This is my first letter in English and I will close now describing how I am occupied to do my share as laborer in the vineyard of our Lord. I want to close with Matt. 9:37-38: "The harvest truly is plenteous but the labourers are few. Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest that he will send forth laborers into his harvest!" May God bless you!

Greetings from John B. Bueckert.

ON THE MISSION FIELD

by Jacob H. Janzen, 164 Erb Street, Waterloo, Ont.

It has pleased the Lord to use me as a stop-gap when and where there was a need for me, and many a time I had to do that which no one else was willing to do. By and by I am getting used to it. In these times of trials and tribulations there are very many gaps to be filled, and I have never to complain about being unemployed or lonesome.

When in March 1925, the bulk of the Russian Mennonites left Ontario to settle on the prairies, and practically all of the Elders and Ministers of the so called "Kirchengemeinde" went with them, I was called upon to organize the remainder in Ontario into a vital church. I hardly knew how to go about it. I preached the Gospel in theaters, club rooms, Masonic temples, private houses, lowly hovels, and what not; and by 1932 there were, by the Grace of God, three big, vital churches in evidence in Ontario which were known as the United Mennonite Churches in Ontario, which by now have grown into five such churches.

As early as 1932, the Lord had made me superfluous in Ontario, and our Home Mission Board sent me to do itinerary work all over Canada and in the United States. In doing this work I, so to speak, stumbled over the great need along spiritual lines in British Columbia where our settlers were so busily engaged in eking out a living on the land, or as workers in the cities and towns, that they had practically no chance to provide for their spiritual needs. They seemed not even to have time and courage to cry out to the General Conference for aid, and so I cried out for them at the session of the General Conference at Upland, California, in 1935, and, as I was available to fill the ensuing gap, I was commissioned to settle in Vancouver, B. C., to open a Girls' Home there, and to serve the groups in the Province as their Elder, which I tried to do.

But this time I had bitten off too big a chunk and could not swallow it. After nearly two years of jumping to and fro in a vain attempt to meet all the requirements I suffered a nervous break-down, attracted a heart disease, and had to quit my jumping. Younger men with more enthusiasm had to step in and do the work. It was divided into two parts then, and Brother J. B. Wiens was assigned to manage the Girls' Home in Vancouver and to serve the City Mission there, while Brother N. W. Bahnmann was commissioned by the Home Mission Board to serve our churches in the Province as their Elder. Both, by the Grace of God, have done wonderfully. There is hope that the B. C. churches will become self-supporting, and their cry for help from the Conference will subside gradually as they grow stronger and stronger. But we cannot leave them to themselves for the time being. Pioneering is no joke, and the pioneers in B. C. will have to have our support for a while yet, so they may not break down under the burden which they have to carry.

In 1937 I was sent back to Waterloo, Ontario, to take over the Pastorate of the Waterloo-Kitchener United Mennonite Church, i.e.. of the fifth part of the area which I had been serving before. Some difficulties had sprung up in that church and I was asked to exert my humble efforts to overcome them and, if at all possible, to lead the church again to normal life and development.

I realized on my return here how little I had learned during all these years. I still knew nothing to improve conditions than the very same things and methods which I had employed once organizing the churches here, preaching the Gospel, visiting the sick and down-hearted, etc. Now after almost two years of labor the church is growing but slowly. But it grows in peace, our hearts are being drawn nearer to God, and we have been prospered by our Heavenly Father to draw from His Treasury House grace upon grace. There is still much left to be done, and I wonder whether the Lord will not remove me again from my position and turn the work over to some younger and stronger man. His will be done. I wonder what God then will do with me. Will He throw me on the scrap heap? He has never forsaken me so far, and I trust He will have something to do for me as long as He keeps me alive.

As a side line, I am now issuing my "Briefe an mein Volk," i.e., short sermons in German which I send by mail to such groups and scattered families who, for some reason, have no chance to attend regular church services of our own, or otherwise desire to read the "Briefe." These sermons are very well received. The Home Mission Board supports me with a monthly salary which is sufficient to keep my right hand alive and able to work, with which I handle my writing pen, while my church here provides for the rest of my body, and God sees to it that I have something in heart and mind to share with my listeners and readers. I must go begging to the churches for funds to do the technical work in connection with the issuance of the "Briefe," and those churches who have enough for themselves, and something to spare for such that are less fortunate than they are, have helped me generously. The readers of the "Briefe" have also sent me some support, but nvertheless I have been sometimes quite "in the red" with my operating funds.

When I thus was down "in a hole," or "in the dumps," or what else you may call it, our Lord used the Eastern District Sunday School Union for a special lever to lift me up again.

It is a great privilege, indeed, to work on the Home Mission Field, to wipe off occasionally some tears and to make faces shine again with the smile of hope which were darkened by care and sorrow. Thise still can be done by leading people to Christ Jesus.

Human, as we are, we are just plodding along wearily. But God is with us, and where He opens the peoples eyes that they see their Lord, there the tears dry up, and sad faces are lit up by a smile again.

If there is a purpose in life, it is to make people happy. And if there is happiness, it is to be found in Jesus Christ.

I thank you!

FIRST MENNONITE CHURCH, CHICAGO, ILL.

The First Mennonite Church, here in Chicago, Ill., is enjoying the blessing of God. The various departments, such as Women's Missionary Society, Young People's Fellowship, Beream Bible Class, Sunday School, Prayer Meeting, seem to have the hand of God upon them. For this we praise Him. Although we have had some severe trials, we still feel God is leading.

We had a very successful Daily Vacation Bible School this past Summer, conducted by faithful teachers who knew the Word. It has helped our Sunday School in more ways than one.

We had quite a number who came to know Christ and asked to be taken into church. Others are seeking the light. Most of those who came into our church during the past year were led to Christ through personal work on the part of the Sunday School teachers and faithful members of the church.

There is a very fine Missionary Spirit among our people. They are willing to help in causes that have for their aims the salvation of the lost. We are interested in regions of Great Smokies of North Carolina where one of our members is worknig and also in a branch station here in the city.

We ask for continued prayer on our behalf that we may be faithful to the trust committed to our care.

Sincerely Yours, A. H. Leaman, Pastor

THE ALBERTA COMMUNITY CHURCH
5215 N. E. 23rd Ave., Portland, Oregon

Membership: 39. Since last Christmas 11 members have joined, nine by baptism and two by the right hand of fellowship. Four of these were won to Christ in the evangelistic meetings in the spring, the others through personal work. Attendance at the services exceeds the membership.

Activties: Sunday morning Worship Service, Sunday evening "Meditation" with an evangelistic emphasis, Adult, Young People's, and Junior Christian Endeavors, Adult and Young eople's choir, Junior choir, orchestra, Mid-week prayer and Study group, and Women's Missionary Society. The Young People's work is very encouraging. To build up this group has been one of the most important and yet most difficult tasks of the work. We now have an active and growing organization. They are planning to take charge of a Sunday evening worship service once a month, if possible. This is not only good training for the young people, but is an encouragement to the older ones. After all, the future of the church depends upon its active, consecrated young people.

Sunday School

Enrollment: 93. This means active members only. The figures would be well above 100 if those who attend irregularly were on the roll. Four new classes have been organized in the last year, and a Sunday School library has been started which provides wholesome reading for both children and adults. Through the birthday offerings the S. S. is trying to support a native worker on one of the mission fields. The Junior choir and Junior C. E. have been mentioned already. The latter group may be changed into a Week-Day Bible School.

As a church we feel that the work of the Home Mission Board is very worthwhile, and that there are many fields, especially in the cities, crying for the Gospel could men and money only be obtained for them.

May God bless you richly in your service for Him.

Sincerely, Edmund Miller.

FREDONIA, KANSAS

Greetings with Psalm 46:1: "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble."

To partly meet the request of the Home Mission Board of the General Conference, I shall try to give you a view of our settlement, here in Wilson County, Kansas, of which Fredonia is the County seat.

It is about two years ago when a small group bought farms and settled, thus making a beginning. It looks encouraging from the standpoint of choosing a location where most all grains, that make farming a pleasure and success, can be raised. Also fruit and garden stuff does real well. The soil is mostly fertile and well balanced. Moisture has in most years been plentiful. This year it seems to be an exception. (Have had a nice rain the night before last).

As our likes and dislikes differ so much, our people have chosen their farms to suit themselves, which consequently puts our group yuite a distant apart. This makes church-going a little more difficult and creates problems with some. For this reason, we have not organized a Mennonite church as yet, but rather have had community meetings, composed of Sunday school, preaching services, and song services.

The little group of from 35 to 45 in number, have their regular Sunday school and services every Sunday. They are a live group and show real good talent to make a prosperous church. Our problem is our meeting place. It seems too far for some, and too small at that. We are now holding our meetings in the Bell School house, located 7 miles south and ½ mile west from Fredonia, Kansas. We cannot hold our Sunday school successfully, with the small space available for each class. We also, do not have the necessary seating, which makes teaching a real problem. (Some of your readers I know, would not stand for such a handicap.)

Do you hear the small voice, asking for another church building? An old grandfather, after knowing the conditions said: "After you are in possession of the lots for the church-building, let me donate $25 for the church-building." A fine spirit indeed!

We have no other organization besides Sunday-school, Preaching services and singing practice, but have in mind to start a C. E. as soon as conditions permit. Our group is composed of different church affiliations, which work very nicely together. The roads are dirt, gravel and hard-surfaced.

Most of our people are thankful for the help they receive from the General and Western District Conferences. Some seem to be indifferent as to our group, and prefer not to be bothered about churchgoing. It is pioneer and foundation work, which is always hard and, in most cases, has nothing big or outstanding to show. It is not like building a college, but yet, there would be no denominational college, without these once small churches.

We call for support in prayer, for our little group here at Fredonia, Kansas.

Gustav Frey, Minister.

QUARRYVILLE, PENNSYLVANIA

Calvary Mennonite Church is located in Mechanic Grove, Lancaster County, Penna., on U. S. Highway 222, with Quarryville, Pa., as the address.

Calvary Church has a membership of sixty-eight including active, in-active and non-resident members. The Sunday School enrollment is approximately seventy-five, the usual attendance being from 45 to 60. We have an active Young People's Society, meeting the second and last Sunday of each month. The first meeting of the month is a half-hour meeting and precedes the regular evening service while the second is a full hour service. The Ladies' Missionary Society is another important auxiliary of our church work. The Ladies meet monthly, render a spiritual program, a missionary offering is received, and reports from various Mission Fields read; these meetings are held in the homes of the members.

This church does not conduct its own vacation Bible School but co-operates in a Union School. Among the churches participating are the Church of the Brethren, Methodist, Presbyterian, Friends and Mennonite. The School meets in the Brethren meeting house.

In our community this year, the crops are good the major ones yielding well. Fruit is particularly plentiful. Road conditions as a whole are fair, some are of macadam construction while others are merely mud pike. Weather conditions in general, in this part of Pennsylvania are favorable; rain fall is sufficient for raising good crops. The summers are warm and the winters moderately cold.

Our fall Evangelistic meetings will be held from November 5th through 19. This year we are securing a local man engaged in Bible teaching and Evangelistic work. Thus far this year, no outstanding facts can be related in regard to conversions.

Personally, I feel, that Home Missions are important; however, our community is fairly well churched, and therefore the more difficult from that point of view. Although I do not wish to voice the feeling of the church in regard to Missions, there is however, room for considerable improvement in fervor, zeal and enthusiasm along this line of work.

We are most grateful for all the bountiful blessings received from the Lord and rejoice in His ministry here. Heartily in Him, Sylvan Lehman

SWIFT CURRENT BIBLE SCHOOL

Dear Brethren and Sisters in Christ:

We greet you in the precious Name of Jesus, our Savior and yours! What a privilege it is that "though sundered far, by faith we meet around one common mercy seat." If we cannot see and get to know each other personally, we can meet there and pray for each other's needs, and know that we are all working for the same cause, namely for the spreading of the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

Ever since the Conference was held in Saskatoon last year, I feel that the Mennonites are doing a great work through their united efforts. Never before did I realize that great things were accomplished by our Conference, possibly because I was not directly connected with its plan and program. It was at the sessions in Saskaton that I was offered and accepted my present field of labor.

My work under the Home Mission Board is perhaps of a slightly different nature than that of most of its workers. I am in charge of the Bible School for young people. That is my chief work. As time permits, however, I am also active in preaching, ministering, Sunday School supervision and instruction, Summer Bible School work, etc.

I shall confine my report to the work of our Bible School only. Three years ago, under the direction of Rev. N. W. Bahanmann, at present of Sardis, B. C., the Home Mission Board began the work. Students were offered instruction, board and room practically free, if only they would come, so that a beginning could be made. No less than 28 young people received daily instruction in God's Word for a term of five months. The second year there were about 24 that searched the Scriptures daily. In the fall of 1938 the Board considered the School far enough on its way to be self-supporting. A defniite fee for tuition, board and room had to be charged for this reason. This naturally cut down the enrollment to some extent. There were only 18 on the school register, of which number 14 were regular students. Great and many were the blessings received. The dear Lord, in whose service we stand, gave an abundance of grace, both spiritually and financially. Materially we did not have to experience any need, due to the willingness of so many interested parties and above all to the rich supply of our Father in heaven.—It was wonderful to dismiss school in spring with every student, at the very least, making a profession of the assurance of sins forgiven through faith ni the finished work of Christ.

In another two weeks we shall be on our way into the fourth year of the work of the Bible School. We are expecting an increase in the attendance this year, due to a better crop in this district. Through the willingness of the Nome Mission Board and interested parties in our community, we have been able to erect a building this summer, which will serve as a lodging place for teachers and students. We are sure that this improvement will prove to be of untold value to the existence of the Bible School. When we were on the lookout for another member on the faculty, the Lord directed our attention to Rev. J. J. Doerksen of Herbert, Sask., as the one who would be willing and able to assist in the work this year. He has already consented to our request and we are rejoicing in the assurance that his coming into our midst will prove to be a blessing.

Praying for all of you who are in definite work for the Lord, I remain yours in His service, Isaac Epp.

LAIRD, SASKATCHEWAN

Dear Brother in Christ! Wishing you the peace of the Lord, I thank you for your letter you sent to all the mission workers of your Board. In answer to your first request I may say that I only spend part of my time in this work and mostly in the winter. I did send one report in the spring of 1939, and one a little later to Brother Rev. D. Toews, Rosthern, in the German language, as I am not at home in the English. I do not know if he used it for publication, although he intended to, especially the last report. I am Elder of the Rosenort Mennonite Church of Saskatchewan, Tiefengrund and Laird district, with two assistant ministers and two candidates. We conduct Sunday services in two churches and three school houses. The mission work I am doing is outside of this. For about three months in the year I visit the new settlements of the Mennonites northwest and northeast of Laird in the Province of Saskatchewan. In the past the Lord has used me in helping to organize churches and Sunday Schools, leading meetings, appointing church officers and ministers and ordain same, baptizing, serving the Holy Supper and mostly in preaching the gospel and personal work; and, glory be to the Lord, not in vain!

After Nov. 5 of this year, if it is the Lord's will, I intend to begin with this special work again, which will take me far into the north from home, where roads are poor. The greater part I travel by railroad, but long distances also by sleigh and horses. There are two new settlements which I intend to visit, beside those where I have been before. In all these places I present Jesus Christ as Saviour and as Friend and Comforter.

Thanking the Home Mission Board for the support given me spiritually and financially and asking for further assistance, especially by remembering me in your prayer,

Your co-worker in the Lord, Johannes Regier

MEMORIAL MENN. CHURCH, ALTOONA, PA.

The Mennonite Memorial Mission is located on 2204 11th Ave., near the business section of the city. The streets being very hilly in this neighborhood add to the interests of the city especially in the winter time. However traveling is more difficult when it is icy both for walking and riding.

The Mennonite Mission is the only Protestant church in this section. It has a membership of 93 with a Sunday school enrollment of 121. Most of the people are of the poor type and are a working class. Some working in the shops, some on W. P. A., or on the relief.

Each Sunday night a Young People's and a Children's meeting is held before the evening service. On Wednesday night we have our regular Bible study and prayer meeting. "Pray without ceasing." Prayer is the powerhouse which connects us with God.

The past two summers a two weeks Bible school was held with an enrollment of 47 and 53. The boys and girls were taught the Word of God, choruses, memorize Scripture, and had a study in catechism. At the close they gave a very interesting program of the things they had learned.

We believe that if Home Mission work was neglected many of the poorer class of people would fail to hear the Gospel. Some had made the remark that they felt out of place in these larger churches. Many of the children seem to merely grow up in the homes without any Christian training or Christian influence which makes Mission work all the more difficult, but important to give them the Gospel message.

During a revival meeting which was held in the spring and also through personal work, six of these boys and girls accepted the Lord as their Saviour. Five of them were received into the church. One member was added to the church by the right hand of fellowship.

Much prayer is needed these days especially for those who would perhaps be unreached if it were not for the Home Mission Work.

Rev. and Mrs. E. F. Slotterback.

FOR BEAUTY, WE THANK THEE

For all life's beauties, and their beauteous growth;
For Nature's laws and Thy rich providence;
For all Thy perfect processes of life;
For the minute perfection of Thy work,
Seen and unseen, in each remotest part;
For faith, and works, and gentle charity;
For all that makes for quiet in the world;
For all that lifts man from his common rut;
For all that knits the silken bond of peace;
For all that lifts the fringes of the night,
And lights the darkened corners of the earth;
For every broken gate and sundered bar;
For every wide-flung window of the soul;
For that Thou bearest all that Thou hast made;
We thank Thee, Lord!

LET US MEDITATE

Psalm 121. He was a carpenter of the pioneer days in southeastern Iowa. He was given the contract to construct the bench for the court room of the county in which he lived. He did his work very carefully. Men laughed at him and asked him why he was so conscientious about his work. He replied: "Some day I may sit on this bench!" He did. There was never any scandal connected with his court.

He was a farmer in southeastern Iowa, also a lay minister. He stood for reality of life. Customs of the community made that kind of attitude unpopular. He was deposed as a lay minister. Today a fine painting of him graces the walls of a very unique and useful institution and many, who know nothing about his history, ask about him, attracted by his remarkable face.

He was a minister in southeastern Iowa. He was interested in Christianity as a matter to be lived much more than he was in any denominational viewpoint or program. He built up the morals and the morale of the community. He supported an academy, which lived its day and passed out of existence, but its spirit lives on in several colleges and in the lives of those who came under its wholesome influence. They have gone to the ends of the earth, bearing its message of clear thinking and wholesome living. Few know the name of this man, but many have caught his spirit through those whom he helped.

He was a young carpenter in one of the smallest and most down-trodden countries of the globe. No one questions the quality of the workmanship which went into His yokes and plow beams. He lived on the crossroads of the civilization of His day and came to grips with life as He found it without allowing it to undermine His principles or to browbeat His spirit. He met the wrongs of His day at close range and made their perpetrators condemn themselves by His attitude. He brought out the contrast between right and wrong without becoming ostentatious or giving way to the withering heat of anger. He made men face the light. When it blinded them they killed Him. That settled nothing except the condemnation of themselves. He has come to be the central figure in the minds of people who have thought with care for nineteen hundred years.

Dear Lord and Father of mankind, we thank Thee that Thou hast endowed us with capacity for thought. We thank thee for the many suggestions which surround us for the purpose of making us exercise our capacity for thought. We thank Thee for the encouraging examples of those who have thought clearly and then have acted sincerely. Help us increasingly to lift up our eyes both to see what Thou hast wrought for our good, and beyond all of the good which Thou hast created, to see Thee. We ask it in our Lord's name.

MISSIONARY ACTIVITIES

Senior C. E. Topic for December 10, 1939

MAIN TOPIC: Teaching, Preaching, Healing. Mt. 4:23-25

I. Worship Service

1. Songs: "Rescue the perishing," "Oh, where are the reapers," "Must I go and empty handed."
2. Reading of main topic and prayer.
3. Special music.

II. Leader's Introduction

This topic deals with the how of Christian missions. The wording of the topic is taken from Matthew 4:23, "And Jesus went about . . . teaching . . . and preaching . . . and healing." These three participles aptly describe the three principal kinds of activity in which Christian missionaries are engaged. They are doing what Jesus did "in the days of His flesh."

In a sense, of course, it is imossible to make a broad distinction between these three kinds of missionary endeavor—evangelistic, educational, and medical. They are three aspects of a single great enterprise. Together they serve to spread the gospel into all the world.

Yet each of these three kinds of missionary work is important in its own right, and stands on its own feet. Eeach serves a deep need that we dare not neglect.

III. Suggested topics for short talks

1. The teaching commission. Matt. 28:19, 20.
2. The teaching ministry. Acts 18:24-28.
3. Jesus heals a "foreigner." Mark 7:24-30.
4. The sick healed. Acts 5:12-16.
5. Paul, a preacher to Gentiles. Eph. 3:1-9.
6. "Preach the Word." 2 Tim. 4:1-5.

IV. Facts for study

The qualifications of the missionary teacher, preacher and missionary are the same, though their specific preparation for their specific work differs. Here is a suggested list of qualifications:

A restful trust in God for the supply of all needs.

A sympathetic spirit and a willingness to take a lowly place.

Tact in dealing with men and adaptability towards circumstances.

Zeal in service and steadfastness in discouragement.

Love for communion with God and for the study of his Word.

Some experience and blessing in the Lord's work at home.

A healthy body and a vigorous mind.

Our own mission work combines teaching, preaching and healing. The missionaries preach from Sunday to Sunday in the churches, difficult, yet most blessed tours of evangelization are made, but also teaching is done in Bible study classes and almost every station has a school. The work of healing is carried on in our hospitals on several stations, even work among lepers, and there are large numbers of people treated and given medicine through our dispensaries on the mission stations

V. For Discussion

What needs are there in our mission fields just now in regard to teachers and schools?

What could we do for our medical work, the hospitals and the dispensary work at this time?

VI. Illustrations

The following illustrations may be a suggestion to some society or individual.

Carrying on in Two Hemispheres: "You are always working!" exclaimed a man, as he entered the office of a business friend. "How many hours do you work each day?" "Twenty-four," the friend replied with a smile. Then more seriously, "I became interested in missions and determined to go to China, but my father died and his business was in such a shape that no outsider could carry it on. My mother, sisters, and younger brother were dependent upon the profits of the house, so I was obliged to remain here. I then took the support of a native preacher in China as my substitute. In that way I work twenty-four hours a day, for my representative there is working while I sleep."

VII. Food for Thought

Dr. Jonathan Goforth, for forty-seven years in China and Manchuria, challenges us with his "Seven Rules For Daily Living," written early in his missionary life:

Seek to give much—expect nothing.

Put the very best construction otn the actions of others.

Never let a day pass without at least a quarter of an hour spent in the study of the Bible.

Never omit daily morning and evening private prayer and devotions.

In all things seek to know God's will and, when known, obey at any cost.

Seek to cultivate a quiet, prayerful spirit.

Seek each day to do or say something to further Christianity among the heathen.

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

THE VOICE OF THE CROWD OR THE VOICE OF GOD?

Intermediate C. E. Topic for Dec. 10, 1939

For Daily Reading:

Dec. 4. Follow not a multitude. Ex. 23:1-3.
Dec. 5. Noah and Lot. 2 Pet. 2:4-9.
Dec. 6. Caleb and Joshua. Num. 14:2-10.
Dec. 7. Elijah alone. I Kings 18:21-24.
Dec. 8. The narrow and the wide gates. Matt. 7:13, 14.
Dec. 9. Obey God. Acts 5:25-33.
Dec. 10. Topic. Acts 6:9-15.

Opening Song: "True-hearted, Whole-hearted."

Scripture Reading: Acts 6:9-15.

Sentence prayers asking God to make us willing ever to listen to His voice and obey it.

Read Ex. 23:1-3.

Song: "Anywhere with Jesus"

Quote—We ought to obey God rather than men. Acts 5:29.

Discussion:

1. Whose opinion should we care about most, the crowd's or God's? People may make fun of us for doing right but God will love us for it.

2. What do you think of the young person who says he must engage in the cigarette habit if he is to have friends? Isn't it better to have Jesus for a friend than to make friends with the whole world?

3. Are you brave enough to refuse to indulge in liquor if all the crowd is doing it and urging you?

4. Does your desire to follow Jesus help you to keep from swearing when you hear it everywhere you go?

5. Can one be a Christian if he follows the crowd to an hilarious carousal on Sunday night?

6. What should a young man do who is holding a job which makes him break the laws of the state? How can he follow what God wants him to do rather than what the crowd says is all right for him to do?

7. Can a young person who really wants to follow God join with the crowd in the dislike of a person of another race?

Poem:

Give Us Men

God give us men; a time like this demands
Strong minds, great hearts, true faith and ready hands.
Men whom the lust of office cannot kill;
Men whom the spoils of office cannot buy;
Men who possess opinions and a will;
Men who have honor; men who will not lie;
Men who can stand before the demagogue,
And brave his treacherous flatteries without winking;
Tall men, sun-crowned, who live above the fog,
In public duty and in private thinking;
For while the rabble, with its thumb-worn creeds,
Its large professions, and its little deeds,
Mingle in strife—lo! Freedom weeps,
Wrong rules the land, and waiting Justice sleeps.

Jno. 3:16

"A SONG"

Program for December 10, 1939

"Glory to God in the Highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men".—Luke 2:14

I. Worship Period

1. Piano Prelude with violin obligato. "Hark the Herald Angels sing"

2. Call to worship: Psalm 98:1-4. "O sing unto the Lord, a new song; for He hath done marvellous things: His right hand, and His holy arm, hath gotten Him the victory. The Lord hath made known His salvation: His righteousness hath He openly shewed in the sight of the heathen. He hath remembered His mercy and His truth toward the house of Israel; and the ends of the earth have seen the salvation of our God. Make a joyful noise unto the Lord, all the earth: make a loud noise, and rejoice, and sing praise."

3. All rise and sing in unison, "Joy to the World"

4. Scripture—Luke 2 verse 1 to 20. After the reading of the above the Juniors should again read verses 8-14 very softly in unison. Help them to realize that these verses sound like poetry.

5. Sentence prayers by Juniors (Remain seated)

6. Leader's prayer

7. Solo—"While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks by Night." Mennonite Hymn Book, No. 85.

8. Poem by a Junior Girl:

"Room for Jesus"

Clarence M. Sheldon.

"One night I dreamed I was a guest
That night in Bethlehem town,
Where He was born, who gave to it
Its famous world renown;—
And safe I slept within the inn,
That quiet, starlit night,
While in the stable near there shone
The world's eternal Light.

And in the morn my host revealed
The story of His birth,
To us, his guests, who sat and heard;
And feasted on our mirth;
But one inquired, in thoughtful mood;
Why shelter was denied;

"There was no room within the inn,"
Our genial host replied.
Up spoke I then to them, and said,
"If I had only known,
They might have had my room last night
In little Bethlehem town."

Then I awoke; and now I know
The Prince of Peace is come
And needs a place within my heart—
Will I now give Him room?"

II. Study Period

Aim—To help our Juniors find joy in discovering the true meaning of Christmas.

To the leaders: Let us be sure that Christ is the Center of Christmas for us and for our Juniors. Shall we be very careful that the great meaning, the beauty of the story of the birth of Jesus is not missed in these studies, namely, that Christ came to save men.

1. Repeat in unison verse of the month: "For unto you is born this day in the city of David, a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord." Luke 2:11.

2. Girls in speaking choir, Luke 2:4.

3. Discussion by a Junior boy:

"Glory to God." Thanksgiving to God. Exultant praise to God for the birth of the Saviour, who would glorify His Father in His life and by His death.—John 17:4. The Heavens declare God's glory. All nature glorifies Him. Ps. 19:1, but salvation is God's greatest glory. Refer to Luke 2:30; Rev. 4:11; Rev. 5:12.

4. Song (stand) "O Come, All Ye Faithful"

5. Discussion by a Junior:

"Peace on earth." A promise of peace in the hearts of those who receive Him as their Saviour. Jesus says, "My peace I give unto you." The peace of God that passeth all understanding, which keeps our hearts and minds through Jesus Christ our Lord. Phil. 4:7.

6. Duet—"There Comes To My Heart One Sweet Strain." Verses 1, 2, 3. Mennonite Hymn Book, No. 234.

7. Discussion by a Junior girl.

"Good will toward men." Before Jesus came to teach men more about God, they were not certain that He really loved and cared for sinners. Some thought He loved only the Jews, but this verse of the angel's song says "God-will toward men." That means all of us, all people.. 1 Tim. 2:4; Isaiah 1:18; "Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow." This shows us God's good-will. 1 John :10b.

8. Solo, "Though Your Sins Be As Scarlet"

9. Leader's heart talk.

III. Mission Minutes

The entire lesson has the mission thought, yet it will not be amiss to again help our Juniors to realize that Jesus Christ our Saviour came for all. Maybe a short talk by an older person would be helpful.

Closing Prayer.

Closing Song, "Come Into My Heart, Lord Jesus."

SPREADING THE GOOD NEWS

Matthew 10:24-39

Introduction

The whole of chapter 10 should be read. Jesus was sending out the twelve newly-selected disciples as His messengers on a preaching tour. Among these men there was much diversity in temperament and ability. He instructed them carefully concerning their actions and message, and gave them power (v1) to do what they were commissioned to do. They were to go to the house of Israel only (vs 5, 6) at this time, for the middle wall of partition was not yet broken down and it was expedient to bring the gospel first of all to the Jews. The commission was fivefold (vs 7, 8) with the chief emphasis on declaring that the prophesied and expected kingdom is now at hand. This is substantially the business of the missionary of Christ at home and abroad today. Christ puts the spiritual first.

Be Faithful Messengers vs 24-27

Jesus tells the Twelve that they may not expect better treatment than He, their Master, was receiving (v 24). Persecution and hardship and suffering they must look forward to. Jesus was grossly slandered by his own people (v25) and they will be also and even more so. They shall courageously accept their mission without fear (v26) for though the gospel may now be withheld through fear, it will later be made known. The forces of evil are strong but the Power helping Christ's messengers is great.

er than the evil powers. When we are on Christ's side we have nothing to fear. The disciples were to give the utmost possible publicity to the gospel given to them by Jesus in quiet privacy (v27). Our methods of publicity are vastly more effective today and yet the greatest and best news—the gospel—is still unknown to many peoples. The Christian needs to proclaim his religion in his daily life.

Fear not Men vs 28-33

Jesus indicates that their enemies may kill the body in the persecutions to come (v28), but they cannot touch the soul which is in God's hands and lives on forever. With Christ in the heart we are secure regardless of what may befall the body. God's eye is upon His own, even in the smallest and minutest things (vs 29, 30). God does not forget these little things and man who is of infinitely greater value in His sight will surely not be forgotten. Christ laid much emphasis on the value of the soul, even of more value than gaining the whole world. Jesus' exhortation, "fear not," helps us to see our duty to take a bold and definite stand for Him with the definite assurance (v32) that He will not forget us before His Father in heaven. In the judgment day our fate will depend upon our attitude toward Christ in our life time and upon His attitude toward us (v33).

Love Christ Supremely vs 34-39

Jesus sets forth this demand that we love Him above all else, in strong language. He indicates vigorously (vs 34-36) that one result of His coming and of acceptance of Him will be divisions and strife. He is the "Prince of Peace," and came to bring "peace on earth." Yet His coming brings conflict before peace will finally come. Jesus is expressing a result here of His coming rather than the purpose of His coming. Not all are ready to accept Him, not even all in families, and divisions in thinking and conduct occur, sometimes resulting in bitter animosities. Sword here means the division of belief wherever the gospel is preached (Luke 12:51-53). A real following of Christ always involves the willingness to bear opposition and persecution, cross-bearing (v38) if need be. Christ must be given the pre-eminence in our affections (v37). Such devotion to Him leads to rich rewards.

—Faithful Mission Worker Succumbs to a Dread Disease.—Miss Lavina Burkhalter who since 1920 has been a valuable worker in connection with the General Conference mission church at Los Angeles, Calif., now the Immanuel Menn. Church with a membership of over 200, passed away Thursday, Nov. 9 and was laid to rest in the home cemetery, Berne, Ind., Friday, Nov. 17. Her ailment was acute lymphatic leucaemia, a disease in which the white corpuscles of the blood stream destroy the red ones, and from which only one in 5000 can be saved.

—Our friend, Jacob P. Habegger, Berne, Ind., came to the Bethel Hospital, Newton, Kans., a couple of weeks ago, accompanied by his daughter, Christine, Mrs. Leiper, to submit to a delicate eye operation. However, due to infection which had gone too far, it seems very doubtful if the eye can be saved. But the patient is resigned and willing to take whatever God may ordain for him. The knowledge that many pray for him and that he is safe in His Father's hands comforts and cheers him.

—St. John Church, Pandora, Ohio.—The Women's Missionary Society expects to send a shipment of used clothing to the needy Mennonites in Western Canada.—The parsonage was recently dedicated and, following this, the Pastor's family kept open house that all might look over their home.

—The Men's Gospel Chorus of the M. B. Ebenfeld Church, consisting of about twenty middle aged men, rendered a program in the Gnadenberg church near Whitewater, Kans., on Nov. 12. Levi Suderman, brother of Prof. David Suderman, Bethel College, is the director. The group is willing to sing in the churches of this vicinty, thus helping to foster a fine spirit of fellowship among the various branches of the Mennonite church.—Mrs. H. A. Schmidt. Corr.

—Salem Menn. Church, Dalton, Ohio.—The usual Thanksgiving worship and mission sale is being planned. Yes, the date is Nov. 23rd. per F. D. R.—Let us keep our sick people in mind. They need our prayers, visits and encouragements.—Subscriptions to The Mennonite and Bundesbote from now until January 1, 1941, are $1.00 to new subscribers. This is a special offer, and a good one. The pastor will be glad to take care of your subscription or a renewal at the regular price of $1.50.—Bulletin.

—Bethany Church, Freeman, So. Dak.—Rev. A. H. Leaman, pastor of the General Conference Mission Church in Chicago, is holding evangelistic meetings in the local Mennonite church every evening from Monday, Nov. 13, excepting Saturday, and will continue through to Thursday, Nov. 24. Half-hour preservice meetings for young people and children are held at 7 o'clock every evening, followed by the regular services at 7:30.—Freeman Courier.

With more space available, this school will be treated more fully later.

PUBLICATION

A VALUABLE OFFER

The year 1939 is fast drawing to a close. If the readers of the Conference papers, The Mennonite and the Christlicher Bundesbote, will look at the label on their paper or papers—many read both Conference papers—they will notice the Expiration Date printed on it. Subscriptions to these papers (including the Junior Messenger) should be paid in advance. This is necessary in order that the Publication Board may be able to meet the expense of printing and mailing the papers. As a rule the treasury is quite low at this time of the year because many readers forget or, for other reasons, fail to pay their subscription in advance. This causes considerable inconvenience and worry to the Board because expenses cannot be met unless the papers are paid in advance.

Right now is a good time to send in renewals because:

1. The present year will soon come to a close.

2. The 1940 Kalenders and Year Books will be off the press in a few weeks. These annuals contain much valuable information which is of special interest to Mennonites, and they will be given as a Premium to readers of The Mennonite and the Christlicher Bundesbote respectively, who pay their subscription one year in advance from January, 1940.

3. At this present time the Publication Board is offering, in addition, a clothbound copy of "Mennonite Articles of Faith" by Cornelius Ris (English or German) to all who pay their subscription to either of our Conference weeklies one year or longer in advance from January, 1940, at the regular rate of $1.50 per year. This is a liberal premium offer because the book sells regularly at 40 cents per copy.

The supply of "Articles of Faith" is limited (only about 500 copies are on hand), and this special offer is good only as long as the present supply lasts. To obtain the benefit of this double premium offer, readers must, therefore, act quickly. Send your remittance to the Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kansas.

Special Offter to New Subscribers

New subscribers to either The Mennonite or the Christlicher Bundesbote can have either of these papers from NOW UNTIL JANUARY 1941 for only $1.00.

Please use the following subscription form:

A Thankful Heart

Lord, Thou hast given me a cell
Wherein to dwell,
A little house whose humble roof
Is weatherproof .....
Low is my porch as is my fate,
Both void of state,
And yet the threshold of my door
Is worn by the poor
Who hither come and freely get
Good words or meat.
Tis Thou that crown'st my glittering heart
With guileless mirth.
All these and better Thou dost send Me to this end,
That I should render for my part
A thankful heart.

Robert Herrick

IN FATHER'S FOOTSTEPS.—A deep snow had fallen and farmer Brown was wading through it down the lane to see his neighbor. After he had gone a short distance, he looked back and saw his son John striding after him, stepping into the tracks he had made. Mr. Brown had once been a Christian, but had backslidden and did not live a very good life. His son taught him a lesson that caused him to mend his ways. He thought to himself, "Pity me, as my boy is following in my footsteps here in the snow, so he has been tempted to follow my poor example of living." He took the matter seriously and, like the publican in the temple, breathed this prayer, "God be thou merciful to me a sinner." He confessed his shortcomings to God, was forgiven and became a new man. Yes, a father that plays golf on Sunday, will soon discover that his boy finds other attractions than attending Sunday School. A father whom his son catches telling falsehoods will soon find him following suit. So great is the influence of father, mother and teacher on the developing child that proverbs have come into use to signify the fact. "He is like a chip off the old block," or, in German, "Ein Apfel faellt nicht weit vom Stamm." (An apple does not fall far from the tree.). "As the teacher, so the school." "Like the people, like the priest." (Bible).—T.

THE LITTLE FOXES SPOIL THE VINES.—"Take us the foxes, the little foxes, that spoil the vines: for our vines have tender grapes."—S. of Sol. 2:15. It is not always the big sin or the great crime that wrecks and ruins the life, robbing it of its peace and joy. The foxes, the little foxes, may spoil the vines. The small dagger which pierces the heart, is as deadly as Goliath's sword. How often does death hide itself away in a drop of poison; the tiniest disease germ may develop into the most dangerous infection. Leprosy begins with the appearance of a small white-pinkish spot upon the body, but it steadily grows until the whole body is a loathsome sore. It is easy to fall into sin but it is very hard to stop it. The vulture delights even in the scent of a carion; the Christian, however, should shun the very appearance of evil. "The little foxes" may be those sins which are so common that they are not observed by the majority of people. They are the things that are commonly practiced by the populace—the sins which are the boast of the flesh. The Christian must put off all of these. There must be no excusing of sins; no self-pitying. "To the death with sin," must be the attitude of those who walk with God.

THE VALUE OF A THANKFUL HEART.—1. It is the fruit of faith. Natural gratitude is the natural pleasure felt in prosperity; gracious gratitude blesses God, in adversity, because of faith in His wisdom and goodness. 2. It is itself one of the foremost of blessings, and parent of all other graces. So says Cicero. It disposes to contentment in all conditions, and puts a bridle on desire. 3. It finds blessings. Says Dr. O. W. Holmes: "If one should give me a dish of sand, and tell me there were particles of iron in it, I might look with my eyes for them, and search for them with my clumsy fingers, and be unable to find them; but let me take a magnet and sweep it, and how it would draw to itself the most invisible particles by the power of attraction! The unthankful heart, like my finger in the sand, discovers no mercies; but let the thankful heart sweep through the day, and, as the magnet finds the iron, so it will find in every hour some heavenly blessings: only the iron in God's sand is gold." 4. It fits for greater blessings. God gives more abundantly where previous gifts are properly valued. Ps. 1:23. Chrysostom said, "there is but one calamity, sin"; and, after many sorrows, died, exclaiming "God be praised for everything!"

KAI CHOW HOSPITAL

by C. L. Pannabecker, M. D.

"TAKE ROOT"

This morning I stood behind the hospital talking to Dr. Hu when a stranger walked up. Dr. Hu recognized him and asked him, "Did you come to go to church today?" and he replied, "Yes." "You were baptized, weren't you? Didn't you study in the catechism class?" "Yes," he answered again, "I was in the catechism class twice before I was baptized." To me, Dr. Hu said, "This is the father of 'Cha Ker' (Jah Ger), one of our Kala Azar patients," and then asked the father, "Cha Ker was baptized too, wasn't he?" To which the father replied, "Yes, he was also baptized."

I inquired a little more about the boy and the family and found out that the boy had been in the hospital about 3 years ago and was cured of Kala Azar. At that time he and the family became interested in Christianity and were gradually led to accept the gospel. The boy had never had an opportunity to go to school and when in the hospital they wanted to find a way for him. Conditions were not favorable and he still regrets that he can't read nor write but, though he is 17, he still hopes to have a chance to learn some.

The family name is Yang and the boy's given name is Cha Ker. The Cinese name their children according to some important event or some prominent emotion at the time of birth. This boy "Char Ker" was born after several years waiting and is the only son. "Ker" means "root" and "Cha" to "strike in"—Cha Ker means to "strike root" or "take root," as we would say, indicating the feeling of the parents that now, having someone to carry on the name, the family was established on the earth—they had "taken root."

When about 12 years old the boy "Take Root" developed Kala Azar, which in most cases results in death, and the hopes of the family, tied up in their only son, appeared about to be vain. Nothing would be too much to do for the son if the family were able and then they heard of the Kai Chow Hospital treatment and brought him here. He was cured and again their hopes were renewed—they had again "taken root." Of course they were grateful, and of course they were open to the gospel and interested in it, and it was then that they decided to learn more about it.

Now that both the father and the son have become Christians, and we believe the mother is interested, the family has again "taken root" not only temporarily on the earth but also for the future and only eternity can tell how deep and lasting those roots are. Pray for this family and for the many other patients and friends who have been in the hospital and come in touch with the gospel.

So You Want Exemption!

The proposed conscription act for use in the event of another war states:

> "Nothing in this act shall be construed to require or compel any person to serve in a conbatant capacity in any of the public armed forces of the United States, who is found to be a member of any well-recognized religious sect whose creed or principles forbid its members to participate in war in any form, if the conscientious holding of such belief by such person shall be established under such regulations as the President may prescribe; but no such person shall be relieved from service in such capacity as the President may declare to be noncombatant."

It is evident from this reading, which, of course, is subject to change by Congress, that sole power over the conscientious objector lies in the hands of the President or-and—his appointed officials. The President will decide first, what constitutes as "well-recognized" religious sect; second, whether each individual is really conscientious; and third, what constitutes combatant or non-combatant service. At any rate each candidate for exemption on religious grounds will be thoroughly grilled to test his sincerity as a conscientious objector.

Preparation for that grilling must begin now. The basis must be Scriptural to be enduring. Don't try, at least at the beginning, to answer all the puzzling Scripture passages which may be interpreted as sanctioning war. Even ministers differ on their interpretation. The result is only confusion. Rather, memorize the passages which set forth the principles of Jesus and his teaching of love. The following references have been suggested by one leader who had experience in advising youth in the last war: — Ex. 20:13; Matt. 5:21, 22, 43, 44; Rom. 12:14, 17-21; Rom. 13:8, 10; Matt. 5:9. These minimum essentials should be increased as time and ability will permit.

A second step in your preparation ought to consider the provision in the act which refers directly to church membership. In the last war men in the camps were often grilled on the following questions:—first, are you a regular attendant of your church?; second, do you support your church financially?; third, have you attended communion services?; and fourth, what are the Scriptural texts on which you base your claim?

Let pastors take notice of these important facts. Let those who would claim exemption on religious grounds ponder them well. What is your record now?

—First Church, Reedley, Calif.,—On November 5, special features were added. Dr. J. H. Langenwalter spoke on, "If I Were Twenty," E. J. Eyman, "What We Can Do Now." Emma Ruth, "Work of the California S. S. and C. E. Convention."

HOME MISSIONS

A. J. NEUENSCHWANDER, Secretary

"TEN SUMMER BIBLE SCHOOLS IN ONE CHARGE."

Wymark, Sask., Oct. 12, 1939.

Dear Mission Friends:

For the benefit of all those interested in the work of the Home Mission Board, and in the building up of the kingdom of God in general, I am writing this account of the work here.

Our work is located at Swift Current in southwestern Saskatchewan. It is a large field, reaching 40 miles south and 50 miles west of Swift Current Thanks to the assistance of the Home Mission Board, we have a church at Swift Current, a dormitory for a worker, with additional rooms for about 20 Bible School students. We also have a church at Wymark, 15 miles south.

We have at present about 165 active members in this charge. During the year that I have been at work here, 43 members have been added; 20 through baptism after Catechism instruction. Last winter we had special evangelistic meetings for 5 weeks—one week at each place. During these meetings some 26 souls professed conversion. We really had a wonderful time of refreshing from the Lord. Praised be His holy name!

One instance, of many, is especially worthy of note. A young girl of 16 years accepted Christ one evening. The following evening both parents, quite old, and one married son accepted the Savior. Before the meetings ended the entire family had surrendered to the claims of Christ, except those who do not live here. Praised be His saving power! To this day they are all going on faithfully with the Lord. Also, as a result of hospital visitation two have, according to their testimony, been able to pass from Spiritual death unto life.

During the month of July we had Vacation Bible School at 10 places with nearly 250 children attending. The teachers were former Bible School students of Swift Current. They enjoyed this practical Christian work, and so did the children. This is one fruit which proves that the Bible School work has not been in vain. The crucified Savior was presented to the boys and girls and about 15 of the older boys and girls professed the assurance of sins forgiven.

From Aug. 2, to Aug. 6, we had a Young People's camp for the first time in this district. Over 50 young people attended. Again the Lord's presence was very real and over half professed acceptance of Christ or a fresh consecration to Him. Praise His name!

Sunday schools are held regularly at 4 places every Sunday. We usually have an attendance of about 175 children and a few adults.

During all spare time, homes have been visited, Christ presented and tracts distributed. This field seems to prove the fruitfulness and necessity of Home Mission work. I wish to assure the friends of Home Mission work, and the Board, that the people of these districts most deeply appreciate the efforts of the Board. Our determination should be to go forward with the banner of the cross of Christ to possess the land still under the domination of the enemy.

For the coming winter we greatly feel the need of an evangelist, to assist in a special evangelistic campaign. Souls need Christ, Christians need to be established and led deeper into the Scriptures. May God show us the way. Our community needs to be made church conscious and mission conscious. Services in the past years and other Christian activities have been so intermittent here that Christian traits have not been developed.

Pray for us that we may be filled with zeal, wisdom, and the Holy Spirit for our task. We realize our great need, but also His sufficiency, 2 Cor. 3:5.

Yours in His glad service,

V. E. Nickel.

Pledge To The Unknown Soldier

Do I not have an account to settle between my soul and the Unknown Soldier? They sent men like me into the camps to awaken his idealism, to touch those sacred, holy springs within him so that with devotion, fidelity, loyalty, and self-sacrifice he might go out to war. O War, I hate you most of all for this, that you do lay your hands on the noblest elements in human character, with which we might make a heaven on earth, and you use them to make a hell on earth instead. . . . I will myself do the best I can to settle my account with the Unknown Soldier. I renounce war. I renounce war because of what it does to our own men. I have watched them coming gassed from the front line trenches; I have seen the long, long, hospital trains filled with their mutilated bodies. I have heard the cries of the crazed and the prayers of those who wanted to die and could not, and I remember the maimed and ruined men for whom the war is not yet over. I renounce war because of what it compels us to do to our enemies, bombing their mothers in villages, starving their children by blockade, laughing over our coffee cups about every damnable thing we have been able to do to them. I renounce war for its consequences, for the lies it lives on and propagates, for the undying hatred it arouses, for the dictatorship it puts in the place of democracy, for the starvation that stalks after it. I renounce war and never again, directly or indirectly, will I sanction or support another! O Unknown Soldier, in penitent reparation I make you that pledge.—Harry Emerson Fosdick.

RELIEF NOTES

(Compiled by O. O. Miller and Abram Warkentin

In view of the first month's rapid development in the present European World War, and the interest in relief effort there expressed by a large number of people in our several Mennonite groups, the executive members of the Mennonite Central Committee, in a meeting at Chicago, Ill., September 30th, decided on the following procedure:

"The Chairman stated that the object of the meeting was to ascertain whether the Mennonite Central Committee constituent groups would feel a common concern at the present time in organizating a European War Sufferers' Relief Project. After considerable discussion of this question and of ways and means in which such a project might be begun, it was moved and passed that we feel it to be our common opportunity and task to proceed with same. By motion it was further approved to appoint and send to Europe as soon as possible two relief commissioners to remain there indefinitely; to study relief needs, and to organize projects which could be supported by the church with prayer, personnel, and funds. Decided further that these recommendations and their implications be submitted to our several cooperative organizations for their reaction, and as soon as the report indicates a generally favorable response, that the commissioners be appointed and sent and the work further organized on the basis of their findings."

By November 4th at a subsequent Executive Commissee meeting the Secretary reported that six of the eight cooperating groups had favorably responded to going forward with this project, and had urged the Mennonite Central Committee to undertake same. The two other groups were also giving the matter consideration, with indications that their reaction would also be favorable.

The Committee, therefore, appointed M. C. Lehman, Goshen, Ind., as the first of these two relief commissioners. Arrangements are being made for Brother Lehman to sail on the Italian Line, S. S. "Saturnia," from New York on Saturday, November 18th. From Naples, Italy, his instructions are to proceed via Berlin to Poland, where in company with Benjamin Unruh, and as he may be counseled and advised by other Mennonite leaders in Europe, he will proceed to get in touch with Polish refugee need and to organize such relief as may be found necessary and advisable.

At the Committee's November 4th meeting a full and complete report of the past year's developments in our Mennonite colonies in Brazil and Paraguay was given by Brother Henry A. Fast, Newton, Kansas, who had spent the past summer in these colonies on a spiritual mission. Brother Fast's report was encouraging. The report concerning Fernheim, Paraguay —the colony which had received its major support from our Mennonite Central Committee—was particularly encouraging. The crops were not quite as good as in 1938, but the colony as a whole is building up various community projects in the Chaco, and the colonists have come to accept this as their permanent home.

A request has come to the Committee from our Canadian groups for counsel and advice and suggestion in organizing European war sufferers' relief projects in which these groups could also cooperate. The Committee is in process of working further at that program, and will probably report later.

Chairman: Rev. E. J. Bohn, Souderton, Penna.
Devotions: Rev. H. T. Unruh, Bluffton, Ohio.
Music:
"The Voice of Experience": 3-5 minute talks by men who were in the draft in the last war.
Address: John J. Gering, Marion, South Dakota.
Offering:
Discussion: Led by L. J. Horsch, Upland, California.
Closing: Rev. E. J. Bohn.

Our Historical Library

The Historical Library has received some valuable contributions during the last few weeks. The Bethel Home for the Aged gave us some old historical pictures, Bibles, etc. Mrs. E. Wirkler and Miss Elizabeth Wirkler of Los Angeles sent some old songbooks, a good Webster Dictionary and other material. Mrs. J. E. Linscheid of Bethel College contributed among a number of other books, the first vlume of the MARTYRS MIRROR of 1780. This is the only edition of the MARTYRS MIRROR which was printed in Germany, in the city of Pirmaseus, Palatinate. It is a reprint of the Ephrata edition published in 1748 at Ephrata, Pennsylvania. Some copies of this edition were bound in one volume, some in two. Is there someone who could contribute the second volume of this edition (1780) to the library?

The Library Committee of the General Conference tries diligently to preserve the printed records of our history and, therefore, is very grateful for any contribution in books and money.

GRACE IN THE BOOK OF GALATIONS

Paper read at Minister's Meeting, Roaring Springs, Pa., Oct. 19, 1939, by Rev. Olin A. Krehbiel, Pastor Grace Church, Lansdale, Pa.

The word grace appears seven times in the epistle to the Galatians. Three times in the first chapter, twice in the second, once in the fifth and once in the sixth. The number seven symbolically represents completeness or perfection. So that we might say that Galatians upholds the superiority of perfection of grace over the law. Of course, grace in this book is not limited to the seven times this term is used, for the whole letter is saturated with it. In fact one might characterize the epistle as a discussion on the subject of law and grace. Dr. William P. White in his book, "Thinking Through the Scriptures" states the theme of Galatians to be as follows: "The Vindication of the Gospel of Grace." This is substantially the same as that given in the Scofield Bible introductory note to the book.

It becomes evident to the reader of the epistle that after Paul had established these Galatian churches, Judaizing teachers visited these groups in order to promulgate their doctrines. These legalizers were now carrynig the war against Paul into the territory of their great opponent in an endeavor to counteract his influence. Although the majority of the Galatian believers were Gentile, yet Conybeare and Howson in their "Life and Epistles of the Apostle Paul" say that in most early Christian communities there was a portion of the church who were Jewish by birth and these would afford a natural fulcrum for the efforts of the Judaizers.

Jamieson, Fausset and Brown give a quotation from Caesar in which he refers to the Gauls who inhabited this region as being fickle and not to be trusted. This explains why some of them gave ear to the insinuations that were made against Paul that he falsely represented himself as an apostle commissioned by Christ. These emissaries from Jerusalem also made much over the fact that Paul was not one of the twelve. Then too they accused Paul of being two-faced by observing the law himself among Jews and persuading the Gentiles to renounce it.

The error which was being foisted upon the Galatians took the form of a supplementing of faith by works in order to justify and perfect the believer. Upon arriving in Corinth and hearing the bad news from Galatia, Paul hastens to check the evil being done to these converts whom he regarded with peculiar affection, because their love and zeal toward him in former times had been so conspicuous. He therefore wrote this epistle in which he defends his apostleship and the gospel which he preached.

You will notice in the first five verses which form the introduction or salutation that the line of argument is foreshadowed in brief. In the opening sentence Paul in signing this letter with his own hand refers to himself as, quote, "an apostle not of men, neither by men but by Jesus Christ." His apostleship did not have its origin with men but by the grace of God Paul was what he was. When Paul saw Christ on the road to Damascus his life was changed and this was because of the mercy of God. Then in Acts 9:15 we read that the Lord revealed unto Ananias that Paul was divinely appointed to preach the gospel of grace to the gentiles.

In the third verse we have the first use of the term grace, when he wished them grace and peace and then proceeds to remind them that grace comes from God through Christ who gave himself to deliver them from their sins. The second time he employs the term grace is in the sixth verse where he marvels that the Galatians should be fooled into departing from the gospel of grace unto another gospel which indeed is not a gospel. From this we infer that the term "gospel" and the term "grace" must go together for there is an underlying link that binds them together. The gospel means good news and laws cannot be good news for they mean added burdens to observe and punishment in case of violation. Only mercy or grace which is the unmerited favor of God can be good news to people who are engulfed in sin.

Beginning with the sixth verse of the first chapter and proceeding on until the 14th verse of the second chapter, Paul relates the history of his apostleship to show that he was called of God and given this gospel by revelation of God instead of by natural means such as through tradition. He had no right to change this gospel nor had anyone else. Now as evidence that the gospel came to him by the grace of God he cites the following facts: First, that after his conversion he spent three years in Arabia being instructed of the Spirit instead of going to Jerusalem and conferring with the apostles. Second, that when he later came to Jerusalem he was there only 15 days and saw just two of the church leaders, Peter and James. Third, for 14 years thereafter he was absent from the churches of Judea. Fourth, that when he did again make his appearance at Jerusalem it was at the time of that great council where this very problem of law and grace was discussed. Then Peter, James and John who were the leaders of the church recognized the grace given him and extended unto him the right hand of fellowship. Fifth, that he withstood Peter to the face for his conduct at Antioch when he discontinued eating with the Gentiles because of fear of the Jews.

Paul sets forth the proposition in verses 15 to 21 of the second chapter that Jews are not justified by work of the law but by faith in Christ. This is grace. The implication being that if Jews must come to God in this manner then surely Gentiles must also. If I go back to works, says the apostle, I make myself a sinner and nulify the grace of God. Grace is frustrated if mixed with anything else. Did not the gift of the Holy Spirit come to you Galatians by grace?

Even Abraham was justified by faith and we are the spiritual seed of Abraham. Therefore being the children of God by faith in Christ we are neither Jew nor Gentile but one in Christ Jesus. The believers justification is a gift of grace on the grounds of the redemption wrought by Jesus Christ, the Saviour. He bore the curse of the sinner when He died on the tree and this extended the hand of mercy unto men.

According to Paul the believer is made a child of God not a slave and he uses still another illustration to show this superiority of grace over the law when he refers to Isaac and Ishmael. The one was the son of a bondswoman and the other was free. The one birth was according to natural means and the other was supernatural. Christians are like Isaac the son of freedom and therefore the apostle exhorts them to stand fast in the liberty wherein Christ has made them free and not be entangled again in the yoke of bondage. Those who return to the law for justification are fallen from grace, for the two cannot co-exist.

Next the apostle Paul turns to sanctification and shows that it is not the result of works but rather the result of grace. The life that is transformed by the grace of God will yield the fruits of the Spirit without any law .Works cause men to boast while grace magnifies God and humbles men. Grace helps one restore the fallen in the spirit of meekness. Grace inspires service out of a heart overflowing with love. No sacrifice is too great in view of the grace of God manifested at Calvary. Is it any wonder that Paul was so zealous for the gospel of Christ and counted it a great privilege to suffer for his Lord.

There is a great deal that we can learn from this Galatian epistle today. One of the most confusing things is this matter of law and grace. Take the statement in our ministers handbook from the communion service, quote, "Remember, therefore, the inexpressible love of our Lord and Saviour, who by His holy life, His suffering and death, reconciled us unto God; and thus became the source of eternal salvation to all who obey His commandments." Or the quotation from John 15:4 "Ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you." Such statements cause many people to add to faith obedience to God's laws. I believe if one remembers that love is a fulfilling of the law then light is thrown on the subject. Parenthetically, I sometimes wonder how well our people grasp this whole matter of law and grace?

This message of grace which Paul championed is much needed in our time for grace requires no commandment but goes beyond mere letter observance.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

A. S. BECHTEL

Recember 10, 1939

REACTION TO THE GOOD NEWS

Matthew 11:16-30

Introduction

The study of Jesus' ministry in our lessons thus far has shown it a continual success. His work prospered. Chapters 11 and 12 which constitute our lesson, reveal a decided change, an increasing hostility by His enemies and a rejection of His message. There was severe criticism of Him and cruel slander that He cast out devils through Beelzebub. The upper class, es and most influential among the Jews, were against Him. On the other hand, Jesus was now making increasingly clear His claim to be the Messiah, the promised Savior of the world.

Warnings to the Impenitent vs 16-24

Jesus is here rebuking the people of His generation (v16) and particularly the religious leaders (L. 7:30) for their peverseness, shall we say blind stubbornness, in criticising and rejecting both John and Himself. These critics are like children He has seen playing in the market-place who are too obstinate to play harmoniously in any games with their companions. Some church members of today appear to be suffering from a similar affliction. Neither John's preaching of repentance, nor Jesus claiming to be the Messiah, were acceptable to the perverse Jews. When people are looking for something to criticise, almost anything will do. In their intense dislike for John and Jesus, they began to besmirch their characters (vs 18, 19), an only too common practice today.

The woes pronounced upon Chorazin, Bethsaida and Capernaum (vs 21, 23) show clearly that our responsibility is measured by the light which we have. The works of God are a call to repentance (Rom. 2:4) and the greater the works, the louder the call. These cities had been witnesses to Jesus' "mighty works" of grace and power. They closed their eyes, hardened their hearts and rejected the proffered salvation. Christ rejected brings the greater condemnation. Jesus words are stern (vs 22, 24). The notoriously wicked cities which did not have the light, would fare better in the judgment day than the cities which rejected the abundance of light given to them.

We today have more light than these cities, so severely rebuked by Jesus had. How great must be our responsibility. What must He think of those who do not repent. Consider what many others would do if our privileges were open to them. We have had the Bible and have heard the gospel from childhood days. How can we escape condemnation if we neglect its evident truths. Jesus puts the rejection of Himself as the supreme sin. The amount of light given and rejected is the measure of the guilt of the individual and of the nation. The guilt of cities in Christianized nations is greater than that of Sodom, for these have received the greater light.

Gracious Invitation and Promise vs 25-30

Jesus rejoiced that the humble-minded "the babes" (v25) were ready to receive the gospel. If we wish to receive much of God's infinite wisdom and truth, we must renounce our finite wisdom. God can not give of His wisdom to the one who "knows it all." Verse 27 contains a tremendous statement of the authority committed to Jesus and of the very close and intimate relationship of Jesus to God. He alone knows the Father, fully comprehends Him. Jesus is truly divine. Jesus' gracious invitation (vs 28-30) is among the most wonderful words He ever spoke. They have been a benediction to multitudes of heavy-laden souls. The rest of the soul promised, is entirely the gift to Christ. Experience has proved abundently that when He comes into the heart, He does give rest. The cares of life become lighter and the life is filled with joy unspeakable.

SERMON SKETCH

E. F. Slotterback, Pastor, Menn. Church, Altoona, Pa.

GRATITUDE

"In every thing give thanks: for this is the will of God, in Christ Jesus concerning you." I Thess. 5:18.

In these days of rush, rush, rush, the people very often fail to take time to return thanks unto the Giver of all things. The Pilgrims came to this country to have freedom of worship. They landed at Plymouth Rock in December 1620, and the following autumn they held a feast of Thanksgiving. Today Thanksgiving seems to have a different meaning in the hearts of the people from that of the Pilgrim Fathers. To some it is just a holiday, to others a day spent mostly in worldly pleasure or at a football game. While again others think of it only as a day with a big Thanksgiving dinner. So many times the real purpose, that of giving thanks, is entirely omitted from the hearts of the people.

One day Jesus healed ten lepers. Only one came back to return thanks unto Him. Jesus said, "Were there not ten cleansed? but where are the nine?" We may think how sad it was that nine forgot to thank Him, yet that is true even today, so many fail to return thanks unto Him who is doing so much for us.

In the text given we are told that: "In everything give thanks for this is the will of God." Also in Eph. 5:20, "Giving thanks always for all things." Perhaps oft times we take the many blessings that God bestows upon us as a matter of course. God doesn't owe us anything. If we would count all our blessings we would hardly know where to begin and where to end. We need not wait until Thanksgiving to return thanks for all the blessings we receive. It is an all-through-the-year proposition.

The life of Christ while here on earth was a life of praise and devotion to God. He set us one of the best examples of our text. He was thankful for food, returned thanks at the feeding of the four thousand. He was thankful for personal gift, as can be seen when Mary anointed His feet with ointment. He was thankful for answer to prayer. When He raised Lazarus from the dead He prayed, "Father I thank thee that thou hast heard me. And I knew that thou hearest me always." In everything He gave thanks.

The greatest of all blessings we should be thankful for is the Gift of God's Son, Jesus Christ. In order to truly appreciate the truthfulness of this statement we shall consider what Christ did for the world. Christ has blessed children by lifting the standards of the home. He has inspired men and women to establish hospitals, orphanages to care for the sick and the helpless. He has lifted the standards of living, He has led in the march of civilization, but, more than these, He has become the PERSONAL SAVIOR to millions.

Jesus, the greatest gift of God, was willing to leave His home in heaven, to live in this sinful world, to die on the cross, to save us from our sins, that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish but have everlasting life. Our prayer of thanksgiving should ever be "Thanks be unto God for His unspeakable gift."

We who are God's children, How can we best show our gratitude to God for this greatest of all gifts? A colored woman at one time was to be sold at auction in a slave market. She was worried that she might be sold to a cruel master, but instead was sold to a good man who after he had bought her immediately set her free. Now, that she was set free and could do as she pleased, she insisted upon going to his home and work for him. She would say, "He saved me, He saved me." She was showing her gratitude to this man who had freed her from slavery by presenting her life to his service.

We too can best show our gratitude to God and to Christ who has saved us by presenting our bodies a living sacrifice wholly and acceptable unto God.

—Mennonite Church, Upland, Calif.,—The building of the parsonage is proceeding nicely. At this writing (Nov. 15) the foundation is complete, floor joists and subfloor are in place and framing has begun.—A laymen's Missionary meeting intended for all the men of all the churches in the community was held November 16, in this church.

CORRESPONDENCE

WAYLAND MENN. CHURCH, WAYLAND, IA.

We have enjoyed mild autumn days, and a bountiful corn harvest. Several of our church members are confined to their homes and some have been in hospitals recently. Sickness is not unto death, but for the glory of God, that the Son of God may be glorified thereby. John 11:4. During the evangelistic meetings, conducted by Rev. A. E. Kreider, we were favored with pleasant weather, thus the meetings were well attended and proved to be a spiritual feast. May the many valuable thoughts and inspirations remain with us. October 22, Rev. Penner preached a strong follow-up sermon, refering to the good seed that was scattered while Rev. Kreider was in our community. November 12, we expect to observe Holy Communion and Nov. 19 we are looking forward to hear a message from Rev. J. J. Thiessen. Our Men's club meets regularly in the church basement with varied programs and music.

Today we shipped over 100 quarts of fruit, jams and vegetables to thhe Orphan's Home in Ottumwa, Ia., also expect to send clothing to Rosthern, Sask.—Mrs. C. K. S., Corr.

BETHANY CHURCH, QUAKERTOWN, PA.

This church will celebrate its Fortieth Anniversray on Sunday, November 26. This will also be a Homecoming service, and the sermon will be delivered by Rev. A. S. Rosenberger, of Dalton, Ohio, pastor of the church from 1930 to 1934. Included in the program will be a history of the church prepared by Rev. S. M. Rosenberger a charter member of the church and pastor from 1925 to 1929.

A series of inspirational services will follow. November 27 will be Sunday School night, in charge of Elwood Everly, superintendent of the Sunday School. Rev. Rosenberger will again speak, and the Sunday School orchestra will provide music. November 28 will be Ladies Aid and Missionary Society and Brotherhood night, with Mrs. Russell Boorse in charge. November 29 will be Christian Endeavor and Choir night, with Robert Landis leading.

While never a large or rapidly-growing church, Bethany has moved steadily forward through the years, and is now not only much larger than the original congregation, but is as large and active as it has been at any time in its history. Quite a few of the charter members are still numbered among the members today. The church building, occupied continuously since the founding, has in the last few years been completely renovated and modernized inside.

This church, along with the others of the charge, is concluding a campaign of Spiritual Infilling and Ingathering under the leadership of its pastor, Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander. Sermon subjects have been based on great Bible revivals. Efforts have been made wherever possible to bring in new members, and additional members will be received into the church at the service on November 19.—Correspondent.

MENN. CHURCH of GARDEN TOWNSHIP MOUNDRIDGE, KANSAS.

We, who are affiliated with the Garden Township church, and many friends around about us, have very much enjoyed and profited by the series of meetings conducted in our church by Rev. Walter Gering of the Eden Mennonite Church, Moundridge, during the week, November 12-17. The theme of his sermons was, "The Mission of Christ." A few excerpts are: "Jesus came into the world because He was sent on a mission by His Father. He came to save and not to condemn. He came to preach and to witness unto the truth. His message was for the whole world. He came to die for each one of us. He deliberately gave Himself to the Cross. He set His face steadfastly toward Jerusalem. He came to serve you and me. His service was motivated by love. It was absolutely impartial. Jesus shows no respect of person. In His service He was willing to pay any price or make any kind of sacrifice. His is an extended service. He is still interceding for you and me." Our sincere wish and prayer is that we as individuals and as a group may gain in spiritual vitality.

In our Sunday School we denote the last Sunday of the month "Mission Sunday." To emphasize and create greater interest in missions, an appointed class renders a special number in song, reading, or a book review. Twe classes invited outside speakers, Rev. P. J. Wiens, in the Summer and Rev. Edward Schmidt, Wichita, this Fall. Rev. Wiens discussed the various Hindu beliefs, and Rev. Schmidt, the Wichita mission project.

The children are doing their part by making use of the "quarter fund" which was started a few years ago by a faithful member of this church. As most of our children live on farms they have as their special charge, a flock of chickens, geese, or ducks, a lamb, or a pig which they diligently care for and, at the proper time, market. The proceeds from the sale are put into a mission fund. Last year their contribution was sufficient to support two native workers in the Foreign field. God delights to see His children busy in His vineyard. May we all put forth greater effort.—Correspondent.

WHAT IS IT TO YOU?

Soon another day will be here which with its usual dressing and trimmings will have vast potential power for distracting our mind from a true attitude of thankfulness.

"Say, Charlie, are you going to see that football game? You know, I'd give anything to see it."

"O mom, aren't we going to have two turkeys this year? You know that we must have one grand feed on Thanksgiving."

And so by gobbling up more of the good things of life (and some of questionable value) on that day than usually, we will try to convince ourselves that we are more thankful than usually to Him who gives us a body to use rightly, a mind with which to grasp the sublime, and emotions for the finest expression possible.

Thanksgiving! How much Thanksliving will it include?

THE STUDY OF THE BIBLE

Devotional Study

"Study regularly. Study prayerfully.

Let us very diffidently suggest what a meditation should be. Not the leaning lazing on your elbow with the Bible open before you, reading the verses silently, and letting the thoughts frequently wander; it is no such listless dreaming over the text; it is an act of the whole soul rising in the fulness of its energy towards God—memory, imagination, intellect, will, fully engaged; it is the soul placing itself in the presence of Jehovah; it is an effort after the Vision of God.

First of all, let your imagination play freely on the passage. Think of the actor or writer. Put yourself in his place. Try to enter into the feeling of the formalist Pharisees, the jealous scribes, the ignorant mob, and especially of the great loving heart of Him who loved and understood and watched over them all . . . .

This is but preparatory; then bring the will to bear on it—Will to love the highest, Will to imitate the noblest, Will to cast yourself down in lowly adoration before all the love and self-sacrifice told of God, of Jesus Christ.

Get the habit of doing it. Let the soul linger in the presence of God, laying the inmost being before Him, and entering into reverent and affectionate yet trustful conference with Him. Lie low before Him. Let Him speak to your soul, and speak back to Him, face to face, as a man speaketh to his friend. Take a great deal of trouble to learn and acquire the habit of meditation. It is there the soul learns most to blame itself and to adore and love its Lord." Excerpt from The One Volume Bible Commentary edited by J. R.Dummelow.

OUR PART IN MISSIONS

Senior C. E. Topic for December 17, 1939

MAIN TOPIC: Our Part in the Missionary Enterprise. Rom. 10:8-15.

II. Leader's Introduction

1. Songs: "Joy to the World," "O Little Town of Bethlehem," "Thou didst leave thy throne."
2. Reading of main topic and prayer.
3. Quartet: "I want my life to tell for Jesus."

I. Worship Service

Missionaries can be sent only as long as church people at home are willing and ready and able to hold the life-lines. Holding the life-lines is the business of us who make up the life and strength of the churches which send out missionaries. If we fail, the whole enterprise will fail. If we do our part, the enterprise will succeed.

Here are some of the things that we at home can do to help make the missionary enterprises of our church and denomination succeed: (1) study the missionary work which is carried on by our church and by other churches; (2) promote the study of the history of missions; (3) promote generous giving to the missionary projects in which our church is interested; (4) secure from our mission boards literature for distribution among the people of the local church; (5) arrange mission programs and missionary meetings in which missionaries or representatives of mission boards speak.

III. Suggested topics for short talks:

1. Paul, the great missionary. Gal. 1:1, 11-17.
2. Pray for more laborers. Mt. 9:35-38.
3. Broadcast substance. Eccl. 11:1, 2, 6.
4. Abound in the grace of giving. 2 Cor. 8:7-15.
5. Pray for missionaries. Eph. 6:18, 19.
6. Lay all on the altar. Rom. 12:1, 2.

IV. Facts for study

Again and again missionaries plead for our prayers. If we believe as they do that "prayer changes things" we can certainly help the cause of missions by our prayers.

So often a word of encouragement means so much for giving strength and cheer to the day's work. Maybe a short letter to our missionary friends will be like a tonic in aiding them.

Maybe the gifts for Christmas or special days that we send for distribution on the mission stations are like personal touches of love on the lives of those to whom they are given. The sense of security and the knowledge that the churches at home are backing up their work with their faithful giving and consecrated living are like a tower of strength and a beacon of light to those who are our representatives far away in mission lands or on the home fields.

V. For Discussion

What is our society planning to do for missions, a) during the Christmas season? b) during the coming year?

VI. Illustrations

I guess I'll give it to Missions." The speaker was the faithful Negro who brings the parcel post packages and "second-class" mail from the post office every morning for a small monthly fee. He has a small delivery truck, and in addition to his regular run he does trucking, and manages to make a fair living. On request he had brought in some dahlia bulbs from a garden in which he takes great delight. "I'm glad to let you have them." But it was insisted that he should have some compensation, to which he rejoined, "Well, then, I guess I'll give it to missions and the church. They've made me chairman of the missionary fund and I think that is the best thing to do with the money."

Unable to Resist Scarred Hands. The following incident concerning that fearless missionary, Judson of Burma, was related in The British Weekly by Mrs. Annie Stubbs:

"Judson, after undergoing unspeakable suffering while lying in stocks in prison for months, gained his freedom and then asked the king of Burma for permission to go to a certain city to preach his gospel. 'I am willing for a dozen preachers to go, not you.' was the reply. 'Not with those scarred hands. My people are not fools enough to listen to and follow your words, but they will not be able to resist those scarred hands.' "

VII. Food for Thought

"To Suffer for His Sake.—I suppose there is scarcely any place in which one feels colder than in a Chinese house, mud-walled and mud-floored, damp, drafty, fireless and sunless on a bleak November afternoon. I remember even now though many years have passed how once I shivered within my doubly heavy clothes and lined coat. The young Chinese preacher, tall and rugged, with a Lincolnesque face, had already nearly completed his examination for ordination to the ministry of Jesus Christ. After a pause one of the senior pastors addressed the candidate.

"Nye Lien Sen," he said, "is it any selfish motive or hope of personal gain that has led you into the ministry?"

The gleaming eyes of the candidate closed for a moment as if unconscious of the company awaiting his answer. Then they flashed open, and he bent down and grasped the hem of his long garment in both hands. He lifted it up displaying his thin shivering legs.

"Pastor Tsoh," he said simply but with a quavering voice, "I wear only this unlined garment." The examining group knew what it meant—that it was given to him "in the behalf of Christ, not only to believe on him, but also to suffer for his sake." P. R. B.

What are we willing to suffer to do our part in missions?

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

THE UNDEFEATED CHURCH

Intermediate C. E. Topic for Dec. 17, 1939

For Daily Reading:

Dec. 11. An everlasting Dominion. Dan. 7:13, 14, 23-27.
Dec. 12. A kingdom without end. Luke 1:26-33.
Dec. 13. An unshakeable kingdom. Heb. 12:22-29.
Dec. 14. The world overcome. John 16:28-33.
Dec. 15. The worldly kingdom becoming Christ's. Rev. 11:15-18.
Dec. 16. The Lambs victory. Rev. 17:9-14.
Dec. 17. Topic. Matt. 16:18; Eph. 2:18-22.

Motto for the meeting "For Christ and the Church"

Opening Song: "For Christ and the Church"
Scripture Reading: Matt. 16:18; Eph. 2:18-22.
Prayer by Superintendent.
Song: "I Love Thy Kingdom, Lord"

Opening Thought by leader: "For Christ and the Church" is the motto of Christian Endeavor. Therefore, should we not as Intermediate Christian Endeavorers make it their motto of our lives? Let us take especial notice that our first loyalty is to Christ. If we are loyal to Christ we will do all within our power to be loyal to our church. It is only because of this Christian loyalty that the Christian Church has remained undefeated.

Only Christ has the ability to build the church. But he builds through us. Christ did not promise to build the church within a short time. However, we need only turn to Matt. 16:18 to find his promise to build the church.

Song: "The Church's One Foundation."

Discussion:

1. How did the Christian church begin? It was begun by the small group of followers who loved Jesus and who were inspired by close communion with him. On the new Day of Pentecost it was increased by 3000.

2. Why has it continued to be in existence? Christianity is a living thing. It was a Missionary church.

3. What is your definition of a real church?

4. What is the textbook of the church?

5. What has been the enduring influence of the church? The business of the church has always been to diffuse light. "Ye are the light of the world."

6. Mention some of the fruits of the church.

Song: "Glorious Things of Thee are spoken"

The living church will grow and grow
Within the heart of man;
As long as we may seek to know
Our loving Father's plan;
As long as God is yet our God;
As long as right is right;
And we reach upward, from the sod,
Toward love, and truth, and light.

—Exchange.

Closing prayer by leader.

JUNIOR CORNER

"GOD SO LOVED THE WORLD"—John 3:16.

Program for December 17, 1939

"A STAR"

"There shall come a star out of Jacob." Numbers 24:17.

Setting—Candles. Use no other light than candle light. Picture, Hofmann's "The Worship of the Wisemen."

I. Worship Period

1. Prelude, Piano and violin: "Silent Night, Holy Night."

2. Call of worship.—Isaiah 60:1-3. "Arise shine; for thy light is come, and the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee. For, behold darkness shall cover the earth, and gross darkness the people; but the Lord shall arise upon thee, and His glory shall be seen upon thee, and the Gentiles shall come to thy light, and kings to the brightness of thy rising."

3. Song (standing) "Joy to the World."

4. Scripture—(all following the reader in their own Bibles) Matthew 2:1-11).

5. Silent Prayer.

6. Leader's Prayer

7. Sing first verse of "Silent Night" very softly.

8. Poem by a Junior girl.

"The Wise Men"

by Estella E. Howes

Once upon the eastern desert
Where the sifting sands still blow,
Wise men traveled in the night time
Through the wondrous starlit glow.

Traveled till the star of promise
Rested o'er the King they sought;
There they knelt and worshiped gladly,
Giving Him the gifts they brought.

Older folk and little children
Still we come to Christ, our Lord,
Give to Him our lives to serve Him,
Worship Him with glad accord."

9. Trio—Three Junior Boys. "We Three Kings of Orient Are."

10. Read in unison from the black-board, Revelation 22:16.

11. Six Juniors each carrying a lighted candle come forward and give the following verses from memory, then close by singing first verse of "The Light of the World is Jesus." John 8:12; John 1:4; John 1:9; John 12:35; Matthew 4:16; Matthew 5:14-16.

12. In unison verse of the month. Luke 2:11.

II. Study Period.

Aim: To help our Juniors seek Him to whom the star led the wise men, and to help them realize that they may also be a light to others.

1. Three Juniors discuss the following:
   a. "The star"—A wonderful guide. Matt. 2:2.
   b. "The star"—Brings joy. Matthew 2:10.
   c. Stars for us to follow.

2. Solo—Verse 1-5. "The First Noel." Mennonite Hymn Book. No. 75.

3. Talk by an older Junior. "What we learn from the Wise-men."

4. Leader's Heart talk: Sometimes we wonder what made those wise men leave their homes and take this long, long journey to Jerusalem. But it was God who put it into their minds and hearts to go. We do not know just how, but no one ever truly goes to seek Jesus until God puts it into their hearts. And oh, how blessed it is to obey God. We should know too that all good thoughts and desires after Jesus are from God. The Bible is like that star and shows us the way to Jesus, if we but follow it. The wise men followed the star they saw faithfully. But our lives too, can be stars that shine for Jesus and that God can use to bring others to Him. Every beam of that wonderful star that the wise men saw shone forth for Jesus. Oh that all we think and say and do and are may also be for our blessed Lord Jesus. That can only be if we are "His" star, and belong wholly to Him.

5. Heads bowed in prayer led by the Junior leader, followed by several Juniors who are prepared to take part.

III. Mission Minutes

1. The Mission Song.—"Send the Light." Read it while the pianist plays the melody very softly, then a solo voice sings the verses and all join in the chorus.

2. Closing prayer and doxology.

—Bethel Church, Mountain Lake, Minn.—Referring to meetings recently held in that church, a prominent member writes: "We had the great privilege to have Rev. J. N. Smucker (of the Bethel College Church) here for a series of meetings. Where could our church get such a man? His talks were very much appreciated and, what is more, I believe lives were changed for the better."

PEACE MEETINGS

Meetings on "Peace and War" have been planned by the First Mennonite, Brudertal and Johannestal churches of the Hillsboro area to be held on alternate Sunday nights beginning at 7:30 P. M. The meetings will probably be held in the First Mennonite Church unless otherwise indicated. Following is the program as it is being carried out:

1. Oct. 29. "The Church and War." Rev. J. M. Regier.
2. Nov. 12. "Does the Old Testament Sanction War?" Rev. A. E. Funk.
3. Nov. 26. "The Wider Application of the New Testament Ethic: Jesus and War." Rev. J. H. Epp.
4. Dec. 3. "War and Peace," Dr. J. E. Hartzler. (Brudertal Church)
5. Jan. 14. "Peace Teachings of the Immediate Followers of Jesus." Rev. J. W. Vogt, Hillsboro.
6. Jan. 28. "Has the Christian Taken Jesus' Peace Teachings Seriously?" Rev. P. K. Regier, Moundridge.
7. Feb. 11. "The Problem of Peace in the World Today." —Dr. E. L. Harshbarger, Bethel College.
8. Feb. 25. "The Seven Thousand Who Have Not Bowed their Knees to Mars." Prof. M. A. Hess, McPherson College.

Correspondence

EMMAUS CHURCH, near WHITEWATER, KANS.

It has been our privilege the past month to listen to a number of Christian workers and ministers from various places. On October 13, in the evening, Miss Elizabeth Foth from Brooklyn, New York, told us of her work among the people in the slum district. It makes one realize how God can use an individual that puts God first in life. Rev. John S. Raugh from East Freedom, Pa., spoke to us in the evening of October 16 of his work in home-mission.

On Sunday, October 22, in the morning service, Rev. J. J. Esau from Bluffton, Ohio, started a series of evangelistic meetings which closed Sunday night, October 29. These meetings will not be soon forgotten. And it is hoped that some time in the future, we will be able to have Rev. Esaus back with us again.

Our Christian Endeavor had their missionary program on the evening of November 5. Rev. and Mrs. Sam Goering from Bethel College, who have spent fourteen years in China, were guest speakers. On Thursday, prayer meeting night, our pastor, Rev. J. C. Kaufman at this time instructs us in the book of Ephesians.—Corr.

—Bethel Church, Fortuna, Mo.—"We just closed two weeks of special services. Brother Delbert E. Welty of Noble, Iowa, was the speaker. His messages were very much appreciated by our congregation."—

IN MEMORIAM

ELVIN MILLER, only son of John M. and Lydia Waltner Miller, was born August 22, 1911, in Norway Township, Turner County, South Dakota, and passed away November 9, 1939, at 11:30 p.m. at the Sacred Heart Hospital in Yankton, S. Dak., having reached the age of 28 years, 3 months and 13 days.—After undergoing two operations, one for appendicitis on October 27th and the second for the removal of an infected kidney, on November 4th, his condition became worse on Monday, November 6th, and he suffered intensely almost until the end.

He tried to live an upright life, pleasing to God and parents from his childhood on. On June 5, 1927, he was baptized by Rev. W. S. Gottshall and received into membership in the Salem Mennonite Church, Freeman, S. Dak., and tried faithfully to fulfil his duties as a member always. He had a special interest for music, being for many years a member of the church choir and Men's Chorus.

On June 6, 1934, he was united in marriage with Elizabeth Alston, formerly of Noble, Iowa. This union was blessed with two children, Lorene, 2, and Lilah Mae, two months old. For the last three years he was farming the home place in Norway Township.

He leaves to mourn his early and unexpected departure, his wife and two small children, his mother and father and sister Violet, his grandparents John J. Waltners, six uncles and aunts from his father's side and seven from his mother's side, besides many other relatives and a host of friends, young and old. —The funeral was held at the Salem Mennonite Church, Sunday afternoon, November 12. Loud speakers were necessary to take care of the large number of people that could not get into the Church. Brother A. P. Waltner brought words of comfort at the house and Bro. P. R. Schroeder at the Church. The text selected by the mother of Elvin was Psalm 16:6.

MRS. EMMALINE KAEGI, daughter of Samuel and Martha Ferguson, was born January 9, 1865, near Goshen, Ind., and passed away in the hospital at Goessel, Kans., October 30, 1939, thus reaching the age of 74 years, 9 months, and 21 days.

When yet in her infancy, the family moved to Iowa, residing there until 1877, whereupon they came to McPherson County, Kansas. Three years later she lost her mother.

On New Years' Day, 1885, she was united in marriage with Christian Kaegi. They settled on a farm in Spring Valley township, and later in Canton township. In 1890 the family moved to Moundridge. To this union eight children were born. Her husband preceded her in death in Glasgow, Montana, in the year 1927, having moved to this state with their Her exemplary and unselfish life was an inspiration son in the year, 1918.

On December 2, 1917, she was baptized upon the confession of her faith by the Rev. J. M. Suderman. to those who were near and dear to her and now mourn her departure. After mothering her own family, she took the place of a mother in the household of Mr. John P. Huxman during the last six years of her life.

She leaves to mourn her departure, six daughters, and their families: Mrs. D. O. Rupp, Mrs. B. F. Luginbill, Mrs. B. M. Dirks, Mrs. F. E. Dyck, Mrs. L. E. Stucky, all of Moundridge, and Mrs. F. L. Baily of Glendive, Mont., a son, Clayton, of Newton, Kan., four sisters, twenty-three grandchildren, one great grand-child, and many other relatives and friends.

The Rev. P. K. Regier officiated at the funeral service, using the text II Tim. 1:12. Burial was in the Meridian cemetery, where her parents and little son are buried.

Mother EVA DUERKSEN PANKRATZ, daughter of Johann and Aganetha Balzer Duerksen, was born the 22nd of February, 1873, in Gnadenthal, South Russia. In 1878 she immigrated with her parents to the U. S. A. In her parental home she was brought up in the fear and admonition of God.—On the 18th of May, 1891 she was baptized upon confession of her faith by Elder Jacob Buller and received into the Alexanderwohl Mennonite Church, of which she was a faithful member at the time of her death.—On the 19th of January, 1893, she was married to John M. Pankratz. This union was blessed with 12 children, 7 daughters and 5 sons, of which two, Mrs. Elizabeth Pankratz Schmidt and Jacob Pankratz have died.

Mother was not in good health the last 9 months, yet she was always cheerful and willing to help others. After consideration and prayer we followed the doctor's advice to remove the cause of her ill health by means of an operation. On October 28, she entered the Bethesda Hospital, Goessel, Kansas. November 2, the doctors made an exploratory operation. Complications set in soon after, with pneumnia and toxic psychosis. In spite of all the diligent, loving and sympathetic care, she suffered much the last four days, yet she bore it patiently and willingly. She was ready to go and be with her Lord and Master. In her suffering she prayed much and quoted Scripture verses, such as Psalm 68:19: "Blessed be the Lord, who daily loadeth us with benefits, even the God of our salvation." When her suffering was greatest she sang the songs she loved. We know she is with the Lord. She also beckoned us to come and meet her in heaven. Praise God for a saintly mother! She passed on to her heavenly reward quietly and peacefully, Nov. 8, 1939, at 7:30 a.m., after a brief illness of 6 days, at the age of 66 years, 8 months and 17 days. She leaves to mourn her death: her grief-stricken husband, John M. Pankratz, four sons, John, Peter and Henry with families, and Ernst; six daughters, Agnes, Eva, Marie and Katharine with families, Martha and Margaret; the grandchildren Selma and Albert Klassen and 30 others, 4 brothers and one sister.

Funeral services were held in the Alexanderwohl Church, Nov. 13. Rev. C. C. Wedel spoke comforting words on Deut. 32:39, and Rev. P. H. Unruh spoke on Ps. 23:1; Rev. P. P. Buller closed with remarks on Ps. 73:23. The bodily remains were laid to rest in the Alexanderwohl Cemetery.

HENRY BERG, the son of Peter and Eva Duerksen Berg, was born October 14, 1859, at Elizabethtal, South Russia. When 8 years old he was taken to the home of his uncle Henry Franz. With these foster parents he emigrated to America, where they arrived June 29, 1879. He lived with his foster parents up to his 29th year. He was baptized upon confession of his faith, August 15, 1880, by Elder Jacob Buller and joined the Alexanderwohl Mennonite Church, where he was a faithful member at the time of his death.—On March 12, 1889, he was married to Anna Boese, Rev. Heinrich Goerz officiating at their wedding. Mrs. Berg died November 13, 1929, and as they had no children he was left alone. So he sold his personal property and entered the Bethesda Home at Goessel, Kansas, as a broken man, with the intention of spending the remainder of his years there. As he was by nature a quiet, industrious man, it was a pleasure for him to assist here and there, always evidencing a keen interest for all that happened. Many a quiet hour he spent in reading his Bible. This gave him strength to overcome the adverse experiences, but deep in his heart there lingered a longing for the heavenly home. He was a quiet and satisfied member of the Home family. — Slowly his strength began to fail. On October 14 last, he celebrated his 80th birthday and greatly appreciated all acts of kindness extended to him. He became bedfast October 30, and there followed several days of severe suffering, but he kept his faith until the end, which came November 4, at 8:30 p.m., and he went to the Lord. He spent nearly ten years at the Bethesda Home, and reached the age of 80 years and 20 days. Funeral services were held at the Alexanderwhol Church, Thursday, November 9. Rev. P. H. Unruh spoke on Heb. 11:6 and Rev. C. C. Wedel on 1 Cor. 15:26.
(Something wrong with the figuring of his age isn't there?)

ERDMAN HEPPNER, SR., son of Dietrich and Maria (nee Buhr) Heppner, was born, Dec. 23, 1866, at Schoenthal, about thirty-five miles from the city of Marienpol, South Russia. In 1876 he came, with his parents, to Mountain Lake, Minn. The family settled on a farm about twelve miles northeast of Mountain Lake. He was the youngest of fourteen children, all of whom have preceded him in death.

On July 6, 1890, he was united in holy matrimony with Helena Friesen, also of Mountain Lake. Four months later in October 1890, the young couple moved on a farm near Butterfield, Minnesota. To this union were born four sons: Abraham, Dietrich, Erdman Jr., and Peter. Soon after the birth of Peter the young mother passed to her heavenly reward. Both she and her husband had been baptized and received into the Mennonite Church at Mountain Lake by Elder Gerhard Neufeld.

On January 3, 1897, he again entered holy matrimony with Helena Peters, also of Mountain Lake. To this union were born six boys and two girls: Cornelius, Jacob, John, William, Henry and Walter; Marie (a twin with John) and Helena. In 1908 the family moved to North Dakota, where they lived till 1911 when they moved to Winton, Calif. Here they lived till 1917, when they moved to a ranch near Reedley.

Erdman Heppner departed this life October 20, 1939, having succumbed to a heart attack while asleep in bed. He brought his age to 72 years, 9 months, and 27 days. He leaves to mourn his departure his widow, ten sons, 16 grandchildren and 2 great grandchildren. Interment was made at Reedley Cemetery with Rev. Dillman B. Hess of the Community Church at Winton, Calif., officiating. Text: II Samuel 12:23. His body was laid to rest in the hope that his departed soul has gone to be with the Lord Jesus Christ in Whom he believed.

» » JOTTINGS « «

—Grace Mennonite Church, Pandora, Ohio.—The Men's Fellowship held its autumn meeting at the church on the evening of Nov. 14th. Ninety seven men and boys of the church gathered for the occasion. After a period of informal fellowship the men gathered in the basement of the church where a generous dinner awaited them prepared and served by the men cooks of our church. After the dinner there were a number of selections of music, quartets and instrumental. Rev. J. R. Love, pastor of the High Street U. B. Church, Lima, Ohio, gave an excellent address of real religious value to all present. — On the evening of Nov. 16th the women and the girls also held their autumn dinner at the church. One hundred and thirty women and girls were present. The evening was spent in good fellowship, the enjoyment of good music and an address by Miss Elizabeth Moser who has recently returned from a period of service in the Rockefeller Hospital, Peiping, China. Her address was interesting and informative.

—The Eastern Conference Secretary, Rev. Howard G. Nyce, was authorized to send to every minister there the following resolution adopted at the Peace Rally held at the Lansdale church on Armistice Day:

RESOLVED: That we designate Sunday, November 26th as a day of Confession and Intercession, through our Conference, for the intervention of God in restraining the ravages of the International conflict, and for the retarding of the materialistic tendencies which today are slowly dragging this country to the brink of the dark abyss of war; and to quicken the spiritual life of the members of our congregations. —In our prayers to God regarding these conflicts, let us be strictly neutral, praying that God may so rule or overrrule in the hearts of men, that just and equitable peace be established."

— REVIVAL MEETINGS.—Rev. C. H. Dirks, pastor of the Mennonite Church, Hutchinson, Kansas, held Revival meetings at Kismet, Kansas, beginning Oct. 29, and continuing two weeks. From Nov. 19 to 24 he held similar services at the Mennonite Church, Medford, Oklahoma, and from Nov. 27 to December 3 he will be at the Grace Mennonite Church, Enid, Oklahoma. Themes: "Behold the City," "New Pictures in Old Frames," "What Think Ye of Christ?" "Can Man Be Made Over?" "Why Be Born Again?" "The Danger of Delay," "The Leopard's Spot."

— Soldner Family Celebrates Mother's Birthday.—The children of Mrs. Samuel Soldner, of Berne, Ind., met recently in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wildas Soldner, Van Wert, Ohio, to help her celebrate her 80th birthday. Present were: Dr. and Mrs. T. H. Soldner and children, Rev. and Mrs. G. T. Soldner and children, Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Soldner and children, Mrs. Sam Soldner and daughter Nora, Mrs. Della Neuhauser an daughter Christine, Mr. and Mrs. Newel Neuhauser and children.—Berne Witness.

— Items from Bulletin of First Church, Philadelphia: Next Sunday is "BRING ONE—SUNDAY." Each one present this Sunday (Nov. 19) bring another one. Do some personal work.—Bluffton College Gospel Team will be with us in the morning. In the evening Music Night.—Bluffton College East Coast Club Dinner, Saturady, Nov. 25, 6 p.m. at West Swamp Church.—The Ladies' Aid Society bought a new mimeograph machine for the church. It shall be used to His glory.—Brs. J. B. Bechtel celebrated his 45th anniversary in business. We congratulate him and hope many more years will be added.

— CHANGE OF ADDRESS. — Rev. M. Horsch writes Nov. 18, from Upland, Calif., where they have recently moved, "We are now over the most and hardest of our "move" to Upland. Will you kindly announce in "The Mennonite" our new address, so all of our friends may take notice: REV. M. HORSCH, 593 EIGHTH AVENUE, UPLAND, — Mr. E. W. Baumgartner of Berne, Ind., motored to Trenton, Ohio, Sunday, Nov. 19, where he spoke at the Annual Mission Feast in the church where Rev. J. E. Amstutz is pastor. Messrs. Leslie Lehman, Carl Luginbill, Emerson Neunenschwander and Milo Habegger accompanied him to furnish special music.

— Rev. H. T. Unruh, First Church, Bluffton, O., in their church bulletin: "My daughter and I join Mrs. Unruh in expressing our sincere thanks and appreciation for cards and letters of well-wishing as well as the many flowers she received during the days of sickness and confinement in our local hospital . . . . They were to her and all of us an expression of love —deep and sincere. It was kind of you to thus remember her. Above all your many prayers brightened the hour of deep experience. We do not know what those prayers meant to you but we do know what they meant to us. May God richly reward all of you.

— INTERESTING INFORMATION FROM FREEMAN JUNIOR COLLEGE. — Their Bulletin gives the following table of Enrollment:

Year	High School	College	Total
1934-35	94	59	159
1935-36	94	35	129
1936-37	104	44	148
1937-38	87	61	148
1938-39	87	63	150
1939-40	72	70	142

In view of the several years of poor crops in South Dakota, the above shows a remarkably fine school spirit, which proves that the people are backing up the school. That the college enrollment has steadily increased since 1935-36 is another healthy sign. And here is another encouraging surprise. In spite of extremely hard times the management of the college has been able to reduce the school's debt from $63,212.27 in 1935 to $45,755.67.

— Getting Along with Older People was the interesting subject discussed at a recent C. E. meeting in the Salem Church, at Dalton, Ohio.

— The Bergfelder Menn. Church, of Mt. Lake, Minn., has asked Rev. D. J. Unruh to conduct a series of meetings and to lead them in Bible studies during the Thanksgiving season.—Thirty to forty women of the St. John Church recently met a whole day to sew and quilt and otherwise prepare a shipment of garments and comforters for the needy in Canada.

— A NEW BULLETIN has put in appearance. It is from the Second Church, Beatrice, Nebr., with Reynold Weinbrenner as the new pastor, who writes: "The kind people here have made us feel at home, and we very much enjoy our work. There are many young people in the church and they are a very wholesome group."—Interesting announcements: Tuesday, at 4:15 p.m. High School Bible Class at 7:30 p.m. Christian Peace Class.

— Bluffton College.—Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Musselman of Biglersville, Pa., who have given Bluffton its $50,000 Library plus an endowment to maintain it, have just donated another $7,000 to the endowment of the school. This gift brings the total contribution made to Bluffton by this worthy couple to about $125,000.—Out of an enrollment of 215, 129 Bluffton students are earning from $12 to $130 per semester. The N. Y. A. (National Youth Administration) is helping 19 of them with allotment.

— Rev. Freeman Swartz, Schwenksville, Pa., in "Church Messenger": THANKSGIVING: We see no need for the change of date of this day. Its reasons were certainly senile in argumentative power. What difference does a mere week make in computation of monies for Christmas shopping? This crass emphasis on the materialistic side of both days—Thanksgiving and Christmas, is somewhat disconcertaing to persons who are hoping for a spiritual awakening in America to save her from her mad plunge into materialism!"

—Bethel College.—Homecoming day, celebrated Nov. 25, drew a large crowd. A football game with Baker University was one of the features, at which Esther Regier of Newton was crowned queen. At the banquet in the evening, Prof. L. J. Horsch of Upland, Calif., and H. W. Scott of Newton, Kansas, were the speakers.—On December 1, the day after Thanksgiving, the Annual Corporation Meeting will be held as usual.

—A Peace Meeting by the Ministers of the Western District. On the earlier Thangsgiving Day a group of some fifty ministers met at the Tabor Church, Goessel, Kansas, further to discuss "the tentative plan" of action that members of peace churches might follow in war time. A resolution adopting this plan, passed at the Conference in October, the brethren felt, needed further interpretation and clearance, hence this meeting.

FORGIVENESS of those who trespass against us is a duty clearly taught by the word and example of Christ. It is not easy to do and many Christians never learn to do it, except for small matters which really amount to nothing. The spirit of forgiveness requires a disciplined heart and an unlimited amount of patience. Not seven times but seventy times seven. The impulsive Peter could hardly understand why one needs to be so generous with an offending brother. Neither can we understand until we consider God's patience with us. We sin today and tomorrow and the next day and our hope of forgiveness lies only in the mercy and patience of God.

If any among us think himself free from sin and not trying the patience of God, let him in all honesty search his heart and see if it is free from unclean ways—criticizing others, spreading gossip, losing temper, jealousy, overindulgence in eating or drinking or the use of tobacco, laziness, dishonesty or insincerity, wasting of precious time, indifference toward the needy, irreverence toward God, sinful thoughts and unloving words. If a man says he has no sin he is a liar and the truth is not in him. These words are a sad commentary on human nature but they are true.

But we need not brood over our sins. We only need to confess them. His grace is greater than our sins. The Cross of Christ is the eternal symbol of God's love and patience and forgiveness. On Calvary the forgiving spirit found its highest expression: FATHER, FORGIVE THEM. FOR THEY KNOW NOT WHAT THEY DO.—From "The Herald" by Lester Hostetler.

MONEY CANNOT BUY ALL.—The Scottish writer Thomas Carlyle once uttered this truth: "Money, in truth, can do much, but it cannot do all. We must know the province of it, and confine it there." To this, all honest, thinking people will assent. Money can buy a fine home with the finest furniture and commodities, but it cannot buy the happiness to go with it. Money can but an education, topped with a tempting doctor's degree, but it cannot buy the practical application of it, from which will accrue a life of service to humanity. Money can buy titles and honored positions, but it cannot buy the zest and thrill that goes with the effort of their personal attainment. Money can become the means of charitable work, it can help the poor, the sick, the indigent, but it cannot buy the "Well done," for, "though I bestow my goods to feed the poor, and though I give my body to be burned, and have not love, it profiteth me nothing." It can buy a bride or bridegroom, but it cannot buy the true love that must go with it to make the married life a blessed one. Yes, we must admit that money can buy almost any of this world's commodities, but it is profitable to consider some of the things that it will not buy, such as genuine friendship, true love, inward peace, health; the love of music, art and literature; the love of the good, the beautiful and the true; the riddance from sin and evil; and, above all, no amount of money can buy that "unspeakable gift" of God in His son Jesus Christ that brought us salvation, "the unspeakable riches in Christ."—Eph. 3:8, that "joy unspeakable and full of glory."—1 Peter 1:8.—T.

A GOOD GAME.—We recently attended a football game between the home college team and that of another Christian college. It was, what everybody called, a good game. The teams were evenly matched and each played hard. Each made two touchdowns and kicked one goal, giving both sides 13 points, and the result being a tie. There was no victory, no celebration, each side with its supporters apparently satisfied. It was a fine illustration of clean, neighborly sportsmanship. And the lesson? Would that the mad races for power, for supremacy, for aggrandizment between nations, organizations and even individuals might, somehow, be made to end in draws, like this game, rather than in victories! For victories leave sores, bitterness, and often hatred in the hearts and minds of the vanquished, with the determination to even up the scores, to retaliate, sooner or later. Victori-less games, played for the practice of honest, give-and-take sportsmanship and for the building up of healthy physical bodies, would largely eliminate the howling mobs at the thousands of games played annually by American schools and clubs, disgracing the art of play.—T.

The games of the ancient Greeks were, in their original institutions, religious solemnities.—Brande.

What Will It Cost to Be a Church Member

*By A. L. Roach

We feel the following is a fitting meditation upon the Advent of Christ and His Church.—Editor.

This question is often asked and debated in the minds of some who would like to become members of the church but are afraid it will cost too much or that it will work a hardship upon them.

But everything in life worth much to us, costs something. The food we eat, the clothes we wear, the car we drive, the home we live in all cost something. But who would say that these things are not worth the price we have to pay for them. Our schools cost, our government costs, our protection of the law costs, we have to pay taxes to support all these institutions. Then why will people feel that the blessings and inspiration of the church (the greatest institution in the world) should be given to them free, without any cost or obligation on their part?

The fact is the church is the cheapest institution in the world. A recent survey of the United States dollar showed that 24 cents is spent for living costs; 20 cents for luxuries; 13 cents for waste; 11 cents for miscellaneous; 10 cents for investment; 10 cents for government; 9 cents for crime; 2 cents for education; and 1 cent for the church. Who would want to live in a city where there was no church? We pay for medical care and for education, for government, and taxes mount up every year. We pay hig prices for our food and clothing and yet we do not complain, but when it comes to the church we feel that what we give to the church is more or less charity or a gift, that we do not owe the church anything, and for someone to try to insist upon us paying a designated sum is an imposition.

But no man can pray what we call the Lord's Prayer without being willing to make some sacrifice, paying some price to help answer his prayer. For when we pray 'Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven," then we must, if in earnest, be willing to help bring this about. Jesus paid the supreme sacrifice upon the cross, it cost Him a tremendous price to redeem the lost race and to establish the church. The apostles laid down their lives and suffered the loss of their possessions in order to spread the gospel and establish the church in the world in their day. Through the first three centuries millions of Christians sacrificed everything they had, yes they gave their lives in their zeal to preserve the Church and make Christ known to the world.

Jesus never appealed to any man on a cheap scale. He said, "If any man will come after me let him deny himself, take up his cross and follow me." So it means losing your life; it is giving up all, bearing your cross.

The devotion of the soul to Christ and His church will necessitate unceasing conflict between the material and the spiritual, between the flesh and the spirit. The temptation will come to neglect Christ and His Church in order to satisfy the desire for clothes, food, houses, furniture, pleasure and many other things that appeal to the eye. But Jesus said, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness and all these things shall be added" that is, put God first.

Church membership will cost money, but a true Christian should have no difficulty in realizing Christ's right to claim and command all we possess and ask us to give a part to help finance His work in the world, for He said, "Ye are not your own, for ye are bought with a price." "Where your treasure is, there will your heart be also."

Church membership will also cost some time. Christ claims not only a right to our money but to our time. One could not expect membership in any kind of an organization would amount to much if he did not give some time to it. The church needs willing workers who will give time and service to the great cause of Christ, there is a place for everyone to serve God in and through the church. Yes, it will cost you something but it will bring dividends in return, not in money, but in joy, in enlargement of soul and in treasures in heaven and the final awards of eternity.

If you are one of those who refuse to become a church member because of the fear of too much cost, then you are a cheap soul and have never caught the vision of the value of spiritual things. . . . We believe in the tithe system as taught in the Bible but it is left up to each individual as to how much he can and will give.—Herald of Holiness.

Gone to Their Eternal Home

REVEREND ABRAHAM RATZLAFF, formerly elder of the Hoffnungsau Church near Inman, Kansas, passed away Tuesday afternoon, November 28, at the age of over 89 years, due to old age and some internal ailment. He has been a minister since 1880, though not active for some time. He was well known in our conference circles, was long a director of the Bethel Hospital at Newton, and a director of Bethel College for nearly twenty years.—His obituary will appear later.

* * *

MAXWELL H. KRATZ of Haverford, Pa., is also reported to have passed away. He was a successful, Christian Attorney-at-Law, and withal a staunch Mennonite. A graduate of Princeton University and of the University of Pennsylvania Law School, he served on the Penna. Board of Law Examiners, on the Bluffton College Board of Directors, on the General Conference Emergency Relief Board and on the Mennonite Central Committee, in both positions since 1920.

Forget Not God's Benefits

There is an old German proverb that goes something like this: "Nichts ist schwerer zu ertragen als eine Reihe von guten Tagen," which means, there is nothing as hard for man to bear as a succession of good days. This seems contrary to our common belief, but really isn't it true? In our "good days" we have a tendency to grow independent, self-sufficient, ungrateful and, therefore, thankless. In fact, we become so self-reliant that we forget God, and when we forget God we forget our fellowmen. So, if that is what "good days" will do for us, then it is the worst thing that can come to us. And if it is our nature to forget God and all His benefits when the good days follow one another, let us consider it wisdom on the part of God to send us "evil days"—perhaps affliction, trials, cropless fields, etc. That is the result of forgetting God's benefits, not only now and here, but it has always been so. We deserve nothing more than the rest of mankind. We try to justify ourselves when we ask, "Are we worse than the rest?" Certainly not! But let us be very frank and also ask ourselves, "Are we any better than the rest?" God everywhere deals the same with mankind, but, of course, not at the same time. God is no respector of persons. What is more, we have had our "good days"—yes, too good they were. We were not worthy of them. We forgot God's benefits. We forgot our great Giver. O yes, we all wanted His benefits, His blessings, His gifts—but we wanted them without the Giver. Our American poet Lowell said, "The gift without the giver is bare." What are God's benefits without God? It is as a lamp without oil or electricity, it leaves us in the dark. It is as a car without gas, it gets us nowhere. It is as a dish without food in it, is leaves us hungry. It is as a stove without fuel, we are cold.

The Value of Thanksgiving. The Bible is full of thanksgiving. You see it in the Psalms, in the lives of godly men and women, in the letters of Paul. Our Lord set us the best example. Thanksgiving or better the giving of thanks is good for us. It is good for the soul. It puts the right spirit into man. It tones up his whole nature. It enriches his mind. It keeps alive his spiritual impulses and needs. The art of giving thanks takes us out of ourselves and helps us give God the glory to whom it is all due. It helps us in adversity. It keeps hope alive and makes faith a reality.

God's Supreme Gift is Christ Jesus. Thank God for Him. In Him we have cleansing, the forgiveness of sins, God forgives, forgets and heals. When a heart recognizes the gifts of God, it knows they are sent in love and mercy. "God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him, . . . hath everlasting life." —Rev. L. H. Linscheid in "The Bethany Messenger," Nov. 21, '39.

HOME MISSIONS

A. J. NEUENSCHWANDER, Secretary

Dallas, Oregon.

Greetings! "The Lord hath done GREAT things for us; whereof we are GLAD." Ps. 126.3.

These words express in a sentence the Lord's work in Dallas, Oregon. As we briefly look at this Psalm in the light of Psalm 122:1-4, we assume that it was probably chanted by the Israelites as they went up to Jerusalem to the feasts. They had been in bondage, in captivity—they had no song, no joy. The heathen nations observed their calamity and triumphed in it. (Jer. 22:8, 9), (Psa. 137:7).

But now they are free, out of captivity and bondage, v.2. Now there is joy and singing, so that even the heathen now recognize that the Lord hath done great things for His people. But notice the difference in v. 3. For God's people it was a "personal" matter. They were "sharers" in it. They could say, "the Lord hath done great things FOR US, whereof We are glad. They had part in the good things. It was for them, it made them glad. The neighbors perceived it—but they received it.

Their prayer is to be "fully-restored" from the captivity, as the "streams of the south." After the dry spell the rains came again. So they too wanted to be "revived" and "put on fire" for God. A wonderful prayer for all God's people. They had "sowed in tears," now they were to "reap in joy." "Tears" of godly-sorrow for misdeeds. Joy and singing for the fact they were now "out of captivity," back in God's fellowship and favor.

So we at Dallas must say: The Lord hath done great things for us; whereof we are glad. We recognize the author of all good done—it is the Lord. He uses human instruments, but it's the Lord's doing. Our conditions are parallel those of the Israelites. We too were in captivity, but the Lord delivered us. We had no song, but He put a new song in our mouths, even praises unto our God. We are free, our sins are forgiven, there is no condemnation—"Great things"—others are amazed—we are glad. Our prayer, too, has been—to be "revived," to be "put on fire for God." Only the Lord could do that. We merely were in the proper attitude to receive it. "Man-made" revivals are of little effect, but "heaven-born" and "God sent" revivals, though they may not be "heralded" and shouted from the house-tops—are Real. We have prayed for a spiritual revival and the Lord has sent such a shower of spiritual blessings that our neighbors are amazed and dumbfounded, and we ourselves are experiencing "Harvest-surprises."

Re-enforcements have arrived, not only in means, but in 45 new members from many states and Canada. Attendance has tripled. We have a large catechism class. A Sunday School Choir of 32 younger children; a young people's choir of an equal number, well attended prayer and Bible study meetings, an orchestra, a live C. E. and a new house of worship. Truly if the Lord had not built this house, we would have labored in vain—given up long ago.

Struggling under adverse circumstances, with a hand-ful of faithful ones, but with the sacrifice of personal interests and ease and means, the work has been accomplished. The Lord used human instruments who from the heart could say—even after a hard day's work: "I was glad when they said unto me, let us go into the house of the Lord." Hammer and saw under their arms, they came. Even the ladies helped. We rejoice.

But there is a tinge of sadness. The Israelites did not all return. Some remained in Babylon, and the liberated ones were concerned that their hearts, too, might be "stirred-up" to take advantage of the "liberation and freedom" granted. So we too are mindful of those still outside of the fold that the Lord might open their eyes and produce a godly sorrow for sin, and that they too, might accept the liberty wrought for them by Christ Jesus. Verse 6 speaks of the "precious" seed. The Gospel is precious because of its nature, value and effect. We are to "sow" it. When seed-corn is precious (high-priced) the farmer hesitates to plant it. He has but little for his own family, he "weeps" to part with it. Yet, it will increase only as planted. In faith he buries it in the ground in expectation of receiving it again with advantage.

The Lord giveth the increase. So let us sow the Word, our talents, our means, our time, knowing our own weakness, realizing the responsibility, but looking to God for the increase and blessing.

Success is certain. There are no failures in God's hervest. Our labor is not in vain in the Lord. His Word will not return void. He that goeth forth and weepeth, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his "sheaves" (plural) with him.

We appreciate the work of our Home Mission board, and we are looking forward to the time when our work will become entirely self-supporting. Our New building will accomodate approximately 400 in the auditorium. On "Dedication, ordination and reception of new members-day," Oct. 15, about 700 friends gathered. We had a loud speaker in the basement and even standing room was not available to all who came. We still need a furnace, and we know the Lord will provide it somehow. Otherwise the building is complete and is a credit to our fair city, a monument to the honor and glory of the Lord, who hath done great things for us, whereof we are glad.

Fraternally yours, Homer Leisy.

The manner of giving shows the character of the giver more than the gift itself.—Lavater.

The Church's Doom

Mrs. S. P. Preheim

Capitalism is doomed; but that is not the greatest catastrophe. The visible church as an organization also is doomed. Doom may, but does not necessarily mean destruction. It means a pronounced sentence of punishment, decreed as a penalty.

Bible students tell us that we are in the period represented by the Laodicean church of Revelation the third chapter. The Spirit of God accuses the church of this period as being "luke warm," and this is its doom. "So then because thou art luke warm, and neither cold nor hot, I will spue thee out of my mouth. v. 16. The cause for this lukewarm condition is stated in the 17th verse: "Because thou sayest, I am rich, and increased with goods, and have need of nothing." The church's material wealth has created this spirit of self-sufficiency, and robbed it of its dependence upon God. In an editorial in the "Mennonite" of Februrary 14, 1939, we read: "It is a fact that the wealth of the civilized world is largely in the hands of Christians, yet how little have they done to alleviate the suffering and want that is continually the lot of parts of the human race."

Once when Thomas Aquinas, the Medieval scholar, visited the city of Rome he was shown through all the sumptuously furnished rooms of the Papal Palace. He became almost as much impressed and dazed as was the Queen of Sheba, when she was dazzled with the riches of Solomon's Kingdom. Then the Pope remarked to him by way of pleasantry, "The church cannot say in our day, 'Silver and gold have I none.' " Aquinas at once replied "No indeed; neither can the church say now, 'In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, rise up and walk.' " The visible church which has largely catered to capitalism, is going to suffer with it. They have marched down the centuries together, they must also suffer together. How fitting that their punishment should be given over to the Christless poor, the class which has been robbed by capitalism and neglected by the church.

I fail to find one passage in the Bible where the church is commissioned to go into the world and build cathedrals, and beautiful churches, and lead in the production of art; nor even to "make the world safe for democracy." But you say, "The Mennonite church has always stood for simplicity." How about the present time? Can you tell a Mennonite church from other churches because of greater simplicity? I know of an instance, in a Mennonite church, where money gathered for missions was used to buy an expensive pulpit and piano coverings. We are told we must beautify the church in order to attract the young people, and outsiders. Draw them with glitter and shine, instead of the matchless beauty of Jesus in transformed lives; convert them to the church, with its social opportunities, instead of, to Christ, with His opportunities for service and sacrifice, has become prevalent.

Some people interpret Jesus' words, "The gates of hell shall not prevail against it," the church, to mean; that the church will always be divinely protected. Let us consider Christ's statement. The purpose of gates always has been, to permit or prevent entrance to, or exit from, a city or place. Christ speaks of the gates of hell not being able to withstand the power of the church. Christ does not say, that hell shall not prevail against the gates of the church. The church is the aggressor, not the defender in Christ's statement. Why should the church desire to force the gates of hell, either for entrance or exit? Besides, Christ is here speaking of the Church which is built upon the foundation of Jesus being, "The Christ, the Son of the living God," the Church Triumphant, and not the visible church as portrayed by the Laodicean church in Revelation chapter 3.

The Spirit of God speaking to the church says: "I will spue thee out of my mouth." That portion of the visible church, which cannot be assimilated into the "Body of Christ," will be rejected, "spuen out of His mouth." There is no alternative. It is final. He cousnels repentance and change of attitude, but His promises are to the individual, not to the church. "Behold. I stand at the door and knock: If any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me." Rev. 3:20.

The Proper Attitude for the Christian to Take

1. "That in all things He might have the pre-eminence." It is painful for a true follower of Jesus, to constantly hear or see in print, the word "church," where the word "Jesus" should be. In many Christians, the church has usurped the first place in their religious life. "Join the church," "Be true to the church," "Serve the church," "Raise money for the church," are pet phrases. If one is true to Jesus, he will be faithful and loyal to the church; for it is His institution as a MEANS OF, not OBJECT OF, worship and service. Granting Christ the pre-eminence in all things, we must also grant His right to withdraw His blessing, and protection, from the visible church, and permit it to suffer at the hands of godless people. "As many as I love, I rebuke and chasten." Rev. 3:19.

2. There is still hope for repentent individuals. "Behold I stand at the door and knock." All who permit Jesus to enter as Savior and as King, will form the invisible church, the Church Triumphant. Bless His Holy Name.

3. This is an age of opportunity, freighted with responsibility, and a challenge for zealous activity. "Go out in the highways and the hedges, and compel them to come in." Carry the gospel to the uttermost parts of the earth. Reduce the number of Christless poor. The Lord stands anxiously waiting to save souls, and add them to the invisible triumphant church; which shall be presented a "Bride without spot or blemish."

"Let us then be up and doing,
With a heart for any fate.
Still achieving, still persuing,
Learn to labor, and to wait."

According to James, chapter 5, the proper Christian attitude for these last times is, "Be patient," "establish your hearts, grudge not one against another, suffer affliction, endure, wait for the coming of the Lord, sing psalms, and pray for the sick, for the sinner, for one another."—"The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much."

Humility

by Harleigh M. Rosenberger
Student at Divinity School, Rochester, N. Y.

"And what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God." Micah 6:8.

An outstanding Christian virtue is humility. It is the attitude of the Christian approach to God. It portrays the relationship that should exist among Christian brethren. It blesses the giver and the one who receives. It is the boon companion of love; its antipodal is pride. " . . . be clothed with humility: for God resisteth the proud, and giveth grace to the humble." I Peter 5:5.

Christianity is divided on many issues. The factional supporters of these issues believe with equal degree in their own revelation. Few honestly try to understand their fellowman. Humility is crowded out as righteous pride seeps in; antagonism becomes victor. The love of God for human souls is forgotten because the workmen in His vineyard are fighting among themselves. "Ye blind guides, which strain at a gnat, and swallow a camel." Matt. 23:24.

The world is bleeding for Christ on Calvary; the heart of God is bleeding for the world. Christianity stands divided. The Mennonite Church has been greatly stunted in its growth because of the divisions within it. Who is to be accountable to God? Are we not responsible? We, because we did not approach God and our fellowman with humility, realizing that our imperfect minds might not have caught the full import of God's revelation. We filled our hearts with foolish pride because we thought we had all the Light.

God has revealed Himself to men but men, in their weakness, have not been able to receive His full message. Surely, the Luther who turned on his peasant supporters did not have full revelation; neither did the Calvin who assassinated Servetus. May we, as we pour over God's Word, feel humble before Him and then, in deepest humility seek to preach the Gospel, realizing we may differ on details but resolved to love each other as we work together for the glory of God. May Jesus not be speaking to us as he says, "Woe unto you . . . for ye shut up the kingdom of heaven against men."

PARABLES OF THE KINGDOM

Matt. 13:3-8, 31-33, 44-46

Introduction

A parable is a figure of speech, a short invented story, true to life, in which commonly observed facts and objects are used to illustrate religious truths more plainly and clearly to the hearer's minds. Truth, when put into this form, could be more readily remembered—one large reason for our use of illustrations and stories. In our lesson Jesus uses a fine series of pictures to tell us what the kingdom is like. These all have to do with life and so does the kingdom, our religion.

Four Kinds of Soil vs 3-8

Jesus represents himself as a sower of the good seed. Any one who proclaims the gospel is sowing good seed, He likens the soil of the human heart to four different kinds of soil. The response to the sowing of the seed—the gospel—varies since hearts are not all alike. Some (v4) are like the well-trodden pathway across the field, on which the seed had no possible chance to take root and grow. In heart soil of this kind there is no receptivity for God's Word and religious truths. Such person's hearts have become so hardened that spiritual truth makes no impression and their minds are closed.

Others (v 5, 6) are like thin soil on rocky ground where seed may spring up soon but it can not root deeply and soon withers under the hot sun. Many people have a shallow nature and are impulsive. They hear the gospel, their emotions are aroused, but not the great depths of the will. They become very enthusiastic and perhaps even get converted. However, the gospel has not rooted deeply and in the hot sun of unexpected character and faith testing, their enthusiasm withers. Convictions were too shallow.

Others (v 7) are like the rich, promising, but much pre-occupied soil. The seed takes good root, the Word is received and takes some hold on the will, but so large a place is given to the affairs of life, its business, pleasures, and little time is given to nurturing the spiritual life. These cares and duties—probably not evil in themselves—become evil when they choke out the spiritual life.

Growth of the Kingdom vs 31-33

The parable of the mustard seed (vs 31, 32) shows the marvelous growth of the kingdom from very small beginnings. The tiny mustard seed growing into trees, sometimes fifteen fet high, well illustrates the growth of the body of Christian believers. From the small group of despised disciples of Jesus, has grown the world-encircling body of His followers. In his work, small beginnings may and do lead to large results.

The parable of the leaven (v33) shows the power of the gospel in human lives. It portrays the inner transforming character of the gospel as it penetrates and permeates invisibly and gradually—like leaven penetrates the meal—the whole life. It can transform and does transform, the whole social and religious atmosphere and life of a community.

The Treasure and the Pearl vs 44-46

These two parables teach the surpassing value of salvation through Christ and that when persons realize its value. they are willing to part with all else to receive it. God's grace in the heart is a priceless possession. He himself is the Pearl of great price and it is no hardship to give up all others for Him.

To the Western District Conference Churches

The Board of Trustees of the Western District Conference desires to call the attention of the churches of this Conference to two resolutions that were adopted at its recent session. They read as follows:

I. In view of the fact that the printing of the minutes costs at an average about fifty cents per conference vote, and in view of the fact that the minutes are sent to each congregation in the Conference, we recommend, that each congregation hold at least one offering a year for the general fund of the treasury of the Conference to take care of the current expenses.

2. Since the Church Building Treasury is in debt and inquiries have come for further loans, we recommend, that our churches send in substantial annual contributions to this treasury.

Concerning the first resolution we wish to remind the churches that the minutes of the last Conference session are to be printed shortly and that the bills for the printing will have to be paid. If each one of our congregations sends in an offering, the current expenses can be met, even though the offerings are not large.

We plead for larger offerings for the Church Building Treasury, so that we can pay for the Enid Church Building.

Please send all contributions for above purposes to the Conference treasurer, Mr. Paul W. Bartsch, Newton, Kansas.

With hearty thanks for your cooperation, in the name of the Western District Conference Board of Trustees,

P. P. Wedel, Chairman.
D. J. Goering, Secretary

—The Medical Staff of the Bethel Clinic, Newton, Kansas, has been increased by the addition of Dr. John W. Hertzler, first cousin of the recently deceased Dr. A. E. Hertzler and second cousin of the illustrious Dr. A. E. Hertzler, who has become widely known through his book "Horse and Buggy Doctor."

More Information Regarding the New German Hymn Book

Informations regarding the new German Hymn Book for the Mennonite Church have published repeatedly in the German Mennonite periodicals; but very little in our English papers.—Besides the notes by the editor of the "Mennonite," a short article regarding this matter appeared recently in the "Mennonite" by Rev. John G. Rempel of Rosthern, Sask., the secretary of the German Hymn Book Commission.—Upon request I shall add some further information.

Just like it was deemed necessary to have a new Hymn Book for the Mennonite Church in the English language, it was deemed necessary to also have a new Hymn Book in the German language. This need was felt especially in the Mennonite Churches of Canada. The first public intimation regarding this matter was made in 1933 at one of our Canadian Mennonite Conferences. In the mean time this subject was discussed privately. And at our Canadian Conference in 1935 it was discussed publicly and it was then resolved to have a new Hymn Book published, when also a "Gesangbuch-Kommission" was elected, which has since been doing preparatory work, and reported at each of the annual conferences.—It was the desire and the understanding that this new Hymn Book should be published by the Board of Publication of the Mennonite General Conference of North America.—At the conference in 1937 the "Gesangbuch-Kommission" was re-organized, which then continued the work and was able to finish it and send the manuscript of it to the Board of Publication in June, 1939. June, 1939.

This undertaking and this work was no easy job, which the Commission for the English Hymn Book will best understand.—Special credit belongs to Rev. John G. Rempel and Mr. D. H. Paetkau, both of Rosthern, Sask., who have very diligently been doing the main work in further selecting and copying the words and the tunes of the selected hymns.

This Hymn Book is especially published for the German Churches of the General Conference of Mennonites in Canada. But it is hoped and desired that it might also be adopted by the German Churches of the General Conference of Mennonites in the U. S. A., as well as by the other branches of Mennonites in Canada and elsewhere, so that it may become in reality an uniform Hymn Book, or a Common Book of Praise, for all German Mennonite Churches in North and South America.

This new German Hymn Book has 550 songs, most of them with notes; very similar to the old "Gesangbuch mit Noten."— Up to date 1980 copies of this Hymn Book have been ordered, and $846.50 part-payments have been received, and more orders are expected.—It is hoped that this new German Hymn Book can be published soon and be ready early in the New Year.

Sixth Joint Conference of Mennonites Schwenkfelders, Brethren and Friends

First Church of the Brethren, Philadelphia, Pa.
December 4th, 1939

GENERAL THEME: "Our Common Fellowship"

With thanksgiving for the universal love of God, we rejoice to find ourselves knit together in our personal allegiance to our Lord Jesus Christ as the only Savior of men. And with a simple faith depending upon the regenerative power of God rather than upon humanistic efforts or mechanical means of Grace for the constant expression of an humble, equitable and peaceful life, we wish to gather together to meditate and to exhort ourselves "as the Spirit gives us utterance;" also to pray that we may share with every creature the Gospel, even as our Lord commanded.

PROGRAM

Chairman for the Day—Nevin H. Zuck, Pastor of Bethany Church of the Brethren, Philadelphia, Pa.

Afternoon Session—4 p.m.—Devotional Period.
Meeting open for discussion as directed by the Holy Spirit.

Theme: "The Church in a World of Confusion."

Summation of the concerns of the meeting—Freeman H. Swartz, Pastor of Eden Mennonite Church, Schwenksville, Pa.

Social Hour and Supper—6 p.m.—Supper will be served by the Ladies of the Church for 60 cents.

Evening Session—7:30 p.m. — Address— "Christ for the Crisis" by Alfred C. Garrett, Minister and member of the Respresentative Meeting of Friends.

Note—The Church is on Dauphin St., one-half block west of Broad Street. It is easily reached by the Broad Street Subway to the Susquehanna-Dauphin Station. Dauphin Street is 2300 North from Market Street.

GOLGOTHA

Our crosses are hewn from different trees,
But we all must have our Calvaries;
We may climb the height from a different side,
But we each go up to be crucified;
As we scale the steep another may share
The dreadful load that our shoulders bear,
But the costliest sorrow is all our own —
For on the summit we bleed alone.

—Frederich L. Knowles

When Did You Last Talk With Christ?

Do stop and answer this question to yourself before your read on.

It is easy to go to services, and to listen to prayers, and to join in them. It is easy to sing to Him with others, or to think we are doing so because we feel refreshed and helped by it. But what if it should turn out that it was a mistake of ours to imagine that we were actually conversing personally with Him at those times; and that we were really only talking or singing for other people and ourselves to hear? I tremble for people who only pray in churches, or at prayer-meetings, or with other Christians present. Meetings are blessed helps and means of grace; but they are not necessarily conversations with Christ; nor is preaching, or teaching, or working for Him. You may be a most religious person—busy all day long about God's matters; you may give time and money and thought to Him, and yet you may never converse with him. And the danger is that if you do not converse with Him alone each day you will get thoroughly on the wrong road, and wrong altogether; and that when you and He meet you will see all your work burnt up, and yourself saved as a brand plucked from the burning. It will be a dreadful surprise to you that nothing should remain of all the work on which you spent your life. The solemn words, "Without Me ye can do nothing," had been forgotten by you.

He meant that you should have talked to Him continually about everything you did, and everything you cared about, and should have been always conscious of His sympathy and oversight and working. But instead of that you talked only to men and women, and made shift with their sympathy and advice and help. He meant you to have asked His counsel about that money trouble. He would have arranged it all; but you only asked your lawyer, and it turned out badly. He meant you to have told Him your anxieties about your son, and He would have ended them; but you only consulted your friend, and matters got worse and worse. He meant you to have asked Him for light about that doctrine which you could not understand; but you went to books to get it explained, and you became more uncertain than before. He would have satisfied you. He meant you to have confessed to Him that secret sin, and He would have forgiven you and cleansed you; but you confessed it only to your minister, and it torments you this hour. He meant you to have committed to Him that painful illness; but you have trusted your family doctor only, and get no relief. He meant you to have asked Him how much money you were to give away; but you settled that yourself, and settled it wrongly. He would have been your Counsellor about the profession you chose, the situation you accepted, the servant you engaged, the books you read, the friendships you formed; but you chose other counsellors, or did after your own choosing, and all has been failure. A conversation with Jesus each day will make all the difference. Are you on speaking terms with Him?

> "Speak to HIM then for He hears,
> And spirit with spirit shall meet.
> Closer is He than breathing,
> And nearer than hands and feet."

The Mountain Lake Bible School

In its interesting history of fifty or more years, this school has done much for the upbuilding of spiritual life and Christian character in the Mennonite Youth of that community and is continuing the blessed work. It is the only community Bible school among our people that is still maintaining its erstwhile place and prestige, with an enrollment of about 70. In this school many young lives received the stimulus that inspired and helped them become valuable workers in the church, Sunday School, C. E., the mission field and even the Christian ministry.

After having passed through several changes, the school was reorganized in 1936, and its curriculum re-adjusted by eliminating secular subjects and substituting more Bible courses and related studies. The catalog states the purpose of the school to be as follows:

a. To acquaint the student thoroughly with the Word of God.—b. To lead the student to the knowledge of the Lord Jesus Christ as his personal Savior.—c. To create in the student a longing for more intimate fellowship with the Lord.—d. To train the young people attending for active participation in the Sunday School.—e. To cultivate appreciation for the church and respect for Christian principles.—Mennonite principles receive careful attention.— f. To return the student to his home church, a better Christian and a more effective worker.

Persons having finished the eight grade or are sixteen years or older are admitted. The tuition is $3.00 a month. The school has three programs on its calendar: the Christmas program, December 19; the school program, February 15; and the closing program, March 28. Invitations from the churches to serve with programs on Sunday nights, are gladly accepted, as this gives opportunity to bring the school before the public.

In its curriculum covering two years, the school offers: Bible History, Old and New Testament; Biblical Introduction, Christian Principles, Old Testament Synthesis, Biblical Psychology, Christian Ethics, Bible Doctrine, Bible Geography, Personal Evangelism, Harmony of the Gospels, Homiletics, Church History, Missions, S. S. Pedagogy, S. S. Administration, Child Study, Book Study, Public Speaking and Composition, English, German, Notation and Chorus.

Who pleads a handicap remembering these?

—Violet Alleyn Storey.

WHY NOT?

As we again remember the incarnation of the peace of God, which passeth all understanding, why not emphasize peace in our Christmas programs? Certainly peace has become too limited in meaning. War is not its opposite, but rather conflict. War is armed conflict. Striving for peace should mean the elimination of conflict in one's own being, and in one's relations with God and one's fellow-men. Public school teachers and Sunday school teachers are you looking for Christmas program material? Much good material can be gotten from the National Council for Prevention of War, 532—17th St., Washington, D. C. Some of this material is free.

Why not give peace booklets and books as Christmas presents? Suggested booklets: Pacifist Handbook, Christian Peace—Four Hundred Years of Mennonite Principles and Practice by Smith, Christian Peace—New Testament Peace Teachings Outside the Gospels by Bohn, How To Keep America Out of War by Kirby Page, and Pacifist Program by Richard B. Gregg. MUST WE GO TO WAR by Kirby Page ($1.00) and SWORDS AND PLOWSHARES, History of the American Friends Service Committee, by Mary Hoxie Jones ($3.00) should prove useful books. For a list of other books see appendix of Pacifist Handbook. The pacifist magazine, Fellwship, can be gotten for $1.00 per year from 2929 Broadway, New York.

THIS AND THAT

SENTENCE SERMON: "We are not what we think we are—but what we think, we are."—Gospel Music.

Rev. Olin Krehbiel suggests that the title of the youth's section be changed. Have you any suggestions? If you do, please, send them to the editor of "Our Youth Says."

Don't forget that if you want to read news in these pages, you should be willing to contribute some. So far John Fretz has been our most faithful contributor.

According to tentative arrangements Dr. E. L. Harshbarger will give the lecture, "The Christian Faces War" to a joint-meeting in the First Mennonite Church, Beatrice, Nebr., on Friday evening, Dec. 15th. Sunday morning, Dec. 17th, he is scheduled to deliver a peace sermon there. On Sunday afternoon of that same date he will conduct an open discussion on peace in the Second Mennonite Church of Beatrice. In the same church he will in the evening give his lecture on "The Mennonites in Holland." If possible he will show one reel of picturs taken in Holland.

LET US MEDITATE

Matt. 5:1-3. "And seeing the multitude Jesus went up into the mountain and when he had sat down, those who were ready to learn from him came unto him and he opened his mouth and taught them."

Jesus shunned crowds because He seemed to feel that the spirit of the average crowd was not a good atmosphere in which either to learn or to teach.

He was willing to make small beginnings for the purpose of getting greater results and, therefore, spent the greater part of three years teaching a dozen men.

It takes folks who are willing to learn in order to make progress.

Father, we thank Thee that we need not submit to the lure or delusion of endless crowds. We thank Thee for the assurance of Jesus that small beginnings may have great results when men approach the opportunities presented to them with a willingness to learn the deeper meanings of life. And we pray Thee for the guidance of Thy spirit both for courage and for faith to follow His suggestions.—Thoughts Along the Way of Life by J. H. Langenwalter.

GOOD TIDINGS

Senior C. E. Topic for December 24, 1939

MAIN TOPIC: Good Tidings of Great Joy. Luke 2:1-11

I. Worship Service:

1. Songs: A series of Christmas carols
2. Reading of main topic, and prayer.

3. More Christmas carols.

II. Leader's Introduction

What is there in the alchemy of Christmas which changes the dull metal of everyday living into the shining gold of life at it was meant to be, full of joy and beauty and mutual appreciation? Is it not that at this time of the year humanity has a fleeting glimpse of the things which make life worthwhile—kindness, sympathy, and generosity?

III. Suggested topics for short talks:

1. The song of the angels Luke 2.
2. The gift of the wise men Matt. 2.
3. The adoration of the shepherds, Luke 2.
4. The love of the heavenly Father John 3:16.

IV. Instead of the discussion a series of short beautiful Christmas poems or verses like the following:

"There's a song in the air!
There's a star in the sky!
There's a mother's deep prayer and a baby's low cry!
And the star rains its fire while the beautiful sing,
For the manger of Bethlehem cradles a King."

V. For Study

"On the night that to us is Christmas Eve, the Wise Men were riding over the desert sands somewhere. Perchance for them the trail had started from some lone, high peak in the Persian mountains where nightly they sat and watched the stars and where they had first seen the star that had captured their imagination and challenged their FAITH.

Those Wise Men rode in faith. What questions they must have asked! Could they be sure this was the one star among millions to follow? The prophecies they had read came from the book of an old, not very glorious people. And why should they, the wise, ride to worship a king who might never be theirs? And if they found him, would he be worth the finding? The way was long and treacherous over bandit-ridden trails. Was it worth the risk?

Questions without answer. Doubts without assurance. Yet there they were—kings ni the dessert.

O Wise Men, yours was the wisdom our world needs very much just now. You did not stop to argue, to weigh emotion in the scales of intellect. You gave no room to fears and doubts. Serenely you rode out upon the faith that He who sent the star would not fail to provide the King. The stars had never yet failed you. The star would not fail you now.

I think I should like to promise myself this Christmas Eve to be henceforth wise with the wisdom of the Eastern sages. So much of today I do not understand. Our groping, reaching, and battling for security bring us no nearer to one another, to peace, to safety, to abundance, or to God; only nearer to greater doubts, to greater distance from him. Let me resolve tonight to act more swiftly upon the promises of God; those hopes and dreams that shine like stars in my heart. Let me, too, find my King at the end of my faith."

VI. Illustrations

A strange old Christmas legend is found in different countries of Europe. According to this tale a busy housewife was cleaning her home when she heard a knock at the door. It was the three wise Men, asking the way to Bethlehem. They invited the woman, to go with them and bring her gifts to the Christ child. The busy housewife hesitated. She really wanted to see the wonderful Child, but she hated to leave her work. She told the Wise Men to go ahead. She would finish her cleaning and soon catch up with them.

So the Wise Men went on, and the housewife finished her sweeping. She didn't stop until every single speck of lint and dust was gone. Then she caught up a toy or two and still holding her broom hurried after the Wise Men. She was too late to find them. No matter how she searched, she never did discover either the Wise Men or the Christ child. According to the tale, every Christmas since then the busy house wife walks through Europe. She still carries her broom and toys, she still is searching for the Wise Men and the Christ child. Since she cannot find the Christ child, she does the next best thing and gives her toys to children who need and deserve them.

There is quite a moral in this curious old legend. Aren't we all too much oncerened with the petty details of life? We neglect the Christ child while we worry about things like dusting and sweeping. It is true that work must be done, but can anything be more important than finding the Christ child? He comes before everything else. The legend of the busy housewife is a warning to us, but she is a good example. Since she could not give her presents to the Christ child, she gave them to other small children. Is there any better way of observing Christmas? In giving to children in need was the woman not really giving to the Christ child?

VII. Food for thought.

"The blessing of the Christmastide be ours today, and through the coming years."

CALL HIS NAME JESUS

Topic for Intermediate C. E. for Dec. 24, 1939

For Daily Reading:

Dec. 18. The Savior of the world. John 4:39-42.
Dec. 19. Salvation in no other. Acts 4:5-12.
Dec. 20. Came to take away sin. I John 3:5-8.
Dec. 21. Came to give life. John 10:10-18.
Dec. 22. A king. John 18:33-37.
Dec. 23. To him every knee should bow. Phil. 2:5-11.
Dec. 24. "Thou Shalt Call His Name Jesus. Matt. 1:18-25.

A Thousand Years Have Come

A thousand years have come and gone,
And near a thousand more,
Since happier light from heaven shone
Than ever shone before,
And in the hearts of old and young
A joy most joyful stirred,
That sent such news from tongue to tongue
As ears had never heard.

And we are glad, and we will sing,
As in the days of yore;
Come all, and hearts made ready bring,
To welcome back once more
The day when first on wintry earth
A summer change began,
And, dawning in a lowly of birth,
Uprose the Light of man.

Carol: "The First Noel"

Study of Daily References.

1. John 4:39-42. They accepted Him as the world's Savior, because they had experienced His saving power in their own case. Additional references to be read on this thought: John 1:29; John 3:16, 17; John 6:37; John 12:47; I John 4:14.

2. John 10:10-18. (Have this passage read by your very best reader.) "Christ's death is the result of a voluntary impulse springing from Christ's love for lost mankind."

Carol: "It came upon the midnight Clear"

Period of Meditation.

Have each member think of what he has done or is doing to make this a Merry Christmas for someone outside of the family. Perhaps it will still occur to some members to make a visit to a Shut-in or to give a cheery greeting to a neighbor or friend.

Leader—Close this period with a real challenge to service.

Superintendent—Take this opportunity to spur your Intermediates on to a closer fellowship with Christ.

Carol: "Joy to the World"

Carol Sing: If at all possible have your Society conduct or join in a Carol Sing at the homes of such who may not be able to attend any Christmas service.

Wherever your closing service is conducted, close with the singing of the Carol "O Come, All Ye Faithful"

Postlude: "O Come, All Ye Faithful"

In His death He is a sacrifice, satisfying for our sins; in the resurrection, a conqueror; in the ascension a king; in the intercession, a high priest.—Luther.

JUNIOR CORNER

IF HE HAD NOT COME

It was Christmas Eve, and after Bobby had carefully hung his stocking by the fireplace he went off to bed. Usually Bobby did not like to go to bed early, but tonight he was eager to get to sleep so as to be sure to wake up early to see his gifts.

For their daily Bible lesson that day Bobby and his father had read Jesus' own words to his friends, found in John 15:22. Five words had stayed in Bobby's mind, and he kept saying them over and over until he fell asleep. These were the words: "If I had not come."

It seemed as if he had not been asleep any time when a cross harsh voice said: "Get up! Get up, I tell you!"

Thinking about the skates he wanted, and the flashlight, and the motor, and the books for which he'd been wishing, Bobby got up and hurried into his clothes and went downstairs. But all was still. No one was there to greet him; no stocking hung beside the fireplace; no wreaths were in the windows; no splendid tree was there.

Hurrying to the door, Bobby looked down the street. The factory was open, and he grabbed his cap and sweater and raced down the street to the factory door, and there stood a grim-looking foreman.

"Why is the factory running on Christmas?" asked Bobby.

"Christmas?" asked the man. "What do you mean? I never heard that word. This is one of our busy days, so clear out!"

Filled with wonder, Bobby hurried on down the street toward the stores, and to his amazement he found them all open. The grocer, the dry-goods man, the baker—each one was busy and cross, and each said in reply to his question: "Christmas? What's Christmas?"

When Bobby tried to explain, "It's Jesus' birthday, and the first part of the word 'Christmas' means Jesus," he was gruffly ordered to move along, as this was "a very busy day."

Going around the corner, he thought, "I'll go to church, our own church, for there's to be a Christmas service there." All at once Bobby stopped short before a big vacant field, and he mumbled to himself: "I guess I'm lost. I was certain our church was here. I know it was." Then he noticed a signboard in the center of the big, vacant lot, and on going nearer to it he read the words, "If I had not come."

Suddenly the meaning of it all dawned on the puzzled boy.

He was wandering along in a gloomy way, when he thought of the box of toys and games his class had sent to the Orphans' Home, and he said half aloud, "I guess I'll go up to the home and see the children get their presents." But when Bobby reached the place, instead of seeing the name of the home over the gateway. he read those same five words, "If I had not come," and beyond the archway there was no fine building.

Seenig an old man, feeble and ill, by the roadside, Bobby said: "I guess you're sick mister. I'll run to the hospital and tell them to send an ambulance for you." But when he reached the grounds no splendid buildings were to be seen, nothing but signs and posters bearing the words, "If I had not come." As Bobby hurried back to the corner where the Rescue Mission had been, he said, "I'm sure they'll take the poor old man in here, anyway." But men with angry faces were gambling and swearing, and over the door Bobby saw, instead of the name of the mission, those same words, "If I had not come."

Still thinking about the poor old man, Bobby hurried home to ask his father and mother to help him. On his way across the living room he stopped to look up in a Bible those words, "If I had not come." Turning past all the pages of the Old Testament, he found that there was no New Testament. After Malachi all the pages were blank, and as held them up to h ligh on etuhwifewmt,aMhFflDoyet-e:faith.fiu r to the light on each sheet he could see a faint outline of the words, "If I had not come."

With a sigh Bobby said, "Oh, what a terrible world this is! No Christmas, no churches, no homes for little orphan children, no hospitals, no rescue missions, no almshouses, nothing but jails, and gambling places, and police patrols, and sickness, and—"

Just then there came the sound of bells. The chimes were playing. Bobby listened, and sure enough, it was his favorite hymn, "Joy to the Word! The Lord Is Come," and he heard his mother's cheerful voice saying, "Merry Christmas, Bobby!"

With a joyous bound Bobby was out of bed. Kneeling down, he said, "O Lord Jesus, I thank you that you did come; and I'll show you how thankful I am by always trying to be the kind of boy I know you want me to be."

Hark from the Tombs a Doleful Sound

The New York Times report for Oct. 27 says, "The spectre of a revival of Prohibition stalked at the convention dinner last evening when Representative John J. Cochran, who took a leading part in the fight for repeal, warned the brewers at their convention at Pittsburg, October 26, that there were "omninous clouds on the horizon!"

Only by "concentrating efforts upon the removal of abuses that have been accumulating in the retail branch of the trade could the brewers hope to escape the return of national prohibition," he warned. Continuing his lashing of the liquor abuses he said, "There are at least five million sharp shooters sniping at you. In the last analysis public opinion will judge you on your merits and render its verdict accordingly."

"Organizations that represent the public welfare—particularly of children and youth—are complaining that all is not well in the distribution and retail end of the trade. Many citizens strongly opposed to the principles of prohibition are voicing similar complaints." "There are disquieting reports of a train of evils, I do not need to tell you what they are. You know—you come in daily contact with them. You realize they are threatening. You know they are creating a hostile public opinion against you.

"You must find the cause of the present unrest against your industry—you must locate the source of the infection. You can save your industry by keeping the retail end of your industry clean and respectable, and by yourselves avoiding sharp trade practices prohibited by law."

Asserting that the threat of the new prohibition movement was very real, Mr. Cochran warned that unless the retail end of the industry was cleaned "of indecent and obnoxious elements, there will be strong agitation in Congress for submission of another prohibition amendment. I advise you to get busy. Take the initiative. Remove the cause of public irritation. Don't satisfy yourselves by talking about the bad conditions. Act, act swiftly and vigorously." Repent for the kingdom of Prohibition is at hand!

Imagine such an address being delivered at a convention of Milk producers, a shoe dealers' convention, wholesale Grocers Association, or at a convention of dry goods manufacturers! The liquor industry carries the seeds of its own destruction in the inherent character of the traffic which demoralizes everything it touches, and degrades every place of distribution and sale called by whatever name. It is not the place that demoralizes the liquor; but the liquor that demoralizes the place! Some of our post repeal "drug stores" are worse than the old-time bar rooms, and there are "groceries" in Washington that smell fire and brimstone. You may call the saloon a sanctuary, the bar a mourners' bench, the liquor dispenser a doctor of divinity, and you will have the same old devil still. So John warns the brewers, clean your Augean stables or prepare for the Flood! "He that sitteth in the heavens shall laugh; The Lord shall have them in derision." . . . "The Lord shall laugh at him; for he seeth that his day is coming." . . . "I have seen the wicked in great power, spreading himself like a green bay tree. Yet he passed away, and lo, he was not; yet, I sought him, but he could not be found. For the transgressors shall be destroyed together; the end of the wicked shall be cut off."—Twentieth Century Progress.

Ham and Eggs

Many of us will remember that at recent elections two of our states, Ohio and California, voted on old-age pension amendments to their constitutions. The plans provided good sized incomes from the coffers of the respective state treasuries for old people for the rest of their days. In California the campaign caused all the more agitation, because this was the second time that the people were called upon to vote on such a measure which this time called for a weekly dole of $30.00, dubbed as a "Ham and Egg" proviso. A good brother from that state writes as follows on the subject on which he advances some sound logic.

"THE ELECTION is over. The inevitable victories and disappointments are registered. Ham and Eggs took a good licking. It could hardly have been otherwise. It was opposed by President Roosevelt and Governor Olson, by all the daily papers, big business and little, all the banks, and such leaders as Upton Sinclair and Dr. Townsend. The economists were against it and so were school officials, service clubs and parent-teachers organizations. In view of the opposition, it is surprising that the proposed Amendment still polled nearly a million votes.

But the election solved no problem. It only averted a dangerous experiment. The problem of unemployment and relief is still with us. The solution apparently is not Ham and Eggs but an old age pension paid in real money, in a reasonable amount, on a nation-wide scale. There must be work for those who can work, for life degenerates in idleness. Let the practical politicians continue to study our great social problem and present a plan with horse sense. It is the only way to stop Ham and Eggs."

Extract from Report of North Central Association about Bethel College

"Bethel College is distinctly a product of the Mennonites in this area of the United States. This is clearly shown by its organization and control. The confidence the Mennonites hold in the college is reflected by the fact that 70.9% of the present study body is of the Mennonite faith. Six years ago Mennonite students composed only 54% of the student body. It is clear that, as a Mennonite institution, Bethel College has a large and substantial constituency. The faculty and the Mennonite constituency look upon service in this Mennonite college very much as they do upon service in churches of the Mennonite faith. Indeed teaching is, in their eyes, a mission work. It is as mission work that the college presents its cause to its constituency, and to some degree, therefore, the actual work of these teachers comes very close to the contributive service of religious teachers of Catholic colleges."

Board of Publication in Need of More Cash

The Board of Publication is very anxious to get the new Hymn Book out as early as it is humanly possible, and many of our churches want the book just as badly.

Our Board has felt that we should have about $3000.00 ready cash before giving the order for the making of the book. To obtain this fund we have repeatedly appealed to the churches to send in their annual gifts for the work of publication or, if they chose, for help with the Hymn Book.

As the gifts have been coming in rather slowly so far, we find it necessary to use other plans to get the money still lacking, as 1) for churches to order new Hymn Books ahead and pay for them, whole or in part, now, or 2) to send (loan) our treasury any sum they may choose, for which they agree to take books as soon as they are ready.

Or, may we make this plea to members of our conference who are well-to-do, to loan us such sums of money as they may see fit, for little or no interest, with our promise that it will be repaid from the sale of books.

The amount still needed to make $3000.00 is about $1600.00.

One church with great faith in God and those who have prepared the new Hymn Book has sent in a check for $300.00 for as many books as this will buy. Who will be next?

Send all money intended for the work of the Board of Publication and for the song book to: E. W. BAUMGARTNER, BERNE, INDIANA.

For the Board of Publication, J. R. Thierstein, Chm.

CORRESPONDENCE

MENNONITE CHURCH, WOLF POINT, MONT.

A Ladies' Aid meeting had been planned at 11 o'clock in the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. Zerbe. Upon our arrival it was found that this had been turned into a farewell for the pastor and wife, Rev. and Mrs. Noah Unruh, who had resigned after a service of 6 months as student pastor, in order to obtain more training. The church showed its appreciation by providing a large dinner, good program, and an offering to the pastor.

On November 2, the church had a blessed time, the neighboring churches spending a day with us. This was the program: In the morning the pastor gave his farewell message. In the afternoon the Annual Harvest Festival was observed. Special music was rendered by all the churches, and the Reverends Albert Ewert, George Janzen and the pastor gave short messages. In the evening Rev. Janzen with the Lustre Bible class rendered a program. Dinner was served by the local churches. The day was greatly enjoyed.

We want to thank every one for the donations received during the day for our behalf. We have certainly enjoyed our work here. Will the readers of the Mennonite pray for us and note our change of address for the present, from Wolf Point, Montana, to Durham, Kansas.— Noah Unruh.

ST. JOHN CHURCH, PANDORA, OHIO

Parsonage Dediaction.—Members and friends of St. John Mennonite church met at the parsonage recently purchased by the church for a service of dedication of the parsonage on last Sunday afternoon at 2:30 P. M. The following program was carried out:

Singing by the assembled guests of the hymn "Holy, Holy, Holy" was followed by the singing of "Faith of our Fathers." Mr. Milford Haas, deacon, and Menno Schumacher, trustee, then led in prayer. The pastor, Rev. D. J. Unruh, read the 24th Psalm. Mr. Manes Gerber, deacon, and chairman of the church council, spoke briefly on "The Purpose of the Parsonage." After this the congregation, led by the pastor, repeated a service of dedication and the pastor led in a dedicatory prayer. Henrietta Schneck sang the solo, "Bless This House." After repeating the last verse of Psalm 19 the service was concluded.

After the dedication service the congregation remained as the guests of Rev. and Mrs. Unruh, who had open house.

Between 125 and 150 guests viewed the home and enjoyed the refreshments served. Misses Henrietta Schneck, Arvilla Geiger, Magdalene Amstutz and Lela Steiner assisted in serving the refreshments.

BETHLEHEM CHURCH, BLOOMFIELD, MONT.

Last spring crop prospects were good till the migratory grasshoppers began to hatch. The farmers spread large quantities of poison but in some cases the poison could be obtained only after it was too late and conesquently some fields were destroyed until they looked as if freshly ploughed. During the summer the remaining crop grew so fast that the grasshoppers couldn't eat it. They migrated toward the end of July, so many farmers have gotten a good crop.

Since last April our church has been very well attended and has kept up many activities, due to our new pastor Rev. Herbert E. Widmer, formerly of Dallas, Oregon. At present our activities consist of regular Sunday School, and morning worship, regular monthly missionary services, children's church at least one evening a month, Christian Endeavor every first Sunday evening of the month, and a choir. During October we observed Harvest Festival, Ladies' Aid Missionary sale, and also Holy Communion, a week following the baptism of ten young people. Our annual business meeting was held on October 31. Since our state is observing Nov. 23 as Thanksgiving Day, we will then have morning service and a special program in the evening. On the whole our Thanksgiving Day here will be very fittingly and sincerely observed, for we owe the Lord many thanks for all the good things he has given us this past year.—Harry Sawatzky.

APOSTOLIC MENN. CH., TRENTON, O. 11-21-39

As the Thanksgiving Season approaches we have much for which to be thankful. And if we would go by our many blessings, we would be surprised how long the list would be.

Our church had special services on Sunday, November 19th, at which time Mite Boxes were returned and a generous Thank Offering was received. This service was sponsered by The Missionary Society, and we had the pleasure of having Mr. E. W. Baumgartner of Berne, Indiana, with us, who gave us an inspiring message on "Men and Missions." He also brought with him four young men from his Sunday School Class, and they gave us their message in song. Every one appreciated Mr. Baumgartner's message and the Quartet.

November 12th, the Girl's Gospel Team from Bluffton College gave us a delightful program, which the Young People of our church sponsered.—The Choir, under the direction of Mrs. Howe, together with the young people of the Church and Sunday School are now preparing a Cantata for the Christmas season.

We regret to report, Mrs. J. E. Amstutz met with a very painful accident on her return home from the East. Several weeks ago Mr. and Mrs. Bowlus, accompanied by Rev. and Mrs. Amstutz visited Washington, D. C., and vicinity, and after spending a most delightful week, on their return home they stopped at a Filling Station, where Mrs. Amstutz slipped on the wet pavement, breaking her left limb in two places, just below the knee and near the ankle. It happened near the C. & O. Hospital in Viriginia, where she was given immediate attention, and, after having the limb set she was able to be brought home by rail the following day. She is getting along as well as can be expected. However, she will be laid up for many weeks, and we miss her so much in all our church activities.—Lydia A. Augsburger.

ZION MENN. CHURCH, DONNELLSON, IOWA

Sunday, Nov. 19, the members of this church met for a special celebration to give thanks and to "worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness." After having met for four weeks in the basement of the church while the interior was being redecorated, we assembled again in the church auditorium for a service which had a double significance. It was the day set aside for the annual observance of Harvest Home Sunday. With truely thankful hearts for the blessings of a bountiful harvest the congregation could sing:

> Come ye thankful people, come,
> Raise the song of harvest home;
> All is safely gathered in,
> Ere the winter storms begin;
> God, our Maker doth provide
> For our wants to be supplied;
> Come to God's own temple, come,
> Raise the song of harvest home.

While the thought expressed in this song was an important part of our worship, it was not the central idea which engaged us during the day. Our thoughts were led beyond our material needs to our spiritual needs, and beyond our own spiritual needs to the needs of those who are without Christ in this and in other lands. We felt privileged and were richly blessed through the presence of Missionary John Thiessen, who challenged us both in the morning and in the afternoon with the great cause of missions. He impressed upon the audience India's pressing need, and the church's relation to that need.

Of further significance to the congregation was the rededication service which followed Brother Thiessen's sermon. The interior of the church having been beautifully redecorated, it was appropriate that it should be re-dedicated to the Lord's service. This was done through a responsive reading in which the minister and the congregation participated. Let me quote from this responsive reading the last response made by the people: "To the training of children in faith and character; to the summoning of youth to serviceable living; to the cure of souls that doubt and the persuasion of those that have not yet believed; to the comfort of the discouraged, the relief of the distressed, the consecration of the strong, the guidance of the bewildered and the consolation of the dying; to the enobling of this life and to confidence in life eternal, we re-dedicate this house."

For the noon meal all gathered in the basement of the church for a basket dinner and an hour of fellowship. Brother Thiessen spoke again during the afternoon meeting which was in charge of the Ladies' Mission Society. The evening meeting was a union service in which the other three churches of the community participated. All felt richly blessed and in the words of the Psalmist could say: "This is the day which the Lord hath made; we will rejoice and be glad in it." —Adolf Friesen.

—The General Conference Executive Committee held an important meeting at the home of the Conference chairman, Rev. C. E. Krehbiel, November 29. Among other things the field secretary and his work were discussed, and the interesting report of his visit to the brethren in South America was read. Brother Fast has brought along a good collection of pictures and will be ready to show those in the churches, where an offering will be asked to help pay the camera and other expenses connected therewith.

—Dr. J. E. Hartzler is scheduled for a series of evangelistic meetings in the First Mennonite Church of Hillsboro, Kans., from Nov. 29 to Dec. 10. The general theme will be: CHRISTIANITY AND LIFE TODAY, with the following special subjects: Wed. Nov. 29, The World Today, What's Wrong? — Thurs. Nov. 30, Jesus and the World Today.—Sat. Dec. 2, Everyday Life in Palestine (illustrated).—Sun. Dec. 3, The Conquering Church.—Mon. Dec. 4, God at Work.—Tues. Dec. 5, The Cross in Everyday Life.—Wed. Dec. 6, The Meaning of Sin.—Thurs. Dec. 7, Second Mile Living.—Fri. Dec 8, The Potter and the Clay.—Sat. Dec. 9, Illustrated.—Sun. Dec. 10, Life and What It Means.—Sun. eve., Why Be a Christian? Evening meetings, 7:30, Sunday morning 10:30.—Corr.

—Rev. Allen M. Fretz Retires.—Word has been received that Rev. A. M. Fretz is retiring from active service after serving the Deep Run Church, Pa., for 56 years as pastor. He expects to remain as elder, however. Brother Fretz, probably the oldest active minister in the General Conference, will be 86 years old this December 12.

—Mrs. G. T. Soldner, wife of the former field secretary of Bluffton College and past member of the Board of Foreign Missions, who has been ailing for some time is reported to have had another stroke at their home in Bluffton, Ohio.

—Dr. P. R. Schroeder is reported to be recovering very satisfactorily from his second and major operation. Many will be glad to hear this.

— Grace Mennonite Church, Lansdale, Pennsylvania. — "TENTH ANNIVERSARY.—Ten years ago on November 11 this church building was purchased from the Evangelicals. Meetings had been held in homes and in this building for over a year and a half before. Our anniversary program will be in February.— About fifty young people of the eastern district enjoyed a time of fellowship at the Lansdale Boy Scout Cabin."—Church Messenger.

— Altoona Mission.—A box containing more than 400 cookies was sent to the Altoona Mission for Thanksgiving by the Girls' Mission Band of the Ebenezer Menn. Church, Bluffton, Ohio. These were distributed among 44 homes and were greatly appreciated. — E. F. Slotterback.

— First Mennonite Church, Upland, Calif.—"During the past few months the Twenty-third psalm was studied in detail. Beginning November 29, we will study THE MESSAGE OF THE BOOK OF REVELATIONS. We believe that all would profit by these studies and we invite you to join the class. Will anyone say that he understands the Scriptures, especially the Book of Revelations, as well as he ought. Wednesday night belongs to the church. Let us use it for Bible study.—From "the Herald."

— First Menn. Church, Reedley, Calif.—Before us lies a well worked-out program for the Annual Meeting of this church which is to be held Dec. 3. Thus every church member knows just what is coming up at the session and can hold himself in readiness to share in the discussion and the orderly procedure of the business. So often only the officers of the church have a program and the membership can only guess what may be presented.

— Another good copy of THE VINE PRESS, organ of the Middle District C. E. organization is out. A feature presented is a project growing out of the following resolution formerly adopted by the body: "Resolved, that in order to work more unitedly in the carrying out of the programs of the other Young People's societies we undertake at least one definite missionary project for which we can work and give, such work to be directed by the field secretary." The statement then follows that through a suggestion of the secretary of the Home Mission Board the project shosen is to help finance the completion of a dormitory of the Swift Current Bible School in Canada, support for which same project the Eastern and the Western Young People's Unions have already voted.

— Dr. S. K. Mosiman Seriously Ill.—Rev. H. T. Unruh of Bluffton, Ohio, who is in Newton to represent Dr. Mosiman at the General Conference Peace Rally, reports that the good brother is seriously ill. May we all in our prayers intercede for the brother that our loving heavenly Father be very near to him in His affliction and that his life may be spared if it be His divine will.

— Bethany Menn. Church, Quakertown, Pa.—"Two years ago the church was renovated and everyone has been enjoying the beautiful House of Worship ever since. The Ladies Aid and Missionary Society furnished the leadership in raising the money, while other organizations and individuals assisted liberally. The new pews, interior decorating, new indirect lighting system, etc., cost approximately $2000, all of which is paid, except $215.10. Now the Women's organization comes forth with the plan, as a Thankoffering to the Lord, for the many blessings received, to wipe out this obligation." — Praised be the good women of our churches!—Editor.

— First Menn. Church, Lima, Ohio.—"We have so many blessings to be thankful for at this season. In October, Rev. D. J. Unruh of St. John Church at Pandora was with us for a week of services which were well attended and very inspirational. Children's meetings are being held on Wednesday and Friday afternoons. The children will give a review of their work on Thanksgiving evening. Looking ahead to Christmas, our prayer is that Christ will be real in the heart of every one."—Corr.

— EASTERN DISTRICT RETREAT PROJECT.— Work on the retreat ground is now going forward with a push. About every Saturday you will find a group of young men hard at work moving rock, cutting brush, digging holes, etc. Our hats go off to the six fellows from Richfield who drove 160 miles to do their bit in this work. Alvin Alderfer makes a fine director of the work and Mr. J. Walter Landis never fails to be on the field of operation. Mr. Trank, the Contractor from Philadelphia, talks in figures that we can understand. The cost will not be great if everyone does his part and it wont be long before this project will be a reality. And through it all we see the hand of the Lord at work.—Grace Menn. Ch. Messenger.

— Eighth Street Menn. Church, Goshen, Ind.—"In making out your Christmas gift list, why not include Bluffton College. On our bulletin board you will find a list of needs of the college ranging from $2 to $1000. Perhaps some Sunday School class or society of the church would like to make a gift. Consult the list and think it over. Even a used item in first class condition that you could spare would be appreciated.

"BLESSED ARE THE PEACEMAKERS." — If these words had been uttered by anyone else but Jesus, the Son of the living God and Savior of man, we would say, they are mere mockery. For, since the dawn of Christianity, peacemakers have been maligned, persecuted and executed for their beliefs and their attempts to bring about peace in this war-ridden world. Parts of this earth have been bathed by the blood of men and women who were mostly innocent of any wrong done, except that they attempted to live the life of peace, which Christ came to bring to this world. And even today when another war threatens to engulf the whole world in an orgy of self-destruction, the militaristic propagandists and powers of aggression are so strong that the peacemakers, though growing more numerous day by day, and a little bolder, can be heard but feebly. Though they have God Almighty on their side, for "they shall be called children of God," and all they aim at is to rid the world of its worst enemy, WAR, they have not been able to concentrate their moral forces sufficiently to speak with some significance in the management of the world's affairs. When small groups of them take a public stand in opposition to war, as did the seventy-five ministers of the United Church of Canada, recently, blinded opponents will brand them as traitors, as did Dr. J. A. McGlasken of Nova Scotia who said, "The stand of the misguided minister were . . . entirely at variance with the attitude of the overwhelming majority of the Christian people of Canada, who realize that the British empire and France are fighting to save Christianity itself. . . . It is hardly a virtue to hold patience with arrant traitors to the highest cause on earth and heaven. Let them be taken out at dawn and shot like other traitors." Remembering what Christ said in Matt. 23, when He was pronouncing His woes upon the scribes and Pharisees, one wonders what He would say to the Christians of today for having done so little to prevent the present and previous wars. And wouldn't He be apt to accuse us Mennonites for keeping our light under a bushel instead of showing it?

Gen. Smedley Butler once said, "The Church can lick war"; Field Marshall Haig, "It is the business of the churches to make my business impossible"; General Tasker H. Bliss, "If another war should comes, they (the professing Christians) of the United States will be responsible for every drop of blood shed." In view of such statements and in view of the fact that Christianity of the world numbers more than 700 million members, including the United States with 50 millions, does it not look as though this enormuos institution should be able to do something to prevent war and, in the present crisis, to stop it? Speaking of the Christian bodies of America, the United States Almanac says, "The totals are impressive. There is nothing like these figures in the world. These 50,000,000 people have not been enrolled by birth or citizenship rules, but by an act of submission or confession or agreement to lead a religious life of some sort. In a very real sense here is a reservoir of aspiration and attitude on which a new world may be built out of the fragments into which civilization seems to be disintegrating. The science or the educational leadership or the statesmanship which overlooks or disregards this phase of American life may be condemning its own wisdom."

That is it. The churches of Christ must rise in their power of peaceful resistance against war as their will to peace, and see to it that, here in America at least, the politicians and militarists will "sit up and take notice." They must in a quiet but forceful way lend every effort to a movement that will aim to send men to Washington who will work for peace and against all attempts of further building up the war machine. Not 75 men, but millions of men and women should rise and solemnly vow, that "they will have no part in this war or any war." If they would do this, in the name of God and in the power of Him who came to bring peace on earth and after whom we are pleased to call ourselves a Christian nation; whose word and authority is above that of any earthly ruler or government, would not the politicians, the militarists, and even the high places of government experience considerable consternation, followed by an awakening to a better day? Of course, some who read this will say that the writer is off, that the world will continue to go to its doom at the present tempo. But why not do all that is humanly possible for peace while it is yet day? As "Children of God" we should never give up. Did not the Master say, "My Peace I leave with you; my peace I give unto you?" Is it not our duty to pass this on?—T.

A Visit with the Waldensians in Italy

by Mrs. Bertha Kinsinger Petter

Vevey, Switzerland, August 24, 1939

Sometimes a certain course of action entered upon with misgivings, but with a strange compelling force, becomes a most delightful and enriching experience. Thus it was with my trip to Italy and Rome in 1935. Since the great artery of traffic between Europe and the Orient passes thru Vevey, on to the Simplon tunnel into Italy and beyond with 72 electrified trains running daily, the possibility of such a trip was made attractive also by the fact of greatly reduced rates for tourists remaining in Italy at least seven days, and by the other fact that it was but a day's journey from here. Who, in America, with the ancient city of Rome in easy reach, would not save for years to have but one such rare privilege?

Waldensian Memorial Service in Italy
August, 1939

On the trip in 1939 a similar experience was mine. We learned that the Waldensians of northern Italy would commemorate an outstanding event in their history by a great all-day service at the base of a high mountain, to which had been invited representatives from Switzerland, Germany, France, North and South America. We further learned that a party from Zuerich and Basle was going by train over the St. Gotthard route, and that another party from Lausanne, Geneva and nearer points would go by auto bus with the Italian pastor of Vevey as organizer and conductor. We decided to join the latter, but at the last moment Mr. Petter concluded that five day's constant travel would be almost too much for him, so he remained quietly here in Vevey. I regretted this very much, for French is his mother tongue and I knew French and Italian would be spoken mostly, either enroute or there. However, I hoped to use my eyes where my ears failed to serve me.

Our party of about twenty collected in Lausanne early on the morning of the 13th of August. We drove back through Vevy, on to Montreux, past the famous Castle of Chillon, up the Rhine valley to Mortigny, reaching the Grand St. Bernhard Pass at noon. I found the big St. Bernhard dogs were still there, though American papers had reported that when one killed the little daughter of a doctor some years ago, the authorities ordered that all be sent away.

I must say that the Pass with its Hospiz, its altitude, its blackness was no more attractive to me this time than in 1935, except for the history that has made it famous. Only a very few minutes in the damp, cold, improperly ventilated unattractive stone monastery that serves as a home for the talented but unfortunate young monks who have vowed to spend their best years here, sufficed me to make a hasty retreat for nature's pure air and sky.

We tarried but long enough to eat a lunch, buy a few postal cards and comment on Hannibal's undertaking and Napoleon's crossing much later. Also I recalled Halliburton's adventure in 1935. He rented an elephant in a Paris zoo, shipped her to Martigny and then had the "time of his life" to get her to the top of the Pass. We had the good fortune in 1935 to visit the Pass the very day he was there, permitting me to take a snapshot of this well-known American writer and his sorry-looking elephant. He gives a delightful account of this venture in one of his last books, which one can find in any public library. The reader who relishes a good diversion will gladly pick this up.

Just beyond the Pass is Italian Customs, where halt was made for the usual formalities of passport examination. However, we were not detained long, as our Italian conductor "knew the ropes" and soon we were rolling on merrily towards, or rather in sunny Italy. The scenery was grand. The road was good, and our Swiss chauffeur showed himself an expert at the wheel as indeed all Swiss chauffeurs with whom we crossed the high passes.

Later in the afternoon we reached Aosta, an ancient Roman city dating back to even before the Christian era. Here we found the usual ruins of triumphal arches, stone bridges, amphitheatre, stone city wall and flowers. Impressive to me was the immense stone arch, still well preserved, built and named for the empereor Caesar Augustus who reigned when the Christ Child was born. What a wealth of history gathered about these ancient Roman cities! We saw such also in Switzerland and studied maps of the well-built Roman postal highways that carried considerable traffic even in the century before and after Christ. In the Jura mountains we made a special foot tour to see one of these ancient roads and take pictures of it.

How natural then, that not only Roman soldiers of whom there are countless records, passed over these roads, but also persecuted Christians fleeing in the time of Nero and other Roman emperors to find refuge in the valleys of northern Italy, in Switzerland, penetrating also into France and Germany.

Thus groups of apostolic believers before the Roman Catholic church existed, became the nucleus for an apostolic church of various names according to leaders who arose from among them or who joined them. We have then the Waldensians, the Huguenots, the Taeufer, the Anabaptists and later the Mennonites, all having, one and the same apostolic teaching and practice, affected through out the years somewhat by environment, by pressure from various sources, but who as a nucleus held to the simple faith and practice as taught by Christ and the apostles.

From Aosta we continued our trip to Torino, or Turin, as we say in America, through changing scenes of country and vegetation, for here were vineyards, orchards, and many fine cornfields like in Ohio and our western states. We were glad finally to be comfortably cared for in a quite respectable Italian hotel. I noticed especially that we had left the feather beds of Switzerland behind, and my bed had a fine coverlet of dark red sateen thrown across its foot. We were served at table in the best Italian style, and while we all took lessons in how to manage the long strands of macaroni with large spoon in one hand and fork in the other, none of us became adept and preferred to eat it cut up as we were accustomed.

While in Torino, we were shown the sights and there were many. I note here especially one long principal street with immense marble pillars in grey, pink or cream, lining both sides. Also in places the pavement was of marble. Butcher shops had marble slabs and counters. Window sills were of marble. Stairways and wainscotting were of marble, sometimes in contrast to otherwise ordinary surroundings. A Swiss lady noticing my amazement remarked "In Italy marble is almost as easily attainable as wood. It is used freely. Work tables in common kitchens are often of marble." I found this true for in a Waldensian Old Folks' Home we visited, I saw an immense kitchen table covered with a beautiful thick marble slab that would adorn the capital buildings of our United States.

From Turin we started very early on the appointed day to stop at Pinerolo long enough to unload our baggage at Albergo Campana, interpreted Hotel Glockenhof, to continue on towards Perosa, Argentina Perrero and Masselo. At the foot of the mountain all cars were halted as there was but a one-way narrow road bed as far as Masselo, and from there an hour's walk to la Balsiglia where the meetings were to be held. (To be Concluded)

HOME MISSIONS

A. J. NEUENSCHWANDER, Secretary

"AS GOD HATH PROSPERED HIM"

To this Pauline admonition to give for the Lord's work, we add the words "in proportion." By this we mean to give for Home Mission work in proportion.

We readily concede that the Foreign Mission Board has a great and taxing field, the Relief Board is doing a much needed piece of work, the Publication work is, so to speak, the nerve of our Conference activity, hence it dare not be cut; and add to this the work of the Board of Education and youth training; all call for support.

The Home Mission Board is simply asking for a proportionate share when the many Churches will divide their Mission offerings at the close of the year.

We want to thank you for the support during the past year. We pray for you the Lord's abundant blessing during the gladsome Christmas season, and may He lead you safely into the New Year.

Very Sincerely, A. J. Neuenschwander,
Quakertown, Pa.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

TUBA CITY, ARIZONA, Nov. 17, 1939

Dear Brother Richert:

We have now closed our evangelistic meetings for Moencopi and Hoteville Missions. We had the largest crowd of Indians this year who gladly have attended our services in the Church during our two weeks meetings for them. We have also preached the gospel on the streets and many homes have been visited by our Christian Indians. Our speaker, Mr. Calac, a Mission Indian from California, spoke as though he was more blessed in our midst than we who have been listening to his Bible Addresses. Mr. Calac was once employed as an adviser to the boys at Sherman Institute, a government school for Indians in California. He became a Christian and gave his life to the Lord's work. So when he came, this led a good many of our returned students to our Church services, and also a good number of our more adult Indians. Besides a lot of little children also took part. And I am glad to say that practically all our services were in charge of our Christian Indians, except our organ was played by Brother Suderman and part by Daniel Schirmer. All visitation and street meetings, and morning prayer hours were in charge of the Indians. Our speaker was an Indian, and when he was ready to leave us at Hotevilla, Christian Indians took up a collection for him to help pay his trip expense to his home. I got a round trip pass for him of course, and Daniel and myself had met him at the railroad station and brought him out here in Daniel's car. We boarded him and took care of him until he left. So after all the white missionary was not burdened for all our troubles during the meetings. And it certainly gave us great joy having our meetings together. Christian Indians have all left our meetings with new courage to face the burdens of the work for the Lord, for which I am very thankful. A good number of them came to our meetings with discouraged faces, but they went away with happier faces, and I know that, because our fellowship and Bible study was of the Lord. We noticed there were a few among our unsaved Indians who were thinking seriously after our meetings were closed. We believe there were a few who really have believed the gospel but who have not the courage to come out openly and confess Christ as Savior. Mr. Suderman said that one or two of our Moencopi Indians can just as well be called Christians, because they have never missed our service in the Church. May these Indians both here at Moencopi and at Hotevilla yet confess the Lord openly, without any fear of men on their part. Pray for them, and pray for us workers on the Hopi field. Now I thank you and the Board for the help you have kindly given us for this season, making it possible to have these meetings for this year. It was a hard work for us, but we are glad to have gone through with it. May God bless what has been done in his blessed Name. With our Christian Greetings,

I remain Sincerely,
Fred A. Johnson

A Statement of Christian Conviction with Reference to War

Sent in by Dr. C. H. Suckau, Berne, Indiana

In a letter Rev. Suckau reports that this statement was drafted by their Church Board, together with several Church leaders of the Defenseless Mennonite Conference, as well as of the General Conference and adopted by these bodies.—Editor.

Inasmuch as there is much perversion and confusion pertaining to the teaching of non-resistance and the historic position of the Mennonites with regard to war, we as Christians and as members of Mennonite churches desire to set forth our convictions.

1. We believe that human warfare is contrary to the direct teachings of our Lord Jesus Christ and the Holy Scriptures. Therefore such war is sin, as is all manner of carnal strife. It is wrong in spirit and method and destructive in its results.

2. Our conviction of non-resistance and our attitude toward war is rooted in the Word of God and in our relation to the Lord Jesus Christ. In His strength alone do we hope to live a life of love and peace toward our fellowmen.

3. As Christians we have been made "partakers of the divine nature" (II Peter 1:4). According to the Holy Scriptures we are constrained to live a life of good will, even toward our enemies, and to renounce the use of violence in all forms as contrary to the Spirit of our Lord. These truths we derive from such Scripture teaching as: "Love your enemies . . . do good to them that hate you" (Matthew 5:44); "The weapons of our warfare are not carnal" (Romans 10:4); "Recompense no man evil for evil. Provide things honest in the sight of all men. If it is possible, as much as lieth in you, live peaceably with all men. Dearly beloved, avenge not yourselves, but rather give place unto wrath: for it is written, Vengeance is mine; I will repay, saith the Lord. Therefore if thine enemy hunger, feed him; if he thirst, give him drink; for in so doing thou shalt heap coals of fire on his head. Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good" (Romans 12:17-21). "Peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ" (Romans 5:1) is the purpose of the gospel. This peace will produce peace toward our fellowmen.

4. As Christians we will not knowingly be joined with any group or faction advocating any political alignment or social revolution under covert and pious expressions of peace. We consequently repudiate any affiliation with peace propaganda which is based on any social, economic, or political theory.

5. We will abstain from any agitation, propaganda, or activity that tends to promote suspicion, ill-will, or hatred between nations, classes, or races as un-Christlike and foreign to the "ministry of reconciliation." We will endeavor to foster good-will and respect for all men. "And herein do I exercise myself to have always a conscious void of offense toward God, and toward man." (Acts 24:16).

6. We love and honor the country whose protection and benefits we enjoy. We will pray for its welfare and cooperate with its officials in every righteous and moral cause. We are willing at all times to aid in the relief of those who are in need, distress or suffering, regardless of the danger in which we may be placed in bringing such relief, or of the cost which may be involved in the same. We are ready to render such service in time of war as well as in time of peace. We believe it is our Christian duty to be subject to our Government as stated above, but if demands are made contrary to our convictions, which are based on the Word of God, we are governed by the word of the apostles: "We ought to obey God rather than man" (Acts 5:29). "Let every soul be subject unto the higher powers. For there is no power but of God; the powers that be are ordained of God—Render therefore to all their due: tribute to whom tribute is due; custom to whom custom; fear to whom fear; honor to whom honor" (Romans 13:1, 7). Read the entire passage of Romans 13:1-7.

7. We deplore that many sincere advocates of peace fail to realize the fact that the underlying cause of war is supernatural and therefore requires a supernatural remedy. Revelation 16:14 declares that "the spirits of devils, working miracles, . . . go forth unto the kings of the earth and of the whole world, to gather them to the battle of that great day of God Almighty." From this, and similar Scripture passages, we may rightly conclude that it is Satan himself who is causing wars in this age. Only if and when this fact will be acknowledged, that the cause of war is supernatural, will men seek and recognize the supernatural remedy which will be administered by Jesus Christ at His coming again, when Satan shall be bound for a thousand years. "And I saw an angel come down from heaven, having the key of the bottomless pit and a great chain in his hand. And he laid hold on the dragon, that old serpent, which is the Devil, and Satan, and bound him a thousand years. And cast him into the bottomless pit, and shut him up, and set a seal upon him, that he should deceive the nations no more, till the thousand years should be fulfilled." (Revelation 20:1-3a). At that time Christ will establish His kingdom of peace and righteousness in which men shall learn war no more. "And he shall judge among the nations: and shall rebuke many people: and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning hooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more," (Isa. 2:4). "We hasten the coming of that kingdom by our loyalty to Christ and to His Gospel, by our evangelistic zeal, by our use of spiritual weapons and by our utter dependence upon supernatural power and upon a supernatural Person in our fight for peace." p. 11, The Program of Peace—Joseph Taylor Britan.

8. We believe that it is the duty of every minister of the gospel in our churches to offer Biblical instruction in the message of peace and the Christian's attitude toward war.

Institute for Ministers and Church Workers to be held at Bethel College, January 15—19

PURPOSE

This institute is a continuation of the Bible week of former years. Ministers and all others who desire the benefit of Bible study, discussion of vital problems pertaining to the ministry and the Church with expert leaders, are cordially invited to attend these meetings.

PROGRAM

10:15—11:05 Bible Hour—Dr. H. S. Gehman.—Each day at this hour Dr. Gehman will lead in the study of the Book of Amos.

11:10—12:00 Our Children and their Needs. — The subjects to be considered at this hour during the week are:

The Unfolding Personality of the Child
The Physical Life of the Child
The Child in the Home
The Child in the Public School
The Child in the Church

1:20—2:10 Ministers' Conference—Dr. W. A. Elliott.—During this period each day Dr. Elliott will conduct the discussion of the following subjects:

Keeping the Altar-fires Aglow in the Life of Pastor and People
Ministerial Preparation
Making and Delivering the Sermon
Building a Church Program
Pastoral Problems

2:15—3:05 Bible Hour—Dr. H. S. Gehman.—At this hour each day Dr. Gehman will lead in a series of studies in the Psalms.

3:10—4:00 The Church and Its Mission in the Time of War.—Under this general title the following subjects will be presented during the week:

The Biblical Basis of our Peace Testimony
The Historic Peace Position of the Church
The Church Today and War
Wartime Propaganda
Missions and War

7:30 Evening Addresses—Dr. W. A. Elliott. The early part of the evening hour will be devoted to song and worship, after which Dr. Elliott will bring an inspirational message.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

THE CHILD AND THE KINGDOM

(Christmas Lesson)

Matt. 1:18-25; 18:1-6; 19:13-15

Introduction

It is quite fitting that in celebrating the coming of Christ to earth, we should think of the place Jesus gives to childhood in the kingdom of heaven. The fact that Jesus, the Son of God, came to earth as a helpless babe, has immeasurably increased the importance and dignity of childhood. God has so ordained that children are dependent upon their parents for sustenance and care until near maturity. This was true of the boy Jesus. Parents need to give intelligent thought to the problems incident to the rearing of their children.

The Virgin Birth of Jesus vs 18-25

Among the Jews in Jesus' day, espousal (betrothal RV) was practically equivalent to marriage as the man was legally the husband. One year elapsed between the betrothal and the marriage, during which time the betrothed maiden (virgin) remained with her family. Mary and Joseph followed the usual custom. Our lesson records the fact that Jesus was born of a virgin mother. God in Jesus came to earth in a new manner, in human form. The angel of the Lord came to Joseph (v20) with news of the highest interest to him and to us. Both Mary and Joseph were intensely devout persons and of great nobility of character. During the days of their betrothal, the Holy Ghost came upon Mary and miraculously quickened into life the babe—the already existing Son of God—who in his birth entered upon a new human experience. Jesus thus came into this world miraculously, divinely born without a human father and as fulfillment of prophecy (Is. 9:6; 7:14-16). This incarnation of God in Jesus is the greatest of all miracles. When we accept this miracle we shall have no difficulty in accepting the other miracles of Christ.

How to Enter the Kingdom 18:1-4

The disciples asked an important question (v1), one they had discussed among themselves. It appears evident that Jesus perceived the selfish motive in asking it. That motive still lingers today only too frequently among Christian workers. Jesus answered the question in a way that would make an indelible impression upon their minds and hearts (vs 2-4). Jesus grew up, one of a number of children in his parent's home. He learned to understand children and loved them. He used a child as a living object lesson. They must turn from their proud ambitions and become childlike in spirit (v3), else they cannot even enter the kingdom. The greatest in the kingdom are they who in the largest measure possess the characteristics of the little child (v4), primarily among which is that of humility of spirit, which includes a sense of dependence and a readiness to learn and be taught.

Treatment of a Child. vs 5, 6

Jesus goes on to emphasize the preciousness of the child to his heart (v5). He identifies the child with himself. The world had never known such divinity attached to childhood. Our love shown to the child is recognized by Jesus as love shown to Himself. He utters a stern warning against in any way leading a trusting child astray (v6). It were better to die a fearful death than to lead a child into evil or to destroy the child's serene trust in Christ. The influence of our example with children is a matter of the gravest responsibility. Yet how wickedly thoughtless even many parents are with their children.

Jesus Welcomes Children vs 13-15.

Jesus so beautifully shows that the little children are not beneath his thought and attention. His invitation to hem sill stands. They have a right to come to Him. They belong in the kingdom. They have a right to the fellowship of the church. They should be made to feel that the church is interested in them and that the services are for them also.

SERMON SKETCH

MEETING OPPOSITION IN A CHRISTIAN WAY

by Rev. Reynold Weinbrenner, Pastor Second Church, Beatrice, Nebraska

Scripture Text: John 4:5-44

It is high noon. The sun is glaring hot. While the disciples go into the town to buy food, Jesus wearily sits down on the well which is outside the village to rest and to get a drink if possible. A Samaritan woman comes to get water.

Jesus requests that she give him to drink. He distinctly shows respect to a woman who was an outcaste among her own people. He acts upon one of the great principles which he continually emphasized, namely, the sacredness of all human personalities regardlness of how despised and degraded they may be. Jesus showed throughout his ministry that respect is to the human soul as sunshine is to the flower. It brings out beauty, nobility, and possibilities which would otherwise lie unused.

What is there in all individuals which we can respect? We can respect the unrealized possibilities within them. It was upon these that Jesus depended for the creation of new lives.

Furthermore, Jesus in asking the Samaritan woman for a drink simply takes it for granted that the normal relationship of human beings is one of helpfulness. He quietly admits in his request that she can contribute something to his welfare. The woman's self-respect must have risen at this recognition of her capacity to serve. We all like to help, share, and prove ourselves useful to our fellow beings. When we cannot do so we feel useless and unhappy. Of course, it is true that this impulse to helpfulness is often chilled by those who unworthily impose upon human kindness. But as a whole we like to help others. Yet what happens very often when we meet opposition is this: By act and word we try to show our opponent that he has nothing to contribute to our welfare. Naturally this angers and depresses, for we all like to feel the importance of what we have to share.

However, this kind approach by Jesus does not immediately disarm the woman of her suspicion and hatred. She makes no effort to comply with Jesus' request for a drink of water. Into her mind, very likely, come the memories of former insults; her heart rankles with suspicion and hatred, and she taunts Jesus with the accusation that the Jews have no dealings with the Samaritans. Jesus is not antagonized by this refusal. Jesus, instead of making this refusal the main factor in his immediate thinking and acting, ignores it, and presses on to the main aim of his life—the bringing of life to others. He forgets his own physical want in his concern for the spiritual wants of this woman who is rudely opposing Him.

Jesus ignores the antagonistic question of the woman and lifts the conversation to a plane on which they consider the essential things of life which are as living water. The woman had been so absorbed, however, in living for the physical and the material that she is unable to comprehend the full spiritual significance of what Jesus is saying.

By skillful and kind answers Jesus makes her think, asks questions, see herself as she really is, and makes her grow. He shows her the path unto everlasting life. With much patience and in a kind, frank manner, He facilitates her in the expression of her noblest desires, wants, and possibilities. Facilitation which "means the discovery of good, sound, and worthwhile purposes and possibilities" in someone "and providing the opportunities and encouragement needed to work them out," cannot easily be resisted, not even by one who opposes you.

The disciples return and marvel that Jesus is talking with the woman. Such a way of meeting opposition seems strange to them. As the woman goes her way into the city she leaves her water pot at the well, and Jesus and his disciples can drink. Thus the request has been fulfilled as a mere incident along with the much more important act of bringing new life unto one that had been broken.

The disciples urge Jesus to eat of the food which they have brought, but Jesus refuses. "I have food to eat that ye know not of." "My food is to do the will of him that sent me, and to finish his work." Jesus hungered to bring about right relations between sinful human beings and God. Now having helped someone spiritually He is filled with divine joy and his physical wants appear insignificant. Whenever someone is so intensely concerned about the spiritual welfare of his opponent then something is bound to happen which will bring spiritual satisfaction to both.

CORRESPONDENCE

MENNONITE CHURCH, WADSWORTH, OHIO

Rev. Shelley's parents returned to their home in Pennsylvania, with one of their sons, during the latter part of October.—On November 5, our congregation had the privilege of hearing a returned missionary, Mrs. Pauline Paul, give messages at both the morning and evening services. Mrs. Paul was a former attendant of our church and Sunday School, and is on furlough from her missionary work in Jamaica, where her husband still is, continuing with the work during her enforced absence due to ill health.—Rev. William Stauffer of the Sugar Creek Church spoke at the young people's service on the evening of Nov. 19, and also at an evening church service following. He spoke relative to his attendance at the International Youth Council at Amsterdam, Holland; and of his impressions of Europe received during his subsequent travels there.—The Women's Missionary Society had its annual Thanksgiving and Mite Box Service on the evening of Nov. 19—On November 21, the Bluffton College Gospel Team again presented a very fine and inspirational service at our church.

BETHANY CHURCH, FREEMAN, S. D..

A tripple golden wedding was observed at the Bethany Church on November 24th at seven in the evening. All three couples, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Tschetter, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Mandl and Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Wollmann are members of this congregation. Pastor Louis Linscheid served with the Word and enumerated the many blessings God had shown these couples. All the children of each couple were present and only three grand children were unable to attend.

After the church services the Wollmann's and Mandl's held open house at their respective homes. The Tschetter's had their open house in the afternoon. Mrs. Peter P. Mandl and Mrs. A. A. Wollmann are sisters.

Besides the three couples mentioned above, Mr. and Mrs. John T. Hofer of Bridgewater, also observed their 50th wedding anniversary on this date. On November 24th 1889, eight couples were married in the Hutterisch Settlement north and west of Freeman. Thus to fifty per cent it was granted to pass the half century mark in wedded life. Of the other four couples, only Jacob M. Wollmann of Freeman and Mrs. Josua M. Hofer of Carpenter are alive.—J.A.W.

MENNONITE CHURCH, BERNE, INDIANA

Our Christian Endeavor Society sponsored a Youth Bible Conference from October 1 to 6, at which Dr. Will H. Houghton, president of the Moody Bible Institute, was the speaker. These meetings were well attended by our young people.

We have had some interesting programs at our regular meetings recently. One service was in the form of a camp fire meeting. An artificial camp fire was placed in the front part of the church and the audience sat in a semi-circle around it, the other lights being turned out. This was an impressive meeting.—One evening the program consisted of about ten or more short talks; a hymn was sung or played after each talk. Sometimes a greater interest is shown when more people are asked to take part. For another program the committee had written out questions and answers, these were distributed among the people present. The one thinking he or she had the right answer to the question just read, would give their answer.

Having various types of programs often proves interesting and educational. We hope more young people will become interested in our meetings so they will want to attend them regularly.

On October 29 we had no meeting as the Lima, Ohio, choral society presented the oratorio "Elijah."

BETHEL CHURCH, PERKASIE, PENN., 11-29-39

The past year brought joys and sorrows to our people. The entire Landis family of three adult members were stricken with diphtheria, all being confined to their beds at the same time. Unable to get nursing or household help for some time, worry aggrevated their condition and retarded their recovery. The help finally offered proved incompetent but was better than none. Recovery was slow, as heart conditions developed. The three sisters are grateful to their Heavenly Father for granting the many prayers offred in their behalf.—Our attendance at church and Sunday School has remained steady, with smallest attendance during the summer months. Several Mennonite families living near our church are faithful members of Mennonite congregations quite some distance from here, and our wish is that they might work in this small congregation, as an encouragement to pastor and people.

This section as a whole has had a happy and prosperous summer season. The weather has been fine, though rather dry at times and in some places. The weather is exceptionally fine at this writing.

Our denomination joined with the Baptist, Evangelical and Reformed congregations in a Union Thanksgiving Service, held in the Baptist Church. We are looking forward with interest to the sessions of the General Conference to be held here in the Eastern District.—Fannie E. Landis, Corr.

GRACE MENN. CHURCH, LANSDALE, PA.

The year is very rapidly drawing to a close and everyone is looking forward to the joyous Christmas season, when we sincerely trust that peace and goodwill come to the hearts of men.—Our pastor, Rev. Olin Krehbiel, has recently been elected President of the Lansdale Ministerial Association for a two-year term. This organization is composed of all the Ministers of town regardless of denomination.—The Bluffton College Gospel team gave a very fine program in the local church on Friday, Nov. 24. Stanley Fretz, one of our active young people, is president of this organization.—There has been very much interest shown in our Women's Missionary Society since we resumed our meetings in September. Each month the society studies different countries and their needs and modes of life, referring especially to the women. So far our speakers have been Mrs. P. J. Boehr, missionary to China. Mrs. Fred Whitermore, Missionary to Africa, and Mrs. Erland Waltner, daughter of missionaries to China. The meetings have been extremely interesting and well attended.

In the meantime, the men have been actively engaged in the work of the Brotherhood. They recently held their annual convention at the East Swamp Church, uniting with the other Brotherhoods of the conference. — On January first, it will be ten years that Rev. D. J. Unruh came to Lansdale. The date of February fourth to ninth will be very important to us, for we plan to celebrate the occasion at that time. In ten years our Sunday School has grown to a total enrollment of 283 members. It would be very fine if we could double that number in the next ten years.

In this busy time let us not forget the greatest gift of all—The only Begotten Son.— The Seasons Greetings to all.—M. Fretz, Corr.

BETHANY CHURCH, QUAKERTOWN, PA.

This church has concluded a series of well-attended services to celebrate the fortieth anniversary of its founding. The Sunday School, the Ladies Aid and Missionary Society, the Brotherhood, the Young People's Society and the Choir had parts in the programs, in most cases reviewing the history of the organizations. A series of inspirational sermons were delivered by Rev. A. S. Rosenberger, former pastor of the church and now pastor of the Salem church, Dalton, Ohio. The topic for the principal service was "The Message of the Church for This Day" (Matt. 28:19-20). Following topics, classified as "mountain-top experiences," included "Carmel—the Mount of Contest" (1 Kings 18); "Nebo—the Mount of Vision and Sacrifice" (Deut. 32:45-52); and "The Mount of Transfiguration" (Luke 9:28-36).—Correspondent.

Peace on Earth

An Editorial by Bruce Catton

(San Francisco Chronicle, Dec. 25, 1934)

Three wise men from the Orient plodded across a plain with their eyes on a blazing star. The dark veil of a Syrian night was rent apart so that wide-eyed shepherds in a quiet sheepfold might have a vision of unearthly glory. A child was born in the stable of an inn, in an out-of-the-way province of the Roman empire . . . and into a world that lived by the sword came the promise that men some day would learn to live in peace.

That miraculous Christmas Eve in Bethlehem was not only the announcement of man's eternal kinship with something deathless, something greater and nobler and finer than he had dared dream himself to be.

It was also a promise that since man is made in the image of God, this old earth can be remade in the image of God's city. It revealed to men the simple fact that war, with all that it connotes—might's triumph over wrong, the enthronement of brute strength, reason surrendering to the law of the jungle—is no more a part of the natural order of things than poverty, greed or oppression, and can be obolished when men wish.

That was an unbelievable promise, in those days, just as it seems to be now.

On the one hand were a child in a stable, and a few aging philosophers and unlettered shepherds; on the other, all the glitter and pomp and hard-fisted might of the Roman empire. The tramp of the Legions raised the dust on roads all across the known world. The triremes of Rome's fleet ruled every known sea. Beat those swords into plowshares? Great Caesar, if he had heard about it, would have laughed.

Nor does the outlook seem any brighter tday. Peace? The dreadnaughts and the tanks make a mockery of the idea, just as Caesar's legions did.

But there is a power in the world than cannot be measured in terms of army divisions or naval squadrons. You cannot weigh it or analyze it in a laboratory, but in the long run it is only real power. It is that strange and unfathomable force in the human soul which keeps weary and discouraged men plodding

Now the world has lasted a long time, and its history is one long record of blood and suffering, of inhumanity and injustice, of wrong triumphant and of right in the condemned cell; and most of the time we forget about this incalculable spiritual power.

But at Christmas, each year, we rediscover it. We remember where it comes from; we see it symbolized in those little Christmas customs that we all observe; and in the magnificent cadences of that deathless story from Bethlehem we realize its eternal truth.

Facing this, we then discover something else; that the great battles, the battles which decide the world's destiny, are fought out in man's hearts and minds. It is there that the great decisions are made; everything that happens afterward simply ratifies them.

Where are the legions that held the world in thrall, while the heavens opened over the sheepfold? Blown dust on the winds of time, these nineteen centuries; bloodlss shadows, marching through oblivion with the shades of all other armies man has raised.

And the vision that those legions mocked? It still lives, imperishable and ageless, in millions upon millions of hearts, lightening the fear and discouragement of unnumbered generations of men. All of the world's armies have not killed it, all the world's fleets have not touched it. It is above change and beyond time.

Slowly, year by year, it increases. Human nature does change; it is a denial of all that we live by to say that it does not. Generation by generation and century by century, men come a little bit closer to a realization of the fact that they can make this world precisely what they want it to be, if they have the faith and courage to try.

As we realize that, we find that the star that blazed in the eastern sky is still shining. The smoke from the navies and the dust-clouds from the parade grounds may obscure it, but they cannot cut off its light entirely.

And so we can celebrate our Christmas, and re-read the old promise of peace and human brotherhood, in spite of the war clouds. For that star will continue to give us its light in the future as in the past. Year by year the light will grow a little bit brighter, and as it does so we shall become a little bit better able to see the trabic stupidity of trying to conduct human society by the rules of the tiger-cage.

Then we shall be able to seet his story of manger and wise men and sheepfold, not as a beautiful old story or as a lovely but impractical ideal, but as a guide for human affairs, a miraculous disclosure of eternal truth. And in that day, looking about us, we shall discover that we have begun to build the city of God.

The Old Year

Senior C. E. Topic for December 31, 1939

MAIN TOPIC: How have we used the year? Matt. 24:14-30

I. Worship Service

1. Songs, "Jesus, Savior, Pilot Me," "All the way my Savior Leads Me," "Take the Name of Jesus with You."
2. Reading of main topic, and prayer.
3. Short talk by the pastor.

II. Leader's Introduction

The question which everyone may well ask himself tonight is "How have I used the year? What have I done with my talents, how have I used my opportunities to be kind, to be loving, to be a friend to others? Have I been of service this year?

What have been my chief interests during the year? What have been the things that I have thought about most? What have I done during my spare time? Have I supported the work of my church, of the C. E., of missions with my influence, and with my money? Would the Master say, "Well done," to me?"

III. Suggested Topics for Short Talks:

1. Walking in the way of wisdom. Prov. 3:13-36.
2. Following in footsteps of faith. Heb. 11:32-40.
3. Growing in grace and goodness. Eph. 4:11-16.
4. Living the life of love. Rom. 13:8-14.
5. Pursuing profitable practices. 1 Peter 4:7-11.
6. Serving the Savior sincerely. Col. 3:23, 24.

IV. Facts for Study

"The unexamined life is not liveable." An easy-going and unquestioning acquiescence never made a great age. Times of baffling difficulty and heroic despair have summoned and exercised the faith that removes mountains. Christ always questioned a too ready and obvious faith even when it seemed sincere. Nicodemus, who came to him by night, affably conceded, "Rabbi, we know that thou art a teacher come from God." But Jesus startled the ruler of Israel by his reply: "Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God." That was no hour for complimentary exchanges, or soul-soothing phrases but rather for deep searching revolutions which would make a new age by making new men.

Our past is either a drag or a push. We make it either "a tale that is told," or the opening chapter of the unfolding drama of splendid living.

In recurring epochal crises in human affairs everything depends on whether our emphasis is on the ending of the old or the beginning of the new.

The close of a day brings the consciousness of accomplishment, and the desire for ease and secularity. The dawning of a day brings new duties, and the stir of adventure toward inviting goals.

Shall we hold back the greatest age of history because of our unbelief and spiritual poverty? The confusion and despair of the secular life are striking the hour for heroic achievements of Christian faith. We are standing on the edge of a new age of the spirit. Christ's power to transform our world and to establish righteousness, justice, and peace is limited only by the limitations of our faith.

V. For Discussion

New Years Resolution: "To do the duties of life faithfully, punctually, thoughtfully, reverently, not for the praise of men, but because God has given us a little piece of work to do in his great world, not as the slaves of circumstance, but as the children of a King."

VI. Illustration

Accounted Worthy. Three workmen were engaged in the same task of trimming stone for a new cathedral. One, upon being asked by a passer-by what he was doing, answered without looking up, "I'm trimming a stone." The second answered this question, with a smile, "I'm earning eight dollars a day." But the third replied, "I'm helping to build a cathedral." The third workman enriched his labor with vision: he saw himself a coworker with all of those who dreamed of the finished cathedral, and with God, for whose worship and glory the structure was being reared. Put a similar question to a group of young people at their leisure, and some will answer, "Killing time," while others will give the more literal answer, "Playing a game." There will not be many, but some will answer with vision, too, "Building a temple." Those who remember, even at their leisure, that they are "building a temple" account themselves worthy, for they project their lives into the future.

VII. Plan for some mission project for the coming year.

VIII. Food for Thought

Where are you going, Great-Heart?

"To lift today above the past;
To make Tomorrow sure and fast;
To nail God's colors to the mast."
Then God go with you, Great-Heart

Where are you going, Great-Heart?
"To break down old dividing lines;
To carry out my Lord's designs;
To build again his broken shrines." . . .

God goeth with you, Great-Heart.

On, then in the New Year, over life's curving highways, to carry on the work of our Lord and Master, Jesus Christ.

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

Using the New Year

Intermediate C. E. Topic for Dec. 31, 1939

For Daily Reading:

Dec. 25. Recall past experiences. Deut. 8:1-6.
Dec. 26. An untried way. Josh. 3:1-6.
Dec. 27. An unknown future. James 4:13-16.
Dec. 28. Promised leadership. Isa. 41:8-13.
Dec. 29. Be of courage. Deut. 31:6-8.
Dec. 30. An open door. Rev. 3:7-13.
Dec. 31. God's gift of a New Year. 1 Peter. 3:10-13.

A New Year Wish

What shall I wish thee this New Year?
Health, wealth, prosperity, good cheer,
All sunshine—Not a cloud or tear?
Nay! only this:
That God may lead thee His own way,
That He may choose thy path each day,
That thou mayest feel Him near alway;
For this is bliss!

Anonymous, F. H. Revell, Co.

Opening Song: "Another Year is Dawning"

Scripture Reading: I Peter 3:10-13.

Prayers by members asking God to help during this meeting in the formation of strong resolves.

Song: "Ring Out, Wild Bells"

Poem to be read by the Leader just before the discussion of the topic.

New Time

Time is a treasure;
How shall we use it?
We can abuse it!
Or can abuse it!
Only the Giver
Can make our hearts wise,
Teaching us daily
The New Time to prize.

Time is a treasure,
So view it, my soul!
Keep all its spending
'Neath watchful control;
Employ each moment
In God's holy fear,
And He will ensure thee
A Happy New Year.

Anonymous, F. H. Revell Co.

Discussion of topic

1. Have members mention the services of your society this past year which they feel have been mast helpful and worthwhile.

2. Have some things mentioned which they think should have been better. This may not be pleasant but will be most helpful.

3. Upon the Blackboard write suggestions for improvement.—Be sure your Executive committee copies these.

Song: "The Year Is Gone Beyond Recall"

The Personal Side of the Topic

1. What qualities of character have had a bad effect upon our society?

2. Can there be an improvement in cooperation?

3. Does every member feel that the success of the society depends upon him?

4. What are some of the qualities we want to strive to develop more fully?

A Motto for the New Year (Have a copy of this motto ready to be given to each member as he leaves the meeting.)

"Go Forward"

With steadfast heart and true
Go forward on your way;
God give you strength to do
The duties of each day,
So daily may this thought
Your heart with courage fill,
"I can, because I ought,
And, by God's help, I will."

A. R. G. — F. H. Revell, Co.

Closing Song: "Standing at the Portals"

Silent Prayer: (May each one use this opportunity to sincerely resolve, with God's help to become a sweeter Christian Endeavorer.

"A Shepherd Speaks"

Rev. George W. Wiseman

I was a shepherd caring for my sheep
That won'drous night when Jesus came to earth;
I little thought when darkness covered all
That I would witness such a holy birth.

We sat around as usual and talked,
And watched the stars and dreamed of other days;
Not knowing that upon that starry sky
A ne'er forgotten scene would meet our gaze.

An eerie stillness settled o'er the hills,
A peaceful calm unbroken through the night;
And as I now look back I can recall
That younder David's town seemed strangely bright

Then suddenly there came a brilliant light
That turned the darkness into glowing day,
And we were sore afraid, and tried to hide
Our lips were dumb; we knew not what to say.

'Twas then the shining sky seemed filled with life;
A tender voice fell softly on our ears,
"Fear not," it said, "To you no harm shall come,"
And in that moment hope replaced our fears.

The story from that point is known so well;
The guiding words, the hymns seo strangely sweet;
Our visit to yon stable near the inn;
The virgin's song: the Holy Child, asleep.

And then the journey back with hearts aglow;
How happy were our thoughts, how bright the way!
We praised Jehovah, singing psalms of joy,
For from nights depths emerged eternal day.

I was a shepherd caring for my sheep
That won'drous night when Jesus came to earth;
The only one remaining to relate
The scenes attending such a holy birth.

Study Period:

Aim—To help our Juniors carry the Christmas message and spirit into the New Year, and all through the year.

1. Introduction: A whole week has passed since Christmas eve. But the glow of Christmas is still in our hearts. Often when we see the sun set we watch the beautiful "after glow," or when we turn out the fire we see the "after glow." This is beautiful. Just so, although we have put away our books of Christmas carols, our Christmas cards and pictures there is still an after glow in our hearts and lives.

II. Discussion

1. A junior discusses —"An After glow." The Shepherds' Witnessing. "When they had seen it, they made known abroad the saying which was told them concerning this child. Luke 2:17.

The Shepherds had seen Jesus and then they could not keep silent. They told others. We have heard the "good news" of salvation in song and poem. Shall we tell others?

2. All read the following verses in unison: John 15:27; Acts 1:18.

3.A Junior discusses: —An After glow.—The Shepherd's praising. "And the shepherds returned glorifying and praising God for all the things that they had heard and seen. Luke 2:20. Although the shepherds had no gift, they gave much when they glorified and praised God. The coming of the Christ-child had made them so happy that their hearts were full of praise. We, too, are happy because the Christ has come. Do we glorify and praise God, for his wonderful love, all through the year?

4. a. Girls in uinson, John 3:16; b) Boys in unison, Luke 2:30-32.

5. Solo. "O Could I Speak the Matchless Worth," Mennonite Hymn Book, No. 239.

6. A Junior discusses: An After glow—Mary remembering and thinking. "But Mary kept all these things and pondered them in her heart." Luke 2:19. When Mary heard of the Angels' song she kept (remembered) that message in her heart and pondered (thought) about it. I believe that she prayed too. Let us all the year through remember this wonderful gift (God's Son) and think what it means to us to have a Savior.

7. All read in unison,—Psalm 63:1, 3, 6.

8. Trio—"I Think When I Read That Sweet Story of Old."

9. Leader's Heart Talk: How beautiful was, the lights, the carols, Christmas programs, gifts, the gathering at Grandmothers. How lovely it all was! And the sweet fragrance of the Christmas tree and the love of all about, was it not like a sweet perfume? And is there not a new warmth in our hearts? A joy because Jesus Christ our Saviour came that we might be saved from all our sins? Let us keep this joy as an all the year glory. The world would be a wonderful place in which to live if the spirit of Christmas should last all the year. Shall we do our part?

"There seems enough love at Christmas time
To last through all the year:
Enough of joy to overflow
And fill the days that come and go
With gladsome songs of cheer."

III. Mission Minutes

1. No doubt some of the Juniors have received letters from missionary friends, this would be a good time in which to share them with others.

2. The Missionary Number of "The Mennonite" is rich in material. Assign at least one to a Junior for a report.

3. Leader's Closing Prayer.

4. Song in unison: "Into My Heart."

CORRESPONDENCE

BETHEL COLLEGE CH., N. NEWTON, KANS.

Lest, in the midst of the holiday ruth of things, we forget, let us commit to record some of the events of the recent month.

On November 19 the Men's Brotherhood journeyed to the First Mennonite Church at Hillsboro, and rendered a program centering about the theme of stewardship. The program consisted of two parts, each part of several musical renditions, with a short talk on stewardship by a lay-member of the Brotherhood.

The evening of November 26 was the annual family night. The purpose of the family night program is to create closer fellowship and to cement anew the bonds of home and family ties, withal warming the hearts of church members to their larger fellowship of the Christian family. Numbers of the program typified all ages from the cradle to old age, with musical transitions forming the background for appropriate readings concerning the age-level about to be presented.

Dr. H. A. Fast presented his illustrated lecture on his South American tour to the Mennonite colonies there. This lecture is being well received, and other churches may well look forward to Doctor Fast's coming in due time.

So with this brief message we send to each and all the joy and hope of the Christmas season, with the earnest hope that in each and all may be born anew the Spirit of the Christ, empowering us to better living and larger usefulness.—Correspondent.

BUTTERFIELD, MINN. Dec. 2, 1939

It was our privilege to have a number of ministers visit us this fall. Rev. David Carlson, a missionary in the hill country of Kentucky, spoke to us about his work and described conditions among the hill folk.—Rev. Lehman of Chicago conducted meetings in our church for a period of twelve days, giving us messages that were unusually inspiring and helpful.—The two young ladies who have charge of the Grace Orphanage at Henderson, Nebr., as well as a number of the orphans gave a very wonderful program in our church when they visited this section of the country.

The annual meeting of our church was held Nov. 27. The work of the year was reviewed, officers were elected in church and Sunday School, recommendations were made for the coming year, and all things were put in order. We are happy to say that our church has had a good year spiritually and financially. It is our prayer and desire that it may continue to prosper in the future and may it serve as a light house for the community, pointing out the way to salvation and truth. Three people were received into the church as members.

During the past year, Rev. Schultz has worked untiringly in his church but has also found time to preach in our neighboring city of St. James as well as at Warroad and Floodwood in the northern part of the state. During the summer he assisted Rev. Pederson of the American Sunday School Union in Daily Vacation Bible School work, having supervised nine Bible schools.—We praise God for the many spiritual blessings we have received through him and others who have served us at various times.—Mrs. R. E. Casey, Corr.

IN MEMORIAM

MRS. ANNA WIEBE was born in Hohendorf, Russia, on February 32, 1866. In 1880 her parents and family migrated to Coplanbeck, Asia, where she lost her mother by death. In 1884 she married Cornelius Wiebe at Lausan, Asia. And the young couple immediately came to America, establishing their home in Kansas. This union was blessed with seven children, five of which are now living.—In the year 1903 her husband and family migrated to the State of Oklahoma and settled upon a homestead which had been purchased. Two years later her husband, after an illness of seven months' duration, passed away.—In 1909 she and her family moved to Aberdeen, Idaho, and she was a resident of Idaho for over 30 years. In Idaho two of her daughters preceded her in death.—The deaths of her husband and two daughters was a tremendous strain upon her vitality.

In her moments of solitude she gave vent to her feelings. She prayed much for her children. It seemed that intercession was her ministry. In a sense she is not dead for the memory of her blessed ministry will live on.—She could also say, if she would, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith: henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness."—Her passing was swift, for on October 30th at 10:30 P. M. she was overtaken by a stroke which proved fatal, and at 6 A. M. October 31st she passed away at the home of her son, having attained the age of 73 years, 8 months and 8 days.

She leaves to mourn her departure: 3 sons, 2 daughters, 1 sister, 15 grandchildren, 2 great grandchildren, and a host of relatives and friends. Rev. E. Ross and Rev. Phil. A. Wedel had charge of the funeral services.

CLARA T. WIEBE was born in Brainerd, Kansas, on November 13, 1900. She spent her childhood days on a farm in Caddo County, Oklahoma, where her father preceded her in death. At the age of 8 years she accompanied her mother and the rest of the family to Aberdeen, Idaho, which remained her home until her departure. On November 30, 1915, she was baptized upon her confession of faith in Christ Jesus.

She received her higher educational training in the Bible Institute of Los Angeles, of which she was a graduate, the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, Bethel College, Newton, Kansas, and Idaho State Normal, of Albion. For over one year she assisted in mission work at Lame Deer, Montana. For 5 years she was engaged in the teaching profession, serving in grade schools. Her illness prevented her from continuing in her chosen occupation.

For 18 years she patiently suffered under her affliction. Over one year she was an inmate at the Faith Home in Elyria, Ohio, returning to Aberdeen on Steptember 20, 1939. And after a few weeks of intense suffering she passed away at her brother's home on October 9, 1939, having attained the age of 38 years, 10 months and 26 days.

She passed away in the saving faith of her Redeemer and Lord Jesus Christ. She leaves to mourn her departure: her mother, 3 brothers, 2 sisters, and many relatives and friends. Rev. E. Ross and Rev. Phil A. Wedel had charge of the funeral services.

— FREEMAN JUNIOR COLLEGE CELEBRATES FOUNDER'S DAY.—"Our college will celebrate its annual Founder's Day on December 1, 1939. The date will mark the 39th anniversary of the first charter issued by the Secretary of State of South Dakota for the founding of South Dakota Mennonite College. Since then the name has, of course, been changed.—Dr. Harshbarger of Bethel College has been invited to be the main speaker during the forenoon program. During the afternoon the sound picture, "Ten Nights in a Bar Room" will be shown in the College auditorium. The evening program is in the hands of Prof. Toews and will be in the nature of a musical pageant."—J. D. Unruh, Pres.

— Rev. Edgar Toews, Secretary of the Gen. Conf. Business Committee, writes from 36 Mariposa Ave., San Anelmo, Calif., that he is attending "San Francisco Theological Seminary," a Presbyterian school, about 20 miles outside of San Francisco. "This, however," he says, "does not mean that we are transferring our membership to that denomination. We are simply preparing for further service among the Mennonites and have chosen this seminary, because we have none in our denomination. We are enjoying our work here. The truth is being presented in an unbiased manner by devout, scholarly men."

— When we reported the set-back of Mrs. G. F. Soldner of Bluffton, Ohio, by another stroke, we should have asked all those who know her to remember her in their prayer, that God may be her comforter in her affliction and restore her health if it be in keeing with His divine will.

"NOTICE: A CALL TO GIVE

Dear Christian Friends: The Y. P. committee received a levy of $35.00 as its share of the cost of the conference field secretary. Remember our Swift Current project! Send your contributions to William Juhnke, secretary of Young People's Union, R. 2, Box 44, McPherson, Kansas, before December 21.—

Sincerely yours,

(signed) William Juhnke."

— Dr. P. R. Schroeder writes from the Sacred Heart Hospital, Yankton, S. D.: "Since Nov. 15, I am here again. The colon was sewed together Nov. 16, and I have felt unusually well the whole time. But on Nov. 22 the sewing tore a bit,—so now I must wait till it all adjusts itself into normal functioning and healing. I have no fever, eat well, sleep well, read much, and am up every day since Dec. 3. But the Doctor cannot yet set any date for my going home. I have again experienced the sustaining and healing presence of the Lord in answer to the prayers of the many intercessors. 2 Corinthians 1:8-11.

— Zion Menn. Church, Souderton, Pa.—Between the dates of Nov. 19 and Dec. 17 this church is emphasizing a spiritual refilling campaign, to help its members awaken greater interest in spiritual things and in church attendance. The themes for the five weeks are: A Home that Became Regenerated, A Community that Became Regenerated, A Nation that Became Regenerated, The Opened Life, A New Faith.

— Mennonites Not Mentioned.—A Mennonite student in a Theological school at Chicago writes: "This morning I heard John Haynes Jones preach, one of the two or three ministers who preached peace from his pulpit throughout the World War. In his sermon he said that the Quakers were the only group of Christians, as far as he knew, who preached and lived peace and were welcome all over the world. I thought there is another evidence that the Mennonites have not let their light shine."

— Bethel Church, Fortuna, Mo.—"The Ladies Missionary Society sent a box of used clothing to the people at Rosthern, Sask.—The C. E. Society gave a Thanksgiving program Sunday evening, Nov. 26. The subject was: "Praise the Lord from Whom All Blessings Flow."

— Saron Menn. Church, Orienta, Okla.—The morning services on Nov. 24 closed the revival meetings at the Saron Mennonite church. Rev. P. P. Tschetter, Pretty Prairie, Kans., began the services on Nov. 16. His sermons for the evening were centered about the "I am" of Christ. The German Bible Study in the mornings was based on Ephesians 1. But the good brother found himself confronted with so many questions from the audience that his teaching took us through any part of the Bible. We are grateful to Rev. Tschetter for his coming.—The Lord blessed us richly and we praise His Name.—Corr.

—First Menn. Church, Shafter, Calif.—Rev. J. P. Glanzer who was a student at Freeman Jr. College, Freeman, S. D., 34 years ago, when the editor was principal, writes: "I received a call from the F. M. Ch. at Shafter to be their pastor for the coming year. We moved over from Dinuba last Friday. We found nice people here and are busy getting acquainted. My hope and prayer is that the Lord may bless us here.—I am to be installed as local minister about January 2, by Rev. J. H. Langenwalter."

—East Swamp Church, Quakertown, Pa.—The Church Council has unanimously decided upon another Evangelistic Campaign in 1940, with Rev. Douglas Davies as speaker, who was with us in 1938. The services are planned for Feb. 25 to March 10. "Let us pray much. Every child of God should be greatly burdened for such services, so that the Angels may rejoice over some soul who may come to a saving knowledge of Christ."—Ch. Bulletin.

—Second Church, Philadelphia, Pa.—Chimes will be installed in our church for Sunday December 17. They come to us temporarily without cost or obligation. They will be used for rregular morning services and for special musical service in the evening.—Funeral services during November: Nov. 22, Maxwell H. Kratz, 8 Booth Lane, Haverford, age 64; Wm. B. Edmonton, age 54, Mrs. Matilde Hooper, age 50.

—Mennonite Church, Wadsworth, Ohio.—Not long ago it was learned that a building directly across the street from this church had been leased for the purpose of establishing a State Liquor Store there. The Church Council addressed a protest to the Liquor Control Board, and the answer came, that the store would not be located there, with this explanation: "This administration has pursued the policy that a state liquor store will not be located near a church if its members are opposed to it."

The Mennonite Mission, Chicago, Ill.—How the heart of God must grieve as His children from various nations, many of them professing to follow the same Christ, hate and murder one another. Let us pray earnestly that love may soon replace hate. For only through that love can peace really be established. Genuine Christlike love for friend or foe, not large army and gas bombs, makes peace possible.

—Dr. E. L. Harshbarger, according to tentative arrangements, will speak in the country church at Beatrice and in our church Dec. 15 and 17.—Bulletin, Second Church, Beatrice, Nebraska.

NOTICE!

The following footnote should have been attached to the story that appeared under the heading JUNIOR CORNER last week: "By Nan F. Weeks, in the Keystone Graded Lessons, by permission of the American Baptist Public Society."

—Another God-Send for the Hymn Book.— The Eden Church near Moundridge, Kansas, has made an advance payment of $300 for the New Hymn Book. The Board of Publication deeply appreciates this and may it please God to bless the church and its members for so nobly assisting this good cause. Are there not others to follow this good example? Who is next?

—The 1940 Mennonite Year Book.—The printers assure us that the Year Book for 1940 will be ready for mailing December 12 or 13. It will be a valuable book, a copy of which should be in every Mennonite home. Those whose subscription is paid, or will be paid, to January 1940 or beyond, will get a copy free. Others may get one for 25 cents at the Mennonite Publication Office, Newton, Kansas

—The Peace Rally held by the General Conference Peace Committee, Friday, Dec., 1st, at Bethel College, was well attended and the program was interesting. We hope to be able to bring at least sketches of the main address by Hon. J. J. Gering of Freeman, S. D. The committee worked hard while they were together, to devise plans for more effective and circumspect work.

—Rev. P. E. Whitmer, Pastor of Grace Church, Pandora, Ohio, is holding a series of meetings at First Mennonite Church, Normal, Ill. upon the general theme, What Is Your Life? This he will treat under the following topics: Is Your Life Abundant? Is Your Life A Good Testimony? Is Your Life Generous? Is Your Life Consecrated?

—First Church, Hillsboro, Kansas.—WEDDING: Miss Wallburga Goertz to Mr. Otto B. Pankratz of Pasadena, Calif., Nov. 19, 1939, at the bride's home. Rev. J. H. Epp officiated.—"We are enjoying our meetings with Dr. J. E. Hartzler. They are well attended. Bible Study Hour starts Dec. 4, to continue through the week, just as the meetings."—Mrs. J. Bartel.

—The Orphanage Society of the Eastern District held its annual convention at Flatland Church, Nov. 11, 1939.—Rev. Fast, Field Secretary of the General Conference, recently gave a report on his work at Flatland. — A Spiritual Infilling and Ingathering Campaign was held at Flatland during October and November. At its conclusion, Nov. 19, 5 new members were taken into the church and one infant consecrated.—Mre. Victor Fluck, Corr.

—Miss Mary J. Regier, student at Chicago, formerly one of our missionaries on the China field, writes, "It is very gratifying to note the good impression Mennonite students make here at the seminary. For three years Bethel students have received scholarships. This year there are five Bethel students here, two from Bluffton, and one is from both schools. . . In a talk with Dr. Palmer, president of the seminary, he said, "Well, all the Mennonites I have met are certainly fine people, and when it comes to Mr. ------ and his wife, I think they are the salt of the earth."

Wholesome, Helpful Books

THAT MAKE WORTHWHILE PRESENTS

FIERY CONQUEST

By E. Pearl Brake

Author of "Nida Finds Peace"

When Zola Bangor, daughter of Judge Bangor, fled from the arms of her drunken companion, Bob Vance, at the Elite Dancing Pavillion, she was thoroughly frightened. There was no one there whom she knew that might have aided her. So she was fortunate in meeting John Taylor, a young Christian electrician, who took her home in his rattling work car. During this ride each made an unforgetable impression on the other.

That night Bob had a terrible wreck in a ride with an unidentified woman, who was killed, while Bob had his head broken. During his recovery, his mother is doing everything to entice Zola into a promise to marry her son. But though the million fortune of the Vances is alluring, John Taylor who by chance frequently comes in contact with Zola grows strong in her affection. Through their saintly cook, Aunt Margaret Love, and meetings at the Mission Tabernacle, pleasure loving Zola with other members of her family, surrenders her heart to the claims of the Savior. Meanwhile John Taylor who occasionally has to make professional calls at the Vance home, so influences the slowly recovering Bob, as to affect his change of heart, as also that of his mother. Thus it is no longer difficult for them to give up Zola, so that she is free to join her life with John's to establish a Christian home.

Here is a genuinely Christian story, sound in psychology and splendid in the the delination of character, with a thread of the forceful influence of consecrated Christian lives upon others running through it. By weaving characters socially so different skillfully and dramatically together, the story is so full of suspense that one is tempted to read it without stopping. And having read it the reader has the satisfaction to realize that Christian influence pays.

WHAT MUST I DO TO BE SAVED?

by John R. Rice, D. D.

150 pages, price, $1.00

Sin, death, hell, judgment—these are terrible and eternal tragic facts. We must deal with them. These sermons are meant to warn, to arouse, to awaken, to convict, and to convert sinners. They are meant to make plain the old, old story that Christ Jesus died for sinners —and nobody else.

These sermons are meant to make plain the sweet way of salvation through Christ. God has greatly blessed them as preached in revival meetings and many were convicted and soundly converted by the blessing of God. Among them were old and hardened sinners, drunkards, convicts, fallen women, infidels, and moralists.

These messages reveal a sincere devotion to Christ, compassion for lost souls, and zeal in Christian service. They will abundantly bless those who read them.

It is not often that one will find so many well chosen and such effective illustrations within the compass of a 150 page volume. One is struck by the choice Scriptures given in full in connection with each message.

These messages ring true to the Gospel in every line. Dr. Rice leads us into fertile fields and thirst-quenching fountains. These are stirring evangelistic sermons by one who is on fire for the Kingdom of God.

Read these spiritually refreshing messages.

GOD'S WORLD OF TOMORROW

by William Ward Ayer, D. D.

Pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, N. Y. C.

God's City of Tomorrow.

THE MODERN PRODIGAL

by Abbath

256 pages, price $1.50

Present day life stripped of its tinsel. Presents a true picture not often drawn correctly in the literature of today. With insight and skill given to very few writers the author points the way out of the great tangle in which the so-called "learned" find themselves. A book that every boy and girl in school and college will enjoy and read with profit.

The hero leaves home a Christian, loses his religion at the university, and finds it again only when distress and grief bring him back to his father's house. A story that fascinates and inspires. Beautifully bound—attractive jacket.

EVERY INCH A MAN

by J. Turner Wilson, D. D.

160 pages, price $1.00

This is a vivid story packed with the swift-moving events in the lives of two Christian young people—"Jimps" and "Linn." Young and old will enjoy this book and profit by its reading.

The story opens during the boyhood of young James Culbertson, and tells of many interesting events which lead up to the chance meeting with the young lady, Evelyn McDonald. And then, of course, things really begin to happen—from here on the story has unexpected turns.

Young ambitions, problems, and emotions are depicted in true form. Yet at all times particular emphasis is placed upon sound Christian character. This book truly will inspire anyone to noble and sincere purposes in life.

The First Christmas Celebration

By Rev. J. J. Balzer, Mountain Lake, Minn.

Luke 2:8-20

Of all the festivals of the Christian Church there is none so generally celebrated and so commonly observed, and at which so much joy is created among men as it is at this world-wide festival. Loving hands governed by loving hearts are carrying so many gifts and joy into the homes and huts of the poor and needy, as at no other time. Yes, people, who do not even believe in Christ Jesus as the Savior, greet one another with the so common greeting: "A Merry Christmas to you!" In countries like Germany it is unthinkable not to see a decorated Christmas tree with colored candles burning and some presents of love under it on Christmas night, and the family in devotion surrounding it, singing that familiar song: "Stille Nacht" and the other: "O Tannenbaum, O Tannenbaum." This all in expressions of joy for the "Birth of the Savior of the World."

I still remember the first Christmas celebration of my life, when I was a little tot on father's arm about 2 1-4 years old. He had just lit the candles on the little tree, finely decorated, while my older brother stood at mother's lap and we were saying our three stanzas of Christmas wishes for the loving parents and I saw tears of joy running down the cheeks of both. Then we sang that beautiful hymn: "Ihr Kindelein kommet O kommet doch all," etc. Could I ever forget that night? No, never, never!"

Let us for a few moments meditate upon the first Christmas, some 1939 years ago. (1) Where did it occur and at what time? Not in a temple or synogogue in far away Palestine. Not under the sunny skies, but under the starlit heavens of an oriental night. How different from our present day celebration in decorated churches and halls and homes. — But that is God's way of dealing with men regarding His revelations. Israel's redemption from Egypt occurred in the dead of night, when they were led thru the Red Sea by the pillar of fire—the Shekinah of God's glory, and when morning dawned Israel stood on "Redemption Ground," singing the "Redemption Song." 2) The group celebrating was small but no one absent. They were common shepherds. We often speak of poor shepherds. I believe it is a mistake. Men who own great herds of sheep are not poor, but they were common men of the farmer type. Again that is God's way of letting us know His revelations regarding our salvation. Moses was called, when a shepherd in the desert. David was in the fields of Bethlehem herding his father's sheep. Gideon was met by God's messenger on the threshing floor of his father. Elisha while plowing his field. He reveals Himself to men, when they are occupied with their daily tasks.

3) The preacher at that first celebration was not a common personality; he came from a great distance —from heaven. We do not know his name, but I believe it was Gabriel who stands before God to act as His messenger. He appeared from the Glory of God that illuminated the skies and greatly freightened the shepherds. It was the fear of God necessary to receive His revelation.

(4) The sermon was very short, but it revealed to the small audience the entire plan of God's salvation for fallen creation. a) It passified the freightened shepherds and brought to them a report of great joy and created in them the duty and desire to make known this heavenly message to all peoples. (b) "For this day is born unto you the savior, Christ, the Lord of the city of David." This was the heart of the message. It is to me as though I hear the procalamation: The entire list of prophecies from Genesis 3:15, through all Prophets and Psalmist, has come true and the music and songs of Redemption throughout the Old Testament are vibrating and reaching through the universe: "God revealed in the flesh!" The King of God's Kingdom born!"

5) And now listen to the praise of the angelic hosts of heaven: Glory to God in the highest, Peace on Earth, and Good Will towards Men!"

Under King David and Solomon Israel had a choir of 4000 with 288 master singers. But what were they in comparison to this heavenly choir! What a message they brought us! Peace on Earth!" Can we comprehend it in this age of wars and hatred and bitterness among socalled Christian nations? Are we not ashamed that this message of the first Christmas night has produced so few results after 1939 years? How empty is the world of those glorious conditions that were proclaimed by God's messengers! But that message is still ringing through this troubled world and it will never cease until every sermon and every Christmas hymn and choral will have born its results and that new message shall sing through the world: "Behold, I make all things new!"

Dear Reader, let us by word and song continue to proclaim the first Christmas message until we shall rejoicingly exclaim: "Come Lord Jesus, and come quickly!" Heaven and earth shall once more be united in joy over God's salvation in Christ Jesus, the Babe of Bethlehem and the King of Kings and Lord of Lords, and all Kings shall worship Him and all nations shall serve Him. Hallelujah! Amen!

HOME MISSIONS

A. J. NEUENSCHWANDER, Secretary

Great Deer, Sask., Canada, Oct., 1939

Dear Co-workers in the Lord;

This brief report comes to you from the far-off mission field of Great Deer, Saskatchewan. We are a community of some forty members living rather scattered over an area of some thirty square miles about twelve to twenty miles from the nearest town. In a few weeks the cold November blasts will block traffic as usual and shut us up in our homes for six months. The Lord be praised that we have had due attention in services by Rev. Cornelius Sawatzky, Laird, who puts his whole energy of an experienced worker into the field; also by brother Isaac Nickel, a farmer of Great Deer, and myself. Three young people were baptized and three others added as new members. Now that winter sets in, Brother Nickel and myself will share the work again as we did last winter. Mrs. Kroeker and I have visited the mission station at the Walter Scott School, which is more than seven miles away, regularly last winter, and we intend to continue. The cold weather with snowdrifts piled as high as the horses' heads made it hard. Sometimes the place was not heated when we arrived and only a few people came. However, other occasions have shown large attendance and, God be praised, we left the place greatly encouraged and filled with new zeal and energy. The people have shown their great appreciation which gives us new strength to continue the work for the coming season. The Lord is guiding us and with his assistance "we'll work till Jesus comes and we'll be gathered home."

Yours in Christ, N. J. Kroeker.

A Visit with the Waldensians in Italy

by Mrs. Bertha Kinsinger Petter

(Concluded from last week)

Not until then were "my eyes opened" to the real significance of our trip. The young folks had hung inspiring mottos all along the way, which one could decipher even with no previous knowledge of Italian. It was to be indeed a great day for all the Waldensians and they gathered from all their valleys eager to commemorate an important event in their past history and to renew their religious vows. Some one said they expected 4000 people to attend but that was an exaggerated estimate. There may have been 2000 present. Many of the women and girls wore the distinct Waldensian dress, giving a quaint touch to the scene. The young men had erected a leafy bower for a speaker's stand, and also cut many branches which the audience stuck in the ground to offer partial protection from the sun's rays. The young men also gathered a very large quantity of the rare alpine flower Edelweiss, which pretty girls offered for buttonhole bouquets. The mountain sloped to form a natural amphitheatre with very steep sides and the entire audience sat on the grass.

The sounding of a horn or bugle announced the beginning of the morning service presided over by a fine, elderly Waldensian minister. The entire service was in Italian, as the government now forbids the use of French in public meetings. However, the speakers were of such commanding presence and spoke with such spirit and eloquence, that one could not well miss the import of their message. A Basle lady sitting near pitied me for missing so much of what was being said and offered to repeat either in English or German. But as this proved difficult without disturbing the audience, she would simply lean towards me with awe in her expressive eyes and say, "Das war wunderbar. Das war wunderbar." The singing by choirs was especially fine, and though all was in Italian, my French-speaking companions said they were able to understand perfectly.

Italian Waldensian Minister and wife, two Sisters and the Director of the Old Folk's Home.

At noon the crowd scattered to eat their lunches anywhere on the mountain side. Then the young people ascended even higher for some commemorative service at an historic spot, while we rested and visited. The afternoon service was less formal with representatives speaking from Germany, France, Switzerland, North and South America, and of course much of this I understood for it was interpreted. All in our party were deeply impressed. We had with us besides our Italian minister and conductor of the party, a French minister of the state church in Zurich who had also studied at Tuebingen and could speak German. Then we had a Doctor of Letters from Geneva who is at the head of the Y. M. C. A. work in Switzerland, and who is Dr. John R. Mott's official interpreter when he comes for conferences or for public meetings.

After the services on the slope of la Balziglia were over our party visited various Waldensian churches, a Waldensian school or seminary, a Waldensian Old Folk's Home and a monument erected in honor of a great Waldensian leader. We were received very graciously everywhere and at each place held a service of Scripture reading, prayer and singing. In conversation with some I feel convinced that the ancient Waldensian teaching is that which we Mennonites hold dear, and that we have ever had a common faith and practice based on apostolic teaching.

Since our return I have taken pleasure in digging into a French history of the Vaudois, and quote here a few translated passages.—

"The Vaudois (Waldensians) are the most ancient among all the sects. Some say indeed that they existed from the time of the apostles."—Contra Valdenses, dans Max. Bibl. Patrum XXV 262.

Le Barbe Morel writes in the year 1530 that the "Vandois are in 'epines' (thornes, sufferings) for more than four hundred years, and even," adds he, "since the time of the apostles, as our people recount frequently." "Then since the time of the apostles," says he again, "we have always had the same sentiment regarding the faith."

Theodore de Beze writes "As to their religion, they have never adhered to papal superstitions."

The Vandois would say "Our rule of faith is not new. It is that which was taught by Jesus and the apostles."

One could give many more records, if one insists on records, for many modern historians discard much of the sacred past as having been based largely on tradition and not on records.

On this point we noticed a most valuable statement in a new book entitled "Urgeschichte und Schweizertum" in which the writer says, "Wie wollen wir aber die Geschichte eines Landes, seine Menschen und ihre Taten kennen lernen wenn wir keine Schilderungen der Zeitgenossen, keine Zeiterchnung, und keine Unkunden bsitzen? Der Urgeschichtler antwortet darauf ganz einfach: Wir besitzen Unkunden aus allen Zeiten, in denen Menschen gelebt, gedacht und gewirkt haben. Sie sind nur andrer Art als die schrittlichen Quellen und liegen nicht in den Archiven, sondern in der Erde aufbewahrt"—"So stuetzt sich denn die Urgeschichte auf die sachlichen Dokumente menschlicher Geistesaeusserung, auf die Werke der Kunst, der Religion, und der taeglichen Labensgestaltung." What Mr. Petter's grandmother of Huguenot-Waldensian stock repeated of it to her grandson became as ingrained in him as it had been in her and those before her, far more valuable than data or document and not to overthrown.

This book also states conclusively "dass die Roemer um Christi Geburt in unser Land gekommen sind" and having established such cities as Avenliceem with its 40,000 inhabitants, its city walls and towers, its temples, its forum, its ampitheatres, its villas with hot air heating system, its schools, its doctors and surgical instruments, its mosaics and works of art, as also Agustus Auricorum, Petenisca and others all connected by fine postal routes still to be seen, is it not clear that persecuted Christians of the first century fled to mountainous valleys in northern Italy, in Switzerland, France and Germany? And would they not hold their faith with even greater tenacity for having suffered, leaving perhaps fewer records, but nevertheless giving their heritage of a pure faith to each succeeding generation with an exactitude we in our time know little about.

Whittier's beautiful poem, "The Vaudois Teacher" which I do not happen to have with me, gives so beautifully the story of their religious zeal in preaching the gospel in perilous times.

In this connection, the new book, "Die Taufgesinnten" published in Switzerland should be more freely known and read in America. The author had access to records in Bern not available to other historians, permitting a most convincing account of our faith back to apostolic days. Also the "Maertyrer Spiegel", published in Holland years ago was pronounced by an outstanding professor of the University of Zurich as the best authority on the Taufgestinnten or Anabaptists. We found a very splendid copy with many illustrations in the Jura mountains. Personally I value the copy my father bought and that has always been in our family in Ohio. It would seem that the terms "Anabaptist" "Taufgesinnten" are not savory in our day, and yet we found that in Holland this term is still used rather than Mennonites.

The return trip from Penerolo was again made in one day, but by way of the pass Mont Cenis into France, then Modone, Annecy to Geneva and Lausanne. Again we passed through customs in leaving Italy and entering France and again in leaving France and entering Switzerland. Once we stopped near a large forest and had a final service of Scripture reading, song and prayer in the shade of great trees. Unfortunately for me it was all in French again, but I grasped the reading of the 27th Psalm and was blessed. The repeated stops hindered in that we skirted beautiful Lake Geneva or Lac Leman as it is also called, from Geneva to Lausanne and Vevey after dark. Thus all-too soon ended one of the rare experiences of this trip to Europe, as indeed of my whole life. We feel strnegthened in the very clear historical background of our faith and invite a renewed study of it from an angle not often presented. We would not stress too much the name of one particular leader who arose throughout the years of our history, but glory rather in every source of our faith and practice.

Report of the General Conference Peace Committee Meeting

At Newton, Kansas, December 1 and 2

For the first time in the history of our committee was it able to meet together and discuss plans and problems relative to its duties. The members present were Dr. E. L. Harshbarger, Newton, Kansas; L. J. Horsch, Upland Calif., J. J. Gering, Marion, S. D.; H. T. Unruh, Bluffton, Ohio; Ernest J. Bohn, Souderton, Pa. The only member who was unable to be present was Rev. John Rempel of Rosthern, Canada.

This meeting gave us an opportunity to formulate some specific working plans which we hope will help us to give a more effective peace testimony in time of peace as well as in time of war.

The public peace meeting sponsored by our committee on the evening of December 1 in the chapel of Bethel College, was well attended and a splendid interest was manifested in the addresses given and the discussion that followed them.

Some of the items if importance which resulted from our committee meeting are as follows: (1) That our Peace Committee coordinate its work with the work of the Mennonite Central Committee which is composed of seven other groups of Mennonite bodies; (2) that the chairman of our committee, Dr. E. L. Harshbarger, act as a representative of our General Conference at Washington, whereby he may petition the President for certain measures consistent with the principles of the Historic Peace Churches; (3) that peace committees be created in every district of our Conference, where that has not already been done, and that the General Conference Peace Committee representative of the district also be a member of that Committee; (4) that we set up peace time service projects in which young men of our Conference may give of their time in sacrificial service in the building up of Christian character, and in relieving human suffering, for example the Eastern District Retreat Grounds, our educational institutions, relief work among the underprivileged in our country, and relief and rehabiliation work in those countries where the ravages of war have wrought destruction and ruin, for instance Poland and China today. As a beginning for such work we have decided to send Erwin Goering, a senior at Bethel College, to receive the training for this service at Pendle Hill, Pennsylvania, where such a service training has been established by the Friends for a period of a month following February 12, 1940. An effort will also be made to send an older qualified man, from our more mature leaders of the Conference to the same place during January and part of February; (5) an intensive peace program which will permeate into all the local churches of the General Conference. The method to be persued will be (a) Biblical studies, study of pamphlets produced by our Peace Committee and other good recommended pamphlets and books. (b) Study of Mennonite History, of the Universal Act, and the Industrial Mobilization Plan No. 134, and the Problems of Conscription. (c) The encouragement of forums and peace rallies to be held in the district Conferences. (d) The encouragement of regular offerings for peace work in the churches where there is an interest in the Gospel of Peace.

Our entire plan for action was presented to the Executive Committee of our General Conference, immediately after our Committee adjourned, for their approval. The Executive Committee has favorably approved all the suggested activities of our Committee.

Ernest J. Bohn, Secretary of the Committee.

CORRESPONDENCE

FIRST MENNONITE CHURCH, NEWTON, KS.

Dear Editor and Readers of The Mennonite! The month of November has been a month of special blessings for our congregation. The first Sunday, November 5, 17 little children were consecrated. Rev. J. E. Entz brought the message. In the evening the Senior C. E. had a program of original numbers. Many original poems, essays or readings were given. On Tuesday following was the annual Sunday school meeting. Reports were given and election of officers and committees were held. Our able Superintendent Menno Schrag, was reelected.—Our pastor Rev. J. E. Entz has commenced a catechumenal class. There are 38 members in the class.—On Sunday, November 12. our special evangelistic meetings commenced. Rev. Erland Waltner of the Second Church, Philadelphia, preached in the morning on "Spiritual Rearmament", in the evening on "A Divine Imperative." On Monday He preached on "God's Final Word"; Tuesday: "The Blessedness of Forgiveness"; Wednesday: "A Peculiar People"; Thursday: "Personal Evangelism." On the same days, forenoon and afternoon, we had Bible study hours, led by Dr. Warkentin, on Revelation, Chapter 1-5. It was very interesting and practical, quite a number of ministers and others participated.—On Tuesday evening the Mission Study Circle had guest night. A Chinese Tea was given and Mrs. W. C. Voth from China spoke of the mission there.—On Thanksgiving day morning, Mrs. W. C. Voth spoke to the children, who brought their little barrels, which contained over $53. The adult collection amounted to over $220. Rev. G. A. Linscheid brought the Thanksgiving message.—On Monday, Nov. 17, Bro. C. F. Claassen celebrated his eightieth birthday. About 60 friends were invited to the church basement. A nice luncheon was followed by a very interesting program.

With best wishes for a happy and very blessed Christmas,

Fraternally Yours, C. van der Smissen.

FIRST MENNONITE CHURCH, LEHIGH, KANS.

We feel thankful for the many spiritual blessings which we have enjoyed in the past year, even if some of the best helpers in our congregation have moved away. New members have joined and are helping us out again. — October 15 Rev. R. Weinbrenner brought us a wonderful message in the morning and the Bethel College Quartett sang for us.—Oct. 22 the Weinbrenners were with us for the last time. We had a short farewell program right after the morning services, then a lunch basket dinner was enjoyed by the church members and visitors at the noon hour. It was a most beautiful, warm day, so the tables were put up outside. The Sunday following Rev. B. H. Janzens, Mr. and Mrs. Valley Bartel, Mr. R. Weinbrenner (father of Rev. R. Weinbrenner) and Mr. F. G. Unruh all went to the Second Church of Beatrice, Nebraska, to attend the ordination of Rev. R. Weinbrenner, as minister in that church. That Sunday Rev. P. H. Unruh preached a very inspiring sermon in our church.

During November Missionaries Rev. and Mrs. P. W. Penner served us on different occasions and brought us blessings in sermon and in their reports from India.—Thanksgiving day we had services, and a short Thanksgiving program by the four youngest S. S. classes. Following this, collections by the children and adults were taken. Before we all went home a grocery shower was given to Rev. B. H. Janzens on their front porch.

At this time we are busy getting ready for a Christmas program participated in by all S. S. children.—Mrs. Ferd. B. Unruh, Corr.

BERGFELDER CH., DELFT, MINN., 12-8-39

As the Thanksgiving season has passed and the Christmas season is fast drawing upon us, we feel especially thankful to God for all the blessings bestowed upon us during the past year.

The Mountain Lake and Delft Bergfelder churches observed Thanksgiving Day services together in the Mt. Lake Church on Nov. 30, morning and afternoon. Rev. Daniel J. Unruh of St. John Church at Pandora, Ohio, was the guest speaker. He conducted services in both churches in the period from Nov. 28 trough Dec. 7. God revealed unto us, through Brother Unruh, great truths from His Book, the Bible. The Book of Daniel was the course of study for the morning sessions. We have been blessed during these meetings and feel thankful to God for the privilege we have of worshipping Him in peace and unmolested.

Thanksgiving evening a joint musical program was given in the Carson M. B. church, with the Carson M. B. Church, the Jeffers Baptist Church, and the Delft Bergfelder Church taking part.—Sunday School Superintendents have been elected for the coming year in our churches. Henry A. Stoesz was reelected in the Mt. Lake Church, and John H. Quiring again serves in the Delft church.

We are also very thankful to our Heavenly Father for all the material blessings He has bestowed upon us. We have indeed harvested a bumper crop this year.

Mrs. Abram P. Baerg, Corr.

WEST SWAMP CHURCH, QUAKERTOWN, PA.

Greetings! We have just completed a campaign called "Spiritual Infilling and Ingathering," one new member was admitted to the church.

On Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 23, the Young Women's Missionary Society and the Ladies Aid held their Anniversary, at which time they presented a play called, "A Call from Afar." On Saturday Nov. 25, the Bluffton College East Coast Supper was held in the basement of the church. There were about 60 people in attendance. Brother Don Smucker gave the message of the evening. The Bluffton College Gospel Team gave a very interesting and inspiring program on Nov. 26.

On Friday evening Dec. 8, the Students' League of Many Nations from the Practical Bible Training School, of near Binghamton, N. Y. presented a wonderful program. Fifteen students, with Mrs. Patterson, gave a very inspiring entertainment which will long be remembered by everyone that was there. Each student gave his or her testimony; they are studying for Missionary and Alliance Work. One of these students returned on Sunday morning Dec. 10, and gave a short message.

The Christmas season is here and on Dec. 10, the Intermediate and Senior group presented the Christmas pageant, "Watchers on the Hill." The Junior Department will present their program on Dec. 23.

Anna Bauman, Corr.

Freeman, South Dakota.—The Monthly Ministerial Meeting of the Mennonite pastors was held at the home of Rev. A. P. Waltner. Rev. W. D. Tschetter of West Salem Church was the speaker, on the subject, "The Pastor's Care of His Flock." On Jan. 8 the meeting will be at the home of D. S. Wipf and Rev. H. A. Claassen will speak on "Spiritual and Modern Dangers of the Church."

FOREIGN MISSIONS

P. H. RICHERT, Secretary

The Present Situation in Hua Mei School

James Liu

Thank the Lord that we can start another year's school work. Our hearts are truly rejoicing. In the past year we experienced God's care and leading and hope the coming year may be as peaceful.

Because of the number of students last year, accomodations were insufficient and the Mission was asked to erect further buildings. Twelve rooms now completed are being used for students dining room, kitchen, store room, workers quarters and water heater. The former kitchen and dining room have been turned into dormitory rooms.

Since most other schools have been unable to open, our enrollment is unusually large; in the Middle School 207 students, in the Primay School 213 students, a total of 420. Of these, practically one-half are from Christian homes and 63 have been baptized. The students work hard, realizing that under present conditions they are very fortunate in having an opportunity to attend school. With so many schools closed our graduates were unable to go on to higher institutions, so this fall a class in the first year Senior Middle School was opened.

Accompanying the present growth as shown by increase of students and adding of a new class, there are many difficulties. Dormitory accomodations, especially for the girls, are very crowded and teachers' families do not have proper quarters. If teachers' residences could be built outside the school, much room could be vacated for dormitory use. Due to increase in classes the class rooms are all occupied and other arrangements are necessary for library and laboratory. Thus the school needs badly girls' dormitories, teachers' residences and a two-story building accommodating the library on the second floor and laboratory on the first.

Another pressing need is for endowment funds. Apart from the $3000 grant by the Mission, the school has to depend on student receipts, which demands a large number of paying students and higher fees than many can afford. The present budget calls for an annual expenditure of $10,000 and if the number of students should suffer an unforeseen decrease the school would be in great difficulty. This unstable condition is not satisfactory and we hope friends of the school will help and pray in this matter.

Although there are these difficulties we go forward in faith, depending on the Lord who strengthens us and knowing that He will make provision. We hope in three years to have a complete Senior Middle School by adding another class each year. Another need and an opportunity is a kindergarten. Our church workers are numerous, in the compound alone, employees of the various schools and hospital number 104 with 45 children under six years. For these and other children of Christian homes a kindergarten religous training program is needed and we hope may be accomplished in the near future.

There are many student organizations but the one which is most helpful is the "Ai Chu Tuan" (Love the Lord Society), having over 100 members, both boys and girls. They conduct daily evening prayers, Bible study classes each Sunday, weekly devotional services, evangelistic groups for outside work and many other activities to help the school and students. Recently a committee was organized to aid new students.

We appreciate the support that has come from all friends of the school and hope you will continue, especially to pray for the school even more than ever.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

A. S. BECHTEL

December 31, 1939

FRIENDS AND FOES OF THE KINGDOM

Matt. 13:54 - 14:4; 15:29-31

Foes in Jesus' Home Town vs. 54-59

We are now near the close of Christ's active ministry in Galilee. This lesson has to do principally with the foes of the kingdom. The first mentioned are those in his home city of Nazareth and its environs, who refused to believe in Him. He grew up among them and was known to them for nearly thirty years. Now after his good works and teachings had become widely known, He came back to "his own country" (v54) and instructed them in the synagogue. He loved them and wished them to know concerning the kingdom of God. His message, his wisdom greatly astonished them. There was nothing in his family history, his parentage, education and home environment that could account for his phenomenal wisdom and mighty works (vs55,56). They did not see that God could so endow Jesus with wisdom and power. They allowed their prejudices to warp their judgment. They did not deny his wisdom and power—it was too evident. They deliberately refused to believe in Him. Their unbelief wrought harm to themselves and greatly hindered the growth of the kingdom among them (v58). Jesus wished to bless them, and help them but few were ready to receive his blessing. He was compelled to leave them.

Today unbelief is still the obstacle which cuts us off from many blessings. It closes the door against God's richest blessings. They who refuse to believe that Jesus can save them from sin, are not likely to be saved from it. Many today let the hour of great privilege and blessing pass by.

Fear Troubles a Guilty King vs. 1-4

The reports of the wonderful work and teachings of Jesus reached the royal palace (v1) and smote the conscious-stricken king with fear (v2). His sins came out of their graves to haunt him, his conscience goaded him. He had sinned against John and now believed that John was risen to accuse him (cf, Mk. 6:14-16). Many foes of the kingdom are those who are determined to do as they please, even though it means committing willful sin. Such an one was Herod Antipas, the tetrarch, who put away his first wife and married his brother's wife while the brother was still living. John the Baptist, a fearless preacher, sternly reproved him (v4) and Herod put him in prison. He refused to give up his sin. God's work is much hindered and opposed today by those guilty of wrongdoing, and who resent being reminded of their evil deeds. All who live in sin are foes of the kingdom. Man's own heart is the source of his sinful living. Man can not change his heart, but he can come to Him who is able to change it.

Friends of the King vs. 29-31

This last part of the lesson tells of the many who came to Jesus on the east side of the sea of Galilee. Jesus went up into a mountain. Many followed Him and brought many helpless, blind, dumb and sick and Jesus healed them. These were believers and their faith was well rewarded. They listened eagerly to his message. They came to Him in hope and confidence. For three days the people remained with Him (v32) and they were fed and sent away. What they saw led them to glorify God (v31). The blessings these people received, the people in Nazareth might have received also if they had received Jesus with trusting and friendly hearts.

Friends of the kingdom love to be in the presence of Jesus the King, in the house of worship and in quiet meditation and prayer. They are fed with the bread from heaven and do whatsoever Christ commands them to do and so they are His friends (John 15:14, Golden Text.)

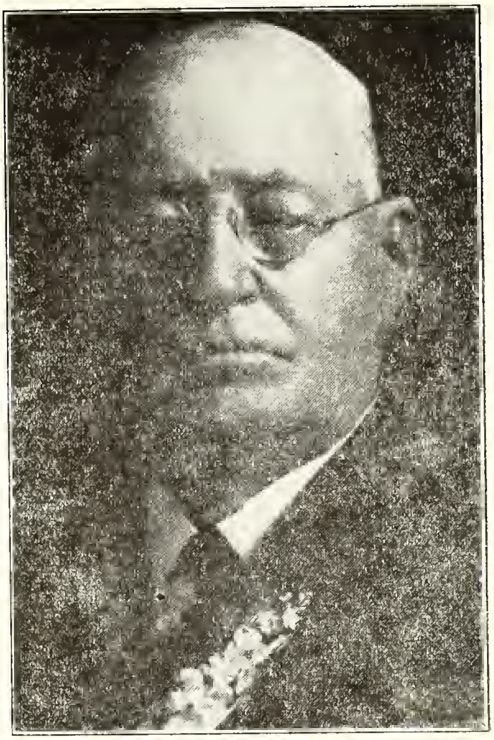
Announcement

God willing, the Brudertal Mennonite Church, near Hillsboro, Kansas, will observe its 65th anniversary on Dec. 26 at 10 a.m. A program consisting of sermons, a chronicle of the church and its various organizations and music is being prepared. Members and friends are urged to attend both the forenoon and the afternoon sessions and participate in the noon meal in the church basement.

By authority of the Church,
Arnold E. Funk, Pastor.

— Bethel College. The Bethel College-Newton Community Chorus of 175 voices, with string ensemble, piano and organ accompaniment, will present Handel's "Messiah" at the College chapel, Sunday, Dec. 17, as the twelfth annual rendition, with Prof. W. H. Hohman as director.

IN MEMORIAM



The Reverend Abraham Ratzlaff

ELDER ABRAHAM RATZLAFF, the son of Peter and Maria Richert Ratzlaff, was born in the village of Franzthal, south Russia, Sept. 3, 1850. Here he spent the days of his youth and received his education in the village school under the able direction of Gerhard Dirks who later gave him catechetical instruction preparatory to uniting with the church. Many of these spiritual impressions went with him through life and he often mentioned them in his conversations. So he gave his heart to Christ in the year 1869 and was baptized upon the confession of his Faith in Christ as his personal Savior on Pentecost Day by Rev. Benjamin Ratzlaff and united with the Rudnerweide Mennonite Church.

On May 1, 1873, he was united in marriage with Helena Schmidt. Together they were permitted to share joys and sorrows for almost 65 years. To this union were born 10 children, four of whom preceded them into the Great Beyond. Soon after their marriage the great emigration to America set in which the couple joined. They left Russia on June 22, arriving in America October 3, on a farm 6 miles east of the present town of Buhler, where they found their new home and lived all the days until they moved to Buhler, Kansas, in 1919 and made their home there for the rest of their days, except for 18 months spent in the Bethel home for the aged in Newton, Kansas. They lived through the hard pioneer days, with many of the privations that pioneer life brings. They were also active from the very start in helping to organize the Hoffnungsau Church, of which he became a member from its beginning and remained such till the end. His services were greatly appreciated and so on April 24, 1880, the church elected him as their minister, and on May 18, 1880 was ordained for this work. He served faithfully in this capacity until 1902, when on the passing of Elder Gaeddert, the call of the church came to him to be their Pastor or Elder. He felt the great responsibility of this office, but with the help of God he was willing to do this work, which he did faithfully, until hard hearing and ill health forced him to lay down the task on Dec. 26, 1925. In all this time he tried to lead lost souls into the fellowship of Christ and has been permitted to baptize 389 persons in his church alone. He was also very active in the Conference activities of our denomination. He helped along in Mission work, both Foreign and Home, in Education and Schools, in Hospital work, and did much traveling for the itinerant mission work. He took great joy in doing this as long as health permitted. In his home he was a loving and caring father. He tried to lead his children to Christ and admonished them to be true to Him. His love and his care will go with them through life.

In the later years of his life he was afflicted with heart trouble and at time suffered considerably. On October 15 while attending a wedding he became somewhat ill and from that time on his health failed and he grew steadily weaker. For several days he was taken to Hillsboro to his daughter, Mrs. Helena Epp, to be close to the Doctor, his grandson, Dr. A. K. Ratzlaff. He could be taken home somewhat better, but he never regained his strength. The last week he suffered much and often prayed that he might be taken home into the Beyond. He remained steadfast in his faith until, Wednesday morning, Nov. 29, at 6:45, he passed quietly and without visible pain, to be forever with Christ, his Savior, whom he had loved and served.

He leaves to mourn his departure three sons, Henry, Abraham, and John all of near Buhler, Kansas, and their wives; and three daughters, Maria, Mrs. John Becker; Anna, Mrs. Gustav Gaeddert and husband, of Buhler, Kans.; Helena, Mrs. John H. Epp and her husband, of Hillsboro, Kansas, also 18 grandchildren and 8 great grandchildren, besides many relatives and friends and a much loved congregation. Also Mr. John Brubaker who was almost like a child in their home for 6 years. He will be missed in the family and church circles, but all know that he is save in the arms of Jesus after a long life filled with much hard labor and service for his Master. We do not say "Goodnight" but "Till we meet again."

He reached the age of 89 years, 2 months and 26 days.

Short services were held in the home by Rev. A. T. van der Smissen. The funeral was held in the Hoffnungsau Church on Saturday, Dec. 2, at 1:30. Rev. D. D. Unruh led in the opening, Rev. C. H. Voth spoke in the German and Rev. A. J. Dyck in the English Language. Interment was in the Hoffnungsau Cemetery.

The Men's Chorus and the Ladies' Choir rendered special music.

MAXWELL H. KRATZ was born at Frederick, Pa. on November 17, 1875. His earlier years were spent there and in Philadelphia. At the age of twelve he came back to Frederick to live with his aunt, Mrs. Annie Stetler. At the age of fourteen he attended the Sumneytown Academy and took the County Teachers' examination. He passed but found inscribed on his certificate, "Too Young to Teach,,' The next year, 1892, he was given a school.

In the fall of '94 he entered Perkiomen Seminary and was graduated in the spring of '95. That fall he entered Princeton. Four years later he was graduated with honors, which included athletic distinction and a fellowship for another year of study. In the fall of 1900 he began a three year teaching career at St. John's Military Academy, New York. In 1903-05 he was back at Perkiomen Seminary as Vice Principal. During 1905-08 he attended the University of Pennsylvania Law School. From 1908, when he was admitted to the bar, until his death he remained in active legal practice. However, during this period, he spent a great deal of time teaching, for many years in Law School of Temple University. In the last ten years of his life he conducted his own private law course, during which time it is estimated that more than five thousand, at least fifty per cent of Pennsylvania law examination candidates, attended this school. Preceding this he served a term on the State Board of Examiners.

In practice, he served more in an advisory capacity to the justness of the law than he used it as an expedient to accomplish desired ends. In his teachings, his emphasis was always on the ethical implications of the law and its fundamentally righteous basis. To him law was a sense of divine justice and not a mere compromise of contending forces. Those who knew Mr. Kratz in his legal contacts found him more of an interpreter of law than a practitioner. He was a legal theologian.

As to his Christian work and that for the Conference, Mr. Kratz always left the door open for the use of his talents. His advice was freely sought. He was baptized in the Schwenksville Church on October 7, 1895, and became a member of Second Church, Philadelphia. Through his urgings and assistance, the Eastern District Brotherhood was organized. His activities in the all Mennonite Relief Committee are set forth in the volume, "Feeding the Hungry". He served as legal counsel for some Eastern Conscientious Objectors.

His being smitten at the age of sixty-four seems to us tragic, for his mental powers had merely reached their zenith that could have glowed for another ten years. After six weeks of illness, in the Bryn Mawr Hospital his psirit slipped over into the presence of Christ on Sunday, November 19.—On Wednesday, November 22, the funeral was held at the Oliver Bair parlors. His pastor, Reverend Erland Waltner, conducted the services; Dr. Clarence Tobias, Headmaster of Perkiomen School, delivered a simple eulogy.

Judge and servant wept at his bier. His funeral room was banked with many floral tributes from a host of those who loved him and who will remember him as a warm friend whose chief quality next to his fine mind was sympathy. Well could many say as they followed his remains to the grave, "Heaven and I wept together".—As his body was laid to rest in the Philadelphia Memorial Cemetery, and the echo of his pastor's voice died, nature began laying a mantle of white upon the sod broken by his grave. Thus the physical pain of parting seemed already to be eased as the fall of our footsteps was softened by the carpet of snow that had been spread.

He is survived by his wife, Nellie Drake Kratz, and two sons, Maxwell H. Kratz, Jr. and John Valentine Kratz. His memory will ever remain a tender mound in the hearts of all who knew him and to know him was to love him.

ANNA CONRAD, daughter of Christian and Barbara Ernest Conrad, was born April 27, 1865. Upon her confession of faith in Jesus Christ as her Lord and Savior she was baptized by Rev. S. Sprunger on May 26, 1889 and accepted into the membership of the Berne Mennonite Church, Berne, Ind. This membership was later transferred to the Eicher Emmanuel Mennonite Church, Noble Iowa, of which she remained a faithful and an active member until her departure from this world.

She was called home to her eternal reward Nov. 12, 1939, due to a stroke she suffered on Nov. 3 from which she never regained consciousness.—Mrs. D. E. W., Corr.

MRS. IDA MAE SHELLY COPE, daughter of Wm. B. and Amanda S. Harwick Shelly, was born Reb. 17, 1893, in Milford Twp. She declared her faith in Christ as her Lord and Savior, was baptized on Nov. 3, 1906 and received into the membership of the East Swamp Mennonite Church, where she had been a faithful and active member ever since, also a charter member of the Ladies Organization for over 25 years, as well as teacher in the Primary Department from time to time over a period of 20 years. During the past few years she had served as Cradle Roll superintendent.

On Dec. 29, 1923, she was united in marriage with Wm. W. Cope. To this union were born three children. Besides her husband, she is survived by two daughters: Mary Alice and Marjorie Esther, and one son, Wm. Walter Jr.—Sisters and brothers to mourn their departed sister are: Mrs. Mahlon Mumbauer, Quakertown; Mrs. James Bleam, Perkasie; Mr. Eastburn Shelly, Allentown; and a step-brother, Mr. Harry Johnson, Quakertown.—Mrs. Cope's death came after a prolonged illness of almost one year, suffering from Carcinona, which finally took her life on Friday, Nov. 24 at the Grand View Hospital, Sellersville, Pa., thereby bringing her age to 46 years, 9 months and 7 days. The date of the funeral was Nov. 28, 1939. A short service was held at the C. R. Strunk Funeral Parlor, the body then being taken to the East Swamp Mennonite Church where the regular funeral services were conducted. Interment was in the East Swamp Cemetery.

Rev. Harold D. Burkholder, pastor of the church conducted the service, using as a text, John 14:2; with Rev. Howard Nyce, a former pastor, assisting.

Our Youth Says

"A UNITED MENNONITE YOUTH IN CHRIST"

Sponsored by the Young People's Committee of the General Conference

A STAR OF HOPE

Long years ago a message came to earth;
It changed a world, and gave mankind new birth.
As centuries pass, dark clouds obscure the Star
That brought Wise Men to worship from afar.

Today we pray that other men as wise
May see the Sign and to its greatness rise.
Humanity still waits for those who heed
The call to service in its hour of need.

O Star of Hope, arise! break through earth's night,
Disperse the shadows, reveal the Christmas Light.
And in that dawn shall age old conflicts cease,
Good will shall triumph and to the world come Peace!

THIS AND THAT

C. E. Activities

Miss Hilda Wiebe, who is doing a good job as instructor of normal training at Hyannis, Nebraska, and who is much interested in young people's work, writes, "How can we become more conscious that we are not isolated groups, but members of a great C. E. fellowship?" Some suggestions which she gives are, "1. By attending the C. E. convention, 2. by reading the Mennonite publications, 3. by cooperating with C. E. projects carried on by other C. E's. in your town or community, 4. by pausing briefly before each meeting to remember that it is a part of a worldwide movement."

Miss Onieta Tiahrt, secretary of the Bethel C. E., North Newton, Kansas, writes, "I am very much in favor of the F.O.R. (Fellowship of Reconciliation) and all of the Bethel young people of high school age and up are going to join. I believe that in these times of stress pacifists can get the best results by unified action and the activities of the Fellowship are certainly worthwhile." Anyone interested may write to her for further information.

On November 27th Rev. Edward Schmidt from the Wichita Mennonite Mission church took the Hopefield Christian Endeavor group from near Moundridge to the West Side slum area of Wichita where they distributed food to the needy.

EDUCATION

Brother Isaac Epp, superintendent of the Bible school at Swift Current, Sask. writes, "In another two weeks we shall be on our way into the fourth year of the work of the Bible school. We are expecting an increase in attendance." The school has been very badly in need of a dormitory for the students. At present such a building is being erected and the young people of the General Conference are contributing to this work.

Contributions in the various dictricts should be directed as follows: Pacific, Louise Richert, 6157 Springvale Dr., Los Angeles, Calif.; Eastern, DeWitt Temple, 129 Merman St., Philadelphia, Pa.; Western, Florence Krehbiel, North Newton, Ktnsas; Middle, Esther Amstutz, 416 W. High, Bryan, Ohio; Northern, Rev. Victor Sawatzsky, Butterfield, Minnesota; Canada, Jacob C. Schmidt, Waldheim, Sask.

To those who read German: The Christlicher Bundesbote of Nov. 28, 1939 carries a very interesting account of the conditions and work at Swift Current.

In the Mission Number of Nov. 21, The Mennonite also has such an article.

PEACE

"To use pacifism as a fire escape is not even decent, let alone Christian!"—Dr. E. L. Harshbarger, Western Dist. Peace Rally, Eden Church, Nov. 12, 1939

* * * * * * * * * *

SENTENCE EXPRESSIONS taken from Peace Rally sponsored by General Conference Peace Committee at Bethel College, Dec. 1, 1939.

"Be a Bible reading Christian, for Gods' word remains unchanged forever."

"We must prevent future wars . . . Have we done our utmost?"

"Consistent living is the acid test of our peace belief."

"We need thorough religious education not merely for a proof text basis, but to understand the main stream of Christ's system."

"We need to extend peace lessons in Sunday schools."

"We need to organize our peace and relief work into one."

"In the last analysis our peace stand is a personal matter."

Senior Department

Since the outlines for the C. E. programs of 1940 have not yet come, we offer these thoughts which may be helpful for the program which C. E. societies are having on Sylvester night.

At The Milestone

We have come to another milestone on our way. The year 1939 has come and has gone. And today we pause to think, and to ponder what it has meant, what it has brought; what will be its fruitage? The year 1940 lies ahead—a gift to be taken from Gods' hand—what will it mean for us? And as we look back into the Old Year and forward into the New Year there are a few things of which we are certain.

One of these things of which we are certain is the fact that we will not change overnight. When the Old Year leaves and the New Year comes in that will work no magic—making us different. What we have built into our character, be it good or bad goes with us. It has taken us years to become what we are today; character is not built overnight nor changed overnight; and whatever we are, we will take ourselves along into the New Year. And, if our personality is something we have become by the grace of God—we need not be afraid to take it along into the New Year—even with the faults and failings that still mar it, but we may enter humbly, yet calm and trusting.

One other thing of which we are certain as we look back into the past year and forward into the New Year is that we will take along our memories. It is the "Rosary" which says, "The hours I spent with Thee, dear heart, Are as a string of Pearls to me, I count them over every one apart, My Rosary." There are indeed memories that bless. memories of hours spent with friends, of evenings that brought the sweet companionship of the family circle, of days of honest work when we felt at the close of the day that something had been accomplished, something done, of nights that were full of peace and quiet and rest. There is the remembrance of glad days of special events, of unexpected love received, of sad days that yet were filled with blessing. All these memories we would not miss as we enter the New Year but we gladly and thankfully take them along.

But there are other memories, bitter memories, those that "burn"—of sins and of failures, of words that we would like to recall, of deeds that we would like to undo. There is the heartache caused by "the tender word forgotten, the letter we did not write, the flowers we did not send, the stones we did not lift out of a brothers way." What shall we do about them? There is only one thing to be done about them, we must ask God to forgive, and let Him convert these sad, bitter memories into a challenge to living on a higher plane in the coming year. "I'm pressing on the upward way, New heights I'm gaining every day; Still praying as I onward bound, 'Lord, plant my feet on higher ground.' "

And what about the memories of heartaches that we have received perhaps through the hands of another? Some one has said,

"Is your heart sore and bitter
Because of some brother's sin?
Then dig a grave as deep as death
And bury his wrong deeds in.
  The fault-finding too—forget it,
  Petty quarrels that are now past;
  How long if fed upon such things
  Can faith and charity last?
The mischief, meanness and malice
The wrongs that are done to you
Can't hurt if quickly forgotten
As you start each day anew.

One other thing that we all desire to take along as the New Year with all its Unknown Days comes to us is our faith and trust in God. We cannot afford to leave that behind. It is to go with us, to be our staff and our comfort in the coming days and weeks and months. It is to give meaning and value to the everyday happenings, and lead us to mountain top experiences. It is to guide us through the perplexities of life, and to help us brave its difficulties. It is to hallow our joys, and to increase our happiness when beautiful and glad things come to bless our life.

"As the marshhen secretly builds on the watery sod sod
Behold, I will build me a nest on the greatness of God;
By so many roots as the marshhen sends in the sod
I will heartily lay me a-hold on the greatness of God."

And we want to take along the assurance that Jesus cares for us. "Oh yes, He cares, I know He cares, His heart is touched with my grief. When the days are weary, the long nights dreary, I know my Savior cares."

"Not a brooklet floweth, Onward to the sea.
Not a sunbeam gloweth On its bosom free,
Not a seed unfoldeth, To the glowing air
But our Father holdeth It within his care.
  Not a tie is broken, Not a heart laid low,
  Not a farewell spoken But our God doth know;
  Dream not that thy gladness, God doth fail to see,
  Think not in thy sadness He forgetteth Thee."

And of one other thing we are sure as we look into the New Year. New opportunities are calling. "There is food to be won from the furrow, and forests that wait to be hewn." The work in this world is not all done yet. The Master still calls for hearts and hands willing to do His bidding. "Will you let the plow rest in the furrow, Unbuilded a home or a hall?" Let us answer gladly and with a willing heart—

"I'll go where you want me to go dear Lord.
Over mountain, or plain, or sea,
I'll say what you want me to say, dear Lord,
I'll be what you want me to be."

And now as we are about to take the New Year as a precious gift from the hands of God, our Father,—

"Let us walk softly, friends,
For strange paths lie before us, all untrod,
The New Year, spotless, from the hand of God,
Is thine and mine, O friends.

Let us walk straightly, friends,
Forget the crooked paths behind us now,
Press on with steadier purpose on our brow,
To better deeds, O friends.

Let us walk kindly, friends,
We can not tell how long this life will last,
How soon these precious years be overpast,
Let love walk with us, friends.

Let us walk quickly, friends,
Work with our might while lasts our little stay,
And help some halting comrade on our way;
And may God guide us, friends.

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT

APPRECIATION FOR OUR CHURCH

Intermediate C. E. Topic for Jan. 7. 1940

For Daily Reading:

Jan. 1. Craving for Worship. Ps. 84:1-12.
Jan. 2. A place for prayer. Mark. 11:15-18.
Jan. 3. Cause for thanksgiving. Ps. 100:1-5.
Jan. 4. Mutual helpers. Luke 22:31-32.
Jan. 5. An assembly. I Cor. 14:26-33.
Jan. 6. Care for those in need. Acts 6:1-6.
Jan. 7. Showing appreciation for our church. Eph. 2:13-22.

Opening Song: "Loyalty to Christ"
Scripture Reading: Eph. 2:13-22.
Prayer by leader.
Song: "For Christ and the Church"

Discussion of topic:

I. Why should we love the Church?

a. Jesus loved the church and gave himself for it.

b. To satisfy the craving for worship which every Christian has. Read Psalm 84:1-12.

c. It is a place for prayer. It is the avenue by which we come into close communion with God. Read Mark II.15-18.

d. It is the best place to be informed of needy services. Therefore it provides for us avenues of service. Read Acts 6:1-6.

II. Have at least four intermediates give their reasons for going to church.

III. How can we show our love for the church?
a. Regular attendance.
b. Talk about the church and the need of belonging to it.
c. Enlist in its services.
d. Contribute to its support.

IV. After the above discussions the intermediates are probably ready to suggest ways of showing their love for the church more definitely in this year of 1940.

Have various projects presented and ask a committee to consider them and decide which are most practicable and workable. At next week's meeting take definite action and begin working.

Song: "Somebody"
Offering
Prayer by the members asking God to help them to show their love for the church more fully.

JUNIOR CORNER

Program Suggestions for January, 1940

"SIR, WE WOULD SEE JESUS"—John 12:21.

January 7. Seeing Jesus as a Boy.—Luke 2.40,51.

January 14. Seeing Jesus in Loving Service.—Acts 10:38.

January 21. Seeing Jesus on the Way to the Cross.—Luke 9:15: Mark 10:32.

January 28. Seeing Jesus as Our Savior.—I Tim. 1:15.

Song of the Month—"Jesus Is All The World To Me."

Verse of the Month—I.Timothy 1:15. This is a faithful saying and worthy of all acceptation, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners, of whom I am chief."

"The New Year lies before us, white and clean:

So many lovely days in which to live,
So many hours to spend like silver coins,
So many precious moments God will give
For us to use in service and in love----"

Grace Noel Crowell.

To the Juniors:

A new year of 365 days lies before us. Many of our friends greeted us with "Happy New Year"—and we do want this to be a happy new year, a new joy in each day! If this is to be a happy year, we must find happiness and joy in Him, who alone can give true happiness and true joy, our Lord Jesus Christ. A long time ago some Greeks came to the disciple Andrew and said, "Sir, we would see Jesus." Those are just the words I should like for every one of us to say at the beginning of the new year.—"I want to see Jesus." He is our Friend, our Guide and our Savior. If we truly see Jesus, it will be a happy new year. God bless you all. May this be a happy New Year for you!

Program for January 7, 1939

"SEEING JESUS AS A BOY"

I. Worship Period

1. Prelude—Play the music of "Tell Me the Old, Old Story" very softly.
2. Call to worship—"I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go into the house of the Lord." Psalm 122:1.
3. Song—"I Need Thee Every Hour."
4.—Scripture—Luke 2:39-52—By the Junior leader.
5. Prayer by the Junior leader.
6. Song of the month—All rise to sing.—"Jesus is All the World to Me."

II. Study Period

Aim—To help our Juniors learn from the Twelve year old Jesus the preciousness of God's word and God's house.

1. Introduction.—In the second chapter of Luke we have the only glimpse of our dear Savior's life, from the time that He was a little infant until the time when He was a man of thirty years. But we can learn much from this one story of the life of Jesus.
2. Discussion by a Junior boy.

"If we want to see Jesus, we must go to church as He did." Luke 2:46.

3. Poem

Some go to church to take a walk;
And some go there to laugh and talk
And some go there to laugh and talk;
Some go there to meet a friend;
Some go there their time to spend;
Some go there to meet each other;
Others go a fault to cover;
Some go there to doze and nod;
The wise go there to worship God."

4. Solo—"I think When I Read That Sweet Story of Old."
5. Discussion by a Junior girl—

"If we want to see Jesus we must love God's word as He did."—Luke2:47.

6. Psalms 19:105—In Unison.
7. Discussion by a Junior boy.

"If we want to see Jesus we must obey our parents as He did."—Luke 2:51.

8. Song—"Tell Me the Old, Old Story."
9. Leader's Heart Talk.

How may we see Jesus? To be sure we can not see Him with our physical eyes, but we can see Him with the eye of the heart and the mind. If we would see Jesus, we must read about Him. The gospels tell the story of Jesus. Shall we read one of the four during the month of January? Jesus can not be seen by anyone who neglects his Bible. If we want to see Jesus we must pray much, we must watch against sin and we must be busy for Him as He was busy about His Father's business. And we must put Him first, because we can not see Jesus when looking at all other things.

III Mission Minutes

1. Refer to "Mission News and Notes for material—Let the Juniors read portions of letters that are of interest.
2. Leaders closing prayer.
3. Song—"Into My Heart".

—Rev. and Mrs. Edmund Miller to Move to Lind, Wash.—The church near Lind, Washington known as the Menno church is rejoicing in the decision of Rev. Edmund Miller to accept the call to serve them as pastor. They hope to have Rev. and Mrs. Miller with them by Feb. 1. The change is being made by the Millers chiefly for health reasons and we trust it may bring the desired benefits. What is a loss for Portland will be a gain for Menno.. May their consecrated, energetic leadership mean great things for the church to which they are going under God's guidance and blessing.—"Worker's Exchange"

—Rev. Walter E. Dyck Accepts Pastrate at Beatrice, Nebr.—Reverend Dyck who for several years has been the beloved and successful pastor of the Burrton, Kansas, Mennonite Church, and active in the affairs of the Western District Conference, with his estimable wife and family, will relinquish their present charge and expect to begin service with the First Mennonite (Wehrlose) or Rural Congregation of Beatrice, Nebraska, April 1 next. They will be greatly missed by the Burrton Church and community, while the members of the Beatrice church can congratulate themselves in getting a faithful new leader in the full vigor of young manhood and adept in work with young people.

—Helen Fast Sellers, California Missionary Supt. reports in the "Exchange" that "the California conference has seen an opportunity for definite and concrete service and it is their aim to help Missionary J. R. Duerksen replace the Model T with a new car." Added to this announcement is this thoughtful paragraph: "Should we ask our missionaries who do work of such importance, to work under handicaps we ourselves would not tolerate. Then let's all put in our share."

—A WEDDING at the Emmaus Church, near Whitewater, Kansas.—On Oct. 20, Henry A Thiessen was married with Margaret Busenitz by their pastor John C. Kaufman. Text Phil. 4:6-7.

TO OUR CORRESPONDENTS!

Sixty-five pastors of our churches reported name and address of their correspondents to this paper at or near the beginning of this year. To these the editor sent, at his own expense, stamped envelopes and cards, the former for use in reporting the more important happenings in the church, the latter for brief news items. With this equipment was also enclosed a letter of suggestions and instructions. Quite a few of those entrusted with the office of correspondent for their congregation have done well, others fairly well. They have thus served their church, the editor and the readers of the paper, and they deserve our hearty thanks. To those who either forgot to write or had nothing to write or did not feel like putting forth the necessary effort, we can only extend our pity, and we hope and pray that they will make a sincere new year resolution to do better, if reappointed. In closing we have this request: Will those who have material left over, kindly hand it to their successor, in case another person should take their place.

—From "Church Messenger," Eden Church, Schwenksville, Pa.—Rev. Freeman Swarty, Ed.: Something novel in the form of a debate was tried Sunday evening. "Causes of War" was the title and the newly passed Neutrality Bill was under discussion. Mr. Norman Bergey and Mr. Leroy Albright were the opposing speakers, and Mr. Ezra Markley the leader.—The Main Building on the Retreat Grounds will soon be a reality. The foundations are laid, the well dug. Equipment donations will be appreciated. A piano has already been offered.

—Rev. J. J. Balzer of Mt. Lake, Minn. whose interesting article on "The First Christmas Celebration" in this issue will interest the readers, writes, "We have beautiful fall weather, with day time temperatures of 45 to 55 F and only occasionally a night frost; but scarcely any moisture for six weeks. Winter sowings, alfalfa fields, shrubbery and even the trees are apt to suffer. My wounded leg is mending but still weak. I am thankful for the state I am in."

—Mennonite Church, Sugar Creek, Ohio.—On a nice evening early in October, 35 members of this church gathered on the farm of Bro. Dan Stutzman, at about five o'clock, to husk corn to raise money to pay off their church debt, and all had a good time at that.—This church is becoming interested in an organ, and a fund for that purpose has been started.—Would that all churches might have the use of this wonderful instrument, as a distinct aid to worship.—Ed.

—First Church, Philadelphia, Pa.—On Monday Dec. 4, the Mennonites, Friends, Brethern and Schwenkfelders met in a Joint Conference at the Church of the Brethern, at 4 and 7:30 p.m., for a program of discussion on the theme, "The Church and the World in Confusion."

—Rev. A. S. Bechtel of Hanston, Kansas, wonders what the probabilities are of getting Bethel's Memorial Hall under roof in 1940. He continues, "How could the many visitors at the Annual Meeting feel at ease when they saw the basement of the Hall standing there bleak and forlorn... Is it really and truly a cold fact that there are not any of our people in the west who can give liberal amounts, so that this much needed building may be completed. Why cannot Bethel have a family like the Musselmans that have given Bluffton a total of $125,000?

—Second Church, Beatrice, Kansas, on a recent Sunday evening had an interesting Bethel College program. The announcement says, Bethel College is an integral part of our work for the kingdom of God. Let us consider it in our prayers, interest, attention, and gifts. It has a missionary as well as educational function.—A series of 2 to 3 minute talks were part of the program, among them, "Why Pray for Bethel College," by Rev. Henry Reimer; "Why are we sending our daughter to Bethel," Mrs. John P. Andreas.

—First Mennonite Church, Reedley, Calif.—From the Bulletin: "The attendance at the Annual Meeting last Sunday (Dec. 3) was good. The spirit of the meeting was characterized by interest, eagerness and goodwill."—Among the large number of officers elected we note the following. Congr. Chairman, Paul A. Eyman; Secretary, Mrs. Paul Sellers; Treasurer, R. H. Ruth; Deacons, E. P. Ruth, R. Ewy, and Herman Nuefeld; Trustees, Dr. D. V. Wiebe, E. A. Detweiler and E. W. Ewy; Correspondents: For the "Bundesbote," Rev. J. K. Lichti; for the Mennonite, Miss Frances Ewy.

—The latest Alumni Bulletin of the German-English Academy, at Rosthern, Sask. has just reached us. It is full of interesting things. Notable is the Principal's report which says that this year's student body is very promising, that the number has increased from 60 to 67 over last year, and that of the combined Academy and Bible School from 75 to 94. The faculty of the Academy consists of K. G. Toews, principal, D. Paetkan and P. Rempel; of the Bible School, Rev. J. G. Rempel and J. I. Schmidt. We hope to bring other extracts from the paper later.

—Bluffton College observed prayer week Nov. 13-17, with meetings each evening in the chapel. Rev. D. J. Unruh of the St. John Church, Pandora, had charge of the meditation periods. The theme followed was, "Men Ought Always to Pray."—This year's Men's Gospel Team is composed of: Stanley Fretz, leader; Harvey Bauman, John Boehr, Robert Sommer, Leonard Metzger and James Habegger. They have made a tour of Pennsylvania churches during the Thanksgiving vacation. The Girls' Team is composed of Evelyn Burkhard, leader; Gladys Raber, Jean Habegger, Margeret Shelly and Cleodel Routson.
